Although they serve many roles in the workday world, school board members put on a collective hat when they get down to business of leading their school districts. Board members must pull together as a team toward a common goal - helping students achieve. Though they may individually disagree on certain issues, their role as a board is to consistently strive toward that goal.

Board members contribute hours each year leading their districts. Whether it is drafting policies, hiring top-notch administrators, listening to staff and student concerns, or recognizing outstanding programs, board members always keep their eyes on the goal of student achievement.

De l't Leave Out Rice In Your Diet

There's more than a grain of calories come from carboof truth to the nutrition and health benefits of rice. That's why many Americans are moving rice to the center of the plate.

Rice is also an excellent source of energy and can fit with any healthy eating program, dietary trend and lifestyle.

According to the USA Rice Federation, rice is an important source of folic acid in the diet in a form that is easily digested. One-half cup of cooked white rice provides 15 percent of the daily value of folic acid and thiamin and eight percent of the daily value of iron and niacin.

The National Academy of Science actually recommends that 45 to 65 percent hydrates. One-half cup of cooked rice contains 22 grams of carbohydrates.

In addition, rice combines well with vegetables and legumes, helping to increase the intake of important nutrients from these sources.

A note to dieters. The balanced diet message is simple: calories in, calories out. All experts agree that no matter what the diet plan, eating fewer calories-whether it is carbohydrates, protein or fatleads to weight loss.

For additional nutrition information or rice recipes visit www.usarice.com.

Rice is low in calories (103 calories per half-cup serving of white rice). It is naturally sodium-free.

see it that way but certain fats in your diet can be surprisingly good for the health of your eyes.

For example, omega-3 is a polyunsaturated fat (PUFA) that plays an important role. in the eye and nervous system affecting a wide range of functions in cells and tissues. PUFAs help maintain good health, promote brain and vision development and may protect against diseases. In fact, recent studies show omega-3 may be beneficial for protecting against age-related eye disease. Age-related macular degeneration (AMD) is the leading cause of blindness in older adults today, accounting for 54 percent of all blindness in white Americans and 45 percent of visual disability in the

> More frequent consumption of fish and overall intake of omega-3 fats appeared to protect against advanced AMD. People who ate fish more than once a week had a lower risk, the studies suggested, than those who ate fish less than once per month.

Nutritionists point out it's important to include healthful fats, such as omega-3, in your diet. Just don't overdo it. Being overweight may have the opposite effect and be harmful to the health of your eyes. Limit your intake of saturated and trans fats, found in many fried foods,

Good sources of omega-3 are cold-water, oil-rich fish, such as salmon, mackerel and herring. Most people can get an adequate amount of omega-3 by eating at least two meals that include fish per week. Fortunately, if you can't get enough PUFA in your diet, supplementation offers great benefits.

Seeds From The Sower

By Michael A. Guido, Metter, GA.

Andrew Carnegie received a wire from one of his salesmen. It read, "Broke all records yesterday."

He wired back, "What have you done today?"

The salesman who isn't out selling is soon selling out. And the Christian who isn't going to seed.

It isn't what you know that counts, but what you sow.

Our Lord has given you the seed, which is the Bible, not to make you a seed box but a sower. And if you really have religion in your soul it's going to get down to the soles of your feet, and you'll sow the seed today and every day.

Oh, you may have sown out sowing the seed is soon the seed yesterday, but like the man asked, "What have you done today?"

The Presidential Inauguration is Living History

On January 20, Washington, D.C. will host one of democracy's greatest pageants, the inauguration of the U.S. President.

While the inauguration ceremony, first performed in 1789, seems timeless, it has actually changed a great deal over the years. The first took place a month late in New York City because George Washington was delayed by harsh winter weather. As he traveled to New York, Congress debated the title for the chief executive of the United States. John Adams, Washington's vice president, argued for "His Most Benign Highness" but fortunately for us all, Congress settled on the title we still use: "President of the United States."

George Washington's oath came straight from the Constitution: "I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of the President of the United States and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States." He then added, "So help me God," starting a custom followed by every president since.

The New York state chief justice determined that Washington should swear on a Bible, which set off a scramble to find a copy of the Good Book. When none was found in New York's Federal Hall, a Bible was borrowed from a Masonic lodge a few blocks away.

President Washington also started the custom of the inaugural speech. In his second term, he began the practice of having the oath administered by a U.S. Supreme Court Justice.

The first inauguration in Washington, D.C. was of the third President, Thomas Jefferson, who walked to and from his boarding house to the Capitol for the swearing in. In his second term, he rode on horseback from the inaugural ball in 1809. In Capitol to the White House. A small band played music and a crowd gathered to watch the procession. Thus the inaugural parade was inauguration has also many balls are being held, changed through the years. It the Black Tie and Boots to the west side of the Capitol were in 1981 to allow more immediately as well. Americans to witness the ceremony in person.

Even the date of the inauguration has changed. Congress passed the 20th Amendment of the Constitution in 1933 to decrease the delay between election of a new president and the end of the outgoing president's term by moving the ceremony up from March 4 to January 20. President Franklin Roosevelt was the last president to take his oath on the original date and the first to take his oath on the

With all due respect Mr. President you need to do something about the high cost of electricity in this

No sir I don't know just what a kilowatt hour of electricity cost today, compared to twenty or thirty years ago. In fact I am not sure just what a kilowatt is.

Yes sir, I do have a few electrical appliances and that is why you need to do something about the high cost of electricity.

No sir, I did not know that less than 200 years ago people didn't have any electricity. How did they curl their hair, run their TV, light their homes, use their toaster, run their washing machines and dryers, heat their water, use their electric can openers, cook, run their clocks, open their garage doors, run their air conditioners and heaters, operate their coffee pots, run their vacuum cleaners, and run their refrigerators and deep freezers.

What do you mean that they didn't have any of these electrical appliances?

No sir, I never heard of kerosene lamps or wood burning stoves. No sir, I never heard of wood or coal burning heaters or making coffee on a stove. No sir, just what is a wind up clock.

What do you mean that they didn't have air conditioning? How did they keep cool in these scorching hot summers that we have been having? They didn't! I sure couldn't live like that. No sir, I didn't know that they had to heat their bath water on a wood burning stove and some folks had to take a bath in a #3 wash tub. Sir, what is a wash tub? Sir, what do you mean that they washed their clothes in a tub? How gross!

Do you mean to tell me that even the King of England or our President of our country didn't have any of these electrical appliances? Yes sir, I guess that I am living better today than they did back then. But sir, they had servants to do al'l this. No sir, I guess they couldn't make air conditioning to keep them cool in the summer.

But sir, they could always ride around in their air conditioned cars and motor homes. They didn't! Well just how did they get around in those days? You have got to be kidding! A horse and buggy or carriage must have been awfully slow.

Well anyway Sir, last winter when the ice storm caused our electricity to be off for over 24 hours we almost froze to death and had to eat cold canned food. You need to do something about these power outages too

No sir, I would not want to pay more for electricity to have the power lines run underground. I'm paying 'or much already. Yes sir, I know that energy cost has gone up due to the high cost of oil and gas but what has that got to do with my electric bill.

My electricity is all generated in this country. Yes sir, I suppose it does take some form of energy to generate electricity but why should I have to pay more because of that.

No sir, I wouldn't want to give up any of my electrical appliances but I still think you should do something about the high cost of electricity.

The Making of Presidents

It is common, on the heels of a presidential election, for the party faithful to set apart a handful of people who had a hand in the "making of the president." But, there is one person-just one-who had both hands in the making of 44 presidents. They include all 43 presidents of the United States and another who was president of the Republic of Texas.

Read on, and you'll understand that in reality, he has sculpted-or soon will have-more than 100 US presidents for American theme parks.

Patience now as you read the first of the story. After World War I, South Dakotans birthed an interest in tourism at a time when we were busting our buttons in the glow of military conquests. President Coolidge voted for the concept, particularly during a three-week Black Hills vacation that turned into three months of "developing fishing skills" in the trout streams. (Little did he know bunches of fish were being turned loose early each day to swim right past his

While he was fishing, Gutzon Borglum, noted sculptor of five pieces at our nation's capitol, was working away at nearby Mount Rushmore. There, over the better part of a decade, Borglum and 400+ workmen spent more time blasting away granite-450,000 tons of it-than fashioning the facial features of Presidents Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt. They used dynamite 90% of the time; the workers became so skilled that they could blast to within four inches of the finished surface of lips, noses, cheeks, necks and were reported (some unreported?, I dunno), and there were only a couple of minor injuries. They took such pride. "I put the curl in Lincoln's beard, the part in Teddy's hair and the twinkle in Washington's eye," said name. driller Norman "Happy" Anderson.

on down below the tux tails; they had plenty of granite left. Alas, with no money left and interest waning (perhaps President Coolidge had his fill of fishing), the "fullbodied" presidents never came about. For more than a half century following, was heard presidential sculptures.

The last dozen years, though, business has picked up. In fact, sculptor David Adickes, a "favorite son" of Huntsville, Texas, and Sam Houston State University, has sculpted presidents almost exclusively. A math and physics major (yeah, kids were famous for taking employment outside their majors even 50 years ago), Adickes sculpted the breathtaking statue of Sam Houston. The 76-foot "Tribute to Courage" is the world's tallest statue of an American hero. The regal work, 10 times life size, and a complete visitors' center are located on I-45 near

His "Winds of Change"-an eight-foot bronze of George H. W. Bush—was unveiled at the 1992 Republican Convention in Houston. It now stands at the airport there that bears his

One of his works, a bust of Andrew Jackson, is displayed outside the Jackson, MS, Museum of Art. Walk-through theme parks in Williamsburg, VAand another near Mount Rushmore-feature colossal-sized busts (18-20 They had plans to sculpt feet) tall of all US presidents. A third "presidential park" is planned to open late this year in Florida.

Am I saying that Adickes sculpts only presidents now?

Not by a long shot! Angleton, businessman Sehon Warneke is beating the drums for a statue of Stephen F. Austin. Businesses, clubs and individuals have mounted a campaign to raise in excess of $500,000 for the 60-foot statue, visitors' center/ museum and other amenities in the heart of Brazoria County. He already has pledges for more than half the project.

Oh, you've raced ahead again. Yes, Adickes is the sculptor.

So, Texas will have two giant figures—the biggest to be found anywhere. Ten times life size, they cast longer shadows now than in life. After all, Houston stood around 6-6 and Austin was a scant 5-8—more the "going height" of Texans at the time.

Oh, he might later have been president of the Republic of Texas. Too bad that he was sickly, dying at age 43, only months after the republic was Sam Houston, speaking at his funeral, called Austin "the father of Texas." Maybe it's best that Austin wasn't ever a president. The duties of the office might greatly have diminished his chances of being a strong father figure, too.

Rather was cited for having too much credulity and over -enthusiasm for the material.

At the time he broke the story, Rather had just finished covering the Republican Convention and Hurricane Frances in Florida. Apparently he did little to help research the original report on Bush's National Guard Service, and did not appear to have seen it before it aired.

After defending the material for about two weeks, Rather and NBC apologized for it. At that time Rather said he would step down as Evening News Anchor in March, 2005. Apparently he will continue to work with other programs.

The documents on George Bush used by CBS were allegedly provided by retired Texas National Guard Lt. Col. Bill Burkett, who lives south of Baird. The disputed material indicates that Bush ignored an order to take a physical exam and failed to meet his Guard obligations in the early 1970's, during the Viet Nam War.

The documents were part of a CBS Report Sept. 8 that included an interview in which former Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes said he helped Bush get in the Air National Guard after having been requested to by a Bush family friend.

Questions were then raised about the National Guard memos, with experts saying they contained typed characters that were not used in the 1970's. Eventually it was learned that the memos were duplicated at Kinkos in Abilene.

Barnes still stands by his story, according to a recent article in "Texas Monthly."

Mapes said Monday she was very disappointed by the report's conclusions. She said she believed the story was corroborated by other conclusions, and agreed with previously known records.

After Monday's report, CBS News said it had appointed one of its executives, Linda Mason, to be Senior Vice President of standards and special projects. Her job will be to thoroughly review investigative stories before they air.

stopped the pain, I would have whined.) Finally morning comes; it's just two days before Christmas Day, so I have to be in my place with a bright, shining face! By noon, GayNell knew that things weren't kosher; she points to E.M.H. E.R. I just argued a little and drove up as soon as I had most things tended to. Receptionists says, 'Come in, have a seat, all let me take a look. My what a nasty bruise.' After my vitals were taken, and I did have a few, they put me in an examining booth and that's when Mary Lou, the upstate New York State Yankee took charge-and boy did my arm ever welcome her comforting. She called our local doctor who had a clinic full of patients waiting to get through, like him, for Christmas. X-rays were ordered and done by an exceptionally efficient operator. Back to wait for Doc to get over to ER It seemed like hours, but actually only a few minutes and I saw his blue jeans whisk across the room heading for the X-ray viewing station. The moment of truth arrived when he came to the beside with his traditional broad smile. But this time he was shaking his head, and I began to smell a rat. "H, you've a duzzer." Am I a specimen?, I asked. "No, but you've got a classic fracture." Then showing my = recent 8 x 10 glossy, he said, "See that bone sticking out that way; it should be over here," So? "I'll make an appointment with an orthopedic surgeon. You Stephenville, Brownwood or Abilene?" We took the latter because we maneuver better there. After a call to the specialist, Doc said, he said to splint it and have him (me) here Monday morning at 9 a.m. I was splinted and except for the dull throb, it only hurt if I tried to raise my arm above my head, which I quickly learned wasn't necessary.

didn't argue! Just included ibuprophen with the pumpkin-nut toted cake, and with Tylenol to the fixin's she'd already done. Thankful that it wasn't any worse. We were there at 9 Monday. More X-rays. When he saw the elbow about 11, he said, "Are you in pretty good health Mr. O'Brien? This has got to be fixed." "Yes, and I came fasting, not knowing what to expect." They made the arrangements; there were two major bone jobs ahead of me. I had a good nap, but not a drop of drink or food and at 5 p.m. I was wheeled to the surgery suite. Some hours H.V.O.

there on Christmas day. We later I was returned to the room where I spent a so-so night. The specialist visited at 6:45 a.m., said I did fine, and would have a sore arm for some time. (I had suspected that, somehow.) A big breakfast, a healthy lunch and GayNell brought me home in the afternoon. Forty plus years of writing about seasonal winter storms, with never a slip nor a slide and then in my prime— The Ice Follies of Hendricks 2004! What a waste of time, and burden to others. You quickly learn to do a lot of things without your right arm and hand, but how do you floss with one hand?

Obituary

Earl Clarence Bradley, Jr.

EASTLAND - Earl Clarence Bradley, Jr. went to be with the Lord on Friday, January 7, 2005. He was 80 years of age. His last words were to his immediate family at the Eastland Memorial Hospital, Eastland, Texas. He touched countless lives and will be missed and never forgotten.

He was born February 11, 1924, in Houston, Texas, to Louise and Earl C. Bradley, Sr. He attended Texas A&M University until he enlisted in the U.S. Navy at the outbreak of World War II. Upon his return, he earned a B.A. degree in History and Government from the University of Houston, but in his heart he was always an Aggie. During this time, he met the love of his life, Billye Bankston. They were married on June 4, 1948.

He lived the American Dream. After many years at Tyler Pipe and Foundry, he started his own business in 1964, Earl Bradley and Associates; his "associates" being his wife and four children. EBAA Iron has grown from a one man operation in Frisco, Texas, to employing over 400 people in three foundries located in Eastland and Albany, Texas, and Cordele, Georgia. He was a Mason, a member of the First Presbyterian Church, the Eastland Hospital Board, the American Water Works Association and American Foundry Society, receiving the AFS Freedom Founders Award. Greatly blessed, he never forgot from whom his blessings came. He was generous to his community and beyond, being instrumental in the preservation of the Majestic Theatre and the building of a new emergency room for the Eastland Memorial Hospital.

He is survived by his wife of 56 years, Billye Bankston Bradley; a sister, Ann B. Lorino of Houston; a cousin, Raymond Leslie Bradley of Houston; his four children and their spouses, all of Eastland, Leslie and Jim Keffer, ET and Maria Bradley, Jenni and Taylor Ford, Jeff and Vicki Bradley; and six grandchildren, Brad, Chris, and Rob Keffer, Gene Bradley, Madison and Miles Bradley.

A memorial service is planned for Thursday, January 13th at the Majestic Theatre in Eastland at 2 p.m. under the direction of Edwards Funeral Home in Eastland. In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to the Eastland Memorial Hospital.

May occur 30 to 50 years after exposure to asbestos. Many workers were exposed from the 1940s through the 1970s. Industrial maintenance and operators are among those at risk for mesothelioma, throat cancer or lung cancer. Call us for professional
