BEER VOTE HOLDS LOCAL SPOTLIGHT

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

Having scored "perfect" in predicting the Anderson-Williams marriage, we're almost tempted to prophesy as to when Congress will adjourn.

But that is even an enigma to the brain trust.

Hot tip number one regarding approaching nuptials concerns Jimmie Baum and Miss Venice Bertrand. It plans run true to form they may make their round trip to Hymen's altar before the ink on today's Review is thoroughly dry.

We pass our prettiest posse this week to Truett Lovelace, a local boy who is making good. He was promoted to manager of the local A&P store this week, which incidentally is a responsible post for a man of Truett's age.

Here's congratulations Truett, we know you have the spunk to make anything go. You showed that your good wife too—in the cool manner in which you recited the vows of marriage before 5000 people at the Cross Plains picnic a year ago.

Did you notice how prosperous and nonchalant J. E. Henkel "stirritted" about last week end. His wife was out of town and J. E. took advantage of the occasion to satisfy his appetite for nickle cigars.

Watching him smoke, we somehow are reminded of a little boy hiding behind the barn, puffing away at a cedar bark cigaret.

Riley Shipp breaks into print this week with one of the most unusual stunts seen in town in months.

Wednesday afternoon—one of the hottest days of the Summer—he came riding down Main Street on a sleigh. We always held the idea that sleighs were associated with Winter and ice, and his appearance thus, sorta chilled the atmosphere.

If you like to laugh at governmental blunders we invite your attention to an article on today's editorial page entitled, "This Inside Story Reveals Ignorance of Theoretical Farmer."

A surprise to friends here was the marriage of Miss Gladys Brooks to Ray Horton Monday. That's one this column missed and we have no excuse to offer. You just can't get them all.

Cecil A. Lotief reminds this pencil pusher to be sure and chronicle his speech on the streets here Saturday afternoon.

Yes, Cecil made a speech all right, but what's news about that? Did you ever see him fail to "jump on the stump" if there was a crowd of at least five present?

He spoke in behalf of the old age pension and from the convincing argument he offered, the little "Israelite" must already feel the pains of age creeping upon him.

Few newspapermen are as intimately acquainted with as many people in West Texas as Wendal Bedichek, staff correspondent for the Abilene Morning News.

Our secret ambition is to know more people than he.

We're picking Philpeco golfers to beat Ranger, at Cisco, Sunday for the championship of two leagues (or do they call it associations in golf circles).

Mrs. L. F. Fuston of Strawn visited with friends and relatives here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Otie Cannon, who formerly occupied the Stone residence, have moved into the place west of Dr. John Rumph's.

Showers Wednesday Break Heat Wave

LOW OVERHANGING CLOUDS THREATEN ADDITIONAL RAIN

A severe heat wave was broken here late Wednesday when refreshing showers blanketed this trade territory. The moisture fell intermittently from six o'clock until nearly midnight.

Although no appreciable amount of water fell in the city limits, it gave relief from a heat wave which has gripped this section for more than a week.

While the moisture was of no particular benefit to cotton, it was generally welcomed by such crops as peanuts and sweet potatoes as well as cattle ranges, which were beginning to dry to the extent that possibility of prairie fires was becoming hazardous.

Low overhanging clouds Thursday morning threatened additional moisture for the Cross Plains trade territory.

LOCAL GIRL IS WED TO COLEMAN MAN AT BURNET THIS WEEK

Miss Gladys Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Brooks of Cross Plains, and Ray Horton, of Coleman, were married at Burnet, Monday afternoon at three o'clock. The ceremony came as a complete surprise to friends of the couple here.

The bride moved with her parents to Cross Plains several months ago and was prominent in social activities of the younger set.

The groom is employed by an oil company in the Fry field.

The couple will make their home at Coleman.

TRUETT LOVELACE NEW A&P MANAGER

Truett Lovelace, one of Cross Plains better known young business men and an employee of the A&P store here for a number of years, was promoted to manager, effective Monday morning. Ralph Carnes, incumbent, was transferred to Ranger, where he assumed managerial duties of the company's store there.

James Cross, who formerly operated a service station and urban grocery here, has been employed as helper in the A&P store to assist Mr. Lovelace.

DOUBLE HEADER BASE BALL GAME IS CARDED AT CROSS CUT SUNDAY

A double header ball game will be played at Cross Cut Sunday.

The first game, Cross Cut versus Admiral, will begin at two o'clock. The nightcap will offer Cross Cut versus Webbville.

Cross Cut has met neither of the teams this season and since both are reported to have winning combinations an interesting program is assured, John Conlee told the Review.

C. C. NEEB TO MOVE HIS FAMILY HERE NEXT MONTH

C. C. Neeb has taken the Dick Stone house in Northeast part of town and will move his family here from Fort Worth the first of next month.

Dr. and Mrs. Eli Powell left Monday for Arkansas to return Dr. Powell's daughter and niece to their home after a months visit here.

Mrs. C. C. Neeb and family of Fort Worth arrived Sunday.

World Mourns Their Tragic Death

When wires flashed out of Alaska last week telling of the tragic death of Will Rogers, beloved humorist, and Wiley Post, one of aviation's greatest, a world was shocked: men dropped their work to lament the catastrophe; at crossroads, and cities, farms and factories, industry throttled to a standstill.

The two Oklahoma boys who rose from humble beginnings to the pinnacle of success in their respective fields, died as they had lived; companions of the sky-ways, companions in death.

News of the crash in which they were killed reached Cross Plains early Friday morning. Everywhere people said: "It's terrible, unbelievable."

PROMINENT LOCAL COUPLE ARE WED THURSDAY NIGHT

Miss Edwina Anderson and Volney Joe Williams, both of this place, were united in marriage at the First Methodist Church at Strawn, Thursday night. The ceremony was solemnized at 11 o'clock by Rev. Ed. Anderson, pastor and cousin of the bride, in the presence of W. A. Williams, Jr., brother of the groom; Miss Wilma Pratt, of Brownwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Clark, of Cross Plains.

Miss Lillian Mae Milling, church organist, played as the bridal couple entered and left the church. The Rev. Mr. Anderson read the double ring ceremony.

From Strawn the bridal couple motored to Mineral Wells. Later they visited Abilene, Lubbock and other West Texas points during a four day honeymoon trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams returned here Monday evening and were greeted at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Anderson where an informal dinner had been arranged in their honor. Aside from the bride and groom those in attendance were: Miss Elizabeth Tyson, W. A. Williams, Jr., Harlie Neel, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Baum, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Scott.

Mrs. Williams, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Anderson, is a member of one of the oldest families in this section. She has resided here several years. Formerly she lived at Rising Star and Abilene. She was graduated from high school at the latter place. In recent months she has been employed in a secretarial capacity at the Anderson Chevrolet Company here.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Williams, of this place. He is well known here having resided virtually all of his life in this city. In high school he was a member of athletic teams for four consecutive years. He was graduated with the class of '32. He is at present employed at the City Drug Store here.

Mrs. T. G. Edwards and sons returned home Tuesday after a visit with Mrs. Edwards parents in Waco.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Cook and daughter George Cecil attended the cook reunion in Putnam Sunday.

CROSS PLAINS 53RD ANNUAL PICNIC IS 'DECIDED SUCCESS'

Attended by one of the largest crowds in history and marked by no disorderly conduct or unfortunate accidents, Cross Plains fifty third annual picnic and old settlers reunion passed into history at midnight Thursday of last week.

The two days' program which included speeches by many of the foremost orators of this section, musical renditions by talented entertainers, four rodeo attractions, base ball games, and carnival features received stupendous ovations.

The celebration was formally opened Wednesday morning when Nat Williams, Superintendent, of local schools who was presiding at the microphone, introduced Mayor S. P. Collins for the address of welcome. The Mayor paid tribute to the old timers of this section for their constructive labors, for their "gift of a heritage that should be held high." He concluded by extending a general welcome to the Cross Plains fifty-third annual picnic—the oldest celebration of its kind in West Texas—and said: "We are proud and honored to have each of you here today. Enjoy yourself and help us to make this occasion enjoyable for all."

Williams then recognized at random scores of pioneer citizens in the opening morning crowd. Few responded to speak briefly over the microphone.

The principal address of the first day was delivered by J. Bryan Bradbury, state representative from Taylor county, at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Bradbury, who was introduced by his colleague in the legislature Cecil A. Lotief of this place, pleaded for the retention of the Deans law in Texas and pictured disadvantages of legalizing liquor.

County and district officials also spoke briefly Wednesday.

The forensic program was opened Thursday at one o'clock by Thomas E. Hayden, of Abilene and chairman of the "dry" forces in the twenty fourth senatorial district. Mr. Hayden quoted statistics at length to show that drinking and lawlessness increased with the liquor legalization and offered dis-

City Water Tower To Get Long Needed Repairs; Water Tested And Found Pure

The steel water tower, just back of Main Street, will get long needed repairs next week when workmen begin strengthening its bottom structure and repainting both inside and out.

Work will begin Monday morning and is to be done by E. Miller Tank and Tower Company, of Dallas. Approximately four days will be taken to complete the job.

Water pressure may be slightly lower than normal while work is going on but the supply will be ample and pressure is to be held as near adequate as possible with pumps. S. M. Buatt, City Clerk, told the Review.

Reports were received from the

3 UNHURT IN PLANE SMASH-UP AT PICNIC

Bill Garrett, barnstorming pilot and two passengers escaped injury when a plane in which they were taking off on a pleasure hop struck a tree and fell from a distance of 25 feet here Thursday afternoon. The ship, crashing to earth sideways was badly damaged. Garrett's passengers were Tom Bryant, Jr., and W. J. Sipes, both of Cross Plains.

The mishap occurred a quarter-mile from the picnic grounds, where Garrett had been taking up passengers during the day.

The plane, a Travelair, was owned by Ralph Carnes, Cross Plains grocery merchant, whose hobby is aviation.

PIONEER SCHOOLS BEGIN FALL TERM SEPTEMBER SECOND

Pioneer schools will open Monday morning, September second, the Review was told yesterday by L. C. Cash, Superintendent. Preparation are being made for an enrollment of 300.

The faculty is now complete with the exception of a teacher to fill the vacancy by the resignation of Mrs. W. D. R. Owen. Plans are going forward toward the securing of a teacher who can replace Mrs. Owen in the history department as well as teach home economics, Cash stated. Other members of this year's faculty are: Cash W. Williams, E. J. Hughes, Miss Doris Pyle, Charles Rutherford, Miss Carline Gray, Mrs. Lillie Battle, Mrs. Ada Alexander, Mrs. Charles Ballev.

Pioneer school's accredited units of affiliation were increased to 15 and one half after an examination of work done last year. Work will be done again this year toward the end of securing other affiliated credits, the Review was told.

Prospects for the Pioneer Panthers in the coming football campaign were argued this week when it was definitely learned that J. T. Hammett, Joe Wheeler and Oval Plumlee, all stars of last year's combination, will report for the opening practice next week. Coach Williams is expected to build his material about this trio. A number of promising freshmen are also expected to be on hand when uniforms are issued.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Billingsly have as their guest this week their daughter, Mrs. Mac Panckake and children of Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Starkey and family of Rising Star visited with Mrs. Starkey's sister, Mrs. L. W. Westerman Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Murman McGowan and family visited friends and relatives here over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Farmer of Baird attended the picnic here Thursday.

SEVEN AMENDMENTS TO STATE CHARTER MUST BE DECIDED

Although seven proposed changes to the state constitution are to be balloted upon when voters go to the polls Saturday, interest here is centered chiefly upon a local option 3.2 beer vote, which will take place in this precinct at the same time.

Both "wets" and "drys" are urging all qualified voters to go to the ballot box Saturday. This interest may result in the largest vote in Callahan county being cast at Cross Plains.

196 To 146

The last 3.2 beer election held in this precinct was June 30, 1934. Votes at the three boxes then were:

Box	For Beer	Against Beer
Cross Plains	164	112
Dressy	28	24
Caddo Peak	4	10

Total 196 146

The "drys" are, however, credited with having gained support since June 30, 1934—nearly 14 months ago.

According to the Texas statutes should this community vote dry, retailers will be permitted to continue selling the foamy beverage for a period of 30 days. Another election may not be called on the same question in less than six months, according to the statutes.

Voting will be done here at the Anderson Chevrolet Company building. The polls will open at eight a. m. and close at seven p.m. Judges appointed by the Commissioners Court are: Taylor Bond, Jeff Clark, C. E. Barr and W. A. Williams. There will also be four clerks.

Amendment Captions

The seven proposed changes to the state constitution deal with: (1) providing a pension for the aged, (2) authorizing the commitment of insane people to an institution by trial before a judge instead of before a jury, (3) legalizing liquor, (4) permitting proposed changes to the state constitution to be decided upon at a special session of the Legislature as well as at regular sessions, (5) authorizing the courts to place defendants on probation, (6) abolition of the fee system of compensating officers, (7) furnishing free text books to every child of school age regardless of whether they attend a public or private school.

On an inside page of today's Review will be found a sample of the ballot which will be presented voters at the polls Saturday.

Items of Interest From COUNTY AGENT'S OFFICE

By Ross B. Jenkins

With the great feed crop now in the county it is going to be sad if two years from now we find farmers paying drought prices for feed that could be saved now.

A trench six feet wide at the top, four feet wide at the bottom, five feet deep and 100 feet long will hold 30 tons of silage. That makes three tons per cow for a ten cow herd which according to E. R. Eudaley, Extension Dairyman, says is about what a cow needs per year.

Corn, red top cane, seeded ribbon cane, heigari, kair, and milo make good silage. They should be cut in with the heads ripe and brown leaves showing at the bottom. If put in too green there is too much acid likely to develop that would scour the animals on heavy feed with this food.

Get a bulletin at the County Agents office and learn more of this feed and labor saver.

Cross Plains 53rd Annual Picnic Well Attended.

People came from miles around to see each other at Cross Plains last week. Many old stories were retold and many interested ears were there to hear them.

Many pro and anti liquor speeches were made but seemingly folks already know about that for it was observed that very few stayed to listen very long.

The county and home demonstration agents were highly pleased with the nice things said to them about their work and the small exhibits in the booth there.

Committee

The Cross Plains Picnic was very thoughtful and considerate in helping in every way to put over the program for agriculture. The commissioners court were very cooperative in making a grant of money that enabled the project to be made. County agent Ross B. Jenkins and Home agent Vida Moore wish to thank each one who helped in any way to advance their work and for the many words of encouragement offered. Complimentary expression never have killed anybody that we know about.

At Home and Abroad in Agriculture

Only a few weeks ago it seemed that Callahan County was destined to produce one of her bumper cotton crops. Today it is very evident that a smaller crop will be harvested this year than last year. The crop outwardly is fine but upon examination it will be found to have very few to no bolls per stalk and those that are on are of very poor quality. This is not so in every locality as some few committees will probably make more than last year but the entire county is not good. The writer will miss his guess if more than 5,200 bales are ginned in the county this fall.

Similar reports are gained from other parts of Texas and much of Oklahoma. It will probably be found that the next cotton report will show a smaller estimate than that of August 1st.

Brazilian Cotton Prospects

The Brazilian government now estimates the 1934-35 crop at 1,131,000 whereas earlier in the season it was expected that about 1,600,000 bales would be grown. The reduced estimate is the result of unfavorable weather and boll worm damage in the southern Brazil.

Brazilian Coffee

Coffee and Cotton go together in Brazil. If coffee gets high the less cotton is planted and if cotton gets high then less coffee. Brazil destroyed 1,013,000 bags of coffee during the first six months of 1935, according to cables to the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange, against 3,299,000 during 1934. Since the start of the program in June 1931 35, 121,000 bags have been destroyed. During the 12 month period ending June 30 she destroyed 5,980,000 bags while shipping 13,757,000 bags.

To those who scoff at plowing up cotton they might look and see that our South American neighbor started the same kind of move two years in advance of our program and the purpose was to get more money to the producer. Of course it has made our coffee cost more and we should get out an injunction to stop them from doing it. Why should we care if their farmers go broke just as long as we can get our coffee cheap.

That is about the way the rest of the world feels about our program and also its shared by the industrialists of this nation. Why worry about the American farmer just so his raw materials can be got cheap. But thanks to the AAA our farmers are getting to know about the unfair trade practices that have been going on for decades and are now aiming to fight it out until they are recognized and given equal advantages with other industries.

Wheat Control and Processing Taxes in South Africa

A new law known as "Wheat Industry Control Act of 1935" enabling wheat producers to withhold their wheat from market without danger of loss through declining prices has been adopted recently by the parliament of the Union of South Africa.

The law is administered by a board of nine members representing the millers, growers, and the government. Processing taxes are collected to compensate growers for losses sustained as a result of withholding wheat from the market. The tax is collected on all wheat grown or imported, ground or otherwise.

Management of Fevers

Probably four-fifths of our human ailments exhibit at one time or another a rising temperature above the normal. It is called "fever". "The elevation may vary from a barely detectable increase to a raging flame that menaces life itself. There are certain principles here that most of us should know.

To attempt to demolish every fever the moment we encounter it must never be attempted. We have remedies for reducing temperature, but they must be used with the utmost care and watchfulness. The fever may be kept within safe limits, but just that, while the CAUSE of the disturbance is being eradicated.

Take the case of measles, scarlet fever, smallpox, or any other self-limited disease. To rush the temperature to normal at my first visit would be utterly stupid and maybe cost a life! These diseases must have fever, if they are to pursue a safe course to recovery. They are "self-limited" diseases that run a definite course. They must be managed and nursed to recovery.

The DIVORCE COURT MURDER

By MILTON

Eleventh Instalment

SYNOPSIS—Barbara Keith, wife of a prominent Philadelphia business man, is murdered as she waits alone in a side room to testify in the divorce case of Rowland vs Rowland—She was to have testified for the husband, a friend, who was defendant in the action. Detective Tommy Rankin is assigned to the case from police headquarters—His preliminary investigation disclosed that both Mr. and Mrs. Rowland had gathered evidence against the other of infidelity. The will of Mrs. Rowland's first husband directed her lawyer brother, Mr. Willard, to handle the estate until she remarried when the new husband was to come into control. Detective Rankin finds motives and the evidence of guilt for the murder of Mrs. Keith, leading to the doors of virtually all of the principals involved. These principals are, the two Rowlands, Mr Keith, husband of the murdered woman, Hugh Campbell, paramour of Mrs. Rowland, and his underworld confederates—

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Rankin was in the captain's office when Jenks returned, pride illuminating his features. Behind him came a young, thin, curly-haired chap in the uniform of a cab driver.

"Back already, Jenks?" he commented. "It isn't three hours since you let to check Mr. Keith's Washington trip; you couldn't have got very far with it."

"Far enough to prove he never boarded that twelve-twenty-five train," Jenks responded cheerfully. "Almost the first person I questioned was this fellow, Jim Blake. He has a yellow cab at the West Philly station stand."

"His story," Jenks continued, "is that Mr. Keith no sooner quit his own machine in the station yard than he hired Blake's cab to follow it."

The detective turned to the taximan. "Is that so, Blake? How can you be certain the man was this Mr. Keith?"

"I don't know his name," Blake replied, gaining assurance, "but if he wasn't the same guy this bloke's been askin' about, then he's got a double. He comes in a maroon colored Packard limousine, driven by a shoffer. It ain't hard to remember him; I haven't had such a fare and run up such a big bill in a half a year of sleepless Sundays."

"I see," Rankin nodded. "In your own way, Blake, tell me exactly what happened. At what time did he arrive?"

"About twelve-fifteen, yesterday afternoon; and the car turned into the station driveway, right beside the cabstand. That's why I could hear everythin' he said. The shoffer wanted to carry in his bag but he told 'im never mind and to go on, and handed it to one of the porters. He ordered the dinge to check it for 'im inside and hold the check until he came back for it; and he tipped 'im a buck. Then he motioned for my bus and climbed in, in a whale of a hurry."

"Well, all this didn't take as long as to tell it, y'unnerstand," continued the cabman. "And when he got in my cab, his limousine was only leavin' the station yard. He says, 'Follow that car; don't get too close, but don't lose it whatever you do.'"

"In West Philly, he turns down Forty-fifth Street and stops outside an apartment house; there he picks up a gent waitin' for 'im—a tall, blond, handsome guy, like an athlete. I think the place was the Westview Apartments," he added.

Rankin nodded. "Of course, he went for Allen Rowland," he informed Jenks. "I suppose then, Blake, the next destination was Chestnut Hill?"

"That's right," the driver agreed. "It was easy followin' along there though the shoffer speeded some. We went to a real swanky apartment house, the Aldwich. I stayed outside the entrance and the shoffer got out and walked in; and in a minute, a pretty, swell young woman joins the gent in the tonnoe. Then, a little after two, we was all off again."

"Where to this time?" Rankin queried.

"Back to town—to the Wolff Building, at Sixteenth and Market Street. My passenger didn't get out right away; he waited a couple of minutes after the lady and her escort went in before he followed them. The shoffer stayed outside in the car. I got orders to wait too, but not over ten minutes; if Mr.—what's-is-name didn't show up by then, I was to leave. And he hands me a whoopin' big tip besides a six-dollar fare. So I hung around for almost fifteen minutes, but he never came out and that was the last I seen of 'im."

Rankin spoke with ill-concealed eagerness. "Did any of the people you were interested in appear while you were watching, Blake?"

The taximan scratched his head and replaced his cap askew.

"Oh, yes the gent the shoffer first picked up came out and spoke to 'im," he replied, as if just remembering. "I guess to dismiss 'im or give 'im orders he drove off as soon as he went inside again."

"Could you say what time this happened? It's important for you to be as exact as possible."

"Well, since I watched the clock all the while I waited, I can tell you pretty close," Blake returned. "My own ticker said twenty to three, and by the City Hall clock, I wasn't more than a minute or so slow."

The detective received this unexpected support of Allen Rowland's account with a grunt of satisfaction.

"Now, Jenks, with regard to this recap at the station," he said. "How long afterward did Mr. Keith return to him for his baggage?"

"At quarter after three, Tommy, the other answered. "In time to catch the three-twenty train."

"And that would bring Keith into Washington about three hours later—say six-twenty," Rankin observed.

Obviously, Rankin's next step was a visit to Mr. MacQuire to learn the object of Mr. Tarleton's call, the name the telephone operator said Keith had given.

As it was now almost seven o'clock, the detective could no longer reach Mr. MacQuire at the Wolff Building. He obtained the lawyer's home address from a directory.

In answer to his ring, a maid opened the door. She escorted him through the sun porch into a larger living room.

The second member of the firm, whom he had not yet met, descended from above. Tall and ungainly, Julian MacQuire suggested a scholar rather than a practical business man. After introductions were completed, the detective's preliminary questions disclosed that he had no special knowledge about either Mrs. Rowland's divorce or the murder itself.

Presently Rankin turned to the more pressing subject.

"I understand, Mr. MacQuire," he said, "that you had a caller yesterday afternoon named James Tarleton?"

The lawyer displayed surprise but nodded. "That's correct," he said.

"You were acquainted with him, of course?" The detective kept his tone casual. "He was a regular client of yours?"

"On the contrary, Mr. Rankin, I never met him before in my life. As is my habit when strangers consult me, I inquired how he happened to seek me out. He stated that he had learned of the firm's special repute in handling divorce matters."

"And it was about a divorce, I suppose, that he sought your advice?" asked Rankin.

Where the lawyer had spoken willingly before, he now hesitated. "That is somewhat difficult to answer," he returned cautiously.

"You realize I am bound to treat a client's affairs as strictly confidential."

"Yes, under ordinary circumstances," Rankin agreed, but where a heinous crime is concerned, there are exceptions. Have you noticed the pictures of Mrs. Keith's husband in the papers?"

Mr. MacQuire's perturbation increased. "I—not very closely, I'm afraid. Besides, I had all my information of the tragedy firsthand from Mr. Dawson."

"That would explain why you didn't mark the resemblance between your caller and Mortimer Keith," said Rankin.

Mr. MacQuire's uneasiness turned into astonishment. "Mortimer Keith?" he exclaimed. "But that's incredible. He explained he wanted to obtain a release from paying alimony."

"A rather weak excuse," Rankin smiled thinly. "Did anything Mr. Keith say suggest he was really interested in what his wife was doing there? For instance, did he mention her or the Rowlands?"

Mr. MacQuire's jaw tightened. "Yes, he mentioned Allen Rowland; but so casually I could hardly surmise he had an ulterior motive. He said he had observed some one slightly familiar enter the office just ahead of him, who he thought was Rowland whom he had once met."

"And how did you reply to that?" Rankin asked.

"Well, I let him understand that while I, personally, had no dealing with him, Mr. Dawson was deliberating his case. Just what way, I didn't go into."

"But Mr. Keith at least learned it was a divorce case that brought him there?"

The lawyer flushed uncomfortably. "He seemed familiar with his domestic troubles without my telling him; in fact, if his object was to pump me, he was very cautious. We dropped the subject and left together."

"That was at two-fifty, wasn't it, Mr. MacQuire?" the detective inquired.

"To the instant, I was due at my club at three-fifteen, and was so worried about being late for my game that toward the last I constantly watched the clock."

At which time, Rankin reflected, the cabman Blake, had already stopped waiting for Mr. Keith and driven away.

"And what became of your visitor?"

Mr. MacQuire replied slowly, unconscious that on his answer rested the accuracy of Rankin's deduction.

"At the lobby we said good-by and parted at the entrance of the building. I had to catch a train."

"Have you any idea in which direction Mr. Keith went?" the detective asked.

"I couldn't tell you that," Mr. MacQuire replied. "As I left, he started back into the lobby, to buy some cigars at the stand, and that was the last I saw of him."

Rankin rose with a smile of satisfaction and reached for his hat.

Rankin determined to interview the ex-secretary that very night. She lived in Logan on York Road, in a private dwelling with a brownstone front that had been remodeled into an apartment house.

Jill Edmond, though surprised at his visit, did not appear especially disturbed. She had a three-room apartment. Taking Rankin's hat, the girl indicated a chair.

"I must apologize for intruding at this time of night. Only I need a bit of information you can supply immediately."

"Of course, if I can," Miss Edmond returned curiously. "What do you want to know?"

"It's about the evening you went with Mr. Rowland to Sunset Inn. You told me before you had no idea why Mortimer Keith turned up, right after Mrs. Rowland interrupted you. I've come to let you reconsider that statement."

The secretary stiffened, on guard. "Add to it?" she repeated, affecting perplexity. "No, it's still a puzzle to me what brought him back or where he came from."

Rankin's feature set in a stern frown.

"You don't believe that yourself and you are hiding the truth. Harshness crept into his tone. "In fact, Miss Edmond, you kept to yourself a great deal, I should have learned. For instance, that you received four thousand dollars to act as Allen Rowland's—sweetheart, and correspondent in the divorce!"

He saw that the shot struck home, as she caught her breath, her eyes full of consternation.

A Public Nuisance. Will It Ever Be Stopped?

How long will Cross Plains permit out of town sound equipped cars to come here and publicly annoy our citizenship with objectionable programs and extravagant advertising of firms in neighboring cities?

Aside from being a nuisance, the programs announced from these cars are to the ill-advantage of Cross Plains. They are inviting business from within our very streets to leave here and journey to Brownwood with the promise of lower prices, and etc.

Directly in front of one local concern the car is at this minute advertising the product which our local merchant is selling for a living. "Come to Brownwood and to "name store" for wholesale prices of "name product" the sound device has just heralded.

Cross Plains' legitimate businesses should be protected. We have a number of dealers for automobile parts selling the very items the Brownwood announcer is inviting our people to come to his city to purchase.

How long do you suppose a Cross Plains merchant would be allowed to stand on a busy corner in Brownwood and holler at the top of his voice advertising Cross Plains? Not five minutes. He would be arrested for committing a public nuisance, yet he could not possibly holler half as loud as the mechanical loud speaker is screaming on our streets here at the very instant this is written.

City Fathers, it is your duty to protect Cross Plains merchants against such unfair practices. It is a struggle to keep business at home everything being equal. What chance have we if, such advantage is continually allowed Brownwood and other neighboring cities.

Cross Plains merchants ask no advantage. Merely give them the same protection Brownwood provides for its own business institutions.

This "Inside" Story Reveals Ignorance Of The Theoretical Farmer

Of all the weird stories of utter lack of understanding of practical things that have come out of Washington in the last two years, the following is the climax:

Men of the highest veracity say that one of the very highest officials in the Administration who specializes in the Government efforts to help the farmer, in a recent statement concerning present plans for agricultural assistance, declared (which is a fact) that there is a heavy shortage of work animals on the farms of the country.

He said the Government is going to help relieve this situation by furnishing worthy farmers with work animals, and that they plan to furnish the farmers "mare mules that are in foal" so that the farmers will benefit by the increase when the foals are born.

The story goes that someone in the crowd who at some time or other had been on a farm and knew something about work animals, rose and remarked: "My dear sir, I am sure the New Deal can do miraculous things but when you start raising colts from mare mules, you are really going a little too far."

And, it is further related that this gentleman, on finding out this startling fact about farm animals (what every child that ever got within nine miles of a farm knows) in much confusion requested that this particular plan of his be not published. But it is being told a million times a day.

Think This Over

Every additional dollar in the jeans of wage worker and dirt farmer mean that much additional income for their kind, while every dollar's tribute rendered by their customers to monopolists and money lenders of distant parts leaves their own tills. By now the annual migration of dollars from the sow, cow, corn, wheat and cattle belts, to the North and East has reached the degree where four weeks after harvest; dollars are as scarce in the wide-open spaces of the American hinterland as the proverbial hen's teeth.

Education must streamline itself for better performance.—Miss Agnes Samuelson, superintendent of public instruction in Iowa.

Review Poet Pens A Line In Memory Of Will Rogers

Around the bunk-houses of Heaven today, I see of Will Rogers smiling, mighty gay, Renewing friendships of days of yore, Jestng the fellows and spinning a lore.

His slow wry grin I'm sure we'll miss Yet Heaven must be better for a bit of this.

When the headlines scream gloom and despair And tell of failure, here and there, Who's going to cheer and point the way As Will did, in his little column each day?

He was the sunshine to shrouded skies, A restorer of hope, no one denies. With a typical cowboy parting we say: "Adios", Will, you and your lovable way.

THE BOOK

the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible," and which contains Four Great Treasures

by BRUCE BARTON Wiclif and Tyndale

SO the Bible passed into Latin and finally into English. There had been partial translations from the Latin from the time of the Venerable Bede and King Alfred, but the name of the great English pioneer translator is John Wiclif, who lived from 1324 to 1384.

As a translation his work was of secondary value, for he, too, used the Latin and not the original tongues, but he put the Bible into the hands of the reading public of English, which was small but potent, and made it what it is today, the eBook of the common people.

One hundred and fifty years after Wiclif came William Tyndale, who undertook a translation of the New Testament from the original Greek. People were horror-stricken by the impiety of the idea. He had to flee to Hamburg, and never again set foot on his native shore. Against fierce opposition he continued his work. Printing had been invented, and Tyndale determined to "make every plow-boy in English know the New Testament." His book, printed by Caxton, had to be smuggled into England and was read by stealth.

With such asinine drivel as the following written by the pious Friar Buckingham, its circulation was obstructed: Where Scriptures saith, "No man that layeth his hand to the plow and looketh back is fit for the kingdom of God": will not the plowman when he readeth these words be apt forthwith to cease from his plow, and then where will be the sowing and the harvest? Likewise also whereas the baker readeth, "A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump," will he not be forthwith too sparing in the use of leaven, to the great injury of our health. And so also when the simple man reads the words, "if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out and cast it from thee," incontinent he will pluck out his eyes, and so the whole realm will be full of blind men, to the great decay of the nation and the manifest loss of the king's grace. And thus by reading of the holy Scriptures will the whole realm come into confusion.

Tyndale himself was treacherously dealt with and arrested, and lay for eighteen months in Antwerp for no crime other than that of giving to the people a truer version of the Scriptures. On October 6, 1536, he was strangled and his body was burned. Thus have Christian folk welcomed the better and more accurate translations of the Book which teaches kindness, tolerance, forbearance and the open mind and thus do they still denounce those men of learning.

King James I of England and VI of Scotland saw that he could not prevent the reading of the Bible by the people, and he determined to get credit for what his scholars told him was much needed, a reliable translation into good English, for all the previous versions had been made under conditions that rendered exact scholarly treatment impossible.

The people are sovereign. All authority rests ultimately in them. They are above constitutions and governments, courts and institutions. Governments exist only at their pleasure.—Governor Earle of Pennsylvania.

Charm is that indefinable quality that makes the other person feel warm and happy inside.—Mary Pickford.

The Story of the Constitution by CALEB JOHNSON

THE FUNCTIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

No one major phase of the Constitution gave the delegates to the Convention of 1787 more trouble than that of working out a feasible plan for the execution of the laws adopted by the Congress. There had been no executive authority under the Articles of Confederation. One of the first things the Convention decided was that the new Government should consist of three independent branches, Legislative, Executive and Judicial. But how should the Executive power be set up?

Should we have a king? That was seriously debated, and rejected. Should there be an executive committee of three to administer the laws? That was considered, but dismissed. It was finally decided that the Executive would consist of one man. Then for weeks the debate went on as to how that one man should be chosen and for how long. Some delegates wanted the Executive to be appointed by the Senate and removable at pleasure. Another group wanted the Executive elected by the House of Representatives. There was a strong element in favor of a seven-year term for the Executive. Several other delegates thought he should be chosen for life.

Agreement was reached at last upon the plan of vesting the Executive of President. He must be 35 years old and a natural born citizen of the United States. He is elected by the States, for a term of four years. A Vice-President is chosen at the same time to provide against the President's death or disability. Under the original Constitution, the States voted only for President, and the candidate getting the second highest number of votes became Vice-President.

Each State has as many electors as it has Senators and Representatives in Congress. If a State wants to have its Presidential electors appointed by the Governor or the Legislature, as was the early way of doing it, it can still do so. In practice, every State permits all voters to vote for Presidential electors, but the President is not elected by the national popular vote. The electors of each State meet and vote as State body, and the candidate who gets the votes of the larger number of electors—not of citizens—is elected President. Several Presidents have thus been elected by a minority of voters.

The President is Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy. He has authority to pardon offenders against the laws of the United States. He can make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators concur, and this same two-thirds vote of the Senate is required to confirm his appointment of Ambassadors and judicial officers and others. He is required to "report to Congress from time to time on the state of the Union" and to recommend such legislation as he thinks necessary. He can call Congress together in a special session, and if they don't agree as to the time of adjournment, he can declare Congress adjourned. And he is required, in the language of the Constitution to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

Very early in our national history conflicts began to develop between the President and Congress. Some Presidents have acted upon the theory that they were authorized to do whatever was not forbidden by the Constitution and the laws of Congress. Others have taken the opposite attitude, that they had no authority beyond that specifically granted in the Constitution and statutes. In the course of 147 years, however, the powers of the Executive have been gradually enlarged by custom, statutory law and judicial interpretations, until the Executive is no longer merely the servant of Congress for the execution of Congressional enactment, but is also responsible for the initiation of policies.

L. J. Cook of Putnam, who has been in the grocery business longer than anyone here, came to the News office one morning this week and remarked: "Wonder if there is a providence which takes care of Brain trusted nations as well as politicians, drunk men, and fools?" He was asked why he asked such a question, Mr. Cook replied: "Well, if there isn't Providence to take care of us, our case is hopeless."

The Lobo band today was representing Cisco at Cross Plains, where the fifty-third annual Old Settler reunion was being held. The band, which made the trip in a school bus, left at 8:30 this morning. Director R. L. Maddox had charge of the group.

J. D. Meredith, discover of the Moran shallow oil field and first man to drill shallow wells here for operations, may start something else in the near future. He stopped us on the streets Saturday to show us a crystal brought up from a 300 foot well. The stone looked much like a diamond and is too hard to be quartz. Mr. Meredith says the crystal will cut glass. This being the case, the stone may be a diamond, and a bunch of them will be really worth drilling for. Of course, it probably isn't a diamond, but it looks the part and unusual to be found at the bottom of a 300 foot well.

FARM PROBLEMS ARE BEING STUDIED HERE

One of the local farm problems was discussed by farm boys of the Cross Plains trade territory Tuesday night, August sixth, in the third meeting of a part-time class organized May 29, by V. A. Underwood, teacher of vocational agriculture in the Cross Plains high school.

15 or more meetings two each month—are expected to be necessary in order to cover the following problems suggested by the farm boys: selecting calves, lambs, and pigs; training, preparing, and exhibiting calves, lambs and pigs; controlling parasites of sheep; dehorning calves; budding pecans; topping pecan trees; and agricultural arithmetic and basket ball. The meet will be held at the school building at 8 o'clock on first and third Thursdays nights of each month, except August, which will be held August 22. The school is to be open without charge to all farm boys or other boys who are interested.

We Want You To KNOW

We have not missed a single week since we opened our store for business telling you some value we had for you, some service we offer, or that we appreciate your business.

This is not done just because we like to talk about our-selves, but because we honestly believe those who trade in Cross Plains like to be informed about such matters, and are entitled to regular store messages.

The response we have had to this plan in the way of constantly increasing business proves that our ideas about real drug store service are popular with the people of this trade territory.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

OUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities, poison the system when retained. Then you may suffer nagging back-ache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen limbs; feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

proof that any appreciable amount would be credited in taxes from that source.

Mr. Hayden was followed by J. C. Duvall, state representative from Tarrant county, who advocated the repeal of the Dean law in Texas and legalization of the sale of liquor. Duvall's argument was centered about the idea that liquor would be sold whether legalized or not and that the state should place it in the hands of lawful distributors and collect needed revenue.

A bit of friendly rivalry broke out between Duvall and Hayden when the former said that a drug store in Abilene, Hayden's home town, was known to be handling bonded whiskies. Hayden shouted: "What's the druggist's name?" His question, although repeated twice, went unanswered.

Other Thursday afternoon speakers were Bill Chambers who talked on the A.A.A., Cecil A. Lotief who urged support of the old age pension amendment to be voted upon August 24, Ross B. Jenkins who defended the A.A.A. and urged it's continuance, E. A. Curry who stressed the need for good citizenship and others.

KNIFE LOST 50 YEARS IS FOUND NEAR HERE

A pocket knife believed to have been lost more than 50 years was being shown in town this week by Jim Cross.

The quaint looking implement with one cutting blade and another believed to have been a pench or sewing needle, was found on the DeBusk place, South of here, recently by Rufus Newton, who gave the knife to Doyland Cross. Doyland and his father—Jim Cross—after working with the oddity for quite a while succeeded in getting the blades open.

On one end of the knife is a threaded end believed to have been screwed either on a quirt or to have been the end of a rod which was used in ramming powder in old time rifles.

Mr. Cross opined that the knife had been lost at least 50 years.
