BLACK HILLS PASSION PLAY AT FAIR PARK, ABILENE

A fleet of trucks carrying tons of equipment for the staging of the Black Hills Passion Play at the Fair Park Auditorium in Abilene, commencing Thursday, November 23, and running through Saturday, November 25, will roll into Abilene Thursday morning. This great drama has been breaking all-time records for attendance all over the nation. A Corps of workmen will meet the vans and immediately start serious preparation for the premiere of the production on Thursday, November 23.

There will be special student matinees at especially reduced rates at two P. M. daily, and the Abilene premiere of the play with the dialogue for the first time in the English language will take place at 8:15 Thursday evening, and continue through Saturday. The equipment used in the production of this great historical drama is said to exceed that of any other production in the world. The play is the oldest of which history makes any record and is now in its 702nd year of continuous presentation, having its origin in Luenen, Westphalia in 1242.

The play was transplanted to the United States and set up as a permanent American institution in the Black Hills of South Dakota in 1938 where it is given each summer during June, July and August. Josef Meier, star of the production, is the seventh in his family to have the honor of portraying the role of the Christ. He is supported by a notable cast of one hundred. This world famous drama is sponsored in Abilene by the Abilene Lions Club. Reservations may be made at the WAC Shack, North Third and Pine Streets, Abilene.

Mrs. C. P. Correll and son were in town Thursday from the Oplin community. Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Mauldin returned Sunday after a week's visit with relatives in Stephenville.

THE FARMER AND HIS TRACTOR

I. Know Your Tractor

By A. P. Peck
Managing Editor, Scientific American

Today, with farm and other labor shortages, the tractor is the farmer's best friend. With it he can not only plow and cultivate his fields, but he can plant and fertilize these same fields with the tractor. In between times, "power off the belt" can be put to many uses that will in large measure help to offset the labor shortage. This series of articles will tell of some of the little-known things that can be done with the farm tractor and will also point out how the farmer can keep his tractor operating at top efficiency.

As with all machinery, the tractor can deliver its best services only when the user is familiar with it and knows how to take care of it.

It was surprising to me recently to find that many tractor owners assumed that they knew all about their power units and paid little or no attention to the advice offered by the manufacturers. To be sure, a tractor will run—at least for awhile—if you only put gasoline in the tank and oil in the crankcase. But you must remember that the tractor which you have today may have to last you for a good long time. And it can do that only if you care for it in the correct manner.

First: Did you really read the instruction book that came with your tractor when you bought it? Are you following carefully the maintenance hints given by the maker? Do you set aside certain regular times for the care of your tractor or do you simply run it as long as necessary and then store it in the barn—or, worst of all, in the open—until the next time you need it?

Second: Do you really know how your tractor operates? Do you know how to get the best efficiency from it? Are you getting the greatest power possible and the greatest mileage? Are you using your tractor only for plowing and cultivating, or are you using it to do—better and faster than you could do by hand—immense farm chores?

Why not get out your manufacturer's instruction book tonight and give it a good going-over? I'll bet you will find a number of things in it that will help you to make your tractor more valuable to you. Remember, a horsepower of mechanical energy is equal to seven manpower. Thus a 30-horsepower tractor has the capacity to do the work of 210 men. And that's not to be sneezed at when you are wondering how to get along without that extra hired man that you can't get because of the war.

By the way, are you considering buying a new tractor this year? Perhaps you can get one, because there will be about 209,000 of them manufactured between July 1, 1944 and June 30, 1945. And if you can, be sure to order a modern type high-compression model because it will start easier, warm-up faster, idle better, and give more power than a low-compression tractor. Or, if your old low-compression tractor is still in good condition but needs over-hauling, ask your dealer about installing high-compression pistons or head. Then, using gasoline as fuel, you will find that your old tractor will do about 30 percent more work than it would with low-compression pistons.

(Number 2 of this series will deal with means of avoiding tractor troubles.)

They Are Buying War Bonds - Are You?

They Are Buying War Bonds - Are You?

Men must have what it takes in full measure when ordered into a machinegun nest as first scouts. Pvt. Burtchell Linwood of Weld, Me., can tell you all about it for he didn't come through unscathed. The other side fractured his humerus bone but he will get back to near normal as a result of funds available for hospitalization from War Bond sales.

They Are Buying War Bonds - Are You?

Pfc. Tom Burrade, 20-year-old Noxapater, Miss., boy, hit while on an ammunition truck in France, regained consciousness in England, his jaw fractured and lips cut to the chin, but thankful for War Bond sales.

They Are Buying War Bonds - Are You?

Lt. Leo Klein, 27, Scranton, Pa., hospitalized with burns and compound fracture of both legs, was a B 17 bombardier-navigator with 14 missions accomplished when ordered to a rest home. The train on which he was riding figured in a wreck near London and he suffered wounds that had passed him by on dangerous missions. War Bonds funds are mending his hurts.
