RAIN, RAIN, RAIN!

THE BEST RAIN IN 5 YEARS FELL SATURDAY NIGHT COVERING THE ENTIRE WEST

Nearly one-half of the space that measures day and night to mean fell the rain, the gentle rain, upon all beneath, beginning at something past seven p. m. Saturday. All, not just a few, say that this is the best rain we have had since the spring of 1908, which is some time, according to the calendar. The lowest estimates put the rainfall at 3½ inches, but it appears to us that 4 inches is nearer the correct figure, according to numerous reports from those who happened to have outstanding open vessels that acted as rain gauges.

The rain was general, covering the whole western part of the State. Horde's creek in the valley of which the town of Coleman is located, was bank full of water for the first time in five years, assuring that water-famed town of ample water supply for some time. Jim Ned creek half way between Burkett and Coleman, was impassable for a day or two because of there being so much water in the valley on either side of the bridge. The Bayou overflowed in low places for the first time since 1908. Water was low in the city lake, the rain two weeks ago supplying it with ten inches, but this time water ran over the spillway, thus assuring us of city water for at least the rest of the year.

The rain fell just right for the soil to get full benefit of the precipitation. The farmers we have talked to say that they will eventually make some wheat, say from 6 to 10 bushels, and about half a n oat crop, the spring crop of the latter having a chance for a good yield. It is conceded by all that we have decidedly the best prospects for a crop of cotton, feed and truck, since the spring of the spring of '08.

SELLS INTEREST

Joe Hitt Wednesday of last week bought Frank Carpenters interest in their barber shop and immediately after sold the same interest to Mr. Edwards, the front man at Reeder & Tart's shop for several months. Messrs Hitt and Edwards are both first class workmen and popular men, and that they will do a good business is not to be doubted.

Mr. Carpenter will at an early date move to Temple. We are sorry to lose him and his family.

Fuller Carter, who is a live-wire in the real estate business at Pecos City, and John Carter, of Waco, have been here since the latter part of last week, the guest of their parents, Rev. and Mrs. R. D. Carter. These boys have been reared in this country, John having left Cross Plains only a few months since, and and have many friends here who are always glad to see them.

The Sergeant halted, examining his surroundings cautiously, expecting every instant to be fired upon by some unseen foe. The violence of the storm prevented his seeing beyond a few yards, and the whirling snow crystals blinded him as he faced the fury of the wind sweeping down the valley. Nothing met his gaze; no sound reached his ears; about him was desolation, unbroken whiteness. Apparently they were alone in all that intense dreariness of snow. The solemn loneliness of it—the dark, silently flowing river, the dun sky, the wide, white expanse of plain, the mad violence of the storm beating against him—brought to him a feeling of helplessness. He was a mere atom, struggling alone against Nature's wild mood. Then the feeling clutched him that he was not alone; that from somewhere amid those barren wastes hostile eyes watched, skulking murderers sought his life. Yet there was no sign of any presence. He could not stand there and die, nor permit Carroll to freeze in his saddle. It would be better to take a chance; perhaps they had become confused by the storm.

Poot by foot, feeling his passage, he advanced down the gully, fairly dragging his own horse after him. Behind, held by the straining lariat, lurched the others, the soldier swaying on the back of the last, swearing and laughing in delirium, clutching at snowflakes with his hands. At the end of the ravine, under shelter of the bank, Hamlin trampled back the snow, herding the animals close, so as to gain the warmth of their bodies. Here they were well protected from the cruel lash of the wind and the shower of snow which blew over them and drifted higher and higher in the open space beyond. Working feverishly, the blood again circulating freshly through his veins, the Sergeant hastily dragged blankets from the pack, and spread them on the ground, depositing Carroll upon them. Then he set about vigorously rubbing the soldier's exposed flesh with snow. The smart of it, together with the roughness of handling, aroused the latter from lethargy, but Hamlin, ignoring his resentment, gripped the fellow with hands of iron, never ceasing his violent ministrations until his swearing ended in silence. Then he wrapped him tightly in the blankets, and stood himself erect, glowing from the exercise. Carroll glared up at him angrily out of red-rimmed eyes.

"I'll get you for that, you big boob!" he shouted, striving to release his arms from the clinging blankets. "You wait! I'll get you!"

"Hush up, George, and go to sleep," the other retorted, poking the shapeless body with his foot, his thoughts already elsewhere. "Don't be a fool. I'll get a fire if I can, and something hot into you. Within an hour you'll be a man again. Now see here—stop that! Do you hear? You lie still right where you are, Carroll, until I come back, or I'll kick your ribs in!" He bent down menacingly, scowling into the upturned face. "Will you mind, or shall I have to hand you one?"

Almost Epigrammatic.

This overheard conversation appeals to the weary one as nearly epigrammatic. The young people on the seat ahead of us in the homeward bound car the other night talked it out so loud that we couldn't help hearing it and jotting down a few notes on it.

"So," said the girl, "he said he knew me when I was a little girl?"

"He didn't say anything of the sort," contradicted the man.

"You said he did."

"I didn't."

"Why, then what did you say?"

"I said he said he knew you when he was a boy."

That put such a wet blanket on the conversation that we were able to read our sporting extra uninterrupted for the next several blocks.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bits From Shakespeare.

Users of everyday catchwords are constantly quoting that ubiquitous person Shakespeare. "Dead as a door-nail," "long and short of it," "getting even," "tag-rag," "birds of a feather," "that's flat," "mum," "scarecrow," "solid," "milkop," "loggerhead," "bag and baggage," "a mere song," "dancing attendance," "send him packing," "kill with kindness," "give and take," "an eyesore," "to boot" and "the man in the moon" are all his.

Impertinence.

"I was born on the 29th of February."

"Remarkable!"

"Yes. There are few men who have that distinction."

"Very true. Have you ever done anything else unusual?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Cynical.

The old-fashioned woman who used to get up at 5 a. m. to celebrate wash day now has a daughter who has an awful time getting the stuff together in time to give it to the laundry driver when he calls at 2 p. m.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Didn't Know Horse Talk.

"Wanted, a man who can speak French and who understands horses," reads an advertisement. One of the applicants wrote, "Oh, yes; I can speak ze Franglais, but I know not what 'langue' ze 'orses speak."—London Standard.

Talk of Money.

It is true that money talks, but its vocabulary is limited to "goodby" and one or two other phrases.—Philadelphia Ledger.

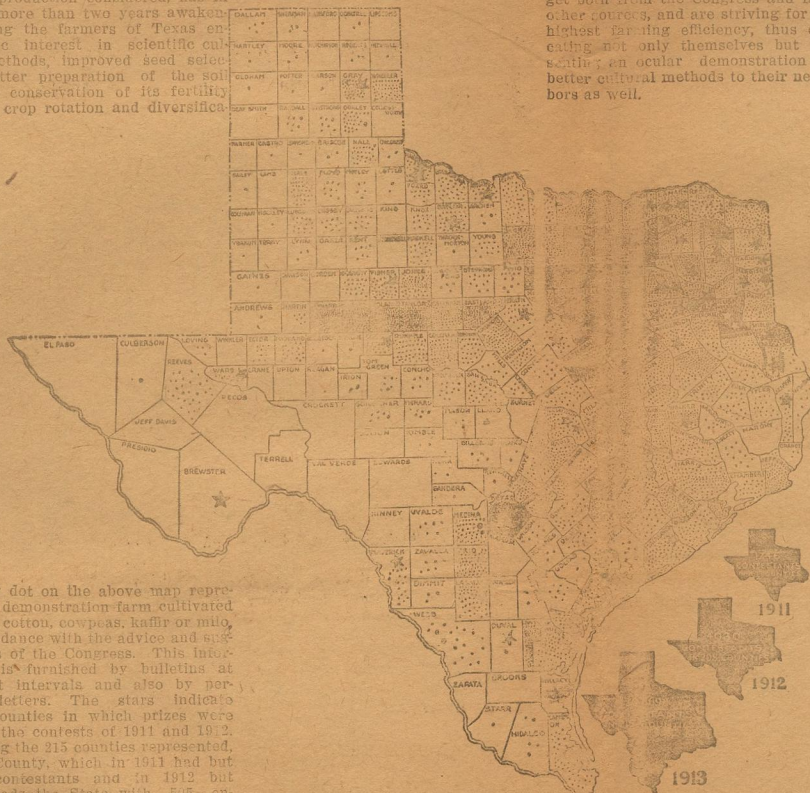

11,000 Demonstration Farms in 215 Counties In Texas Industrial Congress Contest

From 1,746 students of better farming in 161 counties of the State in 1911, the Texas Industrial Congress has steadily increased this number to 10,899 in 215 counties in 1913.

Unique among associations for agricultural development, the Congress, by offering $10,000 in gold annually for the best yields of specific crops, cost of production considered, has in a little more than two years awakened among the farmers of Texas an enthusiastic interest in scientific cultural methods, improved seed selection, better preparation of the soil and the conservation of its fertility through crop rotation and diversification.

While this remarkable growth has been the result primarily of the stimulus caused by the prize offer, this inducement to us: brains as well as brawn in crop production, is recognized by thinking men as but an incident for the purpose of accomplishing the real object of the Congress, which is to lower the cost of production while at the same time increasing the average yield, hence its slogan, "Smaller farms; better farming." The enrollment of nearly 11,000 contestants in this year's competition means that many demonstration farms in as many neighborhoods, intensively cultivated by 11,000 farmers who are seeking the best information they can get both from the Congress and from other sources, and are striving for the highest farming efficiency, thus educating not only themselves but presenting an ocular demonstration of better cultural methods to their neighbors as well.

Every dot on the above map represents a demonstration farm cultivated in corn, cotton, cowpeas, kafir or milo, in accordance with the advice and suggestions of the Congress. This information is furnished by bulletins at frequent intervals and also by personal letters. The stars indicate those counties in which prizes were won in the contests of 1911 and 1912.

Among the 215 counties represented, Bexar County, which in 1911 had but seven contestants and in 1912 but nine, leads the State with 595 entries. Ellis County is second, having 381 contestants; Hart County, with 333, is third and K. P. Cooke, Navarro, Tarrant, Dallas, Rockwall, Hill and Rusk Counties rank next in the order named.

The counties represented in this year's contest and the number of entries in each are as follows:

"Cardui Cured Me"

For nearly ten years, at different times, Mrs. Mary Jinks of Treadway, Tenn., suffered with womanly troubles. She says: "At last, I took down and thought I would die. I could not sleep. I couldn't eat. I had pains all over. The doctors gave me up. I read that Cardui had helped so many, and I began to take it, and it cured me. Cardui saved my life! Now, I can do anything."

TAKE THE CARDUI Woman's Tonic

If you are weak, tired, worn-out, or suffer from any of the pains peculiar to weak women, such as headache, backache, dragging-down feelings, pains in arm, side, hip or limbs, and other symptoms of womanly trouble, you should try Cardui, the woman's tonic. Prepared from perfectly harmless, vegetable ingredients, Cardui is the best remedy for you to use, as it can do you nothing but good. It contains no dangerous drugs. It has no bad after-effects.
