"THE FIRST AIRPLANE, PLUS A FEW"

By Curtis Tunnell

One December 17, 1903, Orville Wright flew the first airplane, as we all know. Then, only seven years later in Mitchell County at Colorado City, word was received by telegraph that the first airplane to fly over Mitchell County would land at Colorado City the next day. The city Mayor reported that the whistles would blow and all the bells would ring whenever the airplane was sighted. It would be just above the tree tops. The people were all excited and waited all day, but no airplane arrived. We found out later the pilot could not get it off the ground at Big Springs, Texas, which was only thirty air miles away, but would be there the next morning. We all got up early the next morning and gathered around a flat of land close to the Colorado river. At about 10:00 a.m. the whistles began to blow and the bells began to ring. As we looked toward the west, a speck appeared in the sky and began to grow larger. It was a treat to our eyes, for never before had we ever seen an airplane which came in and landed safely. It had two wheels about the size of bicycle wheels, two wings, one above the other about four feet. The motor was suspended between the wings with cables and straps of iron. The pilot seat looked about like an old time plow seat, and was over to one side so he could look ahead and control the plane. He had nothing for protection but the clothes he wore. He also had a leather harness around his shoulders so he could lean forward or back; by doing this it would warp the wings and cause the plane to climb or go down. The pilot's mother would follow by train. She came on the evening passenger train. The next morning the people from all over town walked over to watch the plane take off. My dad and several other men were instructed to hold on to the plane until he got the motor speeded up, and at a given signal they would let go and the plane would catapult into the air. He could only travel about thirty to fifty miles per day. We were all sorry to hear the next day that at another town, the plane fell and the pilot was killed. His was the first airplane to fly over Mitchell County or Colorado City.

POSTMASTER: SEND ADDRESS CHANGES TO THE VALLEY TRIBUNE, BOX 478, QUITAQUE, TEXAS 79255

By Nadine Baisden

Well, the three wagons arrived in Turkey about on schedule Friday afternoon around 5:30 p.m. after making the trek from Brice to Turkey.

Upon arriving, they set up camp and the men watered and fed the mules. Glenn and Madeline Weeks drove the men back to their parked vehicles in their motor home in order to have the trailers and trucks ready to load Sunday.

Some of the travelers walked to the dance and enjoyed the Bob Wills music.

Everything was going along smoothly and everyone was making preparation for the Saturday morning parade when Shorty Brunson of Randalett, Okla., apparently suffered a stroke and I had to call the Turkey EMT's to bring an ambulance up to the Wagon Campground in order to take Mr. Brunson to the Childress Hospital. Gayle Kirkpatrick of Devo, Okla. accompanied Mr. Brunson in the ambulance while the two wagon train out-riders, Sandy Rothwell of Childress and Gary McAllister of Memphis followed the ambulance to Childress in a pickup in order to bring Mr. Kirkpatrick back to Turkey.

The driver assisting Glenn Weeks with driving the black stocking-legged mules to the Wichita Falls wagon was Robert Fouch of Wichita Falls. Those riding in the wagon were D. B. Weeks, Winnie Spear and Lola Mitchell of Lubbock; Alton and Lorine Weeks of Pasadena and Lorine's brother, W. T. Hardy Jr. of Tulsa; their friends, Woody and Merle Rosser of Houston and myself, the lone Turkey-ite in the group. This was my first experience to ride in the Bob Wills parade, having always before viewed the parade from the sidewalk. Let me tell you; it was a real eye-opener to view the huge crowd present gathered along Main Street from the Paymaster Gin west of town clear to the hill top. Now, this was not my first experience of riding in a wagon as I did that a plenty as a child growing up in a rural area in Coryell Co.

Word left with me Sunday morning that Mr. Brunson was having feeling returning in his left leg and arm but was having difficulty swallowing. They were to run a brain scan on Monday.

I thought the announcer, Jay Campbell of Memphis, took care of the absent wagons o.k. in his announcing. He announced the "Weeks wagon of Wichita Falls, then stated there were supposed to be two more wagons, but he figured the Indians must have taken them over."

She was married to Drew Holcomb in Silvertown Texas on October 15, 1930. He passed away on May 30, 1976.

A member of the First Baptist Church, Turkey, she is survived by her son-in-law and one daughter, Keith and Rebecca Rogers of Petersburg, Texas. Three grandchildren and four great grandchildren also survive.

Mr. Price, born at Floydada, had lived in Hereford since 1952. He was a farmer and a Methodist. He was married to Janie Feazel in 1938 in Lubbock. She died in 1975.

Truman Price of Center, Colo., is the husband of Cozette Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Green of Turkey.

Memorial To Smitty Guest

The Citizens of Turkey and members of the Bob Wills Foundation took a special moment during the celebration last weekend to pay respects to the memory of Smitty Guest. Smitty died on October 31, 1986.

Smitty was a strong believer in the Bob Wills Foundation. For 15 years he was a most conscientious and devoted supporter to this celebration. If, in the years past, you have appreciated the way the area surrounding the Bob Wills Center looked, and the apparent ease in which all events were carried off...with the shifting of furniture and so forth...thank Smitty. He has been sorely missed since his death.

Though he was small in stature, he had a heart as big as the whole outdoors, and it will be difficult to find someone to fill his shoes!

Smitty did all this work for two reasons. One, for his hometown, and two, so folks would have a good time and return to their home with fond memories of Bob Wills Day in Turkey, Texas.

Festival would make Wills proud

 Globe-News Staff Writer

TURKEY - The fun-loving barber in this town who became the "King of Western Swing" by telling country music to say "how do" to jazz and the blues would have been happy Saturday, his widow said. Happy to see so many people still stompin' and clappin' to his music.

And for Betty Wills, the 16th annual Bob Wills Day meant another chance to reminisce with original and former members of the Texas Playboys - the ol' fiddlers, pickers and thumpers who toured the country with her husband as he set the standard for country musicians for years to come.

"He was never dominating as a band leader," said Mrs. Wills, who inherited Bob Wills' music and band after his death in 1975. "He knew exactly what he wanted and could pull out of a musician the music he knew they had inside."

"He was the most humble man I ever met," chimed in Johnnie Cuvillo, one of Wills' drummers.

"I remember one time we were playing a show, and nobody was coming in to see us, with times being so hard," he said. "Bob found out the promoters were trying to charge everybody $2, and he said, 'Hey, what're you doing? Let 'em in for 50 cents. It's a privilege for us to play for them, not a privilege for them to see us.'"

The star of more than a dozen cowboy movies called this city of 600 home in the 1920s. He left to play with the Light Crust Doughboys, and formed his own group in 1933 after a rift with W. Lee O'Daniel, president of the flour company that sponsored the band's hugely popular radio show.

Bob Wills and His Texas Playboys was a reflection of Wills' love for the blues that he heard black cotton field workers singing while he grew up. He successfully fused that sound with folk fiddle, New Orleans jazz and big-band swing.

Wills' bouncy tunes had everyone swaying Saturday, which isn't saying much, since his music is so catchy it could make a Soviet party leader jump up on a chair and sing "God Bless America."

As many as 20 former Playboys, of the 600 or so that played with Wills during his career, jammed on stage at the old Turkey High School football field before about 9,000 comers, swinging effortlessly into tunes like "Silver Bells" and "Texas Plains."

And of course there were the huge hits, such as "San Antonio Rose," "Take Me Back To Tulsa" and "Faded Love," that catapulted Wills to fame in the 1930s and 40s.

"Bob just loved Patsy Cline's version of 'Faded Love,'" Mrs. Wills said with a smile. "I remember, he'd always wait for the end of the song, when she'd pause, and cry, with that last word, 'Love.'"

Many of the people who came here Saturday to see the Bob Wills Day parade, tour the Bob Wills museum and sample some barbecue arrived days earlier in campers, on motorcycles and toting tents.

The pilgrimage to "The King's" hometown is not unlike the trek taken by fans of another king, Elvis Presley, to his mansion at Graceland in Memphis, Tenn.

But "His (Wills) music is just straight-ahead plain music for everyone, undisturbed, not like this rock and roll," said Wilma Holland, 71, of Henrietta, who lived in Turkey 50 years ago and came back for the first time this year with her two sisters.

Others who came couldn't wait to hear live the music they listened to for so many years on Bob Wills' radio show from WBAP in Fort Worth.

Every day at 12:30 in the afternoon, you could hear Wills' music wending its way through the streets from almost every house in almost every town in Texas, 63-year-old Turkey resident and Bob Wills Foundation official Wayne Loury said.

"I'd come home for lunch when I was going to school and listen to him," he said. "Everybody listened to him. My mom and dad, we all danced by Bob Wills music. And even though times were hard, you could always find a little money to go see a Bob Wills concert."

G.W. "Shorty" Crawford, who came up from Rotan with the Fisher County Senior Citizens, said he saw Wills in Snyder at a rodeo dance. At the time, he and a couple of friends were cooking up their own fiddlin' and swingin' band, he said.

"Back then, the only people playing that type of music who were real big stars were Bob (Wills) and Milton Brown and the Musical Brownies," he said.

Crawford and his buddies, F.O. Crawford and Bill Jones, still play together for American Legion dances and other get-togethers, he said.

Crawford decided not to enter the Old Fiddlers Contest at the Bob Wills Community Center because "I'm thinking I might not be that good anymore," he said as the two others laughed.

"But I'll tell ya, last year when I came here, and saw those Playboys play and sound just like they did way back when, well, that was the highlight of my career," he said.

As Bob Wills once said, "We lay it on like they want it."

SUNNY SOLUTIONS TO DIETING

- Eat smaller portions and don't eat as often;
- Cut down on snack foods and eat more vegetables, fruits and other low-fat, low-sodium foods; and
- Stay active and exercise regularly.

According to many health experts and nutritionists, fish is an excellent protein food for people who are watching their weight and also minding their health.

One of the tastiest and most versatile freshwater fish is the catfish. Long a staple of regional diets, the popularity of farm-raised catfish is rapidly growing. Its low calorie, low cholesterol and low fat content offer important health advantages. And because today's catfish are scientifically grown in the rich Mississippi Delta, this fish dish is "in season" all year long!

So this season, get a head start by losing those extra pounds early. With realistic goals in mind, and a well-balanced diet consisting of low-calorie foods such as Mississippi farm-raised catfish, dieting can be a delicious experience!

Renette Brittian throwing the Shot Put. Renette will be going to the Regional Track Meet this week.

Briscoe County Haygrazer Acres Approved

Special Haying and Gracing of 1987 ACR
Briscoe County is one of the counties in Texas that has been approved to haying and graze all ACR in 1987.

This approval will let producers graze the cover on ACR through the entire year and makes it possible to swathe and bale cover for hay throughout the entire year of 1987.

Now before swathing for hay you must make your intentions known to your ASCS office by designating the ACR acreage and by signing a register in the office, stating the intended use of the hay.

The same procedure will be necessary for those producers who plan to graze ACR acres past May 31st.

The cover on ACR must not be removed to the extent that it will cause wind and water erosion. Producers who do not have their own livestock cannot charge for the value of growth either pastured off or harvested for hay when used by another person.

You will be permitted to recover normal and reasonable cost for other services such as installing fences, pumping water, swathing, raking and baling. Before utilizing ACR cover be sure to go to your ASCS office and take care of the red tape and paper work.

1987 4-H HORSE PROJECT IS WELL UNDERWAY

The 1987 4-H Horse Club is organized and well underway in Briscoe County. The 4-Hers, parents, and leaders nominated Gerald Smith as club manager and Nancy Wood as secretary. Volunteer project leaders are Amy Birdwell, Paula Bomar, Zane Reagan, Janinne Brooks and Jimmy Burson.

The County Horse Club has a total of 20 members enrolled to participate in many county-wide and district-wide events this summer. The club voted to join the FIVE COUNTY LLANO ESTACADO HORSE ASSOCIATION.

This means that the Briscoe County Horse Club will host a 4-H Invitational Horse Show on July 11 in Silvertown. The members will also compete in the Lamb, Farmer, Deaf Smith, and Castro counties and South Plains District 2 4-H Horse Shows and also in the State 4-H Horse Shows in June and July.

The club meets every Friday evening at 8:00 p.m. at the Woods Memorial Arena in Silvertown. This is the regular club meeting night to practice and study the different events, fitting, and showmanship necessary to be competitive.

Members have also planned the first Trail Ride for May 23 on the Indian Creek Ranch. The Woods' family will be hosting the afternoon ride and a dutch treat meal afterwards.

All youngsters eligible as 4-H members in Briscoe County are invited to join the Horse Club by May 1.

For more information contact County Agent Dirk Aaron or club manager, Gerald Smith.

A large number of 4-H members from both clubs in the county will present method demonstrations and public speaking entries in the County 4-H Roundup Monday, May 4, at 7 p.m. in the Pioneer Room of First State Bank in Silvertown.

Presentations will be in food and nutrition, pork, clothing, family life, dairy, horse, health, farm and ranch management, citizenship, and consumer education. Method demonstrations are brief, oral presentations on a specific topic in which posters are used to illustrate the talk.

The public is invited to attend and support these youth. There is no admission charge. They will participate in their respective categories at District 4-H Roundup on the Texas Tech University campus on May 9, along with 4-Hers from the 20-county South Plains district.

4-H activities are open to youth from third grade to 19 years of age, regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

"INNOCENCE LOST"

"Who of us is mature enough for offspring before the offspring themselves arrive? The value of marriage is not that adults produce children but that children produce adults."

This quote came from a Parenting Training I recently attended.

This past week I sat in front of

Back To the Old Stomping Grounds

Five sisters, Ann Cagle, Linnie Buckelew and Barb Reed left Quitaque Thursday morning, April 4, went by Breckenridge to get Veda (Pete) Morrison and her daughter Barbara, then on to Quinlan where Dorothy Cannon, another sister lives. While there they visited Dorothy and her husband Clyde, their four sons and their families, also Ann's son Billy and his family. Friday Dorothy joined the group, who then drove to Kerens to visit one of Mama Buck's nephews Estelle and Mae Ferguson and their son. It had been 45 years since Ann, Pete and Barb had seen them. The weather was great and the scenery so pretty; they then drove on to Jacksonville to spend the night. Saturday morning, they headed for Troup and by Henry's Chapel, the little church on the hill that brought back lots of fond memories; then on down to the old home place for a lot of walking, talking and reminiscing. It had been 33 years since Barb had been there. They visited some friends they knew "back when" then went to Overton to visit a brother Richard and his family. They then went back to Troup to visit Mama Buck's only living sister, Aunt Bert and Uncle Harm -- the highlight of the trip. From there, by the old Carlisle school where some of the sisters started to school, and on to Gladewater to see some cousins, Virgil and Robert Buckelew and Eva Gay Martin.

The group returned home Sunday night.

the television at midnight and cried as I watched the Geraldo Rivera special, "Innocence Lost." The plight of thousands of runaway children in our nation reminds us that one's biological ability to produce children has no correlation to one's ability to "parent" these children.

Hearing children who roam the streets of our largest cities in prostitution and crime say, "anything was better than going home," is a heart-rending revelation. Childhood is usually considered to be a happy, carefree time of innocence. The children interviewed on this special were anything but happy and innocent.

We may find ourselves thinking, "Yes, that is sad for those children from large cities." Yet, small towns and rural communities also have children who feel unloved and who have homes with much less than ideal parenting situations.

When we know that research indicates that we tend to "parent" much as our parents did, we see the awesome responsibility of giving our children good parenting role models. Is it not frightening to wonder what the next generation of children will be like if some of today's children become parents?

Even with the best of intentions all of us make mistakes as parents. But if we continually strive to learn more about the needs of children and their feelings, and learn more about ourselves and the expectations we have for our children and why we have these expectations -- whether for our benefit or theirs -- we will improve our parenting skills.

If you would be interested in attending a Parenting Workshop for parents of young children, parents of teens, parents of school-age children let me know, and we can conduct such a program. If your club, church group, or organization would like a program related to some aspect of parenting, please call me. Strengthening families is one of our primary concerns. Please let me know how I can provide any information or personal conference with you concerning this topic. My office phone is 823-3343.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic levels, race, color, sex, religion, national origin, or handicap.

Spring Peanut Production Meet Held In Quitaque

(Ed. Note: The following article is a reprint from the Memphis Democrat.)

The 1987 Spring Peanut Production meeting for Hall, Motley, and Briscoe Counties was held in Quitaque last week with 72 participants. They met to discuss peanut production and the disease problem associated with them. Dr.

Chip Lee, TAEX Pathologist, was on hand to discuss disease problems and answer questions.

Alternative crops were discussed by Dr. Roland Roberts, TAEX, vegetable specialist. Production of watermelons, cantaloupe, black-eyed peas and several vegetable crop possibilities and their related production problems were discussed.

Budget projections was another topic handled by Dr. Jackie Smith, TAEX Economist.

Leon New, TAEX irrigation specialist, was on hand to discuss LEPA (Low Energy Precision Application) and other aspects of irrigation in our area.

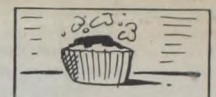

Hall County Extension Agent Buddy C. Logsdon related that the three county area valley peanut growers group was a very innovative, dynamic group of producers that are really on the ball and always looking for new opportunities.

Visitors in the Lynn Davis home for the weekend were their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mark Davis and sons of Levelland and two of Lynn's brothers, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Davis of Lubbock and Mr. and Mrs. O'Neal Davis of Coyanosa.
