PICNIC DATES SET AUGUST 14 AND 15

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

Hurrah for the fourth! These lines are written in great haste Wednesday afternoon as we endeavor to get the paper off the press to journey to a peaceful stream to celebrate our national independence casting for bass, crappe and perhaps pollywogs, sometimes referred to as Bill Bound's choice delicacy.

Well after reams of writing, Art Carmichael—with our editorial help—set sail upon the seas of matrimony the past week. We claim a distinction of some type for being able to announce that nuptial and give the exact date, several months before it actually happened. (Note: awards will be accepted in the nature of renewed subscriptions to this great metropolitan weekly).

Lorena Childs and Vernon Lane are the most recent of the ol' home town's love birds to surrender to Dan Cupid's wooings. They were married at Coleman Sunday morning. Here's congrats and best wishes for many years of happiness.

Perhaps the most sensational news item learned in making the rounds this week is that which concerns Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Holden, of Cross Plains, and Mr. and W. E. Tyler, of Rising Star. The four were fishing on the Clearfork the past week end when a rise came down and completely submerged their automobiles.

Tommie's account of how the cars were retrieved is really worth hearing.

Cross Plains picnic dates are to be August 14 and 15 as announced in the Review two weeks ago. Indications point toward the greatest celebration in the 52 years of history of the affair.

"Tubby" Hambree, who is generally considered one of the most successful merchants of Jayton, Texas, and a former Cross Plains boy was in town Sunday morning and gave us to understand that the picnic was not really started in 1882 as we reported.

But "Tubby" is only a chap of about 30 and knowing that he attended Simmons University, which adds nothing to his integrity, we rule him as out of order. For, we have the word of some of the oldest timers in this section that it was in 1882 that the first Cross Plains picnic was held. Too, age adds distinction to anything, so why deprive our celebration of any of it's boasted seniority.

Lois McCord collects for so many different firms that every time she enters our sanctum another bill is presented. Some day we're going to pay up and save her lots of walking.

Edwin Baum thoroughly resents being called "Hammer-Head" the title which has been given him by the effervescent Stanley Coppinger.

Sheriff's Department Closes Marble Machines Over County Tuesday Morning

All marble machines giving prizes—free plays, cash or merchandise—were ordered shut down in Callahan county Tuesday morning. The mandate was issued by Sheriff Robert L. Edwards on the heels of a statement issued last week by the grand jury that they "had received complaints about violations of the lottery and gaming laws in this county; that certain so called marble machines are violation of the law."

A representative of the Sheriff's department told the Review Friday afternoon that the reason the ma-

Young Hamiter is a finished horse trainer and will be seen with several assistants including many beautiful lady equestrians, the Review was told by the booking agent for the show.

Other acts will include daring aerialists, acrobats, wirewalkers, and clowns. It is claimed the Hamiter Brothers circus is one of the cleanest and most entertaining troupes in America today. Doors of the big tent open at one p. m. and seven p. m. Circus attractions will begin at two p. m. and eight p. m.

On the circus ground there will be several free acts starting at one p. m. and seven p. m. with a circus parade through the downtown district at noon. The circus will play in Cross Plains under the auspices of the Cross Plains fire department, which is to receive 10 percent of the gross receipts.

PRATER'S RODEO IS SET FOR AUGUST 14

J. R. Prater told the Review Tuesday that the annual rodeo at his ranch two miles South of Cross Cut would be held July 14. Advertising matter was printed and is being distributed now for the affair.

Mr. Prater's rodeos which have been held for a number of years are regarded by the public as among the best staged anywhere in this section. Preparations are going forward, he informed to make this year's show the best yet.

Bryan Prater, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Prater, is visiting at the ranch home of his parents and will assist his father again this year in staging an interesting show.

Mrs. Bye Montgomery returned home Saturday after a visit with friends and relatives in Mertzon, Texas.

Auto Makers Death Causes False Report

Reports which swept this section Wednesday afternoon that Henry Ford had died were found to be false in a check up with the Associated Press, through the Abilene Morning News.

The story which caused the false report was a radio report which announced the death of Andre Gustave Citroen, French automobile manufacturer who was sometimes called the "Henry Ford of France."

Associated Press reports of the French auto magnate's death said: "Andre Gustave Citroen, French auto manufacturer and sometimes called the Henry of France" died in a Paris hospital today of a weakened condition caused by worry over his business."

Citroen was 67 years of age. His plant estimated worth $2,000,000.00 was forced into bankruptcy December 1 1934 and Citroen was removed from any connection with the business. The radio report caused numerous inquiries at the Review office Wednesday afternoon, necessitating the check-up through the Associated Press.

The DIVORCE COURT MURDER

BY MILTON PROPPER...

Fourth Instalment

SYNOPSIS—Six persons are in an inner office of the law firm of Dawson, McQuire and Locke at Philadelphia. A master hearing in the divorce case of Rowland vs. Rowland is under way. Mrs. Rowland, represented by her lawyer brother, Mr. Willard; Mr. Rowland, the defendant, and his attorney, Mr. Trumbull; the court clerk and Mr. Dawson, the master, are the six persons. There is a new development in the case. After failing to defend himself against the charge of adultery in earlier hearings, Mr. Rowland digs up evidence and asks the court's permission to produce witnesses and resist the suit. Judge Dawson overrules the heated objections of Mr. Willard, and orders Mr. Trumbull to bring in the first witness. Mr. Trumbull has just gone to an outer office to bring the witness. NOW, GO ON WITH THE STORY

Rankin's voice showed his disappointment. "The door isn't latched," he announced. "I was afraid of that. Somebody in these offices has fastened the catch, which means that the whole world could have entered from the outside."

It was coincident with this startling discovery of the unlatched door that the telephone operator appeared at the door from the library to announce Dr. Sackett. The black-coated coroner's physician entered behind her. He was followed by a photographer from Headquarters, and then by Johnson, the fingerprint expert. As soon as introductions had been made, Dr. Sackett, assisted by Dr. Clark, began his examination of the body. While Johnson was producing an insufflator and a magnifying glass from his kit for the detection of prints, Rankin cautioned him:

"Pay particular attention to the knobs of both doors and to the windows."

The expert acquiesced with a grunt.

"While they're busy in here we'd best continue the investigation in the library," Rankin suggested. "It's too crowded."

Accompanied by the two men, he carried Mrs. Keith's pocketbook with him into the next room. It had been on the desk before her, a fine petit-point bag.

In the library, Rankin, went to the door into the main office, and beckoned Jenks.

"Here is your first job, Jenks," he said. "I want you to quiz the entire force in the there and learn what you can of their actions. I'm especially interested in finding out who came in here today—anyone at all, whether employees or clients—and when they did so."

Mr. Dawson shook his head. "If it's your object to learn who opened that door to fifteen-o-five," he observed, "I fear that won't help you much. You really have no idea when it was unlocked; it might have been done some other day, by any of a dozen callers, who recently used the library."

"Except, Mr. Dawson," the detective countered, "that the criminal couldn't have forseen until today—possibly not until Mrs. Keith arrived—that she would be in there, waiting alone. Do you recall the last time you noticed the latch on?"

"I haven't had occasion to try it for weeks; in fact, I haven't been using the office at all for longer than that. I'm only certain it wasn't opened by my key."

Rankin shrugged and spread his arms in a brief, comprehensive gesture.

He continued his instructions to Jenks. "If any of the staff remembers finding the door locked more recently than Mr. Dawson does."

"O. K. Tommy," Jenks promised. "Anything else?"

Rankin drew out his watch and nodded toward the library window and the towering structure visible across the street.

"That's another thing we mustn't overlook," he said; "the chance that some employee in those offices observed some suspicious acts over here. See to it the people on this side of the building are questioned early in the morning."

As soon as Jenks departed to carry out his orders, he opened Mrs. Keith's pocketbook. Mr. Dawson and the court clerk watched him as he placed on the library table a gold vanity case with the chased initials B. W. K., lipstick, a key ring of five keys, a handkerchief and a nail file. Another compartment held tickets to a charity ball and a checkbook which Rankin put aside for future scrutiny. Beneath what appeared another handkerchief, he found a small bottle of clear, colorless liquid.

Even before he uncorked it, a reeking pungent odor revealed its contents to be chloroform. The cloth was actually a thick cotton pad, still damp from its saturation with the drug. The bottle, large enough for four ounces, was half empty. It lacked a label and the distinguishing marks of any druggist.

Mr. Simpkins made the first surprised comment.

"Why, that must be the stuff the criminal smothered her with, Mr. Rankin!" he exclaimed excitedly. "Why do you suppose he hid it in her purse? Surely that's a dangerous thing to do."

The detective shrugged. "Why not? He couldn't carry it around and this is as safe a way to get rid of it as any."

Pocketing the checkbook, he returned the other articles casually to the handbag and addressed Mr. Dawson.

"I think I'm ready now to inquire what the others, besides your force, can tell me of the tragedy," he announced. "I'll question your partners first."

"Neither of them is here, Mr. Rankin," the lawyer informed him. Rankin, the lawyer informed "Mr. Locke is in New York on an important case—gone since Monday. Mr. MacQuire is playing in a golf tournament this afternoon."

"Then I'll question the immediate parties to the hearing, and their lawyers. One at a time; if you'll be good enough to have Mr. Trumbull come in, I'll start with him."

When summoned, Allen Rowland's attorney entered the library from Mr. Dawson's office. Although still under thirty-five, he looked at least five years older.

After Mr. Dawson introduced him, the detective began without further preliminaries. "Perhaps I can best make progress with this case, Mr. Trumbull,—he motioned him to a chair—by clearing up what happened here (his afternoon before the meeting. But first I need information about Mrs. Keith. You stated at the hearing, I believe, that she is connected with a leading family in the city?"

"So she is, Mr. Rankin," Mr. Trumbull returned. "Mrs. Barbara Keith is the wife of Mortimer Keith and lives in Chestnut Hill at the Aldwych Apartments."

Obviously impressed, the detective raised his eyebrows and vented a low whistle.

"Mortimer Keith," he repeated. "The silk manufacturer?"

Once more, he could plead an off-hand familiarity with a name involved in the tragedy. Few indeed, the Keith family distinguished historically and politically since the American Revolution. Mortimer Keith was the last of his line, molded in the family tradition, austere, upright and reserved. When his ancestors' estate was threatened by depletion, his dominating personality and enterprise rebuilt both. He was well into middle age Rankin vaguely recalled, when he married a beautiful woman much his junior, about four years earlier.

Whatever the previous importance of the crime, because of the prominence of the divorce action, it paled into insignificance before this new revelation. Murder was always murder; but the identity of the dead witness—no plebeian citizen or mere menial—gave it addition promise of being a genuine cause celebre.

"Yes, that's who she is," the lawyer replied to his query, "Mrs. Mortimer Keith."

"Then her husband will have to be notified of what's happened at once. I'll want to question as possible."

He summoned the remaining policeman from the outer room and imparted directions for communicating with the manufacturer.

"Now, Mr. Trumbull," Rankin continued, after the officer had gone, "how long before the meeting began today, did you arrive with Mrs. Keith?"

Mr. Trumbull shook his head. I didn't bring her at all, Mr. Rankin; I came here alone and Mr. Rowland accompanied her into town. It was arranged that he go for her to her residence in Chestnut Hill, and join me here. I reached here about twenty-five; they drove in with Mrs. Keith's chauffeur five minutes afterward."

"At half past two, eh? And at what time did you leave her in that office to wait until you were ready for her testimony?"

"About ten minutes later, I should judge," the other replied. "Then Mr. Rowland went down to the street to dismiss the chauffeur, who was parked outside the building. She had ordered him to stay. Rowland suggested we let him go and use my car to get home."

"Are you certain," the detective probed, "he really went downstairs to speak to the chauffeur?"

The lawyer replied vigorously, in tones that brooked no doubt. "Positive, Mr. Rankin; in fact, I walked into the hall with him and saw him take the elevator. He was gone only a few minutes, less than five; I was phoning in the outer office when he returned."

"Then two-forty was the last time either of you saw her alive?" Rankin eyed him searchingly. "You didn't enter fifteen-o-five again, through either this library or the door from the hall, while you were out there?"

"Not until I found her dead," he returned. "We left her completely alone. Mr. Rowland and I went to Mr. Dawson's private office for the next ten minutes, where we could discuss today's strategy without being disturbed. I can vouch that he never left me the entire time, nor I him. Then Mr. Dawson arrived and we assembled for the hearing."

ing with a pencil he took from the table.

"Why was it arranged, Mr. Trumbull, that Mrs. Keith wait apart in there, instead of outside in fifteen-o-seven? Had you some special reason for that?"

"It was done for privacy and to spare her all possible distress," the lawyer explained. "She was doing us a service in offering her evidence, but naturally, in her position, she desired no publicity. She even dressed inconspicuously. In the main office, under the eyes of employees and casual visitors, she would have felt uncomfortable. And she couldn't stay in the library with Mrs. Rowland and Mr. Willard; that would have been even more embarrassing."

"Then they had already arrived before you?"

"Yes, I suppose so since they came earlier than I and waited for Mr. Dawson here. In fact, they were here when Mr. Rowland entered fifteen-o-five with Mrs. Keith; he came out at once and closed this door between the rooms. So they saw us leave her at two-forty."

Rankin nodded. "Had they any idea in advance that it was she who would be Mr. Rowland's leading witness against them? That is, before she arrived today? Was her name mentioned, for instance, in your written defense?"

Mr. Trumbull's forehead wrinkled in a frown of uncertainty and reflection.

"No, the answer I filed was purely formal and withheld all the essential details. And considering the nature of Mrs. Keith's evidence I don't believe his wife was in a position to learn her identity."

LET US MAKE YOUR VACATION TRIP SAFER

BEFORE you start on your holiday trip, let us completely inspect your car. There is no charge for this service and it will assure you of a safer and more enjoyable trip.

For the convenience and safety of car owners Firestone has established more than 500 Auto Supply and Service Stores throughout the country, and thousands of Firestone Dealers are also equipped with complete Auto Supplies and complete Service Departments, to test and service your tires, brakes, batteries, spark plugs, in addition to power lubrication and crank case service.

AVOID THE DANGER OF BLOWOUTS

Firestone removes the danger of blowouts by preventing their main cause—internal friction and heat. This is accomplished by Gum-Dipping.

THERE ARE THREE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS THAT WILL SOLVE YOUR PROBLEM OF WHAT TIRES TO BUY:

- 1 "Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"
- 2 "Are they blowout-proof?"
- 3 "Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

— Recent tests by a leading University show that Firestone High Speed Non-Skid Tires stop a car 15% quicker than any other of the leading makes.

For eight consecutive years Firestone Tires have been on the winning car in the dangerous Pike's Peak Race where a skid means death.

2 — Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have the most amazing records for being blowout-proof of any tires ever built. In the gruelling 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis, May 30th, every one of the 33 cars was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Not one of the 33 drivers had tire trouble of any kind.

Ab Jenkins drove his 5,000 pound car on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over the hot salt beds of Utah, 3,000 miles, averaging 127.2 miles per hour, with temperatures as high as 120°, without tire trouble of any kind.

3 — Firestone High Speed Tires not only give you more than 50% longer wear, but also lowest cost per mile. In fact, unequalled mileage records of thousands of car owners add undisputed evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

Equip your car with a set of Firestone Gum-Dipped Non-Skid Tires, the safest tires ever built and avoid the dangers of skidding and blowouts.

You always get better quality at no higher price when you buy a Firestone tire with the Firestone name and guarantee. Liberal trade-in allowances from these prices.

1 University tests show Firestone High Speed Tires stop cars 15 to 25% quicker.	2 Gum-Dipped cords give greater blowout protection. Gum-Dipping is not used in other tires.	3 Wider, flatter tread gives more than 50% longer non-skid wear.

The Family DOCTOR
by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

"ACIDOSIS"

Oh, yes, "acidosis"! I had almost forgotten it. More people, I will venture to say, have entered doctors' offices for treatment for "acidosis" than for any other seldom encountered thing; because there are very few cases of real acidosis.

People somehow get to imagining that acid gets to circulating through every channel of their blessed bodies, and they besiege the poor doctors to cure "acidosis." Let us hope that the doctor does not become bewildered—for he is but human—and shove them into the open arms of the food faddist, of hundreds of thousands.

I pity the poor creature who imagines she has acidosis and keeps up a trot between the soda-jar and the predigested nostrum.

Listen: an intense acidity, which amounts to acidosis, is only found in serious disease such as cancer of some hollow viscus, for instance the stomach or urinary bladder. I have had forty-three years of experience, and have seen no true acidosis except in cases of cancer of the stomach, intestine or urinary bladder, so, my cases of "acidosis" have been comparatively few.

The way to do—go to your family doctor; do not make your own diagnosis, and thus save yourself much unnecessary worrying.
