General Butler's Fantastic Story of Fascist Plot to Seize the Government—Strike in the Great Steel Industry Becomes Imminent.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Gen. Smedley D. Butler

SOBER minded American citizens find it difficult to take seriously the fantastic story that Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler told to the congressional committee investigating un-American activities.

Butler is to be believed, he was approached by Gerald P. MacGuire, bond salesman in the stock exchange firm of Grayson M. P. Murphy and Company, and urged to accept the leadership of a soldier organization of half a million men "which would assemble—probably a year from now—in Washington, and that within a few days it could take over the functions of the government."

MacGuire explained to me that they had two other candidates for the position of "Man on the White Horse."

The general said he was offered considerable sums "for expenses" which he did not accept.

Francis Biddle has been engaged in law practice as a member of the Philadelphia firm of Barnes, Biddle, and Meyers.

will be worked out by a committee of three arbiters, with the union recognizing as the bargaining agent for the employees.

BY ORDER of the national labor relations board there will be held soon a great workers' election which will determine whether organized labor shall dominate the country's rubber industry.

The board decreed that the Firestone Tire and Rubber company and the B. F. Goodrich company of Akron, Ohio, must allow their employees to ballot on the question of whether they want a company union or an American Federation of Labor union to represent them in collective bargaining under the NRA.

Twenty-one thousand workers, the largest number ever polled by the labor board on an NRA question, will participate in the election.

Both the Firestone and Goodrich companies have opposed the elections now ordered, maintaining that conditions in their plants are satisfactory and that electioneering in rival unions would only disturb the peace among the workers.

DONALD R. RICHBURG, executive director of the national emergency council and now perhaps the President's chief adviser, addressing the Associated Grocers of America at their convention in New York, proposed the creation of a new federal body, combining functions of the NRA and the federal trade commission, to define and regulate concerted trade action in the "twilight zone" under antitrust laws.

Discussing the program for permanent NRA legislation, he reiterated his opposition to control of prices and production.

He said the fixing of minimum wages and maximum hours had demonstrated its soundness for eliminating the worst forms of unfair competition in treatment of employees, and that admittedly dishonest business practices should be proscribed.

PHILADELPHIA lawyers are traditionally supposed to be able to unravel the worst of tangles, so President Roosevelt has picked one to be chairman of the national labor relations board.

Francis Biddle

Clark, at present in France, admitted he had asked Butler "to use his influence in favor of sound money and against inflation," but strongly denied that he had sponsored a Fascist movement.

Murphy and other Wall street men said the story was absolutely false and unutterably ridiculous, and MacGuire, after being heard by the McCormack committee, said: "It's a joke—a publicity stunt. I know nothing about it. The matter is made out of whole cloth. I deny the story completely."

SO FAR as the great steel industry is concerned, it appears that the industrial truce asked by President Roosevelt cannot be arranged, and the prospect of a strike of the steel workers is growing.

In behalf of the United States Steel corporation, a proposal was made to the American Federation of Labor that recognition of that organization would be granted, but that no contract would be made.

HUGH R. WILSON, American ambassador to Switzerland, laid before the disarmament conference in Geneva a proposal by the United States for international control of arms traffic and full publicity to prevent secret arming of nations.

By the American plan each government would license its manufacturers of munitions for five year periods. No reserve stocks would be allowed and manufacturers would be required to present bona fide orders before receiving a license.

If a rupture comes the Federation of Labor may find the federal government rather unsympathetic. Mr. Green's influence in the White House has been waning noticeably and he has had no personal contacts with the President for some time.

New Yorkers were gladdened by the news that a threatened strike of elevator operators had been averted and an agreement, drafted by Mayor La Guardia's board of arbitration, had been signed by representatives of the real estate interests and the union.

NOTABLES of the Catholic church gathered in Chicago from all parts of the world to take part in the silver jubilee of Cardinal Mundelein, who was consecrated a bishop 25 years ago.

News of Astronomy Japan Underestimates Air, Water, Power Paradise for Killing

Astronomy marches on. Recent discoveries include 1,700 new variable stars, used as "yardsticks" to measure the depths of space, also a new twin star, a double sun, of which there are many in the heavens, as there are many double protons and nuclei inside of some atoms.

Japan and England are friendly. Japan will not demand naval equality with England, only with the United States.

Also, if they knew Franklin D. Roosevelt, they would know that he will build, on behalf of the United States, whatever he thinks the United States needs, asking no permission from England or Japan.

President Roosevelt's words, praising workers in the Tennessee valley for their efficiency, made one of the most important speeches that he, or any President or ruler of a country, ever made.

He promises cheap power. Not all the plans to drive away depression could do one-tenth as much as really cheap power for all.

Nature gave man free air and free water; not much else is free. If science and wise government can add to free air and free water power unlimited, as nearly free as possible, that will mean another step toward the desired millennium.

Cheap power for farms, factories and homes, cheap power giving the light necessary for study, power that means conquest of nature and her hardships, will free men from slavery.

It is planned, Washington says, to convert millions of acres of unproductive land, worthless for farming, into a "hunter's paradise."

On the millions of acres wild animals will be encouraged to raise their families, that noble white men may have the pleasure of shooting them.

Civilization does progress, but slowly, when the richest and an allegedly highly intellectual race plans an earthly paradise for killing, imitating the red Indians' heavenly hunting ground.

Wise ones tell President Roosevelt: "You can't expect prosperity until you balance the budget."

What is the magic in balancing the budget? What is balancing the budget? Do individuals always balance their budgets at times of emergency?

Must the government, trying to build prosperity at a cost of billions, spend no more than it takes in?

The way to solve railroad problems, serious in the United States, with railroad trains empty, automobile, motor trucks taking their business, is to do something.

In Germany, where stream-lined trains were built and run, as they were in Switzerland, long before anybody built one here, the director of the Reich railways announces "stream-line, Diesel-powered freight engines, running at 80 miles an hour."

France considers modification of her method of fixing the price of wheat. This country endeavors to increase wheat prices, and the farmers' income, by paying farmers not to plant so much.

In London, Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, tells the house of commons that British troops will not be used to help the French maintain order in the Saar, soon to decide whether it wants to be German or French.

The British want their dear continental friends to be as happy as possible, but in this decision about the Saar they say to France: "If you get into a fight with Germany you may have that fight all to yourself, with our best wishes for both sides thrown in."

Shake-Up in Policies

Washington.—Administration plans and policies appear to be undergoing a shaking down process. Safely passing the elections and with no need to make moves solely to please particular segments of voters the President appears to have started getting rid of duplication in the various alphabetical agencies of the government.

Speakership Fight

With the time only a month away for selection by the Democrats of their candidate for speaker of the house—selection that means election—the speakership fight is attracting much attention.

May Export Currency

Along with the establishment of the loan policy committee, there came an order from the treasury, bearing Mr. Roosevelt's approval, which once again allows unrestricted exports of currency, but not gold or silver metal.

Borah Criticizes

The responsibility which the administration carries in having such complete control of governmental machinery has its thorny cushion despite the ability to muster a two-thirds majority in both the house and the senate.

because there are half a hundred senators and representatives who are avidly pursuing the inflation phantom. They think this will solve the country's economic problems and they can be counted on to bear down with their ideas when the forum of congress again is opened to them.

Whatever these men may do, it is pointed out now, Mr. Roosevelt would be only complicating his own problems by allowing free interchange of currency at this time if he had any thought in mind of changing the dollar value in the not too distant future.

Although, as I said, the fight is wide open there are certain straws that tend to show the way the wind is blowing.

For example, Representative Byrnes of Tennessee, the Democratic leader while the late Mr. Rainey was speaker, normally would be expected to be chosen as speaker.

There is a row brewing between the North and the South. Northern Democrats resent what they regard as southern domination of the house.

In this combination the names of Representatives Rayburn of Texas and McCormack of Massachusetts, figure most prominently. However, this arrangement has vulnerable spots because there are many other southern Democrats who feel they are entitled to consideration, and they may not be satisfied with such a combination.

On top of all this is a statement from White House quarters that the President will remain aloof. Mr. Roosevelt considers the speakership fight solely a house matter, but it must be added that the President's pronouncement has not deterred some of his satellites.

The responsibility which the administration carries in having such complete control of governmental machinery has its thorny cushion despite the ability to muster a two-thirds majority in both the house and the senate.

The first harpoon which the Idaho senator has thrown was directed at the relief policies pressed through and administered by professional relievers.

Mr. Borah says there is an enormous amount of waste in connection with the relief activities. He says there are thousands of superfluous people being maintained out of relief funds under the guise of distributing the money.

Mr. Borah has inaugurated, by announcement of employment plans and transfer of unemployed from relief rolls to work rolls, a series of moves several weeks ago.

Lesson for December 2 THE CHRISTIAN AS A WITNESS

LESSON TEXT—I Thessalonians 1:1-10

GOLDEN TEXT—But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.—Acts 1:8

PRIMARY TOPIC—Sharing our Stories of Jesus. JUNIOR TOPIC—Sharing the Good News of Jesus. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Good News We Have to Tell. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Witnessing for Christ.

I. Paul's Greeting (v. 1). In this salutation Paul associates with himself Silas and Timothy. Silas was with him at the founding of the church, and Timothy was the special messenger sent unto them, upon whose report this letter is based (3:1, 2).

In this epistle he sets forth the peculiar position of the safety of the church. It is "in God the Father and in the Lord Jesus Christ." Knowledge of the absolute security of the believer in Christ makes him courageous to meet trials and opposition. Two features characterize this greeting: "Grace be unto you and peace." "Grace" expresses God's attitude toward them; "peace," the resultant experience in their lives.

II. Paul's Thanksgiving (vv. 2, 3). This thanksgiving issues from the remembrance of three outstanding facts concerning the Thessalonians, which constitute the foundation facts of normal Christian experience.

1. "Work of Faith." This relates to their belief of the gospel which brought them into living relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ, and also to their Christian activity growing out of their faith. Jesus Christ said in answer to the question "What must we do that we may work the works of God?" "This is the work of God that ye believe on him whom he hath sent" (John 6:28, 29).

2. "Labor of Love." This means the spirit by which they performed their Christian duties. It was the expression of the new law of life issuing from the enthronement of Jesus Christ in their hearts.

3. "Patience of Hope." This refers to the strength of their endurance growing out of their expectation of the speedy return of the Lord. The transcendent theme of Paul's preaching at Thessalonica was the second coming of Christ (Acts 17:7).

III. The Reasons for Paul's Thanksgiving (vv. 4-7). 1. Their election of God (vv. 4, 5). Their reception of the gospel was the unmistakable evidence of their divine selection. The gospel came in power and in the Holy Spirit. They did not receive the gospel in mere theory, but in the power of the Holy Ghost. Where it is received, the consequent life will manifest itself.

2. They received Paul as a messenger of God (v. 6). The reception of the gospel is largely determined by the kind of preacher. Its reality will be detected in the life of the messenger.

3. The changed life of the Thessalonians (v. 7). They "became followers"—that is, their lives were changed by the power of the gospel. The order in Christian experience is the reception of the gospel, the changed life, and then the example. The Thessalonians became examples to all in Macedonia.

IV. The Missionary Activity of the Thessalonians (v. 8). Their experience of the life of Jesus Christ was so real to them that they at once became missionaries. The word of the Lord was so widely and effectively sounded forth that when the apostles returned they needed "not to speak anything." This is as it should be when the gospel is received in the power of the Holy Ghost. The gospel is good news. Good news cannot be kept to oneself; it must be given out.

V. The Results of Paul's Preaching (vv. 9, 10). 1. They turned from idols (v. 9). Thessalonica was a city largely given up to idolatry. Statues were to be seen almost everywhere. The fruits of Paul's preaching were the changed lives of the people. They turned away from idols and gathered together around Jesus Christ in the church. The idol temples were deserted and the churches filled.

2. Awaiting the coming of Jesus Christ (v. 10). Their faith was so real that they looked for the personal return of the Lord Jesus Christ to the earth. The second coming of Christ was a real tenet of faith of the early church. It is so now wherever the gospel is really preached. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is (I John 3:3).

3. Good conscience (v. 10). Paul's preaching led to a good conscience. The people were purified and their lives were changed. The fruits of Paul's preaching were the changed lives of the people. They turned away from idols and gathered together around Jesus Christ in the church. The idol temples were deserted and the churches filled.

4. Awaiting the coming of Jesus Christ (v. 10). Their faith was so real that they looked for the personal return of the Lord Jesus Christ to the earth. The second coming of Christ was a real tenet of faith of the early church. It is so now wherever the gospel is really preached. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is (I John 3:3).

5. Good conscience (v. 10). Paul's preaching led to a good conscience. The people were purified and their lives were changed. The fruits of Paul's preaching were the changed lives of the people. They turned away from idols and gathered together around Jesus Christ in the church. The idol temples were deserted and the churches filled.

CHAPTER I

The secret itself was still safe. It was clear that the public could not yet have learned it. No; the nature of the tremendous and terrific discovery remained locked in the breasts of the men who had made it.

But the fact that there was a secret, of incomparable importance, was out.

David Ransdell received plenty of proof of it, as he stood at the Europa's rail, and the radiograms from shore were brought to him.

The first, arriving less than an hour ago, offered him one thousand dollars for first and exclusive information—to be withheld from all others for twelve hours—of what he carried in his black box.

Within ten minutes the offer had jumped to five thousand dollars, made by another paper. Plainly, the knowledge that there was a secret of utmost importance had spread swiftly!

The thrilling and all-absorbing fact of it was that David Ransdell himself did not know what he carried which could become of such amazing concern. He was merely the courier who transported and guarded the secret.

Cole Hendron in New York—Dr. Cole Hendron, the physicist—could make it out. Indeed, he could determine it more completely than any other man alive. That was why Dave Ransdell, from South Africa, was bound for New York; he was bringing the box to Cole Hendron, who, after he had satisfied himself of the significance of its contents, would take the courier into his confidence.

Dave gripped the rail with aggravated impatience for arrival in the city. He wondered, but with secondary interest only, under the circumstances, what it would be like in America. It was the native land of his mother; but Dave had never so much as seen its shores before.

He had been summoned at night to the great mansion of Lord Rhondin, near Capetown. Lord Rhondin himself, a big, calm, practical-minded man, received him; and with Lord Rhondin was a tall, wiry man of forty-odd, with a quick and nervous manner.

"Professor Bronson," Lord Rhondin said, introducing Ransdell. "The astronomer?" Dave asked as they shook hands. "Exactly," said Lord Rhondin. Bronson did not speak at all then, or for several minutes. He merely grasped Dave's hand with nervous tightness and stared at him while he was thinking, patiently, of something else—something, Dave guessed, which recently had allowed him too little sleep.

"Sit down," Lord Rhondin bade. They were in a big, secluded study given to trophies of the hunt, and skins covered the floor. A buffalo and elephant skin were seen from the wall.

discovery has been made—a discovery which, if confirmed in all details, is of incomparable consequence. I tell you that at the outset, Ransdell, because I must refrain for the present from telling you anything else about it.

Dave felt his skin prickling with a strange, excited awe. There was no doubt that this man—Lord Rhondin, industrialist, financier and conspicuous patron of science—thoroughly believed what he said; behind the eyes which looked at Dave Ransdell was awe at knowledge which he dared not reveal. But Dave asked boldly, "Why?"

"Why can't I tell you?" Lord Rhondin repeated, and looked at Bronson. "Why not tell him?" Bronson asked.

But Rhondin went abruptly to business: "We asked leave for you, Ransdell, because I have heard you are a particularly reliable man. It is essential that material connected with the discovery be delivered in New York city at the earliest practicable moment. You are both an expert pilot who can make the best speed, and probably true; but so very much is involved that it would be most disastrous if even a rumor of what we believe we have discovered were given out. For that reason, among others, we cannot confide it even to you; but we must charge you personally to convey this box to Doctor Hendron, who is the scientific consultant of the Universal Electric and Power corporation in New York. He is now in Pasadena, but will be in New York upon your arrival. Time is vital—the greatest speed, that is, consistent with reasonable safety. You should reach Doctor Hendron not later than a week from Monday. You may return, then, if you wish. On the other hand"—he paused as crowded considerations heaped in his mind—"you may be indifferent as to where you are."

"On the earth," added Professor Bronson. "Of course—on the earth," Lord Rhondin accepted.

"I would go myself, Ransdell, you understand," Bronson then proceeded. "But my place, for the present, certainly is here. I mean, of course, at the observatory. . . . It is possible, Ransdell, in spite of precautions which have been taken, that some word of the Bronson discovery may get out. Your errand may be suspected. If it is, you know nothing—nothing, you understand? You must answer no inquiry from any source. None—none whatever!"

Until now, nothing had happened to recall these emphatic cautions; but now, something was out. A boy was approaching with another radio.

"Twenty thousand dollars in cash paid to you if you grant first and exclusive interview regarding the Bronson discovery to this paper."

It was signed by the man who, an hour ago, had opened the bidding with one thousand dollars.

Dave crumpled it and tossed it overboard. If the man who sent it had been in that trophy-room with Bronson and Lord Rhondin, he would have realized that the matter on their minds completely transcended any monetary consideration.

The evening in New York was warm. On the high terrace of the Hendron apartment Eve found that her search for a breath of fresh air was fruitless. For a moment she gazed into the mist and monotone that was Manhattan, and then stared over the city toward the channels to the sea.

"Suppose those lights are the Europa?" she asked Tony. "It left quarantine before seven; it's somewhere there," Tony said patiently. "Let's not go back in."

Eve leaned against the balustrade and looked down at the lights; and he, desirous of much more, bent jealously beside her. Tony laid his hand possessively on Eve's. She turned her hand, lessening subtly the possessiveness of his, and said, "You can kiss me. I like to be kissed. But don't propose."

"Why not? . . . See here, Eve, I'm through with Christmas kisses with you."

"You Can Kiss Me. I Like to Be Kissed. But Don't Propose." "Why Not? . . . See Here, Eve, I'm Through With Christmas Kisses With You."

you are dependable. If you will take it, I will put the material in your care; and—can you start tonight?"

"Yes, sir. But—what sort of material? I must ask, if I am to fly with it?"

"Client's glass—photographic plates." "How many of them?"

Lord Rhondin threw back a leopard skin which had covered a large black traveling case. "They are packed, carefully, in this. I will tell you this much more, which you may guess, from Professor Bronson's presence. They are photographic plates taken by the greatest telescopes in South Africa, of regions of the southern sky which are never visible in the northern hemisphere. You are to take them to Dr. Cole Hendron in New York city, and deliver them personally to him and to no one else. I would tell you more about this unusual errand, Ransdell, if the implications of these plates were absolutely certain."

Professor Bronson started, and checked himself before he went on; and Lord Rhondin went on: "Implications, as you may say, are

He put his hand on her shoulder, and turned her away from the panorama of the city.

"Is there some real trouble, Eve?" he inquired gently.

"No; there's no trouble, Tony."

"Then there's somebody else ahead of me—is there? Somebody perhaps in Pasadena?"

"Nobody in Pasadena—or anywhere else, Tony."

"Then what is it, tonight? What's changed you?"

"You're not listening to me even now. You're thinking instead."

"What do you want me to do?" "Feel!"

"Oh, I can do that, too."

"I know, then why don't you—and stop thinking?"

"Wait! Not now, Tony. . . . Do you suppose that's the Europa?"

"Why do you care? See here, Eve, is there anything in that newspaper story your father and you have been denying all afternoon—that something unusual is up between all the big scientific leaders?"

"There's always something up, in science," Eve evaded. . . .

The doors were flung wide open. In the drawing room a half dozen people continued to dance. Another group surrounded the punch bowl. Some one stepped out and asked Eve to dance, and she went in with him.

Tony Drake wandered in from the terrace.

An arm encircled his broad shoulders. "Hello, Tony. Say—give me the low-down on what she, the market to h— today."

Tony frowned; his eyes were following Eve. "Why do you compliment me with thinking I may know?"

"It's something happened in Africa, I hear. Anyway, the African cables were carrying it. But what could happen down there to shoot h— out of us this way? Another discovery of gold? A mountain of gold that would make gold so cheap it would unsettle everything?"

"Cheap gold would make stocks dear—not send them down," Tony objected.

"Sure; it can't be that. But what could happen in South Africa that—"

Tony returned alone to the terrace. His senses were swept by intimate thoughts of Eve: A seductive perfume. Gold lights in her red-brown hair. Dark eyes. The sweep of a forehead behind which, in rare company, a woman's instincts and tendernesses dwelt with a mind ordinarily as honest and unevanescent as a man's. All the tremendous insignificances that have meaning to a man possessed by the woman he loves.

He stood spellbound, staring through the night. Anthony Drake was an athlete—that would have been the second observation another man would have made of him. The first, that he owned that uncounterfeitable trait which goes with what we call good birth and breeding, and generations of the like before him.

With this he had the physical sureness and the gestures of suppressed power which are the result of training in sports. He had the slender waist of a boxer, with the shoulders of a discus thrower. His clothes always seemed frail in comparison with his physique.

He also had intelligence. His, university companions considered it a trivial side issue when he was graduated from Harvard with a magna cum laude; but the conservative investment house with which he afterward became affiliated appreciated the adjunct of brains to a personality so compelling. His head was large and square, and it required his big physique to give that head proportion. He was blue-eyed, sandy-haired. He possessed a remarkably deep voice.

He was entirely normal. His attainments beyond the average were not unusual. He belonged more or less to that type of young American business man upon whom the older generation places its hope and trust. Eve was really a much more remarkable human being—not on account of her beauty, but because of her intellectual brilliance, and her unique training from her father.

Yet Eve was not the sort who preferred "intellectual" men; intellectualism, as such, immensely bored her. She liked the outright and vigorous and "normal." She liked Tony Drake; and Tony, knowing this, was more than baffled by her attitude tonight. He believed her when she told him that her tantalizing abstraction was not because of another man. Then, what was its cause?

Tony was drawn from his reverie by the appearance of Douglas Balcom, senior partner of his firm. His presence here surprised Tony. No reason why old Balcom should not drop in, if he pleased; but the rest of the guests were much younger.

"Not missing anything? Old Gentleman—didn't I give you a dime just now in the High Street? Tramp—Yes, sir; I've got a branch office there."

Two-Piece Frock in Smart Design

PATTERN 2030 In this two-piece frock youth is delightfully served. Make it of one of the new fabric prints which look like wool, or of a smart sheer woolen. It suggests a suit in its trim lines and neat tailored finish. The yoke extends down the front to the edge of the jacket in a vest effect from under which a belt partly encircles the waistline. The bow at the neck is extremely attractive in velvet. Think of it in rust color with the frock in two shades of green. ## Encouragement

At an English theater they were playing "The Forty Thieves," and as the company numbered only eight, the entry of the robbers into the cave was achieved by their passing out at the back of the stage and entering again at the front.

Unfortunately one of the robbers walked with a limp, and when he had entered five times a voice from the gallery cried: "Stick it, Hoppy; last lap!"

The Association is composed of 84 members and shows an annual seeded acreage of about 3,600 acres. The wheat growers realized about $16,000 the past year for having participated with the government in surplus adjustment and will receive a like amount this year and the next. Wheat growers were paid adjustment benefits for three years in return for the agreement to curtail production not more than 25 per cent any year. They actually reduced 15 per cent from the 3 year base period last season and are required to reduce only 10 per cent the coming year.

Justification or surplus control in this commodity may be seen in the recent World Wheat Conference in which it was shown that Canada, Argentina, Australia, Russia, and the United States all wanted to find some one to whom they might sell surplus wheat. If all the large nations have a surplus, then it behooves some of them, it not all of them, to sharply curtail production. France came near disrupting the conference by demanding that she be allowed to export some 200,000,000 bushels. Heretofore she has kept her wheat but a surplus has now accumulated.

When unaccounted stores of wheat were discovered coming to market from Argentina, the wheat market in the United States dropped this past week.

Thus again the advantages of the AAA programs are evident and based upon broad thinking policies of controlled production.

SAVING TOMATOES

Many persons have asked if there is any partical way to keep tomatoes in the fresh state.

If green tomatoes are cut with about one-half inch stem left on them, then cover with dry sand they will keep from 40 to 60 days. Care should be taken not to let any one touch the other as that may cause them to rot.

This will save tomatoes for Christmas and will cause the most even ripening known.

Six Women Will Serve In House

The victory of Mrs. Virginia Jenckes, democrat, over Fred Purnell, republican, in Indiana, gives the house of representatives six women members next session.

Last session started with the same number, but Mrs. Marian Clarke, who filled out her late husband's term and did not stand for reelection, swelled the list to seven.

One new female democrat will be on the scene—Mrs. Caroline O'Day, New York for whom Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt campaigned. One former woman democrat will be missing, Mrs. Kathryn O'Loughlin McCarthy, defeated in Kansas.

Re-elected were democrats Mary T. Norton, New Jersey, and Isabella Greenway, Arizona; republicans Florence P. Kahn, of California, and Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts

WITH BAIRD BAPTIST

Good reports from last Sunday service. Brother Respass preached a good sermon and the people enjoyed it greatly, is what they say. Thank you Brother Ross, come again.

It was a real good time I had at Bayers, though we did not have the results we desired. They are a great and appreciative folks, and in spite of rain, both weeks, we had a good and profitable meeting.

I am glad to be back home and will enjoy meeting a large crowd at the church Sunday. Come for both services. I am giving a very special invitation to all the men to come and meet with us in our new class room for the first time Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Our Men's Bible Class. We will make it interesting and profitable for you if you will come.

Thanksgiving service in an all day meeting Thursday was observed by the Baptist church at old Content in Runkell's county and they were kind enough to invite me to preach for them at 11:00 o'clock. It is quite a great pleasure to me to accept and especially at this time with my old friend, also I like to eat occasionally and really I am fond of preaching so such a day is very much to my liking.

Emergency Crop And Feed Loans

"Stockmen in drouth areas who cannot obtain credit from other sources will continue to be eligible for emergency feed loans for their foundation herds this winter, provided they keep their credit in good standing and show their intention of repaying the loans," W. I. Myers, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration said.

"The Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Offices," Governor Myers said, "have made loans in the primary drouth areas without requiring chattel mortgages in order to make funds available quickly to save hundreds of thousands of cattle and other stock, but they have done so with every exception that the money will be repaid."

"The Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Division of the Farm Credit Administration has dealt leniently with such borrowers, but each loan case has been carefully inspected. Farmers have shown their good faith by co-operating and not attempting to get loans where they were not needed, but of course we cannot expect credit will continue to be available unless borrowers keep the loans in good standing and show their intention of paying debts."

"The Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Offices are the only sources of these unsecured emergency feed loans. They are disbursed from a part of the drouth appropriation approved Jun 19, 1934, and are not made through any of the permanent credit institutions under the Farm Credit Administration.

"Up to November 1," Governor Myers continued, "over 191,000 farmers and stockmen obtained these initial emergency loans to feed their stock and about 134,000 supplemental advances have been made, for a total of $21,500,000, out of the allocation of $96,785,000 for such purposes. On an average about $1,250,000 a week is being loaned to feed cattle and other stock, and during the winter additional credit will be available as needed if the borrowers keep their credit good and show their intention of paying the debts."

When Worlds Collide

Edwin Belmer and Philip Wylie tell the most unusual story that has appeared in years and we have been fortunate enough to secure it for publication in these columns.

IF YOU lived in the twilight of doom...if you had to choose between two years with the one you loved and life...if you could escape, but only to stand again at the dawn of time...friends gone, home gone, everything gone save the food you ate, the air you breathed and the supreme adventure of being alive...
What Would YOU Do?

Read the story of a man and a woman who faced this choice... you will not want to miss any of it.

First Chapter of "When Worlds Collide" appears in this issue of The Star.

Housewife's Idea Box

When Doing Fine Sewing

When doing fine sewing your hands must be kept absolutely free from perspiration, but some women find this difficult. In order to be sure that they stay dry and clean, make a solution of alum and water. Dip your hands into this before starting to sew. Dry them thoroughly and you will have no trouble in keeping them dry.

Typed Messages by Radio

Glenn Watson of Detroit and Walter Lemmon of New York have perfected a machine, known as a Watsonograph, which will send typed messages by radio. As each key on the machine, which resembles an ordinary typewriter, is pressed it sends out a cryptic flash over a five-meter wave length, which operates a corresponding key on a similar machine equipped for receiving. Automatic coding and decoding is also incorporated on the device, this equipment scrambling the message so that only the machine for which it is intended can unscramble the information. To prevent eavesdropping by a clever cryptographer, the code may be changed at will by simply throwing a switch.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Crime Laboratory Uses New Methods

Test Tubes and Microscopes Trace Criminals.

Washington.—Test tubes and microscopes, no less than machine guns and high powered rifles, are the government's weapons in its relentless campaign against crime.

In a suite in the new Justice department building, Director J. Edgar Hoover of the division of investigation has established one of the world's most complete and modern crime laboratories.

Scientists in those quiet rooms, working over bits of hair, scratched bullets or fragments of paper, develop many of the clues that enable armed federal agents in the field to go after criminals with the certainty they are getting the right man.

It was a laboratory expert, Charles Appel, who gave important evidence in the preliminary hearing of Bruno Hauptmann, Lindbergh kidnap-murder suspect. Appel analyzed Hauptmann's handwriting and held it identical with that in the ransom notes.

Typewriting is Traced. If a criminal seeks to protect himself by using a typewriter, he is scarcely less safe. On file in the laboratory are specimens of writing made on every known make and model of machine. In each are minute variations that stand out like a sore thumb—to the experts.

Messages written with "secret" ink are secret no longer when the laboratory gets them. An ultra-violet light brings out most hidden writing in an instant and, if it won't, chemicals will.

Thousands of watermarks are on file, to aid in tracing the kind and source of paper used in ransom notes, extortion threats or other documents bearing on a crime. The laboratory is assembling specimens of the tracks made by all known kinds of automobile tires.

Hair Carefully Studied. A bit of hair found at the scene of a crime may lead to important evidence. With a microscope and specimen of hair, the expert can tell whether the hair fell out, was pulled out or cut off; the race and approximate age of the person from whom it came. From the tiny oil glands at the roots they can even make a good guess as to whether the person was fat or lean.

"Some people even claim they determine sex, height and other characteristics of a person from a sample of hair," explains Chief L. C. Schildren of the division's identification unit, "but we don't think you can go quite that far."

More than one criminal has been convicted because of the fact that every gun makes minutely different scratches on bullets fired through it. Given the bullet used in a crime and a suspected gun the ballistics expert can determine quickly if that gun actually was used.

The expert fires a shot through the gun. The two bullets are placed under a double microscope, connected by a single eye piece. If minute scratches blend into a single image it is certain that the two bullets came from the same weapon.

White Enamel

Charm, cheer and restfulness are provided by white and ivory enamel on woodwork. The light rays are radiated and a soothing and restful influence imparted. These two finishes also render a simple dignity indicative of good taste, and harmonize unusually well with drapes and furniture of any color.

Hold Those Horses

Rockford, Ill.—Still on the city's statutes, aldermen discovered, is a law which provides a $25 fine for a person who places a sign on the street which might frighten horses.

School Chalk Color Causes Eye Strain

Lincoln, Neb.—It's not bad writing, but the color of the chalk used on school-room blackboards that causes eye strain of pupils. Addressing the Southeastern Nebraska Optometrists' association here, Dr. Leo G. Miller said that yellow chalk on the blackboard is much easier to see, causes less eye strain, requires letters only two-thirds to three-quarters the size of those in white chalk.

THE RIGHT TO LIVE

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

The universal demand is "the right to live." Whatever is necessary in order to achieve that end, man claims as his inalienable possession. When the privilege of earning one's daily bread is taken away, something mighty serious is bound to occur. When men become hungry, not moderately but tragically hungry, they are not normal. The same spirit grips them as when the wild beasts kill as well as risk all sorts of hazards in order to obtain food for their offspring. The innate right to live has been the cause of nearly all the revolutions in history. When the so-called upper classes claim the privilege of "let him get who can," the submerged population claim the same right, and then we have war.

Heads Auxiliary

Mrs. A. C. Carlson of Willmar, Minn., who was elected national president of the American Legion auxiliary at the annual convention in Miami.

Where economic restlessness exists, there is a strong undercurrent frequently dangerous and abnormal which, regardless of all consequences, claims the right to have its daily bread.

It is folly to attempt to stifle this inner urge. The English queen may have decreed that all unemployed persons either find work on a certain day or go to prison, but that does not always settle it. Prison bars may limit the activities of the physical, but never yet silenced the power of the mental and spiritual forces. The Roman emperor murdered the martyrs, but the cause which led them to their death still lives, while Rome is only ancient history.

The whole world today is surcharged with a spirit of "the struggle to survive." The so-called dole generously distributed is in danger of being pressed too far, especially when it lowers the morale. Some persons are endeavoring to rise above it; especially that person who modestly insists upon your acceptance of an article offered for sale instead of keeping the money you offered as an act of charity. The supreme need of the day is the preservation of self-respect, thus avoiding the menace of a lower standard of those values which constitute one's right to live. When mutual confidence has been restored the problem of unemployment will be solved and men will have the privilege of earning their daily bread.

Guillotine a Trophy

Paris.—The guillotine which was used during the French revolution to behead 1,000 condemned nobles and bourgeois has been sold at auction here for $1,980.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

KEEPING children well shod is one of the problems of parents. Apart from the cost, which may be considerable, there is the still more important matter of suiting the shoe to the foot. Adults who have trouble with their feet realize that shoes have a great deal to do with it. A child cannot know about such things. What he wants is new shoes and some children are too easily satisfied. There are few things which please a little child's vanity more than to display on his feet a pair of new shoes. It is an event to be taken to the shoe store and have the sole attention of sales person and parent while various pairs of shoes are tried on, and discussed. Sometimes he feels rather out of it, although the shoes when purchased are to be worn by him, for conversation quite over his head will go on about the shoes, and why they do or do not fit. All the time he is conscious of the ones which he likes best, and often insists on having a hearing.

While it is a wise thing to buy children's shoes rather big for them, it is unwise to get them too large. The shoes will not support the foot in just the right places. The instep of the shoes may come too near the ball of the foot, and the width will permit the toes to rub against the inside of the shoe. Adults find that corns are made worse, if not actually caused, by wearing shoes that are too large, as well as those too small.

A Child's Foot.

The bones of a child's foot are still in a somewhat formative state, and they should not be forced into strained positions, lest they become slightly deformed, not enough to show, but enough to give trouble later on.

The matter of high and low heels is one that should be taken into account in misses' and adults' shoes. It is now recognized that not every foot is best fitted with low heels. Some feet need high heels. But the reverse is more likely to be true, as more feet need low-heeled shoes than high. However, one woman I knew had constant trouble with her feet and finally went to a famous orthopedic doctor. He put her into "sensible" high-heeled shoes and she found that her "sensible" shoes had never been the kind for her feet. Part of her trouble was immediately relieved by the higher heels. However a very small tapering heel which is sometimes excellent for a dancing shoe should not be for walking shoes. While regulation walking shoes do not have them, very often one sees adult, young persons especially, wearing them on the street. Trouble is in the offing for women who wear such heels at such a time. The type of shoe should suit its use.

Children's Studies

There are certain sure ways to get children to learn things. Teachers and parents who wish the best results in knowledge of those under their training do well to realize them. One is to arouse curiosity about the thing. The other is to awaken interest in a subject. These ways have one thing in common. They focus attention on the thing or things of importance. It is of small value to prod a child's mind. He has other things to think about besides those parents and teachers want him to consider. A child's mind is not inactive. It may be miles away from the subject that is in the mind of the instructor, but there is too much that is new and strange in the world in which the child finds himself for him to be unresponsive to them. The young mind needs direction rather than stimulation.

Twin Sweater Set

The inevitable twin sweater set is a complement of tweeds. This set is of the softest imported dark wool in a dark hunter's green. Hand-sewn peccary gloves—another tweed requisite.

Amateur Ornithologist Saw Bird Kill Itself

Wellsburg, W. Va.—An amateur ornithologist here claims to have seen a quail commit suicide.

Harry T. Bowman, a trolley-car conductor, went groundhog hunting on his day off and came back with a dead quail and a strange story.

"I was coming over a small knoll when I saw the bird," Bowman told his friends. "It would fly to the top of a cliff, then fly straight down, hitting its head on a rock."

"The bird repeated the procedure several times, and on the fourth trial, died of a broken neck."

Except for a small blister on the back of the bird's neck, the quail was plump and apparently well. Bowman maintains that the suffering caused by the blister led the bird to kill itself.

Naval Radio Stations Save Nation $3,300,000

Washington.—Naval radio stations saved the government more than $3,300,000 in the last year.

More than half the saving, according to the Navy department, was on communications handled for departments other than the navy.

Thirty-six shore radio stations and 43 radio direction-finding stations are maintained by the navy, at a total cost of $795,684.43. It was said that during the last fiscal year naval communications have been operated at less cost and with fewer men than ever before.

Making Life Masks of Indians

William H. Egberts, chief preparator in anthropology for the National museum in Washington, is now engaged in developing life masks of the Blackfoot, as he is surrounded by unfinished products of his craft.

Fought by Giants

Dick Terry already is revamping the New York Giants for the next season. It is announced that Dick Bartell (above), star shortstop of the Phillies, has been acquired in return for four players and an unnamed sum in cash. The four traded are John Ryan, Johnny Vergez, George Watkins and John Puzello.

Furs Are Gorgeous This Winter

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

NO MATTER how lavishly a coat or a suit or a dress be trimmed with fur this season, according to the present ways of fashion, it is not too lavishly furred. The same is true of the new separate fur pieces and "sets" which include muffs, the more sumptuous and the more spectacular the better do they interpret the latest style trends.

The big theme among furriers this season is capes—cares that are made of furs so gorgeous and grand they look worth a king's ransom. To illustrate, see the cape centered in the picture. This luxurious silver fox cape is semi-circular in shape, fastens on the left shoulder and has four tails falling to the back. The beauty of capes such as this is that they can be worn with different costumes, imparting an air of distinction wherever they go. Of course, we do not have to call attention to the attractive evening gloves which this lady is wearing, for no doubt they registered at first glance. They are of white suede, shirred in an openwork pattern as you see.

The separate cape theme is by no means confined to evening fashions; on the contrary, the newest thing going in the way of a fur piece is the fur cape which can be worn with either the cloth coat or the dress, if you prefer, which is made of a wintry good-looking woolen. The idea is conveyed in the stunning outfit to the right in the group. Here is something practical and smart. The coat of this superb Russian lynx which forms the cape, blends in with the tone of the cloth to perfection. A particularly likable feature of this handsome cape is that while it is really a separate piece, it looks as if it were really an applied trimming. When you stop to think of it, what a worthwhile possession a separate fur cape such as this is—wear it with anything, dress, coat or suit. This young woman's hat, if you are wanting to know, is a brown antelope felt trimmed with leather. The most important bit of news in regard to this hat is that it has an embossed monogram at one side of the crown just over the right eye. It is monogrammed because the fashionable thing to do is to monogram most everything this season.

Mademoiselle sitting so placidly in the picture has on one of those sleek, patrician looking full-length gray kid-skin coats which are so beautifully slenderizing. The model shown has a double sailor collar (turn it up or down) which is youthful in line and exceedingly flattering. The sleeves are full below the elbow, which is a characteristic feature of many of the newest coats. The black felt sombrero is edged and banded with black wool.

If you are having a suit tailored, let it reflect Russian inspiration in that its lining-like coat be bordered with fur all around, even up the front or side-front fastening. There should be an upstanding collar fencing the throat. A Cossack turban of matching fur with a muff of the same are essential to complete the picture.

The three-quarter coat, all of fur, with wide belt across the front and full peasant sleeves, is also a favorite. Other fur style notes point to the return of gray squirrel into favor, also borders of tawny, showy furs around hemlines or bandings of flat furs such as caracul or nutria. A black cloth Cossack outfit with handings, tall turban and muff of black caracul, is chic

CHAIR BACK AND ARM REST DESIGN

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

"Tulip" Chair Back and Arm Rests; Three-Piece Set in Filet Crochet.

Chair backs and arm rests in crochet have been used for generations and are today again very popular for practical and decorative purposes.

How much more inviting is a chair that has this added personal touch and in a design that stands out clearly on a dark background.

This set in a conventional tulip design is easy work even for the inexperienced. The large filet stitch being used makes the work interesting, and a surprisingly short time is required to finish the set. It is an attractive addition to your living room or a valued gift for a friend.

The chair back measures 10 by 14 inches, the arm rests 6 by 10 inches if crocheted with a fairly tight stitch.

A looser stitch will produce a larger size. This package, No. 705, contains sufficient cream-colored Mountain Craft Crochet Cotton to complete this three-piece set, also crochet hook. Instructions are included, also a black and white diagram of the design so the meshes may be easily counted.

Write our crochet department, enclosing 40 cents for this complete package, No. 705, which contains sufficient thread to make this beautiful set, or send 10 cents for the instructions and diagram only.

Address—Home Craft Co.—Dep't. B, Nineteenth and St. Louis Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Enclose a stamped addressed envelope when writing for any information.

Perfume and Beauty

There are tricks in the way you use perfume. To achieve a mystifying effect of haunting fragrance, spray it only on the hem of your skirt. Or perfume your hair, or dab a drop on each wrist, on your throat and the lobes of your ears. Perhaps you prefer to spray your lingerie with toilet water or to get your effect solely by using carefully chosen sachets. Experiment cautiously, and use too little rather than too much. Faint sweetness charms the imagination; too clamorous an odor invites resistance. Know your perfumes, use them with art, and they will work enchantment.—Ruth Murfin in Good Housekeeping.

GUNSTON MANOR CLASSED AMONG WORLD'S FINEST

Within a radius of five miles about Mount Vernon, which was land owned either by Washington or his friends, many landmarks have been restored and now form a new frame for the home of our first President. Among Mount Vernon's most historical neighbors is Gunston hall. This noted house can be reached from Mount Vernon by the Richmond road in about twenty minutes, but the distance by river, the route often taken by the Washingtons, is not more than five miles.

Of the house there, Paul Kester, brother of Vaughan Kester, who wrote "The Prodigal Judge" while the two were living at Gunston, says "It is easily one of the great houses of the world and its glory has not departed." Beautiful architecturally and historically interesting as the house is, it is the garden which spells magic for the visitor.

The view of the river and Maryland shore is inexpressibly lovely as one sits in a pergola at the end of the garden and sees that vast panorama of hills and water. It is said that the Mount Vernon boxwood was slipped from that of Gunston hall and it may readily be, for though the present house was not built until 1758 it took the place of an earlier one built in 1725.

The house was the manor of the vast Mason plantation, larger than that of Mount Vernon with its farms.

It remained in the hands of the Mason family until the Civil war, a longer period of tenure than Mount Vernon in the Washington family.

Washington's diaries make constant reference to visits and dinners between his own and the Mason family.

THREE NEW GOWNS NOVEL TO EXTREME

Three dresses Parisiennes like... One from Mirande called "Pour Plaire," which, interpreted, means "to please," and it should, for it is a dinner frock in black velvet with the lower portion of the bulbous sleeves made of bright blue velvet. It has a belt of the bright blue velvet, too, and the neckline is shaped something like a stirrup, round in the back and squared off in the front.

The second model is by Rosevienne and named "Satinco," after the novel new fabric of which it is made, combining satin with a mat surface. It is an afternoon dress of flame-colored satin combined with incrustated diagonal bands of the reverse side of the satin which is mat.

The third item is from Irnone, who has called it "Ciros." It is a coat in brown wool trimmed with frosted brown lamb as collar and cuffs. Both collar and cuffs are small and discreet, and the coat has a tailored look about it at first glance, but on second glance you see it is also a semi-dress coat.

Trains Will Be in Vogue This Winter, Says Paris

Trains will be in vogue this winter. Some have a long panel that starts at the waistline at the back; others feature a Watteau pleat or court mantle effect at the back.

Worth shows trains with a long flared volant that develops from the back of the dress. Maggy Rouff has very formal dresses with a wing effect that is used for a train. Augustabernard obtains effects by several shirred volants that are continued down to the ground in irregular effects.

Parchment for Buttons

Thick parchment made up into odd buttons add to the long line of novelties being launched this year. They are available curled up on the edges in ancient scrolls or just slightly bent of pearl brittle.

NEW HIGH TURBANS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Hats have gone frankly Russian. Here is one of the high turbans which is distinctly of Russian influence. It is fashioned of black hatters' plush. Not only have hats gone Russian, but costumes in the winter mode bespeak this influence in no uncertain terms. In every collection there is a predominance of Cossack tunics, Cossack turbans, wide-belted Russian effects, high military-looking collars and fur borderings galore.

Neckwear Is Feminine

There is a revival in delicate, truly feminine neckwear. Very smart are the new styles in sheer chiffon, combined with lace and trimmed with metal thread stitching, especially in feather stitching.

Fires on Morro Castle and at Nome, Alaska, Received Help of Red Cross Workers

A number of tragic and unusual disasters have recently called for Red Cross relief. Included in them have been a flood in Kentucky, following a series of cloudbursts in August; epidemics of disease which threatened several sections, including some caused by drought conditions. Red Cross workers found much to do for the survivors of the Morro Castle fire and for those engaged in rescue work; and Red Cross relief went by airplane to Alaska when the famous old gold camp, Nome, burned in September.
