

BAIRD EXPECTS BIG GROWD HERE SATURDAY

Baird business men have arranged a program for the entertainment of the people who will come to Baird Saturday afternoon.

A long list of premiums are to be given and several thousand circulars. A large crowd is expected to be present and remain to hear the election returns.

Mrs. Tom Cross Honors Her Son

On Saturday, July 10th Mrs. Tom Cross, of Dudley, honored her son, S. C. Cross, with a birthday dinner.

After all the guests had arrived at the Cross home, they went for a kooking and sightseeing trip on the Carpenter Ranch, where they visited Spiders Cave and Lover's Canyon, two places of interest in this section.

They returned to the home for lunch and then continued the sight seeing trip. The following were guests on this happy occasion: Misses Rebecca Scott, Genelle Edwards, Thelma Cross and Messers Melvin Betcher, Frank Carpenter and Herman Scott, all of Dudley; Misses Iona Simmons and Neta Whatley, of Big Spring; Geroma Nichols, of Imperial Valley, California and J. W. Walden, of De Leon.

Death Claims Mrs. Zerl Perdue

Mrs. Zerl Perdue, age twenty-nine years, four months and twenty-one days, the wife of Zerl Perdue, of this city, passed away at her home on Hope Avenue, Monday night at eleven o'clock, July 11.

The young mother left with her husband, three small children, two boys, 4 and 2 years and an infant daughter just a few hours old.

Mr. and Mrs. Perdue had been living in Hamlin perhaps three years, being connected with the oil drilling interest here. Mrs. Perdue was a member of the Church of Christ. Her maiden name was Lillian Holly Ridley, and was born at Duncan, Oklahoma.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist Church Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. Henry Littleton the pastor. Burial was in the East Cemetery, under the direction of the Darrow Undertaking Company.

General deep sympathy for the bereaved husband and the small children was shown in Hamlin by all who knew the family.—Hamlin Herald.

Mr. and Mrs. Perdue formerly lived here, where Mr. Perdue grew to young man hood.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Hammons, Mrs. Terrell Perdue and little daughter, Sherlie Marie and Mr. and Mrs. Si Green attended the funeral of Mrs. Perdue.

To Speak in Behalf of James V. Allred

Mr. Claude C. Wild, of Fort Worth Executive Vice-President of the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas, will speak in behalf of James V. Allred, candidate for reelection as Attorney General of Texas, on the Courthouse Lawn at 8:15 to-night, Friday. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend the speaking.

J. R. Black
of Baird

Candidate for Reelection
District Attorney, 42nd,
Judicial District

Judge Black is an able and fearless defender of the law and has discharged the duties of this important office with credit to himself and his constituents.

Veteran Mason Visits Local Lodge

R. J. Harris, of Admiral attended a meeting of the Masonic Lodge here last Saturday night. Uncle Bob is the oldest and one of the two charter members of the Lodge living, the other member being W. A. McLaury, who lives near Moran. The Baird Lodge was organized at Belle Plaine on December 15, 1880, near 52 years ago, and Uncle Bob has attended many meetings of the lodge in the more than half century, for he has always been a faithful member, attending well to his duties as a member of this ancient order, as he has every duty in life, and now in the evening tide of life he is surrounded by friends and loved ones who honor him and enjoy visiting with him.

VOTE EARLY—If you will vote as early as possible in the morning you will be of great help to the election officers in giving you the returns.

Early Voting Urged

The Election Officers request all voters to go to the polls and vote as early in the day as convenient to them as the ticket is a long one and will require quite a while to count all the votes. The voters will want to hear the returns at the earliest moment possible and by all voting early will enable the election officers to make an early report of votes cast.

Last Rally at Putnam

Putnam will hold a Political Rally to-night—the last of the campaign. The rally will be held on the main square where loud speakers will be installed the program beginning at 8 o'clock.

Candidates for all county and precinct offices will be there also candidates for some district and state offices. A big crowd is expected.

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY ELECTION TOMORROW

Big Rally Held For Judge Long in Abilene Last Night

Milburn S. Long, candidate for reelection as judge of the 42nd judicial district of Texas, closed his campaign in Taylor county Thursday night, with a program at 8:30 o'clock on the federal lawn. Judge Long and several attorneys, both from Abilene and neighboring towns spoke in the interest of his candidacy.

Attorneys from Taylor, Shackelford and Callahan counties, in which Judge Long's court convenes, spoke in his behalf. The candidate also delivered an address—closing his campaign in Taylor county, his home.

Judge B. L. Russell, of Baird, was to be one of the speakers on this occasion and a number of Judge Long's friends from Baird attended the rally.

Judge Long made a brief visit in Baird Monday while enroute to Shackelford county. Judge Long is now serving his first elective term as District Judge of the 42nd Judicial District and has made one of the best district judges we have ever had—and we have had some good ones in the years past.

Judge Long has made an enviable record for the prompt and efficient manner in which he disposes of cases in his court—he "eats no idle bread" but is always at his post of duty. He is very gentle, treating with every courtesy every witness regardless of their station in life, and like wise all jurors and court attendants. It is a well known fact throughout this section that Judge Long has probably disposed of more business in his court than any other district judge in this section and is considered one of the ablest district judges in Texas—and is beyond a doubt most worthy of your vote and influence.

Bank Will Observe Primary Election Day, July 23rd.

The First National Bank of Baird will not be open for business, Saturday, July 23, it being the State Primary Election Day and requests the correspondents to be governed accordingly in placing order for transfers, currency shipments or other business.

Oplins Two Day Picnic

Oplin held a two-day picnic Wednesday and Thursday, at the Charlie Allen farm about three miles east of Oplin. Many candidates took advantage of the opportunity to meet the voters on the eve of the election and attended the picnic both days.

TRANSFER NOTICE

All persons wishing to transfer their children from one district to another, must do so during this month, as there can be no transfers made after August 1, 1932.

A. L. JOHNSON,
County Superintendent.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express to our neighbors and friends our deep appreciation of the many kindnesses shown us during our recent bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Foy, and family.

Tomorrow and then—the Democratic Primary Election for the year 1932 will be history. Candidates for all offices, state, district and county are quite active, using every means possible to have a last word with the voters.

The campaign, which is, fast drawing to a close, in Callahan county, has been rather a strenuous campaign, creating quite a bit more interest than usual. There is an unusually large number of candidates this year and all have been busy throughout the campaign.

There has been a number of picnics, rallies and etc, to which the candidates have been specially invited and all these have been well attended and perhaps we will be safe in saying that the candidates have made a more thorough canvass of the county this year than ever before.

The primary election in Baird will be held at the Tabernacle. W. E. Melton is the presiding judge and will be assisted by a number of clerks.

The polls will open at 8 o'clock a. m. and close at 7 o'clock p. m. It is expected that a heavy vote will be polled

MUST RESIDE IN COUNTY SIX MONTHS, STATE ONE YEAR TO VOTE

Article 2955 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Texas prescribes the qualifications of a voter and provides among other things "that he must have resided in this State on year next preceding the election, and the last six months in the county in which he or she offers to vote.

Article 2958 of the Statutes define residence of a single man as "where he usually sleeps at night; that of a married man is where his wife resides, and if permanently separated, his residence is where he sleeps at night."

UNLAWFUL TO CONVEY VOTERS TO POLLS

Article 3025 of the Revised Statutes providing that no vehicle shall be used by any person to convey voters to the voting places unless the voter is physically unable to go to or to enter the polling place without assistance. Article 250 of the Penal Code provided a penalty for the violation of this article.

ELECTION BALLOT MUST BE SIGNED BY PRESIDING JUDGE

When you present yourself to vote the presiding or associate judge will hand you, provided you are a qualified voter, a ballot headed, "Official Ballot" The name of the presiding judge of the election must be written on the opposite side of the ballot. Your ballot must also be numbered before it is deposited in the box. One of the judges also attends to this for you. The ballot should be folded by the voter so that the name of the presiding judge shows thereon.

Furthermore, if the name of two or more persons are upon the ballot for the same office, and the names of two are left unmarked, the ballot cannot be counted for that office.

Do not carry with you to the polls any marked sample, or dummy ballot or any paper or ballot on which is marked or printed the names of those for whom or against whom you have been requested to vote.

If the voter needs any assistance in the preparation of his or her ballot, it must be given by the election judges, and a heavy penalty is imposed on any judge or clerk of an election who in any way indicates he desires you to vote. Hence the voter must not ask any one in the polls other than the election officials to assist him, and neither shall he ask any of the officials of the election to suggest a man to vote for, even though he has no preference in any particular state or county office.

The Prohibition Ballot

J. Rupert Jackson, Democratic County Chairman, informs us that supplies for voting on the submission of the prohibition question have been received by him and distributed to the presiding election officers in each of the precincts and that the submission of the question is left up to the precinct election officers of the county.

To The Voters Of Callahan County

When the 42nd Legislature failed to redistrict the Congressional Districts as prescribed by law, they made it necessary that Three Congressmen at Large be elected at this time from the State and also made it necessary for the balloting for these Congressmen in three places, that is Place No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3.

There are so many aspirants for these several places that in a great many instances voting is a matter of guess work on the part of the general public. However, there is a number of excellent Congressional material in each of these places if the people can be informed as to the qualifications and merits of these particular candidates.

For place No. 1 in this Congressional race the general public will do well to consider the merits and qualifications of ERNEST C. OZRO COX, Mr. Cox was reared in Ellis County at the little town of Ozro. He was educated in the rural schools and later attended the State University. He has given most of his time to service of his State and Country. He served over seas during the World War and in that capacity made a good soldier. Since the war he has served six years in the State Legislature, resigning that place in 1927 to become State Commander of the American Legion, as he felt that he could be of great service to the disabled veterans of the State of Texas. He has probably done more for the disabled veterans than any other man in the State with the exception of Hon. Wright Patman. He is conservative, well qualified and knows conditions, both State and National, as they pertain to the people of this section of the Country. His character is beyond reproach and one will always find him right on moral questions and ready to serve his State and people to the best of his ability. We, the friends of Mr. Cox, who know him personally solicit your consideration of his candidacy when you cast your ballot for Congressman at Large, Place No. 1, on July 23, 1932

Respectfully,
EX-SERVICE MEN
of Callahan County.

THE SMALL CITY...

A Pacemaker of Progress

More and more the signs point to the greater importance of the small and medium-sized community.

We are proud of the part electric-power is playing in laying the groundwork for this greater progress and prosperity.

Gone is the day when the larger metropolitan centers had a monopoly of power supply, the first essential of industrial growth and development.

Widespread networks of transmission lines have given the smaller communities the same high-grade electric service as the larger cities have.

On this firm basis, industries are increasingly recognizing the advantages of location in small communities.

This trend will react most favorably to West Texas, the "Land of Opportunity"—efficiently, dependably and inexpensively served by the West Texas Utilities Company.

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule... and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

Joe R. Mayes, Pastor
Next Sunday we will be glad to see a large crowd at Sunday School and Church. I will preach both hours next Sunday and I earnestly request all our folks to be in the services and just as many who do not belong to our church and will come. We surely will be glad to have you.

Our meeting at Midway closed Sunday night with three good services last Sunday. We had a good meeting three conversions and one addition to the Baird church. Let us remember all of our regular hours of meeting and each one be in their place at each service.

Our church calendar is: Sunday School at 10:00 o. m.; Preaching at 11:00 a. m. and 8:30 p. m.; Juniors B. Y. P. U., Sunday 4:00 p. m.; W. M. S. Monday, 4:00 p. m.; Prayer Meeting, Wednesday 8:30 p. m.; Sun Beams, Thursday 3:00 p. m.

Say! How would you like to change the hour of Sunday School and Preaching from 10:00 and 11:00 a. m. to 8:30 and 9:30 a. m. Sunday Morning for the hot weather? Others are doing it that way, and they say it is fine.

An open challenge to opponent or any of his friends to defend his record is fair. I have said nothing to his back that I will not and have not said to his face. The challenge has been declined. Fifty per cent of the cases appealed from 42nd district court have been reversed during the term of the incumbent; many civil cases have been reversed and rendered. This is too expensive to tax payers.

Since I have been open and fair, please beware of last minute propoganda, if any, which I will not have time to answer. My life and record as a citizen and lawyer and official has been an open book, sober, sincere, and determined to follow the right at all costs. A man can not fool the public all the time. He can not drink with the citizens who drink by night and sit in judgment, charge juries, and pass sentence upon them by day. This is fundamentally wrong. A man should not be allowed to take advantage of his own wrongs. Fifteen years in office on way or another by the incumbent is a long time. Six years in one office ill managed is too long. If you will give me a chance I will prove true to the trust.

AMERICA PREFERS THE SIX

Since January 1st, buyers have chosen more Chevrolet Sixes than the combined total of all fours and all eights priced below $1000

When buying a low-priced car, do as America is doing: Count cylinders! And you'll say, as America is saying: "SIX! No more. No less!" America counted cylinders and concluded that six is the ideal number for a car of lowest price! No more, because an engine with extra cylinders is bound to cost more for gas, oil and upkeep. No less, because six is the smallest number of cylinders you can have in a car and avoid undesirable effects of inherent vibration.

A six, as Chevrolet builds it, is the happy medium between two extremes. No other motor car engine in America today costs so little for gas, oil and upkeep. And it gives you built-in smoothness from 6 miles an hour to 65 or 70.

Because of this smoothness—plus the fact that the whole car is so solidly, ruggedly built—a Chevrolet Six really stands up. It's a good, reliable, economical car the day you buy it... and it keeps on being good, reliable, economical after 5,000—10,000—15,000 miles of driving.

MAN MADE THE TOWN

by RUBY M. AYRES

Diana, a young English girl, in love with Dennis Waterman, a married man, undergoes a nervous collapse and is sent to the country to recuperate under the care of Dr. Donald Rathbone, who lives near the cottage where she stays. She finds herself falling in love with the doctor, but still trying to hold Dennis' affection. Linda, Dennis' wife, tells her that she offered Dennis a divorce but he would not accept it; he would have felt compelled to marry Diana. Diana's love for Dr. Rathbone is tempered by jealousy of a woman named Rosalie, who lives in the doctor's house. At last Rathbone finds that he is deeply in love with Diana, but he confesses to her that Rosalie is his wife.

He had married her out of sympathy when her husband had been killed in the war. But Rosalie was hopelessly insane. Diana and Rathbone part, and a letter comes from Aunt Gladwyn calling Diana back to London.

Dennis comes to see her. She discovers that she is all through with him. As she is leaving for London a letter comes from Dr. Rathbone, expressing his hopeless love. Back in London she learns that Linda Waterman, Dennis' wife, has been for years in love with a married man whose wife has just died in an insane asylum. Life seems a frightful puzzling affair. She goes to a party, expecting to be bored, but the footman at the door announces the incoming guests, calls out: "Dr. Donald Rathbone."

Dennis Waterman is sent to the country. Diana in love with a married man, try to recover her health. She falls in love with Dr. Dennis Rathbone, whose wife Rosalie is a hopeless lunatic. Torn between two loves Diana can't decide until Lida Waterman offers to divorce her husband so he can marry Diana. Dennis refuses to accept his freedom, and Diana sends him away. Rathbone and Diana see only a hopeless future so long as Rosalie lives. Then Rosalie, who has gone for a stroll in the woods, does not return. What has happened to her?

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

FINAL INSTALLMENT

He slipped an arm beneath her head and held something to her lips. He had done this before too, only that time it had been tea—tea which Jenny had brought upstairs. This time it was horrid stuff. Perhaps the kettle hadn't boiled properly. Nothing annoyed the Creature more than to be given tea when the water hadn't boiled properly.

The nice Creature! Diana hoped the sea wasn't always rough in Brittany like it had been on the picture postcard she sent.

"Diana." It was wonderful how real voices sometimes sounded in a dream; she found herself listening with strained attention to hear it once more, but everything was silent, and a sigh of bitter disappointment escaped her.

The other half of her senses was waking up now: the half that told her that she was only dreaming, and Diana knew only too well what that meant. It meant that presently she would hear Anna drawing the curtains, their rings always made such a nasty little rattle, and she would have to yawn elaborately and pretend she had slept well before she opened her eyes to the world of emptiness.

"Diana." She turned again to where in her dream Rathbone had sat beside her. He was still there, leaning a little towards her, his dark eye on her face. Diana kept very still. Perhaps she might manage to fall asleep again and go on dreaming if she was very careful.

She wished he would hold her hand, but you couldn't do that in dreams. It would be like the dream you had sometimes that you were falling down a great hill. A dream in which you knew that any moment you might reach the bottom and be killed, only you never did.

She began to whimper faintly: "Let me go . . . let me go . . ." "Diana."

"Diana . . . listen . . . listen to me. Oh, by beloved, try to understand. . . I will never leave you again . . . Can you hear me? . . . I will never leave you again. Diana!"

It was Donald's voice though! She had never before heard it with that note of agony; something must be the matter: he was in trouble—unhappy, and that was not like him; he was always so ready to bear other people's troubles and forget his own.

But she could not help him now—she was too tired to try any more to make him smile. If he would just let her alone—she was quite happy. "Never leave you again . . . never leave you again. . ."

She turned her face fretfully from him; she didn't believe him, it was just another . . . ruse . . . to keep her from going to sleep: the sleep she had longed for so wearily and tried so hard to capture—he might leave her alone now she had so nearly won through at last.

"Diana. . ." It was as if he were fighting her for every step of the ground over which she was slowly slipping away, and at first she knew contentedly that he was losing, that in spite of her weakness and his strength he would not be able to hold her back.

Funny, that seemed—for a great big man to be conquered by a little girl. She began to be faintly interested, to wonder why it should be. Life was full of things impossible to explain. She only knew that she was utterly weary and that she wanted to sleep.

She said so presently, half crying, feebly, but he was relentless, he would not let her go.

For a moment she fought him with the last remnants of her strength; then suddenly she gave in, with a little sigh and half smile. "You've got your own way, then. . ."

She had said that to him once before—long ago—and he had answered, "I generally do in the long run."

She waited now to hear him say it again. The dream wasn't coming right somehow. . .

She opened her eyes with a last effort, trying to see his face, but now she couldn't. . . he was hiding it from her, against her hands, as he had done that night in the train. . .

He was unhappy—and she hated him to be unhappy; she knew so well how it felt.

She gave a little sigh of weary copitulation. "You always get your own . . . way," she whispered.

The last word was lost as she fell asleep.

It was nearly five o'clock in the morning when Anna, who had steadily refused to take any rest, slipped again into Diana's room.

Rathbone was still there, standing at the foot of the bed, his eyes on Diana's quiet face.

Anna crept up to him. "Is she—better?" Rathbone nodded silently. "Is she—will she—live?" "Please God."

Anna closed her eyes for a moment; then she asked: "Can you leave her for a moment, sir? I'll stay."

He shook his head, but she said urgently: "There's someone downstairs who wants to see you—a man named Hobson—he says he must see you—that he's been looking for your all night."

"Hobson." Rathbone seemed to wake with a little start. "Oh, yes—tell him to give you a message."

"He won't sir—he says he must see you—if it's only for a moment." Anna hesitated, Rathbone looked so worn out, but after a moment she said reluctantly, "I'm afraid it's something very urgent sir."

"Very well. I'll come. . ."

He bent over Diana, his fingers on her wrist for a moment; then he turned and walked out of the room.

Anna took his place at the foot of the bed. Physically she was half asleep, but her brain had never been more active and awake. She was thinking how queer it was that some woman got all the love, while others more worthy and hard working, were passed by.

She knew how near Diana had been to death; she knew that there had been one moment at least during the long, terrible night, when even Rathbone himself had given up hope. . . or hadn't he? She could not be quite sure fought for a woman's life he had but she knew that if ever a man had fought for Diana's.

It was as if by sheer will power he had kept her from slipping away. . . Of course, he was in love with her. Anna found an odd satisfaction in a discovery of which she was certain that everybody else was as yet ignorant.

Mrs. Gladwyn had refused to come into the room at all; she had taken cowardly refuge in a fit of hysteria when she was told that by mistake Diana had taken an overdose of morphine and might die.

Gladwyn, and this seemed a heaven-sent opportunity to repay the many little indignities she had suffered at that lady's hands.

She was half dozing, holding firmly to the bed rail, when Rathbone came back, it might have been five minutes or half an hour later; at five o'clock in the morning it is difficult to keep track of time.

Anna started awake, smiling in nervous apology, a smile which quickly faded as she saw Rathbone's face "Why—sir!" she stammered.

He waved her away impatiently. "It's all right. You can go. You had better go to bed. I shall stay till the morning."

"If you would like me to stay. . ."

Anna ventured timidly, "No. Markham's up if I want anything."

Anna crept away, closing the door behind her.

CHAPTER XXVI Rathbone went back to his old place. There was a curious gray look in his face, and he sat for a long time, his hands clenched between his knees, his eyes staring blankly before him.

He kept seeing nightmare pictures of a river, of a woman and of a boy—a boy who had given his life in an unavailing attempt to save her.

Hobson had broken down and sobbed as he told how they had at last found them:

"Clasped in each other's arms they were—as if she'd clung to him and dragged him down. I'd have given my life, sir, rather than anything should have happened to her. . ."

Diana stirred a little in her sleep, and Rathbone turned his head slowly and looked at her. Better Rosalie's life than this child's, if one of them had to go.

If it had been Diana. . . the last six weeks rose before him, a nightmare panorama.

He had tried to do the best thing for her, and he had done the worst. He had meant to be kind, and he had only succeeded in being brutally cruel.

In an aching imagination he saw her again sitting at that long dining table in her white frock—so far away from him and so brave. He had not guessed that it had been as great a torment to her as it had been to him.

Supposing he had still been away? He knew that the chances were that Diana would have died. This night had settled all question of the future: not again would he let her go away from him. . . He would have to find some way. . . Then suddenly he remembered—the river—and Hobson's broken story.

He was free, but at what a cost. The life of the woman whom he had cared for and sheltered for so many years, and the life of a boy who as yet had known nothing of life. Perhaps in that Jonas was fortunate: he was a dreamer, and dreamers suffer.

Rathbone knew that now the story of his marriage would have to be made known: something fresh for the claws of gossiping vultures to tear to pieces. Not that he cared for himself, but it hurt him inexpressibly for Diana's sake, and in a lesser degree for Rosalie's. She had meant nothing in his life, and yet he knew he would never forget her, the pitiful, unreal thing that had lived for so long in his shadow.

"Rosalie, wife of Donald Rathbone." That was what the vultures would expect him to write on her tombstone; there seemed something of sardonic humour in it as he sat there, his eyes on Diana's face.

She was his wife—the one love of his life; even if he had never seen her again, nobody would ever have drawn near to her piece in his heart.

Half child, half woman, spoilt, wilful—intolerant of life when it went the way she did not wish—he yet loved her with every impulse of his manhood.

And she loved him; for a moment he lost himself in the wonder of that thought—and of her sleeping face.

Somewhere in the house a clock chimed six, and he stood up, stretching his arms, feeling wearied to death and yet, amidst all the tragedy surrounding him, conscious of a quiet, perfect happiness which nothing could spoil.

Diana stirred a little, as if conscious of his movement, fearing that he was leaving her.

Rathbone stood still and she turned her head, looking at him with half-conscious eyes, whispering his name. "Donald. . ."

"Yes, my heart" Her hand fluttered a little towards him, and he took it in his, quiet and strongly, as if with it he took her also, body and soul.

He saw a little doubt flicker across her eyes and vanish. "It— isn't a dream?" she asked. "No, Diana." "And you'll never send me away again?" "Never again." She gave a sigh of contentment. "I don't . . . know . . . what's going to happen to us," she said drowsily, half asleep once more. "But . . . I know . . . it will be all right, always . . . if we're together." Rathbone bent and just touched her lips with his own. "Yes, my heart—it will be all right—always—if we're together"
