Mother's Day

Mother's Day, which is the second Sunday in May, falls on May 14 this year and will be observed throughout the United States in response to the annual proclamation by the President.

As is well known, the object of the day is to recall memories of the mothers who have passed to the beyond and to pay special tribute of affection to those living. The badge for the day is the white carnation, emblematic of the purity, beauty and fidelity of a mother's love. By some the red carnation is worn in honor of living mothers.

Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia originated the idea of Mother's Day, which was observed in several cities in 1910, the custom being extended rapidly in the following years.

Congress in 1913 passed a resolution offered by Congressman J. Thos. Hefflin of Alabama (later senator) recommending observance of the day by its members and by the executive departments at Washington. In 1914 Congress authorized the President to designate the second Sunday in May of each year as Mother's Day, the first proclamation under this authority being issued by President Wilson on May 9, 1914.

Few of us reflect as often as we should on the debt of love and gratitude we owe to our mothers. By thoughts and acts of sincere affection on Mother's Day, we not only honor them, but also honor ourselves.

The Turn of The Tide

Prices have begun to rise. That is the best news the country has had in three years. The rise has started where it ought to start, with the basic products of agriculture. Wheat, cotton, corn, hogs, tobacco, rice, dairy products have all started upward. Some are rising faster than others, but all are showing an upward tendency.

We do not think that this is merely another 'false alarm.' We believe that factors have been brought into play which will put prices up still higher, until we reach somewhere near the level of 1926. That is what those in charge of the national's destinies are aiming at we are told. That would mean that the average of commodity prices, would be more than double present prices, in some instances, half to two-thirds higher in others.

Starting with the products of agriculture, the rise in prices is bound to extend to industrial products. For when the farmer begins to get a profit from his operations he can begin to pay up his back taxes and mortgage interest, to buy the commodities he and his family require. Money thus put into circulation enables others, in turn, to buy at prices which mean a profit to the seller. That means that manufacturers can start up their factories again.

We have never felt there was much to the argument that people have stopped wanting to buy things. The only reason they have stopped buying is lack of money to buy with. There is not and never has been 'over-production' in the sense that more commodities were produced than people wanted. Our whole social system is built upon multiplying wants, and as money circulates again people will gratify those wants.

Keep Those Dollars Rolling

In these days of chaotic financial conditions, those who take out of circulation the means of bolstering and restoring credit and employment, are, in effect, public enemies.

There is one kind of hoarding that prolongs depression that cannot be fought by governmental action. Millions of people in this country have good incomes—incomes which are as large or larger than ever, when the increased buying power of the dollar is considered. They have cash on hand and they can afford to spend it for necessities for themselves.

But fear, inertia, uncertainty prevent them from investing it where it can do good—where, in brief, a dollar can accomplish necessary work.

There will be fear, inertia and uncertainty in this country until something is done to provide employment to create demand for the products of farmers and industries, to step-up the general purchasing power to star slack or dollars rolling.

One of the best ways to make dollars useful is to spend them for property improvement—to paint the house put in a new furnace, install some needed electric wiring or appliance replace sagging foundations or tottering chimneys, beautify the grounds repair or replace the roof or the steps and so on.

When such things are done, dollars start rolling in an unending circle—they go into a hundred pay envelopes, touch a hundred different businesses and industries.

You can make needed repairs and build now cheaper than ever. You can secure improvements at rock-bottom prices you may never see again. And while you are benefiting yourself in this manner you are likewise doing your bit to demonstrate that regular jobs for others are better and cheaper than charity, and that without jobs there soon won't be anything left for charity.

This Week In Washington

(Autocaster Service)

Washington, May 9—The word has gone out that all of the Roosevelt program is to be rushed through Congress before the date of the World Economic Conference, which is to meet in London on June 14. A good many Senators and Representatives will want to go to London at that time, whether they are delegates to the Conference or not; and Mr. Roosevelt will, naturally, want to have some of his close advisers over there, but as long as Congress is in session he needs them here. So the big rush will be to get through and adjourn early in June, leaving less pressing matters to lie over until the regular session next December.

Another reason for the desire for an early adjournment is to give business and industry a chance to get used to the changes in conditions brought about by the new sort of laws which will all have been put in force by early June. So much of the legislation which has been adopted so far gives the President broad discretionary powers that many business leaders and industrialists are waiting to see how the President intends to use these powers before going ahead too fast with their own plans.

A Heavy Program

With the Farm Relief bill out of the way, and its attached amendments giving the President full control over currency inflation, the Muscle Shoals bill, the railroad reorganization bill, the banking reform bill including some sort of insurance to depositors, the public works bill to provide more employment, the measure for direct financial gifts to states and municipalities for unemployment relief, the measure to prevent the sale of worthless securities and the bill giving the President great authority over private industry, including the power to advance Government funds in some cases ought to provide both houses plenty of work to do in a month or so of time. On top of those it is expected that the President will ask—and receive—broad and final authority to adjust tariffs, negotiate trade treaties and make binding settlements in the matter of the war debts.

There is little doubt that Congress will continue to give Mr. Roosevelt everything he wants. There is no possible doubt that he has fired the imagination of the mass of the American people as no other President has done since the famous Teddy, and Congress knows that. There are many men in both houses, of both parties, who do not all approve all of the projects which the President has put up to them, and who see great danger in giving the Executive so much more power than the Constitution contemplated, but they do not express their opposition publicly, because they are aware that the bulk of their constituents are with the President.

Glass and Borah

Only one outstanding Democrat has had the temerity to voice his opposition to any of Mr. Roosevelt's major policies. That is Senator Carter Glass of Virginia. Mr. Glass was greatly desired by Mr. Roosevelt as Secretary of the Treasury. He declined, for reasons not clearly stated at the time mainly it was said because of his advanced age and poor health. But there was no sign of age or illness when this little giant rose in the Senate to denounce the proposal to permit the President to reduce the amount of gold in the United States dollar. Mr. Glass said that he did not object so much to the currency inflation proposals but he regarded as a dishonorable evasion of our obligations even to consider the project of paying gold debts in depreciated gold dollars.

Regardless of the firm belief of Mr. Roosevelt's friends that he will never use that power, that he only wants it for trading purposes in negotiating monetary questions with Europe, Mr. Glass was as vigorous as any man has been in Congress at any time in his opposition to the measure. He failed to carry the Senate with his, and his friends are suggesting that his defeat may impair his influence.

Another note of opposition to the Administration was sounded by Senator Borah, who challenged the right of the Government to demand the return of gold to the Treasury. 'If I hand five thousand dollars in gold I would refuse to give it up and there is no legal power to make me give up what is my own,' Senator Borah said, in effect. But that, against an overwhelming majority which will do the President's bidding whatever he asks of them.

(Concluded from Fourth page)

Trade agreements to regulate not only trade practices but prices, as well as hours of labor, are to be encouraged if not dictated by the Government. Regulations designed to give the wage-earners in industry not only good working conditions but short hours and a fairly high minimum wage appear to be a part of the program. Agreement to such regulation will undoubtedly be a condition imposed if industries are to be aided by grants of funds or credit by the Government. Similarly, regulations as to wages, hours of labor and other conditions may be imposed upon processors of agricultural products, if they do not agree voluntarily to conform to the most humanitarian standards. In this connection, there may be still hope for the rehabilitation of the New England cotton-spinning industry which has been nearly ruined by the competition of cotton-mills in the South working long hours at low wages. The main objective is to raise prices and keep them up, so that wage-standards may be kept up and the purchasing power of all the people maintained at a high level; to cut production to pretty close to our domestic needs and to open the doors to the importation of foreign goods in order to enable our foreign debtors to pay their debts to us.
