"Keep Your Head Down, Allemand"

One of our sharpshooters draws a bead on a German sniper during the Fifth Army drive North of Rome. In World War I a favorite song with the AEF had the above title. The gist was that the Jerry would "never see his father in the Fatherland" if he didn't keep his noggin down. It's true of the sons of the first AEF who also can do some plain and fancy shooting. Back 'em up with War Bonds.

Bell Brothers Together

A NINTH AIR FORCE SERVICE COMMAND UNIT, EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS—Two Clarendon boys, James and Kenneth Bell, have been very fortunate in their Army Career. Both have been together with the exception of two months since their enlistment in September and October, 1942.

They started their Army Service at Lubbock Army Air Field, Lubbock, Texas. After completing their basic training, they were transferred to Laughlin Army Air Field, Del Rio, Texas. While stationed there, Kenneth was transferred to the Service Command Unit of which he is now a member at the Venice Army Air Field, Venice, Florida. In August 1943 his Unit moved to Waycross, Ga., where James joined him in September. From that time on both boys have been in the same unit.

The Bell boys have three other brothers in the Service, two in the States and one in the Navy somewhere in the Pacific.

They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Bell of Clarendon.

James is the clerk in the Operations and Training Section of a Service Command Unit and Kenneth is the clerk of the Automotive Section of an Ordnance Supply and Maintenance Company.

Montgomery of Borger; her mother, Mrs. Eva Womack of Amarillo; three sisters, Mrs. G. C. Frazier and Mrs. Ralph Andis of Amarillo and Mrs. Roy McAlister of Dallas; two brothers, J. L. Womack of Amarillo and Andrew Womack of Memphis; two nephews, Harry G. Womack, U. S. Marines and Billy Ralph Andis, U. S. Navy; also one niece, Jean Crawford of California.

Burial was in Fairview Cemetery, Memphis, Texas with Womack Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Douglas of Los Angeles will spend the week end in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Smith.

Truck & Bus Tire Certificates Cancelled

All outstanding tire ration certificates dated July 15 or earlier for truck and bus tires size 8.25 and larger were cancelled July 30 because of the critical shortage of these tires. The District Office of Price Administration has announced. Truck and bus operators who hold tire ration certificates dated earlier must reapply to their Ration Board in the same manner as before.

Invalidation of the older certificates was ordered to make sure that present low stocks are drawn on only to fill the needs of applicants at the top of the essentialist, officials explained. Approximately 100,000 certificates are affected by this action.

Ely Fonville, District Rationing Executive, pointed out that all certificates dated prior to July 15 are invalid, whether in the hands of consumers, dealers or manufacturers. Dealers may not deliver tires to consumers in exchange for the certificates and manufacturers may not deliver to dealers.

Certificates for smaller size truck tires and for passenger car tires remain valid, as well as certificates issued on and after July 15 for the large size truck tires.

Mercury Reaches New High For Summer

Donley county residents, along with the entire state, have sweated this week under the highest temperature of the summer. Here in this particular section, we have received quite a bit of rain fall, but due to the extreme heat all around us, it is not doing too much good.

Fine growing crops, especially corn and feeds, are beginning to fire up a bit under the heat, and if the heat wave continues, will have a very hard struggle to make the bumper crop that has been in sight.

The official weather station at the Airport reported 105.3 degrees on Monday and the record high Wednesday of 108.4 degrees. This, however was only .4 degree above Tuesday which saw the mercury climb to 108 during the afternoon.

This is one time when everyone is satisfied with the standing record—not breaking it. The hot winds accompanying the high temperature is what makes us feel the greater effects of the heat as sleeping quarters remain hot throughout the entire night where there is no air-conditioning, and everyone feels that they have only had a struggle instead of a nights rest.

Brothers Meet In New Guinea

It isn't every day that brothers, who are overseas in this global conflict, happen to run into one another. That is just what happened to S/Sgt. Eldon C. Holland and Cpl. Calvin S. Holland, sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Holland of Lelia Lake. They knew they were near each other and were hoping to see each other. Calvin had been on a mission with his crew and had a little rough sledding and were forced to land in New Guinea. The enemy wasn't very kind to his ship that day.

After landing at this Air Base, he noticed the Jolly Rogers Group of planes were there. He knew Eldon belonged to this group, so he looked around, found Eldon's ship with his insignia painted on the side and was not long in finding Eldon. Calvin walked in his tent and found Eldon lying on his cot bay. As Calvin puts it, Eldon nearly passed out so great was his surprise on seeing him. Letters were received from both boys telling of the meeting. They both say this was the greatest moment of their lives.

The brothers spent a night and day together. Eldon says no one can imagine how many things they had to talk about.

Eldon has completed twenty missions while Calvin is just getting started out. Just the same, Eldon says Calvin has already had some interesting experiences. Calvin was able to give Eldon just about the latest on every thing at home as he was home on furlough in May. It really did mean a lot to them to meet each other.

Eldon is serving as gunner on a B-24 Liberator in the 5th Air Force. Calvin is the same only he is with the 13th Air Force. Eldon is in New Guinea while Calvin is stationed in the Admiralty Group of Islands.

Local Schools To Start Sept. 4th

SALVATION ARMY TO MAKE ANNUAL APPEAL

W. D. Pedigo, veteran campaigner from state headquarters of the Salvation Army will be in Clarendon this week making his annual canvass for funds for this organization, so well known to veterans of the first world war.

This canvass affords the citizenship a dependable and economical means of assisting the organization in their state activities and general program.

In foreign war countries the Salvation Army, through their Red Shield organization, is giving aid and comfort on established war fronts serving the cause of freedom and justice with love and understanding.

On the home front the Salvation Army keeps operative its vast program of humanitarian services expanded and intensified to meet ever increasing needs. This canvass is intended for the entire year unless an emergency arises. It is hoped that the response will be unusually generous this year.

Before leaving the states, Lieut. Jay served as a Bombardier instructor for several months. He will probably serve as a bombardier on one of the big bombers, shuttle-bombing between Italy, Russia and England.

Mrs. O. C. Watson Jr. and daughter Helen Hope went to Amarillo Wednesday to meet her husband Seabee O. C. Watson Jr., who is at Camp Davisville, R. I. He is on a 15 day furlough.

Lions Club Visits Canning Center

The program for the Lions Club, Tuesday, August 1st, was under the direction of J. R. Gillham, local Vocational Agriculture instructor, and consisted of a visit to the Clarendon Canning Center. Gillham gave brief history of the origin and the operational setup of the local and Lelia Lake Canning Centers, and then the entire Lions Club moved as a body to the Clarendon Center where they found a group of women, under the direction of Mrs. J. C. Christal, canning peaches, corn, beans, prunes, raisins, hot tamales and squash.

Power driven grinders and sealers, pre-war and victory type pressure cookers, retorts, food mills, exhaust boxes, and other up-to-date canning equipment were demonstrated to the visiting lions.

The Lions learned that this equipment, water, gas and lights, and the services of the lady supervisor were available to any one desiring to use these facilities for canning. The supervisor assists those using the facilities with selecting proper recipes and methods of canning their products.

The Lions learned that approximately 14,000 pints of food had been processed at Clarendon and Lelia Lake through these two centers since the first of April.

What Happened to the Master Race Here?

The answer to this is simple. These American paratroopers dropped out of the sky over Normandy, took this French village and captured this Nazi tank. Herr Goebbels used to prattle that we were a decadent race. Sure, so decadent that foot soldiers can capture German tanks intact. Note that division insignia has been censored out. Are you backing up such brave men as these with War Bond purchases? From U. S. Treasury

Arthur L. Chase Jr. Writes Another Interesting Letter From Overseas

EDITORS NOTE—Again it is our pleasure and good fortune to pass to our readers another one of those interesting letters written by Arthur L. Chase Jr., who is somewhere in Italy with a Machine Records Unit. We join with our readers in thanking Arthur for these wonderful trips to Italian beauty spots which most of us can never hope to see.

I spent an afternoon and night in Naples on the way back and was very happy to get another chance to do a few of the things I had missed before. I went to La

Traviata at the San Carlo Opera house in the afternoon and took a late Red Cross bus tour of the city late in the afternoon. The tour covered many parts of the city which I had missed on my previous visit and which I was especially anxious to see. I feel now that I have seen as much of Naples as I will ever need to see, for after all it is one of those places which is beautiful mainly when viewed in panorama, and after seeing enough of it to get a few of these panoramic views printed on your mind, you do not have much desire to see more of

it. I am sweating out Rome now, but although several fellows in the unit have already had a chance to be there for short periods of time, I doubt seriously that I will ever have the chance, for I have already had two three-day passes, and there are still some in the unit who have never had even one.

Another fellow in the unit left recently to go home on rotation and as usual I find myself more or less in a blue funk over it. Not that I regret his good fortune, but I guess that there is a little bit of envy in my feelings and also a great feeling of self-recrimination, for if it weren't for the assinine answer that I gave when the subject was first brought up back in Africa, I would probably be leaving soon, or might possibly have already gone. The fellow who left was one of the best-liked persons in the outfit, and one of the few whose friendship I would like to retain after the War. There have been several other original members of the unit who have transferred out to other outfits, and in various other ways it seems that the outfit that I came overseas with is rapidly disintegrating. It is a little hard after being together so long, but at the same time it seems that we have been together far too long, especially for a unit so small. In many ways it is just about the same as living in a very small town—everyone knows everyone else too well.

My work has been so much lighter lately that I frequently have trouble trying to keep busy, and that is a situation which is harder on me than the strain of overwork to which I have been subjected during most of the time we have been in operation.

"This is The Army" finally reached the place where we are stationed and I saw it again for the third time and enjoyed it as much as before. The good movies have slacked off a bit, but I plan to see "Gaslight" with Ingrid Bergman and Charles Boyer this week. I should enjoy it, for she is by far my favorite actress at present. The only big entertainment treat for me recently was the personal appearance of the famous violinist, Jascha Heifitz, recently. His concert was mostly very deeply classical and far above my head musically, but he could have been playing Mairzy Doats and still made superlative music, so perfect is his technique and so sincere his expression. For so great an artist, he had a wonderful stage personality, making entertaining little remarks and ad libs in broken English between numbers. The last part of the program was as usual a little lighter and more familiar, although he upheld his professional dignity by refusing adamantly to play "The Bee" as an encore! His final encore was "Ave Maria", and I have never seen a more silent or more impressed GI audience. It is a never-ending source of amazement to me when I think of how many really outstanding performers and artists have contributed their services for entertainment of overseas forces, and in general what a marvelous job USO Camp Shows, the Red Cross, and other "aid organizations are doing over here.

Since I have gotten a book pretty well started, I might as well go ahead and exhaust everything that I can dig out of my mind. Some time ago, censorship regulations were lifted somewhat in that we were given a list of several of the more important towns in Italy which may now be mentioned in letters as having been visited. I of course have written previously about some of the places I saw in the Naples area. I have also seen quite a lot of the territory East of the mountains, including the two main cities in that area, Bari and Foggia. Bari is a kind of postage-stamp version of Naples, although it is a very nice city and does have a number of very well designed ultra-modern buildings built by the Fascists, and it is in general a cleaner-than-average Italian city and has a large number of better-educated and well-dressed people. Foggia was evidently one of the pets of the Fascists, for, with the exception of the old part of the town which is comparatively small, it was almost entirely modern and there are a number of large and apparently useless buildings which stand now as monuments to the folly of the Italian people in listening to Musso. It is situated in a huge absolutely flat plain, which was evidently at one time a lake bed, and this whole area was used by the Fascists to try to achieve their dream of self-sufficiency for Italy; this was to be the bread-basket. In order to achieve this, they broke the land up into small farms and built hundreds of absolutely identical stone and tile-roof farmhouses, one of which can be distinguished from another only by a big number painted on the front. The sameness of it all arouses your interest when traveling through this area, but I can imagine living under such conditions would be colorless and dull to the point of unendurability. The city of Bari and a few of the smaller towns on the coast near there are really the only points of any interest whatsoever in the whole part of eastern Italy which I have seen, and they do not compare in any way with the landscape, cities or culture in general that is found on the western side of the mountains.

As for the mountains separating these two distinctly different areas of southern Italy, I have crossed them by only one road, but it is one of the most scenic trips I have ever taken. There is almost always at least one town in sight perched up on the very top of a mountain, and usually you can see two or three of these at one time. From a distance they make an unbelievably beautiful picture, but occasionally the road meanders up the hill and wanders through the middle of one of them; then they lose some of their "Old World Charm" and just stink. Most of the hills and mountains, except the highest and most rugged, are cultivated in some manner or other, being covered either with patchwork fields or vegetable patches, or spotted with trees, all of which makes for an entirely different type of mountain scenery than anything you see at least in the western part of the States, where Nature is usually allowed to take her course in such places. I guess that fairly well covers most of my sightseeing in Italy, which with the exception of what I have seen in the Naples area doesn't amount to much, but I do get some pleasure out of seeing anything different from that to which I am accustomed, as you probably remember from the many wonderful trips I have had with you. Please don't get the idea that all I think of over here is seeing things. After all, most of my time overseas has been spent in about four or five extremely restricted spots, where there is very little to see, and most Army sightseeing is done either while moving from one place to another, or at rare intervals while on pass, or occasionally while going somewhere on official business. The rest of the time is pretty much of a humdrum.

Love,
Arthur

Dear Mrs. Wilson:
I presume that you have already received word from the War Department stating that your son, S/Sgt. Max W. Wilson, ASN 18036098, is listed as "Missing in Action". I know something of the great anxiety that must fill your heart because of this sad and uncertain news concerning him.

It is because we share this anxiety and sorrow with you that this letter is being written at the request of the Commanding General, Eighth Air Force.

It is, and will be, impossible for me to give any information concerning the action in which your son took part, but it is possible for me to hope and pray with you for his safety. This I do daily with all the sincerity of my heart. The Adjutant General, Washington, D. C., will advise of any change in status as soon as such information can be released.

I know well that what I say can do little to ease the burden of your heart, but I also know that our loving Heavenly Father can and will give us the strength, grace, and courage to carry us through every trial. I am confident that the burdens and sacrifices of these dark days shall not be in vain.

Praying God's richest blessings upon you and yours, I am
Sincerely,

Armor Piercing Projectiles

Army Ordnance has developed new invasion armor piercing projectiles that are 12 percent better than those previously used against the enemy, according to Capt. R. M. Smith, commanding the Pantex Ordnance Plant, Amarillo, Texas, of which Certeinteed Products Corporation is Prime Contractor.

This development occurred at a time when the steel industry's rolling capacity was taxed to the limit. However, through research and with the close cooperation of industry, Ordnance discovered that old style shot could be re-forged and converted into a new type projectile.

At the time this change occurred, the Ordnance Department, Army Service Forces, had on hand 21,562,007 old style projectiles ready for loading with explosives. In making the conversion to the new projectiles, 178,631,849 lbs. of duo-alloy steel were salvaged and reused, thus saving many precious man-hours in the steel industry and giving our invasion forces greater firepower.

Taxpayers' savings were large. A saving of from an average of twenty-five cents on the 37-mm caliber projectile to an average of $1.00 on the larger caliber projectiles was made in remachining the restructed forging, as contrasted with the cost of the projectiles from new bar stock.

According to Captain Smith close cooperation between Industry and the Ordnance Department will always result in more production, the use of less critical materials, and declining cost.

Today, Army Ordnance is constantly striving to conserve America's natural wealth. It is making every taxpayer's dollar do double duty, said Capt. Smith.

In Memory of Mother Clifford

One by one we are passing over,
One by one we go away.
At the dawn or in the evening,
Into God's eternal day.
One by one we are crossing over,
One by one we shall reach that shore
Where the Lord will send his boatman
There to bear us safely o'er.
One by one we shall cross Death's river
Where we shall view the other side;
There the golden gates of heaven
Will be standing open wide.
Oh dark it seems before us!
As we view the mystic way
But the Lord will lead us onward
Into a brighter, happier day.
One by one, dear Mother Clifford
We shall bid you a sad goodbye,
But we'll meet you over yonder
In that home beyond the sky.

Cheese Industry Makes Plans For Post-War Sales

Close cooperation between all branches of the cheese industry in solving wartime production and distribution problems and in planning for expansion of domestic and foreign markets after the war was the keynote of the annual meeting of the National Cheese Institute, held recently in Chicago.

Lawrence G. Butler, president and general manager of the Lake-shire-Marty Company, Plymouth, Wis., was elected president, succeeding John H. Kraft, president of the Kraft Company.

Mr. Butler emphasized the fact that cheese production throughout the war has been maintained near the all-time high reached in 1942. The backlog of product good-will built up among soldiers and civilians should enable the industry to reach new high levels of domestic consumption after the war, he pointed out.

Mr. Kraft, in his annual address, predicted that post-war changes in the cheese industry will be as remarkable as those of the past 20 years. He made three recommendations to the industry to avoid post-war surpluses:

1. Increased emphasis on research projects in colleges and universities to improve products and analyze the economics of dairy production.
2. Closer cooperation between dairy farmers and industry.
3. Aggressive merchandising methods to widen the domestic market.

"It will be the responsibility of our industry to drive harder than ever before toward expanding cheese consumption by improving the efficiency of our operations and the quality of our product," he said.

Can Vitamins Change GRAY HAIR?

Impertial investigators have found vitamin Calcium Pantothenate of some value in changing gray hair, where a deficiency of this vitamin may have caused gray or graying hair.

For example, one test conducted by Good Housekeeping magazine on a number of people, showed 85% of those tested (all ages were included) had positive evidence of a return of some hair color.

Now thousands use GRAYVITA, which contains 10 mgm. of Calcium Pantothenate (the same amount used in above tests) PLUS 450 U.S.P. units of B<sub>12</sub>, the vitamin necessary to healthy nerves. Try GRAYVITA. See what a difference it may make in the way you look. 30 day supply, $1.50; 100 day supply, $4.00.

LIBRARY NOTES

By Mrs. C. A. Burton

Again we have the "books" if not the "Shady Nooks" to offer you. These new ones are now available: "O Distant Star," Mary Francis Dover; "Hallelujah," Fannie Hurst; "Slade," Warwick Deeping; "The Golden Fleece", Norah Lofts; "Invasion," Whitman Chambers; "Love Flies Out," Vida Hurst; "Portrait of Laurel," Kenneth Thomas; "Tacy Cromwell," Conrad Richter; "What America Means to Me," Pearl Buck; "The Golden Horde," La Salle Gilman; "The Last Days of Sevastopol," Boris Voyetckhov.

As you see some are by favorite and well known writers as Fannie Hurst, Warwick Deeping, and Pearl Buck. Others are strangers to our shelves—but new friends among writers are often as interesting as new friends among the people whom we meet. It is interesting to have even the tiny tots come to ask if I have "another book by that author."

Two books which have been so very outstanding in interest are "The Nazarene" which came out two years ago, and "The Apostle" which is one of the leading best sellers today. The author, Sholem es since it first came out. "Texas, a World in Itself" has been written since the other, and Perry's latest book is soon to appear—"Where Away: A Modern Odyssey." It is the story of the voyage home 14,000 miles of the crippled cruiser Marblehead which was torpedoed in the Java Sea.

Mr. Perry is now in the North African waters as a Navy correspondent. His pride in the fighting men of the Navy is outstanding in his newest story.

Asch, a native of Poland, came to this country many years ago, and lives in a pleasant two-story house several miles from Stamford, Conn. On the second floor he has his study amidst the books which he treasures—Sixteenth century Italian—printed editions of the Bible, thirteenth century original manuscripts in Latin, curious versions of the Talmud—hosts of other books.

One cannot enter the Asch home without sensing the wide range of human interests that dominate the household. Paintings on the walls, cupboards filled with collections, coins dating from Roman times and before—all gathered during his travels, all revealing his intense interest in history. During his first trip through Palestine, he conceived the giant idea that 36 years afterward came to final expression in "The Apostle"—the story of St. Paul. He has lived in France where he acquired most of the paintings in his home and he spent a good deal of time in Berlin where he observed the events he described in "The War Goes On". He says he could not have written "The Nazarene" and "The Apostle" had he not come to America.

Mr. Asch writes in the mornings—lives with his characters, sometimes leaving his study exhausted with their struggles. It has been said of him that he is a prophet of general understanding and good will between all peoples. His life, his home and his writings are devoted to that one high purpose.

IT'S not likely that a shifty, fast-talking gent will ever sidle up to you with such an offer.

Bootleggers and Black Markets exist only where there are shortages—and a chance to make big profits by breaking ceiling prices.

There are no Black Markets in electricity, nor are there any shortages.

And far from pushing against price ceilings, the price of electricity has stayed right down on the floor. In fact, over the last 15 years, the average price to the average family has been cut just about in half. Of course, you probably have more electric appliances and use more electricity today than you did then—but you're getting twice as much for your money!

Your thanks for such a big bargain belong largely to your friends and neighbors who work with this company. They're doing a better job every year.

HOME SERVICE

Mrs. C. A. Burton

The government feels that a man can be valuable only if he is in the place where he can give good service. This may be in the Army or Navy or in civilian life. Many conditions enter into these adjustments, hence the comparatively large number of discharges. This is particularly true of the Navy, which is neither cold-blooded nor arbitrary, but which does study each recruit carefully; through specialized psychiatric examinations.

The War Prisoner's Aid of the U.M.C.A. has established a department of Individual Book Service which is designed to meet requests for particular books, especially those needed to complete study courses. More than one thousand such requests are being met each month, some of which are being received from Axis prisoners in North Africa.

Families of prisoners of war are urged not to write too often and not to write long letters in order that the mail may be sure to be delivered. And they are asked to put the address toward the bottom of the envelope in order that the postmarks will not make the name undecipherable.

The deportation of civilians and their confinement in concentration camps has created many difficult problems in communications. A distinction is made between persons confined in concentration or labor camps and between interned civilians.

Persons in concentration camps are not assimilated to the Geneva Convention despite frequent efforts on the part of the International Committee of the Red Cross, it has not been possible to obtain for them any of the privileges of the Geneva Convention.

Civilian internees are assimilated and may send and receive mail. Representatives of the International Committee of the Red Cross are not admitted to concentration or to labor camps.

SLEEPING SICKNESS (Horses)

It is generally believed that this disease is transmitted by blood sucking insects. Tests have shown that 10 different types of mosquitoes can carry or spread disease. People are subject to this disease as same as horses. Children are more susceptible than grown people.

From July to frost is the most common time that sleeping sickness breaks out. With continued rains followed by period of hot dry weather favors the outbreak or spread of sleeping sickness. Nearly every animal that develops sleeping sickness develops a fever, sleepiness, grinding of teeth, wobbly gait, with difficulty in chewing and swallowing.

One type of sleeping sickness may not go any further than this stage but the other type may continue to cause involvement of the brain and spinal cord. The lips become loose and droopy, sometimes wrinkled or perhaps drawn to one side. Head, shoulders and flanks muscles may twitch spasmodically. Some animals may back persistently, stumble or circle in one direction, switching tail as they move. Whinnying is common symptom. In most cases the animal is stupid and won't move but a few become wild and unmanageable.

The dejected sleeper, when aroused may show interest in eating or drinking for few minutes but will probably go to sleep with food or water in mouth.

In about 1 of 4 cases of Western type virus and 9 out of 10 cases of the eastern type virus the animal becomes weaker and finally falls to ground. Few that go down are able to regain their feet.

Control and Prevention

After the symptoms appear in horses it is doubtful if vaccines will do any good as it takes about 10 days to 2 weeks for vaccine to take effect for immunity.

As preventative measure, the approved, commercially available chick embryo vaccine with the virus killed by solution of formaldehyde is recommended. This vaccine may be purchased with eastern, western or both types of virus. Since the virus has been destroyed by the formaldehyde there is no danger of infecting well animals with disease.

In the past there has been several reactions or deaths resulting from injection of vaccines. These results can be prevented by injecting vaccine into the skin and not under skin and 'not in the muscles.

One dose of vaccine lasts only a short time. A second dose should be given in 7 to 10 days.

Horses should be vaccinated each year prior to appearance of mosquitoes to prevent spread of sleeping sickness.

Farm Folks Have Low Score Here

Charles Reed, Donley County Agent, states that agriculture employs 16 per cent of the nation's workers, last year agriculture reported 24 per cent of all fatal accidents. That's not a very good record. And it's one of the reasons why National Farm Safety Week will be observed in this country beginning July 23rd.

Last year two million farmers or members of their families or hired hands were hurt in some kind of farm accident. Were you one of those two million? Enough time was lost as a result of these accidents to have produced half the annual wheat crop of this country. Because of them, four and one half days' food supply for every person in this country never was produced.

Two-fifths of all these accidents to farm people occur in the homes. The Texas A&M College Extension Service says that falls are the leading cause of these farm home tragedies. Burns come next. Third in the list are accidents with guns or pistols.

As you'd naturally suspect, most of the outside accidents involve machinery. About a fourth of them, however, were caused by livestock, and one out of 10 was a cause of heat prostration.

Today as you work about your farm or home, keep your eyes open for danger spots. Watch for equipment which needs repair. Check your fire hazards. Promise yourself you won't let a week go by before you make your place a safer farm or home. If you need some advice on farm or home safety, consult your county agent. Incidentally, don't let a day go by before you get a complete first aid kit—one that is adapted to the needs on a farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Odie Martin and son Jimmy of Dumas brought his mother, Mrs. W. D. Martin home Tuesday night.

ENNIS FAVORS THANKS DONLEY VOTERS

The election is over, and I wish to say I ran my race on my own merits and not the demerits of any one. I feel that the many unfounded and untrue charges made against myself and family, were made in the heat of the campaign and without due consideration, and despite the sting, I hold no ill will against any one, and will do my best to represent all the people of the District during the next two years as I have done in the past.
