Metals Made Use of as Writing Materials

The earliest legible handwriting on paper in existence is a letter from the wife of a government official, complaining that her husband "is wrecking his career by dissipation." This letter dates back 1.500 years. Metals were used frequently in place of paper as writing material in early times. The ruler of Kandi once sent an embassy to the Dutch governor of Pulicat. The embassy took along credentials insertibed on a plate of gold It is on record that a book at Romewas made of marble cut so direly that the teaves could be turned over Another book bought in the same city was four inches long, three inches broad, and the pages were male and Table on the Middle ages also were made of lend. The laws of Greece were inscribed on brass, ivory and wood. The state records of the ancient the card brought Weems scurrying out. Weems was always overweight and inevitably perspiring. He looked at Trent a moment and then rushed back, shouting loudly, "Hey, girls, this is the guy I said I knew!"

Weems returned with two pretty girls, whom he introduced as the lend and heavy in his celebrated two-reel comedies. Weems was ever a fluent talker, and he ran over Trent's good points in the maner of a showman. "If you can't make a big noise yourself," was one of Weems' suyings, "grab somebody else's thunder." The Deal Bench episode had stirred him to rapture.

"We've got to take him to Fort Lee and show him what we're doing." Weems decided. "Got your auto?" he demanded.

Tariffs of the United States

The tariff has been an ever-recurring topic for discussion in the halls of congress, and everywhere else, for that matter. One of the first things that the first congress did was to pass a tariff bill to raise revenue and for the encouragement and protection of manufacture. The rates were low and afforded but little protection. But few changes were made in the tariff and in fifter the War of 1812. During the war, because of commercial disturbances, few commodities could be brought from abroad, the result of which was the development of many small, inefficient industries in this country. The influx of foreign goods after the war threatened to destroy these industries. The tariff of 1816 was used as a protective device, and this may be said to be the first tariff with distinctly a protective faund 1828. The tariff of 1828 was exceedingly unpopular, and was the impetus to a reaction to lower rates. These were found in the laws of 1832 and 1833. Slight increases were made in 1842, but the Walker tariff of 1846 contained the lowest rates since the beginning of the protective policy.

During the Civil war the tariff rates were considerably increased, presumely as an emergency measure, with

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Norred and little daughter of Putnam, visited with relatives in Cross Plains Sunday afternoon. They started the first of the week on a ten day vacation trip. They will visit on the Plains, the Calsbad Cave, Butte Dam Lake, New Mexico and other places of interest out West.

St. Louisians are visiting in Cross Plains this week. They are William and Miss Dorothy Polishuk, and Miss Sarah Elfonbaum, who are visiting with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. M. Polishuk, of the Model Store. These young people will be here several days visiting with their relatives and seeing this part of the great State of Texas. They are traveling by auto and will visit other parts of Texas before returning to their homes.

And improvements that add to the attractiveness of everything in Cross Plains still go on. The Robertson's Cross Plains Drug Store is having some fancy remodeling work done to its interior, which when finished will make this already popular store the more inviting.

LEE SMITH GETS 99 YEARS IN PEN

Lee Smith, who was tried at Baird this week for murder in connection with the killing of two Mexicans at a bank in Stanton last December, was given a penalty of 99 years in the penitentisary by the jury Wednesday. In the trial the State sought to prove that Smith, with Cal C. Baze, now a fugative from justice, conspired to "plant" Mexicans at the bank and shoot them down to collect rewards offered by the State Bankers Association for dead bank robbers. This is Smith's second trial. His first trial, held at Abilene, the jury was unable to agree on a verdict.
