One new discovery and several more good producers in local fields are featured in program of developements in the Cross Plains oil field this week.

L. G. Bradstreet, et al, found production at 1723 feet on Sawyer wildcat six mile west of town. Wednesday night they had 300 feet of live green oil in the hole, and will complete well today. It looks like it is going to be good commercial producer.

This discovery is creating unusual interest, as it opens a new field with possibilities of extensive developments in that section.

GOV. FERGUSON TO REMAIN IN THE GOVERNORS RACE

Gov. Ferguson will not retire from gubernatorial race as stated, according to recent declarations, alleging that Moody violated election law in accepting campaign contributions from other candidates. But Moody headquarters comes back with statement that the governor did the same thing. Both cites cases as proof. And now Moody forces assert that the governor failed to file an expense report of the primary election, as required. By the time this goes to press there will probably be other charges and counter charges to make the situation more interesting-but it won't last long as Aug. 28 will soon be here.

The Water Bearer

Caleb was still bitter enough himself to feel scant sympathy with Baxter's condition, serious as Fields considered it to be. Baxter hadn't been drunk when he went to Hermanos valley to talk with Betty and her father.

Hinckley was waiting for him at the Ferry building. The engineer had managed to subtly but completely disguise himself. In old, baggy tweeds, with a shabby hat and a battered bag, he looked like an unsuccessful farmer. The keenness of his eyes was dimmed by yellow-lensed spectacles with imitation tortoise shell rims. He looked approvingly at Caleb's rough clothes. 'That's the idea. No sense in us looking like tourists or in any way prosperous or otherwise obtrusive. I'm fairly well known over there, too, and, if it got out I was smelling around the hill, the price of real estate would be apt to soar immediately. There is always the chance of Oakville learning something and suspecting more.

"There's a big lot of watershed we'll have to accumulate to insure purity. And you've got to be canny. Your role is that of a foolish young Easterner with money on whom land worth comparatively little may be unloaded at a fair price. A price they will think big until the project is complete.

"It's fair enough all round," he went "We'll pay 'em more than market value because at present there is no actual market for their land, hasn't been for years, not likely to be. The

Through the waiting room windows they could see the trans-bay passengers filing past to the exits. Caleb, released from attention to Hinckley's talk-they had stood apart from the crowd-suddenly caught his breath. Less than ten feet from him, in frort, were Betty Clinton and her father. They were going back to El Nido. That was evident and it suited Caleb. Before he returned to Golden he could carry out his intention of seeing them. Baxter could wait. So he dallied until Clinton's spare figure found a way through the thinning crowd that tailed onto the Ferry apron and, with Betty following, climbed the stairs to the upper deck. Hinckley went forward to the open end with Caleb. They were among the first off the ferry, first through the gates to their train.

Hinckley and Caleb took rooms at the same hotel that Caleb had patronized. Part of their trip was to be made in a car shabby enough to preclude any idea of wealth for its occupants, part in a buggy, on horseback, Caleb took the lead and conducted Hinckley up Hermanos canyon, into the Boca-Blanca valley, to the source of Gabilan and around about the Sink itself. The third day was given up to an inspection of the foothills that bound the Sink and a checking-up of Caleb's demonstrations in proof of the clay that underlay the gravel and lined its sides.

"I am entirely satisfied, so far," said Hinckley when they returned to their hotel after this last trip. "This is Saturday. I'd like to call a halt until Monday. I always aim at spending the week-end in the bosom of my family, if I can compass it. We have done famously. I can confirm your findings with enthusiasm, my son."

Hinckley nodded at the young man with a smile that radiated health and good nature. They had got along wonderfully in their common interest in a project that promised full success.

"Goin' to leave us?" The landlord of the hotel came out upon the verandah where Caleb and Hinckley were chatting. Rain had fallen heavily and held them indoors to check over the notes and maps they had made. Now it was clearing up.

"I'm going to Golden on the fourten," said Hinckley. "Be back Monday. Mr. Warner-are you coming with me, Warner?"

"I think not. I'll do a little fishing. Maybe take a shot at those quail we saw.on Gabilan. You'll find me here waiting for you."

"Cloudburst up country," said the hotelkeeper. "This here local rain was the tag of it. Crick's risin' fast. Black as sin over Gabilan. She's a weather-breeder, is that old mountain. Power of current comin' down stream after this little spat of weather.'

"Let's go out and have a look," suggested Hinckley.

Coyote creek had risen, was rising, in a volume that testified to the truth of the landlord's assertion that there had been a cloudburst. He accompanied them to the bridge, scorning any waterproof for the now swiftly falling rainfall and the three leaned over the rail and watched the sliding torrent of brown water. Caleb marked the waterline on the cement of the bridge abutments, noting it by certain stains in the cement. It was covered within five minutes by as many inches.

"Rising fast," he commented. "She'll rise for an hour or so after that bust," said the landlord, "She comes a kiyootin' an' a tootin' in the winter when Gabby gets to makin' rain in earnest."

Caleb saw Hinckley off. Then he ordered a lunch put up. The landlord made little comment as he handed it to

"If you aim to be out late you bet ter take a slicker along," he said. "By the feel of the air an' my rheumatic knee, old Gabby ain't through vit. Likely to be another cloudbu'st afore sundown. Elack as the inside of yore hat over thar."

Caleb thanked him and took his advice. He was bound for Hermanos stitutio valley and he crossed the bridge and started up Hermanos creek with his shoulders squared and his jaw set. Nothing was going to prevent him getting an audience with Clinton. He had certain things to set forth and, stormy though that interview would probably be in the beginning, he would let himself hold no doubt as to its favorable conclusion.

CHAPTER XII

On the Bridge

It was a five mile walk to the canyon head, another mile to the ranch. In Caleb's condition the distance, both ways, meant little. He knew the dining hour at El Nido. It was five when he set out and this should bring him to the junction of valley and canyon in the early evening. A pipe to top off his cold supper and he would arrive at the ranchhouse soon after the Clinton meal was over. So he would stand the best chance of finding both Betty and her father at home, would be apt to find Clinton in congenial mood.

The darkness deepened to premature nightfall as Caleb reached mid-canyon. The trail was dim and water, racing down the canyon sides from the storm. had rendered the track slimy and treacherous, slackening up his pace. He filled his pipe and lit it. Before the bowl was glowing evenly there came a moan from the south, the boughs above him creaked and bent protestingly and the breeze blew chilly down the trail. Leaves and twigs came fluttering down in the dusk.

Caieb put on his slicker. Thick though the leafy screen above him was, he felt sure that a heavy downpour was imminent. The first drops of it spatted heavily on the green thatch before he had gone a hundred yards. Then, suddenly, effectively, as if the bottom of some aerial cistern had given away, the rain drove down, beating through the trees in vertical lines, plumping into the swollen creek, hissing in continuous spouts that flattened thickets and pitted the soft soil. rattling on Caleb's oilskin like a discharge of small shot, with force enough to be distinctly felt.

There was little actual danger Caleb could easily scramble through the brush to immunity at any moment. And he pushed on. He could see the path fairly well though this was the twilight, hastened by the still overcast sky. He trudged on at the best pace he could muster over the slippery red soil but, when he came to the final bend, the neck of the bottle, it was so dark that he could only make out the suspension bridge by its silhouette where it crossed the gut of surging torrent, close to the foot-boards. Soon it would be over it. Caleb doubted whether the bridge would stand any great resistance to water pressure. He remembered fissures in the rocky buttresses where the cables were anchored, fissures ever widened and deepened by successive winter assaults of storm wa-He was hungry and he decided to eat his supper and wait for moonlight before he crossed the gut and struck the ridge trail down to El Nido.

By the time he had finished eating, a tremulous light above the western ridge proclaimed imminent moonrise and the efforts of the luminary to conquer the already retreating masses of cloud in their disorderly flight.

Caleb stepped onto the bridge cautiously, either hand on the guide-rope of steel wire, held up by iron stanchions that were bolted through the floor planks. The structure shud dered under his tread as he felt his way along. Suddenly the rhythm of its trembling changed and became so irregular as to force him to a standstill. The jolting increased. one else was on the bridge, coming from the valley side. Was it Padilla?

He held his ground. The boards were not wide enough to permit of two passing breast to breast. They would have to sidle about each other. If it was Padilla and the Mexican wanted to dispute the crossing, there would be trouble. Caleb was not going to turn back. He hesitated whether to call out as the other came on, his tread sounding distinctly.

Then the moon suddenly broke through its veil and sent a transient ray into the mouth of the gorge. Out of the dark, as if a spotlight had been projected against a black curtain, staring at Caleb while he stared back, leaped the face of Ted Baxter; the features incredulous at first, swiftly changing, before the light failed, to a sneering, taunting mask. His voice sounded out of the dark as the light vanished.

"What the devil are you doing up here?"

The query held a scornful emphasis that aroused in Caleb such a swift. consuming hatred in answer to the challenge, as he had never known himself capable of. This man, within reach, once his friend, had done him treacherous injury. Now was the time to strike a balance.

"I've been looking for you, Baxter," he said. "Though I didn't exactly expect to meet you here. I know everything you've done. It's opened my eyes. I had an idea that you were fairly decent, that you possessed at least some remnants of honor, some rags of friendship. You haven't got any more principles than a yellow cur. You .

"I haven't, eh?" broke in Baxter. The moon came glimmering through again, "Because I've bested you in a business deal where you thought you were so almighty smart, you get sore! You went sneaking around yourself, trading on friendship and pretending to make love to a girl, so that you could find out what you wanted about Hermanos valley and then have it condemned for a reservoir. You talking about honor! You tried to hoodwink Clinton and I found it out and saved him. Rags of friendship? You pretended to be my best friend and, when it came to a showdown, you lied to me and said you didn't have any money. Why? Because you lacked the backbone to come out and say so, because you were so d-d Yankee, afraid you might lose a penny."

A lurch of the bridge, a sudden wrench. A chilly wave slopped over the boards. It flowed about the ankles of both of them. Caleb stood with one hand free, the other on the handrope, balancing himself, whipped to fury by each word of Baxter. But he did not interrupt him. He was waiting for the light to get stronger. He could see the other but dimly, his face thrust forward, shooting out his words, trying to make them sting deeper.

"That was business and I got the best of you. To h-1 with all that! That isn't what you're sore about It's because I've cut you out with the girl. Why don't you own up to it?" Baxted laughed mockingly.

"You don't suppose, you poor boob, that she would ever look twice at a man like you as a lover. You've got diluted maple sirup in your veins. She's got blood, red, hot! I kissed her less than half an hour ago. I-Fury overmastered Caleb. Baxter had touched the sensitive core of the whole matter-Betty Clinton! leaped for his man and felt the wellaimed, smashing impact of Baxter's fists to neck and jaw as he himself drove hard to the body. But the straight punch that nearly found the fatal "point" jolted him badly and left him dizzy. He grappled to a clinch as the moon sailed out wading through a shallow sea of spindrift

VOGUE FOR THE TWO-PIECE SUIT; PARIS ACCLAIMS CLOTH COATS

A NY woman may justly take pride | in having her costume described as strictly tailored, for it is indeed very complimentary to her appearance. Oil wells and coal mines around Baird would be of more value to the town and county than the election of any man or woman governor. Prospects are good both oil, gas and coal, but just how much, is the problem yet to be solved. At present the Ace Hickman oil field, near Belle Plaine; south-east of Baird; and the Snyder field north-east of Baird are attracting the most interest just now. That there is coal, oil and gas on three sides of Baird only a few miles away is now certain. East, north-east and southeast and it may be all around us .-Baird Star.

That's fine. And speaking of coal reminds us that we have fine deposits of the said article in this section, which it would be very profitable to mine, it is believed by some who have studied the possibilities. Anyway, the coal is here and it will be of no value as long as it is buried in mother earth. And there is always a market for good coal.

SALESMANSHIP

'On their Toes" is evidenced by story going the rounds this week. It is stated that a lady from another town, who had lost her husband came into Rising Star to buy a suit in which to put him away and that one of our dry goodsmen succeeded in selling her an extra pair of trousers.-Rising Star Record.

Not a bad idea, seeing that she might need the extra pair. Perhaps she was to be the man of the house, for a season at least. Or the next husband could use them-at any rate your salesman deserves credit for being "on his toes."

There is much being said in the presabout the reckless driver and road hog but few of them are based on logic I is a complex problem— because w are all inclined to be reckless at times, at least to a degree that would not be included in the "safe and sane" column. FARMS, SAYS HENRY FORD

Henry Ford, in an interview, gives credit to the movies for having valne in the direction which we seldom think of— keeping sufficient man power on our farms to provide the necessary sustenance for the people in the cities.

A very decided drift away from the farms, Mr. Ford said, was stopped by three elements-the cheap automobile the good roads over which it might travel from the farms to the nearest village, and the movie house in that community where the farmer and his whole family might enjoy an evening's entertainment. The radio has been an aid, too, he said, but it was the moviehouse which primarily took the country people into the village, which was good for them and good for all busiesses in the community, as well.

SAFFRON SKIN FROM SOUR BILE

BOUTH GEORGIAN DRIVES OUT ENORMOUS QUANTITY SOUR BILE WITH DODSON'S LIVER TONE.

After a long period of the worst form of weakness and the terrible feeling of sickness that comes from a system loaded with sour bile, Mr. Sam Puckett says: "When I kept getting those bilious attacks reckon I took enough calomel to kill a mule. Got worse all the time. Finally I turned saffron color all over. My wife happened to read about Dodson's Liver Tone in the Weekly Constitution, so we drove to town and got a bottle. It was like magic. It drove quarts of sour bile out of me as black as ink. From that day I have felt as if I had a new liver, and whenever I begin to feel weary and bilious, with no appetite, a dose of Dodson's Liver Tone puts me to rights."

This wonderful, quick-action, liver starter ought to be in every household, if for no other reason than to stop the use of dangerous calomel. Dodson's Liver Tone is pleasant to take, even for children, and never

DEVILS HAUNT SHIP, COOLIE CREW SAYS

Seven Boarded Castle Wray in Chinese Waters.

New York .- A full share of the wonders of the deep which are seen by those who go down to the sea in ships was reported by the officers of the British cargo steamer Wray Castle, Staten Island, after half a year's voyage around the world.

They said that if the coolie members of the crew were to be believed. they were haunted by no fewer than seven malignant devils during nearly the whole of their sojourn in Chinese waters. It was only when they had reached the Indian ocean that the sallors, by setting off firecrackers, burning joss sticks and throwing overboard tempting meals of roast chicken, could persuade the evil spirits to

The Wray Castle, a sturdy 6,000-ton freighter, left New York last January, but it was not until she reached the Philippines that the presence of the lemons was suspected.

Things Happen.

While the vessel was at dock in landa an apprentice lost his balance while painting part of the superstrucure. He fell, breaking his collarbone. Shortly afterward, when the vessel had reached Shanghai, Second Officer William Spancer fell into Hatch No. 5. He was nearly killed. When, on the way south toward Singapore, several of the crew sustained minor injuries there was no longer any doubt as to what was the cause. As a result Chief Steward Wong Jong King, who has been employed by the company twenty years, held a conference with "Number One," the head Chinese. As soon as they reached Singapore the two went to the Buddhist temple, where they asked the priest to send down a "kwong-hoink-cluk man" or magician to drive

Professor Is Greatest

Linguist in Europe

Posen, Poland.-Tassilo Schultheiss, professor at the University of Posen, who is regarded as one of the greatest linguists in Europe today, knows 36 languages and 240 dialects.

Few people in Posen know him, for he leads the life of a recluse. Snowwhite hair-he is only thirty-eight years old-heightens the unusual character of his appearance.

For a number of years he was merely a modest teacher at the "gymnasium," or high school. When his unusual gifts were discovered, however, he was called to the university.

From a remote province in China there recently arrived a letter for a Posen merchant, who took it to the department of oriental languages at the university. The professors in charge pondered over the document for a week, and were about to give up in despair, when one of them remembered Schultheiss.

"Why, that's such-and-such dialect. spoken by only a few thousand people in China," he said, and locked himself up in his study for the next 56 hours. As he emerged, he was able to place a faultless translation into the hands of the Posen merchant.

$700,000 a Year Is

Cost of Sunburn Atlantic City, N. J.-Approximately

$700,000 can be saved to American employers if the practice of overexposure to the sun at beaches to gain a coat of tan is discouraged, says Dr. Charles F. Pabst, professor of skin diseases at the Greenpoint hospital, Brooklyn.

"Bathers should be warned that lying in the sun for hours at a time is a dangerous practice which often results in serious harm," said Doctor Pabst. "The skin cannot manufacture pigments quickly enough to protect one from injury unless the first exposures are of short duration and are lengthened only gradually. The sun emits more ultra-violet light during July and August than at any other time of the year. It may damage the skin cells and even produce death." Doctor Pabst estimates that 10,000 working days are lost every week of summer annually as a result of intense sunburn. Putting the average working wage at $7, he sees a loss to employers of $70,000 a week, or $700,-000 for the ten weeks of summer.

GAS WILL PROPEL LARGEST ZEPPELIN

Germans Start Drive for Funds to Complete It.

Friedrichshafen, Germany.-Work is progressing favorably on the world's largest Zeppelin-type dirigible, half again as large as the Los Angeles and designed to test the feasibility of trans-Atlantic passenger and packet

The dirigible will be the first to be propelled by gas instead of a liquid fuel, an epoch-making invention credited to the Zeppelin works chemist, Doctor Lempertz.

It will be named the "L. Z. 127." Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Los Angeles on the flight from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst in October, 1924, is in charge of the construction. The air giant will cost approximately $1,300,000, being raised by popular ubscription.

Doctor Eckener said the hydrogen content of the gas bag will be 3,800,-000 cubic feet, exceeding that of the Los Angeles by 1,400,000 cubic feet. It will be slightly longer than the Los Angeles and propelled by five 420-horse-power Maybach motors. The gas fuel, the exact composition of which remains secret, Doctor Eckener said, is more efficient than gasoline or benzol and will simplify navigation by eliminating difficulties arising from carrying heavy loads of liquid fuel and from manipulating the gas-bag content or ballast to make up for fuel consumption.

The dirigible is expected to be completed about August, 1927, though less than half the cost has been raised. A renewed patriotic effort to raise the remainder of the money is to be made this summer.

Boy Battles Seal to

Save Life of Pet Dog

New York.—The almost boundless affection of a boy for his pet dog, coupled with a fight for life between the dog and a young seal that almost resulted in the drowning of both dog. and master, furnished the material for a thrilling afternoon for Nelson Hoeft, fourteen-year-old student, and his dog Dignity Kid.

Dignity Kid and his young master went for a romp along Baker's beach. Just off shore near some rocks a young seal was disporting itself, and Dignity Kid made for the seal. With a joyful yelp he swung onto the seal's starboard flipper.

There was a series of quick canine yelps of pain, then the seal and dog disappeared. In a moment the dog's head appeared above water and he started struggling toward the beach. The seal had fastened its teeth in his hind leg.

Nelson plunged in the surf, armed with a short stick. Unmindful of the facial scratches he received as Dignity Kid's paws struck him while struggling to shake the seal off, Nelson wrapped one arm around the dog and with the stick reached down and made a quick lunge that broke the Nelson was sixty yards from shore and tiring rapidly. He was unable to make it, but he refused to let go his pet. He called for help.

Jack Bernstein and Louis Texter, both members of Company L, Thirtieth infantry were swimming at the other end of Baker's beach. They heard the cries and in a moment had both boy and dog ashore.

Sword That Opened Way Into Florida, 1565, Back

New York .- The sword that led the way of civilization into Florida came back to America recently, after an absence of more than three centuries.

The sword is that carried by Pedro Menendez de Aviles, Spanish mariner, who founded St. Augustine in 1565. It was carried down a gangplank from the liner Manuel Arnus by Cesar de Madariaga, royal commissioner general from Spain to the Sesquicentennial exhibition at Philadelphia. The weapon, with a blade 31/2 feet long, has been in the Naval museum at Madrid since its owner died.

With the sword came a collection of tapestries and Spanish art, valued at $30,000,000, all to be exhibited in the Andalusian pavilion at the sesquicentennial.

GREAT READING DAM WILL FLOOD GRAVES

Old Cemeteries.

Reading, Pa.-Construction of the huge Maiden creek dam by the city of Reading, the contract for which was awarded to the McLean Construction company of Baltimore, at a bid of $398,000, will wipe out two rural cemeteries. Actual work will be started shortly and the dam will back up the waters of the creek, covering parts of three townships, to serve as an impounding reservoir to take care of Reading's water needs for many years. The descendants of the Maiden creek ploneers feel keenly the desecration of their cemeteries. Many of the residents of Maiden Creek, Ontelaunee and Richmond townships have relatives buried in the plot at the Friends' meeting house or in Forney's cemetery, both of which are included in the area proposed to be flooded. Goes Back to 1730.

The burial plot of the Friends' meeting house dates back to 1730, with interments as recently as two years ago. The first burials were made in unmarked graves. The faith of those worshiping there forbids any showing whatsoever, with the result that no tombstones were erected to mark the last resting place of the pioneer settlers of the section. Since the cemetery is to be relocated it will mean that the entire plot to a depth of at least six or seven feet will have to be gone over, as it is impossible to locate all the graves. Only the more and we question all their answered recent are marked. It is this that Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph. disturbs those who have relatives interred there.

The parents of State Secretary of Agriculture Frank P. Willits and Williams Willits, an implement dealer, at Calcium, are buried in the old graveyard. Both men made a plea before the state water power and resources board to save the cemetery, but the board granted the permit to the city to proceed with the work of erecting the dam. Many other descendants of the pioneers of the Maiden creek region had representatives at the hearing before the state board, some of housewife. Keep them in that condirefused to delay the matter of water tisement. supply.

Forney's graveyard is a family plot and is located on the farm of Jacob Forney. The entire farm will be taken by the city and the burial plot will have to be relocated. This has been the burial place for the family for a number of generations and always has been maintained in first-class con-

Historic Landmark.

The destruction of the Friends' meeting house will remove an historic landmark. It was erected in 1730 by the Society of Friends and has weathered the storms of almost two centuries. In late years it has been used as a place of worship, but hardly a day passes that one or more descendants of those responsible for its creation do not visit the hallowed spot.

Down through the ages the old meeting house has stood as a monument to the efforts of the Lightfoots, Starrs, Parvins, Wylers, Penroses, Lees, Houltons and others, who were among the first settlers. They blazed the trail in an uncleared land and, after many years, were successful in giving Berks one of the most productive agricultural sections, only to have their descendants view the disturbance of the remains resting for more than a century in the burial plot.

The erection of the impounding dam is a big undertaking and has been under consideration for some time by the city council. It will solve Reading's water-supply problem for many years to come.

Intermarriage Blots

Out Hawaiian Races

Honolulu.-If interracial marriages in Hawali continue at the present rate, it will be a wise child, after a few generations, who even knows to what race his ancestors belonged, in the belief of Dr. Romanso Adams, head of the department of sociology at the University of Hawaii.

Thirty-five per cent of the marriages of white men in the islands are with women of other races, Doctor Adams said. More white men than women contract interracial marriage, because there are more white men here, owing to the presence of large numbers of soldiers.

The pure-blooded Hawaiians and Portuguese are disappearing, he said, while the part-Hawaiian and the part-Portuguese groups are growing,

"You're gentle now—you're not four months old yet.

"Cubs are quite harmless when they are so young-quite, quite harmless. "Yes, they are quite harmless and playful and friendly.

"But even though the day will not come when you'll go hunting through the forests, still the day will come when you will grow into wild lions.

"You won't be baby cubs any more. "No, you will roar and show your teeth and your eyes will flash with anger even if you can't go a-hunting

"For even if you're zoo cubs you are your mother's own little lions and a good one, as it would result in wastyou'll become great, fierce lions some

"Oh yes, you will, my darlings, my gentle playful little cub darlings.

'You'll be wilder when you're older. "Mother Lion is thankful to think of that. Some mothers may hope their children will not be so wild when they grow up.

"They may hope they will be quiet and gentle and sweet and all such

"But Mother Lion doesn't hope that, "Oh no, she hopes her children will be wild, good and wild, good and wild. "So feel playful now if you will. "Feel gentle now if you will. It will not worry your Mother Lion.

"For she knows how you will turn

"Oh, dear, I only wish you were going to know the forests I have known. 'I only wish you could have had the beautiful times in those forests I have

"I only wish you could just see them -then you would know why Mother Lion looks over the heads of the peoole and her eyes seem to be so far, far away.

"Maybe you will understand somewhat anyway-because you are my own little cubs."

Charged Candy to Himself

Three-year-old Bobby had formed the habit of calling daily at the corner grocery and returning with candy which was charged to his parents.

His parents remonstrated, but the reproof was directly followed by a repetition of the act. This time Bobby forestalled the lecture which he could see by his mother's face was coming, "Now, you needn't say a word; J charged it to myself."

JETHRO'S WISE COUNSEL

LESSON TEXT-Exodus 18:1-27. GOLDEN TEXT-To every man his Work.
PRIMARY TOPIC-Jethro Helps

Moses.
JUNIOR TOPIC-Jethro Gives Moses Good Advice.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Being Helpers.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-

1. Jethro's Visit to Moses (vv. 1-6).

1. The occasion (v. 1). Upon the receipt of the news of the marvelous deliverance of the Israelites from the Egyptians, Jethro went out to meet Moses.

2. The object (vv. 2-4),

IC-Organizing for Service.

It was to bring to Moses his wife and children. When God called him to Egypt to deliver His people Moses did not deem it wise to take his wife and children, therefore left them with his

3. The place (vv. 5, 6). At Mount Sinal where the Israelites were encamped.

II. Moses' Reception of Jethro (vv. 7-12).

1. He bowed to him and kissed him (v. 7). Moses not only honored him as his father-in-law, but as a priest of Midian. Jethro, though outside of the covenant people, evidently retained proofs fore him did. 2. Moses rehearsed to him the wonders which God had wrought through him (v. 8).

of the true God as Melchisedec be-

It is through the testimony of those who have experienced the wonders of God's grace that men come to know the true God.

3. Jethro's response (vv. 9-12). (1) He rejoiced for all the goodness which the Lord had done to Israel. whom He had delivered out of the hand of the Egyptians (v. 9).

(2) He blessed the Lord (v. 10). He not only praised the Lord for His deliverance of his son-in-law from the Egyptians, but for the deliverance of the people of Israel from their bond-

(3) He confessed the supremacy of the Lord (v. 11). He said, "Now I know that the Lord is greater than

(4) He offered sacrifices to God (v. 12). We are unable to determine the degree of intelligence of this worship, but he evidently out of a sincere heart made this offering.

III. The Occasion (vv. 13-18). 1. After Jethro came to Moses he observed how completely Moses' time was taken in judging Israel. When he saw the greatness of the task, he inquired as to why he was doing the work all alone. Moses explained to him that his task was not merely a matter of judging, but of teaching the statutes and laws of God to the people. Jethro recognized Moses' motive, but insisted that his method was not ing his strength. 2. Jethro's plan (vv. 19-23).

(1) Moses was to be unto the people Godward-to bring their causes unto God and teach them the ordinances and laws, to show them the way wherein they must walk and the work they must do (vv. 19, 20).

(2) Suitable men should be provided as rulers over thousands, hundreds, fifties and tens (v. 21). All great matters should be disposed of by Moses, and all subsidiary matters should be adjusted by these judges.

(3) Qualifications of these subordinate judges (v. 26).

(a) They were to be "able men," that is, men of strength. They must be men of such intellectual power as to enable them to understand the problems presented, and of such will power as to execute the judgments rendered. (b) "Such as fear God." This is the basis of true strength. (c) "Men of truth." This means men who are able to discern truth, men who love truth, men who tell the

(d) "Hating covetousness." These men must be haters of unjust gain. The man who is to be a ruler of the people must be free from the suspicion of following his profession because of personal gain.

IV. Moses Accedes to Jethro's

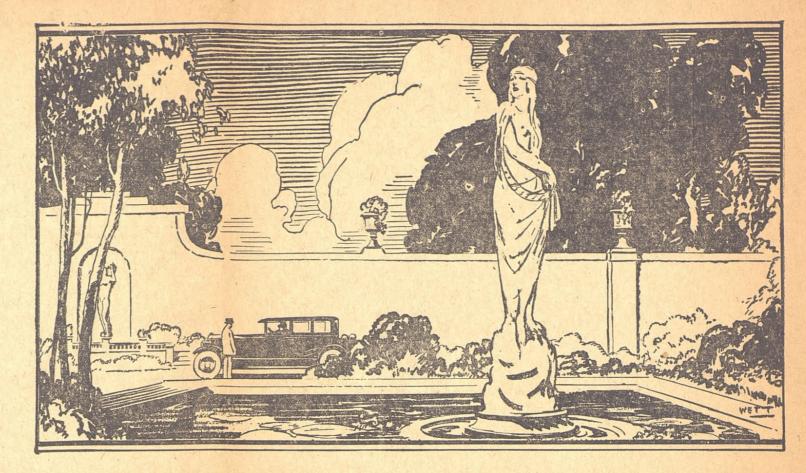

Counsel (vv. 24-27). This common-sense advice made a response in Moses' heart. He recognized that God was speaking through Jethro. According to Deut. 1:9-18 the people selected the judges and Moses appointed them. When this work had been done according to Jethro's advice, he took his departure, going into Lesson From the Son of God The highest service may be prepared for and done in the humblest surroundings. In silence, in waiting, obscure, unnoticed. In years of uneventful, unrecorded duties, the Son of God grew and waxed strong.

It is the invention of Lieut, James H. Doolittle of the engineering division of the army air service, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine, and it is placed under the pilot's seat. Stresses and strains on his body are butlined on a small strip of film.

Lieutenant Doolittle has found that a flyer can stand instantaneous movements of the plane without ill effects, but comparatively slower dips and dives, if continued several seconds, sometimes cause him to lose his faculties. In rounding a pylon at high speed, for instance, the blood is driven to the feet. A pilot in the pink of condition can stand this, but about 12 seconds is the limit for the week-end."

There is an easy way to get rid of curculios, which are the pests that spoil plums on the trees. These pests are almost dormant early in the morning, and if the trees are jarred sharply most of them will come tumbling to the ground. The jarring is done readily enough without damage to the trees by using a stout pole, one end of which is wrapped with burlap or old blankets.
