FARM NEWS

from County ASCS Committee

SUMMER PERFORMANCE WORK

Reporters have started measuring cotton, feed grains, soil bank base crops, diverted acreage, etc., and you must assist the reporter when he visits the farm so that fields will be accurately measured.

Fields originally planted to cotton that have been flooded out should be designated so credit can be given for this acreage as cotton history if it is needed. As you know, if less than 75% of the cotton allotment is planted the history for future years will be reduced; therefore it is very important that we include all cotton acreage destroyed beyond the producers control. Acreage diverted under a Conservation Reserve or Great Plains contract contributes to cotton history; also, cotton acreage released is considered as acreage planted. Most revisits to farms after the original measurements must be paid by the producer. The following rates will apply for revisits to farms to check disposition of cotton, feed grains, diverted acreage and soil bank base crops: $4.00 per farm, plus $2.00 for each additional plot over one.

To have a farm remeasured for error will cost $10.00 per farm, plus $4.00 for each plot over one.

DIVERTED ACREAGE

Remember that all acreages designated as diverted under the wheat stabilization and feed grain programs must be planted to an eligible cover crop unless you have obtained approval from the county committee to summer fallow the land.

Again we wish to remind you that no crop can be harvested from the diverted acreage and no grazing will be permitted unless it is authorized later this year.

Clarendon was jam-packed with visitors here July Fourth for the Ranchers Barbecue, parade, Rodeo and other activities. The gate count at the rodeo and the way the streets were lined for the big western parade verified the above statement. Visitors were here from practically every state in the union and following the barbecue and parade, the court house lawn and the city park was loaded with visitors in addition to the hoard of spectators who attended the afternoon performance of the rodeo.

Following the barbecue, Kearney and Sully streets were jammed with spectators who witnessed the western parade which was acclaimed as the best in recent years. Delbert Robertson, president of the Jaycees, expressed the appreciation of that organization to all who participated in the parade in any manner.

Attendance at the Monday night rodeo was light but the crowd picked up Tuesday night and the stands were filled Wednesday afternoon. The rodeo grounds overflowed with people the night of the fourth.

What Is The King-Anderson Bill?

Many persons have been asking about the President's plan for medical care for the aged. Just what is it? Is it a good program or not?

This proposed bill, known as the King-Anderson bill, would provide certain hospital benefits to those persons receiving Social Security 65 years of age and over, and would be financed by additional Social Security taxation. Hospital costs would be paid from this Social Security fund to the hospital with the following limitations. The hospital would have to be government approved. The individual would be required to pay the first twenty dollars for X-Rays or diagnostic studies and ten dollars daily for the first nine days of hospitalization. The plan has no surgical benefits. Now is this proposed bill, the King-Anderson Bill, a good plan or not? The following may help you decide.

All agree that those persons over 65 who need assistance should have it. The disagreement is merely in the method in which this assistance would be provided. The administration believes that this assistance should be provided by means of Social Security taxation during a person's productive years. Although the present benefits of this proposed bill are meager, providing only about 25% of the aged persons health care costs, they can be extended later as necessary to meet any demand. The department of Health, Education and Welfare states that they will accept any type of compromise of this program so long as it is financed by the Social Security method. They simply request "a foot in the door".

Those opposing this bill, in general, oppose the method of financing. They point out that over two-thirds of those persons over 65 can well afford their health care, have fewer debts than the younger person, and more liquid assets. Many of the remaining third of these persons over sixty-five, do need health care assistance but do not receive Social Security benefits. Thus those who really need assistance receive no benefits from this plan whatsoever. In fact this bill would require the individual to pay $110.00 in order to take advantage of the benefits. This is a large amount if the person is really in need of assistance. The proposed bill even further favors the wealthy, not the needy, when one considers that the present Social Security taxation is based only on the first $4800 of the annual wage at this time.

The opposition points out that the Kerr-Mills Law, passed in 1960, is far superior to the present administration's proposed bill, and already in effect in 38 states. The Kerr-Mills Law has been utilized in the State of Texas since January 1st, 1962. Both federal and state funds were used to purchase a private insurance contract with Blue Cross and Blue Shield for all persons on Old Age Assistance in the state. This contract provides both hospital and surgical benefits at no cost to the individual. Furthermore, the State of Texas has been one of the first to offer broad benefits in low cost insurance available to those over 65.

The real argument is over the method of financing any health plan. We don't want it to be by means of Social Security and here's why. Most individual group insurance contracts repay more than 90c on each dollar received. The federal government cannot be this efficient. In other words, it will cost us more if financed through a federal agency of any type. But the most important reason for opposition to this bill is, that unlike Social Security, this welfare program does not provide the individual with money to purchase his health care. Instead it provides a service. It does not allow free selection by the individual, in fact, it prohibits it. It is obvious that broad health coverage will be available to all in the next decade, but let us control the way in which it is administered.

So this is not just a battle for our senior citizens, but includes our freedom. If the King-Anderson bill becomes law, our freedom to select the method of health care that we desire is lost. It will be provided for us, like it or not, in the most expensive method possible, additional Social Security taxation. It will be still another loss of our economic freedom.

Take a few minutes and write your congressman. An honest, straight-forward opinion in a letter is the most effective means of influencing our senators and representatives.

The Bible tells us in Proverbs 17:22 that: "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine." . . . A prominent physician says in a recent article that 35 to 50 per cent of the ill are sick because they are unhappy . . . Joy and happiness have a wonderful healing value. On the other hand gloom and depression are the forerunners of bad health.

Happiness creates a good appetite, and aids in our digestion. Sadness helps the ulcers to take over which in turn help out with making a grouchy disposition. It is said that a frown takes the use of many more muscles than does a smile . . .

Jesus taught his followers to rejoice and to be exceedingly glad about their lot in life . . . We know that He didn't want us to be flippant and silly, but rather to have the deep and abiding serenity of the peaceful sea . . .

If we can begin by thinking happy thoughts pretty soon these seeds of happiness will grow into deeds of bringing happiness into the lives of others. The more we can pass this joy along to others, the more it will return unto us and by even a hundred fold . . . A prominent preacher urges his listeners when feeling low, to keep repeating the above proverb, and that it will do us good like medicine . . .

Things like the following make us happy; to read in the Plains Record that its publisher whom we have known for many years was recently named Citizen of the Year by the Plains Chamber of Commerce . . . Congratulations, Johnnie Moore . . .

Mrs. Alan Jeffries called us the other day to ask our help in getting the word to each of our readers about the trip being planned to the World's Fair and points between and even beyond . . . Now why would Martha put laundry in the freezer?

Flameless electric living is a way of life, nowadays.

Sometimes this wonderful way of life in the world of women brings about strange sights—sights that are incomprehensible to the mere man. Often, a man sees things more marvelous, even, than laundry in the freezer.

That's because Martha . . . and all the Marthas served by West Texas Utilities Company . . . knows better than anyone (even us) the many ways to live better, electrically.

All right, Mister—why does she put laundry in the freezer? Ask the inventor; she will also show you other ways her family uses flameless electricity for a better life.

SECTION V
 The lids or covers of all containers shall at all times be kept secure and fastened so that flies and other insects, rodents and animals may not have access to the contents thereof, and said lids or covers shall only be removed while the said containers are being filled or emptied as the case may be.

Even pre-school youngsters should be taught that the 4th of July is a day set aside to celebrate our independence not just a time for picnics, rodeos, etc.

Wes Izzard in his column "From A to Izzard" quotes from the "Wall Street Journal" on a subject that might have a bearing on how much some of us have given up of this independence for a few dollars in our pockets right now.

Quoting from this column of June 27: . . . "Until the world accepts the simple fact that a few men can't plan the lives of the many there will be trouble."

A planned economy, the Journal admits, 'can be made to put-ter along by concessions to capitalist practices, but without crutches it would collapse in no time. For the Soviet Union, these 45 years, the main crutches have been the police, the prisons, and the firing squads.'

Regimentation stifles the energies and ingenuity that freedom unlooses.'

In spite of all this proof, repeated from generation to generation, that freedom works and government planning doesn't Americans continue to clamor for planning and the compulsion that goes with it.

As if the farm mess were not enough to convince us of what it leads to, we have invited government into business, into our private lives, into our art and culture, into our education. The planners are buzzing busily wherever we turn.

Why, in the name of the common sense on which we built history's mightiest civilization, don't we sweep away this interference, these controls, this planning?

It's our fault that we have it. The planners would be out of jobs tomorrow if Americans would stand up and say, 'We've had enough. Give us back the right to run our own lives.'

We would have to take the risks that go with it, of course. But we wouldn't mind that. Or would we?"

TOWN AND COUNTRY CHURCH CONFERENCE PLANS ANNOUNCED

COLLEGE STATION — Program plans for the 17th annual Town and Country Church Conference scheduled for October 17-19 at Texas A&M College are complete. Two major changes are noted by Tom Prater, extension farm management specialist and program committee chairman.

First, the dates for the conference have been shifted from June to October in order to get more widespread participation and perhaps of equal importance, more favorable weather, says Prater.

Secondly, in the past the program has been designed primarily for pastors and leaders from rural church areas. The theme of this year's conference will be "The Dignity of Man in Town and Country Living" and discussions and workshop sessions enlarged to include social and Christian development problems of all youth and adult citizens, Prater explains.

Speakers and discussion leaders will include, in addition to pastors and members of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology at Texas A&M College, staff members from the Texas Youth Council, Texas Department of Corrections, and city courts.

"The full development of the Christian citizen is a growing need and challenge to our society," says Rev. Darwin Farmer, conference chairman. "It is my belief," he continues, "the program committee has taken seriously their responsibility to plan a conference dedicated to these objectives."

Prater says it isn't too early for leaders to begin making their plans to attend the conference. Program details will be announced well in advance of the conference.

WIND EROSION ON IRRIGATED LAND STUDIED

College Station — Wind erosion can be controlled on irrigated land by maintaining a crop cover during as much of the season as possible and by keeping the soil surface rough and cloddy between crops, points out a new U.S. Department of Agriculture publication.

"Wind Erosion Control on Irrigated Lands" (L-506) explains that conditions are favorable for soil blowing on many irrigated fields. Cultivation and preparation of land for irrigation often leave the soil pulverized and bare and winds in most irrigated areas are high enough to cause this soil to blow.

The publication, prepared by Stephen J. Mech, agricultural engineer of the USDA's Agricultural Research Service, outlines erosion control practices to use during preparation of new fields for irrigation and after the soil has been stabilized or "tied down."

On a new field, Mech says, the wind erosion hazards will be minimized by beginning land preparation in the summer. He advises planting a cover crop immediately after leveling and ditching to stabilize the bare and pulverized soil. The publication suggests a schedule of practices for farmers to follow during this soil stabilization period. After this soil is stabilized, a cropping system that includes other erosion-preventing practices is recommended. Mech advises delaying spring plowing until just before planting, preparing a cloddy seedbed, seeding forages in stubble, and planting row crops on ridges. Erosion-resistant strips of stubble or cover crop should be left in large fields of cultivated row crops, as these fields are particularly susceptible to wind erosion.

Single copies of "Wind Erosion Control on Irrigated Land" (L-506) are free from the Office of Information, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, 25, D. C.

PROFITS DEPEND ON RESOURCE USE

College Station — Many Texas farmers and ranchers are asking how they can make more profit. Cecil Parker, extension farm management specialist, points out that before a profit can be made, something must be produced. This production requires land, labor, capital and management.

Since any one producer has a fixed supply of one or more of these resources, the amount he can produce over a short period of time is limited. Over a longer period, however, the supply of resources may be increased, thus increasing potential crop and livestock production.

Profits now and in the future depend on how well the producer uses his available resources, says Parker. Maximum utilization of resources requires careful study and analysis, and thus a complete inventory of each resource.

An inventory of all the land you control is a good place to start, says Parker. A knowledge of the various types, capabilities and acreages of each in necessary in planning cropping systems. Make and keep a yearly plan for each field, showing rotations, crops grown, fertilizer used, cultural practices and yields. This will prove to be very valuable.

It is also important to study your labor requirements for the year's operation. Know the capabilities of both family and hired labor. Once labor is committed to the farming operation for a year the cost will remain the same whether it is used to the best advantage or not.

Make an inventory of available money to carry out the year's operation and consider the need for capital investments, suggests Parker. It is important to study carefully your capital needs and plan how to use available capital to the best advantage.

What is the condition of your machinery and equipment? Are your building facilities adequate? Inventory all these items and evaluate them for optimum use, advises the specialist.

Contact your local county agent for ideas on the use of your resources for maximum profits from your farming operations. The trouble taken to complete this analysis will pay dividends, concludes Parker.

EGG SHELL QUALITY CAN BE PROBLEM TO FARMERS

College Station — Maintenance of egg shell quality during the summer is a problem that all Texas poultrymen face. Changes in feeding and management practices are required if the shells are to be kept thick and strong, says Dr. J. H. Quisenberry, head of the Department of Poultry Science at Texas A&M College.

Feed consumption falls off during hot weather, and this results in a lower calcium supply for the egg shell. Either supplementary oyster shell must be provided or the calcium content of the ration increased.

More and more poultrymen are changing to a complete ration, which eliminates the extra labor required for supplementary feeding of oyster shell, says Quisenberry. Also, when oyster shell is distributed over the feed, some birds, particularly in laying cages, tend to overeat the shell. Most poultrymen use a complete ration with 2.25% calcium during the cool months, but this should be increased to 2.75 to 3.00% during the summer.

Since calcium absorption and metabolism may be reduced during hot weather, management changes that result in cooler houses and more comfortable birds generally reduce the summer egg shell problem. Painting the roof white, opening up the sidewalls for ventilation, planting grass around the houses to reduce heat reflection, and use of fans or spray nozzles will increase bird comfort.

An extra feeding or stirring of the feed in the troughs each day will encourage a little more consumption, which will not only increase calcium intake but will help to keep production at a maximum level. If the production level can be kept high, remarkably good feed efficiency can be obtained during the summer months, explains Quisenberry. It is also during this time that the maximum returns are obtained from the higher protein levels generally fed birds in the South.

These practices of keeping the calcium level high and providing cool housing are the best known and most widely used techniques for keeping up summer shell strength and maximum rate of lay.

There Is Poison In Your Home!

How are you fixed for poisons in your home? That is far from an idle question. For, says the American Medical Association, there are 250,000 products in home use which contain some form of poison. These serve necessary and desirable functions. But, on the debit side, 600,000 children manage to poison themselves each year, about 500 fatally.

These poisons include cleaning and polishing agents, detergents, cosmetics, paint, and a next-to-endless list of other items. The best of all safety precautions is to keep them under lock and key. But that is not practical in many cases — so the AMA offers a number of precautions that should be kept eternally in mind: If your child takes something that is possibly poisonous, call a doctor at once — don't wait for developments. Never transfer poisons from their original, marked containers. Never leave a child alone when you're working with cleaners, polishers and other poisons — and wash contaminated utensils immediately. Give medicines only in a lighted room and discard old medicines no longer in use. When you get rid of hazardous materials, put them where children can't reach and rummage into them.

These rules are simple. They may prevent a terrible illness — and even death.

Railroads spent $1,262,220,000 last year for day-to-day supplies of all kinds, according to the Association of American Railroads. This is 13.7 per cent below the figure for the previous year. The average for the preceding 10 years was $1,680,000,000. Supply figures do not include spending for capital equipment and improvements.

U.S. FOREST SERVICE HAS CAMPING BOOKLET FOR YOU

College Station — A new camping booklet has been issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to give people information on some of the 5,200 camp and picnic grounds in our National Forests.

The booklet, "Camping The National Forests — America's Playgrounds," covers the pleasures of outdoor camping. Basic rules for camping are outlined, and campers are cautioned to be careful with fire, and to leave camp and picnic grounds clean.

The booklet points out that every transcontinental highway in the country passes close to camp grounds in one or more of the 154 National Forests and 18 National Grasslands. These campgrounds offer a variety in size and setting, and may be located high on a mountain pass, beside a lake, or in the heart of a desert.

Every National Forest campground meets certain minimum standards, and these are listed and discussed in the booklet so the novice camper may know what to bring and what is finished.

The booklet gives special tips to the backpacker who likes to leave the beaten track and make camp where the day ends. At many campgrounds, USDA's Forest Service has self-guide nature trails, campfire programs, and ranger-led hikes — all designed to make the stay of the camper interesting and pleasant.

A copy of the booklet may be obtained from the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

GUIDES REVISED

College Station — Three popular insect guides have been revised and may be obtained from local county agents or the Agricultural Information Office, College Station. They are the Vegetable Guide L-255, Livestock Guide L-256 and Pink Bollworm Guide L-219.

The Vegetable Guide has been revised and the insecticide Sevin is now recommended for use on cantaloupes and watermelons as well as other crops listed under the Cucurbit group.

Ronnel (Trolene) is now recommended for grub control in the Livestock Guide. It may be used in a feed mixture to control grubs in beef cattle. Directions for mixing the material with feed can be found on the manufacturer's label.

Also, the recommended waiting time from last application of Co-Ral to slaughter has been reduced when used on beef cattle, sheep and goats.

The insecticide Sevin has now been recommended for the control of lice and mites on poultry. The chemical Dibrom has been added to the list for use to control flies in the dairy and livestock barn.

The Pink Bollworm Guide now contains the suggested optimum planting dates for cotton. This is in addition to the planting periods and stalk destruction deadlines, which are also found in the Guide.

Keep Worms From Drying Out
Hot sun is hard on fishing worms.

Keep them from drying out by placing a piece of wet sponge rubber in the top of the can, over the dirt.

Sponge is easy to remove to rebait, but it keeps the dirt and worms cool and moist.

Fresh Butter In Camp
Butter can be a problem in camp. Refrigeration isn't always possible.

To keep butter fresh without refrigeration place butter in a glass jar having a screw top. Fill the jar with a strong solution of salt brine, then tighten the lid.

Butter will keep fresh and sweet until used.

Vacuum Your Dog
When your dog comes in from the field his coat is apt to be a mess of leaves and trash. Don't bother to comb these out. Run your vacuum cleaner over him a time or two and he'll be clean and glossy once more.

1962 FEED GRAIN PROGRAM

Due to excessive bad weather, some producers will plant in excess of their feed grain base. The filing of an intention to participate does not obligate you to comply. Only producers who comply will earn payments and price support. Producers who plant grain sorghum in excess of their base history must sell all of their grain on the open market. If you have received an advance payment, this must be paid back. Full instructions for withdrawing from the program will be mailed to you at a later date.

CARL F. TAEUSCH said, "The farmer is a natural born philosopher. Not only does he have to be a philosopher to live through the many things farmers have to face, including the weather and economic depressions, but his work is of such a varied character that he has a better opportunity to 'see life whole' than does the more specialized man in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Carmichael and grandchildren met with friends and relatives one day last week in Pampa for a chicken fry and homemade ice cream. All reported a nice time.

WEED CONTROL MAKES GOOD PASTURES BETTER

College Station — Weeds compete with pasture and meadow plants for moisture, plant nutrients, light and space. They often reduce yields by half, says E. M. Trew, extension pasture specialist.

Weed control is necessary for top returns from productive pastures and meadows, he adds, but may not prove profitable where yields are low.

The specialists points out that weeds are best controlled through preventive measures. Practices which encourage dense vigorous stands of grass are the best preventive measures and include thorough seedbed preparation, using adapted plants, planting the right amount of high quality seed by the best known method at the proper time, using adequate fertilization and proper grazing and forage use.

Both mechanical and chemical weed control methods are outlined in a recent Texas Agricultural Extension Service publication, L-476, "Weed Control in Cultivated Pastures and Meadows." Trew and John A. Long are the authors. Copies are available from the offices of local county agents or by mail from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas.

In connection with weed control, Trew says that rotary hoes do an excellent job of controlling seedling grass and weeds in new plantings of Coastal and Midland Bermudagrass. Killing the weeds when they are small will conserve moisture for use by the grass, he adds.

If new plantings of Coastal and Midland are grazed before a complete cover or stand is obtained, it can mean that two years instead of one will be required to establish a good stand. This, he adds, is costly and multiplies the weed problem.

Trew recommends topdressing summer temporary and perma-

A PICNIC ON HALLELUJA POINT

A short time ago an Oregon editor wrote a little piece ex-coriating those misguided souls who are always trying — sometimes successfully — to change the old place-names bestowed by the pioneers, and to replace them with names which are "prettier" and "more dignified". One horrible example he mentioned was changing the name of an Oregon road from Wolf Creek to Sunset.

This outburst caught the eye of Editor Harry Davey of the Daily Journal of International Falls, Minnesota. That community is not without sin — Editor Davey, ironically, lives in a new addition named Riverview. But there is another and much brighter side to the coin. He says: "Just to encourage that Oregon writer, and give him hope, we'd like to take him on a tour of Rainy lake — into Red Gut Bay via Black Bay, past Grindstone, Bushyhead and Dryweed islands, through Bear Pass, into Crow-rock inlet, then into Swell bay and Bleak bay. Plus side trips past Hangingstone Point, through Squirrel narrows, Squaw narrows, Friendly passage, topped off with a trip down the Rat Root river. And if we ma'e it — we'll have a picnic on Halleluja Point!"

All honor to the people of Northern Minnesota who, it seems, are hanging proudly and tightly to their splendid old place-names. It's a safe bet that, so long as Editor Davey can draw breath, he'll battle without quarter any attempt to change them to the "pretty" — which always proves to be vapid. Let's hope there are legions like him, the country over. And, as Abou Ben Adhem said, may lake — into Red Gut Bay via his tribe increase.

FORAGE PRODUCTION CAN BE INCREASED ON ABANDONED CROPLAND

College Station — There are about ten million acres of land in Texas that should be producing forage for about one million head of grazing animals. G. O. Hoffman, extension range specialist, says this land can be found in the many abandoned fields that were once under cultivation.

If these old fields were put into forage production, it would mean a sizable increase in the income of many Texas farmers and ranchmen. In general, these old fields are producing only unpalatable weeds, brush and poor quality grasses, explains the specialist.

Getting these fields back into profitable production would require a certain amount of money and effort, but it would allow the operator to carry out a better grazing and management program on other parts of the ranch or farm, points out Hoffman.

Many of the abandoned cultivated fields are best adapted to the production of native grasses only, adds Hoffman. Some may be adapted to the production of Coastal Bermudagrass, however. Generally, old fields west of the 30 inch rainfall belt should be planted to adapted native grasses, while those receiving more than 30 inches of rainfall or supplemental irrigation can be planted to either native grasses or Coastal Bermuda.

In order to return a field to profitable production, the operator usually needs to control the brush, prepare a seedbed and then plant to an adapted grass, says Hoffman. The steps necessary to grass establishment may vary with the different areas of the state, but local county agents can provide the recommendations for your particular area.
