BAIRD STAR TO CELEBRATE ITS FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Work on a special edition of The Star commemorating its 50th Anniversary, which will be issued December 10th, is progressing nicely.

Miss Ethel Nelson, of Abilene a specialist in newspaper work is assisting us in soliciting advertising for the edition which promises to be the largest ever issued in Callahan county. If Miss Nelson has not called on every business and professional firm in the county she will do so within the next week or so.

We are surely pleased with the results already accomplished for the businessmen and professional men of Baird, the home of The Star for fifty years, have with very few exceptions responded heartily in cooperating with us in getting out this special edition of around 40 pages. Four thousand copies of the edition will be printed and will be distributed free in Callahan county thus affording a splendid advertising medium, especially as it comes just right for Christmas advertising.

The Dallas News, carried the following reader in their "50 years ago today" column Wednesday, the item being taken from the News dated Thursday Nov. 10, 1887.

"M. H. Allen, editor and proprietor of the Callahan County Clarion, sold that paper Wednesday to W. E. Gilliland of the Tecumseh Banner, who will consolidate the papers and publish them at Baird."

Mr. Gilliland took charge of the business on Nov. 28th, 1887, which was his 39th birthday and established The Baird Weekly Star, the first issue being printed on Thursday December 8, 1887.

Baird Bears Bust Moran 46 to 0

The Baird Bears continued their winning streak by running over the Moran Bulldogs to the tune of 46 to 0. The game last Friday was another Conference victory for the Bears, who now share the lead with Putnam. Both teams are undefeated so far this season.

In this game the Bears ran up their highest score of the season and practically ever man on the squad saw some service. The Bears are still on the upward trend and getting stronger every game. They have improved in blocking, tackling and are hard to stop on the offense. They are after that district flag in a big way.

The Bulldogs conference winners last year and very deep in the cellar this year never had a chance to score. They put up a good clean, hard, scrap but were no match for the Bears, who showed plenty of what it takes to win a football game.

Every man on the squad played a good game. The backs got a good workout in this game. Co-capt Bob Austin scored 5 touchdowns, Nolan Cooper, and Clyde Yarbrough scored one a piece. Fenton Williams went on a scoring spree and kicked three extra points, and Co-capt Bill McCoy chalked up one.

Here are the statistics on the game: First downs, Baird 23; Moran 3. Baird gained 397 yards from scrimmage, Moran gained 52 yards. Baird carried the ball 53 times for an average of 7 1-2 yards, Moran 15 times for an average of 3 1-2 yards. Moran lost 4 1-2 yards from scrimmage. Baird lost none. Baird attempted 4 passes completed 2 and 2 were incomplete. Moran attempted 6 4 incomplete and 2 intercepted. Baird punted once for 30 yards. Moran punted 6 times for 159 yards had an average of 26 1-2 yards.

First Contributor To Red Cross Fund

Billie Ray, the manly little 7 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh Ray, came into The Star office and handed Haynie Gilliland a nickel, saying he wanted to give it to the Red Cross. He had heard the story of the battle scared Red Cross flag hanging in the window of The Star office. The flag was found in a German dugout during the World War by Claude Flores, who was a member of the 12 Engineers, who helped to route the Germans from the dugout, and was brought back home by him. Billie's nickel was the first contribution to the Annual Red Cross Call for funds and while there will be many contributions larger than Billie's, none will be given with sweeter spirit than Billie gave his nickel.

Jud Atchison "The Greatest Running Back I Have Ever Seen", Says Ted Husing

Judson Atchison, Baird boy, who is playing halfback with the Texas State University Longhorns has made many good plays since being with the Longhorns, but he really "did his stuff" in last Saturday's game with the Baylor Bears.

"The greatest running back I have ever seen," said Ted Husing nationally known sports announcer, of Jud Atchison, Longhorn halfback. Atchison turned out one of the greatest exhibitions of broken field running ever seen in the Southwest yesterday against the Baylor Bears, scoring the lone Texas touchdown that was instrumental in upsetting the conference leading Bears, 9-6.

Jinx Evans, sports editor of the Waco Tribune Herald says:

Atchison Best for Day

The greatest backfield man in this sensational upset which will reverberate over the nation was Judson Atchison, who for the afternoon played a running game as great as any halfback in the history of football in this city. Judson Atchison was the spark which sent the Longhorns fury into a flame. He ran off tackle like a shot from a gun. He left Baylor backs standing there helpless, and he, by his sensational individual efforts, stopped all bowl talk in Waco.

Weldon Hart, sports writer on the American Statesman says: Jud Atchison Was The Man Of The Hour

It was this lanky, inspired youngster who ripped through the Baylor team for 18 yards and a touchdown to climax the first quarter of this roaring, hard hitting game Saturday, a game that proved beyond any shadow of doubt that nothing is impossible in football that ability doesn't mean everything and that fighting spirit, the determination to do or die, does mean everything.

Baird Cubs Enjoying A Perfect Season

The Baird Grammar school "Cubs" are enjoying one of the most successful seasons they have ever had.

They have played four games and have scored seventy-five points, and the enemy has not been able so far to score on the cubs. Roy Wiley has scored some 40 points and the rest were scored by Billie Gee Hatchett, John Emery Wheeler, Harold Cummings Eugene Swenson, and Buddy Braumbaugh.

W. A. Stiles, the captain of the team, is the outstanding linesman. The rest of the line is made up of Eugene Swenson and Harold Cummings ends. Ben Glover and Tommie Meridith tackles. Carl Yarbrough and W. A. Stiles, guard. And Emmett McQueen center.

This line is boasting of the fact that not any team has reached the 20 yard line. And they do not expect to be scored on all year.

Friday the "Cubs" play Cisco at Cisco and we hope as many will go as possible.

The "Cubs" along with their coach Mr. Bryant wishes to thank all the business men who made it possible for them to have their new suits which they will be playing in Friday for the first time. We expect to have another home game soon which will probably close our season.

Cross Plains Buffs Nose Coleman, 6-0

Cross Plains' Bufaloes squeezed a narrow margin past Coleman to win, 6-0, in a district 25-D football game at Cross Plains last Friday.

Flahie plunged twice and made the counter after a series of running plays had advanced the ball from the 40 to the 8 yard line, during the third quarter.

Then, in the last period, Coleman made two stabs that nearly tied the score. After advancing to the 12 yard line on one occasion, the Bluecoats were held on four successive plunges by the Cross Plains line.

As the game ended, Coleman had just completed a 38 yard pass that put the ball on Cross Plains 14 yard stripe. Coleman led in first downs, 9 to 6. Cross Plains gained 162 yards rushing against 124 for the Bluecoats. The visitors threw 13 passes, had one intercepted, and completed three for 50 yards. Cross Plains threw 3 incomplete passes.

Best man on the field for Coleman was Gideon, tailback. James Hall played a good backfield game for the Bullaloes, with Ussery out standing in the line.

The Bears were plenty hot and did their best playing of the year. The second string played most of the game and gave a good account of themselves.

The most thrilling play of the game was an 80 yard return of a kickoff for a touchdown by Co-capt. Bob Austin at the start of the second half. Co-capt Austin scored 3 touchdowns and played a perfect game of football. Other touchdowns were made by Co-capt. Bill McCoy, Richard Windham, Charley Coats and Grover Clyde football game in the after-piece. Fenton Williams Kicked 4 extra points. La Guardia's Victory

TAMMANY HALL went down to inglorious defeat in the New York municipal election. Its mayoralty candidate, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, who was supported also by Jim Farley and Senator Wagner, was thoroughly whipped by Fiorello H. La Guardia, candidate of the fusionists, the Republicans and the young American Labor party.

Second in interest only to the mayoralty vote was the fact that Thomas E. Dewey, the young man who smashed organized crime and the rackets in New York, was elected district attorney, defeating Harold W. Hastings, the Tammany nominee.

C.I.O. Loses in Detroit

There's the candidate who belongs to all the secret orders; if he left off his emblems, he'd catch cold; knows every grand hailing sign there is; hasn't missed a lodge brother's funeral in years; can hardly wait for the next one to die. No campaign complete without him.

Floyd Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Killer Elephant" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

This yarn stars Ike Rosen, our latest club member. But Ike would have given a couple of million dollars to have been left out of the cast.

First we go back to the early days of moving pictures—1915 to be exact—when Ike was employed as a technician at the Universal studios in Hollywood.

Animal pictures were going great in those days and there was a complete zoo on the lot. The king of that collection of beasts was Charlie, an elephant bought from a circus. Charlie was a good actor, but nobody could handle him except Curley, his personal trainer.

Well, Ike stepped into the dramatic part of the picture when Director Smalley began staging the wedding procession of an Indian prince. It was comedy, and, for the parts of the Indian prince and his bride, two actors, weighing nearly 400 pounds each, were cast. Ike's job was to build a huge canopied chair in which the prince and princess were to ride in state on the back of Charlie, the elephant.

Charlie Didn't Like Ike.

Ike finished the royal howdah. Workmen tried to budge it and found that it weighed nearly 2,000 pounds. Twelve men heaved and struggled to saddle Charlie with the gorgeous structure. Then, 700 pounds of prince and princess went up the ladder.

That's where Charlie took a dislike to Ike. And then, when the director called for more ornaments, Ike put a stepladder against Charlie's side and climbed up. There was Charlie's chance.

He whipped his trunk around, seized Ike by the leg, trumpeted in anger and lifted him for a dash to the ground.

Curley, the trainer, sank his curved elephant hook into Charlie's forehead and Ike limped away. That was his first round with his monstrous enemy.

The trainer knew elephants. He knew what to expect in the future, so he warned Ike. "Charlie's going bad," he said. "He'll kill you the first chance he gets."

Ike did watch out. But one night a wild chimpanzee cleverly opened his cage and almost killed a keeper. Ike hurried over to devise a lock that the chimp couldn't open. Charlie's big stall was next door. He sensed Ike's presence and went berserk. He lifted his iron water tub and beat at his chains and bars around his enclosure. The whole zoo trembled on the elephant's fury. Curley, the trainer, again rushed to the rescue.

"For God's sake, Ike, leave this studio if you value your life," Curley said. "Charlie's turned killer. He's out for you. Lucky for you his chains held."

Ike took no more chances. He gave Charlie a wide berth. But one day, when his work called him to a remote part of the movie lot, he rounded a hill and ran smack into Charlie, tethered to an anchor of poles and railroad iron, driven into the ground.

The Elephant Really "Went Bad."

Ike had no time to turn back. The bull elephant, ears flattened against his head, eyes blazing and his trumpeting echoing from the hills, charged.

Rosen was trapped. His only chance was to dive for a shallow gully that separated the movie lot from an Indian village. He flung himself into the gully and flattened himself against the side. The earth was vibrating under those plunging feet. Ike only hoped for a quick death.

Then, there was a clank of chains—the groanings of the heavy anchor poles set deep in the ground. Charlie had reached the end of his chain. His head was jerked down. He stumbled, plowed the earth.

The maddened beast was halted only a few feet from Ike's hiding place. Rosen could see those bloodshot eyes gleaming with hatred—a lust to kill.

The long trunk slashed out in fury. Ike felt a thud on the side of his head as Charlie's trunk grazed him and snatched off his cap.

For a moment big Charlie paused to hurl his enemy's cap beneath his feet and trample it to ribbons. That pause saved Rosen. He was on his feet, running, limping and ripping with cold sweat.

But Charlie bided his time. For days he worked quietly. And then, during the making of a spectacular film in a setting of Old Jerusalem, Ike crossed the set and came face to face with his old foe.

Once more Charlie charged in an insane desire to crush the man who had tortured him with that huge, 2,000-pound saddle in the earlier picture. But this time Ike was in the clear. He ducked to safety. The baffled elephant, once more cheated of his vengeance, turned upon the set.

How the Killer Was Killed.

A few days later he saw Ike in the distance and went into another frenzy. Rosen scurried out of sight, but Charlie, thirsting for a kill, seized his trainer, Curley, lifted him high into the air, dashed him to earth and then, with his massive forehead, ground him into the dust. Curley was killed instantly.

"Killer elephant!" The words set Hollywood trembling. It was no longer a single foe. It was the life of any human being.

Charlie must die, studio officials ruled. But how? Poison and dynamite were rejected as not sure enough. Ike Rosen's technical skill was enlisted. Despite his narrow escape, he hated to be Charlie's executioner, but many lives were at stake.

A heavy wire cable was rigged over pulleys, looped around Charlie's neck and lashed to two heavy trucks, headed in opposite directions. The trucks started. The loop tightened. Cables sang with the strain. Charlie looked sorrowfully and inquiringly at the men around him. His knees buckled, his head sank. His great bulk rolled over—dead from strangulation.

The Inns of England

The Inns of England have their foundations in the depths of the Middle Ages. Some of them have seen the almost prehistoric changes from crude earthen floors to stone floors and from stone floors to mats of rushes. They have sheltered kings and pilgrims, merchants and all kinds of travelers, and between the occasions of more spectacular hospitality they have gathered about them all the richness of the social life of the neighborhood, for it is at the inn that men have always met and expanded a personal and political philosophy.

The United States Constitution

The United States Constitution is the basis of government in this country and is the highest and most permanent law. It was adopted September 17, 1787, by the federal convention and ratified the following year. It may be amended by a vote of two-thirds in congress, followed by the approval of three-quarters of the state legislatures or state conventions. It specifies how congress and the President are elected, the powers and duties of President, congress and the judiciary and the relation between state and federal governments.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK... By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—Gen. Sadoo Araki, a gentle little man, who recites poetry and

War Lord Is Partial to Cloisonne

He is an ascetic, abstemious in all things, living on a birdseed diet, and, since directing the Manchurian outreach in 1932, has counselled decorum and seemly behavior in the expropriation of China. When he found it expedient to defy the League of Nations in 1932, he did it in a nice way.

He seems to want capitalism without any capitalists. A great many industrialists were killed in his conquest of Manchuria. His peasant origin accounts for that. The army is largely recruited from the peasant classes—including its officers—and it has a romantic feudal hang-over which makes it suspect and dislike industrialists.

Pan-Asia is the general's main idea, and from many sources there has come evidence that it is also the principal objective in Japan's drive.

Gen. Araki's Big Idea Is Pan-Asia

Shrewd observers of the Far East have told this writer that all Japan's major policies are directed to this end and that certain Chinese generals, dealing under the table with Japan, also have this in mind.

"Hodo" and "bushido" are the general's two favorite conjure words—signifying "the way of the emperor," and "the way of the warrior."

Arranging his flowers, or presiding at the tea ceremonial, he deplores war and bloodshed and conquest. They are all dreadful and the world would be so much better if everyone would behave nicely, but, as long as they don't, Japan has to go all the way through.

The general is angry when he is called a fascist or militarist. He follows rigid discipline in his life in his little cottage on the outskirts of Tokyo, and wears a plain khaki uniform with almost no medals or decorations.

Graduating from the military college, he wanted to go into the navy, but was diverted to the army by the Russo-Japanese war. He likes to do everything in a nice way. They say that once, when he had to drown a batch of kittens, he warmed the water so they wouldn't experience a cold shock.

SIX years ago, the British government benched Sir Charles Augustus Tegart, after he had been dealing misery to terrorists in Belgium for 30 years.

Expert Goes to Tame Tough Arabs

Now they send him in against the rampant and riotous Arabs, who are messing up not only Palestine, but certainly delicately balanced equations of foreign policy, at a time when Britannia is extremely touchy about such disturbances.

Sir Charles is a parson's son and he married a parson's daughter. A quiet man, soft-spoken and deliberate, never ferocious, he carried through one of the toughest police jobs in the world. He joined the Indian police force in 1901.

He was as ruthless as an installment collector in running down his man. Those were years of plots and conspiracies, and as he rose in office his function took on broader aspects of allaying or overcoming social disturbance and he disclosed sagacity and skill in this wider reach to police power. All this brought him the king's police medal in 1911, and he has received many other decorations and honors.

He was knighted in 1926 and since 1932 has been a member of the council of India. He was educated at the Portora Royal school at Enniskillen and Trinity college, Dublin. The latter awarded him an honorary LL.D. in 1933.

Knighthood Was Reward to Tegart

Sending Sir Charles to Palestine is taken as an indication that Britain is warming up a more aggressive policy in the Near East, after quite a spell of stalling and shadow-boxing. He is especially skilled in rooting out conspiracies. The word from Palestine is that the Arabs are not altogether self-starters in the present outbreak of terrorism and it is indicated that a thorough job of sleuthing will precede the necessary renovating and the later political adjustments. William G. A. Ormsby-Gore, secretary of state for the colonies, promises "to take the most vigorous measures to combat terrorism."

Walt Amos turned his back on them, and stood staring out into the sun-blasted street.

Horse Dunn chuckled in his short beard and hitched his belt up. Slowly he sauntered past the deputies, staring at each of them with an open insolent amusement as he passed.

Unhurrying, the 94 men made their way along the main street of Inspiration, around the corner to their car.

By the time they reached the ranch it was already late afternoon, and the tall Tuscaroras were sending vast, vague fingers of shadow about the layout of the 94, while the high eastern horizon was still brightly brassy in the sun.

"I'm tired of being lied to, for one thing."

"Who's lied to you?" "More than one, right here on this place. Dunn, there's too many things not open to the eye around here to suit me!"

"Coffee," said Horse Dunn without belligerence, "what in all hell do you mean by that?"

"I'll just give you one sample." Old Man Coffee picked up his dog whip from the floor and sorted out its coils with bony old fingers.

"There's been a horse in this case that's been known as the killer's horse, because he left his trail at Short Crick, mixed up in the sign of the killing. You know I took old Rock and we trailed that horse; though it came to nothing, then. Now, since we've been back here this afternoon, I've seen a funny thing. Rock's been working around the horse corals, by himself; trying to work out a trail. Dog voices is peculiar—they call different trails in different ways. And as soon as I heard Rock's voice, I knew he was crying the trail of the killer horse."

They stared at him in silence. Then Horse Dunn said, "You're telling the peace—same as Billy got into at Short Crick."

Dunn slumped down in his chair and went to growling into his warlike beard. "I don't believe you know any more about it than the rest of us do."

"I'll put it stronger than that, maybe—" Old Man Coffee made each word separately heard—"someone in this room knows a whole lot more than I know!"

Horse Dunn sat perfectly still, except for his eyes; his head did not raise and no muscle of his face changed, but his eyes whipped to the old lion hunter's face. After a moment he said, "Coffee, that's one remark you're sure going to have to back up."

"I'll say just one thing more. There's scarcely a man in this room that hasn't lied to me at least once, in the little time I've been here."

Horse Dunn sat up slowly, hitching himself square in his chair. "Maybe some of my boys have been a little hazy and loose-spoken about where they've been, and when. No man knows what he's up against here. Take Gil, here—the sheriff mixed him up. And why? Because Gil would try to stand by his side riders even if he knew every last one of 'em was guilty. If you hold that against him, then maybe you know dogs—but you're nuts!"

Old Man Coffee spoke past the pipe stem in his teeth. "I suppose that lets you out, too?" He sat looking at Dunn steadily, a little smile on his face.

Horse spread his hands in front of him on the table, as if he would jump across it, and his voice rose like the voice of a bull. "If you say I lied, then by God name what you mean!"

"To hell with you," Coffee said, without lifting his voice.

"You'll either back what you said," the outraged Horse Dunn stormed, "or you'll swaller it whole!"

"That I won't do either," Coffee said.

For a moment Horse Dunn stared at him blankly; then he sat down, and the flame went out of his eyes, giving place to something ugly. "I can't stand for that, Coffee," he said. "You know I can't stand for that."

"I can't help that." "You don't give me any choice," said Horse Dunn thickly. "You sure you want to stick to what you said?"

"Naturally." "If you don't want to work with me—I've got along all right so far, and I guess I'll be able to go on struggling along. I—"

"Wait," Billy began. "You—"

"You've acted like you've wanted out of this ever since I got you in it," Dunn clipped out. "All right then—you're out! And you can send me a bill for what I owe."

Old Man Coffee stood up and stretched himself, a queer smile on his face. "Just send me a check for a million dollars," he said. He sauntered out into the dark.

For a few moments after Old Man Coffee had gone out, the 94 people sat silent, unable to realize that the old lion hunter was no longer of their number.

Horse Dunn roused himself. "I always heard he was cracky. But now he's gone cracked altogether. I suppose the old fool won't even stay the night—he'll go sleep in the brush somewhere. Well, fair enough! Somebody go catch him his mule."

Two or three of them moved, but Billy Wheeler wanted the job, and he took it. He held a lantern while Coffee saddled his black mule. He knew it was useless to try to get the two old men together again, but he felt that it was one of those things that a man has to try. He kept trying to think of an angle of approach, but Old Man Coffee, whose packing up was easily done, was ready to move out before Wheeler had thought of a way.

Old Man Coffee extended his hand. "Well, so long, son."

"I'm almighty sorry," Wheeler said, "to see you leave this case. You're needed here, if ever a man was."

"Tough," said Old Man Coffee. He swung aboard the black mule and sat looking down at Billy Wheeler from the saddle. "I kind of like you, son. You seem to have a little more savvy than the others. So here's something for you to keep under your hat. I'm not out of this case yet. I'm going to do one more job before I go. I'm going to find the murdered man."

"You think you can?" "Looks like I might. Horse Dunn—he ain't in on this. He made a fool of me, and himself too, when he got bullheaded and held onto Magoon's saddle. I told him to turn it in to the sheriff—but no, he had to have his own way. This time I'm running no chances. If I find the dead man, my next move will be to take word to the sheriff."

"And then—" "And then I'm going off in the brush and sleep for a week."

"But look here! Do you realize, if you do that the Inspiration crowd will be holding every card in the deck? Where does the 94 come in?"

"That's your worry. But I'll help you this much: you be up on Lost Whiskey Butte tomorrow about an hour after sun-up. Tomorrow's going to be my last day's work on this case—I hope. And we'll see what we'll see."

"I'll be there," Wheeler said. "And don't you bring Horse Dunn—or any of his hired men either. Or by golly, I'll—"

"Okay."

When he was gone Billy Wheeler climbed to the top rail of the corral, where he sat despondently eyeing the horizon stars. For the first time he felt an overwhelming sense of the 94's helplessness against odds. Everything had gone against Horse Dunn; the outfit was confused, disorganized, at a loss.

One question stood out largely in his mind. Where was Bob Flag? To Billy Wheeler it seemed that the appearance of Bob Flag, and this alone, could give them any chance to extricate the 94 from the trap it was in.

Marian Dunn, he noticed, still stood talking to Val Douglas, lingering outside the door of the ranch house. In the stillness of the night he could hear the low continuous murmur of Val's voice, talking steadily—doubtless in his own behalf. And he could see Marian's lowered profile against the yellow light of a window pane. It was curious how every suggested line of that girl, every least bend of her head could move Billy Wheeler, twist him inside.

Then a strange thing happened—strange in that Billy Wheeler had almost a foreknowledge of it. As he sat there alone in the dark he now found himself keenly aware of the peopled layout about him—aware of the exact location of the men in the bunk house, of the ponies in the corral. It was a peculiar sensation, as if he were suddenly more awake than before, as awake as a man in a ring battle, or a man in danger.

And especially he was aware of the dark, silent brush country at his back, where buckbrush and desert juniper stood thick behind the corral. Somewhere out there a twig cracked, and his nerves jerked. Something in that black mile of brush was as awake as he.

Then abruptly the silence broke, definitely, once-and-for-all, as if the night's shell of stillness had cracked.

Wood Long in Use, but Forever Doomed by Other Materials; Charcoal Replaced

Wood has found a wide variety of uses as a raw material in the past, but it seems forever doomed to be replaced by something else, writes Dr. Thomas M. Beck in the Chicago Tribune.

It was the first fuel that men burned, but now it has been largely replaced by coal and petroleum. The first houses were made of wood, but now brick, glass, concrete, and steel are gradually taking its place.

The wooden ships of a century ago have given way to the iron ships of today.

So it has been in the chemical industry, but with one important difference. Wood has been the source of a number of important raw materials which have later been produced more economically from other sources.

However, the chemical importance of wood itself has not declined, for new uses have continually been discovered to take the place of the old ones.

For example, the first chemical reagent to be made from wood probably was charcoal, which is the fairly good grade of carbon left when the other elements of wood are driven off by intense heat.

Carbon is an excellent reducing agent, which means that it can readily combine, when hot enough, with the oxygen of metallic ores to form gaseous carbon oxides, thereby leaving the metal in a free state.

At one time practically all the iron produced was done so with the help of charcoal. Now coke has taken its place almost completely.

Almost simultaneous with the decline of the metallurgical application of another important use, although one more limited in volume. Carbon has an unusual ability to absorb organic matter on its surface.

The porous nature of wood charcoal gives it a great amount of exposed surface, so that it possesses this absorptive power to an unusual extent.

The only time you need move the Turn Damper is at the start of the very cold season and again at the start of the very mild season.

Use only the Ashpit Damper and Check Damper for regulating the fire daily—to speed up or slow down the rate at which you want the fire to burn.

Rely wholly on these two dampers, and you'll get the proper fire regulation. I repeat—do not change the position of the Turn Damper inside the smoke pipe.

Otherwise you'll waste a lot of very valuable fuel and heat.

County Agent's Column

By Ross B. Jenkins, County Agrt.

W. B. VARNER SAVES HOGS WITH MINERAL

Some months or so ago Mr. W. B. Varner of the Cottonwood community began noticing that his hogs were not making the gains and were becoming nervous. Soon one of them got down with some kind of ailment in his hind quarters. He showed to be extremely nervous. Since an outbreak of cholera was checked in that community last year Mr. Varner feared that his hogs might be subject to the same disease. He wrote the county agent a letter telling of the symptoms of his hogs and stated that he had fed some of them a diet containing lye. He further stated that this hog so fed seemed to improve for a few days then suddenly died. Since those are not the symptoms that go along with cholera the county agent recommended that rather than vaccinate them for cholera that they be fed a diet containing bone meal or lime flour and salt. The ration that was recommended was 90 lbs. of ground corn maize, or barley, 5 lbs. of cottonseed meal, and 5 pounds of tankage, if no milk is available. Milk will take the place of tankage. To this 100 pounds of dried feed should be fed, at least, 2 pounds of bone meal or lime flour and one pound of salt. Mr. Varner phoned a veterinarian at Ranger and was told that he concurred in the opinion that it was a mineral deficiency rather than cholera. Accordingly a sack of bone meal was purchased and the ratios included bone meal and salt. The hogs were turned out of the close pen and allowed to range free picking up some green grass in the pasture. Dr. Frank Porter B. A. I. hog cholera specialist of Teaxs, visited the county agent last week and together they made a visit to the farm of Mr. Varner. They found that the hogs had fully recovered, were not being bothered with the weakness in their back and hind quarters and were eating heartily. Many farmers have come into the office this year complaining that their hogs had been affected about the same as indicated above. In each instance the county agent has pointed out that if some bone building material is supplied that the hogs in most cases rapidly return to normalcy. There is little danger of cholera outbreak if the farmers do not trade for hogs from other sections but if hogs are purchased from any feed lot such as Fort Worth and other places and brought to the farm they should be immediately vaccinated and all others on the farm against cholera. This is a precaution that should never be overlooked.

NEW TYPE FARM MEETINGS

The Department of Agriculture has asked the Extension Service in all of these United States to carry to the farmers a new type of program in which the farmers discuss their side of the question why the agricultural situation is not satisfactory. These programs are to be finished by November 20th. In them the county agents and the home demonstration agents have been given some very pertinent facts that the farmers everywhere are interested in knowing. These discussions are naturally leading up to the new 1938 program that is expected to be released about December 1st. Part of these programs will have been discussed by the time this paper is printed at Denton and Eula. On November 12th, Friday, a meeting will be held at Midway gent in that section of the county and will hold three meetings, one at Cottonwood, one at Cross Plains, and one at Dressy. Mr. Underwood attended a training meeting held at Baird Saturday, November 6th, and will take the same type of program as is being given in the other communities of that section. Vocational teachers are as interested in the farming trends as are the Extension Service employees and cooperate wherever their service can be used. At the same time they will be able to help the county agent get information to the farmers within the time prescribed November 20th.

WILD LIFE PRESERVATION

Some months ago a group of ranchmen and farmers who has become conscious of the value of birds to their farms circulated several petitions over the county which received many signatures of men of the same thinking and placed this petition before the Legislature which acted upon it by passing a law prohibiting quail being shot in Callahan County for the next three seasons. Along the same line the county agent started the new demonstration that is being sponsored by the Extension Service. It is known as Game Preserve Demonstrations in cooperation with the state and national wildlife conservation for ces. Almost 100,000 acres have now been signed up by various farmers and ranchers in the county in order that people may know that they are protecting their wild game. Many of these have purchased markers which the county agent has been able to have made at 25 cents per board. Some have asked when does this demonstration are continuous. When one places his membership in the Wildlife Association he is a member until he withdraws. It is a continuous and growing association and designed to grow until every owner and tenant in the county is a member. It should be apparent that this organization does not intend to prevent hunting and fishing on the lands of this county but that such wildlife as we now have will be protected from unscrupulous, unsportsmanlike hunters until a sufficiency has been grown so that when friends do go out to hunt they will find game in abundance but will be cautioned to leave plenty for the next year's crop.

More than ninety millions of dollars are being realized by the farmers and ranchmen of Texas yearly from hunting and fishing fees plus the amounts received for pelts of the fur bearing animals. These men selling hunting rights value such as any other portion of their crops and it is the aim of the Association to foster this understanding among all men so that god fishing and hunting may come back to our lands and stay when it gets back. If you are not a member of this Association you are most cordially invited to become one. It costs nothing to cooperate with your neighbors.

John Brown has "a cold",

John Brown is usually a careful man. But John Brown, like many others who catch cold during winter months, ignores the dangers of sudden changes of temperature. Some rooms of his house are heated and others are not. Now John Brown has a cold!

And the little Browns are sniffing,

Like their Daddy, the little Brown girls have a cold. Although the room where they play is kept cozy and warm, frequently they go to unheated parts of the house. It doesn't take the cold germ long to strike when the girls go into the cold bedroom to bring additional toys.

And Mother Brown is taking chances . . .

Mrs. Brown hasn't a cold . . . yet. But Mother Brown is constantly taking chances with her health as she goes from the warm rooms into cold ones during her busy day. Wouldn't it be safer for the Brown family to HEAT THE ENTIRE HOUSE this winter?

"I Saw It in the News Review" is a common expression among those who keep well informed on current events. They know that in the "Weekly News Review," which appears regularly in this paper, they obtain a comprehensive interpretation of world events written by Edward W. Pickard, one of the nation's most widely-known news commentators.

Weekly News Review deals with the important happenings and their effect upon our country. It is more than news—it is an interpretation of the news, and therefore much more valuable to the person who wants to understand what is going on in the world today.

Read it carefully from week to week. You will find it interesting and helpful in your discussion of world events with your neighbors and friends.

Callahan Co. Boys In C. C. C. Camp

S. T. Walker of Midway came in a few days ago and subscribed for The Star for six months to be sent to his son Edgar Walker who recently enrolled at a CCC Camp at Priscott, Arizona. Young Walker is well pleased with his work in the camp, but was anxious to keep up with things at home. Several other boys from the Midway community are also in the camp: Nineteen Callahan County boys went in the last call for recruits in the CCC Camps.

We are glad that the boys like their work and surroundings. The training the boys receive in the CCC Camps fit them for leadership in all walks of life. The boys can continue their studies there being an educational advisory in every camp to assist the boys who want to continue their educational work. The boys are housed in comfortable quarters the food is of the very best and prepared and served in spotless clean kitchens. They are supplied with sufficient and comfortable clothes. A doctor is stationed at each camp to care for the sick. Religious services and other form of clean entertainment are provided in the camp and while each CCC Camp is under the command of an army officer there is no effort made to train the boys for military life there are drills of no kind, but there are certain rules and regulations that must be obeyed where there are so many full spirit young fellows.

The CCC is primarily a work program consisting of various kinds of projects. A special study is made to determine the natural fitness of every boy and every effort is made to develop his talent through supervised work on projects best suited his mental and physical condition.

The editor of The Star recently visited a CCC Camp while in West Texas and was very favorable impressed with the work being done among the boys, they all seemed happy and interested in their work, one piece of work the CCC boys have done is outstanding and that is at Balmorhea where they have built a swimming pool at San Solomon springs in the foot hills of the Davis countains. The pool which is complete in every detail is said to be the largest outdoor swimming pool in the world, is one of the beauty spots of West Texas.

The Red Cross Membership Drive

The Red Cross Roll Call which is conducted from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving, will have a special significance this year, because of the great relief work the American Red Cross did this year. In last winter's flood, this organization was called to give relief to a million or more people in the greatest disaster in the nation's history, and helped thousands upon thousands of families to repair and rebuild their damaged and destroyed homes, and to replace necessary household furnishings lost or ruined in the flood. Red Cross really served many persons during the past year.

Every local Red Cross chapter receives its funds from the annual membership roll call. Money for financing the great relief work of this organization is obtained from the membership drive each year, even the national organization.

ABC's in Manners: When Boy Meets Girl

SINCE a great many teachers send me questions, which from time to time their classes ask them to explain, I will occasionally print those which I have space for, under the heading "ABC's in Manners." The following are the first:

When a girl is introduced to a boy, is it her place, or his, to say "I'm glad to have met you" just before leaving each other? Or don't young people usually say anything so formal?

Answer: Strictly speaking it is his place since a man meets a woman and not the other way around. Instead she might say "I hope I see you again" or "It was pleasant talking with you." From what I have heard in younger groups I think they are much more likely to say "Good-by" and no more, or if they really mean it, add, "Hope I'll see you again sometime."

No Gift Is Necessary at Dinner for Bride

DEAR Mrs. Post: My husband and I are invited to a Sunday night supper in honor of a visiting bride and groom. We know the groom's family but were not invited to the wedding in the East and did not send them a wedding present. Do you think that after this party we should send them something or would you perhaps suggest that we take something to the party?

Answer: Unless a local custom is involved about which I have not heard, it certainly will not be expected that you take or send anything to the bride and groom.

Announcing Departure

DEAR Mrs. Post: My husband has long held a public office in this town and in consequence we have met many people whom we believe would be interested to know that we are going to make our home in a distant town. May I send our visiting cards to a long local list of names, writing P. P. C. on them, and could these cards include our future address rather than the present one, which we are giving up permanently?

Answer: Utility suggests that you might change the usual procedure of writing P. P. C. on cards which you are now using and instead write on those which carry your future address. However, unless you in some way make this clear people receiving them may not notice the change. As a suggestion, you might have this number of cards engraved with the name of the town on the line below the street address, and then on the cards which you have made up for other uses simply omit it, since visiting cards do not usually include any more than the street address.

Making Apologies.

IS IT correct to say "Excuse me" or "Pardon me" when passing in front of someone? For instance, in a theater. And when are the more suitable occasions for saying "I'm sorry"?

Answer: The expressions "I'm sorry" and "Excuse me" can be said almost interchangeably for an offense that is unavoidable and yet one which might be unpleasant to others. "I beg your pardon" is said for an offense that is caused by one's own awkwardness. The word "pardon" is a social tabu if separated from the complete sentence, "I beg your pardon." In the theater, when your seat happens to be an inner one, you say to the person on the aisle "Excuse me" and then wait a second until he can turn aside. If he seems to be disturbed, you add "I'm sorry."

New Daughter-in-Law

DEAR Mrs. Post: I have a new daughter-in-law and even though she and my son are living out of town I have never had occasion to write her. She has never called me any name directly and naturally signs her letters to me, "Mrs." To my son I have heard her say "your mother" and to others she refers to me as "Dick's mother." I don't want her to call me "Mrs. Brown" but I also dare not force her into anything she may not like.

Answer: Sign your letter "Dick's Mother" and then, since this would be very hard to settle by letter, why not wait until you see her to tell her that you don't care what she chooses to call you as long as it is not "Mrs. Brown."

Youth Growing Up.

AT WHAT age does a girl have "Miss" engraved on her visiting cards? And does this same age apply to a boy's card?

Answer: "Miss" is prefixed to the name of a young girl at fifteen or often sooner, and her name should be engraved Miss Margaret Blank and not Miss Sunny Blank. On the other hand, a boy never puts Mr. on his cards until he leaves school and many prefer cards without Mr. until after leaving college.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field

FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington.—Public utility executives would do well to consider what has happened, is happening, and probably will happen to the San Francisco bay ferries. It might induce them to exercise a little foresight instead of waiting for hindsight to prove they are right—assuming that they are. Because the trouble about waiting for that demonstration—still assuming they are right—is that they will be in the position of the motorist who insisted on exercising his rights under traffic regulations:

"He was right, dead right, as he drove along. But he's just as dead as if he'd been wrong."

Out in San Francisco the ferries, naturally, suffered a huge loss of business when the new bridges were opened up. To recoup some, they obtained permission to reduce their rates. So they made the one-way rate for a car 30 cents instead of 50 cents, and the round trip 50 cents. Whereas the bridges charge 50 cents toll each way, except for a slight reduction for commuters.

As a result, the ferries are doing a land office business hauling automobiles, and the bridge revenues are not what they should be. So the six counties that guarantee the bridge, which means that they have to make up any deficit in paying operating charges and interest on the bonds, are alarmed.

They are appealing to the state railroad commission to reopen the case. What they want, of course, is to force the ferries to charge just as much as the bridges. Billed down, if they get what they want the ferries might as well go out of business.

Just Imagine

Now let's go back a few years—in other words, use hindsight—and imagine a situation. Let's suppose that when the bridge was first proposed the ferry owners had reduced rates sharply, instead of first waiting in the vain hope that the bridges would never be built, and then send the inevitable happen. Obviously, a ferry cannot compete with a bridge, once a bridge is built. If the bridge management is permitted, it can make any rates it pleases, drive the ferries out of business, and then raise its rates again. It costs the bridge management virtually nothing, save a little wear and tear on the paving, for traffic to pass over it. The main cost is interest on the investment, and that goes on, whether there is any traffic or not.

The case is strikingly similar to a government hydroelectric project. The project may be uneconomic, but once the dam is built and the power plant installed the current must be produced. The mere fact that it loses money, that it costs the taxpayers money, is beside the point. It is, not to make a pun, water over the dam. So the competing privately owned utilities lose money, the taxpayers lose money, and nobody gains, not even the consumer, because the utilities could, had they used foresight instead of hindsight, have supplied the consumer at just as low rates. As abundantly demonstrated by the San Francisco ferries.

If those ferries had reduced rates back before the bridges were authorized, it would have been necessary, in all computations as to whether construction of such bridges was economically sound, to figure tolls on the basis of ferry rates.

This sort of figuring was done, but it was done on the basis of a 50-cent ferry charge, hence a 50-cent toll on the bridge. On that basis calculations were made showing that the bridges would pay. Had those calculations been made on a 30-cent straight toll, 50-cent round trip, which the ferries are now charging, the bridges might never have been built.

No Hope of Speed

Drop control and wages and hours regulation legislation, to enact which congress was called in extra session, do not promise very rapid action. Very little doubt exists that both will be enacted, but every indication is also that congress will make haste slowly, and in rather exaggerated fashion.

The one contingency that might result in beating the wages and hours bill is that the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization should both decide openly to knife it. Some think that the A. F. of L. could do it all alone, but no one here in touch with the situation doubts that both could do it.

Nor does any one doubt that they would kill it if they dared! Neither of the organizations likes it even a little bit. That resolution adopted by the A. F. of L. bristles with opposition to the original plan, and while it was disavowed by leaders in the discussion that the same objections lay against the present form, the opposition is there.

Why else, it might be asked, would an organization as politically minded as the A. F. of L. devote sufficient time to put through a resolution castigating something which had already been changed as a result of the pleading of its own president, William Green? Why not just discuss any objection which still remains?

The answer is simple. Those responsible for that resolution, in that curious form, were seeking to build up public opinion against the wages and hours bill, almost regardless of details. So they hit it hardest on what they considered its more vulnerable points, despite the fact that those points had been eliminated in the last session.

Wanted No Change

There is the possibility, of course, that there was a slightly different purpose—that the desire was really to prevent the bill's being changed again into something resembling its original and, to union labor, objectionable form.

As a matter of fact, the bitterest opponents of the bill, the folks who so effectively sidetracked it last session, holding it in the house rules committee after every one had assumed it would pass, are hoping to change the bill substantially. And some of the changes that these potent gentlemen want to make would again add some of the features that William Green managed to get stricken out.

As a matter of fact, the opposition of little southern sawmills and other small plants did not really reach the burning point last session until after Green's federation influence had accomplished these changes.

The effect of the so-called Green changes was to restrict the jurisdiction of the board, or whatever the governing body that enforces the wage and hour regulation may be called, to compelling the 40-hour maximum and the 40-cent-an-hour minimum. They would leave all disputes involving conditions better for labor than these particular limitations to be settled by collective bargaining.

Boost Income Tax

Income taxes on $5,000 to $50,000 stipends will be sharply boosted by congress in revising the tax law to get the additional money the Treasury needs, unless there should be some totally unexpected upset. Levies on corporation net incomes will also be boosted. Corporations are now paying 15 per cent of their net incomes to the federal government, in addition to the undistributed earnings tax—which, of course, they do not pay if they distribute all their earnings to stockholders.

There will be a strong effort to lower exemptions and hike levies on incomes below $5,000, both of which are advocated, and have been for several years, by Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. There is a possibility of boosting the tax on incomes below $5,000, but the chance of reducing the present exemptions is practically nil.

As a matter of fact, this is one of the few points on which La Follette and the New Deal differ. La Follette wants those with the smaller incomes to pay taxes for two reasons. He wants them to know about taxes, and he knows that to get as much money as he thinks the federal government should have it is necessary to go lower. It just so happens that no one has ever contradicted the statement made by Alfred M. Landon during the last campaign, that if the government took every dollar of every income in the country from $5,000 upwards it would pay only a fraction of what the government is now spending.

Very few people in the country believe this. It sounds too fantastic. But it happens to be true and La Follette, though never quoting it, knows it and acts on it.

Not on Program

Taxes were not included in the announced program for congress. But since the announcement of the program the budget figures have been worked out. It has developed that the deficit for this fiscal year will be much larger than was anticipated. It is now certain that the debt of the government, on which interest must be paid, will be increased this fiscal year by at least $750,000,000. This is much smaller than has been the case in the last five years, but there is no assurance at the moment that this is the final figure. The only sure thing is that it will not be less than that.

On top of this the Treasury knows now that a heavy shrinking of revenue will be revealed in the income tax returns of March 15, next, but corporation earnings will be smaller, it is forecast, than for 1936, due not so much to diminished business, for this is comparatively slight, as to increased costs—wage boosts, higher commodity costs, etc. And it is net earnings on which corporation income taxes are computed.

Individual incomes from dividends, as compared with the returns of last March, will be way down in consequence. But on top of this individual incomes will be down because there will be nothing like the profits resulting from security sales.

Take Exercise Regularly By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

I OFTEN think that as physicians we do not, as a rule, stress the wonderful value of regular exercise. Patients will be advised to "rest" more, to "eat" less, to "get away from work and take a vacation" but it is seldom that a physician will advise a patient to go to an athletic club, Y. M. C. A. or Y. W. C. A. and take regular exercise.

Outdoor exercise is always more beneficial than that taken indoors because there is more oxygen in the outdoor air to supply the extra oxygen needed when exercise is taken. However, outdoor exercise cannot always be obtained, due to weather conditions, whereas home exercise or indoor class work two or three times a week is always available; the gymnasium is there and the instructor also.

Regularity is what counts. And it is the regularity of exercise that makes it so valuable. Exercise taken daily or not less than three times a week, means that the large blood vessels supplying the big bulk of muscle and the tiny individual muscle fibers must open widely to receive this blood. And the more widely these blood vessels open, and the more often they open, the more the muscle increases in size and power.

As the little text book by La Grange states: "Systematic exercise of a muscle educates the little blood vessels supplying the muscle to not only open more widely during exercise, thus bringing an increased amount of blood to the muscle, but even when the muscle is at rest these blood vessels remain open to some extent (instead of closing) and the muscle gets the benefit of an increased amount of blood, even when it is not exercising. Hence the value of regular training, of systematic exercise."

Increasing the size and strength of the muscles is but a small part of the value of exercise. The exercise makes the heart beat faster and stronger to supply the extra blood needed, and the lungs must breathe in fresh air more often and more deeply to purify this extra blood that is needed.

British Advice on Reducing.

The natural, the normal, the effective road or method of reducing weight is hard for the overweight to travel because it means sacrifice or work—sacrifice of the desire for food and desire for ease, and work—regular daily exercise.

All effective and permanent results in reducing weight are obtained for the most part in "dieting," reducing the amount of food eaten.

Drs. H. Coombs, Dorothy Reader, and C. Catlin, in Practitioner, London, stress the importance of dietetics in the treatment of obesity.

Some of the scientific principles of the dietetic treatment of overweight as outlined by Dr. Coombs and his associates are:

1. Restriction (cutting down) on carbohydrates or starch foods, more especially of the rich or concentrated forms such as sugar, bread, potatoes.
2. Cutting down on fats—cream, fat meat. Small amount of butter is allowed.
3. Continuing to eat the usual amount of meat, fish and eggs (body builders).
4. Eating a generous supply of vegetables and fruit to provide bulk and satisfy hunger.
5. Eating enough vitamins as provided by vegetables, fruit, eggs, milk, and butter.
6. Eating a sufficient supply of minerals—salads (vegetable and fruit), leafy vegetables, sea foods, but omitting or cutting down on table salt.
7. Eating bulky meals to prevent hunger—cabbage, lettuce, celery, radishes, cauliflower.
8. Three or four meals during the day but nothing between meals.

You will notice that the above advice as to a reducing diet is directly in line with that advocated by weight reducing experts in America.

"The Rolling Ball" Act

No one except La Roche, the Rumanian acrobat, has ever been known to perform "The Rolling Ball," an act which he invented and presented in the circuses of Europe for many years during the latter part of the Nineteenth century. Enclosed in a ball about three feet in diameter, says Collier's Weekly, he rolled himself up and down a narrow spiral ledge which encircled a supporting pole 25 feet in height.

Old Masters

The question arises as to what percentage of the paintings called "old masters" are fakes. No compilation of statistics is available. By way of illustration, however, of the volume of the business done in spurious "old masters" it is said that 2,000 paintings attributed to Van Dyck have been sold to art collectors and galleries, whereas the artist actually produced only 70 paintings during his lifetime.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. What They Learn at School for 'Angels of the Airways'

BEFORE she is sent aloft to keep airline passengers comfortable and happy, the air stewardess must learn the ropes in special classes, such as the ones conducted at Kansas City, Mo., and pictured here.

The girls, most of whom are graduate nurses, must be taught the proper manner in which an air stewardess greets passengers at the door of a plane; how to move about in the aisle; what to say and what not to say in conversing with passengers; the correct way to serve hot food prepared in the plane's buffet; how to make up a berth neatly and correctly (as pictured at right); the correct make-up of face and nails, and dozens of other things.

A prospective stewardess must be of somewhat mechanical bent, too, for she must understand instruction in the building of an airliner; in the heating system of the cabin; why and how a plane flies, and the duties and ability of the pilot while aloft.

Picture Parade

Serving a hot meal to a passenger in the clouds is no simple trick. The student shown above is practicing the deft art and doing very well, too. A typical meal which might be served aloft to an airline passenger would include fried chicken or lamb chops, potato chips, fruit salad, coffee and nuts.

Paper dishes are usually used for meals in the sky, but the silverware must be polished (as shown above) in the liner's compact buffet.

Lesson for November 14

THE CHRISTIAN MINISTER

LESSON TEXT—I Timothy 4:6-16; II Timothy 2:14.

GOLDEN TEXT—Neglect not the gift that is in thee.—I Timothy 4:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Brave Preachers

JUNIOR TOPIC—Two Brave Preachers

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why and How Ministers Are Trained

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Minister in the Modern World.

"The Christian Minister"—there is no greater calling among men, but none is more often the target for misrepresentation and abuse by those outside, and all too often the victim of the carelessness, weakness, and sin of those within its own circle. On the other hand it has had, and continues to have to this day, within its ranks such a noble army of faithful and sacrificial men as would probably be impossible to duplicate in any other calling.

The study of today's lesson should arouse in the hearts of Christian people a high regard for the ministry as a calling, and a kindly purpose to aid their minister to live up to its glorious possibilities. Every true minister who studies it will find his spirit humbled before God in thanksgiving for the privilege of service, and in prayer that he may be forgiven for his failures and empowered for the work of the future.

The need for such a study is indicated in the verses just preceding our lesson, namely, I Timothy 4:15, where we read of the express warning of the Spirit of God that in the latter times there should be teaching and preaching which departed from the faith, substituting men's wisdom for God's Word. One who looks around him cannot but feel that we have fallen upon that evil day. We do well to give heed to the clear teaching of our lesson regarding the ministry.

I. What to Preach (I Tim. 4:6-9).

The "good minister of Jesus Christ" preaches the words of God. To do this he must himself be "nourished" by them. Spare your preacher the necessity of running errands, serving on boards and committees, and encourage him to study his Bible.

Preacher, are you studying God's Book, learning and teaching "good doctrine"? If so you will have no interest in or time for "profane and old wives fables."

II. How to Preach (I Tim. 4:10-12).

1. Sacrificially (v. 10). The man who regards the ministry as a nice, easy, respectable occupation is not in the same calling as was the apostle Paul. In fact, there is nothing to indicate that he is in the Christian ministry at all, for in that calling there is labor and suffering of reproach. This is not something to be borne in a spirit of resigned submission. The minister knows and "trusts in the living God," and gladly bears every responsibility with which God may entrust him.

2. Authoritatively (v. 11). The minister of Christ speaks for God. In doing so he teaches with assurance and is to "command" men in the Lord's name. All too often the servants of the Lord feel and act like "grasshoppers" (see Numbers 13:33), and everybody else regards them as feeble and impotent, when they should be "strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus" (II Tim. 2:1).

3. Actively (v. 12). Whether young or old, the minister is to be an example, a pattern in his active daily life. Note how discriminating is the scripture. He is to be a pattern for others in speech, manner of living, in love, in spirit, in faith, and in purity of life.

III. Who is to Preach (I Tim. 4:13-16).

1. The man who is divinely called (v. 14). God called Timothy; men recognized that call and ordained him to give his life to the exercise of his God-presented gift. This is the right order for our day.

2. The man who is properly prepared (vv. 13, 15-16). The ministry calls for the best preparation that a man can possibly obtain. He must know how to read God's Word, both publicly and privately. He is to be skilled in exhortation, and in teaching Christian doctrine.

In conclusion, let us consider the portion from II Timothy 2 which properly presents the work of the minister as that of a soldier at war against the world, the flesh, and the devil. He must be prepared to bear hardness, and he must not yield to the temptation to get into "side-lines," no matter how dignified and profitable they may be. His sole business is to serve and to please God.

Paul's overflowing heart pours out upon Timothy, and upon true Christian soldiers of awaiting centuries, a flood of heartening counsel, promises of grace sufficient to meet all certain afflictions and persecutions. The age of subtle persecution of vital and faithful Christians is not past, therefore the promises that pertained to Timothy are for true believers of the present day.

Shoes Must Have Air.—Do not keep your shoes in the boxes in which they were delivered. Shoes require air to preserve them and they should never be kept in an air-tight box. Keep them in a shoe bag.

Scaling Fish.—Fish may be scaled easily by first dipping them into boiling water for a minute.

A Darning Ball.—A discarded electric light bulb makes a good darning ball.

Removing Blueing Spots.—Blueing spots on white clothing can be removed by boiling in clear water.

Serving Omelets.—Omelets should be placed on hot platters to keep them from falling.

Inexpensive Stew.—Chop two onions and a large carrot finely, and cut a pound of neck lamb into small pieces. Put into a saucepan with one cup macaroni broken into small lengths, cover with warm water and season. Let it simmer gently for one and a half hours.

Whipping Cream.—If whipped cream will not stand up, it is often due to the fact that the cream is not sufficiently chilled. It is important, too, to have a heavy cream of the right butter fat (20 to 30 per cent) and 12 to 24 hours old. The cream must be cold, and is best beaten in a cold container.

Ox-Tail Pie.—Wash ox tail in salted water and joint; put into pan, cover with water, and simmer until almost cooked. Line bottom and sides of pie dish with slices of raw potato sprinkled with pepper and salt. Cover with strips of bacon, then place ox tail in center and pour in stock; season and cover with more slices of potato. Cover with pastry and bake in a quick oven.

Save Table Surface.—If you will place a folded cloth under a dish which contains foods to be beaten you'll find the table surface will be saved many marks and the dish will be kept steady.

"The Life Of Emile Zola

No Advance In Admission To See This Mighty Spectacle

About Town By Otto B. Grate

All set for around town hop? Hope so, for this little excursion is the bright spot of the week for yours truly.

The first place of interest (that sounds matter of fact, doesn't it) is the Cinema capital of Baird, the Plaza theatre. Yeah, I know the whole town's talking "Zola" but you ought to know a few of the coming attractions too.

"West of Shanghai" coming next Bargain nite, with Boris Karloff as the star. Karloff recently won a screen magazine award for the most unique and entirely transforming make-up of the month.

You'll be seeing why when you see the picture just mentioned. Yours for bargain nite a week in advance is "Exclusive", a news paper yarn with Fred McMurray the lad you selected for stardom in the "Gilded Lily" but who has been suffering a bit down in story material lately.

Second only to the Muni epic coming this week is the one a week hence "The Prisoner of Zenda". There's a picture it would be hard to build up too high. Its a story of a mix up in twin princes, one an outsider and one the real McCoy.

There are duels in dim dusty castle halls escapes in the dark of night, and stolen kisses that may have to last an eternity. But don't let that scare you off, its really film fare at its tastiest.

It looks like winter is really coming to the home town at last. A rain and a norther hit almost simultaneously this week by the time you read this you may be getting out the overcoat, the heavy one, and ear muffs, and then again you may be planning a lawn party, that's West Texas weather.

Maybe you were thrilled last week when the western stars blew into town, Tom Mix and Ken Maynard, I believe. Maybe you were thrilled, and maybe you slept right through it, any way, pardner, we raise 'em in these parts what can ride rings around them furrin boxoes (That is West Texas talk, so the movies tell me) and I'll put up Billie and Curley Seale to do it.

Barton entertained their husbands and families with a party Oct. 27 at the Denton School gymnasium. The program committee had 8 tables of 42 going while others played indoor games. Hallowe'en decorations were carried out in the refreshments served to the 75 guests.

On The Baird Campuses

Of course you knew Baird won over the Moran Bulldogs 46-0, but what you don't know, and no one else knows, is where Moran was when the shooting was going on, and that what it was, shooting, and just plain murder.

The High school Home Economics department is getting ready for the showing of their own creations of what the sub-deb will wear to the evening formal. That style parade should begin any week now.

With a bunch of ta-ra-ra's and whoop-a-do's the football sweet heart will be announced next week. Will then her identity in a deep dark secret, or maybe deep blonde one.

The dramatic club is devoting its time these days to the selection of plays to be put on in connection with county meet. There will be three plays tried and the trop whose play comes out on top will represent the school in the play contest fields day. Special attention will be given individual performances and they will appear from time to time in a series of plays to be given over the radio, what a chance for young Bernhard or another Barrymore.

The freshmen, by the way have a play all their own, since they are a little young to compete with other classes, that play is "Elmer". And its no secret that the dramatic club wants you to watch for the opening date of "The Nervous Wreck."

Drivers License Examiners To Be In Baird Nov. 19

Two driver's license examiners of the Department of Public Safety will be in Baird on November 19th 2:30 p. m. to 5:00 p. m., to conduct tests for drivers applying for their first license, according to Col. H. H. Carmichael director of the public safety department.

Establishing headquarters at the County Court House the uniformed officers will give the examinations every Friday of each week from 2:30 p. m. to 5:00 p. m. In applying for the driving tests the applicant must furnish his own vehicle or one he proposes to operate after he secures a license, the safety director pointed out.

After oral quizzes are completed each applicant will be required to drive his car or truck over a designated route under the supervision of one of the trained examiners. During the drive the operator must demonstrate the use of his foot and hand brakes, stop for signals and perform other acts necessitated in ordinary traffic situations. Before the actual driving test is made the examiners will quiz the license applicants on safety regulations and signals, highway laws and makes test of their eyesight and hearing. Any physical deformities will be recorded on a grade card.

Not only will driver's license applicants be examined as to their ability to handle a vehicle with safety but the vehicle itself will be tested for defects in brakes, horn, lights, rear-view mirror, and windshield wiper.

If a driver proves his ability to operate his vehicle with care and safety he will immediately receive his license at the examinations headquarters. If a passing grade is not made after the test is completed, an instruction permit card will be issued which requires the applicant to return at a later date for another examination. Examiners of the Safety Department estimates that a complete test can be given in 12 minutes.

Truck bus and other commercial vehicle drivers will be issued license divided into three classes A, B, and C, according to the type of vehicle to be operated. Passenger and school bus drivers are issued a permit bearing a special endorsement of the Department. Col. Carmichael urged that drivers seeking their license verse themselves in safety regulation, rules of the highway and the mechanical operations of their vehicles in preparations for the tests.

They were making a location on the Thomas farm Wednesday.
