HOME TOWN GOSSIP

When a man jumps out of his automobile after a collision with another and immediately admits that he was at fault, it is really unusual. But circumstances govern all conditions.

Spurlin Freeman enacted the above incident on Main Street here the first of the week. When interviewed as to why he had been so unorthodox and had not "squabbled" just a little bit anyway, he said that he had just recently become a Father and was somewhat excited as a result.

We would poke a little humorous criticism at our fraternal contemporary, "Doc" Sellers over at Rising Star, about the A&P Store and Theater from that place being merged with the ones here the past week, but "Doc" might think us unduly critical so we'll just extend sympathy to the Rising Star scribe in the loss of two business concerns, from his city.

Mark McGee, the prominent Fort Worth attorney, was in town Wednesday and "hob nobbed" about with the boys like a veteran of these parts. A man that can tell stories as fluently and remember names, as can Mark, is certainly in the wrong profession. He should have been either a barber or a politician.

Country editors are frequently asked how they make so much money. In order to satisfy all curiosity along this line the following account is published herein, giving the secret of their success.

A child is born in the neighborhood, the attending physician gets $25. The editor of the local paper gives the "fond lunged youngster" and the proud parents a generous send off and receives $9. It is christened and the minister gets $5. The "village scribe" records the incident and gets $60.

It grows up and marries; the editor publishes another long winded article telling a dozen lies about the beautiful and accomplished bride. The minister gets $10, and a piece of cake and the editor $900. In the course of time it dies; the doctor gets from $5 to $100; the minister perhaps another $5, and the undertaker $25 or $50, while the editor publishes a story of the death and obituary two columns long, lodge and society resolutions, lot of poetry and a free card of thanks and gets $6000. The editor boasts the community and gets Hell in the meantime for lying.

Observe this clipping from a copy of the Cross Plains Herald, date July 4, 1902. "Martin Neeb seems to be the most popular young man around Cross Plains, for he can be seen most any time buggy riding with two or three of our belles".

Bob Young states that since receiving his $2,000. insurance money he has been besieged with propositions for loans, purchases and business partnerships. Don't be alarmed Robert that it is merely a price that they say "capitalists" must pay.

A very charming maiden has enlightened one of the Review printers in regard to the difference between publishing and printing and in conclusion said, "Now you may print a kiss upon my cheek but you must not publish it." With that he locked the fair form in his arms and went to press.

Seen while strolling:—a new sign being painted across the top of the Citizens State Bank building; three very attractive windows at Higginbotham's advertising Spring Sewing Week; the front of the City Drug Store being retouched; Eddie Priest passing out candidate cards without cigars; two or three political discussions which revealed that at least two more local citizens are contemplating tossing their "sombros" into the political ring; a marble game in a downtown garage; a copy of the Cross Plains Herald—predecessor of the Review—dated Friday, July 4, 1902.

COURT CONVENES MONDAY

CITY ELECTIONS PROMISE INTEREST

CITIZENS MAY FIND "NEW TICKET" WHEN THEY VOTE APRIL 5

Only 2 Carry Overs—One Boomed For Mayor While Other Has Tendered Resignation

When Cross Plains citizens go to the polls Tuesday, April 5, to elect city officials they may find an entirely "new ticket"—with none of the present office holders seeking reelection.

Jesse McAdams and C. I. Powell are the only "carry-overs", and Powell has announced that he will resign in the Spring and McAdams is being boomed as a possible candidate for Mayor. Charles F. Hemphill and R. E. Wilson have confided to friends that they will not seek reelection.

Since there is no pay attached to the position and usually an abundance of unfavorable criticism, prospective candidates are reputed to be a bit reluctant in seeking the offices.

The election April 5, will be held in the Anderson-Dodson Chevrolet building.

Among the men that are being discussed as probable candidates for Mayor are: Jesse McAdams, Rev. S. P. Collins, George R. Neel, Bob Boone and Phil R. Anderson. In an interview with citizens Thursday morning the following were also considered potential timber for aldermen: Ted R. Smith, Porter J. Davis, J. R. Patterson, Arthur Burkett and others.

Local Couple Marries Thursday At Coleman

Willie Travis, of this place, and Miss Mollie Wooten, of the Caddo Peak community were wed at Coleman, Thursday, February 19. The Rev. Thompson, Baptist minister, performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wooten and is well known in Cross Plains and adjacent communities. The groom has lived here for a number of years. He is in the employ of the Lone Star Cafe. They are making their home in the West part of town.

Three days before the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Travis, her brother married his sister. They are residing in the Peak community.

LOCAL DEBATERS SCORE DOUBLE WIN OVER CISCO

Cross Plains scored a double forensic victory Wednesday night, when local boys and girl defeated debating teams from Cisco. The boys won a unanimous decision—3 to 0 while the girls secured a 2 to 1 verdict.

The boys representing Cross Plains were Harold Clark and Charles F. Hemphill, Jr. The girls' team was composed of Sarah Collins and Emarie Hemphill.

Jimmie Settle was chairman of the arguments. The question was, Resolved: "That Lobbying As Practiced In This County Is Determental To The Best Interests of Our Citizens."

A&P STORE ENLARGES STOCK IN PLACE HERE

The A&P Store, here, received an enlargement of stock the first of the week. Groceries from the Rising Star store were transferred in equal portions to Cisco, Coleman and Cross Plains. The firm has discontinued operations at Rising Star.

Miss Mary Massa visited friends in Fort Worth last week end.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Roberts and daughter were in Munday, Sunday.

What was the Doctor's secret?

Man Made The Town
By Rudy Ayres

HE was the grandest man in the world, young Dr. Rathbone. At least lovely Diana Gladwyn thought so, as soon as she got over fretting about his exiling her to the country for a rest from the social round. Not, of course, that she was in love with him. She was in love with Dennis—dear, fascinating, selfish Dennis, who had married the wrong girl.

But Dr. Rathbone was "like a strong harbor," and he wasn't like the other men she knew. That was why he caught her attention. That was why she was desperately interested in discovering what Rosalie, the mysterious red-headed woman, meant to him.

Diana was to find it out at last—that and many other things she hadn't suspected, including the ways of true love.

30 Year Old Cross Plains Paper Relates Many Interesting Items

A copy of the Cross Plains Herald, 30 years old, makes many mentions of citizens that reside here even yet that might be included in the "Interesting Items About Local People" feature now frequently published by its successor—The Review. A few of the clippings from the old Herald, which passed out of existence in 1909 follow.

W. A. McGowen was then a Notary Public and sold insurance.

One of the advertisements read like unto this: "Nothing will help your big brother to win his sweetheart more than wearing a suit of clothes from Gilbert and Son. They are all wool 36 holes, to be played in either twosomes or foursomes, will complete the qualifying rounds.

Phil Pe Co golfers will again this year participate in the Oil Belt golf schedule, playing probably 13 matches on the local links.

Flights for the tournament will be selected according to the ladder standing after the qualifying play. Last year's tourney was won by R. E. Hicks and the year before by Henry Lyons. T. O. Powell is considered as one of the best bets for the cup this year.

The tournament committee is composed of Ted Smith, Frank Robertson and Clyde Durringer. Due to his removal to California, Durringer's place will have to be filled within the near future, the club secretary told the Review yesterday. The committee has under advisement the holding of an invitation tournament sometime during the Summer, to which other West Texas golfers would be invited.

Eighth Street In The Springtime

How often have you heard outsiders say, "This is the prettiest little town"? Well really, driving in here in the Springtime, eighth street gives Cross Plains an unusually good "front."

The tall popular trees along the highway seem to wrap the houses in shady restfulness. Right on up to town the road is protected from the blistering rays of a summer sun by towering trees. It makes an entrance that even the most extensive travelers will compliment.

This simple illustration bespeaks the value of trees to a town. A vacant lot can sometimes be so beautified with shrubbery that a homemaker will choose it to build upon, whereas before it would have been passed unnoticed.

The American Legion is taking a step in a progressive direction by planting trees—living monuments—to commemorate the lives of buddies that went West in the World War. What better edifice could be erected than a tree to shadow men from the blistering summer heat. Cross Plains would do well to plant a tree in memory of every "son" or "daughter" that achieved some noted distinction. The beauty as well as encouraging examples would be well worth the planting price.

"Poems are written by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

Our Silent City Of The Dead

In the course of human events it often befalls the duty of a newspaper to point out "faults" as well as to record achievements. At present there is a condition prevailing in Cross Plains that must be corrected.

Our cemetery is virtually filled with ugly Broom and Careless weeds. The graves of our honored dead bespeak neglect upon the part of surviving friends and relatives. A general clean up day should be scheduled in which to clear this sacred spot.

The most devoted marker that can point out the final rest of a deceased friend or relatives is not an expensive stone nor gaudy monument but simply consistent care. Shall we permit these parasites of beauty to advertise that the years have extinguished the fires of our love for those gone on ahead? No! unanimately that is your answer. The issue perhaps has never been vividly presented to you.

Now in the spirit of constructiveness and devotion for our silent city of the dead, let us vow to remedy this situation at the very earliest convenience.

Seventy six farm analyses made last year in the Mesquite Community by the county agent of Dallas county revealed among other things, a shocking lack of hogs. As a result 75 bred gilts were placed on farms there.

Leap Year!

What would the world do without its leap year to furnish an excuse for manufacturing what pass for jokes at the expense of lonely maiden ladies and to provide that convenient alibi for disillusioned husbands? Leap year did not just happen.

The legend of leap year is that the anxious maid may then in all propriety and without breach of etiquette or ethics become the aggressor in affairs of the heart. Contrary to popular belief the legend was not conceived by the female of the species for emergency uses, but is the child of masculine vanity, which likes to think that at least three quarters of the time it is man who settles the momentous question.

If there is any difference between leap year and the preceding or succeeding three years it is merely that the sweet young things and the not so sweet old things may be a little more brazen or open and above board in their intentions to marry the man of their choice irrespective of his wishes.

For some leap year may prove most embarrassing. Long remances culminating at the altar in 1932 are open to suspicion to say the least. Cruel jokes that follow their subjects through life have been inspired by less.

Leap year and a major depression should prove a happy combination for the proverbial old maid, especially if she has a good job or an independent income. The 1932 mole of a promising young man is not one with good prospects for success but for one who will promise anything, even to love, honor and obey, for a good living.

The best advice for 1932 to unattached girls is to leap if they must but not before making sure it is not from the frying pan into the fire.

From every nook and corner of Texas have come reports of unprecedented canning this year. During the cold-weather months meat canning has been the order of the day, of course. It is estimated on the basis of a recent survey that 75 per cent of all farms in the state will furnish the family meat supply this winter. It is our guess in Scurry County, even higher percentage.

Corn worth 20 cents per bushel on the local Medina county market brought 70 cents per bushel fed to 345 shotes in 15 demonstrations supervised by the county agent last fall. Medina county farmers have sold $3650 worth of bred sows, gilts and pigs to farmers in other counties for re-stocking purposes.

Deep flat breaking and good cultural methods enabled 20 Washington county 4-H club boys to make an average of 54 bushels of corn per acre last year on 23 acres for a net profit of $262.20.

In co-operation with the State Department of Health 42 Garza county club boys last year helped to build or re-model 81 sanitary out-door toilets.

DOCTOR
J. O. G. GAINES, M.D.

THE WOMAN IN BUSINESS

My next birthday is a little nearer to the three-score-and-ten mark than it is to my last one. I mention this, so that my friends may call me an "old fogey" if they want to; if they do, I shan't be offended in the least.

Speaking plainly and to the point, I am sorry for a humanity that has grown into the necessity of making a wage-earner of the woman. I never see a woman in an executive, male vocation, that I am not the least bit sorry for her, and, ashamed of the male biped who has grown into a human cipher that no sensible business man would care to have to have around. When a woman goes into the world of commerce, she is forced there by man's inexcusable laziness and delinquency.

But the world is changing, madly, unthinkingly. We watch the sports column grow into two massive daily pages, we see the former page of church announcements dwindle to half a column in the skimpy, Saturday afternoon edition. Straws show the direction of the wind.

Remove an individual from his or her sphere of activity, and we lay the foundation for a weaker, more trifling race. I mean the sphere for which the individual was created. An army of "business" mothers will produce regiments of male incompetents, weak-kneed scions that grow into weaker citizenship. Lord help us from the "papas" whose wives makes the living.

Being a family physician myself, I believe your family physician will agree with me for the most part. He knows the horror of a mollycoddle husband, yoked up with a wife who is forced to wear the trousers because of its mate's utter worthlessness.

American Legion Column

Good news for legioneers and ex-service men. It was learned that the bill before Congress as to whether we would get our bonus or back pay would be disposed of by the 10th of March. Information received came from Washington and little opposition is looked for.

The writer read a letter in answer to the S. K. letter that was published in a Fort Worth paper recently by the wife of a veteran and she states that if the government payed the bonus it would be a God—send to the family as her husband had been out of work and was unable to get work and at the time she wrote there had been very little to eat.

Buddies, there's hundreds of families in these same circumstances and its my opinion that it would be worthy of every single person to demand this as it is just, and each one would reap a benefit from it in one way or another.

Too bad the weather didn't permit our dedication services that were planned for last Sunday afternoon. However, the Legion as a whole wants to express their gratitude to those who were to take part in the program and they feel that the affair would have been an unusual event for our little town and community.

Our commander states that we must keep the good work going on. Our post lost two of its faithful workers a few days ago, Dee Anderson our post service officer and N. C. Mitchell our finance officer. Phil steps in to take Dee's place and Frank Green is the check writer and receives the bills for our post the rest of this year.

Our buddies answered the call for work up at the school campus last Friday at one p. m., one hundred percent. That was the hour designated to plant the trees. The entire membership taking part, that's the way the Legion does things.

It is reported that one of our buddies, Carl Ewen, has transportation and a permit to enter one of the government hospitals. That is just one of many things that our buddies get through the American Legion.

Too, the legion has provided for some unfortunate buddies this week.

Don't forget the district convention at Brownwood Saturday and Sunday. It will be worth your while to attend so let's turn out. This request by our commander.

Nothing worth while is gained in life without effort. It requires effort to earn money. It requires physical effort to build up muscle and strength and it requires mental efforts to build up the mind.

The value of home demonstration work in Motley county increased steadily from $21,396.32 in 1928 to $60,624.20 in 1931.

What the machinery of commerce needs is a change from banana oil to elbow grease.

One trouble with the bride is that she can't help comparing the man she married with the one who got away.

Thinning, pruning, and deadening of scrub trees is part of the work reported by 130 farm boys in Angelina county engaged in forestry demonstrations.

The world's largest canal lock 1312 feet long and 164 feet wide capable of raising the largest ship afloat, has been set up in Holland.

THE FORGOTTEN ANANIAS

SOME years ago a chicken thief committed a series of robberies on big estate stealing very fancy stock.

Finally, one of the gentleman farmers, whom we shall call Van Norton, hired a private detective and caught the miscreant.

Sitting in a New York club a few nights later, Van Norton received the congratulations of his neighbors. "You did a fine thing," they said. "Now we hope you'll send the rascal over the road for a good long stretch."

"What do you mean, send him over the road?" Van Norton asked.

"Why, prosecute him. Send him to jail."

"Prosecute him? I don't intend to prosecute him."

They were incredulous. "Surely you're going to see that he is punished for all the loss and worry he has caused us."

"Just a minute," Van Norton responded quietly. "Suppose I do prosecute him. Suppose I get a conviction and a jail sentence. What will happen? Ten years from now my name will be mentioned in a gathering such as this, and somebody will say vaguely, 'Van Norton? Van Norton? Let's see. Wasn't he mixed up in some chicken stealing business a little while ago?'"

It is a curious fact of human nature that we forget the best in our fellow men, while a single stain of scandal clings to our memories forever.

If I were to mention to any reader of this newspaper the name Judas, he would tell me immediately who Judas was. "He was the treacherous apostle, the betrayer of his Lord."

If I were to mention the name of Ananias, I should get a response almost as prompt. "Ananias? Why, Ananias was the man who claimed to have sold all his property and turned the proceeds over to the apostles. But he held some of it back, and for telling that lie he was struck dead. He was the prince of liars."

But how many readers remember this story?

When the apostle Paul saw the vision by which he was converted, he was divinely guided into Damascus to the house of a faithful disciple. What was the disciple's name? Judas.

Another disciple was sent to Paul to minister to his needs. What was his name? Ananias.

Everybody remembers Judas the betrayer and Ananias the liar. Nobody remembers the other Judas and the other Ananias—quiet, unselfish men who aided Paul in his hour of need and helped to start him on his great career.

A very wise and good friend of mine had a motto. Said he: "Every man has a right to be judged by his best."

Will some psychologist explain why it is so hard for us to remember the best?

And so easy to remember the worst?

Pupil's Home Study

By OVADA WESTERMAN

The average grammar school or high school student can prepare his lessons while at school. The periods are arranged in such a way that each pupil has a few study periods each day. The sensible students plan their work. They make a practical schedule (allowing an appropriate amount of time for each activity) and follow it rigidly. Because they have only a limited amount of time for each activity, they get only the important things in all their work and play. By learning their lessons well and by spending no time in learning insignificant details, they are able to prepare every lesson for the next day during their study periods. When they are not in school, they have time to do home work, earn spending money, have recreation and many other things that are necessary for a well balanced life.

The truly intelligent student knows something about sports. He (or she) can play tennis, golf, row a boat and many other things which mean a good time, physical development, and friendship. In a very pleasant way they learn life lessons which are essential for a successful life, but the student that studies all the time will be ignorant of all these.

The student owes it to himself, his future self, members of his family, and his friends to develop his personality, mind, and body. Since he spends from six to seven hours in school each day, it is necessary that he spend the remaining hours in sports, earning spending money, or other forms of education that are not learned in grammar and high schools. Studying at home is unnecessary and even harmful to the student of today.

FRIENDSHIP

By ALICE JORDAN

"Blessed are they that have the gift of making friends." This is a quotation we often hear but think so little of. If one does not have a friend or friends to turn to for consolation, he is missing the greatest things in life.

Friends are one of God's gifts to man. They are here to help us. Friends warn the bold and venture some and try to keep them from doing the things that should not do. A real friend is loyal. He will not turn against you in time of trouble but will stay by your side and let you know he is willing to help you.

The beauty of friendship is rare. It is like the freshness of roses, like the song of birds, in fact it is like everything breathing kindness. Friendship divides grief. If a person is a true friend, we find him willing to share the griefs and troubles of his fellowman. A mother is the best example of true friendship. Her love never changes no matter what her child may do. We all know that the love a mother has for her child is an undying love.

A person cannot have friends unless he is friendly. He must show an interest in people about him and prove to them that he wants to be a friend.

MY SUBJECTS

By THELMA YOUNGLOVE

English is an awful bore
In fact it really makes me sore,
And if I take it anymore
I'll probably sink right through this floor.

Math is quite a jolly thing,
It makes me want to shout and sing,
I like it as well as anything,
When problems to the class I bring.

Spanish one does very well,
But I am sitting here to tell
That I rushed through it pell mell,
So if anybody want its, I'll sell.

Public speaking is not so hot,
I don't like it a jolly lot.
Take it next year? I will not!
I guess I know when enough I've got.

At history I never glance;
In fact, I never have a chance,
I'm always gone to a dance,
For with the boys I'd rather prance.

In reading this I guess you see
What subjects seem to be
It is a hard life, oh gee—
I think you ought to pity me.

Friday morning a very interesting scene occurred near the high school as Miss Gwathmey and Miss Jennings were coming to school. It seems that the two fair damsels were skating when, accidentally Miss Gwathmey became over balanced and fell. Perhaps her feelings were injured, but nothing was broken except a mirror. Oh, this muddy weather!

RAPTURE BEYOND

by KATHARINE NEWLIN BURT

TENTH INSTALMENT

Fresh from French convent, Jocelyn Harlowe returns to New York to her socially-elect mother, a religious, ambitious woman. The girl is hurried into an engagement with the wealthy Felix Kent. Her father, Nick Sandal, surreptitiously enters the girl's home one night. He tells her he used to call her Lynda Sandal. The girl is torn by her desire to see life in the raw and to become part of her mother's society. Her father studies her surroundings.

Lynda visits her father in his dingy quarters. She finds four men playing cards when she arrives. One of them, Jock Ayleward, her father tells her, is like a son to him, but warns the girl he is a trifler.

Lynda pays a second visit to her father and Jock takes her home, on the way stopping with her at an underworld cabaret. Jock asks her to dance.

Jock gets into a fight with a gangster who insists on dancing with Lynda. He then takes Lynda home. Later Ayleward's face displays his extreme hatred of the millionaire.

Jock tells Lynda that Felix caused him to be sent to jail unjustly by fixing up his report on a mine. Lynda says she doesn't believe his story. She pays another visit to her father and goes to a cabaret with him and dances with Jock, who suddenly stops and tells her he is going to take her right home. He had seen Felix dancing with another woman.

Felix tells Jocelyn that Jock is a worthless scamp. Later tells Jock she does not believe in his innocence but will try and find, through Felix some letters Jock claims will clear his name.

Jocelyn decides to marry Felix quickly and preparations are made for the wedding. She asks him to tell her the combination of his safe, as a mark of his confidence in her.

Armed with the combination and accompanied by Jock, Linda enters Felix's office at night, abstracts the wanted papers from the safe and throws them down to Jock, who is waiting below. Then she is captured by the janitor and turned over to the police. Felix learns the next morning, in Washington, that a "boy" had broken into his safe.

Felix finds Lynda in a cell and demands of her papers she took from his safe.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

He laughed grimly to cover his furious astonishment, his growing fright. She seemed to him a changeling.

"Do you know what you've done? Do you even begin to know what you are up against? You, Jocelyn Harlowe, have been caught in the act of house-breaking and theft. You know anything about its power?"

More than I did, quoth Lynda with Nick's cool irony.

Her master's spirit winced and hardened.

"You know very little as yet. Listen to me, Jocelyn, and don't dare to defy me. It is my generosity alone that can get you out of this ugly, this horrible fix. Do you want to go to prison? State's prison? There are still prisons, believe me, where insolent women prisoners are flogged. Tied up and flogged."

"You've sent other people to prison," cried Lynda, people very much less guilty than I am.

His narrowed icy eyes probed her wide ones. Her face was like a pale lamp; his, like a blue silver of steel. They glowed and glittered at each other for an instant silently.

Whom have you in your mind? What secret influence has been at work in your life? What has led you to deceive me, Jocelyn? To deceive your mother? Do you remember that we are to be married tomorrow at noon?"

She shook her head and moistened her lips, trying to say "No."

Lies. Nothing you can possibly do or say can prevent you now from becoming my wife tomorrow. I'll take you out of this and carry you home, and when you've told me the truth of your ugly and wicked escapade, you can wash yourself and burn these horrible clothes. Where in heaven's name did you get them? And get some sleep and then you will put on your wedding dress and come to St. Peter's and—after you are Mrs. Felix Kent—"

He paused. Her brave wide eyes had filled.

"After you are my wife," he said and then with a cry he gathered her up into his arms and carried her about the room, kissing her wildly, ruthlessly, at his will, until she went limp and her head dropped back.

Then Felix laid her down on the floor and as soon as her eyelids fluttered he went out, locking the door.

He came, mopping his bitten lip and laughing, to the desk.

"Look here, Cracken," he said. This isn't at all the sort of case it looks like. The girls one of these silly debutantes. She's been put up to a wild sort of prank by some of her friends and she's had her lesson. What name did she give you?"

"First Jimmie Grant and then Lynda May."

"Well, of course neither is her real name. I want to hush this thing up and withdraw the charge and take her home with me now. The poor kid is all in. She fainted."

"About them papers, Mr. Kent?"

Kent's laughter was difficult but it still came, a short hard laughter. "That's all right. I'll get them back. The little devil wanted to give me a scare. When I lay hands on the boy

"Who are you pretending to be now," Felix asked.

that helped her—"

His fist on the desk top whitened. The police officer who looked down at it whistled.

"Well, what do I have to do to get this child out of jug and to keep the whole silly business quiet?"

Cracken, with some unwillingness, explained what might be done. There was of course no accuser but Mr. Kent, the robbed man, himself. If he withdrew the charge the young lady might walk out, provided.

The proviso being cared for, Felix returned to the locked room and found Jocelyn sitting dazedly against the wall, her head dropped forward on her knees. She seemed a mere limp bundle of old clothes. He helped her up and, getting her hat, pulled it down over her eyes and so, shielding her from amused and pitying observation, he half carried and half dragged her out to his waiting limousine.

As they moved silently up the city's crowded avenues Felix presently remembered the conversation that took place as they drove fast seaward with the wind in their eyes. At the end of a careful reconstruction of this conversation he spoke and looked down at her white cramped face.

"U-hum—the Rappel parson's son—Jock Ayleward."

Felix leaned back. Where and how did you meet him? he asked quietly. She said, "I met him in my father's room."

"Your—father's?"

"Nick Sandal. He is in this city. He came one night to see me in the apartment." But if Felix, if her mother, must know that Nick had visited her—what about the jewels?

"How long ago was that?"

Her eyes filled and overflowed silently. "I love Nick, Felix."

"You've been seeing your father often?"

"I've been to see him at night. I would climb down the fire escape from my bedroom window."

Felix stopped her with a despairing gesture and, bending forward, put his hands, over his eyes. From this position he demanded in a smothered voice "You met Jock Ayleward in your father's room?"

"Yes. I did not like him. I did not believe in him, I believed in you. "Now," he said, breathing hard and speaking through his teeth, "you will give me the whereabouts of this gentleman whom you did not believe nor like nor trust but for whose sake you made a spectacle of yourself in the New York streets at night, and lied and dressed like a man and stole and would ruin me." He shook her fiercely as though he would have shaken her to death. "Give me his address. I'll get him."

But that she steadfastly refused to do.

At last they reached her mother's home.

Quickly and as noiselessly as possible Felix took Jocelyn through the outer room and down the passage and thrust her in at her own bed-room door. "Get into your own clothes; be quick, he commanded and managed to close her in and to be back in the front room by the time Marcella, with Mary at her heels, came into it herself.

Marcella was lined, livid, sick. He told where he had found Jocelyn.

"Felix, tell me—do you think that she knows anything about—" Marcella's voice had an almost sinuous furtiveness as she looked about and behind her, then at him, "about my—jewels?"

Felix was startled for an instant away from his own biting preoccupation. He looked at the silver cross on Marcella's flat breast. She placed her thin hands over it. "No. No my jewels."

"I didn't know—"

Of course. I forgot you were not to be told. I have had some jewels.—here, hidden. They are not mine. They are a trust. They've been stolen. I have a detective tracing them. You mustn't say a word," she excitedly told him.

Jocelyn stood and looked at the clothing on her bed and the blood in her body, moved, strong and free. There lay the outer semblance of Nick's daughter, Lynda Sandal, and she began to know that it was not only the outer semblance that had returned. It was Lynda Sandal's self that stood there looking down at Lynda Sandal's quaint attire. The night's work with all the adventure and the pain and the wild furtive delight that had led her surely to it had killed, in spite of her own contrary intention, not Lynda Sandal but Jocelyn Harlowe. The convent girl, Marcella's prisoner, the young lady bride of Felix Kent, had gone. Forever. Now lived and breathed a woman of strong will and vivid passion, with courage to face and to find, with the bitter courage for truth and for reality. A woman who loved Jock Ayleward, no other man; who would go to him through any barrier, to stand if she must at his dishonored side.

Rapidly and surely she got herself into the queer little symbolic costume and even ran her fingers through her hair. She meant to show Marcella and Felix a changed character.

She went into the living-room and stood there facing Felix Kent.

"Now," she announced clearly and even with pity for him in her cool voice and eyes, I will tell you everything, Felix. I am not afraid of you any more at all.

Felix after a long staring look said, "Who in heaven's name are you pretending to be now?"

"This is the costume of a silly truant, Felix, romantic enough to ex-joy a dangerous make-believe. I'll not wear it again. But I did want to force you to see me like this. Because I felt that if you once could see me as I really am—and Felix I much more wanted to—to possess—"

"You say things?"

"Because I knew that if I looked and spoke the real things of my nature you would never want me for your wife."

"I, want you for my wife," he said doggedly and with a sudden dark flush. I'll not let you go down into the streets—or into the mud. I'll save you in spite of your madness and your wickedness. And now, to begin saving you, tell me what you know and let's get on with the search for my papers. I take it that you understand what use this man could make of them to ruin me."

"I love that man. I want him to clear himself even if it must be at the price of your ruin, Felix."

Felix, very still and grim and white, came up to her.

"You choose me for your enemy then? People who have had the courage or the folly to do that have always regretted it. Always. I am warning you, I have seen men kneel and cry—"

"Yes. I have been knelt to, as your prototype. I won't kneel nor cry to you, Felix. What are you going to do?"

"First," he said, "I'll take you back to the police station and hand you over to the tender methods they use there for getting information. You know what that means?"

"Yes. But—"

They both looked about and closed their lips.

Marcella came into the room. She started toward Lynda with a quick cry of relief, then checked herself, staring.

It isn't Jocelyn. Tell me— She stood looking from Kent to the tall strange girl. All at once her face deeply colored. She clenched her hands and moved them curiously up and down. She ran over to the door that led back into the apartment and locked it, still with her scared eyes upon Lynda; then she gestured to Kent to repeat this action with the glass doors.

"Look out. Be careful. Don't let her get away," she whispered. This is the woman. This must be the woman Catring described. You know—the woman who was seen going in and out—the woman who took the jewels!"

Felix's brain worked with lightning swiftness.

My mother advised me to take Cardui, and I certainly am glad she did. It is the first thing that seemed to give me any strength. I felt better after the first bottle. I kept it up and am now feeling fine."—Mrs. T. R. Gibson, Fort Payne, Ala.

CARDUI HELPS WOMEN to HEALTH

Take Theford's Black-Draught for Constipation, Indigestion, and Biliousness.

for ANY BABY

WE can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Some times constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy and give it promptly. Felix will follow very promptly; if it doesn't you should call a physician.

SPEND AND SAVE MONEY

NOT so long ago a famous personage advised the American public "to spend." Another equally noted man retorted with the advice "save." Perhaps both were right, but the better policy would seem to be "spend wisely in order to save."

Spending wisely simply means to use your money for those things that you need, as the condition of your purse may warrant—and at the same time, to buy only those articles that have actually proved their quality and worth. By purchasing merchandise that gives the greatest value for the money, you secure the longest service and so save the price of a repurchase.

Thrift is a virtue, but so is wise investment. The advertising in this paper is a reliable guide as to where and when to get the utmost value for your money.

Advertising is a safe and trustworthy guide to sound investment. It has proved its reliability. You buy advertised wares every day—consciously or unconsciously. You buy by name, because you know that the advertised article has served you well in the past, and will continue to do so in the future.

Read the advertisements, that you may spend wisely—and save.

So Germany has developed a substitute for matches. The divorce record indicates that America has one, too.

The value of home demonstration work in Motley county increased steadily from $21,396.32 in 1928, to $60,624.20 in 1931.

Cross Cut

By NONA PRATER

Our Weather continues as it has for the past nine days, rain. The country is so wet until there is little being done. Farming is being hindered and the damp weather is causing lots of sickness in this community. I think we'd all rejoice should the sun shine once again.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Clark were in Cross Cut Sunday.

Mr. Curtis Wilmot was in Cross Plains Saturday.

Rev. D. K. Davenport has been ill the last few days.

Mr. Charlie McDonough's grand-son is very ill with the flu.

Bernice Stockton stuck a nail in her foot last week and has been pretty sick from it.

Community night, Friday was again postponed also the Roy Canon singing was postponed from last Wednesday to Tuesday of this week.

Claude Clark, Mildred Cole, Eva and Lavonia Clark, Lawrence Biehl and Clois Clark attended a show in Cross Plains Wednesday night.

Nona Prater has been ill for the past 6 days with the flu. She has had plenty of visitors, however, among those were Clois Clark, Lawrence Biehl, Edmond Gaines, Lawrence Newton, Ruel Gafford, Mrs. Lon Anderson, Elizabeth Tyson, Bernice Stockton, and Mrs. Charlie McDonough.

Mr. W. T. Hughes, Jack Bettis and Mr. Plummer were in Cross Plains Monday.

As a rule the fellow who is bragging loudest on the good old days is surrounded with the comforts and conveniences of the present age.

It often changes one's attitude of what constitutes a good and a poor employer when one becomes an employer himself.

MRS. T. A. BURNS

The Washington Bicentennial program was broadcast through out the day. Washington's birthday, and while out side the rain continued after several days duration, we enjoyed the programs from various cities of the United States and three international broadcasts from Germany, Sweden and France. Broadcasting was also heard from Mount Vernon, the home of Washington.

The Senior class rendered a George Washington program on Monday mornings' chapel hour.

Lack of funds closed 44 schools in Pulaski county, Ark. Nearly 8000 pupils were turned out.

Both Coleman and Cross Plains claim "Miss Cross Plains of 1932" when in fact the holder of this cup, Miss Gwendolyn Phillips, lives on the Amerada holdings and receives her mail on R. F. D.—out of Burkett.

We are authorized to state that the Woodmen Circle will install officers on March 5, first Saturday, and all members are requested to be present Refreshments of sandwiches and cake will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Adams arrived Saturday from West Moreland Calif., where they have been for some few months.

Jim McDaniel of Loard county, Jasper and Campbell Helms of Scurry were here last week on business.

Mrs. J. A. Adams and daughter, Carmel, of Mission, Texas, were business visitors here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Burton and children of Rising Star were here Thursday.

Rev. W. E. Hawkins, Jr., of KRLD radio revival, accompanied by Rev. G. W. Renfro of Wilmer, arrived here Friday for preaching services.

Mose Baum, carrier on Route, No. 2 out of Cross Plains was indisposed last week. His substitute, Bailey Wilson was on the job during one of the wettest seasons we've had in many moons.

Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Martin attended court in Oklahoma city last week. Mr. and Mrs. Willie Holman of Bangs looked after their home in their absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Featherston attended the funeral of Mr. Featherston's grand-father, W. A. Featherston, at Trickham, Sunday. The grandfather died of a heart attack early Saturday at the age of 80 years.

Earl Brown received 300 baby buff leghorn chicks Saturday by parcel post. He will, no doubt live at home when they have attained frying age.

The number of people over 65 years old increased 34 per cent between 1920 and 1930 while children under five decreased one per cent.

Cottonwood

The weather man has about eliminated news in this section. The roads are so bad we have had no visitors in several weeks.

However the stork with his usual disregard of weather, left a little girl at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Joy early Monday morning. The little lady has been christened Bobby Nell.

Mrs. Harman Asherbranner and children of Putnam visited her sister Mrs. M. L. Lovell and family last week.

The Caddo Peak School Bus continues to roll in on time regardless of muddy roads and inclement weather.

F. E. Mitchell left Monday for San Saba where he will be in court several days.

Betah Freeland and Eddie Priest of Cross Plains went to Abilene to attend the basket ball game between Abilene high and Big Springs.

This community is keenly interested in this game, because Parker Copping has been high point man thoutout the season and is expected to come out a district all-star man.

Mrs. Irion Newton was called to the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Reed McGary of near Maytown who was seriously ill, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frances Casey of Cross Plains spent last week end at the home of her brother Anderson Woody.

Leo Varner who is attending Simmons University at Abilene spent the week end at home returning Monday morning.

Horace Manly, who was a pupil in this school some twenty years ago, called at the school house last week to recall old memories. He was surprised to find the same instructor in the executive chair, as in the "good old days" when teachers dared to use the "shilala" on half grown boys; as Professor Varner and Mr. Manly could both readily recall. Mr. Varner has been here consecutively for more than twenty years, with the exception of three or four. We suspect that if each successful man or woman whose life he has influenced, means a star in his crown, it is rapidly assuming the proportions of a Tala, which is as it should be.

Deep fall breaking and good cultural methods enabled 20 Washington county 4-H club boys to make an average of 54 bushels of corn per acre last year on 23 acres for a net profit of $262.20.

In cooperation with the State Department of Health 42 Garza county club boys last year helped to build or re-model 81 sanitary out-door toilets.
