State Capital HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

(Intended for last week.)

AUSTIN — Prison violence in the scandal-ridden Texas Department of Corrections rose last week as wardens and the Governor met to discuss renewing control over inmates.

Two prison stabbings last week, one resulting in a fatality, brought the assault toll to almost 100 this year, with nearly 30 stabbings occurring in the past month.

Wardens told the Governor that longtime methods of controlling prisoners have been stopped because of a federal court-ordered reform program.

But even as guards conducted a weapons search at one prison, officials turned their eyes north, where a missing witness in the prison investigation is believed to have turned up.

For over a month, law officers have pursued the location of James R. Pitts, a former prison construction superintendent who disappeared the day after Attorney General Jim Maddox announced Pitts had agreed to be a witness in the prison probe.

Pitts worked for the TDC for the past seven years when cost overruns of prison construction became so excessive that an alarmed Legislature launched an investigation.

Early last month Mattox said Pitts would pay $25,000 for violating state bidding laws and would cooperate in the probe of prison construction bids.

Bullet-Riddled Van

The next day Pitts' bloody, bullet-riddled van was found by a road in Madison County. Officers, however, believed the van incident was staged and pressed a search for the missing witness.

Last week, officials announced they believe Pitts is alive and in Ohio or Pennsylvania. A man fitting Pitts' description was described trying to check into a Pittsburgh motel using Pitts' credit card.

The credit card company also gave authorities an Ohio address where a man using Pitts' name rented an apartment and listed the TDC as his former employer. The apartment was vacated by the man.

Mattox and other authorities are considering detaining and extraditing the man to participate in the investigation.

New State Board

The names of candidates for the newly appointed State Board of Education are coming in with nearly 200 being nominated last week.

The Legislature abolished the elected 27-member board in the recent special session. Governor Mark White will appoint 15 new board members from the nominations.

Among the names are former Congresswoman Barbara Jordan and two of White's political cronies: campaign treasurer Shannon Ratliff and recently resigned Texas Secretary of State John Painter.

White is expected to name the 15 sometime in September. However, before the new board begins its work, the election-related changes in the law must be approved by the U. S. Department of Justice, which could take several weeks. Once installed, the new board will serve for four years then revert to an elected board.

Mental Health Budget

The head of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation told a legislative committee last week that more than $340 million of his budget requests for the next two years will be spent on court-ordered improvements in state facilities.

Two class-action lawsuits against the state agency were settled in federal court at the cost of $11.5 million to improve care for mentally retarded and $151 million for improvements to state hospitals for the mentally ill.

For those reasons, the department commissioners said, the department is forced to disorganize the "no-growth" request by leaders of the Legislature.

The total budget request was $61 billion for 1986-87.

Campaign Skirmish

The two candidates for the U. S. Senate seat being vacated by John Tower squared off in what may be the first real skirmish of their contest.

At the center of this liberal-conservative confrontation was the issue of gay rights, but the argument widened into some real finger-pointing and name-calling.

It began when Republican Phil Gramm told reporters he did not support special treatment for gays and didn't want them teaching them philosophy in public schools. A pro-rights retort from his opponent, Democrat Lloyd Doggett, led Gramm to accuse Doggett of accepting campaign contributions raised by a male strip-tease benefit held at a San Antonio club.

Checking his records, Doggett found the sustenance of the accusation to be true. While denying he knew of the activity in advance, Doggett returned the money to the gay rights group which had sponsored the event.

Oil Spill Lawsuit

Attorney General Mattox last week filed against the owner of the British tanker which spilled 2.3 million gallons of crude oil in the Gulf of Mexico.

Mattox seeks to recover clean-up costs and penalties for harm to natural resources and the coastal tourist trade.

No dollar figure was attached in the lawsuit owners have taken action to have their liability limited to $3.8 million.

Short Takes

Comptroller Bob Bullock has warned bingo operators they "can say good-bye to their state licenses and hello to local police" if they ignore state laws governing games. After visiting 500 bingo games, Bullock's agents found nearly one-third in violation of some section of the law.

The Libertarian Party of Texas lost its fight in U. S. District Court in Houston to be placed in the Nov. 6 ballot.

Texas Conservation Corps workers have begun overhauling the Battleship Texas in an effort to make it shipshape by the 1985 Sesquicentennial.

The Public Utility Commission will hold a hearing Aug. 14 at the Bellaire Civic Center on Houston Lightning & Power Co.'s pending $544 million rate increase.

Future S.S. Office Leans On Computer

The Social Security office of the not-too-distant future will be a highly automated operation capable of providing on-the-spot, accurate service to the public. This is one of the goals of the agency's 5-year systems modernization plan which is intended to bring the world's largest social insurance computer system into the modern state-of-the-art.

The prediction was made recently by Acting Social Security Commissioner Martha S. McSteen in testimony before the Senate Special Committee on Aging. Mrs. McSteen said that Phase One of the plan, kicked off by former Commissioner Jack Svahn in February 1982, was completed in October 1983. Backlogs have been eliminated through improvements in the software — the programs by which the systems operations are conducted. The replacement of antiquated computer equipment, and error-prone tape data storage and improvements in the telecommunications system which handle communications between the Baltimore headquarters and the field offices are being completed in phases. After shoring up current operations, thus preventing further deterioration and avoiding a crisis, the agency is now well on the way in redesigning its systems operation to increase the efficiency of service it provides the public, the Commissioner stated.

Mrs. McSteen cited the plan's "field office enhancement project" as the move that is expected to bring the agency "fully into the computer age" and improve dramatically the ability of field offices to deliver quality service. She said that Social Security employees who deal with the public will be given the most modern computer terminals to provide access to all of the computer records that are used on a daily basis. This will mean that much of the work that is done through several different processes over a period of time will be conducted at the interviewer's desk during the interview.

For example, the new terminals and related enhancements in the Social Security Administration's central computers will permit people to determine the status of their claims, get benefit estimates, and correct and update their Social Security records immediately. Field office people will be able to enter information directly into the system and request any information in central office records needed to process a claim. Also, many manual computations now done in the Social Security office will be done by computers, saving time and reducing the risk of errors.

In developing this high-speed increased access to its computer records, SSA is also building in a variety of sophisticated checks and validations that will assure the continued confidentiality of individual records and guard against fraud and abuse.

Mrs. McSteen told the Senate Committee that the new field office concept will be tested in several pilot projects over the next few years before it will be implemented nationally. It is expected to be implemented nationally by 1987.

A Boulder APPROACH: OR how Hoover Gave a DAM.

In the early 1900's, a concrete solution was needed to prevent flooding along the Colorado River. The Hoover administration provided it. 4,400,000 cubic yards' worth. Enough concrete to pave a two-lane highway between New York and San Francisco. It was the Hoover Dam at Boulder City, Nevada. And it not only controlled flooding and irrigation, but today it generates power for Southern California, Arizona and Nevada.

The cost: $385 million.

And one of the ways money was generated was by Americans buying government securities and taking stock in America.

Today, you can take stock in America by buying United States Savings Bonds. It's easy when you join the Payroll Savings Plan.

That way, a little is automatically set aside from each paycheck to buy Bonds. Before you know it, you'll build up a nice reservoir of savings.

So buy Bonds. It's one savings plan that holds water.

United States Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (1984 is the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

Hot weather has returned to us. We did have showers last Wednesday. We surely could use some more now. Wednesday I went with Carolyn Glover and Sharolyn Walker and their girls to the Senora Cayerns. and to San Angelo where we spent the night and came home on Thursday. I really did enjoy the mini-vacation.

Robbie Rector came home for a while Friday and Idella Hollis and myself went down to visit her a while. She said Jack was still in the same critical shape.

Edwin Erwin has been moved to the Humana Hospital in Abilene where he is to undergo some tests. He has had some trouble with his leg buckling up under him. Hope he will come home soon and will be feeling better.

Mr. and Mrs. Truitt Dawkins held a fish fry for the deacons and their wives Friday night at their home on the Brownwood Lake. They reported a good time by all. The ladies brought salads and desserts, and the men fried the fish. I know it was good because I sampled the fish.

Nora Green and Inez Shawver went to Cisco one day this week. Mr. and Mrs. Everett Clower visited the Greens Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester King went to Abilene Thursday on business.

Ross and Geneva Armstrong of Stephenville visited Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hollis Wednesday. Bill and Lorene Ramsey of Eastland visited them Friday.

Ophelia Lawson went to Houston with Gary and Leneta and Ashley Harris Friday and came back Sunday. They went to Phil Harris', and her other children, met them there for a little get-together. They went to Galveson, too. She went to the style show at Pioneer one day last week.

Week end guests at Mr. and Mrs. Troy Wastor's were Mr. and Mrs. Norman Tucker and Mr. and Mrs. Burney Tucker and Shane, all of Fort Worth. Mr. and Mrs. Max Thetford of Cross Plains visited them Sunday.

by all. Yet many parents possess the ability and the opportunity to provide Bible Study for their children, and refuse to do so. The parent who refuses to encourage his children to attend Bible Classes by setting before those children the proper example of Bible study attendance is robbing his children.

Say, neighbor, what about you? Are you robbing your child?

LOCAL FAMILY ENJOYS TOUR OF NEW ORLEANS

Dora, Terrill and Brandon Smith of Cross Plains and Tom Melton of Early recently spent three fun-filled days at New Orleans, La.

After flying from Dallas-Fort Worth they experienced the French Quarter and the infamous Bourbon Street. They spent two days at the fabulous '81 World's Fair, taking in rides, displays and shows from many different countries. It was the Smiths' first time to visit New Orleans, and Terrill and Brandon's first flight on a large airplane.

Other highlights of the trip were dining at the famous restaurants such as the Court of Two Sisters, riding on real street cars and taking a cruise down the Mississippi ran through this very clump of trees. This road was the supply route for hauling provisions to men and animals at the frontier outposts. In the days before the Civil War many men, later prominent in American history led patrols through here, camped in these grounds and watered their animals in this little stream. Among the well-known personages to pass this way was General Robert E. Lee. There's a near by historical marker to document this fact.

Cities and towns usually get their names in one of two ways: a community is incorporated or a post office is designated by the federal government. In the case of Cross Plains the latter came first. A post office was established here July 25, 1877, with William Mattox as postmaster. The Cross Plains post office is today the oldest in Callahan County. The two created earlier — Shaw's Ranch and Callahan County — have long since been discontinued.

The village of Cross Plains back then included a few frontier dwellings dotting the nearby landscape, a single store and a few craftsmen, all situated about 100 yards East of the creek. Since the establishment of a post office the place has always been called Cross Plains, however, prior to that time it was at intervals known as: Greenbrier, Turkey Creek and Schleicher. The latter was in honor of Judge Gustave Schleicher who established a colony of people of German extraction in the Comal County School Lands Survey just south of here. Schleicher County, south of San Angelo, where Eldorado is the county seat, was later named for this man. Judge Schleicher located many families near here, among them were: the Frankes, Hankes, Koernigs, Thates, Neebs and others.

U. S. government census reports of 1880 reveal Cross Plains had a population of 25. Located here was Coffman & Raymond's gin and grist mill. William Brooks had a general store, John Ray plied his trade as wagonmaker and Elihu Wright was the town blacksmith. A Dr. Whitlock practiced here. He was followed by Dr. R. Robertson and Dr. Cochran.

Probably the most eventful day in the history of Cross Plains was Thursday, Jan. 11, 1912, when the Texas Central Railroad extended its rails here and the first train arrived. It brought a number of land speculators and was met by just about everyone in several counties around. That afternoon a town lot sale was held at a clearing where Main and 8th Streets now intersect and $70,000 worth of town lots were bought at public auction. Old settlers used to say "it was a cold winter afternoon but the enthusiasm of the crowd was not chilled by the stinging North wind". The new townsite was approximately a half mile East and slightly North of the old town. Business began moving almost immediately. All the brick buildings from the Citizens State Bank northward to Bobby Payne's Cabinet Shop were started immediately. The Higginbotham building, once heralded as the largest store under a single roof between Fort Worth and El Paso, was completed in 1915.

Cross Plains has a colorful history but its future looms brighter than its past. It is today probably the only incorporated city in Texas with no public debt, does not collect a property tax or any other levy upon its residents, yet has a cash-on-hand balance in the hundreds of thousands and owns properties worth possibly a million or more dollars. It has aggressive merchants, strong churches of most all faiths, an outstanding school system, a bank holding more than $20,000,000 worth of local deposits and some

Reddy's Safety Reminders:

Most of us take electric power for granted. We just flick a switch and there it is — doing all those things we've come to expect. That SAME power can be dangerous if we don't learn to treat it with respect. Here are a few reminders on how to live more safely — electrically — from Reddy Kilowatt:

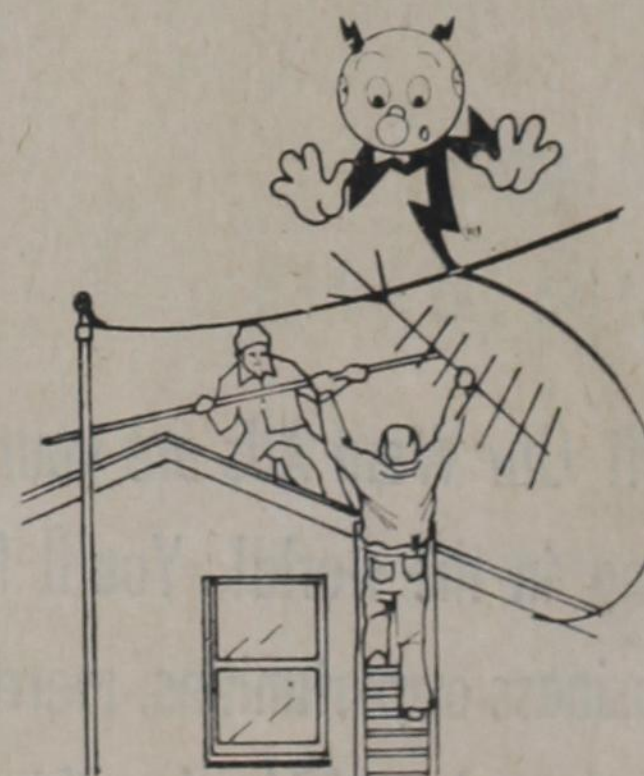

Never Pull on the Cord!

When disconnecting electric appliances and equipment, be sure to pull on the plug — not the cord! If you pull on the cord, you'll eventually wear it out and expose hazardous wires. Also, don't overload extension cords and outlets.

Install Antennas Away from Power Lines!

If you have a TV or CB antenna to install or repair, make sure there's plenty of clearance between it and the nearest power lines. Working too close to a power line can be hazardous.

Don't Shoot at Power Lines!

Also remember not to shoot at power lines or the insulators that hold them. The severed line could cause a serious electricity outage and the downed line itself could be very dangerous.

It's the Power of Choice.
