Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Will Reagan has lost his goat. You've heard of some folks' goats being got, but Will has lost his. This goat business is beginning to be a serious matter in this country. A while back, when Will still had the fever and was preaching the virtues of goats to all and sundry, he discoursed at length to me upon the pastoral theme and I began then to believe that he was going to quit the business of distributing gasoline and oils and go into the wool and mohair industry.

He had an enormous ram tied in the bit of green pasture that vegetated behind his station, and he took an expanding pride in conducting visitors to this ram, pointing out the distinguishing features of fine stock and rubbing his toil-worn hands over the bulky fleece of the creature. The creature, who by some error of judgment had wandered into a field of cockle burrs, for which reason he had been tied to the tree in Will's bit of green pasture, seemed to like the attention some and the fondling more. He wobbled his big head around and invited Will to scratch around his curled horns which Will did, so that I began to believe that the purveyor of gasoline and oil had become a seasoned sheep man inasmuch as he seemed to understand the brute's sign language.

From what Will told me that pleasant summer afternoon as we lolled in the sunshine and listened to the crickets chirping under the decaying footboards of the fence, I was convinced that he was really interested in sheep. He conjured visions of great flocks of the creatures wandering over succulent ranges, multiplying and producing wool by the ton while the fortunate rancher lived a life of luxury and ease. Of course he mixed the goats into this vision, pointing out their obvious utility in eating up underbrush and baring the grass to the beneficial influence of the sunlight.

From the lips of an ordinary person I should have never been enthused, but when one of Will's nativity and antecedents becomes eloquent over a proposition the listener must needs attach some credence to the subject. I had thoughts of all this waste territory that H. H. Tompkins is now converting to broom corn, working alive with flocks of woolly sheep. Alas for the pleasure and the beauty of that scene, the influence of Will's antecedents has come uppermost to destroy it. For he has gone back on all the claims he made for them, and admitted that sheep, goats and gasoline don't mix. He has sold both sheep and goats to Jesse Penn.

Jep Lowe Fate Rests With Jury

EASTLAND — A jury in district court Thursday night was deliberating the fate of Jep Lowe, charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Seamon Garrison on an Eastland street last fall.

The jury took the case shortly before 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Garrison was killed last November 16 on an Eastland street. In his testimony Wednesday, Lowe told the jury that he fired at Garrison when he thought he saw him start to draw something from his pocket.

He told the jury that he and Garrison had had a number of difficulties and that he was afraid of the man. When he stepped from a store on the day that Garrison was fatally shot, he said, he saw Garrison make a move he took to be threatening. On cross-examination Lowe admitted he was not certain that Garrison was armed or that he was intending to fire.

Jake Garrison, a brother of the slain man and a state witness, testified he was with the officer who searched the dead man's body when no weapon was found. He said that no one else had searched it, but the defense contended that a previous search might have been made and a weapon removed.

Biggest And Best Rabbit Show Predicted Here Next Week

Over 200 Entries Expected; Sessions Building Is Site

Indications are that the Third Annual Spring show of the Eastland County Rabbit club, to be held in the Sessions garage building, in the 600 block on D avenue, March 29 and 30, will be one of the largest and best exhibits ever held by the association. Prospects are that there will be more than 200 entries, as inquiries are coming in from practically all over Texas and portions of Oklahoma. One inquiry has reached the secretary from as far away as Holyoke, Mass.

Marvin O. F. Davis, nationally known judge of rabbit shows, will judge the exhibits. Officers of the club appreciate having a man of Mr. Davis' prominence to pass on the exhibits this year, as he is one of the judges of the American Rabbit and Cavy Breeders association, and the prestige he will bring to the Eastland County show will be complimentary, and put the world on notice that the same standards will apply that are carried out in the American association, local officials pointed out. Officials of the show are Joe Clements, secretary and John A. Garrett, manager.

Entry blanks, rules, etc., may be had by applying to Mr. Clements at Cisco, Texas.

Large Prize List

A large number of attractive ribbons have been printed, and a large prize list arranged to be awarded to the prize winners. In addition the club has received eight certificates from the American Rabbit and Cavy Breeders association, to be awarded the most outstanding winners of the exhibits entered. The rabbit must be registered before being eligible for these certificates, Show Manager Garrett says. The rabbit can be registered before entry, or during the show, previous to the awarding of these certificates, but an exhibit not registered, is ineligible for either of these certificates. Rules are as follows:

- Association Rules
- 1—This show will be held under the rules of the American Rabbit and Cavy Breeders Association, Inc.
 - 2—No animal showing symptoms of disease of any kind will be admitted to the show room.
 - 3—All stock must positively bear permanent ear marks.
 - 4—Entries will close at noon March 28, 1935, letters bearing post mark of that date will be accepted. All stock must be in place March 28, at 9:00 p. m.
 - 5—Stock must be shipped prepaid and entry fees accompany entries. Mail entries to John A. Garrett, Cisco, Texas.
 - 6—Entry fees: Singles, 25c; doe and litter, 25c; fur class, 25c; meat pen, 25c.

7—Cash prizes will be paid on the percentage plan, 25% of entry fee of the class that the rabbit is entered in for 1st prize, 15% for second prize, 10% for third, fourth and fifth prizes will be ribbons.

Special Prizes

In addition to the large and valuable list of prizes that will be awarded during the show a special prize list will be offered those who have entries in this class. This list is as follows:

- 12-inch cup for best normal white fur.
- 12-inch cup for best normal colored fur.
- 9-inch cup for best display of New Zealand.

The cups listed above are competitive cups and become the temporary property of the current year winner. Cups become the permanent property of exhibitor winning same three times, and must be returned to the secretary not later than September 1, 1935, for our annual September show.

Peter Describes the Christian Life ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

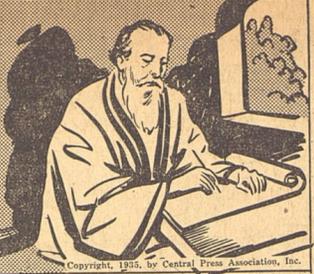

Scripture—I Peter 3:8-18.

Peter had been a follower of Jesus over 30 years when he wrote his two epistles to the early Christians who were being persecuted by Nero.

Around the Lord's Table, at the cross and on many other occasions Peter learned of Jesus what he wrote of love: "Be ye likeminded, compassionate loving as brethren, tender hearted, humble minded."

Peter wrote his fellow believers under persecution, "Who is he that will harm you, if ye be zealous of that which is good? But even if ye should suffer for righteousness sake, blessed are ye: and fear not their fear neither be troubled."

Peter was thus expecting great things of these Christians. But it was all to come through their enthroning Christ in their hearts as Lord: "Sanctify in your hearts Christ as Lord."

GOLDEN TEXT—I Peter 3:15

Sketches of the lives and experiences of the Fathers of Eastland County and the Cisco Country.

Aaron Mayhew, Loyal Cisco Pioneer, Is Noted as Builder of Business Structures

The following biographical sketch of one of Cisco's citizens though outranking him in point of age, as well as of residence in Cisco, are several others heretofore mentioned, as well as some of the Citizen-Free Press expects to introduce in this department in the future.

Among the buildings Aaron Mayhew constructed are included the large building now occupied by the headquarters of the Cisco Gas corporation; the six brick buildings in the 200 block on West Eighth street—in fact he built all the houses in that block except the telephone building and the Simmons filling station, at the corner of E avenue.

True, some of these structures never paid, but were built when there was a dearth of store rooms and offices in Cisco. They were erected when buildings were in demand at any price, and they commanded handsome rental prices.

ness stands, and would have paid him handsomely. Born in Mississippi Aaron Levi Mayhew was born in Pontiac county, Miss., Nov. 29, 1866, on the homestead his grandfather settled before the civil war.

Under his management this business prospered as one of the leading mercantile establishments in this section of Texas. A thriving business was carried on, as this store carried a stock of general merchandise and ranch supplies.

Among other big mercantile turn-overs he mentioned the sale of 300 buggies and hacks in one year. Other sales were of like volume. He tells of selling a car load of sorghum seed in one day, and it was not uncommon to sell a car load of feed the day it was received.

Few men have made more money in Cisco, all of which has been expended by him where he made it—in the town of Cisco. But it was his loyalty to the town, and his enterprise that is responsible for much of the present splendid little city we now have.

Being identified with the development of Cisco he saw the city grow from a straggling village to its present splendid proportions, and gave to his adopted city the best years of his life.

Drilling in the Discovery Well Mr. Mayhew, when oil was discovered in the Cisco field, devoted much of his time to the oil business, owning a number of leases in this field, and controlling a large amount of royalties. He also took over the Luse discovery well, south of the city limits of Cisco, and brought in as a small producer in 1919.

For some time Mr. Mayhew has ceased to be active in business, and since his recent impaired health, has been living quietly with his family at his home on the corner of F avenue and West 9th street, which was formerly the Dick Davis home.

HIGH REDEMPTIONS The advance in industrial recovery was evidenced by the fact that bonds called for redemption in February before their dates of maturity made the largest monthly total since November, 1929. Large industrial bond requirements accounted for $130,624,000 of the $165,658,000 called during the short month, compared with $152,341,200 in January, 1935, of which $94,880,000 were industrial, and only $3,713,000 in February, 1934. State and municipal bonds redeemed in February amounted to $9,798,000 and only $137,000 in February, 1934.

Johnson Urges Officials to "Do Best You Can"

AUSTIN. — State Relief Director Adam R. Johnson, forced to carry on relief work this month under a curtailed budget, appealed to county officials to "do the best you can with what you have."

"We haven't got any more money," said Johnson. "On the basis of this month's allotment, we still owe the counties approximately $2,300,000. "State funds made available by the legislature amounting to $750,000 became available today and federal officials wired us they will forward $750,000 for general relief for the last half of March as they promised previously to do."

"Drains the Till" Johnson said it might be necessary to transfer balances from more fortunate counties to those in dire need, and that in any event, "we will have to drain the till" to make ends meet.

Future allotments, he said, depend upon the fate of the relief bill now in the national congress. Until the federal emergency relief administration receives a new appropriation, its funds are being supplied to a limited extent from the public works administration. State funds also have been materially reduced, the final $3,500,000 of state bond money to be made available $750,000 in March and April, $400,000 for each succeeding month through November; $700,000 in December.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY.

Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.—Rev. 3:20.

Dear Christ, I heard thee knocking,
As with sorrow and pain I strove;
I knew thou wert waiting,
With outstretched hand of love.
—Alma G. V. Harrison.

Real love is full of understanding. It sees with the eyes of those it loves. It gets to the heart of a situation as nothing else. It thinks in terms of humanity, and never in terms of "hands" or statistics. It prefers to give itself to the individual. It has no ulterior object except to serve. It would gladly lead if it could—it would never drive. It asks nothing for itself, but it is human enough to long for love in return.—Rev. H. R. L. Sheppard.

THOSE who criticize the present city administration because business conditions have not been good and jobs plentiful during the past four years ought to ask themselves whether or not they are being fair. If their criticism issues from mere prejudice it is certainly of no value in the election because prejudice won't make jobs and it won't make business conditions good. And good business and good jobs are what we want.

THE facts are plain enough and the reasonable citizen and voter recognizes them. In the first place the conditions with respect to employment and general business that prevailed in Cisco during that period prevailed over the country generally and certainly it is unfair to expect the government of so comparatively small a unit as Cisco to make its community prosperous while the rest of the nation is mired in the bottom of a depression, particularly when that community has lost its credit and is struggling to adjust a six million dollar public debt.

MOREOVER, the claim has been made that the government through the PWA has been spending funds lavishly for public improvements. But the facts are that the number of PWA projects under way in Texas, outside road construction items which are paid for by direct grants out of special PWA fund, are scarce and far between and in each instance the PWA has demanded and obtained sound collateral. Indeed, so stringent have been the requirements of the PWA under Sec'y Ickes' administration that a congressional investigation has been proposed to learn why the PWA has not been more liberal and caustic criticism has been pointed in the direction of Ickes. In the condition that Cisco has stood with respect to finances, it has been practically impossible to obtain a loan of this character. It has been tried, time and again, and in each instance the city has been frankly told that the PWA could not make it a loan under the regulations governing such loans. On the other hand, where direct grants were made Cisco has received its share. A large PWA road grant for the reconstruction of Highway 23 south to Romney is one item. This resulted in an expenditure of around $70,000. Many more thousands of dollars have been spent on relief projects, so that all in all, the amount of money that has been poured into this community in some form or another has amounted to far more than would have been obtained in a PWA grant. And an important fact is that all of this expenditure did not add one iota more to the public debt, such as a PWA project would have done. Had a PWA loan been obtained, it would have been necessary to raise taxes or charges for public services to pay off the bonds that would have to be issued against the project that was built. Those who clamor for public works projects ought to be frank about that fact so that the voters may understand it.

IN addition to the relief money, more than $60,000 was turned loose in wages on a private construction project here during last summer and fall. If all this expenditure through wages can't stimulate recovery, it is a certain fact that one or two PWA projects, which will leave the community further indebted, cannot do so. After the work is finished and these "five-dollar-a-day" jobs have run out the workers would be back just where they were.

WE need a number of municipal improvements, including a water treatment plant at Lake Cisco and larger storage reservoir capacity. But we don't have to elect another administration to get them. As a matter of fact the process of obtaining them would be delayed. Why?

SIMPLY because the settlement of the huge public debt that was accumulated before the present administration went into office will rescue the community credit from its deplorable state and place the city in a position to obtain the financing needed for these items.

NOW, if after the present administration has worked out a solution to this problem and arrived at an understanding with the city's creditors, the voters repudiate this administration and return to office the same leadership under which this debt was accumulated, what will the city's creditors and the people who provide the financing for public improvements think? Wouldn't it strike them that Cisco was headed for another spending spree? They would certainly judge the future by the past. This Cisco debt issue has been too publicized for Cisco to do much borrowing under a condition like that. And the PWA is a loan agency—not a gravy train.

IT occurs to us that if the present administration, which has won the confidence of the city's creditors, is repudiated on the mere promise of an opposition ticket to give the unemployed jobs, that the sources from which financing is sought will simply fold up like a disgusted clam. On the other hand, with the administration under which the settlement was made given the approval of the voters, this community will have fought itself back to a position of greater respect and credit, a position from which it can hope to accomplish something of a permanent and stable character.

AND are we in a bad condition as compared with the rest of the world? Is the community disintegrating? We think not. On the contrary there is today a stronger community spirit than has been the case in the past six years. Real estate and rentals are increasing in value. Business is gaining ground. Competition is spurring activity in various quarters. New enterprises are constantly being located here. New citizens are coming in. Scholastics are increasing in number and the school enrollment is growing. Church financing is easier. Post office receipts are higher. Bank deposits are higher.

The chamber of commerce and the Cisco Boosters are working on a number of valuable projects with pleasing prospects of success. A state park of more than 500 acres with a large civilian conservation camp to develop it at an expenditure of at least a quarter million dollars is almost a certainty. On every hand there are signs of recovery and better days. After four years of struggling with the depression and the community debt problem, Cisco is just now in a position to go forward. The administration now in office must certainly have credit for what has been accomplished and the difficulties it has had to reckon with certainly ought to be appreciated in whatever criticism is offered. If it has been able to effect a solution of these difficulties it is reasonable to presume that the community is not going to the dogs, but on the contrary that it is going ahead to better days under effective leadership.

THIS election situation reminds the writer of a quick repartee by one of two printers whom he overheard discussing a question of reform in the administration of the printers trade union.

Said one, "You know Rome wasn't built in a day."

"Yes," retorted the other, "but the blankety-blank burned down in a night!"

IF we are not careful our particular "Rome" will burn down in a night and we shall have to start from scratch again. And it will take a mighty long time to go over the same old ground again.

INDECISION or reluctance of Cisco business interests concerned with the issue to take a definite stand threatens to do this community an irreparable damage in the ultimate loss of Highway No. One to the main business district. While other and minority interests are asserting themselves, as they are certainly entitled to do, the big majority of the business men are doing nothing while the state highway department is forced to consider active demands that Highway No. One be relocated on a street far removed from the business center. This in the face of the expressed preference of the department for the Eighth street route. That the highway is to be relocated, eventually if not now, is recognized. If it is put on 16th street it will miss the entire business district, except for a few outlying cafes and service stations. Eighth street is the logical route and if relocated upon that street, which cuts straight through the city over a wide right-of-way in a manner approved by the highway department, the benefits of the route will be permanently retained for the community. If it is not relocated over this street, it will go around the city and traffic will go by without so much as recognizing the community.

If you are interested in keeping this highway in Cisco, you should sign the petitions that will be presented this week and thus aid in settling this situation, hastening the construction of the project and releasing many thousands of dollars in wages among the working classes of the city. We do not blame the energies of the few whose interests demand opposition to an Eighth street relocation, but we do blame the timidity or the lack of interest on the part of the majority of our business men whose interests obviously demand the Eighth street route. Let's put an end to this bickering and get this project safely under way.

Randolph News

The Christian Endeavor convention is uppermost in the minds of most of the students in Randolph this week. Some of the members who attend school are soliciting registrations and the other students are planning to attend as many services as possible. The committees are planning a good time for all who come, so let's all go and don't disappoint them.

Ruby Russell is the happiest person we know. Every afternoon we can hear her laughter ringing through the halls as she works in the library.

Coleman Williams is a very promising art pupil. Mrs. Waters says that with a little practice he will be better than any of her pupils at present. I believe I would practice a bit.

Pearl Ayers can't decide whether she wants to study or go to town. Well, Pearl, you know what the majority of us would do don't you? Not that it is a good suggestion.

Jack Gilbert steadily maintains that he is the youngest pupil in school, but we still say that he isn't. The records show that a certain young man was born on October 1, 1917, and is already going to school out here. That is pretty smart. Congratulations!

Don't ever say anything funny when Vivian Kilpatrick is getting a drink. It is very tragical, for you. Just ask Coleman.

Red Clark is going in for smoking in a big way now. He has a brand new pipe, and boy does he keep it fired up; He doesn't like for you to spill his tobacco, either.

Elizabeth and Louise are always getting packages from home, and elsewhere. We wish that we would be able to share them, but Elizabeth says, "No."

A. G. Holmes is very obliging. Any time you are lonesome she will be glad to come over and keep you company, provided Francis isn't around when you call her.

Poor Pat Cochran spends half of his time mooning away about his secret love. Or maybe it isn't secret, we don't know. Anyway he spends half of his time gazing thoughtfully out of the window at apparently nothing.

Nell Alexander has decided that spring is here. Just to celebrate she wears a fluffy spring dress to school. It gives us the spirit too, Nellie.

Bertie Doty waits in vain for his "flame" only to remember that she has a 11:30 class. We tried to tell him, but he just couldn't be convinced.

Crystal Jackson and Francis Bruce are wizards at this treasure hunting business. They return with 10 articles out of the twelve when everyone else has from three to five. Don't tell me it is a put up job!

And then there's Charles Mc-

Kissick who becomes so sleepy that he can't make it home, so he just drops down on the grass and goes to sleep. Maybe it is spring fever, or then again, maybe it is the new radio that his father bought him which keeps him up at night.

Edna and Charles get out of government class a bit early but can't think of going home before

HAVE YOU NOTICED OUR SOFT-BALL DIAMOND?

There has and is being made quite a lot of improvement on our city soft-ball diamond, corner of 16th and A avenue. For you people who have not taken the time to notice, it might be worth your trouble to drive by and give this plant a "look over." It is something for which Cisco should truly be proud and for which the Humble company, through its every diligent worker Dave Perry, should be commended. He has put forth lots of effort and the Humble company has furnished an unlimited amount of material and labor to do this job.

We are often prone to take an enterprise of this type as a matter of course. The average person never considers the time and expense necessary in the building and maintenance of such a plant, yet at the same time, there are few of us but who enjoy good wholesome entertainment of this type. Especially is this true if we have nothing to do but go out and watch the game with practically no expense on our part. I believe in "giving the devil his dues," not meaning however, to refer to either the Humble company or Dave as "the devil."

Cisco has, in this soft-ball diamond, second to none I have ever seen or heard of. And rightfully do we deserve such a splendid ground. I doubt if any town either smaller or larger than Cisco, has shown more enthusiasm or gotten more "kick" out of the game of soft-ball than we of Cisco did last spring and summer, or more than we expect to get over the same period this year.

The business and professional men of Cisco must also be commended for the funds and assistance they have furnished. And right now they are having built some nice big "showy" signs around the outfield. They don't expect to be losers here however, as they know you will have to notice these signs when you go out there. Come on warm weather.

Mr. Williamson:

In your announcement for Mayor of Cisco, subject to the action of the voters at the municipal election April 2, 1935, you said that, if elected, you would construct a storage reservoir and a much needed water treatment plant at very little cost to the city.

Now, the records at the City Hall show that under date of July 30, 1924, the city commission, while you were mayor, authorized warrants in the sum of $31,000, pursuant to an estimate by the Elrod Engineering Company, for the construction of a 500,000-gallon re-enforced concrete reservoir on College Hill.

Do you intend to use the proceeds of this issue to build the proposed reservoir?

The Records also reflect that under dates July 30, 1924, February 27, 1928 and October 22, 1928, that the commission, while you were mayor, issued warrants, later converted into bonds, in the respective amounts of $17,000, $22,800, and $77,300 for the construction of filtration plant and additions to filtration plant.

Do you intend to use the proceeds of these issues to build the much needed water treatment plant?

Is it or is it not a fact that these records, over your own signature, give correct accounts of the actions of the commission in these instances? Inasmuch as you are asking the votes of the citizens we feel they are entitled to know the facts.

Ford Endurance Drive Will Begin Here on Tuesday

Starting Tuesday, March 26, at 9 a. m. a 100-hour endurance road test will be made of one of the new 1935 model Ford cars furnished by the Nance Motor company of Cisco. Driver of the car will be P. I. Sinner, famous endurance and racing driver who holds both the endurance record and the world's half-mile record for stock cars on dirt tracks.

A number of Ford dealers in this section are cooperating and Mr. Sinner in the course of his four-day sleepless drive, during which he will not eat, will visit the town in which each of these cooperating agencies is located. An advertisement naming these cooperating dealers is published in today's issue of the Citizen-Free Press.

Will Be Handcuffed

During the long, arduous drive Mr. Sinner will be handcuffed to the steering wheel of the car. Although the car may halt for necessary supplies for the driver and the machine, the motor may not be stopped. No oil will be added to the engine, which will start its grinding tour with five quarts of Uniflo lubricant sealed in the engine. Humble gasoline will be used.

At the conclusion of the drive Mr. Sinner will be put to bed in a Nance Motor company show window for needed sleep. During the last fifty hours of the long drive he will be accompanied by a nurse for safety both to himself and to traffic on the road.

He will drive his machine at varying speeds and will not "baby" the vehicle. Instead he will put it to a severe test over all character of road conditions found on the route among the towns he is to visit. At each of his stops he may be questioned. He will also take interested persons as passengers for periods of the trip.

When he begins the Cisco drive he will have started his 55th 100-hour grind. The drive will end Saturday, March 30, at 1 p. m.

WHEN WORLDS COLLIDE

By EDWIN BALMER and PHILIP WYLIE

WNU Service

SYNOPSIS

David Ransdell, aviator, has been commissioned at Capetown to deliver a consignment of photographic plates to Dr. Cole Hendron, in New York. Tony Drake calls at the Hendrons' apartment. Ransdell arrives and Eve Hendron, with whom Tony is deeply in love, introduces Tony to Ransdell. Newspapers publish a statement made by Hendron, saying that Professor Bronson has discovered two planets, which are approaching the earth. The result of the inevitable collision must be the end of this world. The approaching bodies are referred to as Bronson Alpha and Bronson Beta. To devise means of transferring to Bronson Beta is what is occupying the minds of the members of the League of the Last Days. Eve outlines to Tony the idea of the Space Ship, which Hendron has in contemplation. Tony rounds up suitable men and women to build the ship. Hendron has not been able to find a metal or an alloy which will withstand the heat and pressure of atomic energy to be used in propelling the Space Ship. The tides rush through the streets of New York.

"At points upon the seacoasts and at points in the river valleys where intelligent beings—if they once lived on the globe—would have built cities, there are areas plainly marked which have distinct characteristics of their own. There is no doubt in the minds of the men who have studied them; there is no important disagreement. The telescopes of the world were trained last night, Tony, upon the sites of cities on that world. Tony, for millions of years there has been life here. For more than a thousand million years, we believe, the slow, cautious but cruel process of evolution had been going on there as it has here.

"It is a developed world—a fully developed world which approaches us, Tony, with its cities that we now can see."

"Not inhabited cities," objected Tony.

"Of course not inhabited now; but once. There can be no possible doubt that every one on that world is dead. The point is, they lived; so very likely we also can live on their world—if we merely reach it."

"Merely," replied Tony mockingly.

"Yes," said Hendron, ignoring his tone. "It is most likely that where they lived, we can. And think of stepping upon that soil up there, finding a road leading to one of their cities—and entering it."

He recollected himself suddenly and extended his hand. "You have an errand, Tony, to complete between the tides. I gladly lend you Eve to accompany you. She will tell you later what we all have to do."

He led Tony to Eve's door but did not linger, thereafter. Tony went in alone.

CHAPTER VI

EVE was at a tiny table where a blue flame burned below a coffee percolator, and where an oil lamp, following the failure of electricity, augmented the faint gray of approaching dawn.

Was it the light, Tony wondered, or was Eve this morning really so pale? He came to her, and whatever the rules for this day, he claimed her with his arms and kissed her.

"Now," he said with some satisfaction, "you're not so pale." She did not disengage herself at once; and before she did, she clung tightly to him for a moment. Then she said, "You've got to have your coffee, Tony."

Old Citizen Greeted Friends Here Monday

On one of his periodical visits to Cisco came Charley Hight of Gordon, last Monday. He was accompanied by two of his daughters, Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Goff, who were shopping with Cisco merchants. Mr. Hight formerly lived here, and still owns a valuable farm about 10 miles out on the Breckenridge-Canyon road. He was, until a few years ago when he moved to Gordon, one of the earlier residents of this section, where he still has a large number of warm friends. Mr. Hight promised to give this paper a

"I suppose so—but there's no stimulant in the world like you, Eve."

She turned the tiny tap of the silver coffee pot, filled a cup for him, one for herself. A few minutes later they went down together.

The rushing ebb of the tremendous tide was swirling less than a foot deep over the pavement, and was falling so rapidly that the curb emerged even while they were watching. From upper floors, where many automobiles had been stored against the tide, cars were reaching the street. One drove up to Tony and Eve and stopped. The driver turned it over to them; and Tony took the wheel with Eve beside him.

They went with all possible speed, no longer encountering the tide itself, but lurching through vast puddles. Debris from offices, shops and tenements swept by the tides bestrewed the streets.

Bodies lay in the street; and now on the right a haze of smoke drifted from an area that had burned down during the night.

The East river, when they reached it, was a torrent low in its channel being sucked dry toward the sea. Wreckage strewed the strangely exposed bottom. The bridge, a few miles more of flood debris in steaming streets. Then towns and villages which also had been overswapt.

Now the country with its higher hills, whereon Tony and Eve marked the line left by the water at its height. They dipped through empty villages and rose to hamlets whose inhabitants still lingered, staring in a dazed wonderment at the speeding car. The effect of the vast desolation beat into the soul; derelict, helpless people, occasional burning houses.

They climbed a slope with a sharp turn which was blocked; and there two men sprang at them. Tony jerked out his pistol; but to-day—and though he was on his way to his mother who was murdered—he could not pull the trigger on these men. He beat down one with the butt, instead, and with the barrel cowed the other.

He got the car clear and with Eve drove on. Ah—here was the road home! Home! His home, where he had been born and where he was a little boy. Home, the home that had been his father's and his grandfather's and before that, for four generations. Down this road from his home, some man named Drake had gone to fight in sketch of his life when he comes to Cisco. The story will doubtless prove interesting to the readers of the Citizen-Free Press, as much of the making of Cisco and the Cisco country occurred while he lived among the people of this part of the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Yeager, Mrs. Meadows, Mr. and Mrs. John Jenson, Mrs. Ben Krauskopf, Mrs. Trop Powell, Mrs. N. A. Brown, Mrs. Lee Elkins, Mrs. Lee Burkett and Mrs. Lem Mayhew are attending the Rebecca assembly in Temple this week.

Charles Trammell has returned from a business trip to west Texas.

the World war, the Civil war, in 1812, and to join the army of Washington.

Tony tried not to think about his mother yet. Eve placed her hand over his which held the steering wheel. "You'll let me stay close beside you, Tony," she appealed.

"Yes. We're almost there." Familiar landmarks bobbed up on both sides, everywhere; a log cabin he had built as a boy; here was the way to the old well—the "Revolutionary well."

The house was before them, white, calm, confident. Tony's heart leaped. How he loved it—and she who had been its spirit! How often she had stood in that doorway awaiting him!

Some one was standing there now—an old woman, slight, white-haired. Tony recognized her—Mrs. Haskins, the minister's wife. She advanced toward Tony, and old Hezekiah Haskins took her place in the doorway.

"What happened?" Old Haskins told Tony, as kindly as he could:

"She was alone; she did not feel afraid, though all the village and even her servants had fled. The band of men came by. She did not try to keep them out. Knowing her—and judging by what I found—she asked them in and offered them food. Some of them had been drinking; or they were mad with the intoxication of destruction. Some one shot her cleanly—once, Tony. It is certain, Tony, she did not suffer."

Tony could not speak. Eve clung to his hand. "Thank God for that, Tony!" she whispered.

Briefly Tony unclasped his hand from Eve's and met the old minister's quivering grasp. He bent and kissed Mrs. Haskins' gray cheek.

"Thank you. Thank you both," he whispered. "You shouldn't have stayed here; you shouldn't have waited for me. But you did."

Old Hezekiah and his wife, and Orson the sexton, and Tony Drake and Eve Hendron stood on the hill-top where the men of the Drake blood and the women who reproduced them in all generations of memory lay buried. A closed box lay waiting its lowering into the ground.

"Hear my prayer, O Lord; and with thine ears consider my calling. . . . For I am a stranger with thee, and a sojourner as all my fathers were.

"Oh, spare me a little, that I may recover my strength before I go hence, and be no more seen."

Old Hezekiah Haskins held the book before him, but he did not read. A thousand times in his 50 years of the ministry he had repeated those words.

"Thou turnest man to destruction; again thou sayest, Come again, ye children of men."

Men and children of men on Bronson Beta, too. Men millions and thousands of millions of years in the making. Azotic time—proterozoic time, hundreds of millions of years, while life slowly developed in the seas. Hundreds of millions more, while it emerged from the seas; a hundred million more, while reptiles ruled the land, the sky and water. Then they were swept away; mammals came; and man—a thousand million years of birth and death and birth again before even the first brick could be laid in the oldest city on Bronson Beta, which men on earth had seen last night with their telescopes.

"For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday; seeing that is past as a watch in the night."

"For when thou art angry, all our days are gone; we bring our years to an end like a tale that is told."

The sexton and old Hezekiah alone could not lift the box to lower it. Tony had to help them with it. He did; and his mother lay beside her husband.

YARD PLAN

A yard plan is essential as a pattern in making dress. This is the first thing Mrs. J. G. Stuteville, yard demonstrator for the Dan Horn home demonstration club is doing in her demonstration. Mrs. Stuteville has a cutting bed in her garden where she is rooting plants to use in planting her yard by the plan. In addition to the rooted plants she will use some of the following native materials in her screen and foundation plantings: wild plum, red bud, sumac, agrita, cut leaf sumac and honey suckle. The yard plan includes the lawn, walks, drives and underpinning of the house.

STORAGE FOR CLOTHING

"Build the clothes closet from the ceiling to the floor and use the upper part for storing quilts or other bulky articles and bedding," says Mrs. O. O. Wolfe, Class I Wardrobe demonstrator for the Peak Home Demonstration club. Mrs. Wolfe has built a new closet by this plan, and made it large enough to take care of the family wardrobe. A rod was used to hang the garments on, shelves on one side to supplement drawer space, the inside painted white to furnish more light. The paint furnishes a smooth surface which is disliked by moths. The complete cost of the closet has not been completed, but will not be more than eight or ten dollars.

Good Cedar-Lined Closet Necessary in Every Home

(Homemaking Helps)

By ELEANOR ROSS

IF IT is at all possible, there should be at least one cedar-lined storage closet in the home, especially if there are several woollen articles and furs to be stored.

In summer, it is assumed that valuable furs and such are sent to the proper cold vaults, but even in the winter, furs and woollens should be placed in moth-proof containers when not in use, as a protective measure.

The best protection is a closet lined with the heart wood of good red cedar. This wood contains a volatile oil, the aroma of which kills newly-hatched larvae. The aroma will not kill fully grown moths or even half grown larvae. But, assuming that the articles are properly free from moths when placed in a proper cedar-lined closet, there should be no need for apprehension or worry. Each article should be thoroughly brushed, and, if possible, given a good airing before being put in the closet.

In answer to many requests for information concerning cedar closets, we wish to state that the ordinary cedar veneering that so many seem to think ample, is not at all mothproof. Nor is it enough to put cedar wood on the walls alone. The of the door also must be treated. Half-inch red cedar heart wood should be applied and absolutely no paint, varnish or other finish must be used on the interior of the treated closet. Otherwise, the efficiency of the wood will be destroyed.

Lining for walls, ceiling and floor must be weather tight and the door must be weather stripped if the full aroma of the oil is to be kept intact in the storage space. If possible, the shelves should be of red cedar, too.

Line With Wallboard

If a new closet is being built, it would be well to line the space first with wallboard, felt or some other insulating material, so long as it is odorless. Then apply the cedar over this lining. For an old closet, it is impossible to place the cedar wood over the plaster so long as the wood is nailed over the studding.

The person undertaking the job should be a good workman, for, unless the cedar lining is perfectly done and the closet rendered really airtight, it would be wiser not to start the work at all, for there will be no assurance the treated closet will be mothproof. But, if possible, include a new or old cedar lined closet in your house modernization program.

County Poll Tax Total Increased To Above 4,000

With Eastland precinct No. 1 complete, according to an unofficial check of the poll taxes paid in the county, the total has been increased from 3,979 to 4,231. The complete tabulation of the two Eastland voting boxes shows Eastland to have a total poll tax payments of 859. This leaves Eastland still trailing Cisco's two voting boxes by 84. The list as published in Sunday's Citizen-Free Press was complete with the exception of a portion of Precinct No. 1, and the above figures only changes the totals of the entire county and precinct No. 1. The other voting precincts of the county are unchanged from that published in last Sunday's paper.

No certified list of the poll tax payments has yet been made by the tax collector's forces.

Miss Imogene Hazlewood of Dothan spent the week-end with Mary Jane Morehart.

Berry Recounts Administration Accomplishments

Mayor J. T. Berry, candidate for re-election, Thursday issued the following statement with reference to his candidacy:

To the Citizens of Cisco: I was elected mayor of the city of Cisco four years ago and since that time have put forth every effort to serve as mayor to the best of my ability. I realize that more could have been accomplished, but feel that under existing conditions I have made a record of which I can be justly proud.

The affairs of our city were in a state of chaos at the time. The last audit made prior to my election stated very clearly that all records relative to your bonded indebtedness were wholly inadequate, and that as a result of the auditors verifying all bonds issued through the state comptroller's office, they ascertained that $1,215,000 of bonds outstanding were not recorded at any place upon your financial records. After weeks of work these auditors frankly stated that they had been unable to obtain intelligent information with reference to the status of your bonded indebtedness. The records reflected that there had been several bond issues where the bonds were sold and the money had not been used for the purpose as specified in the issue.

The audit completed in August, 1931, after my election in April, reflected the same general condition with reference to the status of the bonded indebtedness, this showing that of the last $2,016,000.00 of bonds issued, there was accounted for to the city of Cisco as the proceeds thereof the sum of $1,099,978.00, there being a discount in the sum of $916,022.00 of this sum being entirely unaccounted for so far as reflected by the records of the city of any corresponding bank.

Litigation was then brewing as between the city and the holders of the $4,843,500.00 of bonds and warrants outstanding, and several years accrued interest thereon. I have continuously carried on negotiations with a view of making some businesslike adjustment of this enormous debt and have succeeded in obtaining a reduction in the amount of the principal and interest to approximately twenty-five per cent of the indebtedness and a substantial reduction of the rate of interest on this indebtedness.

Mortgage Effort

An examination of the records revealed that an effort had been made and instruments prepared and executed for the purpose of mortgaging our entire water system, including the lake, dam, all mains, the distributing system and our sewerage system for the sum of $500,000 additional. This extraordinary bond issue was made possible only by the filing of false affidavits with the attorney general's department certifying that the tax rolls reflected valuations as high as $21,000,000 when in truth and fact the assessment rolls never at any time reflected valuations in excess of $12,000,000.

Before our courts of justice we took the position that the good citizenship of this town had not been informed of this excessive and illegal bond issue and I do not believe it is the intention or desire of the citizenship at this time to approve or ratify such action.

At the time that I was elected mayor you were paying 75 cents gross or 67 1/2 cents net for domestic gas. We immediately attempted to obtain a reduction in the gas rate and the distributors endeavored to greatly increase the rate as was done in our neighboring city of Eastland and in other towns. We exercised our best efforts both in litigation and in negotiations with the result that there was secured a modern up-to-date gas distribution system with a reduction to 60 cents per 1000 cubic feet instead of an increase to $1.60 per 1000 cubic feet. During three years of this period our neighboring city of Eastland was paying $1.50 per 1000 cubic feet for the minimum consumer.

Only Town

So far as I know and believe, Cisco is the only town in the state to successfully combat these exorbitant rates.

We have endeavored to adjust property valuations so as to reflect a fair and equitable valuation.

We have made such adjustments in our water and sewerage rates as was deemed fair and equitable and have endeavored to give employment to our citizens so as to enable them to survive the trying financial period through which we have passed.

I believe that we have made remarkable progress in our efforts to get out of the state of chaos existing, and am fully confident that within the near future our city will from every point of view

Ft. Worth Livestock

FORT WORTH, March 21. — Cattle and calves demanded unchanged prices at Fort Worth Thursday but hogs took another decline—this time losing but a dime and selling at a top of $8.40 for best truck butchers. Morning sales in the sheep yards were made at recent price levels. Estimates called for 1,000 cattle; 400 calves; 1,300 hogs, of which 360 were billed direct to packers, and 1,300 sheep and lambs.

Most of the cattle and calves arrived by truck and quality was not such as to fully test demand. One load of fed steers weighing around 1,050 pounds sold at $10. About seven loads of South Texas grass steers were unsold at 11 o'clock and seemed due to go to the scales mostly around $6.

Bulls were largely missing from the offering. A few sales of fat cows were made at $5.25 to $6 with butcher cows at $4 to $4.75 and canners and cutters at $2 to $3.50 with one load of canners at $2.75.

One load of choice fed yearlings sold at $10.75. A few sales of small lots of good quality fed steer and heifer yearlings brought $6 to $8. Plain yearlings cashed at $4.50 to $5.50 with common butcher yearlings at $3 to $4.25. A few fairly good fat calves sold around $6.75 to $7.25. Medium grade calves sold at $5.50 to $6.50; plain calves at $4.50 to $5.25 and common and cull calves at $3 to $4.

No stocker or feeder sales here were reported. The hog top was $8.40 for best truck butchers, which was 10 cents under Wednesday's best. No rail hogs were reported for sale. Packing sows were weak to 25 cents lower at $7.50 to $7.75. Some choice shorn fat lambs sold early at $7 and a few feeder lambs at $4.50 to $5.75.

Mrs. Hubert Seale and son, James Hubert, are visiting Mrs. Seale's mother in Clyde this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown spent Wednesday in Fort Worth attending the Fat Stock show.

Roshell Daniel has returned from a trip in east Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jones left Thursday for Houston. They expect to return the last of the week.
