ROCKEFELLER AT 96 SEES HIS THRIFT ENDURE

NEW YORK, July 8 — John D. Rockefeller, Sr., is 96 today. The man who astounded the world a half-century ago with his wizardry in oil long ago receded into the background, but the Rockefeller millions remain in the public's eye. They provided spectacular news when they were being amassed, and now they command avid attention as they are being spent to help mankind.

At its maximum the Rockefeller fortune undoubtedly exceeded $1,000,000,000. Computation discloses that this sum probably would have been increased three-fold had Rockefeller remained actively in business during the past two-score years. Donations Started Early. The oft-repeated expression that Rockefeller spent two-thirds of his life in making money and one-third in getting rid of it hardly is true in the light of facts known today. Donating money long has been a trait of the Rockefeller family. An old ledger kept in 1855-56 shows that over four-month period Rockefeller gave away $5.58 when his earnings for that length of time were only $100.

The base for the vast fortune was laid in 1870 with the formation of the Standard Oil company. From that date until we limbo the 20th

Speedboat Pirates Plunder Gambling Ship

MASKED MEN HOLD UP BOAT AND GET LOOT

LONG BEACH, Cal., July 8.—Five modern "pirates" armed with shotguns, warded the gambling ship Monte Carlo at 5 a. m. today, forced members of the crew to open the safe, and took $32,000. They fled in a small white power boat. Ed Turner, owner of the barge, said the men carried shotguns and were disguised by stockings over their heads. Eyeholes had been cut in the masks. A few hours before the robbery hundreds of weekend gamblers had been taken to shore in speedboats. Only Turner and members of the crew were on board. While members of the pirate crew held Turner and his aides at bay, others forced his cashier to open the safe. They seized the money, went over the side, and their power boat sped toward shore where hundreds of inlets and docks and miles of beaches which offered concealment or a place to land. A coastguard boat put to sea as soon as the robbery was reported, seeking to locate the pirate craft.

MALLEN, July 8. — More than 150 officers on both sides of the Rio Grande engaged today in the search for Samuel Fortuna, Texas-Mexico border bad man, sought for questioning regarding the killing of Deputy Sheriff George Dennett. Dennett was shot from ambush last night at Los Ebanos in the lower Rio Grande valley. Hidalgo county officers, U. S. customs officials, and border patrolmen searched Fortuna's known hideouts on the American side, while Mexican troops patrolled the Mexican side. Bloodhounds were able to trail the slayer of Dennett only a few hundred yards. When Fortuna walked into the officers trap with a man and woman companion, he fired blindly at Dennett's flashlight, then fled into the underbrush. Dennett died of buckshot wounds in the neck.

An especially good swimming pool is maintained at the camp, and boys will be given expert instruction in swimming and life saving, a part of their scout work.

Camp Billy Gibbons is approximately 100 miles from here, near Richland Springs. It is located at the junction of Brady creek and the San Saba river. Scouts have been going to camp there for several years, and each year improvements in the place are made. G. N. Quiri, scout executive of the council, will be in charge of the camp.

11 DEATHS ARE REPORTED IN EAST FLOODS

STORMS and raging floods spreading over wide areas in New York state, New England and Canada took at least 11 lives today, caused millions of dollars damage, forced hundreds of families to evacuate their homes, and marooned hundreds of others in water-blockaded homes. United Press dispatches showed 11 deaths attributed to the most serious storm in New York state in a decade. Tentative estimate of property damage was $10,000,000. Hundreds of homes were inundated and at least 150 cottages carried away. Crops suffered heavily. An automobile carrying four persons was swept from the highway near Binghamton. The storms extended from west New York to Ontario and New England and varied from turbulent floods in New York to heavy fog which delayed shipping at Boston.

Eleven died in accidents in Pennsylvania.

J. J. Godbey Is Buried at Fort Worth Today After Death in Highway Crash

Funeral services for J. J. Godbey, 47, former school superintendent here, were to be held at 3:30 this afternoon at Rose Hill cemetery in Fort Worth, it was announced this morning by Mrs. William Reagan, friend of the Godbey family. Mr. Godbey, who recently resigned as superintendent of schools at Ardmore, Okla., was killed Saturday when his automobile struck a truck at Purcell, Okla., and hurried 75 yards into a ditch. The educator's neck was broken in the crash. Two companions in the Godbey car were injured. They were David Osborn, 40, Dallas, and John Rice, 25, Oklahoma City. Superintendent Godbey had recently been offered a position in the University of Oklahoma, it was reported. A letter which reached his home after he left offered him a position in the education department of Southern Methodist University. Mr. Godbey was well known over Texas and Oklahoma not only as an educator, but as a prominent church worker. His Methodist Sunday school class in Ardmore had an enrollment of more than 150. Survivors include the widow, two sons, and a daughter. He came to Cisco in 1917 and was head of the Cisco schools during the boom days, leaving for Ardmore in 1924. He was one of the most popular and capable school men ever to be connected with the Cisco system.

REGULATION OF OIL LEASES TO BE DEMANDED

AUSTIN, July 8. — Strict regulation of oil and gas lease sales will be demanded under the new Texas Securities act until prohibited by direct court order, W. W. Halcomb, secretary of state department said today. An attempt to prevent application of the law to oil and gas leases and royalties has been made by application to federal court at San Antonio. Halcomb said the suits had not been presented to Secretary of State Gerald Mann this morning. Chief contention is that oil and mineral royalties have been held to be real property and therefore cannot be classed as securities. The state will contest this position.

Dazed but able to get to his feet, he then beat his head against the bars of his cell. Guards restrained him. His injuries were not serious.

ACREAGE FOR COTTON SHOWS AN INCREASE

WASHINGTON, July 8. — The department of agriculture today placed cotton acreage of the nation at 29,166,000 acres, an increase of 4.6 per cent over last year. With Bankhead act restrictions still in effect, however, the acreage is 28.6 per cent less than the average for 1929-33, an the smallest, except last year, since 1906. Last year's total yield was 9,569,336 bales. With average yield per acre, this year's crop would be slightly larger. Acreage increases were shown for all major states except Oklahoma ranging from 4 per cent in North Carolina to 10 per cent in Louisiana. By states, the acreage in cultivation and the ratio of this year's acreage to that of last year was: Texas, 11,357,000 acres, 105 per cent.

Speaking of 'Liars and Lazy Men'

A committee of Texas senators and representatives has been investigating the workings of the new deal's program to curtail cotton growing. On the opening day 400 farmers applauded the program of the administration. Then those who are opposed to the AAA program had an inning. S. N. Adams of Nacogdoches is a land owner who admitted that he has titles to 29 farms. "He was willing to take care of himself." He advanced the following substitute for the new deal acreage control program: "Subsidize the tenant farmer up to a certain point and let us bigger fellows take our chances in the world's markets like the automobile manufacturers do." He was confident that the big fellows were able to take care of themselves and no doubt he is correct. Speaking of conditions as they are in rural districts, he said: "The conditions prevailing are worse than tragic. Give help to the men who are mudsills of humanity—the tenant farmers. Then men on my farms need some help. I don't know what, but it is something different from what they are getting."

Looking over the crowd of farmers who had supported the curtailment program that paid them for not raising cotton, Adams said: "Ninety-five per cent of the crowd here doesn't need help. I don't believe there is a tenant farmer here. Most of these men would not know how to set a cultivator."

Arthur Bayles, an employe for the Dallas Trust Joint Stock Land bank, said he favored the AAA program but pointed out "glaring defects in making allotments under the curtailment plan." This was the verdict of Bayles: "The biggest liar gets the most money. The one who lied about his production figures got the best allotment. . . . the program taxes the diversified farm in favor of the all cotton farmer."

Senator Tom DeBerry of Bogata, a large land owner, criticized the theory of the reduction program. State Commissioner J. E. MacDonald advocated a domestic allotment plan favored by Congressman Martin Dies. Under the Dies plan DeBerry said, the domestic price would be maintained at a certain level "and the surplus would take its chances in the world market."

All the foregoing happened at Dallas. It was different at Seguin. The directors of the Seguin Chamber of Commerce voted to endorse the Agricultural Adjustment Administration program 100 per cent. County Agent Whitsett said 90 per cent of Guadalupe county farmers favored the AAA plan. It is said that 93 per cent of the taxes have been collected in Guadalupe county, and it is admitted that Guadalupe farmers are among the most successful in Texas. Are they to be branded as "liars and lazy people?"

U. S. Going Out of Relief Work

Colonel Lawrence Westbrook of Texas is first assistant to Federal Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. Colonel Westbrook attended the works progress regional conference of state administrators and assistants at New Orleans. These administrators and assistants will spend the South's share of the $4,880,000,000 works appropriation. Westbrook outlined the objective of the WPA program. He declared it was to "give jobs on useful projects to people who are on relief." He termed the program more patriotic than fighting in the World War. "He said something of vital importance to the taxpayers and all the people: 'The federal government is gradually going out of the outright relief business as the solution to the emergency' and is turning to a program of providing jobs for the unemployed."

The New Orleans regional conference is to be followed by state conferences and the axes of the big setups predicted the program would get underway in some states within the next few days and that it would be practically in full swing by August 1. Billions have been spent by the administration to bring about restoration of prosperity, for the assistance of farmers and wageworkers in city and county and to provide housing and food and clothing and medical aid for the needy. This cannot go on forever. The dole should be abolished at the earliest date practicable. It should be possible to place thousands of idle men who are fit to work in paying jobs and the so-called unemployables who are unfit to make their way should be cared for by the states and local communities. Uncle Sam has certainly done his part—speaking through the Roosevelt administration.

Black Rust Appears in Wheat Areas

Chicago grain pits were given a genuine surprise on June 28. Reported appearance of black rust in American wheat fields electrified American grain markets and wheat prices jumped five cents a bushel—the maximum gain permitted for one day.

Really, the greatest gamblers under the sun are the tillers of the soil. They gamble on the weather. They gamble on the winged pests and worms that destroy the growing crop. They gamble on world prices. They gamble on the surplus or carryover of all the leading staples of the farm. Life is a gamble for the farmer from the cradle to the grave. That is, if he does not jump the farming game and hie himself to the nearest town to eke out a precarious existence and these con-nearest town to eke out a precarious existence and there con-

Constitutionality of New Oil Law

A three-judge federal court declined to rule on constitutionality of the new Texas oil law providing for state confiscation and sale of illegal oil. At the same time it upheld validity of proration regulations issued by the Texas railroad commission. In its ruling the court explained that it would not pass on the confiscation statute because the state had as yet made no attempt to seize the approximately 250,000 barrels of oil owned by 13 Texas refiners and oil brokers who brought the suits. Multi-millionaire Oil King Doheny said it all in the long ago. "Wherever there is oil there is hell." He should have added, "and rich pickings for the lawyers and fat court dockets for the judiciary—federal and state."

Defendant Given Moratorium By Court So That He Can Continue His Honeymoon

DALLAS, July 8 — County criminal Judge Henry King, himself a married man, took judicial notice of the fact that two cannot live cheaper than one and granted Albert Meadows' application for a 60-day deferred judgment.

Meadows, charged with disturbing the peace, presented a petition through his attorney that is self-explanatory. It set out:

"That the defendant on a beautiful spring day recently became overbalanced by the charm and beauty of a certain Dallas county resident and as a consequence thereof took himself a wife.

"That on this day he went vacationing with his wife on what is commonly known as a honeymoon. That he is justly in debt to the clerk of the honorable court in the principal sum of $10 and costs of court but that if compelled to pay said debt on this day he must discontinue his honeymoon.

"That the defendant always believed that two could live as cheaply as one, but that he now under oath verifies to the honorable court that the same is untrue, erroneous and wholly false.

"That the defendant has reason to believe that if given sufficient time by the court he can and will meet all his marital obligations and finish his honeymoon and also pay his debt to society, and the clerk of the court.

"Wherefore this defendant prays the court that a moratorium be declared in this cause and that a capias be withheld for a period of sixty days or more."

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — The period of taxation maneuvers, counter-maneuvers, trick plays, feints, and about-faces has added greatly to the ranks of those inhabitants here who stand firmly convinced that they are living in what is technically known as a bughouse.

Low-minded persons who always like to see the privileged classes get a kick in the pants are, however, enjoying a couple of developments on the side which give some promise of making capital life more bearable through a redistribution of its burdens.

Congressman Raymond Cannon of Wisconsin is undertaking to add an element of misery to the lives of the foreign diplomats here and Congressman Steve Young of Ohio has a diabolical scheme aimed at the army officers.

THESE two groups are the envy of us all. Having little to do beyond polo, golf, tennis, and an occasional few turns in a swivel chair, they're always invited to the best parties. They're the only fellows who have time to go and the only ones who have time to change their clothes.

Diplomats would be the especially victims of Congressman Cannon's bill, which provides heavy taxes on the wealth of citizens (male or female) who marry aliens. The tax would run from 10 per cent on all fortunes over $100,000 to 25 per cent on fortunes above $500,000.

All over the world, one hears, Washington is looked upon as a happy fish-pond for young diplomats whose careers require an heiress in the family. The numerous heiresses who make their debuts here would think twice about that tax, Cannon believes; and the young diplomats would be so handicapped that even young congressmen might have a look-in.

YOUNG'S bill would make army and navy officers on duty in Washington wear uniforms all day long. They wear civilian clothes now and in that disguise, Young insists, flood the capital's cocktail lounges and country clubs.

Says Young: "My bill would reveal all the loafing among them. Civilians would be amazed and taxpayers outraged when they saw the hundreds of officers in uniform. They would insist that the officers be ordered into active service."

IF Roosevelt backed up the men who run the affairs of the District of Columbia, the capital would have legalized gambling.

Both District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and Police Chief Ernest W. Brown have agreed with Congressman William Schulte of Indiana, during an investigation of local lawlessness, that much of the crime problem here might be solved by legalization of gambling—which is now the chief business of Washington's underworld.

"Human nature being what it is," explained Hazen. (Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, July 8 — If the liquor repeal amendment should fail Aug. 24 and obviate the need of the legislature's providing for collection of its $500,000 taxes a month, several new questions would govern a decision whether the legislature will be called back anyway this fall.

There may be other questions in connection with the amendments demanding quick action.

One of the probable bases for the call, if issued, may be the results of a check-up by Gov. Allred on the attitude of lawmakers toward some of the important policy business which they failed to reach in the 120-day regular session.

Gov. Allred may find out in advance particularly whether the legislature would be willing to let the state get some revenue out of the exploitation of Texas natural gas, through a huge work program of building the Detroit natural gas pipe line exclusively with federal money. The project is still alive. The federal loan would be repaid solely from revenues of the system; and the state's profits would exceed all the taxes now collected from natural gas.

Gov. Allred may ask the members what their attitude will be—just before time to renounce—on definite taxing proposals such as the $2 sulphur tax levy; and what their attitude will be on regulation of public utilities, as proposed in his utility commission bill. The response will be more available on the whole just before campaign time, than when the subject matter was buried under 1,000 local bills in the regular session, just after the members had been elected.

If favorable enough from enough members such answers would create the basis of a session regardless of the liquor amendment.

Farmers planting a new type of maize in their efforts to overcome the vagaries of the weather. The latest is a shoghorn known as 60-day maize. In the drought year 1933 this variety of maize matured with full grain in 68 days on the W. L. Mitchell farm near here. In 1934 when the drought was even more severe, the maize did equally as well in 72 days.

Many farmers are planting it this year.

Both answered that they did. Judge Willford ordered the husband to give his wife a "big hug and kiss right here in the courtroom." The couple embraced and left the courtroom happy."

PROFESSOR IS BEAN CANNER AT TARLETON

STEPHENVILLE, July 8, 1935.—When a bumper bean crop comes along, then something must be done about it, even if one is professor of agronomy and not particularly accustomed to the intricacies of the canning art.

The combination of unusually cool weather, plenty of moisture, and the attention of horticulture students produced so many beans that not all those who eat at the Tarleton dining hall could eat them all.

Now Prof. Rich anticipates canning other ultra-luxuriant crops, carrots, Swiss chard, and beets, and turning 400 pounds of cabbage into sauerkraut.

CHAPTER I

JO DARIEN straightened from the trunk she was packing and regarded her roommate with disapproval.

"Haven't you any packing to do, Tubby?" she asked.

Tubby Davis nodded. Dark and complacently buxom, Tubby sat on the window ledge swinging her ample legs continuously.

"I've got all of it to do," Tubby announced, making away with a chocolate. "I haven't even asked like to get my trunk up from the basement."

Jo laughed. "Well, I wish you'd start. You're making me nervous and throwing me off form."

Tubby's legs ceased swinging. "That's the first time you've cracked a smile today. You had me worried. You know, I think you actually hate to see school close for the summer."

"I do," Jo said. "It's fun here." The other shrugged. "Sure. But vacation's more fun, and we'll all be back soon enough."

Jo met Tubby's good-natured eyes, seemed about to speak, and then went on with her packing silently.

WEARILY she left her packing and went to her desk where a letter lay open between the pages of "Freshmen Readings in English Literature."

There was something in Jo Darien's blond beauty that reflected the windswept freedom of the sea . . . brave and clean and breathless.

"As you know, Jo, there wasn't much left after the sale of your father's store. By the time he had paid the bills he owed, and the back taxes on the house, there was even less than he planned.

"I'm enclosing a little check for your fare home. We're both so anxious to see our sweet daughter again. Much love from Mother."

Now Jo realized that the wholesale firms hadn't wanted to wait quite as long as her father wanted. She realized now that he had been practically forced to sell the store.

CHAPTER I-A

"SATISFIED?" inquired an arrogant voice, and Jo whirled to see Babs Montgomery framed in the doorway.

"I—I was just thinking," Jo said. Somehow, much as she disliked Babs, the girl had the power to disconcert her, to throw her off balance.

"O-oh, thinking?" said Babs. "Then you've a brain, too? What a catch for some summer beach Romeo! By the way, where're you going to spend your summer, Jo?"

"I hadn't thought about it," Jo lied. "I suppose I'll go home first."

"I'm tired of the seashore," said Babs in a bored tone. "I think this year I'd like the mountains—or perhaps one of those ranches. You know, where they have handsome dude cowboys. What I'd really like to do is take a summer tour to Europe, but Dad's set his foot down on that. He hasn't forgotten the time I went to Mexico City! By the way, I saw Bret this afternoon."

"Did you?" Jo resumed her packing. "Yes, I offered him a spin, but he had to go to the library. It's a shame how that man works! He studies like a mad person, and does odd jobs to boot. Is it true he's a life guard in the summer?"

"Is there anything wrong about being a life guard?" asked Jo acidly.

"Not in the least. Especially if there are pretty girls to save." Babs took a cigarette from her tiny bag, lit it carefully with her silver pocket torch.

"I'm not having dinner here, Tubby."

HER roommate crossed the room, stood squarely in front of Jo. "Look here, Jo Darien, what's wrong with you? I've seen it all day. You ought to be able to leave it out with me."

Rockefeller

century, the Rockefeller career was a hectic one. The evolution of the company its variegated history its court battles, extension of the oil industry to every continent and the many millions it produced have been the subject matter for more ephemeral and permanent literature than any other business since the world began. Rockefeller started all this when he standardized one of the products upon which civilization depends.

Total Gifts Not Known
As the vast Rockefeller fortune was built up wholesale, so it was necessary to disburse it in the same manner rather than in small lots in retail fashion. No accurate audit of the gifts of Rockefeller and his son, John D. Jr., ever has been made but all estimates place the total at above three-quarters of a billion.

The chief principle followed in contributing this figure has been that the best investment for future generations is the health and well-being of the present generation.

The Rockefeller Foundation has received the largest sums, between $180,000,000 and $200,000,000. The General Education Board ranks close to the same figure. Other large contributions include:

Laura Spellman Rockefeller Memorial, $73,875,457; University of Chicago, $48,000,000; Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, $40,000,000; International Education Board, $21,000,000; American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, $5,725,000; and the American Baptist Home Mission Society, $5,475,000.

Learned Thrift Early
These many millions spent to improve the world probably were the result of the thrift Rockefeller learned from his mother. This trait was carried throughout his business career and probably was demonstrated most graphically by an incident that occurred while Rockefeller was in the commission business long before he entered the oil field.

Rockefeller was visited by a friend one day while working in a little warehouse in Cleveland. The visitor remarked about the neat and orderly condition of the stock. Then pointing to several barrels, Rockefeller said:

"Every one of those beans I picked over by hand myself. We got them cheap because there were a good many black ones among them. I have put in my spare time, day and night, for the past few weeks sorting them over. Now they are extra quality and we shall sell them at an extra price."

Long ago Rockefeller formed a recipe for getting rich. Its cardinal points were:
Never go into an enterprise unless sure that it is coming out all right.
"I believe the only way to succeed is to keep getting ahead all the time."

Graduated Taxation Schedule Announced

WASHINGTON, July 8 — House ways and means committee tax hearings today revealed existence of graduated tentative schedules which Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau estimated would yield $108,000,000 annually on the narrowest base proposed and $901,500,000 if congress dips deep into the pocket of the upper middle class.

Morgenthau refused to recommend what rate the committee propose. He reiterated President Roosevelt's statement of last week that the rate to be proposed and amount of revenue must be determined by congress.
