Silage of good quality, absolutely free from moldy or decayed material may be fed to a good advantage to horses and mules in connection with other feeds, according to Jno. C. Burns, Professor of Animal Husbandry at the A. and M. College. "As much as 10 to 15 pounds per 1,000 of live weight may be fed per day to horses and mules," says Professor Burns. "It is of the utmost importance, however, that the silage be of the best quality. We have had a number of reports of bad results from feeding silage to horses and mules but in every case it has been possible to trace the trouble to feeding spoiled silage."

AN OTHER GOOD RAIN FALLS

Sunday night 1.3-4 inches of rain fell in Cross Plains, accompanied by violent wind which did some damage to trees and crops. John Rudloff's house was blown off the blocks, a large part of the ball park fence was blown down, and many trees were ruined. The rain did not reach as far as Rowden and was not very good southwest. We have no reports of much damage done to grain crops, as was as first expected.

At a mass meeting of the citizens of the town at the airdome late Tuesday afternoon it was decided to have a picnic this summer at a date to be decided later. There has been and still is a division among the business men as to the question of having a picnic this year, but a majority and especially of those present at this meeting were in favor of some kind of a gala day. A general committee was appointed, which is to have general supervision of the picnic, and which to appoint various committees for concessions, program, attractions, etc. The general committee is composed of the following: B. T. Higginbotham, W. A. McGowen, Joe Shackelford, C. C. Neeb and L. P. Henslee.

FOUR ISSUES CONSTITUTE A MONTH

CROSS PLAINS, TEXAS.

Review readers appreciate the increased advertising that is being carried by The Review now. Only Saturday night while talking with Will Harlow who lives just north of town Mr. Harlow took occasion to say that he was pleased to see the merchants advertising more. He got his paper Thursday night and after reading everything in it, advertising and all, except the story, had quite a discussion at the dinner table the next day as to the various "ads" of the merchants, their prices, etc. The readers of a newspaper judge the progressiveness of the town, the progressiveness of the merchants, is it not? by the amount and quality of advertising carried in it. A newspaper is published in small towns, at least, to furnish a medium for the advertising of the merchants, and the reading and buying public expects and wants to read the talks by the business men as well as they do the local write ups. Because from time when the mind of man runneth not to the contrary advertising from the local merchants have been carried as a concomitant part of every live and appreciated country newspaper, and a part that every paper must have to exist. A merchant should no more allow his local paper to go to its readers without his message than he should allow these same people to pass his show window without having something displayed as a bid for their business. The buyers expect the merchants' bid for business in both instances.

There must be a great garden crop in this section this season. There is every evidence of it, both in town, where nearly every family has a garden spot that is furnishing the family and in the country where every family is supposed to raise its own garden truck. An extra good crop of dewberries and blackberries is being picked and made into jams, jellies and other delicacies. The peach crop, a signal failure last year, promises to make amends for that failure this year in a most bountiful yield. What few apricot trees we have are heavily laden. Apples promise to be here this fall in a plentitude not exceeded by the big yield of 1914. If there ever was a place and if there ever was a time when a man could live under his own fig tree and vine, this must be the place and this must be the time.

CAUGHT IN THE RAIN

Hadden McDermott and his little sister Miss Gladys, Misses Jesse and Beulah Adams and Marie Cornell, went to Brownwood Sunday in Mr. McDermott's Buick. They broke a spring on their way back home late Sunday near the Bayou and before they could repair it the rain came up, drenching some of them and forcing them to spend the night at Byrd's. Leaving that place at daylight Monday, they meant to be in Cross Plains by 8 or 9 o'clock, but on reaching Red River they were again balked, as the water was too high to cross. They changed their course, and making a very circuitous and lengthy route, reached home about 5 p. m., via Rising Star and Pioneer. Edwin Eeb and J. P. Boyd and Misses Ellen Barnes and Mary Pierce also went to Brownwood on this day, but returned a little bit earlier and got home just before the rain.

Good Cabbage

J. M. Baker of the Sabanno country brought to The Review office Saturday a head of cabbage grown by his son-in-law A. E. Holden that was a beauty and in size a good one for this season, weighing three and one-half pounds. Mr. Baker says that they raise early cabbage on his place, the head he brought in being of the frost-proof variety. He irrigates a garden patch and raises other truck near the house, which always insures him plenty of vegetables whether it rains or not.

COULD SCARCELY WALK ABOUT

And For Three Summers Mrs. Vincent Was Unable to Attend to Any of Her Housework.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—"I suffered for three summers," writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, "and the third and last time, was my worst.

I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework.

I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, sinking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, until it wore off.

I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn't taken it.

After I began taking Cardui, I was greatly helped, and all three bottles relieved me entirely.

I fattened up, and grew so much stronger in three months, I felt like another person altogether."

Cardui is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients have a mild, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution.

Cardui makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks, fresh and rosy.

Cardui has helped more than a million weak women, during the past 50 years. It will surely do for you, what it has done for them. Try Cardui today.
