Mook-Texas Co. are completing their Baum No. 1, west of town. It was drilled deeper Tuesday and the oil and gas flow increased. Some believe the well when completed will make a good producer, probably making a hundred barrel well or better. It has created much excitement, and leases and royalties are going at a premium, it is reported.

Milham Oil Co. will spud this week on John Barr lease three miles west.

The Hudson heirs are spudding on their estate seven miles northwest.

Humble Oil Co. on Harrell ranch south of town are drilling at 2930.

Cranfill-Reynolds on E. F. Bond estate are drilling at 1300 feet on No. 15 and 1100 on No. 16.

Several wells are expected in in the Cross Cut section and next week we will try to have report on all sections. Operators remain active with developments. As a whole the field here is very promising.

W. R. Wagner is building two residences in south part of town, just south east of Baldwin Lumber Co. He has already rented them, but others who do not know it continue to see him about renting them. There is a big demand for houses, as all men move their families here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wyatt saw foot ball game at Cisco Friday.

The Rising Star Wildcats, defeating all opponents in their district in class B football, met first defeat at Abilene when they were eliminated from the contest by the Interscholastic League Committee. It seems that De Leon protested on grounds that several ineligible men were playing on the Wildcat squad and the committee sustained their protest. DeLeon and Gorman were tied for honors, and in a game last Thursday the championship went to De Leon. They will now meet champions of other districts.

Coach Williams of the Wildcats has thrown out a challenge to all comers irrespective of class. However this week closes the regular season. There are several big championship games on schedule with the majors.

THE CONTINENTAL OIL CO. COMING HERE

The Continental Oil Co. of Texas, formerly the Texoma Oil Co. are putting in wholesale distributing agency and supply station here. Their warehouse and tanks will be located just west of depot. L. E. Haynes of this city will be in charge of this new agency. They expect to be ready for business by the first of December, if the weather permits. They now have their building under construction. This is the third big Oil Company to establish distributing point with agency here. The other two being the Magnolia Petroleum Co., and the Gulf Refining Company.

Americans Big Losers in Casinos of France

Nice, France.—It is estimated that American visitors lost $3,240,000 francs in the Riviera casinos last year. The "kitties" of the various casinos amounted to $3,100,000 francs, 40 per cent of which is figured to have come from American pocketbooks.

The municipal casino of Cannes led all the others in paying local and state taxes on a total bank's percentage of $2,304,000 francs. The municipal casino of Nice was second with 26,280,000 francs, while the other casino at Nice, the Promenade Jetty casino, was third with 10,481,000 francs.

Monte Carlo casino, which is not a French casino, had a yearly "kitty" of 112,550,000 francs. (The franc at present is worth about 3/4 cents.)

No Wonder

New York.—Lucrezia Bori of the Metropolitan spends more than $25,000 a year on her stage wardrobe and $15,000 for other clothes. And so, she says, that's why she's always poor. The company would provide costumes for her, but she prefers to design and buy her own.

BAILEY—CRABB WEDDING

One of the most elaborate social events of the year in Cross Plains was the wedding of Mr. Richard T. Bailey of Comanche and Miss Vernie Crabb, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Crabb which took place at six o'clock Wednesday evening, Nov. 17.

The ceremony was performed in the First Baptist church. The large platform of the church was converted into a beautiful garden setting for the wedding party, being decorated with a profusion of greenery and vari colored chrysanthemums. An improvised archway of greenery and chrysanthemums was formed in front of a long mirror which stood at the of the platform. After the entire Bridal party had passed under this archway to form a semi-circle, the Bride and Groom met there and the Reverent S. P. Collins, pastor of the First Presbyterian church read the impressive ring ceremony.

The wedding music was given by Mrs Tom Bryant, Miss Mayme Coppinger and Miss Maxine Gwin. Just prior to the ceremony Mrs Bryant sang "Because" accompanied at the piano by Miss Coppinger. Miss Coppinger played the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin as the processional and Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played as the recessional. During the ceremony she played "To A Wild Rose" with violin obbligata by Miss Gwin.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, A. G. Crabb, was never lovelier than on her wedding day. She wore an imported gown of white satin embroidered in rhinestones and pearls. Her full court train, studded in rhinestones and pearls, hung from the shoulders and over this floated her long tulle veil which was fashioned in Dutch cap style with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of brides roses showered with valley lilies. The bride's only ornament was a Cameo pin, an heirloom in her mother's family, it being her great grand-mother's wedding gift from her great grand-father.

The bride's attendants were Miss Lucile McElhannon, of Fort Worth, maid of honor; Mrs. A. F. Lutgens her sister, and Mrs. Russell McGowen, matrons of honor; Misses Mary Moragne and Billie Brunstford of Fort Worth, bridesmaids; Little Cheryl Lutgens and Mozelle Lowe, flower girls; and little Marguerite Mizell Young, ring bearer. The bridegroom's attendants were Melvin H. Crabb of Eldorado, Russell McGowen, Luther Marrs of Moody, and Renerick Clark. The best man was Buell Benham.

Miss McElhannon wore peach georgette crepe embroidered in pearls and carried an arm bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

Miss Moragne and Miss Brunstford wore frocks with basque bodices and bouffant skirts of French blue taffeta and apple green georgette respectively, and carried arm bouquets of pink chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Lutgens' gown was a flesh georgette with mirror trimmings and Mrs. McGowen wore a frock of orchid taffeta and tulle. Their flowers were arm bouquets of Russell roses.

The little flower girls wore pink taffeta frocks and scattered rose petals from French baskets tied with tulle.

The little ring bearer wore a dainty frock of yellow crepe Sonio with trimmings of orchid and yellow tulle and carried the ring in a large orchid chrysanthemum.

After the wedding a reception was

PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Harry Ormerod, long proscribed traitor to King George as a Stuart partisan, returning from France to London, rescues Alderman Robert Juggins from a band of assassins. Juggins proves to be the grandson of a former steward of Ormerod's father, to whom Juggins feels himself indebted. Ormerod tells Juggins he has abandoned the Stuart cause. Juggins informs Ormerod of a Jacobite plot in the American colonies to weaken England by forwarding French interests. At its head is Andrew Murray, a Scotsman, and a Frenchman, De Veulle, deadly enemy of Ormerod. The two are in London furthering their schemes. Anticipating the plotters' early return to America, Juggins arranges for Ormerod to go there with letters to Governor Burnet, friend of Juggins, and work to foil Murray. Disguised as Juggins' servant, Ormerod arranges to take passage to America. On the ship he meets a girl, Murray's daughter, ardent Jacobite, who believes him to be loyal to the Stuarts. De Veulle recognizes Ormerod and exposes him. Taken by surprise, Ormerod is thrown overboard by the negro, Tom, but regains the deck safely.

I looked around me, noting that the watch were all ensconced upon the forecastle or the poop. Then I remembered that ranged around the bottoms of the masts were long handbars of wood, iron-tipped, which were used in making fast the sail-ropes. I ran across to the mainmast and tore one from its slot.

Nobody had yet seen me in the pitch darkness, and I stole across the deck to the door which gave entrance to the poop, my water-soaked shoes quite soundless. The door was ajar, and I opened it very carefully, listening to the murmur of voices in the main cabin. Murray and De Veulle were sitting on the bench which ran across the stern, the table in front of them littered with cards. So much I saw when the entrance into the main cabin was darkened by the body of the negro, Tom.

He saw me descending the stairs, and apparently took me to be one of the officers coming off watch. At any rate, he stepped back into the cabin and stood there, waiting to give me room. The passage was not more than fifteen or sixteen feet long, and as I approached him I smelled again that rancid, musky odor—the body smell, as I afterward discovered, of the savage, black or red—which had overwhelmed my nostrils just before I was pitched over the side.

"Twas that decided me. I took a firm grip on my improvised club and, stepping into the pool of light in the main cabin, swung square around, face to face with Tom. He threw up both hands and staggered back with a wild scream of terror, eyes popping from his ashen-gray face.

I gave him no time for recovery, but brought down the iron-tipped end of the handbar with all my force against his skull. The blow would have killed any save a black man. I meant to kill him. As it was, he dropped like a slaughtered ox, and lay in a crumpled heap of tawdry finery on the floor.

Doors banged in the passage, and I stepped to one side, setting my back to the bulkhead, the while I fastened my eyes upon the startled amazement with which Murray and De Veulle regarded me. 'Twas Murray recovered first.

"Zooks," he remarked, taking snuff with his usual precision. "It seems that Tom is growing in the way of making mistakes."

"Aye, and such mistakes are like to react upon others," I replied fiercely. "If I were a refugee from justice, I should be careful how I threatened law-abiding subjects," he answered calmly. "Well, well, it seems we have more company."

I followed his glance to the passage, where stood the girl, whilst over her shoulder peered the square, puzzled features of my silent cabin mate, Master Ringham.

"What hath happened?" he asked. "Is the negro dead?"

"I think so," I said. "He—"

"Not he," corrected Murray cheerfully. "You know not Tom, good Master Ormerod. He hath a skull on him can be only be opened with blasting-powder."

"It matters little," I returned. "The rascal attacked me above, Master Ringham. I pursued him down here. There is naught more to be said. I will settle with his master."

The second mate looked questioningly toward Murray. I hated to compromise so, but I had not missed the veiled threat he had addressed to me nor his use of the name Ormerod. Remember, I was still known to the crew as Juggins.

I was uncertain what attitude the captain might take if he was told that I was a political refugee. There might be a reward at stake—and sailors were human like other men.

"Why, that is fairly spoken," rejoined Murray, somewhat to my surprise. "I know naught of the circumstances, Master Ringham, but perhaps I may settle with your friend here. As for the negro, I will attend to him."

"There must be no more violence," warned Ringham, his eyes on me, his words addressed to all of us.

"Violence," rejoined Murray jovially. "Let us reject the idea altogether. Why should we disdain sweet reason's rule? Eh? Master Ormerod—Juggins?"

I bowed ironically.

Ringham nodded and clumped back to his bunk. But the girl stood her ground, her eyes accusing all of us.

"Well, Marjory," said Murray pleasantly, "and do you plan to join in our debate?"

That was the first time I heard her name, and—why, I cannot say—I heard it without surprise, as if I had always known it to be hers. It suited her, as names sometimes express the character and appearance of their possessors.

"What hath happened?" she asked in the same words the second mate had used.

"You have heard," said Murray. She shook her head.

"That is not all. This—" she hesitated—"gentleman's clothes are wet. Tom does not attack people without orders."

Murray shrugged his shoulders. De Veulle answered her, leaning across the table, his eyes burning with hatred for me.

"You know what this man hath done, mademoiselle," he cried. "You know his record in the past. You know that he comes with us to spy out our plans, to thwart, it may be, what we undertake to do. Is any fate too hard for him? Why should you concern yourself?"

"Then there has been fighting?" she asked.

I could stand it no longer.

"Fighting?" I snapped. "And, if you call assassination fighting. An attack in the dark upon an unarmed man, throwing him overboard to drown as you might a blind puppy, never a chance for his life?"

"Yet you are here, sir?" she said quietly.

"This only by the intervention of Providence that I was saved—or the untidiness of our captain, who left a rope trailing over the side. God hath protected me against your father's—"

"My father?" she repeated questioningly.

"Well, what is he?" I returned cuttingly. "Mayhap you have some pet name for a parent who practices assassination. Did not you yourself say Tom never acted without orders?"

"But—"

"And, furthermore, if this case is not enough, let me tell you that this man here—I pointed to Murray; for some reason I disliked to call him her father, even in wrath—"set a gang of ruffians to murder a friend of mine in London."

Murray rose from his seat behind the table.

"Your proof, sir?" he asked coldly.

"Proof?" I answered weakly. "Why, I was there!"

"Aye, sir," he rejoined with dignity. "But your proof that I hired assassins? Could you prove before the captain or any court of law?"

I saw the twinkle in his eyes and knew that he was playing with me.

"No," I said shortly. "I could not prove it. I have no witnesses."

"And you could not even go into a court of law," he pursued, "for you are an outlaw, denied benefit of law or clergy."

"Yes," I flared in answer; "and you, sir, what think you might be your fate in New York if I denounce you to Governor Burnet for attempted murder? Would he make use of the opportunity—or no?"

The realization of this trump card I held had come to me in a flash of inspiration. Now it lay face up for all to see, and there could be no doubt it gave my enemies cause for uneasiness.

"I do not think I am so weakly situated as you had supposed," I mocked him. "Aye, you may denounce me to the captain for a Jacobite conspirator, and it may be he will see fit to believe you. You are three to my one. But when we reach New York, and I am brought before the officers of the Crown, I may have a different story to tell. Think you the governor would be loath to implicate a French officer and the man who is leading the fight against his struggle to control the fur trade?"

Murray nodded his head slowly, and sank back in his seat.

"Sure, you are a lad after my own heart," he said. "That was well thought of. 'Tis checkmate—for this present. We must have a truce."

But he reckoned without Marjory. She stood forward in the center of the cabin, passionate indignation shaking her whole figure.

"Oh, why do you talk like this?" she exclaimed. "Are we criminals that we must bargain with a criminal?"

I had not made any headway in regaining her good opinion, 'twas evident, and that must be the excuse for my barbed retort.

"You show unwonted sensibility, my lady," I said. "Sure, no men with good consciences would stoop to bargain with such as I!"

"I fear me, Marjory," said Murray gently, "that you have no appreciation of the tangled path which must be trod by those who concern themselves with affairs of state. The good and the bad are strangely intermingled. Sometimes we must consort with those we despise in order to gain a good cause. 'Tis not we who count, who are but pawns; but the cause we serve."

He turned to me.

"It seems, then, Master Ormerod, that we must proclaim a truce for the time being. But the truce holds good only for the period of our voyage together?"

"That is understood," I agreed. His eyes hardened.

"Did you ever hear of the Red Death and the Black Death, Master Ormerod?"

"I shook my head, puzzled.

"You have met the Black Death. You have yet to meet the Red Death. And you may meet the Black Death again," he added as Tom groaned where he lay on the floor.

Marjory shuddered.

"Enough of this!" she exclaimed. "Is it understood there is to be no killing on this ship?"

"It is, my dear," Murray responded. "And now I think you had best withdraw. This has been a trying interview for you, I fear."

She looked from one to the other of us, as if half in doubt; and then gathered her cloak around her. We all three, as with one accord, bowed low as she stepped into the passage.

One day followed another and one week ran into the next as the New Venture made her southing and bore toward the new world. We who shared the tiny quarters under the poop contrived to live together without further quarrels. The girl—I called her Marjory in my thoughts—ignored my existence. She spent much of her time with De Veulle, walking the deck with him, reading or playing at cards. I liked to think she did it to provoke me.

With Murray my relations were outwardly friendly. He liked much to talk, and indeed he demonstrated a considerable acquaintance with the great men of his period. But he never dropped a hint concerning the enterprise in which he was now engaged. Nor for that matter did he refer to the enmity between us or the bargain we had made until the day we sailed through the Narrows, the entrance to New York's Inner harbor.

"We part for a time, Master Ormerod," he said, coming upon me where I leaned on the railing in the waist of the ship. "Our truce expires when we disembark."

Of the part played by Chance in arranging meetings that alter the course of lives, Ormerod is to be convinced, as the next installment of this narrative proves.

Clock Could Do Most Everything but Talk

A clock that showed the motions of the sun, marked the years and some historical events was completed by Felix Meyer of New York in 1880 after 10 years' work and experimenting. It showed local time, the hours, minutes, seconds, the days of the weeks and months, the seasons, the signs of the zodiac, the revolution of the earth around the sun and on its own axis, the movements of the planets around the sun and the phases of the moon. It showed the difference in time at Washington, San Francisco, Chicago, Calro, Melbourne, Constantinople, Peking, London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna and St. Petersburg (Leningrad). A child struck the quarter hour, a youth the half hour, an old man the three-quarters and death the hour; while Washington rose from his seat and, extending his right hand, presented the Declaration of Independence, a servant entered the door and all the Presidents of the United States entered and saluted Washington and passed out through another door.

Sport With Dragon Flies
 One of the most popular amusements among Japanese boys is the sport of catching dragon flies on long poles smeared with lime. When the insects are captured, they are tied with fine string and flown from the sticks. The dragon fly is known to almost every part of the world except the polar regions, more than twenty-one hundred species being classified. A peculiarity of some kinds is that they choose a favorite twig on which to roost and always return to it even after long excursions after food.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

QUEER QUIRKS IN HUMAN DESTINY

Wreck of the White Ship
 HIGH hopes of a mighty monarch were blasted and England suffered grievously for many years because a fledgling prince once chose an unfortunate time for a spree.

Henry I, king of England and duke of Normandy, was ready to return to England, when a mariner, Thomas Fitzstephens, begged him to make the voyage aboard his vessel, the White Ship, representing that his father had steered William the Conqueror to England. King Henry declined, but agreed that his son and heir, Prince William, should be Fitzstephens' passenger.

The White Ship, at Prince William's order, delayed its sailing while the rest of the fleet departed. The prince then invited all hands to drink. Revelry ran high until midnight, when the White Ship finally sailed. The proud Fitzstephens, rather the worse for wine, deviated from the course and ran his vessel on the rocks just outside the harbor.

In the midst of the panic that followed, Prince William and a few nobles were disembarked in the only small boat available, but the cries of his sister, the countess of Perch, touched the prince's heart and he returned for her. Hundreds of frantic passengers leaped for the small boat and it was swamped. Only one survivor, a butcher of Rouen, lived to tell the story.

King Henry heard the news and never smiled again. Before his death he named his daughter, Matilda, as his successor, though female succession had never been recognized by Normans. Stephen, nephew of Henry, seized the throne and civil war ravaged England.

King Stephen proved too weak to govern and feudalism revived. Robbery, rapine and cruel bloodshed prevailed for many years until, upon the death of Stephen, Henry II, son of Matilda, and descended on his father's side, according to legend, from a Breton woodcutter, ascended the throne as the first of the Plantagenet rulers.

Cackling of Geese Saved Rome

Few events of history have hung upon a stranger twist of fate than the recovery of Rome by the arms of Furio Camillus in the early days of the city's glory. The cackling of geese saved Rome.

Plutarch relates that Camillus was a wise and valorous leader, who lost his popularity with the people of Rome because of his stern sense of justice. Facing conviction on a trumped-up charge, Camillus went into voluntary banishment. On leaving Rome, he called upon the gods to avenge the injustice done him.

Soon thereafter the Romans were defeated in the battle of Alliensis by the Gauls of Brennus. The wayward Romans would not yield obedience to leaders, preferring to fight in straggling disorder. Survivors fled ten miles to Rome and prepared to stand siege in the capitol, leaving the city to the mercy of the conquerors, who burned it, slaying all those who had not found sanctuary within the capitol situated upon a high hill. One night a messenger from Roman refugees in Ardea slipped into the city and scaled the steep hill to the capitol. Next day the Gauls found traces of his visit and determined to follow the same path in a surprise attack upon the beleaguered Romans.

Nimble mountaineers escaped the steep cliff and were about to fall upon the sleeping garrison when the sacred geese in the capitol rendered more than usually watchful by hunger, set up a cackling which roused the Romans. The Gauls were repulsed and the capitol held.

In the meantime, Camillus, greatest of living military leaders, had volunteered to lead the Ardeatians against marauding Gauls and had scored a great victory. Fugitive Romans gathered about his standard and persuaded him to march against the victorious Gauls in Rome. He defeated Brennus and relieved the capitol about the Ides of February, seven months after the barbarians had entered the city.

Sifted Opinions

Think ye are men, deem it not impossible for you to err; sift impartially your own hearts, whether it be force or reason or vehemency of affection, which hath bred and still doth feed these opinions in you. If truth do anywhere manifest itself, seek not to smother it with glossing delusions, acknowledge the greatness thereof, and think it your best victory when the same doth prevail over you.—Richard Hooker.

Recipe for Ideal Life

In the effort to appreciate various forms of greatness, let us not underestimate the value of a simply good life. Just to be good, to keep life pure from degrading elements, to make it constantly helpful in little ways to those who are touched by it, to keep one's spirit always sweet, and avoid all manner of petty anger and irritability—that is an ideal as noble as it is difficult.—Edward Howard Griggs

EXPERIENCE OF WESTERN GIRL
Found Cannery Work Too Tiring

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible through the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments; Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 652 North Front St., Salem, Oregon.

Girls who work in factories know just how Miss Schmidt felt. Perhaps they, too, will find better health by taking the Vegetable Compound.

THANKSGIVING

Thursday, Nov. 25, is Thanksgiving Day and truly we have much to be thankful for. God, our Creator has been good to us and let us bow our heads on this day and offer thanks unto Him. We should do that every day, but especially at this time, let's not forget to acknowledge His many favors and blessings.

God has given this nation power, wealth, influence and prestige which no other nation on earth enjoys so fully - and with this comes great opportunities and responsibilities, and as a christian nation, let us remember - always remember, that He who reigns on high, controls our destiny and that as a nation and individual we should honor him. Give Thanks unto him today.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

The Inquisition

"I HAVE depopulated happy villages, rich towns and fertile districts of my beloved country in the holy name of religion," wrote Queen Isabella of Spain in the last part of the Fifteenth century.

But the religion of which she spoke was not one based upon the Scriptures, nor upon the creeds of either Catholics or Protestants, nor of any other branch of the Church of Christ. It was a man-made dogma, with torture and intimidation for basis.

In 1480 the Inquisition, or "Holy Office," as it was termed, was organized in Spain. The Spanish nation was almost at the height of its greatness. The marriage of Ferdinand and Isabella had united the mighty provinces of Castile and Aragon. There were thousands of Moors (Mahometans from Africa) and other non-Christians throughout the country. These were, in many cases, rich and powerful. The church feared that Christianity's supremacy was in danger. Hence the great body of Moors were driven out! and those who remained, as well as followers of other religions, were forced, on pain of death, to embrace Christianity. Then the Inquisition turned its attention to so-called heretics, and Spain gained a reputation for heartless cruelty from which it has never wholly recovered.

At Seville, in 1481, the Inquisition began its actual work. During that year, in Seville, alone, 298 victims were burned. Throughout all the nation about 2,000 suffered a like fate. Thomas of Torquemada, a Dominican, was made president of the holy office. He and his successor, Cardinal Ximenes, made it a national institution whose name aroused panic and hatred in every district of Spain and aroused even the callous Fifteenth century Englishmen to indignation.

The Inquisition's mode of procedure was unique. A man, woman or child was suspected of heresy, seized and subjected to an irregular preliminary examination. Then all the evidence and suspicious circumstances in the case were submitted to a higher body. The members of this, fearing lest their own holy zeal might otherwise be questioned, usually decided against the prisoner. The latter was then locked up in solitary confinement and a sort of "third degree" was applied to force a confession of guilt and to enroll the victim as a "penitent." If no confession was forthcoming the most horrible tortures were applied.

Most of these tortures were of too atrocious a nature to bear description. A few of the less unspeakable were the "thumb-screw," the "boot," the "rack" and the "virgin." The thumb-screw and boot crushed the fingers and feet, respectively, to a jelly. The rack was an apparatus to which a prisoner was strapped while every joint was stretched and twisted until sinews were torn apart and bones crushed. The "virgin" was a hollow image lined with spikes. The victim was placed within it and the spikes driven slowly into his flesh. In these hideous ways did the Inquisitors of Spain seek to enforce the gentle doctrines of peace, forgiveness and love.

If the suspect still refused to confess he was carried to the highest court of the Inquisition, and there, for the first time, he heard the charges against him and was allowed to reply to them. Heretofore, he had had no clear idea of what particular crime he was accused. The defense was usually a mere mockery. If the victim had wealthy friends he could appeal to Rome. Thus, while the local Inquisition confiscated the captive's property, the papal headquarters also got his friends' money.

In the rare cases of acquittal there was no redress for torture, imprisonment and loss of fortune. If convicted, the condemned heretic was burned alive. The motto of the holy office was "Misericordia et Justitia"—"Mercy and Justice!"

Such horrors drove people from the country by the hundred thousand. In seventy years the hitherto increasing population of Spain dropped from 10,000,000 to 6,000,000. Trade, agriculture, manufactures and all industries were brought to a standstill. Whole districts were depopulated.

But there is, perhaps, no great evil without some compensating good. While the reign of terror was at its height a golden gateway of escape opened to westward. America was discovered. In the new land men might hope to live reasonably free from the demoniacal tortures of the Inquisition. Accordingly the maltreated Spaniards flocked thither in thousands. Towns, villages and rural districts in the New World were speedily filled by the refugees.

In considering the Inquisition it must not, for a moment, be imagined that the holy office had the approval of Christians at large, or that it reflected discredit on the true tenets of the church. There can be no great and holy cause that does not somewhere lead to abuses and misrule. So the medieval Spaniards merely used Christianity as an instrument wherewith to wreak their own cruelty and injustice.

And, after all, were their crimes so much more atrocious than the slaying of crazy old women as witches by the pious Puritans of New England or the wholesale slaughter of innocent Moslem children by Godfrey de Bouillon and the holy Crusaders?

SO GOOD

When serving wild duck, garnish with slices of orange unpeeled and garnished with sprigs of parsley. The slightly acid fruit adds to the flavor of the duck. As a salad to serve with duck, oranges are especially good; serve with French dressing.

Orange and Rhubarb Ice.

Combine one cupful of orange juice with three and one-half cupfuls of cooked sliced rhubarb, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, the grated rind of an orange and one and three-quarters cupfuls of sugar. Stir until well dissolved, then freeze as usual.

Apple Fritters.—Mix and sift together one and one-third cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, add one well-beaten egg and two-thirds of a cupful of milk; mix all together. Cut two medium-sized apples into eighths, stir into the batter. Drop by spoonfuls into hot fat and fry until brown. Roll in powdered sugar and serve with meat at dinner.

Swiss Cheese Savory.—Dip round slices of bread in melted butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper and a little lemon juice. Put one-half pound of Swiss cheese through the meat grinder, add one tablespoonful of chopped parsley and the same of pimento, two tablespoonfuls of creamed butter, four tablespoonfuls of cream with salt and pepper to taste. Pipe through a pastry tube over the bread, sprinkle with paprika and put into the oven to heat hot.

Jellied Apples.—Pare, core and slice one quart of apples. Butter a baking dish and put a layer of apples, cover with a layer of sugar, repeating until all the apples are used. Add one-half cupful of hot water, cover and bake three hours. Soften one tablespoonful of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water and dissolve in one-quarter of a cupful of boiling water. Mix carefully through the hot apples, turn into a mold and when chilled serve with cream.

Egg Sauce.—Beat well two eggs, separating the yolks and whites. To the yolks add one cupful of powdered sugar, one-fourth cupful of hot milk and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Fold in the beaten whites and serve at once.

Apple Ice.—Cut up six large tart apples and boil with four cupfuls of water and the rind of a lemon until soft. Drain, add two cupfuls of sugar and boil for three minutes. Add the juice of two lemons and the juice of an orange, mix all together and freeze.

Ways With Meats.

Some of the following dishes may be prepared from left-over meats; these are but suggestions which may be varied to suit the occasion:

Chili Stew.—Take one and one-half pounds of round steak, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of olive oil, six tablespoonfuls of chopped onion, four cloves of garlic, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of Worcestershire sauce, three teaspoonfuls of chili powder, two teaspoonfuls of salt, three cupfuls of canned tomatoes, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour. Grind the steak or cut in small bits, melt the butter, add the oil in a deep frying pan, add onion, garlic and fry until a light brown. While frying, add the Worcestershire sauce and chili powder, stir until well blended. Pour in enough water to just cover the bottom of the pan, add the meat and almost cover with water. Cook slowly for fifteen minutes, then add the tomato and salt. Blend the flour with a little tomato juice and add to the stew, then place in a fire-proof dish and bake in the oven for an hour. Serve with rice or noodles.

Veal Pie.—Cook a piece of veal from the neck or any cheap cut, until tender, with small piece of salt pork. Cut into bits and arrange in a baking dish, add cream seasonings, cover with a rich biscuit crust and bake until brown.

Chili Con Carni.—Take a half pound of lean and fat pork (fresh), add one and one-half pounds of round steak; put the meat through the meat grinder. Brown three good-sized, sliced onions, add the meat, one dried chili pepper, two quarts of tomato, salt, pepper to taste, three tablespoonfuls of chili powder and cook slowly three hours, then add two cans of kidney beans and let the whole stand to cook another half hour. Serve hot.

Ragout of Mutton.—Cut cold roast or boiled mutton into one-inch pieces. Take one tablespoonful of butter, add one of flour, one-half pint of seasoned stock, season with salt and pepper, three drops of tabasco sauce, a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce and a pinch of asafoetida. Add the mutton, heat until boiling hot, then add one tablespoonful of currant jelly and orange juice. Serve hot.

Lesson for November 23

GIDEON AND THE THREE HUNDRED

LESSON TEXT—Judges 7:1-25. GOLDEN TEXT—Be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might. PRIMARY TOPIC—Gideon and His Brave Band.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Brave Leader. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Gideon and the Three Hundred. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Working Together With God.

Because of Israel's sin, God permitted them to be brought under the cruel yoke of bondage at the hands of the Midianites. So grievous was this affliction that they hid in dens, caves and strongholds (Judg. 6:2). In their distress they cried unto the Lord and He sent deliverance to them through the judgship of Gideon. The angel of the Lord appeared to him while at the post of duty. Gideon hesitated. His hesitancy was not due to unbelief but to modesty and cautiousness. He came from an obscure and unimportant family (Judg. 6:15). Before going forward in this enterprise he wished to be doubly sure that God had called him (Judg. 6:36-40). The tangible evidence was furnished by means of the fleece. Gideon began his reformatory work at once (Judg. 6:25-27). He not only began at once, but began at home. This is God's order.

I. The Opposing Armies (v. 1). Gideon and his army arose early on the eventful day of his victory and encamped by the spring of Herrod. Over against them was the host of Midianites in battle array. Gideon's army was quite insignificant in comparison with the Midianites.

II. The Sifting of Gideon's Army (vv. 2-3).

At Gideon's call, 32,000 men responded ready for the struggle. This seemed a small army to go against the Midianite army—135,000 strong, but God said even this was too many, lest they be led to boasting and self-confidence. Their real danger was not in their small army but in their pride. All that were faint-hearted were allowed to go back, leaving only 10,000. There were 22,000 cowards in that group of men and worst of all, they were not ashamed to confess it. Still, this was too many. When God was through with His sifting process only 300 remained. The 10,000 were brave men, but not of proper quality and fitness. Those who lapped the water showed alertness and watchfulness.

III. God Gives Encouragement to Gideon (vv. 9-15).

God commanded Gideon to go down to the Midianite camp where he would hear something that would cheer his heart and strengthen his hands. God always comes to cheer us when our hearts are faint. When he came near he heard a man tell a dream which was that of a barley cake tumbling into the camp and smiting it. He also heard the interpretation given to that dream which made Gideon to be that cake. This greatly cheered his heart and strengthened him for his work and caused him to break forth in praise to God. The barley cake is a very insignificant thing—a very cheap affair in itself, but with the hand of God upon it it would be sufficient to spread consternation among the Midianites and bring destruction upon their armies. No matter how weak and insignificant a man may be, if God is with him he shall not fail.

IV. God Gives Victory to Gideon (vv. 16-23).

His attack was unique. The whole matter was of faith (Heb. 11:32). The ground of his faith was God's Word and the token which He had given him. Gideon with his 300 men formed into three companies, each man being provided with a lamp concealed within a pitcher. Thus armed they surrounded the camp of the Midianites. They were all instructed to keep their eyes upon their leader and imitate him. We too are to keep our eyes on our Leader, Christ, and to ever do as He does. At the proper moment they blew their trumpets and broke their pitchers, giving opportunity for their lights to shine out.

This awful crash of breaking pitchers followed by the sound of trumpets accompanied by the shout "the sword of the Lord and of Gideon" threw the Midianites into a panic, causing them to fight amongst themselves: 120,000 were thus slain, leaving but 15,000 of that mighty army (Judg. 8:10).

In making the application to ourselves in this age, we can think of the sound of the trumpets as representing prayer or calling to God; the torches as the light of the Gospel; the pitchers our human nature, the whole as this treasure in earthen vessels.

OSTRICH GRACES FORMAL FROCKS; SHOW NOVEL STYLING IN PAJAMAS

NOW that society is banqueting, dancing, attending opera and making merry until the "wee sma' hours" of the morn, the mode is called upon to devise beauteous gowns for each lovely occasion. One of the fascinating fashions for evening this season is the pastel-colored supple velvet or chiffon frock graced with long flues of self-colored ostrich.

Sometimes a shoulder ornament of the ostrich complements that which accents the modish irregular hemline. A very delightful evening frock of pale-green shaded chiffon recently arof old, we are liking the so-called "sleeping" pajamas right well. Maybe the popularity of pajamas is due to the fact that they present a never-ending opportunity to express novelty in their styling. Perhaps it is because they are so comfortable and practical. Whatever the cause, pajamas have found a recognized place among modern lingerie.

As a Christmas gift to one's nearest and dearest girl friend, pajamas ought to solve the problem most happily. Something we make our very own selves is always so deeply appreci-rived from across seas showed not only ostrich about the hemline in deep points and at the shoulder, but a third touch was added in the way of a monture of ostrich at the middle.

The exquisite mauve panne velvet evening gown in this picture, which is a Doucet creation, artistically accents a unique hemline with drooping ostrich flues. There is an introduction of silver embroidery on the blouse front, with a knotted detail of velvet at the waistline, which are effective. It is apparent throughout the evening mode that ostrich plays a very important role. Not only is the formal gown and wrap of velvet lavishly embellished with ostrich, but milady is again carrying a huge ostrich fan. Indeed so pronounced is the vogue for ostrich, even fantastic hand bags are made of ostrich which covers a fabric foundation.

There is a decided charm in the one-piece pajamas offered by LeLong as shown here to the right. One finds a novel touch in material and general design quite to one's liking when it comes to the intimate robes of one's boudoir. Therefore the "mammoth" polka dots of the crepe de chine seem just the thing for pajamas which youth delights to don. The qual-

Young girls wear with simplest of tinted chiffon or velvet frocks, a bon-toniere of ostrich inset with colorful flowers.

The latest ostrich novelty is that which is gilded or silvered. On brocades of rare and colorful weave, ostrich thus treated appears in regal splendor.

An outcome of this vogue for ostrich is the bar long, reaching to the very hemline of the frock or short, assuming the form of a fanciful neck ruff.

Buster Brown collar and tie, also the gipsy sash are charming details warranted to please any young girl who delights in cunning frivolities, such as the mode calls "clown" pajamas.

Appearing among the latest models are the "Mexican" pajamas as the creator of this type is pleased to call them. They are thus captioned on account of the decided flare at the bottom of the trousers, this being characteristic of the native Mexican costume.

Interest is mostly centered just now in the tailored pajama. These pajamas are often composed of two contrasting materials, a solid color bordering a figured fabric is popular.

Drink Water to Help Wash Out Kidney Poison

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt which helps to remove the body's useless waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid waste, so you can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also use from any pharmacy about four ounces of Epsom Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation. This water-relieving bladder washes out the "acid" which builds up and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Watch Elimination!

Good Health Depends Upon Good Elimination. DETENTION of bodily waste in the blood is called "toxic condition." This often gives rise to dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. Thousands have learned to assist their kidneys by drinking plenty of pure water and the occasional use of stimulant diuretic. 50,000 users give Doan's signed endorsement. Ask your neighbor!
