Halfway Mark President in Good Health and Spirits; Works Hard and Plays Strenuously

By EARL GODWIN

Washington .- On Lincoln's birthday President Roosevelt had just passed the halfway mark in his term in which he took office March 4, 1933. People would ordinarily believe that two years would have to elapse to mark the halfway point in a four year term but since March 4, 1933, the Constitution of the United States has been changed by the socalled Norris "lame duck' endment which starts off Presiden tial terms on January 2. Roosevelt therefore, serves a term which is just forty-three days shy of the traditional four years, the first President to expe rience this cut in service. A veteran journalist, John Russell Young, brought out the fact that February 11 would mark the mid-term this time.

President Roosevelt did a character istic thing on Lincoln's birthday by confining his calling list to one mannone other than a Union army veteran named William Henry Gilbert, ninety four years old, now of Craley, Pa. member of the fast dwindling G. A. R. This old gentleman is a sprightly fellow, with the distinction of having been one of the guard of six soldiers who stood guard over the body of the martyred President when the drab funeral cortege was in Philadelphia.

The President received him in his up stairs study in the White House. showed him the room where Lincoln worked and the long bed in which Lin coln slept. Mr. Gilbert talked to the President, sitting side by side with him in the President's study, and then attended the Lincoln Memorial services which centered here in Washington. The President then delved into an enormous amount of correspondence which had been accumulated in the previous four days. He had not been able to touch his vast mall in those days because of a constant series of conferences of great importance.

PHYSICALLY FIT

It is interesting to take stock of Franklin Roosevelt as he passes the mid-term marker.

We find him in good health, a most auspicious asset, especially in a President. Roosevelt's smile, that infectious laugh, his good humor, that flash of the eye which denotes mental strength and agility, are all a part of the thing that makes Roosevelt personality. To me, he seems more of a man than when I saw him for the first time in many years at the Chicago convention, having airplaned there to talk direct to the Democratic party which had chosen him as a standard bearer. I think he has gained in the gruelling months in which he has set up a New Deal.

There is a deep spiritual quality about Roosevelt which bids well for this country. I've often wondered how he manages to keep nis mind clear through all the noise and blim-blaming of the blocs, the lobbyists, the politi cians and the scare-head boys, and I guess the answer is he keeps the big things big and the small things small. He doesn't forget to be human; nor has he lost any of that great stock of Roosevelt good humor. In that respect he ranks with Lincoln, who used to shock his war time cabinet by putting aside the cares of state to read to his cabinet something out of the daily humor of Josh Billings, war time predecessor of our present day Will Rogers. Roosevelt has that same light touch which indicates tremendous power within, which can manipulate without strain. He can put tremendous force into a national policy, and at the same time side step with marvelous agility the nasty cracks of the opposition. He can hit an embarrassing question right on the nose and turn the laugh on the man who asks it. Withal he is a serious worker who goes right to the spot. Probably he is as hard working a man as there is on the payroll. He works constantly; and when he plays he plays with everything he has in him. These play periods, though, are few and far between and could be increased with profit to the American people. Roosevelt starts his work day around nine o'clock in the morning. He reads half a dozen newspapers with care, and retains a vast amount of detall of the day's news. He knows the men in Washington who write the national news and can talk intelligently to any of them about their articles in the press. He never loses his temper over newspaper attacks; but is quite likely to be in instant position to give information that will set the thing straight in the eyes of the reading public. After the newspapers he takes up the immediate day's program with one or more of his three secretaries, Col. Louis Howe, Marvin McIntyre, and Steve Early, old friends who serve him with rare ability and faithfulness. There is good team work there. Things work so smoothly that no one sees the wheels go 'round or realizes the great pressure under which everyone is workog at the White House.

awalts the long stream of callers, officials, congressmen, cabinot officers and leaders of American business life. From then until 6:30 or 7 o'clock in the evening he is constantly at work. even using his lunch hour to confer with some cabinet member or close associate. At these conferences most of the public policies are framed or discussed.

The incoming White House mail is enormous; it is likely to weigh as much as a ton a day; sometimes a ton and a half, which means a maximum of 50,-000 letters daily to be received, read, sorted and attended to by the staff of a hundred or more assistants. Recollect, now that it occupies the whole time of at least a hundred men and women to co-ordinate and handle the President's daily paper work. Each one is especially fitted for the task; and I am reminded of the old Bible saying: "Seest thou a man dillgent in his business, he shall stand before kings." In today's language we would say that a man has to be a top notcher to handle any part of the White House work.

Roosevelt has been working very hard lately; especially since congress convened. He is hammering hard on his program, making every minute count and keeping a finger on everything in the government. He sees his cabinet once a week; also the heads of every one of the emergency alphabetical organizations, a group called the National Emergency council, which in effect is a second cabinet of equal importance to the official one. He has two conferences a week with newspaper men; and these are as interesting and as productive of news today as they were when he started them shortly after he was inaugurated.

At the time this was written, Roosevelt had not left the White House but three or four times in several weeks, being closely confined day and night on the business of his job; and at the same time showing up every morning with a genuine smile. He was out to dinner a couple of times; on Christmas eve he crossed the street to attend a Christmas celebration in the park; he drove to Leesburg, Va., about 50 miles one afternoon to see his son; and he went to a show at the theater one night; and that's about all the outside relaxation the man has had in weeks. These long working hours will produce tremendous results; in them Roosevelt has been laying down the foundations for a new social order. He used this term himself in his first message to this congress, when he gave us the vision of his plan to assure everyone a job at some useful work : and the hope of an insurance against the cruelties of poverty stricken old age.

The rank and file of veterans who are demanding immediate bonus payment have no choice about how the money shall be raised; but here in Washington there is always a tug of war between the so-called Inflationists and the sound money crowd; and because these two bills are divided between these factions, the bonus is forgotten while the money theorists fight it out.

Patman believes that the bankers devised the Vinson bill with full knowledge that the ensuing wrangle would kill all chances of bonus legislation in this congress. There are some harsh words spoken in congress in the cloak rooms and committees these days; the strong bonus advocates believe they have been betrayed. One thing that has come out of this scrap is the strong endorsement given to the original Patman bill by the Veterans of Foreign Wars who want the bonus paid now with greenbacks. Patman loves this; because this organization is composed exclusively of men who were overseas, most of them veterans of actual fighting. The legion, of course, holds many veterans who did not get into battle. Patman now keeps prodding the opposition with this fact. The administration view is that the bonus is not legally due; that the government's first duty is toward the hungry and unemployed; and that this government is now treating disabled veterans, as a class, with more solicitude than any other class. The whole business is unfortunate and will result in bad feeling; but the bonus advocates are right now their own worst enemies.

frock nothing could be very much nicer than this adorable little bloom er frock with its quaint over-theshoulder yoke and prettily puffed sleeves. The frock is simple to slip into, too, buttoning up the front, with only three buttons to be fastened. And it allows plenty of room for romping-the skirt is gathered to the yoke at the back and box-pleated in front. A smart checked or plaid wool or cotton would be pretty for this frock-little girls always seem to love gay colors-and be sure to make up four or five of those crisp white collars in linen or pique. The bloomers, by the way, are included in this pattern.

NO MORE HUGE AIRSHIPS

There will be no more of these huge Seppelin type airships built with government money for a long time. When the U. S. "Macon" collapsed over the Pacific ocean the other day, drowning two of the crew and ruining the ship itself, everybody in the official circles here, headed by the President, declared that the use of federal money in experimenting with these huge toys of the air-is now ended. The "Macon" was the third of these huge airliners of our naval airfleet to crash; the "Shenandoah" and the "Akron" went down to destruction, proving to the experts here that these ships are not stable enough at the present time. ©, Western Newspaper Union.

II. Simon the Sorcerer (Acts 8:18-24).

His wicked request (vv. 18, 19). 1. When Simon saw that Peter's power to work wonders exceeded his own and that this power was received through the laying on of hands, he offered money for the gift. This act revealed his hypocrisy. He professed faith in Christ and was baptized, and even followed the apostles for a selfish Traffic in sacred things is called "Simony," from the name of this sorcerer. Making merchandise of Christianity is committing the same sin. Using the name of Christ for the purpose of gain is to be guilty of this sin, Peter's severe rebuke (vv. 20-22).

"Thy money perish with thee." 8. This implies that Peter's judgment was that Simon was unregenerate and that he himself was in the way of perishing.

"Thy heart is not right in the sight of God." One whose inner life delights in God could not seek the Spirit's power for selfish reasons.

"Repent of thy wickedness and C. pray to God for forgiveness," While Peter recognized that this man was unsaved, he did not regard him as beyond the hope of salvation, but urged him to turn from his sin and ask for forgiveness.

d. "Thou, art in the gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity." The one and only thing for this man to do was to repent and sue for forgiveness. Simon requested Peter's prayer to the end that he might escape divine judgment.

The Power of Jesus

Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that i might take it again. No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. This commandment have I received of my Father .-- John 10:17-18.

Famed Mounted Police Strictly Up to Date

Today, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police use more motor cars and motor cycles than horses. Their detectives are skilled in finger-prints and the science of ballistics. Canada's Scotland Yard is armed with all that the modern world knows of criminal psychology and methods of detection.

The one-time riders of the plains have been developed into a federal police, charged with the enforcement of the criminal code in six of Canada's nine provinces, and with the enforcement of federal statutes throughout the whole dominion.

Changed conditions in living present the police with new crime problems. Fewer cattle thieves but more pay roll bandits. Fewer Indian raids but the mystery of feuds begun in Europe culminating in a series of murders in the New world. The tentacles of the drug traffic laid hold on life. Gangsters, bootleggers, "big shots" of the underworld appeared.

At the same time, along the frozen shores of Hudson bay in the Yukon and the far twillt Arctic, which electricity, airplanes, radio have invaded but failed to conquer. the mounted patrols on snowshoes and dog sleds keep order and a benign surveillance over all.

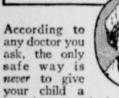

And the tradition they get their man goes on, upheld by the records of scores of recent crimes on file at headquarters in Ottawa .- Dorothy Gfles in Cosmopolitan Magazine,

Indian "Medicine"

A Lyons man who is convinced that the editor knows Indian "medicine" asked if we could not do some thing to chase zero weather away. We have to confess we did not because we are not thoroughly schooled in the dark arts of the redskin.

But we do know, from him, how to bring cold weather so that furs and skins may be better, that animals may be tracked in the snow and that spring may not come dangerously soon. You take a small boy and strip him naked. Then you start him going north from the village, cursing the north wind and defying the north wind to come and meet him. It will not be long until he comes running back with the old north wind growling at his heels and the frost king nipping his tender posterior .-- Lyons News.

WHO REMEMBERS THOSE LONG AGO ASAFETIDA BAGS?

Webster's dictionary defines asafet Ida as a "feted gum resin of various Persian and East Indian aplaceous plants. It is used as a medicine, and it has a strong odor and taste of garlic.

Mr. Webster is kind in his definition, as anyone who ever has worn one of the oldtime asafetida bags, so common to the last generation, will testify.

Scarcely 25 years ago, before chill dren were reared on "bottled sunshine," sun lamps, violet rays and other modern scientific devices, asafetida bags were as much a part of rural school equipment as the copybook and speller. In fact, they were more quickly recognized when the wearer entered those hot, steaming one-room schools on a mid-January morning.

It always seemed that one of the tragedles of life was the fact that the prettiest girl in the room wore an asafetida bag. It made her a marked person, and only a strong personality undoubtedly kept her from developing an inferiority complex. With the arrival of spring each year she was saved, as a diet of

MUST HAVE VELVET TOUCH TO ENSEMBLE

Even if you don't want to wear a velvet frock or suit this year, there should be a touch of velvet about you if you are to be truly smart and luxurious looking.

A turban of velvet ribbon done with Intricate twists and drapings is always good when worn by the picturesque or exotic type. The tall Russian hats of sleek velvet also are good, as are the pill-box hats with chinestone ornaments and flirtatious veil. These are nice to nestle in huge, upstanding fur coat collars

Then, too, there are afternoon bags of velvet, many of them shirred and trimmed with rhinestone or mirror or naments.

Though Clothes Are Very Chic, They Are Practical

Clothes are ever so smart this season, but at no time have the designers lost sight of the practical. Thus we have tunics that are strikingly elaborate, yet they will give new life to an old evening frock, or a long, slim skirt. These tunics come in beautiful fabric, sometimes they are rhinestone studded or else they have bands of spangles. One beautiful model that we saw was of heaviest lame in silver and green. The very draped neck was caught in front with a jeweled ornament, and brace lets caught the loose sleeves into tight cuffs. This could go over an evening dress to make a lovely outfit.

Frothiness

Net dresses, sometimes complemented by capes, all are marked by extreme frothiness about the neck, shoulders and hem lines. Black, turquoise, pink, brown and peach are the favorite colors in order of their popularity.

Sport Sweaters

The smartest of sports sweaters show a decided English influence in their conformation to more or less simple and classic styles, softest yarns and unusual pastel off-tones.

'yarbs" and sassafras tea replaced the obnoxious bag she wore around her throat.

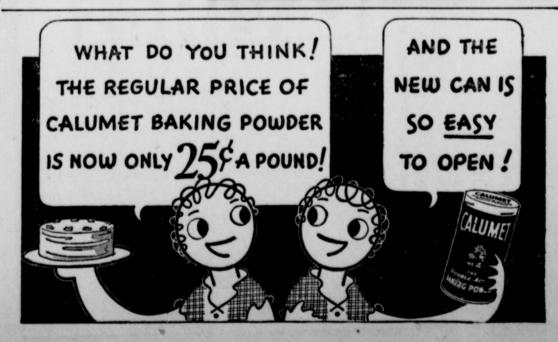

The agonies she must have endured in her mother's quest for health are unimaginable, and, indeed, her own children now owe science an undying vote of thanks for discoveries which eliminated the use of asafetida, at least in its most obtrusive form.

Possibly the one thing lacking in these modern air-conditioned schoolrooms, where germs and disease are banned, is the old familiar smell of asafetida "which has a strong odor and taste of garlic." Granting that the scientific inventions of today are applied successfully with less wear and tear on the human body and disposition than the methods used in the last generation, yet may it not be that something of sentiment still lingers in the memories associated with its old uses?

Perhaps it is not too remote a suggestion that when the modern mother applies the "bottled sunshine" to Junior and Mary she sighs and pos-

AGA approved gas appliances... for SAFETY QUALITY EFFICIENCY

Few industries maintain a laboratory for research and testing such as the American Gas Association Testing Laboratory. In this laboratory every kind of gas appliance is tested by trained engineers. For instance, a gas range is subjected to about 250 separate tests. These tests are grouped under such headings as: lighters, leakage, burner operating characteristics, combustion, fire hazard, thermostats, oven heat distribution and capacity, and many classifications pertaining to construction and strength. In every detail, a gas appliance, before A. G. A. approval is given, is made to comply with nationally indorsed standards for safe operation, durable construction and satisfactory periormance. When buying gas appliances look for this seal.

New Deal Sighs Relief as Supreme Court O. K's Gold Laws-President Urges Congress to Extend NRA Two More Years.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD C. Western Newspaper Un

DRESIDENT ROOSEVELT and the posed further protection of small enterprises against discrimination and New Dealers breathed easier after the United States Supreme court handed down its decision sustaining inval-

President

Roosevelt for holders of federal bonds to collect on their old gold basis. In other words, the holder of a $1,000 federal bond is entitled to a technical value of $1,690, but in reality it would be impractical to make any collection of that amount, since the Court of Claims is the only tribunal before which suits against the government may be taken, and other courts may not entertain such suits without a special act of congress.

it would be impossible

The court also held that those who held gold certificates had no cause of action and could not sue the govern ment. The power of congress to deal with currency was fully upheld.

Not only this country, but the entire world, awaited what the "nine lonely old men" of the Supreme court had to say about the Roosevelt monetary policies. The decision is ranked with the court's decisions in the Dartmouth college cases in 1818 which upheld the sanctity of contract, and in the Dred Scott slavery case in 1857 which had much to do with hastening the outbreak of the Civil war.

Briefly, the ruling said:

1. Congress has the power to nullify promises to pay in gold contained in the bonds of private corporations.

2. A gold certificate is worth only Its face value in present devalued currency. Congressional power over the currency includes the right to establish circumstances under which gold certificates need not be redeemed in gold or its equivalent.

3. Congress has no authority under the Constitution to abrogate the payment-in-gold clause of government bends, but, as no actual damage has been shown, therefore there is no basis for suit for recovery.

The decision was read by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, who voted with Justices Brandels, Stone, Roberts and Cardozo in the majority. Dissenters were Justices McReynolds, Van Devanter, Sutherland and Butler, the four so-called conservatives.

Satisfaction within the administration was evident at once.

Justice McReynolds was spokesman for the dissenters. He unleashed a scathing attack on the majority views. His voice vibrant, he said ; "The Constitution as we have known it is gone. "If given effect, the enactments here challenged will bring about confiscation of property rights and repudia-oppression His suggestions, if adopted, would keep code violators from behind the bars. "The way to enforce laws, codes and regulations relating to industrial practices is not to seek to put people in jail," he said.

Admitting some mistakes, the President was well satisfied that the NRA had done a good job considering its short existence.

"Only carping critics and those who seek political advantage and the right again to indulge in unfair practices or exploitation of labor or consumers dehberately seek to quarrel over the obvious fact that a great code of law, of order and of decent business cannot be created in a day or a year," Mr. Roosevelt declared.

All details of the legislation were left to congress. While this is in progress, the senate finance committee proposes to conduct the Nye-McCarran investigation of the NRA administration and codes. The judiciary subcommittee reported no funds available, but the inquiry, which has the President's approval, will be attempted without money.

MORE than 100 men were reported killed or wounded in a skirmish in the "demilitarized" zone which lies between Manchukuo and China north of Tientsin. The clash was between the recently formed Peace Preservation corps and the Lwanchow militia. The Peace Preservation corps, which has the approval of the Chinese government, was receiving money and arms from the Japanese, it was alleged. The militia is supported by local Chinese interests.

VICTOR A. CHRISTGAU, demoted from his position of second rank. ing officer of the AAA in the recent shake-up which involved several alleged radicals, resigned in protest, Chester C. Davis, administrator, had not accepted the resignation and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace was attempting to persuade Christgau to change his mind.

Wallace hinted that there had been differences between Christgau and A. H. Lauterbach, chief of the AAA dairy section, over the milk policy. A protege of Undersecretary Rexford Guy Tugwell, Christgau was also supposed to have encountered "friction" with other members of the department. This gave rise to new rumors that Brain Truster cultural Adjustment act were declared to conceal dangerous, arbitrary and utocratic powers over farmers facturers and distributors of farm products, by the legislative committee of the agricultural industries conference in Washington. The committee cited the provision that the AAA may require that a licensed processor purchase only from those who sign contracts. It charges that the amendments make no provision for the farmer to express himself in the matter of licenses, but contain provisions for price control, markets, production and purchasing. Through indirect restriction of the farmer's market, these provisions are equivalent to a licensing of the farmer, according to the committee. "The entire economic life of communities could be directed from Washington," the committee said.

Mussolini Warlike Supreme Court Power All Happy There Learning How to Spend

Mussolini has found the opportunity to show the world what it means when "Rome" modern starts moving. He has mobilized an army with air planes to supple ment tanks and artillery, and the Emperor of Abyssinia, Halle Selassie, must discipline his unruly chiefs that have offended Mussolini by an attack on African colonies, or so much the worse for Ethiopian Selassie, who be-

Arthur Brisbane lieves that he is the direct descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

Maybe he is, but he will encounter a problem that King Solomon's wisdom could not solve for him when he meets Mussolini's airplanes.

If wise, Selassie will pay the indemnity that Mussolini demands. As a practical business man, Mussolini always asks a little soothing cash. He got some from Greece. Also, Selassie must salute the Italian flag, which costs nothing. Mexico would not do that.

One question may surprise you concerning Supreme court decisions setting aside laws passed by the congress and signed by the President, on the ground that congress, in passing the law, had exceeded its constitutional authority. This is the question: Are those Supreme court decisions in themselves unconstitutional?

When the Supreme court, sometimes by a narrow margin of five to four, declares a law unconstitutional and void, is it exceeding its constitutional authority?

Where in the Constitution of the United States do you find authority for the Supreme court power to overrule congress and the President in the making of laws? This absence of authority is no accident. Those that wrote the Constitution, after long arguing, disputing and many concessions, knew, presumably, what they wanted the Constitution to say. And they did not want it to give the Supreme court the power to veto laws, that it now assumes and exercises.

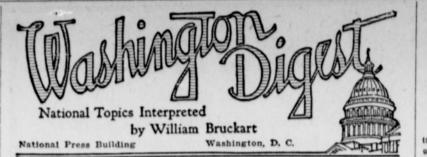

In London, John Puckering, fiftyeight, apparently dead, was revived after five minutes. Meanwhile, he had gone to heaven. He saw interesting things, came back to tell of them. Souls, evidently, travel more rapidly than light, which takes 900,000,000 years to get outside of the universe as we know it, going 186,000 miles a sec Mr. Pickering says heaven is ond. filled with a "happy crowd."

There were no children. "All were dressed as on earth."

No moths in heaven, of course; no depression either.

Mayor LaGuardia, consulting with President Roosevelt about loans for New York city improvements, again proves that we have at last learned to spend money. Something over $1,-100,000,000 would be the preliminary total, for tunnels, highways, public schools, a $150,000,000 housing program, $232,000,000 to bring a better water supply from the Delaware, extension of Park avenue as a broad highway above the tracks of the New York Central north to the Bronx, elimination of slums and the slum character from the East river shores.

Washington .- Certain signs of transition are appearing in the political They are picture. Third Party becoming clear Rumblings enough to deserve attention. What they may mean in the ultimate can be made only the subject of a guess-politics being what they are-but interesting circumstances can be noted as of this day and time. Third party rumblings are beginning to be heard along the whole political front. This is noteworthy because third parts rumblings usually are confined to a few sectors, some important, some unimportant. The insurgents radicals, progressives, and independents all seem to be examining the political horizons of 1936. Roughly, those factions enumerated have been classified as the "sons of the wild jackass," an appellation given them by George H. Moses of New Hampshire, when he was filling a Republican seat in the United States senate. The fact that they remain and that Mr. Moses has passed out of the political picture is not the point. It was his description of them that gave the country its first grouping of the political factions that have consistently kicked over the traces of the major political parties.

The fact that these various groups are again examining the potentialities and the possibilities of 1936 brings directly into question the progress made by the New Deal in its program of reformation or revolution, depending on the political perspective from which you consider the New Deal.

It is two years since President Roosevelt carried his New Deal into the White House. Much water has gone over the dam since. Many experiments have been tried and many have failed. Doubtless considerable progress of a satisfactory form has resulted. Yet, the "sons of the wild jackass" are not satisfied. It may be because Mr. Roosevelt has ceased to pull so many white rabbits out of a hat after the fashion of a magician, that has caused unaffiliated factions so much disturbance. Or it may be because the Republicans, as the opposition party at present, have been utterly stymied in their efforts to perform opposition functions that have proved the temptation for the so-called left wingers to capitalize whatever political opportunities remain for ex ploitation.

I think it is the general conclusion that the New Deal has not come up to expectations of the left wingers. Perhaps, it might be said that nothing that the New Dealers can offer will be quite satisfactory to the left wingers, for they are difficult to satisfy. Their fertile minds are even more productive of experimental ideas than are the minds even of the brain trusters, and no one has ever said a brain trust mind was not fertile. At any rate, the circumstance is cut and dried and an abundance of material for a third party awaits us by that type of politician.

Observers here agree that one cannot consider the outlook for 1936, and the national elections of that time, without considering the influence that these left wingers may wield. I be-Neve it is conceded everywhere that te Mr. Doosevolt succeeds in leadin the country through to a higher level of prosperity than now graces our fortunes the Republican chances to defeat him are very, very low. If, on the other hand, conditions continue as they now are, Mr. Roosevelt certainly is going to have to battle this progres sive set-up-to adopt one label for all of them-as well as the conservative group centering largely in the Republicans. From this it becomes plain that a third party probably would draw away from Mr. Roosevelt all of those radicals and liberals who would go beyond his policies, while the Republicans obviously will hold their own conservative strength and sap the Roosevelt forces to some extent by taking conservative independents from that side. All in all, if the third party idea comes through, we can look for a fine political scramble from July to November of the 1936 campaign.

in the past. This is true because there is not a Theodore Roosevelt in sight at the moment and some astute politicians insist there is not one in the country. If a man of the late Teddy's type and qualities should come to the 10 surface then probably this third party movement would develop into formidable proportions. If one does not show up, I de not see how the progressives will be any more in 1936 than the scattered fragments of a dozen-odd political philosophies. That brings us to some of the circumstances in congress at the present time. In previous letters I have reported to you that there were signs indicating difficulties for Mr. Roosevelt in holding his gigantic Democratic majorities together in the house and senate. That condition has become some what more aggravated than it appeared when I first commented upon it. There have been minor defections breaking loose from the Democratic majority in the house and in the senate with considerable frequency. On one or two occasions the defections were exceedingly large and, when joined with the Republican minority, were almost large enough to constitute the majority strength. The Democrat ic leadership has wriggled out, thereby saving its skin, but the margin of safety was such as to cause sleepless nights not only in the Capitol, but in high places in the administration. As one of the signs of this growing discontent, one has only to look back over the last few weeks and observe the continued prodding being given the administration from the Democratic side. The worst phase of this prodding is the apparent willingness of many Democratic representatives and senators to promote investigations.

There is a faction in congress, all claiming to be good Democrats, who are on the trail of Seek Farley's Postmaster General Farley's scalp. There Scalp is another bloc of equally good Democrats who would be quite happy to have Secretary Ickes ousted out of the position of secretary of the interior and who squawked loud and long about giving Mr. Ickes control of the $5,000,000,000 relief appropriation.

Within the last few days a gang has banded together on the trail of Donald Richberg, until recently the man who was closest of any in the administration to the President. To add to Mr Richberg's troubles, he is on the outs with the American Federation of Labor and it must be said that the federation can do a great deal with many members of the house and senate. So, when the legislation for continuance of the National Recovery Administration gets on the floors of congress I think it is likely this group will tear off some Richberg bark, Governor Eccles of the Federal Reserve bureau, a rather new New Dealer and a fast thinker, has not helped the administration's situation in congress any by his bank bill. out here in old Orangejuice Land again, toiling to try and hand a fraction of the folks a laugh on the screen when your beauty has deserted you, When you are getting old you have to resort to pure skill or trickery. I kinder take up the trickery. Now in the old days just looks alone got me by. I had the men love interest in my pictures stepping out to keep ahead of me. The Lord was good to me in the matter of handing out a sort of a half breed Adonis profile, (well it was a little more than a profile that you had to get). Straight on I dident look so good, and even sideways I wasent to terrific, but a cross between a back and a three quarter view, why Brothers I was hot. The way my ear, (on one side) stood out from my head, was just bordering on perfect. That rear view give you just the shot needed. That ear dident just stick out, it kinder protruded just gently. In those old silent day pictures that back right ear was a by word from Coast to Coast. You see all screen stars have what they call their better angles. These women have just certain camera men to shoot them, they know which way to turn em, and how to throw the light on em.

Well they dont pay much attention to lighting with me, the more lights go out during the scene the better. So we toll and we struggle to maintain what is left of our beauty and manliness. Of course the Radio helps us. Any any hour somebody is begging and imploring us to go to the drug store and buy something that will take the wrinkles out of our ears, lift our eyebrows, bring back that rudy, (thats spelled rudy) complexion. There is as many gadgetts on the market to overhaul men as there is women. I doubt if women have got much on man when it comes to trying to outlook themselvs.

But I got to get back to the Movies and tell you what we are all doing out here. I am working on a picture they say they going to call it "Doubting Thomas". Well I dont know why, there is not much that I doubt either in the picture or out. I am a mighty trusting fellow and believe most everything. Its from a very successful play a few years back called, "The Torch Bearers". It was very clever, and we got us a fine cast, a lot of old friends among em. Mrs. Flo Zeigfeld (Billie Burke) is playing my wife. She has duplicated her stage hit in the movies.

You know about all good stage people, are good in the movies. Some of em might not have gotten off good in their first picture they tried, but it wasent their fault, it was the story, part or something. Give any good stage performer three or four parts in pictures and they would be just as good. But they turn em down too quick sometimes on just one missfit showing.

I can remember her. (Miss Burke) when she was first married to my boss. Mr. Zeigfeld. At least they hadent married long when I started on the Midnight Frolic Roof. How proud of her he was. They and the Barrymores, and the John Drews and partys used to come up on the Roof and sit at a ringside table. Gosh what a place that was, the first Midnight Show, and the greatest and most expensive. Those girls wouldent think of leaving N.Y. with a show.

"Just men regard spollation of citizens by their sovereign with abhorrence, but we are asked to affirm that the Constitution has granted power to accomplish both."

"No definite delegation of such a power exists; and we cannot believe the farseeing framers, who labored with hope of establishing justice and securing the blessings of liberty, intended that the expected government should have authority to annihilate its own obligations and destroy the very rights which they were endeavoring to protect "

Notified that Chief Justice Hughes was reading the decision, President Roosevelt went to the cabinet room, where he listened to telephone reports from an aid. Three cabinet officers were at his side. The Chief Executive was prepared to take swift action to protect the credit of the government in case an adverse decision was handed down, but executive orders were mnnecessary. The carefully prepared program was not needed.

TWO more years of the NRA, with clarification of policies, more effective enforcement of codes and the granting of "unquestioned power" to the federal government, were urged by the President in a message to congress.

The national recovery act terminates June 16 this year. "Abandonment would be unthinkable," he said. naming the act as "the biggest factor in giving re-employment to approximately 4,000,000 people."

He said congress must maintain the fundamental principles of the act to establish at least a minimum fair trade practice and labor relations standard. pleading that child labor must stay out and that fixing of wages and hours was practical and necessary.

Answering recent protests of labor. he said: "The rights of employees freely to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining should be fully protected."

He urged more strict application of anti-trust laws, condemned monopolies and private price fixing, opposed hindces to fair competition. and pro-

BRUNO RICHARD HAUPTMANN escaped the electric chair at least temporarily when a writ of error filed by defense attorneys earned him a stay of the execution sentence which was to be carried out at Trenton, N. J., March 18. The Bronx carpenter's life is safe at least until September or October, since a further appeal can be made to the court of pardons if the court of errors and appeals fails to uphold the writ. Lloyd C. Fisher and Frederick A. Pope presented the appeal after a battle with Chief Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly, who subsequently threatened that either he or Fisher would have to withdraw from the Hauptmann defense. The hearing will probably take place at the next session of the court, which begins May 21.

Part of the dissension among de fense attorneys was thought to exist because Reilly never challenged the assumption that the body of the dead baby was that of Lindbergh's son. George H. Foster, former investigator for the defense, declared that seven autopsies were ready to show that the baby could not have been Lindy's because it was four inches taller than Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.; was in a less identifiable condition than would have been possible in the mild weather following the kidnaping, and was embelmed.

From Ireland comes Jack Doyle, via Mayfair, London, 6 feet 4, handsome face, nice smile, big muscles, telling the truth about himself, whatever the damage to his modesty: "I am not like the usual lowbrow fighter. I'll go up and up and up to the very top." Mr. Doyle sings "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" very sweetly. Mr. Max Baer, at present prize-fight champion, cannot sing well, but he, too, has selfconfidence: "Jack Doyle's prophecies are all very well. He may go 'up and up and up,' but sooner or later on the road up he will meet me, and then he will go down and down and down."

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., head of General Motors, announces that 30,000 employees, under the company's saving and investment plan, will have $11,000,000 cash divided among them. The employee who saves $25 a month, the maximum, $300 a year, gets back his $300, plus $321.52, contributed by the company, including $114 for interest. It is rather difficult to persuade men to "arise, ye prisoners of starvation." and "throw off their chains," when one of the chains is attached to an "$11,-000,000 melon.

Germany plans an army of 400,000 men, small compared with the kaiser's army. But the real fighting machine hereafter will be located in the air, and, besides, German recruits for the 400,000 army will serve only one year, instead of four, giving a rapid turnover of trained fighters. At the end of five years Germany would have 2,000,-000 men trained to fight. It is likely, however, that whatever is going to happen will happen long before five years

New Deal program has about jelled. They know, as all political observers know, that there are a good many hun dred thousand votes scattered around waiting to be cast in favor of a program much more radical than that to which Mr. Roesevelt has been willing to agree. But the progressives have a distinct problem of their own. It is an entire absence of an outstanding leader of the hero type who can sound the trumpet and call for the progressives to "follow me." My inquiries among all veins of political opinion have given me no clue to the name of an individual who can head up the movement. As I said above, however, results cannot be predicted now and one must add to that statement also that one cannot guess at the leadership of this new movement because it will have to jell further before that leadersflip appears on the horizon.

It is even possible that these current third party rumblings will mean ne more than they have in many cases sored. Senator Glass has always had a following in the senate and he has it Whatever he does, therefore, now. his leadership will be important because he will have not only his own following but the conservative Republicans as well.

The banking legislation, according to the view in many quarters, may turn out to be the focal point, the issue, on which the line of cleavage between the administration New Dealers and the conservatives will be definitely established.

In discussing congressional troubles for the administration no one dares overlook the stocky figure of Senator As to Huey Long Huey Long. Huey just does not like Mr. Roosevelt. In fact Huey would like to be President himself. Political ambitions combined with a vitriolic tongue give Huey a broad platform upon which to perform and unless I miss my guess he is willing to be increasingly troublesome to the administration.

Huey knows that the administration is going to overlook no opportunity for harpooning him. Among the exec utive departments in Washington, one hears hints, and sometimes more than hints, that Huey is vulnerable and that these weaknesses in his armor will be exposed in due course. How much steam the administration can or will turn on is highly problematical. It must be remembered that if, for example, Attorney General Cummings should authorize or direct any ac tion against Huey the Louislana senator immediately would capitalize those orders as an administration movement to persecute him. In other words the administration is in a spot where it can easily make a martyr out of Huey. The result of that would be to strengthen Huey's position immeasurably. I am told that any fighting back on the part of the administration, in so far as Huey Long is concerned, is going to be given long and serious consideration because Huey is a political bombshell, . Birds Display Enmity at Sight of Airplane

Birds are more frightened or airplanes than are blg game, an English aviator reports. When flying over Britain I have noticed that the pheasant, partridge, and even the domesticated hen, are thoroughly scared when an airplane drones in their direction. They appear to think that a plane is a glant hawk about to swoop down on them. It is a curious assertion among people who lived on the east coast of Britain during the World war that they received their first warning of impending Zeppelin raids from pheasants. These pheasants invariably awoke. began calling to each other and scuttered away in fright long before the noise of aero engines became apparent to human ears.

There are several cases of condors attacking airplanes crossing the Andes Once, it is told, a large condor espled an all-metal airplane winging through the blue. Immediately the huge bird swooped down and struck the intruder with stunning force on the wing. All that was left to tell of the encounter was a large rent in the wing, some feathers, and a condor's leg complete with its foot.

Constipated?

The doctors say . . . Use liquid treatment

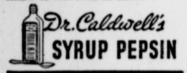

Here is the soundest advice anyone can give on the subject of laxatives. It is based on medical opinion. We want you to have the benefit of this information no matter what laxative you may buy:

The secret of real relief from constipation is reduced dosage. You can't regulate the bowels unless you can regulate the help you give them. That is why doctors use a liquid laxative; the dose can be measured to a drop.

Avoid laxatives that you can't cut down in dosage; especially those that seem to require larger doses than when you began their use.

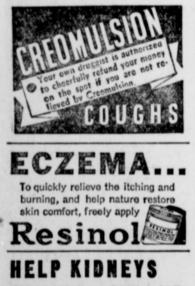

Under the doctor's care, you usual-ly get a liquid laxative. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. Smaller and smaller doses— until you don't need any.

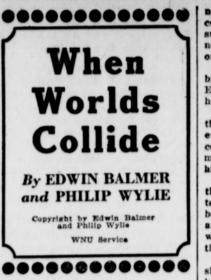

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—natural laxatives that form no habit.

CHAPTER IX-Continued -14-

"We now come," Hendron said, "to the last stage of this remarkable flight. They had been flying for three weeks, sleeping little and living on bad food. They decided to go back by way of St. Paul and Milwaukee.

"On the way to St. Paul they were forced down on a small lake, and it was there that Ransdell noticed the unmelted metal in a flow of magma. They investigated a tongue of molten metal after an arduous and perilous journey to reach it. When they were sure of its nature they collected samples and brought them back to the plane. Repairs to the oil-feeding systen were required; they took off on the day before their return, and reached the vicinity of St. Paul safely. It was in St. Paul, less than two hundred miles from here, that they received the injuries with which they returned. St. Paul was in much the same condition as Pittsburgh, except that it had undergone the further decay occasioned by two additional weeks of famine and pestilence. They landed on the Mississippi river near the shore, late that night. Almost immediately they were attacked, doubtless because it was believed they possessed food. The last words in James' diary are these: 'Boats have put out toward us. One of them has a machine gun mounted in the bow. Ransdell has succeeded in starting the motors, but the plane is listing. I believe that bullets have perforated one of the pontoons and that it is filling. We may never leave the water. Vanderbilt is throwing out every object that can be removed to lighten the ship. It may be that it will be necessary to repulse the first boatload before we can take off. . . .

Hendron dropped the seventh notebook on the table. "You may reconstruct what followed, my friends, The hand-to-hand fight on the plane with a boathoad of hunger-driven maniacsa fight in which all three heroic members of the airplane company were hart. We may imagine them at last beating back their assailants, and with their floundering ship taking off before a second boatload was upon them. We may imagine Ransdell guiding his ship through the night with gritted teeth, while his occasional backward glances offered him little reassurance of the safety of his comrades. The rest we know."

Autumn had set in, but it was like no autumn the world had ever known before. The weather remained unnaturally hot. The skies were still hazy. An enormous amount of fine volcanie dust remained suspended in the upper Vulcanists had enumerated, before the disturbance of the First Passage, some four hundred and thirty active volcanic vents. Counting the cones which had been considered dormant, there had been several thousand. All these, it now was calculated, had become active. Tropical rains, tawny with voicanic dust, fell in torrents. Steam and vapors, as well as lavas and dust, were pouring from innumerable vents out from under the cracked and fissured crust of the world. The neighboring yent, opened in the vicinity of St. Paul, supplied Hendron with more than the necessary amount of the new metal, which could be machined but which withstood even the heat of the atomic blast. Hendron had not waited for his explorers to recover. On the day after the reading of the diaries he had flown with an other pilot, found a source of the strange material from the center of the earth, and he had loaded the plane. Repeated trips had provided more than enough metal for the tubes of the atomic engines.

THE BAIRD STAR

new hysteria, had become perfectly confident that the Space Ship must succeed in making its desperate journey. The camp was resolved-that part of it which should be chosen-to go. Tony kept on at his work, tormented by a torture of his own. Together with Ellot James and Vanderbilt, Ransdell had now recovered from his wounds.

For his part in the great adventure the pilot would have become popular. even if he had not also proved the discoverer of the metal that would not melt. That by itself would have lifted him above every other man in the camp. Not above Headron in authority ; for the flyer never in the slightest attempted to assert authority. Ransdell became, indeed, even more retiring and reserved than before; and so the women of the camp, and especially the younger ones, worshiped him. When Eve walked with Ransdell, as she often did, Tony became a potential killer. In reaction he could laugh at himself; he knew it was the hysteria working in him-his fear and terrors at facing almost inevitable and terrible death, and at knowing that Eve also must be annihilated. It was these emotions that at moments almost broke out in a demonstration against Ransdell.

When Tony was with Eve, she seemed to him less the civilized creature of cultured and sophisticated soclety, and more an impulsive and primitive woman.

Her very features semed altered, bolder, her eyes darker and larger, her lips softer, her hair filled with a brighter fire. She was stronger, also, and more taut.

"We're going to get over," she said to him one day.

"Yes," igreed Tony. No one now openly doubted it, whatever he hid in his head. "How do you-" he began, and then made his challenge less directly personal by adding, "How do you girls now like the idea of ceasing to be individuals and becoming 'biological representatives of the human race'after we get across?"

He saw Eve flush, and the warmth in her stirred him. "We talk about it, of course," she replied. "And-I suppose we'll do it."

"Breed the race, you mean," Tony continued mercilessly. "Reproduce the type-mating with whoever is best to insure the strongest and best children for the place, and to establish a new generation of the greatest possible variety from the few individuals which we can hope to land safely. That's the program."

"Yes," said Eve, "that's the purpose."

For a minute he did not speak, thinking, his hands clenched; then: "Would you care?"

"Care, Tony?" she began, her face flooded with color. She checked herself. "No one must care; we have sworn not to care-to conquer caring. And we must train ourselves to it now, you know. We can't suddenly stop caring about such things, when we find ourselves on Bronson Beta, unless we've at least made a start at downing selfishness here."

"You call it selfishness?"

"I know it's not the word, Tony ; but I've no word for it. Morals isn't the word, either. What are morals, fundamentally, Tony? Morals are nothing but the core of conduct required of an individual in the best interests of the group of which he's a member. So what's 'moral' here wouldn't be moral at all on Bronson Beta."

"D-n Bronson Beta! Have you no feeling for me?" "Tony, is there any sense in making

The attack began on the following for spoils, but to a greater degree in a fury of lust and envy. They had night. It began with gunfire raking the barriers. A siren on top of the traveled on broken roads, growing as power house sounded a wholly unnecthey marched. It was a heathen horde, essary warning. "Women to cover! a barbaric and ruthless horde.

Tony found Hendron inside the Space Ship, and there, since its metal made an armor for it, a light was burning. Hendron sat at a table; it was now his headquarters.

"Who's hurt?" asked Tony. "Too many." Hendron dismissed this. "What do you think they are doing?" he challenged Tony abruptly. "Getting ready to come again," Tony returned.

"Tonight, probably?"

Tony glanced at his wrist watch: It was eleven o'clock. "Midnight would be my guess, sir," he said.

"Will they get in next time?" Hendron demanded. "They can-if they come on more resolutely. They can do more than they have done. "Whereas we," Hendron took up for him, "can scarcely do more." "Yes, sir," said Tony. "We used all the defenses we had; and they could have carried us an hour ago, if they'd come on."

"Exactly," nodded Hendron. "And now we are fewer. We will be fewer still, of course, after the next attack; and fewer yet, after they get in." "Yes, sir."

"However," said Hendron thoughtfully, "that will be, in one way, ap advantage."

Tony was used, by now, to be astonished by Hendron; yet he said, "I don't follow you, sir."

"We will defend the enclosure as long as we can, Tony," Hendron said. "But when they are in-if they get in-no one is to throw himself away fighting them uselessly. They must be delayed as long as they can be; but when they are in, we gather-all d us that are left, Tony-here." "Here?

"Inside this ship. Hadn't that oe curred to you, Tony? Don't you see? Don't you see?"

Tony stared at his chief and straightened, the blood of hope racing again hot within him. "Of course I see !" he almost shouted. "Of course J see !"

"Very well. Then issue clothswhite clotns, Tony; distribute ther

The engine makers could not melt the metal by any heat they applied: they could not fuse it; but they could cut it and by patient machining shape it into lining of tubes which, at last, endured the frightful temperatures of the atom releasing its power.

The problem of the engine for the Space Ship was solved. This transformed the psychology of the camp. And now there ensued a period of frantic impatience for the return of the Bronson Bodies! For the camp, in its | lessly outnumbered.

more difficult for ourselves what we may have to do?"

"Yes; d-n it," Tony burst out again, "I want it difficult. I want it impossible for you!"

Wanderers from other places began to discover the camp. While they were few in number, it was possible to feed and clothe and even shelter them, at least temporarily. Then there was no choice but to give them a meal and send them away. But daily the deal-ings with the desperate, reckless groups became more and more ugly and hazardous.

Tony directed the extension of the protection of the camp by a barrier of barbed wire half a mile beyond the buildings. There were four gates which he sentineled and where he turned back all vagrant visitors. If this was cruelty, he had no alternative but chaos. Let the barriers be broken. and the settlement would be overwhelmed.

But bigger and uglier bands continued to come. It became a commonplace to turn them back at the bayonet point and under the threat of machine guns. It became unsafe for anyoneman or woman-to leave the enclosure except by airplane.

Rifles cracked from concealments. and bullets sang by ; some found their marks.

Ransdell scouted the surroundings from the air; and Tony and three others, unshaven and disheveled, crept forth at night and mingled with the men besieging the camp. They discovered that Hendron's group was hope-great men, murdered in mass!

A rocket rasped its yellow streak into the air and burst above in shower of stars. Unquestionably a signal!

A second rocket rasped up and broke its spatter of stars. Now the camp held its fire and listened. It heard-Tony heard-only a whistle, like a traffic whistle, or the whistle that summoned squads to attacking order.

A third rocket went up.

"Here they come !" some one said ; and Tony wondered how he knew it. Soaked in perspiration, Tony glared into the blackness of the woods.

Now machine guns in the woods were sweeping the camp enclosure. The fire radiated from a few points: and as it was certain that the attackers were not in the path of their own fire, but were in the dark spaces between, Tony swept these with his bullets.

The gun bucked under his tense fingers. Anguished yells rewarded him, Tony's machine gun was overheating. A little light came from somewhere: Tony could not see what it was, except that it flickered. Something was burning. Tony could see figures at the wire barrier now. He could not reckon their numbers, did not try to. He tried only to shoot them down. Once through the wirethat wire so weak that he could not see it-and that thousand, with the thousands behind them would be over him and the men beside him, they would be over the line of older men behind; then they would reach the women.

Tony's lips receded from his teeth. He aimed the gun with diabolic care. and watched it take effect as wind affects standing wheat. The attackers broke and ran back to the woods, Men went in pairs to the tops of the buildings and through loopholes began sniping at those who moved in the territory around the buildings.

Every one was "overmastered" by the same sort of rage which had pos-sessed Tony. The reason for their existence had been to them a high and holy purpose. They defended it with the fanaticism of sealots. They could not know, that the flight of their for arm-bands, so, in the dark, we will know our own."

"Yes, sir. But, Eve is safe?" "She is not hurt, I hear. You might see her for an instant. The women are tearing up bandages." Tony found her in a room with twenty others, tearing white cloth into strips. At least he had one word with her.

"Tony! Take care of yourself!" "How about you, Eve?" She disregarded this; said only:

"Get back to the ship, Tony, after the fight. Oh, get back to the ship !" He went out again. A bullet pinged on the wall beside him. The bursts of machine-gun fire sounded uglier ; there were groans again, and screams. With his burden of machine gun cartridges, he returned to the post he had fought, "That you, Tony?" Jack Taylor halled. "Cartridges? Great! We'll scrap those bimboes. H-1! Just in time, I'd say. Here they come !"

"Listen !" yelled Tony. "If they get in, delay them but don't mix with them; each man tie a white cloth on his sleeve-and retreat to the ship!" And he issued the strips he had brought with him.

From the buildings reinforcements arrived-six men with guns slung over their shoulders, and bayonets that caught a glint from the firing. They carried another machine gun.

One of the new men produced a Very pistol. His private property, he explained, which he had brought along "for emergencies."

"It's one now," Tony said simply and took the pistol from him. He fired it; and the Very light, hanging in the air, revealed men at the wire everywhere. A thousand men-two thousand: no sense even in estimating them.

Tony again claimed the machine gun. He made a flat fan of the flasher before him as he swung the gun back and forth. He was killing men by scores, he knew; but he knew, almo, that if the hundreds had the nerve to stick, they were "in."

They were in!

"Fall back! Fall back to the shipfighting !" Tony yelled again and again He did not need to tell his men b fight. The trouble was they still was ed to fight, holding on here.
