Pack 264 met Saturday at 8:00 a.m. at Tommy's house. We went on a trip to Canyon and Amarillo.

Our first stop was at WTSU Museum in Canyon. We spent an hour and a half going through the museum.

After leaving the museum, we drove to the park on the waterway across from High Plains Baptist Hospital. We ate our sack lunches and played there until 1:00 p.m.

At one o'clock, we drove up to the Children's Rehab Center and were met there by Mr. Richard Baulky who is the director of the center. Jason presented Mr. Baulky with a check for one hundred and thirteen dollars and twenty-five cents from the community of Turkey.

Mr. Baulky wanted to know how the money was obtained and was very appreciative of it. He took the group through the center and explained its uses to us.

From the Rehab Center, we drove to the Don Harrington Discovery Center and saw the 2:00 p.m. presentation of the Night of the Hunter and the Day the World Trembled. We saw the helium monument which is in front of the center.

We left the center at 3:00 p.m. and went to the Showplace Square at 34th and Bell and attended the Walt Disney movie, "Pete's Dragon."

We had a great day and want to thank the Turkey City Council for allowing us to use the City van; also, we would like to thank Sandy Fuston for visiting the bank for us to change our money to a bank check to present to the Rehab Center.

The extra money we had taken from our account for the ones who didn't go with us was placed in the donation jar at the museum by Henry.

Those making the trip were Pat House and Danny, Margie Pinkerton and Vera, Tommy, Chad Calvert, Henry McNary, Manuel and Bobby Silva, Garrett Mills, Jason Smith and myself, Lee Roy Galvan, reporter.

March 26, Den II met at the Pinkerton home. All the members were present. The boys cut out Indian shields of cardboard and painted them white. Each boy then painted his own design on his shield.

The Superintendent's Corner

by Wilburn Leeper

Last Friday the district literary contests were held at Sudan and a number of Valley students spent the day competing in the various events. All our students performed well and are to be congratulated for the exemplary way in which they represented our school. Special attention should be given to three students who won their competition and will advance to the regional contest which will be held April 13 in Levelland. Those three students are Devona Smith, Darren Edwards and Lori Clay.

Devona won the Prose Interpretation contest by reading and interpreting the selection, "The Waltz." The purpose of this contest is to stimulate the student to find the meaning of printed prose and then communicate that meaning to his listeners. The contest judge was very complimentary of Devona's style and delivery. We wish this outstanding student well in the regional contest.

Darren Edwards and Lori Clay were both representing Valley in the Ready Writing Contest and Darren won first place while Lori won second. Both students will advance to the regional contest in Levelland.

Winning this contest is a real prize because it is difficult to express thoughts on paper in a collective manner which is interesting, organized and correct. The themes must be over 800 words in length and the contestant is given two hours for writing and correcting.

It is well and proper that everyone have an opportunity to read the papers which Darren and Lori wrote. For that purpose their writings are printed in their entirety, beginning with Darren and followed by Lori. We appreciate the Valley Tribune for its indulgence in allowing the space.

LOYALTY TO AMERICA OR COMMUNISM

by Darren Edwards

If this "New Loyalty" is indeed just conformity, then how can it be good for America and its people? A great author once wrote, "Conformity is Death."

and, although he was speaking of individuals and their inner selves, I think that it also applies to groups of people and even whole nations. In the Soviet Union, for example, conformity is law. Everyone belongs to one political party, everyone does the job they are assigned to do, and the people have little to say about how their lives are run. I don't know about other people, but I'm certainly glad that I don't live there.

The old saying, "It's a free country," is taken for granted. Our country is free, and the people of America are able to run their lives as they wish. But where would America be now if not for the nonconformists: the Pilgrims who first came from England because they were persecuted for not conforming to the church; Washington and Jefferson who would not conform to the laws of the King of England; Martin Luther King, jr., who would not stand by and let America's black people be treated as they had been for so many years. America is a nation of nonconformists.

People from all over the world have come to America to express their ideas, to dream and realize dreams, to plan for future generations of the world. In no other place could they think freely and pursue their dreams as they wished. People are still coming to America for these and many other reasons. These people are nonconformists, whether they are running from government conformity, the conformity of the people, or whatever it might be.

In American democracy, government is "of, by, and for the people." Politics is always an issue, and everyone is entitled to his or her opinions and views. People change and so do their ideas, and political freedom is a large part of that. I doubt if there are many common Russians who even have political ideas; "the Party" is the government and you do what you are told. In America you can get an argument from almost any common person, from old-timers to high school students. Political freedom is possibly the best thing Americans have going for them.

America has another great thing in the free enterprise system. Anyone can start his or her own business, charge what they wish for their products or services, and compete for customers with other similar types of businesses. Competition keeps the prices down and people spend money. In Russia, the government regulates all businesses, so there is no competition, prices stay the same, but so do wages, so no one really makes money, it just keeps circulating. A lot has been said about the American economy in recent years, but you can still save money and live well, if you are willing to work hard. Our economic system and standard of living are still the best that I know of.

Nonconformity in religion is why America began with the first people who sailed here from England to escape religious persecution, and has continually grown since that time. From the traditional Baptists and Church of Christ to Mormons and "Moonies," people in America have practiced religion as they believe. This has also been a factor in drawing nonconformists to America.

America is, undoubtedly, a nation of nonconformists. Its discoverer, Columbus, was a nonconformist because he didn't believe that the world was flat. America's founding fathers were nonconformists, in that they had different ideas and views. America's common people are also nonconformists in that each person chooses his or her lifestyle. America is based upon nonconformity.

If this "New Loyalty" is conformity and "conformity is death," then I don't think America is in any danger of dying. With so many nonconformists as leaders, and so many as followers, conformity is a distant threat. Although some conformity may be good on a small scale, national conformity is not the answer to our problems. Americans want progress, and according to "New Loyalty" this is impossible. America is not a finished product, nor is it perfect, but in my opinion it is the best place in the world to live. This "New Loyalty" will never be widespread in America, therefore, I think America, with its nonconformists, will always be the best place in the world.

THE NEED FOR CHANGE

by Lori Clay

Is the new Loyalty one that would have us sacrifice everything our forefathers worked for and died for, just in the name of conformity? I don't believe that is what they wanted. Conforming can be a good practice, when used in the right way, it is probably one of the most valuable assets available to civilized people. But when abused, it becomes a very grave danger. It endangers our complete social and moral structure. People who can think for themselves shouldn't use complete conformity.

If the people who set out to start a new life in the land we now call America, were afraid of change and afraid of not being like someone else, America would probably have never been started. When this country was just starting out, people had to live by their wits to stay alive. No one else was around to do it for them. They didn't have the modern facilities we enjoy nowadays. Just that this is the way it is and that we might as well leave it alone. This contentedness is a flaw shared by many Americans. An old way doesn't mean it is a better way. Old gives way to new even if the giving way is a painful process.

People in America are taking for granted the "good life." Some don't realize that our entire system of doing things in America is changing. Although our country has always been a foremost power in the world, there is no guarantee that it will continue to stay that way. It can't without help from the people who live here.

Instead of realizing that even America, with all of its power and greatness, isn't perfect, most people prefer to bury their heads in the sand and refuse to face the fact that what our country needs right now is a movement towards something new and different. Attitudes and concepts must be turned around for many people before change can take place in America. Change that is needed. To grow and better oneself, one must be willing to change. We must take this attitude with our country. In the past, America has always been a land of going forward, not backwards. If we, the people of America, continue to conform, we will be regressing not progressing.

In all of America's history, there has been progress. We shouldn't undo the work of over two hundred years to try and do something we're not. And neither should our country. Not continuing to grow and change to better ourselves and America would be an insult to all the people who have gone before us and made America and her people what they are today. A nation and people to be proud of. Loyalty to our country is something to want and be proud of. Blind devotion isn't. It can only hurt the ones who practice it. The people in America need to wake up and realize this. It is never too late for change.

Texas Cattle Brand Law To Be Discussed At Meeting

A Texas Farm Bureau-sponsored meeting on the Texas cattle brand law will be held beginning at 10:00 a.m. April 3 at the Hilton Inn in Amarillo, according to Riley Harris of Silverton, president of the Briscoe County Farm Bureau.

Harris said the purpose of the meeting would be to allow Panhandle cattlemen a further opportunity to consider a regional brand law on a local option basis, as authorized in the Texas Farm Bureau policy.

Harris noted that cattle brands in Texas are registered on a county basis, and that in most instances this system has proven adequate.

However, in the Panhandle where winter blizzards sometime scatter cattle over several counties, cattlemen have "expressed the desire to have a regional brand registration," Harris commented.

The following beef industry people and TFB staff will appear on the program: George E. Feaster, a member of the Beef Industry Council board of directors; Ridge Pate, TFB staff attorney; H. L. Rowe, brand commissioner with the Colorado State Board of Stock Inspection; Don King, general manager of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, and

J. D. Jordan, associate director of the TFB Commodity Activities.

Mrs. E. E. Woods spent last week visiting her daughter, Mrs. Lewis Graham, in Plainview. Mrs. Graham brought her home and is spending this week with her mother in Quitaque.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Eudy spent the night Thursday with his sister, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Green. They had been to Lubbock for Lewis to have his eye check-up.

Hightower Says Reagan Policies Are Dismantling Family Farms

"We've had about all this Reaganomics that we can stand; Reaganmortis is setting in across the countryside."

So said Jim Hightower, Commissioner of Texas Agriculture in an address to the 82nd Annual National Farmers Union Convention, being held in New Orleans. "America's rural economy is headed for a crash because the Reagan Administration is dismantling our country's most efficient economic machine—the family farm."

"I've listened to the President and heard him say that 'prosperity has returned.' But farmers, rural merchants, agri-business and others dependent on the farm economy have seen no prosperity."

"Bank failures are on the rise across the nation, with agricultural, rural and small town banks leading the way. These bank failures aren't slowing down, either, with failures in the first two months of 1984 tracking the level of the previous year. Texas has historically had only eight percent of the nation's bank failures, but our share of that pie is growing, reaching 15 percent in 1982, with almost all of the troubled banks in farming areas."

"This madness cannot continue for any longer. Let's write a 'farmer bill' in 1985, not just a new Farm Bill. Not a cotton program, and a feed grain program, and a dairy program, but a farmer program that focuses on farmers themselves, instead of bushels and bales and gallons."

"First, start with the farmer's price, cementing a floor at no less than the real cost of production; limit protected price to family farmers. Second, bring the immediate surplus under control through mandatory production controls. Third, aggressively seek new export markets, then expand production limits so farmers can produce for those new markets. Fourth, tap the humanitarian potential of American agriculture by re-establishing an aggressive, well-managed Food-for-Peace program that fairly compensates U. S. farmers to help feed the world's hungry. Fifth, incorporate soil conservation programs directly into the supply-management and farm-benefit programs. Sixth, write a six-year program that farmers can count on and plan on from one year to the next."

"We can't win this fight on our own. We've got to go to the people in the cities. Interview after interview at supermarkets show that consumers would be willing to pay a little more for food, three or four cents on a box, if it meant that the family farmer was going to benefit."

"Those consumers also realize that when agriculture benefits, the whole economy will benefit. Conversely, when agriculture's in trouble, like it is now, everybody on 'Main Street' has troubles. Consumers now realize that it's the competitive, efficient, productive family farm system that's responsible for putting three square meals a day on their table. Now we all must realize that agriculture, if it's allowed to prosper, is worth billions of dollars in new economic activity. Consumers are basically beginning to understand that protecting the family farm is in everybody's best interest."

Hightower's address brought a standing ovation from the conclave of family farmers and ranchers from across the country, who have been assembling in the Crescent City over the past three days. The delegates of America's largest family farm organization have put together specific recommendations on the drafting of the 1985 Farm Bill, and were to select National officers at the closing session Wednesday evening. Texas Farmers Union president Mike Moeller was to be a candidate for the National Vice-Presidency, opposing incumbent Stanley Moore of North Dakota.

MORE CROP ACREAGE IN '84

"More in '84" seems to be the trend as farmers across the country gear up to plant spring crops.

More crop acres will help agribusinesses and livestock and poultry producers but may mean lower prices to crop producers at harvesttime, notes an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Nationwide, planting intentions show these percentage increases: corn, 36; cotton, 35; grain sorghum, 26; rice, 29; spring wheat, 18, and soybeans,

Texas farmers plan to plant 48 percent more corn, 41 percent more rice and eight percent more soybeans but will increase cotton acreage only 25 percent and grain sorghum 16 percent.

Taxpayers' Rights Outlined

Carlye Hill, chief appraiser for the Briscoe County Appraisal District, has announced the availability of an eight-page pamphlet which may help district residents save on their property taxes.

According to Mrs. Hill, "Taxpayers' Rights, Remedies, Responsibilities!" explains how the property tax system operates in Texas and highlights possible tax savings available to property owners.

The pamphlet is published by the State Property Tax Board under provisions of the Texas Property Tax Code. The information in "Remedies" applies to property taxes collected by all types of local government, including counties, cities, school districts and special districts such as hospitals and municipal utility districts.

The pamphlet explains in detail the residence homestead exemptions offered by various taxing units, Mrs. Hill said, including the amounts of each exemption and what it takes to qualify for and receive them.

For example, all homeowners in a school district are eligible for a $5,000 general residence homestead exemption. Also, certain disabled taxpayers and those aged 65 or over may qualify for an additional $10,000 exemption from the value of their homesteads.

"A taxpayer who was 65 or older on January 1 of this year is also entitled to a tax freeze, or ceiling, on the tax bill from the school district on his house and yard," Mrs. Hill added. "This ceiling is based on the taxes assessed when a taxpayer receives the over-65 school homestead exemption for the first time."

The chief appraiser pointed out, though, that homeowners who received the elderly exemption and tax freeze from the school district last year need not apply again this year. Only those who became 65 during 1983 and those who have never been granted the exemption and freeze must apply for 1984.

Mrs. Hill noted that any taxing unit may adopt a general "percentage" homestead exemption. Approved by Texas voters as a constitutional amendment in 1981, this exemption can be granted in 1984 for any percentage up to 40 percent off the appraised value of residence homesteads.

School boards, city councils, county commissioners and other governing boards must take official action for this exemption, after careful review of the taxing unit's needs and taxable property.

Additional exemptions are available upon application to disabled veterans.

Owners of agricultural land which was taxed for 1983 on its productivity value under 1-d-1 open-space provisions do not have to reapply unless requested in writing by the appraisal office to do so. However, applications must be filed before May 1 for land to be taxed for 1984 under 1-d agricultural-use provisions, and by landowners who have not previously received either kind of productivity valuation.

Agricultural (1-d) and open-space land (1-d-1) valuations are available to property owners using land for farming or ranching purposes. Such land may be taxed based on productivity rather than market value.

"More complete information on special land valuation, tax renditions and exemptions is available from appraisal district personnel as well as in the pamphlet," Mrs. Hill said.

She said that the "Remedies" pamphlet also contains information about the appraisal review board (ARB) which serves to equalize all property values in the district. This section of the pamphlet outlines the steps for making a protest to the ARB and ways to prepare and present the appeal.

Another section deals with the process of initiative and referendum by which voters are able to petition for an election to limit the amount of tax increase adopted by any taxing unit.

"District residents are encouraged to review the pamphlet and to make any applications required, in order to get all the tax relief to which they are entitled. Remember, applications must be filed with the appraisal office before May 1," the chief appraiser said.

The pamphlets are available at the tax office in the courthouse basement, located at 415 Main, Silvertown, Texas. Office hours are from 8:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN — Understanding why various countries produce different educational strengths can be shown by looking closely at the basic differences in their educational approaches.

The differences between Texas and U.S. students and those from abroad are due to many factors, including cultural, social and educational. In many cases these ingredients cannot be separated.

In Japan, the school system is characterized by fierce competition and difficult work, which is a part of the Japanese culture and is ingrained in the population.

The Russian students see their educational instruction emphasizing pure sciences and mathematics and social sciences are excluded for ideological reasons.

In Texas and the U.S., the minimum school year is 180 days. It is longer in all foreign countries. Switzerland has a 190 day school year. In West Germany, Japan and Russia, the minimum is 210 days and most recently Japan has begun a 240 day program.

The pressure is so great in Japan, that 45 percent of the high school students attend private after-hours schools to prepare for college exams.

In Texas and the U.S., there is a different emphasis placed on courses of study. While other countries lean to mathematics, science and language, they do not stress social sciences to the extent that Texas schools do. While technically Japanese students are not required to take more math and science than Texas students, most college-bound Japanese have several more years of study than our students. Japanese students at least reach trigonometry in high school, while proficiency in calculus is common.

Homework is more often the rule in foreign schools. A study concluded that Japanese junior high students averaged two hours of homework, while U.S. high school students averaged less than an hour.

Next we will look at teachers in the systems.

CARDS OF THANKS

Words cannot express our feelings for all the acts of kindness shown us during Glynn's illness. He was always so amazed that so many people could care so much. You were all very special to him; and he was always so appreciative of your cards, phone calls and visits.

We want to say a special "thanks" to Jean Rice and Jack Wellman for coming to the hospital and giving platelets for Glynn, and to Kay Calvert, Cody
Bell, B. J. Robison, Rex Morgan, Bobby Boyles and Debby Farley for having their blood checked so they could donate. Also thanks to all who donated blood.

We want to thank all our family and friends who came to be at the hospital with us during his final days and to Bro. Melvin Clinton for being at his bedside with us.

We want to thank everyone who prepared and served the food for our family at the church and also the ones who brought food to our homes.

A special thanks to the choir for singing "Face to Face," and to Elgin Conner for his solo, "Because He Lives," and to Joy Loper for singing "The Yellow Rose of Texas," and to Patsy Herrington for accompanying them all. The service was so beautiful, and thanks to all who had a part in it.

May God bless all of you.

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

"Thank you" seems so little in light of all you did during the illness and death of Christine.
Your prayers, visits, cards and letters, flowers, food and other expressions of love helped in a difficult time. We all too often forget how special the friendships we have are to us. Your actions again remind us to count this blessing especially dear.

Love to all of you,
