RAY HOWELL PLAYERS ARE ENTERTAINING BIG CROWDS HERE

The Ray Howell Players are playing here this week to unusually large crowds, under auspices of C. of C. Band and Parent-Teachers association.

Their big tent was crowded Monday night for their opening play and standing room was at a premium after all seats were filled, when they staged that big rural comedy, "Toby's Trip to New York". It was a big success.

Ray Howell, comedian, is no doubt one of the best on the road—or any where else. His comedy is original, and his antics are sure to make you laugh, so if it hurts you to laugh, you had better not hear him—or see him—that is with his stage make-up. Ray is a fine looking young chap, but when you see him as comedian you just can not believe it is him.

As the weeks progress the big tent is filled each night. They have an entire change of program each night. Their travesty artists, in fact, the combined cast of players and musicians have never been excelled by any company playing here, it is declared.

The Review is informed that this company of players will play here the first three days of next week, by request.

PUTNAM SUPPLY CO. BUYS WAGNER SUPPLY CO.

A deal was consummated Oct. 15th, in which the Wagner Supply Co. was purchased by the Putnam Supply Co. John H. Brock of Moran, is manager, and he will be assisted by T. C. Kelley, former manager of the Wagner Supply Co. The former company will continue to handle wire lines heretofore, with Mr. Yates in charge, the Review is informed. The Putnam Supply Co. gave the Review a large order for printed supplies this week. The company also has supply houses at Albany and Moran.

BARGAINS RATES CLOSE SATURDAY; ACT PROMPTLY

The Review's Bargain Days subscription offer, reducing the price of the Review to $1.00 to home readers, and $1.50 out side of county and trade territory, has met with most pleasing response. New subscriptions and renewals continue to come in, exceeding our fondest expectations. Yet there are a few who have not taken advantage of this special rate—and it is hoped that they will do so before six o'clock Saturday P. M. There are several subscription dates expiring this month and next, and we do not want to lose a single reader—so renew your subscription now—today.

Next week we'll probably publish list of those subscribing or renewing, since we published our last list. This is done to let the public know who are members of the big family of Review readers. If space would permit we would like to give list of all subscribers, but that would be too much of an undertaking. Hundreds of readers do not take advantage of special subscription rates, but come in all during the year and pay the regular rate. But if your subscription will expire soon, you should renew it at once. Dont delay—do it today.

The Review is informed of the death of J. P. Webb, of Sinton, Texas, last week. He resided here for many years and had many friends over this section, who will regret to hear of his death. His daughter Mrs. Mack Haines, resides in this community.

Mr. and Mrs. John Farr, have returned from California and will make their home here.

The Misses Della Henderson, Lois DeBusk, and Audie Conlee of route 2, were visiting friends here past week.

John W. Palmer, new Bandmaster, motored to Cooper, Texas, the past week, and where his wife and baby have been for some time. They returned with him to make their home here.

CROSS PLAINS SANITARIUM ASSURED IN NEAR FUTURE

A number of representative citizens met Monday night, and effected a temporary organization, to proceed with plans for a community co-operative sanitarium. Individuals are ready to go ahead and put in Sanitarium here, but it has been generally agreed that the community cooperative plan will be much better in every respect, giving every one an opportunity to become interested financially as well well as giving it their moral support.

F. M. Gwin was elected temporary chairman and Paul Harrell, secretary. A committee of five was appointed, to proceed to offer stock for sale at $25.00 per share, when the necessary stock has been subscribed, a coporation will be formed and chartered for operation. A board of directors will be appointed by stock holders, to manage or be responsible for operation of the Sanitarium. Many have express a desire purchase a large number of shares, and the stock is expected to be sold promptly. The Sanitarium will be incorporated for $8,000.00.

The building to be used for the Sanitarium is now under construction on South Main just north of Rev. Collins' residence. It will be a frame stucco structure, with room for eight beds, reception room, X-ray and operation rooms and kitchen and etc. The building will be enlarged, as more room is needed, it will be equipped with modern instruments and first class equipment, permitting major work. Later it is expected that the Sanitarium will be operated on a larger scale, but the size of the present building is expected to care for immediate needs. The situation will be handled and the necessary expansions made as is required.

It is the wish of those most interested to not encourage large purchase of shares by any individual but dividing the stock among more people. The building will be completed in week or so and it is hoped to have corporation perfected and be ready to equip and operate the Sanitarium at a very early date.

About $65.00 was collected on the streets last week and delivered to Rev. S. P. Collins to help care for the man Chambers he removed from a tent at City park, and placed in hospital at Coleman.

NEW DRY GOODS STORE TO BE OPENED UP HERE

Cecil Lotief, of Cisco, has leased the Curtis building, formerly occupied by the Fashion Shop, located just south of the Guaranty State Bank, and will open a dry goods store. He plans to be ready for business in a few days. He will handle general line of dry goods, he states.

Mr. Lotief has been in the dry goods business in Cisco for several years, and is well known over this section.

R. F. Townsend, and wife, of Stamford, were visiting here this week. They formerly resided here. If they ever get tired of living at Stamford, their many friends will be mighty glad to have them move back to Cross Plains.

W. M. Adams of Abilene was a business visitor here a few days back.

P. Smith visited his daughter, Mrs. W. M. Carey of Merkel, last week.

GROWING DEMAND FOR NEW CHEVROLET IN CROSS PLAINS

The local Chevrolet dealers, A. C. Dodson and App Orrell say that the demand for Chevrolets is on the increase, and they can offer proof for this, as some over zealous admirer, unable to control his longing desire, stole one here last Sunday night, or it may be that he borrowed it to take his best girl to church. A Chevrolet roadster belonging to Higginbotham's Store was left parked on Main street about 7:30 P. M. Sunday and it was stolen a few minutes later. It was found on the old Cisco road Tuesday, stripped of tires, bumper, etc. The gas became exhausted and the car was deserted. That was one time it was fortunate to have but little gas in tank, that is, it was fortunate for the owner.

A. C. Lester, attorney, of Tulsa Okla. has located in Cross Plains and he and Judge Hart have formed a law firm, styled Hart & Lester. Mr. Lester has been with the legal department of the Mid Kansas Oil & Gas Co. for some time, it is stated.

Friends for Long Had Laugh on Sportsman

A good story is going the rounds in London regarding an experience that befell Sir William Haycourt when he was shooting in the Scottish Highlands with J. E. Millais. According to the story, Sir William was strolling one evening when he spied a magnificent horned beast grazing peacefully on a little hill. In the gloaming it looked like a stag of fine proportions, and without pausing to examine it through a glass, he rushed into the house, and, seizing a rifle, advanced upon his quarry with all the stealth and cunning of an accomplished stalker. The crucial moment came at last. His finger was on the trigger, and the death of the animal a certainty, when a raucous Highland voice bellowed in his ear: "Ye're no gien to shute the meenister's goat, are ye?"

LITTLE LADIES IN WARM ATTIRE; PARIS SHOWS GENIUS IN HATS

ADDED to the usual staple shades used for coats, the live, warm colors of this season are chosen for young girls—the wine and copper tones, new blue, greens and reds. They are all particularly cozy looking in suede cloths and pile fabrics, and velveteen is a popular addition to the latter group. It is a featured material in both coats and dresses and is often used in combination with other goods—nothing is prettier in the warm brown and strong blue tones, or in the new, deep maroon, called "Black Prince." Kasha is among the popular,

What has made them what they are today and which of their several charms has contributed most to the tremendous success of those small velours and felt hats that fill so much of the millinery horizon? They are the darlings of the mode and fate has been kind to them; for their success is not transitory—they are here to stay for some time. Paris reveals its genius in the group of six chic hats, in fine velours or felt, that are at once so simple and so superior. It takes a good grade of soft velours, or felt, to get the best lighter, softer colors and there are several smooth-surfaced weaves available among the goods mentioned—all suited to the dressier styles in coats for children. Heavier and coarser cloths are used for utility coats. Nearly all the dressier coats boast a fur collar and fur is generously used on garments for girls in the last half of their teens. The coat shown in the picture is typical good style for younger misses, and speaks for itself. It is made of suede cloth in a warm brown shade—with hat to match. This pretty affair has an ornament at the front, set with a dark topaz jewel—of the millinery sort—thus paying tribute to the fashion, set by Queen Mary, of wearing a jewel on a plain hat. The coat-and-hat-to-match idea deserves effects—that is the most becoming lines and most pleasing colors. Even so, hats of this kind are not extravagant in price and they stand much wear. Just at present there is a fad for gold in collars, applied figures and other trappings, on felt and velours hats, but the variety of ways for adorning them is endless. In the hat at the upper left, two slashes are cut in the crown at the right side and one at the left. Folds of satin emerge from the lower slash and form a collar across the front, disappearing in the slash on the left side. Another slash allows three folded ends to escape, and lest we forget to notice this bit of artistry, small embroidered figures are placed by the slashes. The soft velours hat at the right is among the success it has made, having the chic that belongs to ensembles. Coats for girls from sixteen to twenty employ more lavish fur trappings and feature the season's new style points, in flared skirts, fabric details in trimming, new styles in collars and revers, and even the introduction of side plaques of fur and pyramid cuffs. But these are all discreetly used—specialty for the sweet sixteen—whose charm is in the whenever she is overness.

the most becoming models, with its irregular, upturned brim. It has a narrow gold collar and a fancy, old pin thrust in the brim. A dignified, square-crowned black felt, at the center of the group, disdains any other decoration than a band of felt about the crown crossing at the front, where an ornamental pin holds it in place. A small, flat cluster of bright feathers is added to the hat at the right with collar of self-colored belting ribbon. A similar hat at the left has tailored loops of ribbon under a fold in the brim, and two ends of it posed against the side crown. A velours hat with velvet brim facing finishes the group. Of all brim movements this has proved most popular. Two small gold ornaments are placed where the brim is caught to the crown.

Now that the Hubbard squash is ready for market, one may enjoy that delectable vegetable in various ways. A simple treatment is to cut it into half-pound pieces, unpeeled, and bake in a moderate oven until soft enough to be scraped from the shell. Serve it in the shell with bits of butter dotted over it, with generous sifting of salt and pepper.

Peeled and steamed, then mashed with butter, salt, pepper and a bit of cream it makes a dish which few will refuse.

Squash Porcupine.—Steam a Hubbard squash in the shell. When soft, scrape out with a spoon, mash and set in a hot oven after seasoning with salt, sugar, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of ginger, two tablespoonfuls of butter; beat well and reserve a cupful. Put the squash into a glass baking dish, cover with a cupful of the squash put through a ricer and brown. Cream may be added if moisture is needed.

Beef Kidney, Creole Style.—Trim the fat from a fresh kidney and cut into three-quarter inch slices; dredge with flour. Fry out one thick slice of bacon chopped and two tablespoonfuls of chopped suet in a deep pan. Add the kidney, four chopped onions and one chopped green pepper. Toss until the meat is well-seared and coated with a rich brown gravy. Now add one pint of tomatoes, one-eighth of a teaspoonful each of cayenne and curry powder and one teaspoonful of salt. Cover closely and simmer three-quarters of an hour. Serve hot on fingers of buttered toast.

Apple and Cabbage Salad.—Shred a small purple cabbage very fine, mix with finely sliced, thin shredded apple; add a small portion of chopped celery, a good boiled dressing and a little onion juice. Sprinkle with paprika and serve when well chilled. Pineapple added to cabbage with a good dressing is very good, preparing just as above, omitting the onion juice.

Sweet Nuts.—Small cakes and cookies are always a welcome sweet for all seasons and at all times. A well-filled cookie box is a source of great comfort and a resource in times of unexpected guests.

Spice Nuts.—To one cupful of sugar add two teaspoonfuls of butter, when well-mixed add two well-beaten eggs, one cupful of flour, one-fourth of a cupful of finely shredded citron, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth cupful of almonds, one-fourth teaspoonful each of allspice and cloves. Mix in the usual way and add flour enough to make the balls the size of a hickory nut. Place on buttered tins an inch apart and bake until light brown. They may be dipped into chocolate or fondant if wanted more elaborate.

Chocolate Potato Cake.—Blend two-thirds of a cupful of butter and two cupfuls of sugar, add two-thirds of a cupful of grated chocolate and one cupful of hot mashed potatoes, one cupful each of seeded raisins and chopped nuts, one-half cupful of milk, two and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, four eggs, the whites and yolks beaten separately; one-half teaspoonful each of cloves and nutmeg and one teaspoonful of cinnamon. Bake in a loaf one hour. Wrapped in paraffin paper, it will keep a month and still be moist.

Dutch Peppernuts.—Mix one and one-fourth pounds of brown sugar with two tablespoonfuls of cinnamon and one of cloves, with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Into this stir three eggs and as much flour as it is possible to work in. Roll thin and cut into circles the size of a quarter; bake in a very slow oven. These little cakes will ruff up and are delicious. Ice the flat side. Kept in a dry, cool place, they will keep for months.

Cranberry Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of butter and one and one-half cupfuls of light brown sugar, add the well-beaten yolks of three eggs. Sift two cupfuls of flour with a teaspoonful of soda, a teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg, and half a teaspoonful of cloves; add to the sugar and butter. Fold in one and one-half cupfuls of cranberries which have been cooked, put through a ricer and sweetened slightly, then add the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in two layers and ice, using some of the strained juice of the cranberry for flavor and color.

Raw Carrot Salad.—Grate or chop one or two carrots, add a little chopped celery and mix well with a good salad dressing. Serve on lettuce and sprinkle with a few finely minced or broken nut meats.

LEAGUE TAKES STEPS TO STOP BALKAN FIGHT

COUNCIL TO MEET AT ONCE ON GRECO-BULGARIAN EMBROGOLIO.

EUROPE DISTURBED

Order Will Be Restored Without Delay, Statesmen Believe.

Paris.—Diplomatic pressure has warded off a Balkan war long enough for the League of Nations to move toward an indefinite postponement of hostilities.

The League Council has been summoned to meet in Paris to seek a settlement of the Greco-Bulgarian trouble, which has resulted in four days' bloodshed along the Macedonian frontier.

Representatives of Greece and Bulgaria will sit with the council and, owing to the unstable financial and political situation in both countries, European statesmen are convinced that the internal belligerents will adjust their differences as the council dictates.

Cessation of active hostilities has been effected before either country resorted to a formal declaration of war.

Meanwhile, Bulgarian troops have been expelled from Greek territory, according to dispatches from Athens, and Greek troops are in possession of an area around the Bulgarian town of Petrisi, which they purpose to occupy until Bulgaria complies with Greek demands for indemnity. Maintenance of the indemnity depends entirely on the findings of the council.

Greece heeded allied warnings not to press her invasion farther into Bulgaria and the Bulgarian Cabinet, sitting at Sofia, was persuaded not to declare war, although there already has been considerable fighting.

Conflicting reports of the frontier clash between Bulgarian and Greek troops continue to pour in from Greek and Bulgarian resources. It will remain for the council to determine the guilty party or distribute the guilt of aggression between the two Nations. So far, the Balkan imbroglio has progressed according to schedule.

Greek, possessing the strong army, sought to decide the issue by force of arms. Bulgaria, largely disarmed, appealed to the League of Nations for protection and justice.

While European statesmen are disturbed by the Greco-Bulgarian trouble they intend to make the best of a bad situation by restoring order without delay as tangible proof that the will of Europe in 1925 is the will for peace.

GOVERNMENT TO RETURN LIQUOR SEIZED IN RAID

Government Admits Unlawful Seizure of Liquor and Intends to Return It.

Washington.—The Government conceded in the Supreme Court recently that it had made an unlawful seizure of liquor and told the court it intended to return it.

Solicitor General Mitchell asked the court to dismiss an appeal of Miles W. Gibbons of Cleveland, because it intended to drop his prosecution on a dry law charge.

The solicitor general acted under the ruling of the Supreme Court, delivered Oct. 12, which defined the limitations of searches.

In the Federal Court at Cleveland, Gibbons contended without success that a search warrant against him had been obtained under false pretenses and that seizures under it could not be used as evidence against him. It developed in the trial that the search warrant was issued on an affidavit that premises at 3212 East Seventeenth street, Cleveland, had been "investigated" and that the building was used for the possession and sale of intoxicating liquors.

The prohibition officer later testified that the warrant was sworn out on information received over the telephone from an anonymous source. Federal Judge Jones refused to order the return of the liquor or prohibit its use as evidence and Gibbons appealed to the Supreme Court.

When the appeal was reached for argument the Government confessed that the search was unlawful but Gibbons objected to the dismissal and notified the court by wire that he would insist on the case being heard and decided.

To Seize Freight Cars Carrying B.

Chicago, Ill.—Confiscation of freight cars in which beer and liquor was shipped to Chicago and Morton Grove, a suburb, will be asked in connection with the alleged conspiracy of railroads, officials and employes, policemen and bootleggers to transport liquor in violation of prohibition, Assistant District Attorney James McDowell has announced. Failing in that, he said, he would apply for injunction against the further use of the carriers.

DANGER AHEAD FOR CATARRH SUFFERERS

Catarrh, Even in Mild Form, Often Leads to Distressing Complications.

Here is a Simple, Safe, Inexpensive and Pleasant Method That Will Rid the Head, Nose and Throat of Catarrh.

There is no disease more offensive or disagreeable, or no disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as catarrh, often producing chronic headaches and deafness, affecting the eyes and voice, and frequently weakening the lungs. You can now get rid of catarrh by a simple, safe, pleasant home remedy, discovered by Dr. Blosser, a catarrh specialist.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is composed of medicinal herbs, berries and flowers, which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette. The smoke vapour is inhaled into the air passages of the nose, head, throat and lungs, and carries medicinal wherewithals, douches and ointments cannot possibly reach. Its effect is soothing and healing, and as it contains no tobacco or cubebs is perfectly harmless, and may be used by women and children as well as men.

If you suffer from catarrh, asthma, catarrhal deafness, or if subject to frequent colds, you should try Dr. Blosser's Remedy, which may be had at any drug store, or if you desire proof of its medicinal and pleasant effects, send ten cents (cash or stamps) to The Blosser Co., 73 G. H. Atlanta, Ga., for a trial package.

Pine Tar Good for the Skin

It's been almost fifty years since Grandpa's Wonder Soap first made its appearance and won immediately the lasting friendship of our people by the almost amazing manner in which this good old Genuine Pine Tar Soap performs its function. But, we must all realize that the real reason why this friendship has endured is because the product on which it was founded has so splendidly stood the rigid test of time. There are thousands of Southern grandpas who point with pride to the fact that for four generations they have been using nothing but "that good old Pine Tar Soap." One reason for this is the known fact that Genuine Pine Tar has properties that are soothing and healing to the skin. It's great for grease; fine for shampoo; grabs any dirt quickly and lathers freely in hard water; good for the skin, and is also mildly deodorant. Most all Grocers and other dealers, too, sell this soap in two sizes, medium and large, at popular prices.—Adv.

THE FIGHT AGAINST STRONG DRINK

(Temperance Lesson)
LESSON TEXT—Eph. 6:10-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might."—Eph. 6:10.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Loving and Obeying Our Parents.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Be Strong.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Stroke Armor for a Hard Fight.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Fight Against Strong Drink.

This is not a temperance lesson in the usual sense that it deals with intoxicants, but in the sense that it has to do with the believer's walk in conflict with the devil. Perhaps there has been no time when the evil one has made such a terrific fight as he is now doing in his attempt to nullify the Eighteenth amendment. The Christian has been saved by grace. Though his redemption is free, between its beginning and consummation there is a real, severe and protracted conflict. This conflict is most difficult and dangerous because it is not with flesh and blood, but with principalities, powers and spiritual hosts of wickedness in high places. Though the conflict is severe and painful, we should bravely battle on because the issue is sure if we go forth in the panoply of God.

I. The Source of the Believer's Strength (v. 10).

It is in the Lord. Only as the branch is united to the vine, or as a limb is united to the body, is there strength of life. We dare not attempt this conflict in human strength and wisdom.

II. The Enemy (vv. 11-12).

The enemy is the devil, a personal malicious being, with his many subordinates. His personality is proven by the names given him, and actions predicated of him. He has an exalted position, and is mighty in power, and all unsaved men are under his power. He is the original sinner, and is extremely cunning. He has power over death; enters into men; blinds their eyes; lays snares for them, and sifts God's servants. In carrying on his work, he has his churches and ministers. However, he is resting under a curse. The death blow was given on the cross, and he will receive his doom in the lake of fire.

III. The Christian's Armor (vv. 13-17).

This means that his weapons of offensive and defensive warfare are not of man's devices. Just as his strength is from the Lord, so is his armor. The believer dare not act merely on the defensive. He must attack his spiritual enemies as well as resist their spiritual attack.

1. A Girdle of Truth (v. 14).

The truth of God, sincerely and honestly embraced, alone will avail in this conflict. Reason, tradition, speculation and dead orthodoxy will fail in the crucial hour.

2. The Breastplate of Christ's Righteousness (v. 14).

As the metal plate covered the vital organs of the warrior, so the righteousness of Christ protects us from the enemy's assault.

3. Feet Shod With the Preparation of the Gospel of Peace (v. 15).

This suggests the firm foothold of the soldier and his alacrity—readiness to proclaim the message of peace.

4. Shield of Faith (v. 16).

By this he is able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. Christ is the object of that faith.

5. The Helmet of Salvation (v. 17).

Consciousness of salvation enables a man, knowing that he is a child of God, and fellow-citizen with the saints, to lift up his head with confidence and to vigorously assault the enemy.

6. The Sword of the Spirit (v. 17).

This is the Word of God, the Christian's offensive weapon; with it he can most effectively put his enemy to flight. This Christ used in the temptations in the wilderness, Matt. 4:4, 7, 10, 11. The church of Christ has won all her triumphs by the Word of God. Where she goes on using this, she goes on conquering, but when she falls back upon reason, culture, traditions, science, or the commandments of men, she goes down in defeat before the adversary.

IV. The Way to Get Strength to Use the Armor, and Courage to Face the Foe (vv. 18-20).

This is by prayer—and prayer alone.

1. Every Variety and Method of Prayer Should Be Employed (v. 18).

2. He Prays for His Comrades, "All the Saints" (v. 18).

He sees all the believers standing shoulder to shoulder against the enemy.

3. He Is Persistent (v. 18).

Some Things to Beware Of

Beware of idle moments! Beware of the beginnings of evil! Above all, and more than all, beware lest you once admit the fatal intrusion of evil thoughts. In solemn and awful earnest I would say to you, "Watch and pray lest ye enter into temptation."—Farrar.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Her Rheumatism Vanished!

After two years of agony, this woman thanks Tanlac for restoring lost health

For two years, *Mary Arpentigny, had rheumatism in her right arm and hand so bad she couldn't lift a comb to her hair. Indigestion made matters worse.

Finally her brother urged her to try Tanlac and improvement came with the first bottle. "Now," writes Mrs. Arpentigny, "my appetite is fine, my indigestion is gone and every sign of rheumatism has left me. I only hope others will profit by my experience."

NOTE: For Constipation, take Tanlac Vegetable Pills, Nature's own harmless laxative.

More people have been helped back to health by Tanlac than by any other tonic. Physicians testify to that. Our files are crammed with letters of grateful thanks from every part of the world. Isn't this evidence enough for you?

Don't go feeling worse and worse each day. Head off that sick spell. Start the Tanlac treatment today.

Ask for a bottle of Tanlac at your druggist's. Take it according to directions and see how much better you feel. We know what it can do for you because we know how it has brought health to thousands like you. It's folly not to make the test.

Automobile Wrecks

Automobile wrecks are becoming quite common here of late—some of them are of a minor nature while others are serious and a number have suffered painful injury, but fortunately no lives have been lost lately—yet if the fast reckless driving continues somebody will pay the supreme sacrifice—and it may be you. Think about it.

There were two wrecks or more Saturday night. A car and truck collided out on the Dressy road, wrecking them, but drivers escaped serious injury. Another wreck occurred on the Rising Star road, east of Pioneer, which resulted in a demolished car, and several injured people. One of the cars was lifted off of three young men from Cross Plains. The other car, driven by two Cross Plains ladies, suffered only minor damages while the occupants suffered severe shocks from impact of collision. The boys were bruised and banged up, but were able to assist others in extracting them from the wrecked car.

THE BAPTIST PREACHER—Wants to meet you next Sunday at eleven o'clock, in the Baptist Church. Every body is invited to be present and every member of the Baptist Church is under obligation to their Lord and to their Church to be present. The subject will be, "GOD'S TWIN LOVE" 1-7 of man's time and 1-10 of his income is God's, BOTH—As old as the race and for man's benefit, reaffirmed (not enacted in the Mosaic Law, endorsed by Jesus, also endorsed by the Apostles, taught and observed for centuries in the Christian Church. Come and hear this important subject discussed.

The Misses Callie, Nora and Winnie Ingram, Martha Chambers and Artie Breeding, were in town shopping last week.

CONDENSED AUSTIN NEWS

Requisition from the Governor of Arizona for the extradition of John Hamilton, wanted in Mohave County, Arizona, on a complaint charging criminal assault, was honored by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson. Hamilton is in custody at Ballinger, Runnels County.

Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson signed a deficiency warrant for $58,180 for meeting the general expense of taking care of the unexpected large attendance of students at the first session of Texas Technological College at Lubbock, and that amount is now available for use by the board of regents of the new college.

Purposes of the Wholesale Credit Men's Association, granted a charter by the Secretary of State, are "establishing and maintaining uniformity in Texas commercial usages, securing close co-operation of wholesale credit men's associations throughout the State and assisting in removal of causes of financial failures."

Payment of oil royalties for production on University lands in Reagan County during September by the Texon Company has been delayed on account of the Reagan County purchasing company's calculations not having been received, according to a telegram received by the State Land Office from Group No. 1 Oil Corporation of the Texona. This telegram followed one saying that $104,000 in royalties were being sent.

Cancellation by State Superintendent of Public Instruction S. M. N. Marrs of certificates of five school teachers in Hopkins County some time ago was not sustained by the State Board of Education at the regular monthly meeting of the board. The board held that the evidence for cancellation of the certificates was insufficient. The State Superintendent had alleged that the certificates had been obtained through fraud.

Dallas leads cities and towns of Texas in fire apparatus with forty pieces of auto apparatus to its credit, according to a list of cities and towns in the State having waterworks and fire departments, compiled by the engineering division of the State Fire Insurance Commission under the direction of Chief Engineer G. C. Hawley. Dallas also leads in the number of firemen, with 129 listed in the double platoon system.

Adj. Gen. Mark McGee had in conference with him recently the six ranger captains now in service and discussed with them work accomplished by the State ranger force during the present administration and plans for future services. It was the first get-together meeting held by the ranger captains since Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson reorganized the force in her administration. The force is now being operated with the smallest number of captains that many years.

Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson recently addressed a letter to William E. Register at Dallas, giving her approval and commendation to the annual "forget-me-nots Nov. 4 to 10" for the relief of needy and disabled veterans and their dependents. Register is chairman of the campaign to raise funds. After that the movement had her support, Gov. Ferguson decided it is indeed a worthy cause and should be sponsored by every patriotic citizen.

The American Road Company of Dallas refunded to the State Treasury $15,730.67, representing accounts that had been paid twice to the company. The money in certified checks, was turned over to the State controller by deposit with the auditor by Attorney General Dan Ross upon his return from Dallas. It was indicated at the Attorney General's office that collection of the money was the main object of his recent visit to Dallas.

Pest, But Not Altogether an Evil

POISONING THE WEEVILS

OME day the bugs will get us—if we don't watch out. So say the entomologists. And other scientists say the bug men are quite right. What they mean is that the locusts, grasshoppers, beetles, borers, weevils and other pests of the insect world threaten to eat us out of house and home and starve us to death. They hold that the insect world is man's most dangerous enemy—so dangerous that only by eternal vigilance and unceasing warfare will the human race be able to survive.

In the meantime Uncle Sam, Entomologist, is authority for the official statement that a billion-dollar annual loss is inflicted upon our gardens, fields, orchards and forests by a hundred or more imported insect pests.

Mind you Uncle Sam says, "Imported pests." Offhand one would say that the earliest of these imported pests was the Hessian fly, which was brought over in the Revolution by the mercenaries hired by George III from a German prince. We treated the Hessians rough—you remember what George Washington did to them at Trenton—and the fly they brought in their straw packing has since destroyed enough of our wheat to pay the German war debt.

There has been a succession of these imported pests ever since. So nowadays Uncle Sam has a small army at work fighting them. In the Agricultural department, for example, he has established the bureaus of plant industry and entomology and the insecticide and fungicide board. Through them he watches the ports to keep new pests out. He scours the earth for pest-resisting plants and for insects that prey on pests that prey upon us. He experiments with insect poisons.

A 25-acre farm which includes insect pests among its chief crops is operated at Vienna, Va. The American people pay some $40,000,000 a year for insecticides and fungicides with which to combat crop pests, fungous growths and household vermin. At the Vienna farm the pests are permitted to reach their full measure of destructiveness; whereupon they are subjected to treatment with commercial insecticides and fungicides to determine the effectiveness of such preparations.

Right now there is a big controversy going on over the importation of narcissus bulbs. Uncle Sam says that after January 1 importation will be restricted. Why? Because these bulbs are frequent and abundant carriers of two pests: bulb-flies and the European eel-worm. The former eats onions and the latter onions, clover, rye, oats and potatoes. Both have already gained a foothold here.

Of all these imported pests the one to get most frequently under the limelight is the Mexican boll weevil. Scarcely a newspaper but has news of its doings or what is being done to it. For example, an item of current news is that an agricultural extension service survey shows the cotton fields of North Carolina to be more heavily infested this year than last, in some cases as high as 50 per cent.

Another tells of the discovery of a germicide that will rid the South of the pest by a prisoner in the Atlanta Federal penitentiary who had been a Baltimore scientist of note.

A third is that the chemical warfare service of the United States army has been turned loose on the boll weevil with orders to find some poison that will put it out of business for all time.

Probably one reason for the persistent throwing of the limelight on the boll weevil is the fact that cotton is one of our big crops. Some years it equals in value the corn crop. The cotton belt extends from the Atlantic to Texas and Oklahoma; probably it will be extended clear to the Pacific. And this American belt grows 54 per cent of the world's cotton. Our exports of cotton are about twice those of the rest of the world and we use 30 per cent of the world's production.

The boll weevil (Anthonomus grandis) is a gray insect about the size of a housefly. Both adults and grubs injure the cotton—the former by feeding, puncturing and laying eggs; the latter by feeding on the contents of the bolls. The boll weevil first entered the United States from Mexico in 1892, getting a foothold in southwestern Texas. Infestation spread slowly but surely. Climatic conditions made 1915 a year of catastrophe in the matter of infestation; no less than 86,840 square miles of cotton-raising territory were reported in bad shape. All told, the boll weevil has caused the loss of many million bales of cotton; also it has largely reduced at times the area devoted to cotton.

And yet the Mexican boll weevil, in its own way a top-notch as a crop destroyer, has not proved an unmitigated evil to all of the cotton-raising South. On the contrary, one Alabama town is actually grateful to it and has shown that gratitude by erecting in the public square a monument in its honor. This town is Enterprise and its inscription on the monument reads:

In Profound Appreciation of
THE BOLL WEEVIL
And What It Has Done as the Herald of Prosperity
This Monument Is Erected
By the Citizens of Enterprise,
Coffee County, Alabama

Back in 1915 "Cotton Was King" in Coffee county. Then came the boll weevil and cut down the yield 60 per cent. In 1916 the whole countryside was wrecked and ruined. The wolf was at the door, for planters knew nothing of diversified crops and the boll weevil had destroyed King Cotton. Writes Carl W. Dipman in Good Hardware (New York):

But the city officials and the business men got together. They decided something must be done and done quickly. They saw farmers leaving the farms and the young men flocking to the cities. They saw a dying Enterprise. So they began preaching diversification—for the first time in the history of that section. Within one year Coffee county broke the world's record in the yield of peanuts, for a similar area, and also in the return in dollars and cents for hogs and cattle shipped. The farmers raised their own hay, corn, potatoes and other produce for home consumption, which they bought previously, when they raised only cotton. Coffee county has now become a flourishing cattle and hog market, as well as a peanut market. Alabama now sells to the Middle West. Before, it bought only.

By 1918 and 1919, this entire section had learned the lesson of diversification. As a result, the whole county was rolling in prosperity. It was not until after the coming of the bug that Enterprise saw paved streets and sidewalks—saved at a cost of many thousands of dollars. The hardware stores did a flourishing business and the same was true of other stores. Several small factories came to the city and the post office rose from fourth class to second class. Handsome school buildings and fine churches, hospitals and beautiful homes were erected. All because the farmers learned to raise something besides cotton. Is it surprising, then, that on one of the principal streets of this little city was erected, in December of 1919, a monumental fountain to the memory of the Mexican boll weevil? This monument stands today as the only monument ever erected to the memory of a pest, on the American continent. The much-dreaded boll weevil proved to be a blessing in disguise.

When it was discovered that calcium arsenate was just about the best combative against the boll weevil, thousands of "remedies" were taken into the South. Some of them were worse than the boll weevil. Uncle Sam's insecticide board was kept busy remedying the remedies. Now they have been pretty well regulated. So all the cotton planters are busy these days dusting their fields by man power, mule power, and even by airplane.

It's a fair guess that the boll weevil will come to a violent end before long—and by poison. Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, head of the chemical warfare service of the army, has established a research laboratory at the Georgia experiment station at Griffin. He has cotton plants. He is paying a cent apiece for live, vigorous boll weevils in lots of a thousand or more. He has at his command a mysterious lot of deadly poisons and gases developed in the World War. And he is out to get the boll weevil.

Merely a Phrase

The "fourth dimension" is only a mathematical phrase and has no real existence. A straight line is said to have one dimension; a surface is said to have two dimensions and a solid is said to have three. In working out complicated mathematical equations sometimes it is necessary to assume another dimension of space, the fourth dimension. No physical object has four dimensions. The fourth dimension

"No go, darling," he muttered. "And I'm afraid of making too much noise. I'm going to try and force this window."

By a stroke of luck they had not taken his clasp-knife, and by a still greater stroke of luck he found that the catch on the window had been broken, and that it proved even easier to open than he had thought.

The next moment he had vanished into the drawing-room. And now he noticed that that strange noise which he had heard while standing on the lawn was much louder. As he cautiously opened the door and peered into the passage the very faint hum became a steady drone, while with each successive thud the floor-boards shook a little.

The passage was in darkness, though light was shining from under some of the doors. And as he crept along in search of the stairs he heard voices proceeding from one of the rooms he passed. Evidently a fairly populous household, it struck him as he tested the bottom stair with his weight to see if it creaked. But the staircase was old and solid, and the stair carpet was thick, and at the moment Hugh was not disposed to linger. Afterward the house seemed to promise a fairly fruitful field for investigation; at present Phyllis was all that mattered. So he vanished upward with the uncanny certainty of all his movements at night, and a moment later he was standing on the landing above.

It was a long, straight corridor, a replica of the one below, and he turned in the direction in which he new her room must lie. And he had only taken a couple of steps when he stopped abruptly, peering ahead with eyes that strove to pierce the darkness. For it seemed to him that there was something in the passage—something darker than its surroundings. And at that moment something sprang out of the darkness, and he found himself fighting for his life.

For a second or two he was at a disadvantage, so completely had he been taken by surprise; then the old habits returned. And not a moment too soon, he was up against an antagonist who was worthy of him. Two hands like iron hooks were round his neck, and the man who gets that grip first wins more often than not. His own hands shot out into the darkness, and then for the first time in his life he felt a stab of fear. For he could reach the other man: long though his arms were, the other man's were far longer, and as his hands went along, then he could feel the muscles standing out like steel bars. He made one supreme effort to force through to his opponent's throat and it failed; with his superior reach he could keep his distance. Already Drummond's head was beginning to feel like bursting with the awful pressure round his throat, and he knew he must do something at once or lose. And just in time he remembered his clasp-knife. It went against his grain to use it, never before had he fought an unarmed man with a weapon—and as far as he could tell this man was unarmed. But it had to be done and done quickly.

With all his force he stabbed sideways at the man's left arm. He heard a snarl of pain, and the grip of one of the hands round his throat relaxed. And now the one urgent thing was to prevent him shouting for help. Like a flash Drummond was on him, one hand on his mouth and the other gripping his throat with the grip he had learned from Osaki the Jap in days gone by, and had never forgotten. And because he was fighting to kill now he wasted no time. The grip tightened; there was a dreadful worrying noise as the man bit into his thumb—then it was over. The man slumped downward onto the floor, and Drummond stood drawing in great mouthfuls of air.

But he knew there was no time to lose. Though they had fought in silence, and he could still hear the monotonous thud and the beat of the engine, at any moment someone might come upstairs. And to be found with a dead man at one's feet in a strange house is not the best way of securing a hospitable welcome. What to do with the body—that was the first insistent point. There was no time for intricate schemes; it was a question of taking risks and chancing it. So for a moment or two he listened at the door of a room, then he gently opened it. It was a bedroom and empty, and without further hesitation he dragged his late opponent in, and left him lying on the floor. By the dim light from the window, he could see that the man was dead.

They must have been six inches longer than those of an average man, and were almost as powerful as his own. And as he saw the snarling, ferocious face upturned to his, he uttered a little prayer of thanksgiving for the presence of his clasp-knife. It had been altogether too near a thing for his liking.

He closed the door and stepped across the passage, and the next moment Phyllis was in his arms.

"I thought you were never coming, old man," she whispered. "I was afraid the brutes had caught you."

"I had a slight difference of opinion with a warrior outside your door," said Hugh, grinning. "Quite like old times."

Then he grew serious. "No time for hot air now, old thing; let's have a look at this jolly old chain effect of yours. Once we're out of here, you shall tell me everything and I'll eat several pounds of mud for having been such an unmitigated idiot as to let these swine get hold of you."

He was examining the steel chain as he spoke, and gradually his face grew grave. The chain, which was about six feet long, was fastened at one end to a big staple in the wall and at the other to a bracket which encircled his wife's right wrist. And the bracelet could only be opened with a key. Any idea of breaking the chain or pulling out the staple was so preposterous as not to be worth even a moment's thought; so everything depended on the bracelet. And when he came to examine it more carefully he found that it had a Yale lock.

He sat down on the edge of the bed, and she watched him anxiously.

"Can't you get it undone, boy?" she whispered.

"Not if I stopped here till next Christmas, darling," he answered heavily.

"Well, get out of the window and go for the police," she implored.

"My dear," he said still more heavily. "I had, as I told you, a little difference of opinion with the gentleman outside the door—and he's very dead." She caught her breath sharply. "A nasty man with long arms who attacked me. It might be all right, of course—but I somehow feel that this matter is beyond the local constable, even if I could find him. You see, I don't even know where he are." He checked the exclamation of surprise that rose to her lips; "I'll explain after, darling; let's think of this now. If only I could get the key; if only I knew where it was, even."

"A foreigner came in about an hour ago," answered his wife. "He had it then. And he said he'd come again tonight."

"He did, did he?" said Hugh slowly. "I wonder if it's my friend the Italian. Anyway, kid, it's the only chance."

Say something; get him into the room and then leave him to me. And if for any reason he doesn't come I'll have to leave you here and raise the gang."

Phyllis alone. And so he decided on a compromise. If when daylight came no one had been up to the room, he would go; but he would wait until then.

And he was just going to tell Phyllis what he had decided, when he heard a sound that killed the words on his lips. A door had opened below, and men's voices came floating up the stairs.

"Lie down, darling," he breathed in her ear, "and pretend to be asleep."

Without a word she did as he told her, while Hugh tiptoed over toward the door. There were steps coming up the stairs, and he flattened himself against the wall—waiting. The period of indecision was passed; unless he was very much mistaken the time of action had arrived. How it would pan out—whether luck would be in, or whether luck would fall was on the lap of the gods.

The steps paused outside the door, and he heard a muttered ejaculation in Italian. Apparently he was concerned over something, and it suddenly dawned on Drummond that it was the absence from duty of the long-armed bird that was causing the surprise. In the excitement of the moment he had forgotten all about him, and for one awful second his heart stood still. Suppose the Italian discovered the body before he entered the room, then the game was up with a vengeance. Once the alarm was given he'd have to run the gauntlet of the whole crowd over ground he didn't know.

But his fears were groundless; the nondiscovery of the watcher by the door took the Italian the other way. His first thought was to make sure that the girl was safe, and he flung open the door and came in. He gave a grunt of satisfaction as he saw her lying on the bed, then like a spitting cat he swung round as he felt Drummond's hand on his shoulder.

With every ounce of weight in his body behind the blow, Hugh hit the Italian on the point of the jaw. Without a sound the man crumpled up and pitched on his face.

And now there was not a moment to be lost. At any moment one of his pals might come upstairs, and every thing depended on speed and finding the key. Hugh shut the door and locked it; then feverishly he started to search through the Italian's pockets. Every thing up to date had panned out so wonderfully that he refused to believe that luck was going to fall him now, and sure enough he discovered the bunch. Phyllis was free, and he heard her give a little sob of pure excitement.

He heaved the Italian onto the bed, and snapped the steel bracelet onto his arm. Then he slipped the keys into his own pocket, and crossed to the window. The engine was still humming gently; the thudding noise was still going on; nothing seemed in any way different. No light came from the room below then, everything had worked better than he had dared to hope. He had only to lower Phyllis out of the window, and let her drop onto the flower bed and then follow himself. After that it was easy.

"Come along, darling," he said urgently. "I'm going to lower you out first—then I'll follow. And once we're down, you've got to keep up your skirts and run like a stag across the lawn till we're under cover of those bushes. We aren't quite 'out of the woods' yet."

They were not indeed. It was just as Phyllis let go, and he saw her pick herself up and dart across the lawn, that he heard a terrific uproar in the house below, and several men came pounding up the stairs. He vaulted over the window sill himself, and lowered himself to the full extent of his arms. Then he too let go and dropped onto the flower bed below. And it was as he was picking himself up, preparatory to following Phyllis—who he could see faintly across the lawn waiting for him, that he heard someone in the house shout an order in a hoarse voice.

"Switch on the power at once, you d—d fool; switch it on at once!"

Art and the Haddock
On one of the piers in Portland an old fishmonger told the legend of the queer markings on the haddock. Just about the fish's gills are two dark blotches, like bruises, one on each side. And from each of these marks runs a straight dark line back toward the tail. The haddock, said this fisherman, was the fish with which Christ fed the multitude (though that sounds unlikely). This so annoyed the devil that he tried to avenge himself on the species. He seized one, holding it tightly (hence the bruise mark), but it slipped away. The devil's finger nails made the long scratches on each side; since when all haddocks carry that pattern. And beauty, in any art, is just as elusive as that haddock. It cannot be nabbed between the thumb and finger of any man's foot.—Christopher Morley, in the Saturday Review of Literature.

Mills for Milk
There is a tradition of a boy from London who was disappointed with the country, where he went for a holiday, because he saw them "pump milk from a dirty old cow."

The boy's idea of artificial milk is within realization, for after manufactured butter we are to have artificial milk. It is already consumed extensively in China and a mill is to be set up in France.

The Chinese drop a powder into water, stir it and it becomes milk. The powder is a soja bean crushed. The French mill is to treat the bean so as to enable the milk powder to be sold in packets. It is said that cheese is obtained by the same process.—London Globe.

Community Building

Paint Surest Weapon Against Rot and Rust

Home is man's dearest possession. He, who owns even the humblest of dwellings owes it two precious gifts—protection and beauty.

As a man of business he will not willingly see his property deteriorate. As a reputable citizen and head of a family he will wish his home to present an attractive appearance and be an asset—not a disgrace—to the community in which he lives.

Every house is beset by two inveterate enemies, which never take a vacation. These are rot and rust. Fortunately, they leave their fingerprints as they go about their ugly task of destruction.

The fingerprints of rot are most easily found on such places as window-sills, sashes, door-sills and the like; in fact, on any woodwork that is exposed to the ravages of the weather.

Cellar stairs and windows are another salient point of attack by rot, because of the dampness to which they are exposed; while the deadly fangs of rust gnaw at the iron window gratings and the furnace door.

Paint is the surest weapon against these twin foes. By forming a waterproof film over structural materials, it keeps out moisture, and thus prevents rot from sending its fungus spores into cracks and crevices and porous surfaces. In like manner it checks the chemical action of the air upon exposed metals, which results in rust.

Clean Up Grounds To Add to Beauty

If there is a garage, it should be located where it will be of most convenience, and will not be frequently used. The same thing is true of a driveway, and of a service yard, for drying clothes. Space should be allowed for a lawn where children may play. If it is possible, space should be reserved for vegetable and flower gardens.

If the house is to be built, it is most important to start with a good layout in which these desirable points are met as far as possible. Standing water should be allowed to remain and should be protected from injury during the construction of the house. As the excavation gets under way, the top soil should be collected and retained in one place, then spread over the surface of the lot evenly, after building is completed and the lot has been finally graded.

If a finished house is bought as a home for the family, it is well to bear in mind that a great change for the better usually can be brought about by cleaning up the grounds around the house and at the borders, screening the back steps and improving their usual unsightliness with a trellis, planting vines to grow on the fences—if there are any—and planting flowers.

Every Community Can Become "God's Country"

There appeared the other day in a newspaper an article on "God's country." It brought to mind the thought that one hears a great deal these days about "God's country." It is sometimes considered clever for one to remark, when asked where he hails from, "I'm from God's country."

Does not the sunshine fall more beautifully on the spot where one was born than anywhere else in the world? Whether it be on a roadside street in a village, or the more pretentious brown front of a city? If it has one time been "home," it is "God's country."

After all, "God's country" is in the heart. The true "God's country" is made by believing that home is the best place on earth, by attending to all of life's duties, by being just and fair with one's fellow men by living life at its fullest wherever one happens to be.—Washington Post.

Cleanliness and Beauty

In striving for bigness, it has been suggested that Indianapolis should not overlook the rather obvious truth that quality also counts for much in the estimate of cities—and also in their livability. To be a little more definite, beauty is a very important element, and in beauty cleanliness is an important factor. For cleanliness means health and comfort, and is also a sure indication of enterprise and prosperity. Much progress has been made along this line in the last few years, and Indianapolis has much to be proud of, but we have hardly yet approached the ideal. The individual citizen can do much—and he has done a great deal, but the chief reliance must, in this case, be on the government, which alone can look after the streets and alleys, and the city property generally.—Indianapolis News.

Give Contractor Time

It requires a certain amount of time to honestly and conscientiously do any bit of work, and this applies to the building trade in particular. Time allotted to contractors for preparing bids is usually determined by architects.

If an insufficient amount of time is granted for contractors to bid on buildings, the architect is imposing a hardship on the contractor, and at the same time his client does not derive the benefit of keen competition.

Stonework in the Garden

Next to the flowers themselves, there is nothing that gives so much charm to a garden as a little rough stonework, to my way of thinking. A low, irregular stone wall against a little bank, two or three curving stone steps around a bend, stepping stones set in the grass, or a built-in pile of stones holding a bird-bath in their laps—all these add immeasurably to the garden's loveliness.

To suburban dwellers such effects are not difficult. Smallish stones are generally to be had, and the children may drag them in a stout wooden cart, which they may make themselves. As to the builder of the walls or steps, I know one office man who attributes his splendid fitness and hard muscles to the outdoor work he does around his place on week-ends and holidays.

Autumn is the ideal time to get such work done. The air is cool and crisp, and one may work outdoors without getting heated and perspiring. Then, too, the stones get a sort of settled look before next spring, and when the new grass comes in March, it will grow up around the stones and make them look as if they had been there for years.

It is not only country dwellers who may indulge in decorative stonework. I know a city back yard—the tiny garden of a famous painter—that has wandering cobblestone paths, a low stone wall with vines clambering over it, and a semicircular flight of stone steps leading from the house to the garden. He did all the stonework himself, in moments of relaxation and play, when he laid his busy brushes down and went out to get some musical work-in the open.

If stones are not to be picked up in your immediate neighborhood, a cartload can be delivered to you at a price low indeed for the amount of beauty you can pile up!

To Spend or Not to Spend

"I'm going to take you to luncheon at the Ardsley," said the young man.

"What d'ye mean, photographing me? I saw ye when ye done it!" The man replied gently: "You're mistaken, really! I would think of doing such a thing."

"Ye wouldn't, eh?" said the young man, still savagely. "And why not? She's the handsomest woman on beach."

"Job had lots of patience." "Yes, but he never worked in a grocery store on a Saturday night."

Old Folks Must Not Use "Physics"

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, III, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils every day or two.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels of old folks. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

The rather ferocious-looking husky band who had taken his wife to the seaside scowled at an amateur photographer and rumbled in a threatening bass voice: "What d'ye mean, photographing me? I saw ye when ye done it!"

The Review regrets the failure to insert the announcement, and we trust that our good friends of the Church of Christ will not censure us too much for the oversight as we are only human and therefore subject to many failings.
