Escorted by Gerald K. Smith, former adherent of Huey Long, and another man, the Californian fled from Washington to Baltimore. The committee decided to ask the house to cite him for contempt,

When he was questioned regarding large sums contributed by Townsend club members the physician said the contributors had faith in him and that we need millions to promote a movement of this kind and we will get

His testimony developed that Doctor Townsend, his brother, Walter Townsend, and Gilmour Young own the assets of the Townsend organization, estimated now at about $60,000, and that Townsend club members have no

CONSTITUTIONALITY of the ralltested before the District of Columbia Supreme court by attorneys representing the class 1 railroads and 289 lesser railway enterprises. The lawyers argued that the pension law and a tax law enacted at the same time are to-gether "substantially the same" as the "unconstitutional railroad retirement act of 1934." The two separate acts, one providing pensions and the other taxing the income of railroads and employees, were passed last year after the Supreme court ruled unconstitutional the 1934 law in which a levy and a pension system were combined. The government contended that the alleged relation between the two acts could not be proved, and that the railroads were suing, in effect, to enjoin collection of a tax. Such a suit, the government contended, was barred by federal law. The government further defended its railroad retirement system as an exercise of its constitutional power "to provide for the common de-

> SIX members of the Supreme court of the United States ruled that the Guffey act to control the bituminous ccal industry is invalid, and another of the New Deal experiments goes into the discard. This is the act which President Roosevelt urged congress to pass notwithstanding doubts of its constitutionality "however reasonable."

Five Justices-Sutherland, Butler, Van Devanter, McReynolds, and Roberts - joined in the majority opinion which invalidated the whole act. Justices Cardozo, Brandeis, and Stone joined in a dissenting opinion in which they upheld the act. Chief Justice Hughes held in a separate opinion that the act was constitutional with respect to the marketing provisions but unconstitutional with respect to the labor regulations.

Sen. Guffey

The court in the majority opinion held that there is no authority in the Constitution for the control of the coal industry attempted in the Guffey act. The act was not valid either under the commerce clause or the welfare

Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania, author of the act, lost little time in introducing a substitute measure, concentrating on price fixing and omitting the labor provisions which were outlawed by the Supreme court. John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, declared that organization would "join in requesting congress to enact the bill at once." He thought the measure would operate to maintain the equilibrium of the coal industry pending further study of stabilization of the industry."

A plea to all coal operators to support the new bill was made by Charles O'Nelll, legislative chairman of the National Conference of Bituminous Coal Producers.

Some congressional leaders, however, thought it unlikely that the new Guffey bill could be passed at this session.

HERBERT H. LEHMAN announced suddenly in Albany that he would not be a candidate for a third term as governor of New York, saying: "I feel the time has come leaders of the Democratic party, including President Roosevelt, National Chairman James A. Farley and Senators Wagner and Copeland undertook to persuade Mr. Lehman

when I may ask reand responsibilities of the governorship." But to run for reelection. They all agreed that his retirement would be a loss to the state and the party and that he should be "drafted."

The immediate political result of the governor's surprise action was that New York again became a doubtful state for the presidential campaign, in the minds of many politicians. The morale of Republican leaders in the state improved, and Democrats began speculating as to which of a group of five or more candidates could be groomed for the gubernatorial nomination this fall if Lehman persisted in his determination.

GENERAL rejoicing marked the in-augural of Dr. Miguel Mariano Gomez as president of Cuba-the first elected by the people since Gerardo Machado. The new executive, a lawyer and revolutionary leader who has twice been mayor of Havana, took the oath of office in the ball room of the president's mansion in the presence of 400 foreign and Cuban officials. The guns of Cabanas fortress across the harbor fired a twenty-one gun salute and on the signal all public buildings were illuminated and thousands of merrymakers began parading the streets. President Gomez appeared on a balcony and told the shouting throngs that he would do his best to maintain a constitutional government "by the Cubans and for the benefit and interest or all Cubans." In his first message to congress he assured the nation that personal rights would be respected. Among his policies he listed "ample tolerance to all ideas, ample guarantees for all rights and sufficient energy to maintain order and the necessary

NEITHER Great Britain nor France has any intention of paying the installments on the American war debt due June 15. And almost certainly all the other debtor nations except Finland will follow the example of the two big ones and again default. British Foreign Minister Eden talked about the debts with Leon Blum, who probably will be premier of France soon, but there was no indication that either one was planning to make a payment. Blum told the American club in Paris he hoped the war debt "misunderstanding" might be cleared up, but he was just trying to be pleasant to the people of both America and France without spending any money.

Of course the debtor nations would like to have the issue cleared up, for as long as they are in default they are subject to the restrictions of the Johnson act which makes it unlawful for any person in the United States to purchase or sell the bonds, securities or 6ther obligations of any foreign government or to make any loans to such a government while that government is in default in payment of its obligations to the United States.

BENITO MUSSOLINI advised Prince von Starhemberg of Austria not to start any domestic trouble because he was ousted from the cabinet by Chancellor Schuschnigg, and when the prince returned to Vienna the cabinet fixed things up neatly by decreeing that the country should have three fuehrers. Schuschnigg, the unofficial dictator, becomes national leader of the fatherland front; Eduard Baar von Barenfels, the new vice chancellor, is national commander of the front militia; and Starhemberg continues as sports leader and head of the Northerhood Protective association.

NATIONS that are especially hard up might consider the method said to be employed by Rumania. A Bucharest newspaper asserts that government employees have been paid largely in counterfelt money, vast quantities of bogus 100 lei pieces having been issued in sealed bags by the ministry of finance. That ministry then announced that the counterfeit coins would not be re-deemed and that persons who passed them would be prosecuted.

THE resettlement administration headed by Rexford Guy Tugwell was declared by the District of Columbia court of appeals to be "clearly unconstitutional delegation of power," in a case involving a model community project in Somerset county, New Jersey.

Going beyond the issue before them. the justices of the Appeals court called the entire relief appropriations act of 1935 into question. The act was invalid and hence RA was invalid, according to the court. Legally, however, none of the rest of the act will be affected by the decision because the other multitudinous activities of the New Deal under the appropriation were not before the court.

DR. ANTON PAVELIC, alleged leader of Ustashi, the Croatian terrorist organization, and accused as one of the "master minds" in the assassination of King Alexander of Jugoslavia in Marseilles, has been set free by the Italian authorities. Released with him was his lieutenant, Eugene Kvaternik. The two were arrested at Turin in October, 1934, soon after murder of Alexander, but the French authorities who were working on the case Dr. Pavelic were never permitted to question them and an Italian tribunal refused the request of the French government for their extradition to France for trial.

At that time Mr. Hull said his country has a binding faith in the fundamental principles of its traditional policy. This government adheres to the provisions of the treaties to which it is a party and continues to bespeak respect by all nations for the provisions of treaties solemply entered into for the purpose of facilitating and regulating, to reciprocal and common advantage.

At the State department it was said that the reaffirmation of support of the nine power pact does not mean that the administration will abandon its policy of declining to take the initiative in any attempt to curb Japan for violations of the pact. This was attempted by Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state in the Hoover administration, with the gain of nothing but Japanese ill will,

SYNOPSIS

Jeb Braddon, young and fantastically successful broker of Chicago, is infat-uated with Agnes Gleneith, beautiful daughter of a retired manufacturer. Rodney, a doctor, in love with Agnes, visits his brother, Jeb. Rod plans work at Rochester. Jeb suggests that he make a try for Agnes before leaving. In Rod there is a deeper, obstinate deceney and much sterner restraints than in Jeb. Agnes believes to be happy, a girl must bind herself entirely to a man and have adorable bables. Bod man and have adorable bables. Rod visits Agnes and tells her of his great desire, but realizes it can never be fulfilled. Agnes' mother is attempting to regain her husband's love. Bob Glen-eith arrives from New York. Agnes has disturbing doubts as to what at-tracts her father there.

There was no mark of deterioration upon him. It was plain that his impulses and his needs for closest, emotional contacts had not fled or even retreated. Plain too, it had been for some time, that they had failed him What was he "doing"? What had he done?

"Don't think about it," instincts warned her.

He swung about to her. "When I was in New York, I got out of something I got into awhile ago; and I made half a million. . . . Tell me what you want, little Light One."

"I don't want anything, Father," she answered before she realized how much she was disappointing him; for she was thinking once more of her mother. He would offer to buy her, too, anything she liked; but it was nothing that he need buy which Mother wanted from him. And this halfmillion additional in his hands would not help her. No; it would not help Mother at all.

"Bob?" they both heard her voice. "Bob? Are you home?"

She had come to the top of the stairs and was calling down.

Agnes saw him start slightly. "Hello, Tricle," he called back. "Walt up there. Coming!"

They screened their first meetings, these days, from their daughter. "Anybody for dinner tonight?" he inquired of Agnes, as he turned. "Jeb, I guess, Father." And she added: "Rod was here this afternoon."

"The Deep Sea!" her father said, and suspected aloud. "Why was he taking off the afternoon?" "He was going away. He's gone." "I see," said her father, satisfied with that, and he did not inquire whither, "Good fellow. But his brother-how that young man does know his way about!" And he started, at last, for the stairs.

Headlights played on the windows and swung away as a car skidded to a stop.

Jeb came in, cold and stamping and all alive.

She was his goal, this girl who braved her bare arms and shoulders to the chill from the door to meet him. She, above all others and all else in the world tonight, was the sole object he sought, and nothing could keep him from her. That was how Jeb von feel w hen von "Hello, Glen!" He held her, making her palms press his. "Hello, Glen!"

"Jeb, why did you drive tonight?" He laughed, and his happiness at the triumph of this arrival thrilled down her arms from her palms held

"Thought the train might not get through, Glen. I had to. Are you glad, a little?" "Oh, yes, I'm glad, Jeb!"

He ripped open his overcoat and threw it off and upon a chair for Cravath to pick up.

"Rod came?" he asked, as they passed the blazing hearth before which her father had halted.

"Yes: he came. He's-wonderful. Jeb. Wonderful. We talked in there." Why did she indicate the room-and avoid it? She had no idea of taking Jeb to it. Something quite separate from Jeb had transpired in there, and she would not have him intrude upon it.

"But you couldn't do it?" said Jeb. "No, I couldn't do it."

They were in the great drawingfoom, where, on this stormy night, a huge wood fire also was blazing. He turned to her in the warm light, tall as his brother, and straighter. There was no ready-made suit, no marks of carelessness, nothing could make Jeb

Her mind flew to her mother's room, where there was another man whom she could not picture pitiful.

The four were alone at dinner.

Her mother and father had dressed, for they were going out. There was always, in these days, something for them to go out to, if they wished: and tonight, though he was just home, they utilized this escape from their evening together. So Father sat at his end of the table in his dinnerjacket, and Mother, at her end, in decollete.

She was forty-seven, for she had been twenty-two when she had borne Bee, the Dark One, the daughter like herself. But Bee, after barely three years of marriage and two bables (as Mother had had) was not now as happy as Mamma had been for the twelve years in the "little" house where she had been a bride.

Was happiness shortening?

ended it, once you had it-both of you-as he at his end of the table, and she opposite him, had had?

"We're together! Isn't it good! Good! Good to be together, together so!" That was how the old house had felt. Here it was gone. Most particularly tonight it was gone from Father and Mother. You could feel no current of closeness.

Across the table Jeb sat. He was happy to be here, and to have her here. Of course it was because he was close to her, the table temporarily separating them, that he was happy.

He was in business clothes, as he had come from his office. He and Agnes were not to go out, to seek escape from themselves tonight. Quite to the contrary! Why did conversation drag

Her father mentioned Insull to Jeb "Stronger every minute," Jeb said. "I'm putting all my people into Mid-West Utilities."

There Mother sat, alone, no longer the closest, most necessary person to any one. Her figure, once as slender, was by no means heavy. Women complimented her upon it, but men had ceased to turn when she passed. She had lovely hands, beautifully-shaped fingers with almond-like nails, which Agnes had inherited. Her skin. though not dark, was less fair than her husband's, and it needed color

"Tell Me What You Want, Little Light One."

There was not too much tonight, Agnes thought. There was too little.

They had gone out together, Sim mons driving them. The leaping blaze In the drawing-room had burnt down to red-glowing charred logs that lay lazily on the andirons.

Jeb gathered Agnes against him. "Don't fight it," he said. "It's no use. It's over for them. That's all."

"Why's it over, Jeb?" His arm about her also claimed her right hand with his. He fitted her ender fingers in betw liked to do, and clasped palm to palm.

"Because it's over; that's all any . . There's just one can ever say. so much in the cup, sometimes, I think, Glen. You can sip it all your life, afraid ever really to taste it: or you can dare to drink it down. That's what they did, I figure from what I've heard from you. They had it all: they took it all, tipped it empty together. If he'd died, or she, ten years ago, it'd been a break for the poets: true love for a lifetime. But why bother about such a thing, Glen? Do you want it?" "What?" Agnes said.

"Love for a lifetime. Tepid, tasteless stuff you can bear to sip and never need to gulp down. Do you want it? By God, you'll never get it from me. I've had girls, Glen, but never one like you. What we'll give each other will be beyond telling. I don't know how long it will last; and neither do you. And I don't care; nor do you. We'll have it-we'll have It all while we're young. We'll tip up the cup-won't we?-and drink the whole damn thing down while we're living.

"Do you dream your mother today would trade what she'd had for any thing else she ever heard of? .

He thrust his free arm under her knees and claimed her close. He arose with her in his arms and took a step or two, carrying her; then he lifted her higher, bringing her face so near to his that he could, by bending an inch more, kiss her. But he did not. Instead, with his lips over hers, he

It taunted and tantalized her. "What is it, Jeb, what are you saying to me?" "The line - don't you know it?that Francois Villon wrote, dear, for himself and his friends the night before he was sure they were all to be hanged. 'Men, brother men, that after us live, let not your hearts too hard on us be."

"But why do you say it?" "Why, Glen? Because we-God help us, Glen-we are going to be married." And then, at last, he kissed her.

Beatrice Ayreforth had had a sunbath built in her home. The enclosure under the quartz glass roof was like a little Japanese room, with softly padded straw mats fitted together to form the floor, and with a slightly raised section, laid with thicker and softer mats, for lounging upon and sunning.

Here, in the soothing sun, you could play with your boys' round, strong little bodies, and imagine them men -great men, splendid men, inspiring, important and thrilling. When you did this, you omitted imagining them like their father. They must be more than Davis ever would be. Davis. your husband, who was only thirty but for whom you no longer held illusions of greatness or of real imortance, though you loved him. Of course you loved him.

He lacked something that, for one, Jeb Braddon had. Jeb, who had been at "the house" last night, as Beatrice had learned when she phoned her father after dinner, to say hello. How much further had Agnes and Jeb "gone" last evening?

Bee wished that Agnes would hurry

There she was! They faced each other in the sun, but Agnes immediately bent to the babies, rubbing her hands briskly to be sure of their warmth before she touched the brown little bodies. Bobbie kissed back on her cool cheek after she kissed him; she swept with her lips the soles of Davy's chubby little feet, one after the

"How's Jeb?" asked her sister, seating herself before her.

Agnes held to one of Davy's feet. "All right, Bee," she answered.

"Did you go anywhere last night?" "Not us. Father and Mother went to the Stinsons'; but we stayed home,' sald Agnes a bit breathlessly.

"What'd you do?" demanded Bee. "Bee, I guess Jeb and I got sort of engaged."

Beatrice's gaze jerked up. "Don't you know?"

"I know he said we were, Bee." Agnes leaned over and resorted to clasping both of Davy's feet, and pulling him gently along the mat.

Beatrice quickly touched a bell behind her. "They've been long enough in the sun," she decided suddenly, and bundled her bables into robes. When the nurse knocked, she handed the children out and secured the door again.

"All right now," said Bee, dropping to the mat.

"I liked him a lot last night, Bee. I let him know it."

"How about this morning?" Beatrice demanded.

"I'm going downtown to have lunch with him today."

"But are you engaged? Did you say you'd marry him?" "I didn't; for I didn't know I would.

I don't know now." "You mean you don't know whether you want to?" "I guess I want to marry him, Bee."

"Then what in heaven is it you don't "What it will be like to be married to Jeb," said Agnes. I didn't want to talk to Mother about it, at all. She's too unhappy. You aren't."

"No," said Bee quickly. "How was Father when he got home?" "No different. He made a lot more money in New York." "I gathered that. . . . But you and Jeb?"

"He thinks we ought to get married as quick as we can arrange it. Oh, Bee, I never, never had such a day. Rod came in the afternoon."

"Rod?" "I can't tell you about that. I can never tell anyone about that! Then Father came home; and Mother was making ready for him. . . . Bee, they'll separate when I get married, I know.'

"Then I should think you'd hardly rush off and marry."

"But that makes me want to, don's you see? Oh, if you were in the house, you would."

"I wouldn't," said Bee.

Agnes proceeded to Chicago on the noon train. As she neared the city, she wondered, more practically, what plan he had made for her and himself? For she felt that today, of all days, he would have a special surprise for her.

Agnes started when she saw him. How much more hers, since last night, was this man at whom women gazed: and for whom they turned, after they had passed. Now he saw her!

Oh, this was something! She was shaking from excitement as hardly she had last night.

He took her away in a taxi, and still saved the tension of their restraints He named a restaurant where a few of their set were sure to be. So they sat side by side at a little table, looking out upon the wide, gay room just as if nothing at all had happened since they had been seen together. So many people gazed at them; and

Agnes knew that they whispered to "There's Jeb Braddon." each other: Agnes' hand on the seat beside her touched his, and his closed on hers briefly only. "Nothing today," he told her, "or more!" More than last night? What could he mean? Marriage today? Had he a license in his pocket?

They left the restaurant, and Agnes watched the women looking up at him; he watched the men's eyes on her, and was very satisfied.

He took her into a taxi and gave an address on the North Side. "I'm going to show you a building Glen," he told her then, "where I fig

To maintain this system of warnings, which is found at the entrance of every port on both coasts of America, required not only a great deal of money, but an almost incredible amount of courage on the part of the lighthouse builders, and the men whose business it is to see that the buoys are always in their place, ready to give their warnings.

Neither storm nor cold can turn from their watchful task.

Let a single buoy go astray, or a single lighthouse fall to "throw it's beam across the wave," and every ship entering or leaving port may be in danger.

Austin .- There is one public office in Texas about which hovers some traditions as old as the republic itself-that of the commissioners of the general land office. Here are kept the voluminous records of the public domain, which, in the early days, represented virtually all the wealth the state possessed. There are about 60 employes today in the land office, and they are mostly veterans with many years of experience. It takes years and years to become sufficiently familiar with the surveys and records and the little caricature sketches he books may still be seen.

Prairie Dog and Ant Poison

Due to the numerous inquiries late y for prairie dog poison and ant bait the county agent has ordered a supply of both.

Prairie dogs are being successfully eradicated now because they have fed continously on green grass and are hungry for some grain, therefore, they eat the poison grain readily. It costs 5 cents a pound and is prepared by the State Biological Survey. The ant poison is the same as has been carried for the past two years and has been proven by dozens of users cation of ants. It is also used to kill mice and rats where mixed with meal. One and one-half ounce sizes cost 50

NOTICE FARMERS!

I have noticed several accounts the last few days where the leaf worm has made its appearance in several states on cotton. The department of Agriculture of the United States says it's he earlist ever known. Some time ago I was telling our county agent of an experiment used when I was a small boy to rid the tobacco crop of worms. At that time this crop was new to us and the worms often got be yond control.

A plan was worked out in this way a post five feet high was placed in the tobacco patch, a small platform about two fee square was nailed on top, some covered with dirt, a fire was built on it about dark. We used lightwood knots, they would make a good light for nearly all night. Just a few nights was sufficient to get rid of the insects laying eggs and worms soon disappeared. If our farmers would meet at our county agent's office Saturday June 6th and discuss some way of placing a good torch in cotton fields right away. I believe the Millers could be gotten rid of. saving lots of work and expense later in poisoning. I used a small No. 3 can with a short pipe which I run rope through for a wick last fall and found it did lots of good. However, the light was not large enough and the wind blew it out at times. I believe a gallon bucket with pipe soldered to the bottom and pipe long enough to not ignite the oil in the bucket might work. Lightwood is not available her hence some other plan would have to be substituted, doubtless some on could offer better way to get a bright light and if farmers would get busy at once, a few dark nights with the orch would be very effective. An old saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

WANT to be a camera man? All of you men and boys who cherish that ambition can't do better than to heed the advice of Hal Mohr, who knows what it is to start from scratch and win. He is one of our ace photographers, you know; did the camera work on "Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Captain Blood," among others, and won the Academy Award this year.

"I get hundreds of letters from boys wanting to knew how to become studio camera men," he said the other day. "They all want to come to Hollywood, and that is the worst thing to do. I'd say to them-

WONDER why it is that the majority of us seem to have our most thrilling experiences when we are around ten years old. Funny, isn't it? But let's leave that to the psychologists to figure out and get on with our story.

Famous Headline Hunter.

It's from Mrs. Louis Walker of West Winfield, N. Y. Mrs. Walker was only eight years old when the adventure took place that was destined to remain in her memory the rest of her life. That was over fifty years ago so you can see what an impression it made.

Mary-that's what everybody called Mrs. Walker in those dayslived on a farm with her father and mother, near the town of Richfield, N. Y.

It was a lonely place, Mary says, quite a distance from the main highway, at the top of a steel hill, with deep woods all around. They didn't have automobiles, telephones or radios in that time, so you can see how lonely it really was.

Weird Looking Stranger Knocks at the Door.

The country was sparsely settled and the nearest house-her grandfather's -was a mile away. Mary was one of five children, the oldest of whom was fourteen and the youngest two. The country around Richfield was then a hopgrowing center and many transients wandered in at hop-picking time to get work. However, Mary says, strangers seldom frightened them, and the children were often left alone in the house.

One day, when Mary's mother and father were away and the children all alone, they heard a rap on the back door. The youngsters, eager for any diversion that would relieve the motonony, rushed into the kitchen. Mary's oldest sister, Louisa, who was inclined to be sickly, opened the door.

On the porch stood the strangest looking man the country children had ever seen. He seemed, Mary recalls, about forty and wore a loud, checked suit and a gray derby hat after the manner of race-track touts. In addition to his rainbow clothes, the man actually carried a cane!

The Visitor Indulges in a Queer Prank.

The clothes and the cane fascinated the children, and when the man asked for a bite to eat he was invited into the house. Louisa prepared him some food, while the rest of the youngsters surveyed this city marvel from head to foot.

Mary says, aside from his strange getup, the man seemed perfectly normal as he ate his food. They were not the least bit afraid of him and readily told him they were alone in the house. Louisa was particularly kind to the stranger and served him all he wanted to eat. When he had finished the fourteen-year-old girl picked up the dishes and started for the kitchen sink with them in her hands. Although slightly lame and a semi-invalid, Mary says, her sister insisted on helping about Dangerous Lunatic Terrorizes the Helpless Children.

Mary and the other kids were aghast. They could not believe that anyone would deliberately hurt their gentle sister. But there was no question about it. The man had done it purposely, because he now sat back and roared with Louisa picked herself up, pale and trembling, her face scratched and bleeding. The other children doubtless thought her pale from her fall. But Louisa was older and her pallor was caused by something she had seen in the man's eyes. That something, to Louisa, meant insanity! Their visitor was a dangerous lunatic and the children were in his

The brute's next move proved her worst fears to be true. Laughing still, he strolled over to the bird cage, where their pet canary perched watching the scene, and, sticking the point of his cane through the bars of the cage, began poking the helpless bird.

Eight-Year-Old Mary Faces Maniac With a Knife.

Mary says her ten-year-old brother ran out of the house at this point, but she and her sisters stood there paralyzed with horror and waiched the man thrusting at the fluttering canary repeatedly with his cane until their pet fell -a mass of quivering feathers-in the bottom of the cage! Their canary was dead!

The little two-year-old baby girl began to cry. Louisa protested and the man suddenly turned on her, and, hooking her around the neck with his cane, jerked her to him. The threat to her sister goaded Mary into action. She was only eight, but she grabbed up a knife from the kitchen table and went for him.

Quick as a flash the horrible cane tripped her and the flend, faster than it takes to tell it, had the knife in his hand. He grinned horribly: "I'm going to cut your ears off," he said.

The Man Disappeared as Strangely as He Had Arrived.

Mary jumped to her feet-terror giving her wings-and rushed out of the room. The man followed, cursing and waving the knife threateningly. Furniture crashed as the horrible chase went on. Mary threw chairs and tables at his feet as she ran and dodged for her life. But not for long. A hand closed on her hair from behind and she fainted.

Mary woke up on the parlor sofa. A man was leaning over her! She screamed and threw her hands over her ears! But Mary had no cause for alarm now. The man leaning over her was her grandfather. Her brother had wisely gone after him and the children were safe. The man in the checked suit was gone. And her ears were still on.

An armed posse of neighbors searched the woods for days. It seemed impossible, Mary says, that a man dressed that way could escape in that country, but he did and was never seen again.

Cairo Very Old

Though old Cairo generally is believed to be about 1,000 years old, it may date from Roman or earlier times. Paris of a very old Roman city have been excavated in the suburbs of the city during the last few years. The existence of this settlement had been known but in recent years the belief has grown that the site of Cairo has been inhabited continuously since the days of the Old Kingdom (about 4,500 B. C.). In fact, the suburbs of the present city include the site of ancient the United States against Great Britain, for losses inflicted on shipping, by the Alabama, Shenandoah and other Confederate vessels, fitted out in British ports during the Civil war. The United States claimed $19,021.428 in direct losses and many times that amount in indirect losses. The matfollowing year the Geneva Tribunal awarded the United States an indemnity of $15,500,000 in gold. This was paid by Great Britain in 1872.

THE LAST SUPPER

LESSON TEXT-Luke 22:7-23. GOLDEN TEXT—This do in remem-brance of me.—Luke 22:19. PRIMARY TOPIC—The Supper Jesus

Gave His Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord's Supper.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR
TOPIC—What the Lord's Supper Means to Me. YOUNG YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What the Lord's Supper Meant

The last meal that Jesus ate with his disciples was the Passover, the memorial of the national deliverance which pointed to the supreme deliverance to be effected by Christ on the cross of Calvary. In connection with this Passover, the feast of the new covenant was instituted. This feast also has a double import. It looks backward to the great deliverance wrought through Christ's atoning death, and forward to the even greater deliverance which He shall accomplish at his second coming (I Cor. 11:26).

1. The Last Passover (vv. 7-18).

1. The Passover prepared (vv. 7-13). a. As the time had arrived for the killing of the Passover, Jesus directed Peter and John to make ready for it

b. The disciples inquired (v. 9) where they should prepare the Passover. Doubtless, they were eager to be of service to their Master and Lord.

c. Jesus gave strange directions (vv. 10-12), that they should go into the city, where they would find a man bearing a pitcher of water. The custom was for women to carry the water. This unusual occurrence would make it the easier for them to recognize the man of whom they would ask, "Where is the guest chamber where I shall eat the Passover with my disciples?"

d. The disciples gave unquestioning obedience (v. 13), not permitting the unusual instructions to raise the question of sanity or reasonableness. Jesus, because he was omniscient, knew just how the matter would turn out, and the disciples found it even so,

2. The Passover eaten (vv. 14-18). a. The historic group around that table (v. 14) was composed of Jesus and the Twelve, the apostles. b. Jesus' words to the disciples (vv. 15-18).

(1) "I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer" (v. 15). He desired to show them the meaning of the passion through which he was to go. He also craved their human sympathy as he passed through this terrible ordeal.

(2) "I will not any more eat thereof until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God" (v. 16). His death was the antitypical fulfillment of the Passover meal. He declared that this would be the last time that they could share together this sacred ordinance before the completion of his mediatorial work.

(3) "Take this cup and divide it among ourselves" (vv. 17, 18). By the token of the cup the disciples were partaking of the shed blood. This cup should be distinguished from the cup of the feast of the new covenant.

This feast took place at the close of the pascal supper.

1. The bread a symbol of Christ's body (v. 19). As bread nourishes and strengthens our bodies, so Christ is food to our spiritual nature. Unless the body receives nourishment, it decays. Unless our souls feed upon Christ, we shall perish. Christ's giving the physical bread to his disciples signified the giving of himself to them.

2. The cup a symbol of Christ's blood (v. 20). He said, "This cup is the new testament in my blood which was shed for you," indicating that each one must personally accept the atonement made by the shedding of his blood.

III. The Treachery of Judas (vv.

1. The time of its manifestation (v. 21). It was while they were eating the last Passover that Jesus made announcement of the betrayal. Perhaps Jesus was in this manner offering Judas an opportunity at this last moment to repent.

2. The betrayal was by the determinate counsel of God (v. 22, cf. Acts 2:23). Nothing takes place by chance, Even the sinful acts of wicked men come within the permissive providence of God. This does not, however, lessen the guilt of sinners, for Jesus said, "Woe unto the man by whom he is betrayed."

3. The sorrowful question (v. 23). That the disciples were not suspicious of one another is evident from the personal nature of the question they asked, "Lord, is it I?" (Matt. 26:22). Well may each believer ask if he is in any way betraying his Savior and

An Easy Aid For Sluggishness

When sluggish and listless from improper elimination, you don't want to upset your entire system with a harsh laxative. You want relief that is pleasant and easy . . the sort of relief you get with Feen-a-mint, the delightful chewing gum laxative. Feen-a-mint begins its pleasant effect as soon as you start chewing it, for its stomach-settling mint brings a clean, fresh taste to the mouth. As you chew out the laxative ingredient which is absolutely tasteless, the flow of digestive juices is increased. The laxative is mixed with them and carried into the system gently. Feen-a-mint doesn't gripe, nauseate, or upset you and it is non-habit-forming. It passes through the stomach and into the bowels scientifically to thoroughly cleanse out waste. Doctors prescribe Feen-a-mint's laxative ingredient for both children and adults. Sold on money-back guarantee. Generous family size package 15c and 25c.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness" - is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis - such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

Common People for Roosevelt

New League Formed to Further F. D. R's Social Program; French Trade Pact

By EARL GODWIN ASHINGTON. - There is newly organized outfit with a good name. . . . "The Good Neighbor League" . . . headan erstwhile Republican, Dr. Stanley High, a rather famed publicist who believes that Roosevelt's policy of loosening the tight social structure is the only thing that will save this country from a collapse. In this league, which has a sort of Golden Rule complex, there are thoughtful people active in church work, labor organization work, relief work, editorial work, etc. They are not politicians by any means, but they will undoubtedly turn out to have a vast political influence by stressing the fact that Roosevelt's policies are strongly endorsed by the great mass of inarticulate folks far-down in the social scale. You'll find in the Good Neighbor league such men as Col. Patrick H. Callahan, the Louisville industrialist who long ago began sharing the wealth of his business with his workers. You'll find Fannie Hurst the author, A. P. Gianini, financier and chairman of the Bank of America; Clifford Gregory, editor of the Prairie Farmer; Dr. James William Crabtree, who heads a world-wide educational association-I wish there were room to list the leaders of this outpouring of people of independent thought and liberal tendencies who know that unless someone interprets events and politics the reactionaries will so completely mis-state the case as to fool millions of people. The league represents a definite movement to help Roosevelt do what he wants to do under the promise "to make America a better place in which to live."

It is a slap at the Du Ponts and their Liberty League, and will give that munitions group a lot to think about. It comes along about the same time that a young fellow with a lot of vision named Paul Best forms a nation-wide organization headed up as the Roosevelt First Voters-an outfit designed to reach young men and women who vote for the first time next fall. It is not a Democratic outfit-just an outfit in honor of the fact that Roosevelt has touched the hearts and minds of young people who have heard a lot of promises but have seen no performance except from F. D. R. Especially interested are these Roosevelt First Voters in the policy of providing opportunities for young men and young

Then comes Labor's Non-Partisan league, which in my opinion is the most striking thing that has occurred in politics recently. This is an organization of labor union leaders and their followers to re-elect Roosevelt, whom they describe as the one man to carry on their fight for a fair wage at fair working conditions. The labor men in this league issue statements declaring themselves violently in opposition to the Liberty league and the National o-called southern "grass roots" organizations opposed to Roosevelt. They known that these southern bursts of anti-Rooseveltism are financed here in Washington by the Liberty league or some close affiliation, Heading Labor's Non-Partisan league is Maj. George L. Berry, a printing press union man: John Lewis, United Mine Workers' chief (and I think the most daring union leader in America) and Sidney Hillman, Garment Workers' . . They have a well-knit army of tens of thousands all ready to go. They have 4,000 experienced platform men and women-speakers and campaigners and organizers.

SUGAR COAT G. O. P. MEET

Plans to sugar coat the Republican national convention at Cleveland so that it will have an up-to-date streamlined, show window appearance, are being made by one of these New York super-publicity men named Bruce Barton, whom the Alf Landon element in the party brings in to give life to the unutterably dull campaign as run by Chairman Fletcher of the G. O. P. headquarters here. The fact that Barton has been recruited to publicize Alf Landon is interesting in the light of the fact that he is the author of a book entitled "The Man Nobody Knows." However, anything that anybody can do to humanize a political convention, now that so many attend them via the radio, is commendable. The Democratic chieftains have been leading the way in publicity, air and printed, for years. Now that the Republicans have decided to make improvements, the general public can sit back and have a swell time in a few days now, listening to the impassioned orators spell-binding.

One interesting feature Barton is said to be planning is good music. planned to appeal to racial and sectional groups. Barton thinks that if his pipe organ at Cleveland plays "Old Kentucky Home" that will carry the Blue Grass state for Landon or whoever G. O. P. picks. I trust they will not make the mistake that the Al Smith boys made when the Georgia delegation nearly mobbed the band for playing."Marching Through Georgia" that tune being the greatest insult that can be offered a Georgia Democrat, as it is an echo of the Union army's destructive march through a stricken

TANGLE PREDICTED

Administration leadership managed to choke back the demand for a lowinterest means of paying off farm mortgages, when the house voted down the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage bill. But while conservatism won a momentary victory, I look for the episode to start a tremendous tangle in coming events . . . particularly in politics. Wouldn't surprise me in the least if it is the touch-off for a grand assault by Father Coughlin and other radicals who have a tremendous following for their theory that the way to salvation is through a currency so completely diluted that it will wash the banks and bankers all away,

The proposal that the federal government should pay off farm mortgages with three billions of new money, and then reimburse itself by very small annual payments from farmers at a rate of about 11/2 per cent a year is attractive enough to any farmer with a mortgage; and had enough support to get 142 votes in the house in the face of strong administration opposi-

But the method is looked on by so many leaders as dangerously inflationary that for all intents and purposes it is too radical a measure to get to the statute books until there is a much more radical following in both houses of congress. The strongest attact on the measure came from organized labor, which feels the financing on the shortage payments by three billions of new money (to be either borrowed or printed), would dilute currency to a state where prices would sky-rocket and wages remain static. That idea killed the bill-and that alone. Scores of men who are sympathetic with the farm problem voted against the Frazier-Lemke measure, on the ground that this diluted money would be ruinous to everybody-explaining that the farm-mortgage problem and other rural economic tangles would be straightened by a price reform and better business, rather than by green-

But agrarian movements in the past have never dled out as the result of a first defeat. I look for this Frazier-Lemke movement to sweep the Middle West and Northwest. Father Coughlin and his Union for Social Justice will become more important than ever from the standpoint of the make-up of the next congress. Scores of good fellows were put on the spot by the vote in the house; and many members will have to fight for their lives on account of their position in that vote. I also look for a strong counter-proposal.

A COMING LEADER

Representative Lemke of North Dakota is a coming radical leader. He was the only Republican to get a bill of any consequence through congress in the first half of this administration; that was the Frazier-Lemke moratorium bill which granted time to farmers who had come up to the limit on mortgage payments. The Supreme court held the bill unconstitutional, Lemke is listed as a Republican, but he is not. Actually he is a Nonpartisan Leaguer and when the league captured and ate up the Republican party in North Dakota he became the party's state chairman. But no Republican would claim him as a brother, because Lemke has stood for some of the most radical steps. As attorney general of his state he drafted laws which have been called revolutionary. Association of Manufacturers and all They include state banks, state insurfor farmers against owned flour mills, and other far reaching changes.

> This radical farm leader is not without educational background. He studied in two of the most conservative institutions on earth; one was Yale university and the other was Georgetown university here in the national capital. I look to see this gentleman attempt some great things for himself and his radical following before the next administration is through.

TRADE PACT WITH FRANCE

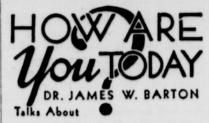

We have been engaged in a ten-year trade war with France; now it's all over. A new trade agreement has been completed which lowers tariffs; and permits us to deal more freely with France while they in turn have a better market for their goods (particularly wines and perfumes). Our tobacco raisers see a great opportunity to do a lot more business with the French, and all told every one should be gratified.

There is no sharp excitement about a new trade agreement, but world-wide peaceful results are bound to flow because the new-style treaties are a part of the new era wherein the seeds of war are being eliminated by a neighborly policy. Of course, there will be criticism directed at certain items. It will be charged, as in the case of the Canadian trade treaty, that foreigners are allowed to rush in and steal our markets; but all told the French and Canadian treaties together are being praised by some of the harshest opponents of the Roosevelt administration At last we are getting to the point where we can tear down our fences and do business with our worldneighbors on the same human, common sense basis as we do in our own

It has been proven that past wars have sprung from the selfish, nationalistic tendencies of nations to build high tariff barriers and bottle themselves up in a ferment of selfishness. The new policy is like going down town and mingling with your fellows and learning that a little give-and-take in trading is the way to make friends -and at the same time do more business. You lose a little on one item but you make up on another. Best of all.

both sides remain friends.

Treating Hemorrhoids

COME idea of how the injection method of treating hemorrhoids or piles has taken the place of the old method of removing them by a surgical operation can be gathered from the report in New England Journal of Medicine of Doctor Balch of the Rectal Clinic, Massachusetts General hospital,

Since the clinic was organized in 1928 the number of operations for removal of hemorrhoids done in the hospital has steadily decreased. In 1929 there were 42 cases; in 1930, 26; and in 1931, 6; and in 1932 only 5. These figures show pretty well how successful is the injection treatment of the average case of hemorrholds. During that time, 359 cases were treated by the injection method and Doctor Balch concludes that the injection treatment of internal hemmorrhoids (not the kind that hang outside the body) can be satisfactorily carried out in about 85 to 90 per cent of cases seen, with from 5 to 15 per cent having to return for further treatment within three to five

The treatment is almost painless and practically free from serious consequences. The patients are satisfied with the result.

After having treated more than 5,000 cases of hemorrhoids by the injection method Doctor Fansler of Minneapolis in the Journal of the Iowa State Medical Society, re-emphasizes that only internal hemorrholds that are not fibrous are suitable for injection

Cases Easily Cured

While it is very gratifying to know that the great majority of cases, (that is really the average case), can be cured by this simple method there are thousands of cases in which this method cannot be used; and only surgery can effect the cure.

For those whose cases are not suitable for the injection method Doctor Fansler gives most encouraging information. In former years the operation meant ten days to three weeks in hospital with considerable distress immediately following and for some days after the operation, aside from the expense and loss of time from employment.

How Surgery Works

Doctor Fansler describes an operation now performed which, followed by hot Sitz baths the next day, and the bowels moved by an oil or water enema on the second day, allows the patient to leave the hospital usually on the fifth day after the operation.

The thought then is that no one in ordinary health should suffer with hemorrholds now that the injection method will cure most cases, and the surgical method does not mean so much pain, expense, or time lost,

Treatment of Rheumatism

Every nealth writer speaks of the ing out particularly that the infection of the teeth, tonsils, gall bladder, and intestine cause most cases. He points out further that of the various cases of heart disease, rheumatism stands first on the list.

However, after a patient is afflicted with rheumatism, which means that the trouble has likely been in the system for months or years, what he wants to know is the best way of treating rheumatism while the cause is being sought and removed.

There are a number of forms of treatment-use of vaccines, cutting down on starch foods-but one wants something to allay the pain and prevent the joints from becoming permanently stiff.

Patients Restored

What is known as "physical" treatment is considered the most effective method to prevent stiff joints and restore the patient to an active life.

Dr. L. C. R. L'Estrange Orme in Medical Press outlines this physical treatment as follows:

1. Maintaining and increasing the amount of movement of joints and preventing them from becoming stiff or fixed by massage.

2. Improving the circulation around the joint by some form of heat-cabinet baths, hot towels, various forms of electric heat. 3. Improving the general circulation of the body and improving the skin action by stimulant baths. 4. Correcting any deformity and giving support, if necessary, by mechanical means-belts, braces, splints. Improving the general health by a suitable diet and by encouraging as much exercise as is possible.

The most important forms of physical treatment of rheumatism then are heat in some form, massage and exercise.

Dr. R. Kovacs, New York, in Medical Journal and Record, states that physical measures are an invaluable aid in the constitutional treatment of chronic arthritis (rheumatism) and are the mainstay of treatment for relief of pain and stiffness. There is rarely a patient in whom properly selected and applied measures would not bring some immediate relief enabling him to carry much easier.
