Chamber of Commerce Sets Meeting

What's your Chamber done for you lately? Come to the business meeting Tuesday, September 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the Bairfield Activity Center on the College campus to hear a full report.

"Beginning in May with the hiring of Pat Archuleta as Executive Secretary, the Clarendon-Donley County Chamber of Commerce has taken on a new outlook," President Don Stone reports. "Our successful summer included a variety of activities and events."

Some of these are evident, such as planting flowers around the courthouse and organizing a parade in Clarendon for the Fourth of July. Other activities happen at promotional events around the Panhandle through voluntary efforts of enthusiastic members. Fielding telephone inquiries, answering mail requests for information, and facilitating Trade Days requires continuous effort.

"The increase in membership we've worked for is evidence of Chamber members' dedication," Stone adds. "Fresh ideas and confident volunteers will set a positive forward course in building up our community."

Longtime members, new members, and all interested persons are invited to this annual business meeting. In addition to the Annual Report Of Progress, opportunities to become involved in promoting the many benefits of the area, committee assignments, and proposed by-law changes are on the agenda.

For more information, call your Chamber office at 2421.

School Enrollment Reaches Record Level

Principals in high schools across the country are beginning to think about where to put the extra seats and find the quality teachers that will be needed for the coming wave of students.

According to Education Department projections, the children and grandchildren of baby boomers will help drive enrollment in the nation's schools and colleges to record levels by the end of the century. And, not only are more students going to school, more are staying in school.

The influx of students will create a pressing need for extra help in the basics and core academics, funds to keep school safe and drug-free, and greater financial aid for college, at a time when Congress is proposing to cut federal support for education by $36 billion over the next seven years.

As soon as this coming school year, the number of students in elementary and secondary schools may equal or surpass the baby-boom generation's 1971 peak of 51 million students. The forecast is for 53 million students in 1997, 55 million by 2002. And college enrollment is projected to jump more than 1.3 million students over the next seven years.

At a recent White House briefing with President Clinton, members of Congress, and representatives of education groups, U.S. Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley said he fears the nation will be ill-prepared for this enrollment growth, especially if Congress is successful in cutting support for elementary and secondary education by 19 percent and reducing financial assistance for deserving students to attend college.

"Slashing education is bad for America's children and our nation's future," Riley said. "I have to question the members of Congress who would put less important priorities ahead of arming our children against ignorance and mediocrity by giving them a good start in life."

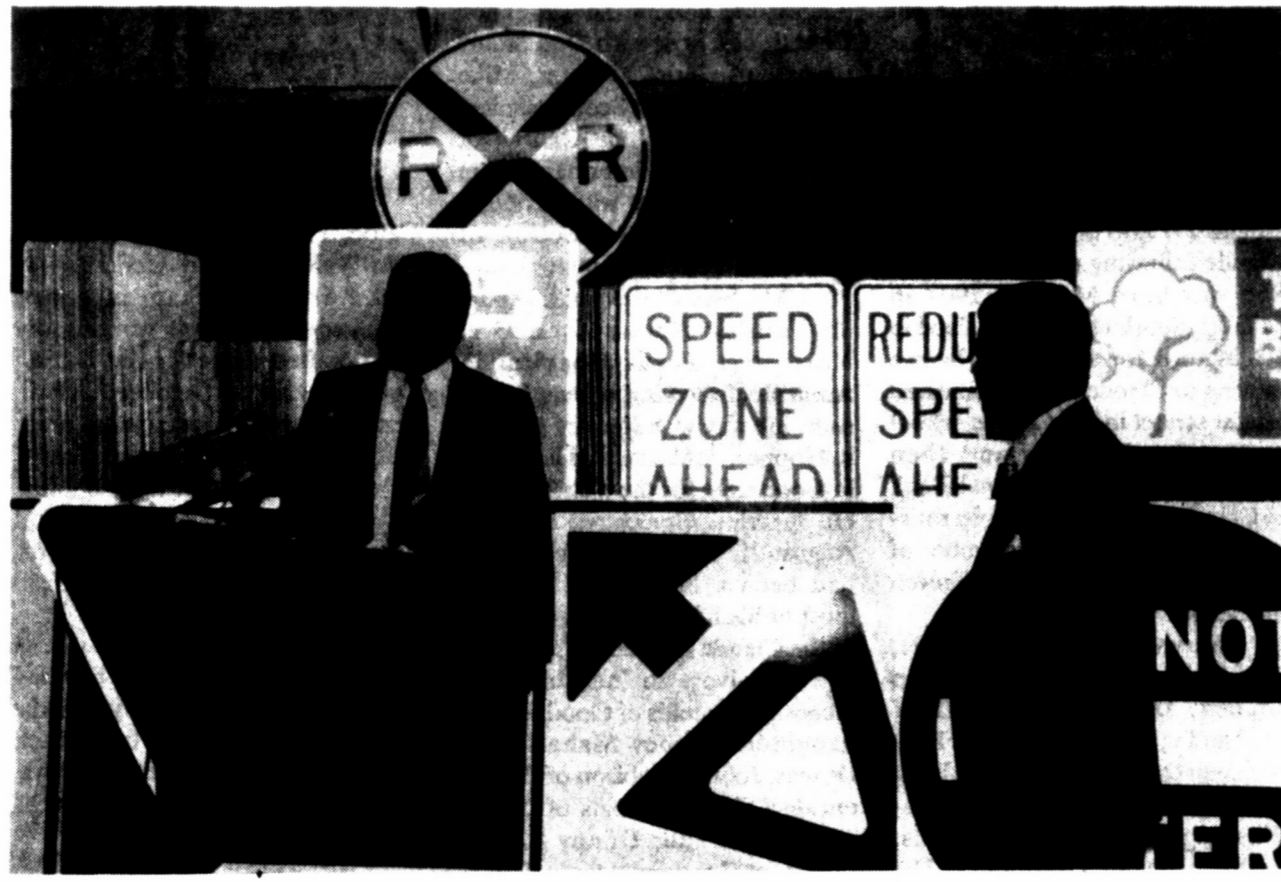

Riley said education budget cuts are "a threat to the internal security of the nation" at a time when schools are faced with serving significantly more students. "The gap between the unparalleled increase in students and the unprecedented cut in educational investment is the education gap that our nation faces."

"The children of the famous post-war baby boom are now parents sending their own children to school," he said. "But, in these increasingly tough times, Congress in placing the burden on states and communities to find the resources to improve the quality of American education."

These cuts will produce "a tidal wave of teenagers who won't get the basic skills they need, the high standards and disciplined learning environment they deserve, and the opportunity they need to go to college."

The U.S. House of Representatives has passed a spending bill for the coming fiscal year that cuts federal education spending by nearly $4 billion. The U.S. Senate is expected to consider education appropriations next month, following an August recess. President Clinton has said he will veto the bill if it reaches his desk in its present form. The President's balanced budget plan would erase the budget deficit while increasing education investments by $40 billion.

Riley said that his department estimates that from 1994 to 2002, public school (K-12) enrollments will increase from 44 to 49 million. High school enrollments (grades 9-12) will increase nationally by 15 percent.

LEWIS RHODES (left) and Carlos Lopez of the Texas Department of Transportation announce the "Vital Signs" driver safety campaign during a recent Austin news conference.

Driver Safety Campaign Will Focus on "Vital Signs"

Saying it's been too long since most Texas drivers had any formal driver education, five state agencies and 3M Corporation are conducting a campaign to emphasize the meaning and importance of traffic signs, signals and lane markings.

"Sixty percent of the licensed drivers in Texas are more than 35 years of age," said Carlos Lopez of the Texas Department of Transportation. "It may have been 20 years or more since these drivers first got their drivers licenses or had any formal driver education. Our campaign--"Vital Signs"--will help fill this education gap."

The campaign is a joint effort between the Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS), the Texas Department of Health, the Texas Education Agency, the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT), the Texas Transportation Institute and 3M Corp.

The goal of the campaign is to make Texas' roads and highways safer by providing information to motorists on the meaning of various traffic signs, to understand them and to follow them.

"We call it 'Vital Signs' because that is exactly what traffic signs are, signs that are vital to your safety," Lopez said. "We want Texans to learn their vital signs, to understand them and to follow them."

The Campaign is part of the research implementation plan for a TTI study sponsored by TxDOT. The study evaluated the effectiveness of 52 traffic control devices through surveys and focus groups involving more than 2,400 Texas drivers.

"We're always working to improve what we have," said Lewis Rhodes, the study's Project Director at TxDOT. "We're continuously trying to make things more helpful to the driver."

TTI Associate Research Engineer Gene Hawkins and Research Scientist Katie Womack shared responsibility for the study as co-principal investigators.

"Through this research, we intend to utilize scientific methods to evaluate devices which could or should be improved from the perspective of driver understanding," Hawkins said. "We hope to improve the overall effectiveness of the transportation system, thereby enhancing safety and ease of travel."

The campaign will also include revisions to the Texas Drivers Handbook by DPS, an update in the curriculum of driver education classes by TEA and a program by the health department to provide information to drivers.

THE SUMMER READING PROGRAM at Burton Memorial Library was a complete success this year. Volunteers that helped make the program a success were Camille Choate, Kara Barker, Kirsten Bertrand, Susan Rattan, Bridgette Leeper, Jessie Shelley, and Mary Hoggatt (not pictured).

Summer Reading Highlights

The theme for the summer reading program was "Once Upon A Planet." The cadette and senior Girl Scouts did their weekly programs with stories, songs, crafts, and a puppet show. They wrote and acted out their show and the children loved it.

They also received help from Nettie Wilson, who is the summer assistant for the library. Bridgette Leeper and Tracy Teague volunteered their Tuesdays to help with programs, crafts, and many other activities. Tanya Bell presented a special program to the young readers on July 25 on recycling, its importance to us, and how to identify recyclable products.

The bookmark contest winners were Lacey Anderberg and Emily Simpson. Each girl received a T-shirt as their prize.

Historical Commission Conference Coming

Conquistadors, cowboys, and canyonland convinced the Texas Historical Commission to schedule its 1996 State Conference in the Panhandle.

THC staff liaison Frances Rickard said the date for the Amarillo gathering will be May 2 through May 4, 1996. The Ambassador Hotel in Amarillo will be the convention headquarters.

Bible Group Meets

In September of 1994, a brave band of Methodist met in the Fellowship Hall on a Thursday afternoon and opened their Bibles to Genesis 1:1. "And in the beginning" they had no idea how much biblical and historical knowledge they would gain nor how many prayers and tears they would gain nor how much down right fun they would have.

In the past year they have measured the size of Noah's yacht, have wondered all over the Sinai Desert and are now in the process of conquering the Promised Land.

Bible Group Meets

In September of 1994, a brave band of Methodist met in the Fellowship Hall on a Thursday afternoon and opened their Bibles to Genesis 1:1. "And in the beginning" they had no idea how much biblical and historical knowledge they would gain nor how many prayers and tears they would gain nor how much down right fun they would have.

In the past year they have measured the size of Noah's yacht, have wandered all over the Sinai Desert and are now in the process of conquering the Promised Land.

Failure to maintain these acres, will result in the loss of program benefits. Plentiful moisture has created an abundance of weeds. Please ensure you have taken enough measures to control weeds. Take enough time to make a personal visit to your farm and see for yourself if weeds are a nuisance to your neighbor. The Donley County CFSA will soon be making their annual inspection.

You must have filed all the needed forms before you can hay or graze CRP, ACR, or Cu for Pay. Failure to do so is a violation of the CRP rules and violation of the non-haying and grazing rules, which will result in the loss of program benefits. CRP acreage cannot be hayed or grazed beyond September 30, 1995.

During their performance, the Keen Ridge Riders will conjure up memories of the Sons of The Pioneers with their western harmonies, direct from New Mexico.

The cookoff is named for the legendary trailblazer and cattleman Colonel Charles Goodnight. He lived life as grand as the canyon he made his home, the Palo Duro Canyon on the Texas Panhandle frontier. Among his accomplishments were the founding of the first large Panhandle ranch, the JA in 1876, and the invention of the chuckwagon (a sort of meals on wheels for working cowboys). John and Cornelia Adair provided the financial backing for the JA while Goodnight ran the operation.

Mrs. Adair built the Adair Hospital in Clarendon to care for the ranch's cowboys in 1910. Since 1982 the building has housed the Saints' Roost Museum. (Saints' Roost is the name thirsty cowboys once called the town of Clarendon, a "colony" established in 1878 to promote education, Christian ethics and temperance.)

TCFA Convention Set

The cattle industry is changing, and cattle feeders are facing new realities every day. That's why the Texas Cattle Feeders Association (TCFA) chose "New Realities" as the theme of its 1995 Annual Convention, October 15-17 at the Wyndham Anatole in Dallas.

The Opening General Session in on Monday, October 16, will feature TCFA President Ron Davenport, who will share his thoughts on the eventful year past. Then the Hon. George W. Bush, Governor of Texas, will update cattle feeders on the new realities in politics during his Keynote Address.

Following Gov. Bush, cattle feeders will get a glimpse of how Frito Lay builds consumer loyalty and market share when Lloyd Ward, president of the Central Division of Frito Lay, inc., addresses consumer marketing strategies.

Industry issues at the national level are vitally important to cattle feeders. NCA President Bob Drake will discuss how the cattle industry is dealing with the many issues confronting it during lunch on Monday.

With the consolidation of NCA and the Meat Board now a reality, two past TCFA presidents who were key players in the process will give cattle feeders a look at what's ahead. Bob Carter of Plainview, Beef Board treasurer, and Clark Willingham of Dallas, NCA president-elect, will team up during the afternoon general session to explain the consolidation process. Dr. Dobson Answers Your Questions

Q. I want to control and lead my strong-willed child properly, but I'm afraid I'll break his spirit and damage his emotions in some way. How can I deal with his misbehavior without hurting his self-concept?

A. Breaking the spirit of a child is different from shaping his will. The human spirit relates to the self-esteem or the personal worth that a child feels. As such, it is exceedingly fragile at all ages and must be handled with care. You as a parent correctly assume that you can damage your child's spirit quite easily . . . by ridicule, disrespect, threats to withdraw love and by verbal rejection. Anything that depreciates his self-esteem can be costly to his spirit.

However, while the spirit is brittle and must be treated gently, the will is made of steel. It is one of the few intellectual components that arrives full strength at the moment of birth. In an issue of Psychology Today, this heading described the research findings from a study of infancy: "A baby knows who he is before he has the language to tell us so. He reaches deliberately for control of his environment, especially his parents.

This scientific disclosure would bring no new revelation to the parents of a strong-willed infant. They have walked the floor with him in the wee small hours, listening to this tiny dictator as he made his wants and wishes abundantly clear.

Later, a defiant toddler can become so angry that he is capable of holding his breath until he loses consciousness. Anyone who has ever witnessed this full measure of willful defiance has been shocked by its power. One headstrong 3-year-old recently refused to obey a direct command from her mother, saying, "You're just my mommy, you know!" Another "mere" mommy wrote me that she found herself in a similar confrontation with her 3-year-old son over something she wanted him to eat. He was so enraged by her insistence that he refused to eat or drink anything for two full days. He became weak and lethargic, but steadfastly held his ground. The mother was worried and guilt-ridden, as might be expected.

Finally, in desperation, the father looked the child in the eyes and convinced him that he was going to receive a well-deserved punishment if he didn't eat his dinner. With that maneuver, the contest was over. The toddler surrendered. He began to consume everything he could get his hands on, and virtually emptied the refrigerator.

Now tell me, please, why have so few child development authorities recognized this willful defiance? Why have they written so little about it? My guess is that the acknowledgement of childish imperfection would not fit neatly with the notion that little people are infused with sunshine and goodness, and merely "learn" the meaning of evil. To those who hold that rosy view I can only say, "Take another look!"

Q. Do you believe that parents should eliminate all aspects of individuality within family life? And what about healthy competition? Should it be discouraged in order to minimize jealousy between children?

A. Definitely not. I am saying that in matters relative to beauty, brains and athletic ability, each child should know that in his parents' eyes, he is respected and has equal worth with his siblings.

Praise and criticism at home should be distributed as evenly as possible, although some children will inevitably be more successful in the outside world. And finally, we should remember that children do not build fortresses around strengths—they construct them to protect weaknesses.

Thus, when a child begins to brag and boast and attack his siblings, he is revealing the threats he feels at that point. Our sensitivity to those signals will help minimize the potential for jealousy within our children.

Eads Receives Recognition

The Clarendon Bronco mascot "Sparky" recently returned from a National Cheerleaders Association summer camp workshop where, Lindsey Eads, received top recognition as an NCA All-American Mascot. The workshop was held at Wayland Baptist University and attracted over 300 mascots and cheerleaders from surrounding states.

The National Cheerleaders Association, is sponsoring the "All-American Mascot" award at workshops held across the United States. The winners were selected from this award above all other mascots at the workshop on the basis of their spirit, technique, leadership, and all-around mascot ability.

The presentation of the NCA "All-American Mascot" award came at the completion of a full workshop of training on mascot techniques, skits, pantomime as well as a leadership program for sportsmanship, responsibilities, organization, and dedication. The National Cheerleading Association has been conducting summer workshops for over 45 years, teaching over 150,000 students each year on the art of dancing and cheerleading.

As an NCA "All-American Mascot" member the mascots are eligible to travel nationally with the NCA Special Events Performance Team. The NCA "All-American Mascot" will be highlighted in the Hula Bowl All-Star Football Classic, Honolulu, Hawaii, on January 31, 1996.

1995 Property Tax Rates in Hedley CISD

This notice concerns 1995 property tax rates for Hedley school district. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the school district used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the school district can set before it must hold a rollback election. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes and state funds by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$ 251,548
Last year's debt taxes	$ 0
Last year's total taxes	$ 251,548
Last year's tax base	$ 22,972,424
Last year's total tax rate	$ 1.095 /$100

This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 246,775
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$ 23,507,030
- This year's effective tax rate	$ 1.04979 /$100
x 1.05 = maximum rate unless the school district publishes notices and holds hearing	$ 1.08128 /$100

This year's rollback rate:

Will It Be A Good Year?

Maybe only a parent can understand: School starts in a few weeks and you want your child to do well—to be confident, happy, and eager to learn. But sometimes you wonder. What if she hates it? What if it's boring? What if he gives up too easily?

There's nothing you can do but wait and see, right? Not entirely. Most parents can tip the balance in favor of their child's enjoying school right from the start.

Here are some ideas to start with:

1. Believe in your child.

Many parents have discovered an effective way to help their children feel confident in school. It's easy to do. Notice what your child can already do, rather than emphasizing how much he or she has to learn.

A father whose kindergarten was having trouble memorizing her phone number emphasized her success by saying:

"You've sure learned a lot of it. You already know the first four numbers, '555-1'. Now you only have a few more to go. Let's say them together."

Another parent commented, "Once my son realized that he could already do part of what he was supposed to learn, he became eager to learn the rest."

2. Believe in your child's teacher.

No matter what the details are, you can be pretty sure that your child's new teacher is:

--someone who likes children,

--someone who enjoys helping children learn.

Otherwise, he or she probably would not have become a teacher.

If your own school memories cause you to have doubts, don't show them. If the neighbor's child had a hard time with a particular teacher last year, it doesn't mean that your child will.

Your confidence in your child's teacher is contagious. Let your child catch it.

3. Believe in learning.

If you have older children you know that grades eventually become important. But in the long run it's what you learn on the way getting those grades that matters. When children get excited about the idea of learning, their energy really starts flowing. The best way to spark enthusiasm about learning? Be a learner yourself!

Kids want to be like adults. If learning seems like a grown-up thing to do, they'll want to do it. So, at bedtime, mention something new that you learned during the day. Show your enthusiasm. And when your child tells you about something new she's learned (even if it's only how to jump off the bottom step without holding on), give her your sincere attention.

4. Believe in yourself.

Caregivers and teachers make a huge contribution to your child's life and education. In the long run, however, it's you who make the ultimate difference.

You're with your child every day, year in and year out—longer than anyone else. It's you your child looks to in order to find out how life is to be live and whether or not school is worthwhile. Nobody else can teach your child what you know, or be as strong an example as you are. You have much to offer.

There are no awards, bonuses, or diplomas for being a parent, so take time to remind yourself of the many things, big or little, that you are doing well.

Look forward to the year ahead with confidence in your child, in his or her teacher, in the value of learning and, most of all, with confidence in yourself.
