Caprock Library Moving Close To Opening

Caprock Public Library is moving closer each day to opening its doors to the public. Several key committees have been established and we're all progressing to have the building ready and staffed as quickly as possible.

You may be wondering what you can do to help. First, we are working towards a July 31 deadline for a matching financial support grant for our core collection of books. If you have previously been unable to support the library financially now is the time to show your support.

Second, your help is needed. If you can spare a few hours or even minutes each week we could use your help. Third, we are still accepting books in good condition both paper and hard back type. Maria Cruz at City Hall will be able to receive your books and financial support. Financial support can also be mailed to Caprock Public Library, Box 427, Quitaque, Texas 79255.

One Man's Opinion

by Mayor Jack Ivester

You probably know this person. They might be a good friend or just an acquaintance. You see them socially or at the coffee shop or at lunch when you eat out. They are an "againer." You know what I am speaking of, the man or woman who always looks to the negative side of every problem or issue. The "glass is half empty" type of person. When you are around them you are uncomfortable, but you remain silent. You may disagree with what they are saying but you hold your tongue. To confront them would be asking for an argument, for they believe strongly in what they say. Never mind the fact that it is based upon misfact or ignorance. Never mind that no solution or alternate course of action is suggested. What they say and what they believe is their own. It really doesn't matter what it is, they are against.

Every city has it's againers. The damage they can and often do it immeasurable. They can stop growth, progressive reforms and change. It is the responsibility of the leaders of a community to consistently act in the best interest of their community. In the real world, personal considerations often take priority to those of the community. A community leader who stands by and allows the againers to control the direction a city takes does a great disservice to themselves, their family and the future of this city. I call upon those who are truly concerned and interested in the progressive growth of Sayre to stand up and be counted. Next time you are present when an againer is bashing our city, stand up, take up for the positive and progressive steps which Sayre has undertaken. Mistakes have been made, certainly, and mistakes will be made in the future. Anytime decisions are made, the risk of mistake is present. What is the alternative, make no decisions, take no risks. Such is the folly of decline.

Peanut Import Decision Would Drive Price Down

President Bush's decision to allow an additional 100 million pounds of foreign peanuts to be imported into the U.S. this year has drawn sharp criticism from leaders of the National Farmers Union.

The decision is expected to drive prices paid to peanut farmers down, especially since the imported peanuts will start arriving in the United States about the time southern growers are harvesting their crops. Joe Rankin, Texas Farmers Union President, stated that this was a potentially devastating decision for peanut growers.

Bush was asked to open the import gate after last year's drought in the southeastern United States cut peanut production and allowed processors to raise consumer prices. But Rankin counters that the farm price of peanuts increased only slightly, while supermarket prices doubled. "That leads me to believe that processors ripped off consumers with prices that weren't based on the reality of the price or supply situation," said Rankin.

Farmers Union wrote Bush in April, urging him to deny a request to suspend the quotas.

The National Farmers Union has long favored the peanut program and has called it "the model that all agricultural programs should strive to copy." Rankin stated, "There are no federal outlays involved in providing the peanut support level. In the most recent referendum on the program, over 98 percent of voting producers opted to support it. This may be the first step to discredit and dismantle a very successful program for producers and consumers."

It is said that a majority of American farmers wish they had a commodity program as stable as the peanut program. We should try to duplicate the success of the programs that exist without taxpayer support rather than force more farmers into a position of needing subsidies.

The 100 million pound import level set by Bush, although a third of what the International Trade Commission had recommended, stands to damage the peanut market considerably, according to the Texas Farmers Union. "We simply don't need any more than our present demand warrants," Rankin said.

In the case of a city constant neglect results in decline. The city is no longer attractive to buyers. They don't want to buy our old house with the worn out sewer, water and street systems. They buy (move) to where there are found adequate facilities.

The againer will say I am all wet, that we cannot afford to repair and maintain our house. Leave it just the way it is, don't make changes because it is either too expensive or unnecessary. You must be the judge. You must decide whether you want good and dependable city facilities.

I believe it is unacceptable that over 60 residents of Sayre are on septic tanks because our sewer system is inadequate to serve them. I believe it is unacceptable that many of our residents continue to experience low water pressure. I believe it is unacceptable that many of our streets are dirt or gravel.

The againer will say that is the way it is, that these conditions are the fault of previous mistakes by our community leaders. To correct them is too expensive and unneeded. Only when it directly affects them do they want anything done.

To the againers, those who do not speak and hold their tongue, and to the community leaders who have remained silent, I say, become a doer. Involvement in your community can be one of the most rewarding experiences a person can have. Join a group in your area of interest. Sayre has community groups of enormous variety. Men and women's clubs who consistently involve themselves in worthwhile projects. A senior Citizens group as active as any in Western Oklahoma. We have a progressive Chamber of Commerce with so many projects there are not enough people to go around. If Sayre has enough doers, the againers won't have a chance.

Note: I use the term "againer" if you prefer use "against'er" or another term fitting the meaning.

Editor's note: I think Mayor Jack Ivester gave all cities especially the small city something to think about. Are you an Againer??

What Is The Star of Life?

Have you ever noticed the emblem on ambulances and on the forms and equipment used in Emergency Medical Services? Do you know what that emblem means or where it comes from?

It is commonly known as the Star of Life. Always blue in color it is a six-barred cross with a staff wrapped around it. The staff signifies the staff of Asclepius, who was the son of Apollo. As the myth goes, Apollo was a Greek mythological figure and the God of light, truth and prophecy. Asclepius learned the art of healing from a centaur named Chiron. Then Zeus, King of the Gods, was afraid of Asclepius' knowledge because he was afraid it would make man immortal. Zeus the struck down Asclepius with a thunderbolt.

Asclepius later became a Greek like figure, and people believed they slept in his temples, they would be healed during their dreams.

In 1973, Leo Schwartz, chief of the EMS branch, National Highway Traffic Safety Association designed the insignia to be used solely for Emergency Medical Technicians and their equipment and vehicles.

Acreage May Be Up But Weather Still Fuels Markets

When the U.S. Department of Agriculture released its acreage report in late June, more than a few grain market analysts were surprised. That's because the figures were considerably higher than analysts had expected.

The corn acreage figure of 75.9 million acres was down from the March planting intention estimate of 76.1 million acres, but still higher than analysts' average estimate of 75.1 million acres.

By far, the biggest surprise came from the soybean acreage figure. The government estimate of 59.7 million acres was up considerably from the March figure of 57.1 million acres and higher than analysts' average estimate of 57.6 million acres.

Speaking at a news conference at the Chicago Board of Trade (CBOT) following the release of the acreage report, Roy Huckabay, grain market analyst and Vice President, Linco Futures said: "This bean number is partially indicating a successful attempt by the USDA to be competitive in world soybean supplies. This is the first year under the new flexible acreage program where farmers can plant soybeans on corn acres."

Ben George, grain trading specialist and Vice President, Merrill Lynch Futures, said some of the additional corn and soybean acres may have come from the wheat crop, which was depleted by fungus due to early wet, warm weather.

"There was quite a bit of moisture this spring, and a good amount of acreage was taken from winter wheat and planted to corn," said George. "With the problems we've seen in the soft red winter wheat crop, many farmers may be double cropping and planting soybeans behind their early harvested wheat areas."

But even with additional acres from the wheat areas, grain market analysts said those poor weather conditions in the spring and early June created problems for corn and soybean farmers and would not seem to indicate such high acreage figures.

At the CBOT news conference, Terry Francl, economist for markets and finance, American Farm Bureau Federation, said: "With the challenges that farmers faced in terms of weather this year, it's difficult to understand where you could have picked up such an increase in acreage. For that reason, I think as time goes on, we can look for some adjustments in those figures."

Grain market analysts will be looking at the USDA's August Crop Report, the first report of the year with actual field surveys, to see whether the numbers reflect any adjustments.

In the meantime, it will be the skies that everyone will be watching, as weather in July and August remains the critical component for the corn and soybean crops.

GOVERNOR'S REPORT

Ann D. Richards

Setting priorities for government

As the Legislature begins the special called session faced with the difficult task of making significant cuts in state spending, it is important to understand how we arrived at this point.

Texas boards and commissions allowed their agencies to submit budget requests for $13 billion more than available revenue for the upcoming biennium. Their requests would have burdened the taxpayers of Texas with a new tax bill totalling $750 for every man, woman and child in the state.

Even after cutting these requests to a level that would only maintain the "current level" of services and still meet federal and judicial mandates, Texas taxpayers would still be facing a bill for a $4.8 billion shortfall.

I believe it is irresponsible to saddle the people of Texas with that kind of tax burden without first doing our best to cut waste, inefficiency and needless duplication. For that reason, the first bill I signed into law in 1991 charged State Comptroller John Sharp with re-evaluating how Texas spends its money.

It makes little sense that budget writers pull out their pencils every two years to write a budget, only to consider state agency budgets that automatically add to whatever they spent the year before. We must cultivate the habit of looking first at what we spent last year to see whether we need to spend that amount again.

Comptroller Sharp performed that vital task for us this time. He delivered on his promise to "break the mold" of inefficient state government. His multi-agency task force of talented auditors, including several from my office, identified opportunities to cut $4.0 billion from the shortfall that faces us.

We now have an obligation to the people of Texas to enact the cuts recommended by Sharp's Texas Performance Review. The chart outlines how I propose to eliminate the budget shortfall, and address our budget priorities.

The special called session which began on July 15 will be divided into three priority areas:

Priority I -- Cutting State Government

- Pass the Performance Audits and cut $4 billion from the budget shortfall.
- Eliminate and consolidate executive agencies and reduce the number of appointed board positions.
- Save money through consolidation and streamlining.
- Reorganize agencies with the customer in mind; provide the best service for the lowest cost.

Priority II -- Spending State Money Wisely

- Get Texas out of court. Spend our money wisely to resolve lawsuits over:
 - mental health
 - mental retardation
 - prisons
 - county jails
 - public education
 - Medicaid payments to hospitals
- Provide funds so that all teachers will have health insurance.
- Provide a cost of living increase in benefits to retired teachers.
- Protect state employees from the rising cost of health insurance.
- Build 15,000 new prison beds to keep the most violent offenders behind bars.
- Provide treatment for substance abuse so that we can break the cycle of addiction and repeated crime.
- Ensure that the money we spend is used wisely to provide services we truly need.

Priority III -- Recovering Available Revenues

- There will not be an income tax.
- Restructure the franchise tax to spread the burden and recover revenue lost in court.
- Let the people of Texas vote for a lottery.

These are heady goals. But I believe the people of Texas are ready for these changes, and the Legislature is ready to act.

There is a sense of unanimity in this session unlike anything we have seen in a long time. The issues before us are neither Democratic nor Republican -- they are challenges for Texas, and opportunities for us in government to create a government that works as hard as the taxpayers who pay our salaries.

As governor of all Texans, I intend to do my best to create an atmosphere where the Legislature is able to reshape government into a model of efficiency for the entire nation.

Save Your Skin And Your Life

Incidence of malignant melanoma, a serious form of skin cancer, is increasing faster than any other form of cancer. This means one out of every seven people will be affected by melanoma.

"Malignant Melanoma is an epidemic in the U.S.," said William M. Ramsdell, M.D., an American Cancer Society volunteer spokesperson. "Individuals can easily decrease their risk of ever developing skin cancer by using sunscreen and avoiding over exposure to the sun."

According to the American Cancer Society, the increasing incidence of cancer can be altered if individuals follow a few simple guidelines for reducing their risk of skin cancer.

Use a sunscreen with a Sun Protection Factor (SPF) of at least 15 during all outdoor activities, and avoid sunburn altogether.

Avoid direct exposure to the sun between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. If you must go outdoors, wear a hat and protective clothing.

Avoid tanning salons—they expose your skin to harmful ultraviolet rays.

"We hope that by increasing public awareness about skin cancer prevention and motivating individuals to change their behaviors, we can prevent these needless deaths," said Ramsdell.

Tobacco Industry Sets New Record

Chalk up another one for U.S. tobacco — another trade surplus that is. The U.S. tobacco industry closed the first quarter of 1991 with a record-setting $1.6 billion trade surplus, a more than 39 percent increase over the 1990 first quarter figure, according to the Tobacco Merchants Association of the United States (TMA).

"Given the increasing demand for high-quality U.S. manufactured American-blend cigarettes, the United States could be producing more and more of the world's tobacco supply," said Farrell Delman, president of TMA, the nation's oldest tobacco trade association.

Tobacco consistently has been a positive contributor to the U.S. trade balance, setting a record pace in 1988, 1989 and 1990. Last year alone, tobacco produced a $5.6 billion trade surplus — in contrast to the overall U.S. merchandise trade deficit of $101 billion. Furthermore, without tobacco's contribution in the trade arena over the past five years, the trade deficit would have swelled by an additional $18 billion, according to a recent TMA study. ■

Bankston Returns United States After Deployment In Persian Gulf

When Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Michael L. Bankston returned to the United States from deployment in the Persian Gulf, he had reason to look back with pride on his work in support of Operation Desert Storm.

Bankston is an aviation ordnanceman in G-r Division, part of the Weapons Department on the carrier USS Ranger. The 23-year-old feels good about his role in the Gulf War. "It was fantastic," said Bankston, but without the people who were working for me the job would have been impossible. Team work was a must.

"We made history in two months and proved that America, when united, is stronger than any other country."

G-4 is responsible for the assembly and transport of ordnance, including bombs, missiles and mines, from Ranger's weapons magazines to the flight decks, when it is loaded onto waiting planes. The division also off loads unspent weapons transporting them back to the magazines.

The division also operated and maintains Ranger's 15 sophisticated computer-controlled weapons systems elevators. The elevators carry munitions from the ship's magazines to the hangar and flight decks. If needed, the elevators can also be used to transport injured personnel to the medical decks.

Ranger arrived in the Persian Gulf one day before the start of Operation Desert Storm. The men of G-4 were put to work almost immediately, loading ordnance onto the deployed fighter squadron aircraft in anticipation of the imminent air strikes against Iraq. A-GE Intruders from Ranger led the first carrier-based missions against military targets 40 miles inside Iraqi territory, less than two hours after the start of the Gulf War.

Behind in the Gulf while other units returned to the States. Bankston says he took it all in stride. "I knew we had to be out there until the situation was completely resolved," he said, "I felt good knowing that Rang was the only carrier they needed there. It showed the great confidence placed in the work we did."

Doing the job is more satisfying, knowing that the ones back home are behind the effort. "Thanks for the support," he said. "It would have been a lot harder on us without it."

Michael Bankston and his wife, the former Kimberly Gayle Barnett, resides in Boerne. He is the son-in-law of Charlie and Diane Barnett of Boerne. He is the son-in-law of Charlie and Diane Barnett of Boerne, and the grandson-in-law of Mrs. Dessie Robertson of Turkey.

ELECTION

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS OF TEXAS EDUCATION FUND
1212 Guadalupe, Suite 107 Austin, TX 78701-1800 © July 9, 1991

PROPOSITION #1 (SJR 42)

WORDING ON BALLOT: The constitutional amendment to allow the voters of a county education district to adopt certain exemptions from the district's ad valorem taxation for residence homesteads and to provide for the taxation of certain tangible personal property.

EXPLANATION

The school finance law approved by the 72nd Legislature created 188 new county education districts, composed of single counties or groups of counties. These districts have the limited purpose of levying the required local first-tier tax to raise the equivalent of 72 cents per $100 of assessed market value and redistributing the proceeds among local school districts within the county education district.

This proposed amendment would authorize the new districts to hold elections to allow voters within the districts to decide whether to grant an exemption on a percentage of the assessed value of residence homesteads; whether to grant an additional exemption on the homesteads of elderly and disabled persons; and whether to impose taxes on certain types of personal property. In the enabling legislation that was passed during the regular session of the legislature, the amount of the homestead exemption was specified as 20 per cent and the exemption for elderly and disabled persons was set at $10,000. These exemptions would be in addition to the existing $5,000 homestead exemption, the $10,000 exemption on homesteads of elderly and disabled persons, and the freeze on property taxes for elderly and disabled persons.

The enabling legislation also directed the county education districts to present the propositions to their voters in an election to be held on August 10, 1991. The wording of the proposals on local ballots will be identical across the state, but the order may vary. Decisions made by voters in a district would apply in that district only, contingent upon the decision of voters statewide on the proposed constitutional amendment which authorizes these elections.

Thus, voters who go to the polls on August 10 will be asked to vote simultaneously on a constitutional amendment and to vote on the local tax options authorized by the proposed amendment. If voters approve the proposed amendment statewide, the locally adopted options would go into effect without delay. This is being done in order to enable the new taxing districts to implement voter decisions in the property tax bills scheduled to go out in October.

PROS AND CONS OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

FOR

1. Trustees of the new county education districts are appointed by local school boards rather than being elected by voters, and thus do not have the discretionary authority to decide whether or not to grant these exemptions or impose these taxes on personal property. Therefore, the power to make these decisions must rest with voters in the county education districts.

2. This amendment would make it possible for homestead exemptions and personal property taxes to be continued, but at the option of voters rather than by action of the county education district board.

AGAINST

1. Passage of this proposed amendment would shift the tax burden from residential property to businesses. It would affect county education districts across the state very differently. Those that are dependent primarily upon residential property would be forced to raise residential property taxes more than those that rely on commercial property.

2. Tax exemptions for some property owners would result in higher taxes for others. Only 259 of the more than 1,050 school districts in Texas currently grant the homestead exemption. This amendment could result in a large increase in property tax exemptions statewide, narrowing the property base that must provide the local share of public school funding, which contributes approximately half of all school funding. This would mean higher taxes for the remaining taxpayers in order to maintain the required local funding.

PROS AND CONS OF COUNTY EDUCATION DISTRICT PROPOSITIONS

The propositions below will be presented to voters at the same time as the proposed constitutional amendment above. Although the language of the propositions will be identical statewide, the order in which they appear on the ballot may vary.

WORDING ON BALLOT: The taxation of all tangible personal property, other than manufactured homes, in (name of the county education district) that is not held or used for the production of income.

FOR
This would spread the tax burden over a wider base by generating revenue from non-income producing personal property such as boats, cars, and motorcycles.

AGAINST
Appraisals, verification of property, and collection of the tax create costs to taxpayers that may offset the income generated. Many local governing bodies do not collect this tax because it has a high delinquency rate and is difficult to enforce equitably.

WORDING ON BALLOT: The exemption of 20 per cent of the market value of the residence homestead from ad valorem taxation in (name of the county education district).

FOR
If locally-granted homestead exemptions are completely eliminated, homeowners in the local school districts that have been granting homestead exemptions are likely to face large property tax increases. This proposed exemption could cushion the impact of expected increases.

AGAINST
In districts with substantial commercial property, this proposal would shift the tax burden from residential property to business. Districts that are largely residential would suffer losses of tax revenue and would have to raise tax rates to generate the required amount of local funding.

WORDING ON BALLOT: The exemption of $10,000 of the market value of the residence homestead of an individual who is disabled and of $10,000 of the market value of the residence homestead of an individual who is 65 or older from ad valorem taxation in (name of the county education district).

FOR
This proposal would alleviate the impact of higher school taxes on those most likely to be adversely affected by them.

AGAINST
Property taxes are already frozen for individuals 65 or older and for disabled persons; this proposal would create an even larger exemption. This proposal is not need-based and would exempt many individuals who can afford to pay the higher taxes, increasing the burden on other taxpayers.

Many households are quite diversified these days in the lifestyles and interests of the members, as well as in the biological sense because of step-children and half-brothers and sisters living under one roof. Indeed, many families find it hard to remember the last time they all had dinner together. Some of this is unavoidable, as in the case of a father who must travel on business or a mother involved in committee work for a worthy cause. However, the family members should make an effort to be together whenever possible, to discuss problems or just to have some kind of fun that spans the generation gap. Moreover, they should attend their House of Worship regularly, for this will help to cement the bonds. The family circle should be an unbroken one; a center of love and a haven of refuge from the outside world.

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Do Gooder's Club

Mrs. Leota Hardgrove of Plainview presented a program on "The Revival of Quilting" at the Do Gooder's Club of Flomot, Tuesday afternoon, July 9 at the Flomot Community Center.

"Families make history of themselves when they stitch family quilts that can become heirlooms with memorabilia designs and fabrics. Every family should write its own history and you can do it with quilting," stated Mrs. Hardgrove. As an example, she is sewing a quilt with the ties of her late husband, Brother Byron Hardgrove, a former pastor of the Flomot Baptist Church.

Quilting was almost a lost art after World War II when wool and nylon blankets became available. In early days, quilting was a necessity and remnants from worn out clothing were used for quilts and denim and canvas for a cowboy's bedroll. The art of quilting is enjoying big revival now from baby to king sized quilts and made with every type fabric and special designs.

Adding to the entertaining and informative program, Mrs. Hardgrove told the history of Texas quilts, displayed quilts she had made for others as well as herself. She gave each one attending an autographed patriotic designed quilted coaster.

At the place where you worship the sermons compel
That you contemplate mending your ways;
After which you are told to remember this well,
For the week has another six days.
You consider that service an hour well-spent,
Where the guidance of God will abound;
And with all good intentions you try to repent,
For temptations are always around.
But those wonderful lessons you're apt to ignore
For the rest of the week, as we know;
So just carry them with you right out of the door.
And apply them wherever you go.

PSYCHOLOGY

The children are home on vacation—and you're busier than ever! What with their friends running around the house, demands for snacks, answering phone calls and planning outings to the beach or park, you never seem to have a moment for yourself. It's especially rough when the weather turns rainy and everyone's temporarily grounded. After playing games with the children all afternoon, you really deserve a break. Soothe yourself by spending some time in your favorite chair with a good book, nice music and a tall glass of refreshing iced tea. The youngsters are probably a little tired too—why not pour some tea for everyone and take time out for some family conversation? You may wind up sharing some really special moments that could put the sunshine back into your day!

Water Conservation Begins at Home

Washers

- The best way to save water with your washer is also the easiest — be sure to choose the lowest water level possible to clean your clothes. Make sure, though, that there is enough water for clothes to move freely in the tub, or you may have to re-wash.
- Wash only full loads.
- If your washer has a suds- or water-saver system, use it for loads of lightly soiled items.
- Sort loads carefully, pretreat heavy stains and use enough detergent. Taking these steps will help avoid re-washing.

According to appliance experts from Whirlpool Corporation, dishwashers, clothes washers and food disposers all need a certain amount of water to work effectively. But we can all help in the global effort to save water by making sure these appliances don't use too much:

Dishwashers

- If you have a dishwasher, use it! Washing dishes by hand actually takes more water than using a dishwasher.
- Avoid pre-rinsing dishes. A recent survey commissioned by the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers (AHAM) showed that 83 percent of consumers still rinse everything. But Whirlpool appliance experts say pre-rinsing isn't necessary with today's efficient dishwashers, and should be reserved only for cooked-on foods.
- Use the shortest wash/rinse cycle. If dishes are lightly soiled, don't waste water by using heavy or normal cycles.
- Load dishes carefully. To get the best cleaning results (and avoid re-washing), be sure the dishes aren't blocking the detergent dispenser or spray arms. Check to see that heavily soiled skillets and utensils
