MUENSTER, TEXAS, COOKE COUNTY, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1945

NUMBER 42

Opinions and complications being aired on the subject of job guarantees for veterans foreshadow a good deal of confusion, and probably a great deal of trouble as well. Already the big boys in Washington are wondering what to do about the unusual situation. Suppose a man who replaced an inductee were later inducted. Would both be entitled to return to the same job? Suppose the firm had to lay off men and the inductee, because of his place on the seniority list, would have been included. Does it have to rehire him anyway?

Something on the order of this latter difficulty has already been encountered in Pennsylvania. There a company took on fifteen discharged service men. But other employees, insisting preference should have been shown to men of ranking seniority, struck in protest. What can the company do about it? Either way it decides it runs into a fuss—with the union or with the government.

Obviously the original purpose behind the guarantee of jobs cannot be questioned. Selective Service officials wished to offer an assurance that no man because of enforced service to his country would have to worry about economic security upon his return to civilian life. However, too few thought of the complicating problems.

This situation, like so many others, seems to give emphatic testimony to the fact that the government can very easily go overboard in its efforts to do things for people—especially when they are the kind of things that should be left to the contracting parties. In the end it will give little actual help to the veterans but will cause a great deal of grief for the employers. As with the Fair Employment Practices act, regulation will be a constant source of trouble, even when the employer has no intention to discriminate.

As we continue to adopt these regulatory measures were due to find more and more evidence that registration is more of a burden than a help. Men who hand down the decrees are not in a position to foresee the problems that will come up. Furthermore they haven't the right in a system of free enterprise to dictate who will hire whom.

To our way of thinking Selective Service picked the wrong way of expressing gratitude to service men. If, as the regulation implies, the nation is indebted to its veterans—and few will deny that it is—it would seem that the entire nation and not just former employers should make the necessary sacrifices to compensate them. Give the boys additional bonus or musing out pay or whatever seems fair but let it come out of the public purse.

And then, after the official conscience is satisfied that it has done its duty for the fellows, turn them loose and let them get along on their own merits like they did before induction. After all, nine out of ten will be more pleased anyway to shift for themselves, and they're not likely to have much sympathy for the shiftless few who expect the government to lead them through the rest of their lives. Veterans like the rest of us will be taxpayers and they won't like paying the expense of needless official interference.

As a final thought, the Selective Service decree was hardly necessary in the first place. Few if any employers will need any special coercion to take back their former workers as soon as they are discharged. And those who are being told to do it against their wishes will find a way somehow to evade the regulation.

To look at the strike news from Detroit a person would think union bosses have not even learned the war is over. Now they're holding up production of new automobiles just like they did essential materials for the boys at the front. In a wheel factory 4,500 men have gone on strike, thereby causing the forced idleness of a few thousand more men farther along on the production line.

And of all reasons for the strike, this one is because of a dispute over the regional war labor board's refusal to reinstate three union officials.

Obviously industry isn't supposed to have a chance in these labor fusties. It gets clipped coming and going, no matter who causes the trouble.

What's the significance behind all this phrenology? Could it be part of a sinister plot to so discourage industrialists that they will eventually throw up their hands in disgust and leave the way open to socialism? Unless something is done to halt the act.

Joseph Danglmayr, 81, Community Pioneer, Succumbs Tuesday

Funeral Rites Are Held Thursday With Bishop A. Danglmayr Officiating

Joseph Danglmayr, 81, resident of this community for 52 years, died at his home at 5:10 p.m. Tuesday following a long illness.

Funeral services were held Thursday at 10 a.m., with the deceased's son, the Most Rev. Augustine Danglmayr, Auxiliary Bishop of Dallas, officiating at the rites in Sacred Heart church here and burial was in the local cemetery.

Mr. Danglmayr, pioneer resident of Muenster, was widely known. He was one of the original stockholders when the Muenster State bank was organized in 1923 and served as one of the first directors. The first producing oil well in this community was brought in on his farm in September, 1926. He was active in religious and civic affairs as long as his health permitted.

He was born in Krumwalden, Wuerttemberg, Germany, on Feb. 3, 1864, and came to the United States in 1882, settling in Racine, Wis. In 1893, four years after the founding of the Muenster colony, he came here, settling on a small tract of land northwest of the town. He resided on the same place all the rest of his life. Through progressive farming methods he acquired more acreage from year to year until he became one of the largest land owners of this sector.

On October 27, 1896 he married Miss Theresia Muck here, who survives along with seven of his eight children. They are: The Rev. Augustine Danglmayr, Dallas; Mrs. Hubert Felderhoff, Mrs. Tony Felderhoff, Mrs. Bruno Fleitman, Joe R. Albert and Herman Danglmayr, all of Muenster, and 16 grandchildren.

Local Young People Are Off To Distant Schools

A number of local young people have either departed, or are preparing to leave, for distant schools and colleges to attend classes for the coming scholastic year.

Leaving Sunday was Miss Betty Lue Buckley, who will be a freshman at OLV Academy. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E.P. Buckley drove her to Fort Worth and visited there during the day. On Monday, Miss Martha Hennigan departed for the same school. She is a sophomore. Her father, H.P. Hennigan, and members of the family, took her by car.

Tuesday morning Herbert and Jerome Fette, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fette, left by bus for Subiaco, Ark. The former is a senior at the Academy this year and the latter will take first year high school work.

Also leaving Tuesday morning were Misses Theresa Hess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Hess, Miss Barbara Jean Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Miller, and Miss Emma Lou Gehrig, daughter of Mrs. Wm. Gehrig, all entering Holy Angels Academy, Jonesboro, Ark., as freshmen in high school. Mr. and Mrs. Miller drove them as far as Dallas and they went by train from there.

Leaving next Sunday will be Miss Dolly Endres who will take second year college work at OLV College, Fort Worth, and leaving later next week will be Miss Juanita Weinzapfel who returns to Our Lady of the Lake College, San Antonio, as a sophomore this year and Misses Gladys Wilde and Johann Seyler, who will enter Texas Tech at Lubbock as sophomores.

Joe Tempel, yeoman third class member aboard the Hornet, is filmed in the picture "Fighting Lady," a drama of the sea with the Hornet as the "Lady."

Recently at home on leave, and talking about the picture, Joe says he appears in several group scenes and could never be recognized but in one picture he is shown in a small boat, beside the carrier, "an if you already know me, you can tell who I am," he added.

"The Fighting Lady" shows at the Relax Theatre here next Saturday.

All Set For Opening Of School Here

The scholastic year of 1945-46 will open officially next week at the Sacred Heart Parochial School and the Muenster Public School. The former will have registration of all pupils, both grade and high school, on this Friday morning and classes for the two departments will begin on Tuesday. High school classes will be delayed for several days pending completion of the remodeling program at the building. The Public school will start the year Monday morning with registration of pupils and will commence regular classes the following day. The school buses will run the regular routes beginning Monday morning.

Teachers at the Parochial school as announced by Sister Anastasia, local superior, are Sisters Anastasia, Genevieve, Gebharda, Henrietta, Theophane, Anna, Martina and Remigia. They will have charge of the eight elementary grades. The high school faculty consists of Sisters Geraldine, Jerome and Eymara. Two new teachers on the roster in Muenster for the first time are Sisters Anna and Henrietta, while sister Eymara, returns to Muenster after an absence of seven years. They replace Sisters Xavier, Louise and Michael, who are assigned to duties elsewhere this season. Sister Leonarda is again in charge of the School of Music, and Sister Irminda has returned as housekeeper.

At the Public school the faculty is the same as last year with John J. Hoffman, superintendent, and Mrs. L. Burchfield teaching the high school, and Mrs. Daisy Thompson and Miss Elfreda Luke teaching the elementary grades.

Registration for all students at the Parochial school on Friday instead of Monday was announced by Pastor Father Thomas as not to conflict with the annual pantry shower to be given for the Sisters on Monday afternoon.

High school students will be notified when to report for classes as soon as the building is ready Sanders to finish the floors were not available until the latter part of this week and final varnishing and painting cannot be finished until early next week. It is probable that classes cannot be held until the following Monday, September 17.

The school buses will not make the runs Friday, but all students are expected to register at Sacred Heart school after the 9 o'clock Mass, which being on the first Friday of the month is attended by a majority of the children anyway.

MUENSTER ENTRIES TAKE FIRST AT GAINESVILLE SHOW

Miss Mildred Walterscheid, as Miss Muenster, took the blue ribbon and twenty dollars cash award for first place winner in the Best Dressed Cowgirl contest held in connection with the Horse Show at Gainesville on Labor Day.

Another first place winner for this city is Alois Tumbach's Fr. in pony, Daisy, who topped the entries in that division.

Two other local horses, Dr. T. S. Myrick's Palmemo, Don Oro, and Bailey Corbin's horse, Pet, were fourth place winners.

It was the Gainesville Horse club's first show, and was attended by hundreds of persons including scores from this city. R. L. McNeely, president of the Muenster association was announcer at the loud speaker system. Miss Walterscheid served as an entertainer during the show, giving accordion and vocal selections.

Kitchen, Pantry Shower For Local Sisters Next Monday

A community-wide pantry and kitchen shower for the local Benedictine Sisters will be given next Monday afternoon, sponsored by the Saint Anne's Society. It will be held in the parochial school auditorium beginning at 2 o'clock.

Sponsored by the Mothers of the parish, every lady of the community is invited to attend. All are asked to bring a shower gift, and food for refreshments which will be served after a social hour. The meal will be served buffet style, members in charge advised and the menu will consist of chicken and other meats, relishes, potato salad, cake and coffee.

So as to avoid duplications of food, the committee on refreshments has prepared a list of what ladies are to bring, using the alphabet as a guide. Those whose surnames begin with A to H are to bring meat; I to L, potato salad; M to R, relishes, (tomatoes, pickles, cranberry sauce, lettuce, etc.) S to V, cake; W, coffee, and X, Y and Z, cream.

Anyone desiring further information is asked to get in touch with Mrs. Ben Seyler, president of the sponsor group.

This affair has become an annual event and is deeply appreciated by the Sisters, as well as offering an afternoon of visiting and getting acquainted of mothers and teachers.

COUNTY TAX RATE NOT EXPECTED TO CHANGE THIS YEAR

The tax rate for Cooke County this year is expected to be 56 cents, the same as last year, County Judge Carroll F. Sullivan has stated.

He explained that members of the commissioners court had agreed on this figure but that it would not become official until after a public hearing on the budget, the date of which has not been set.

He expected distribution of funds to be as follows: 3 cents for permanent improvements; 2 cents for jury fund; 25 cents for general fund; 15 cents for special road and bridge fund, and 11 cents for regular road and bridge fund. There is no bonded indebtedness, he said.

This is the same distribution that was made last year, with the exception that one cent has been taken from the permanent improvement fund and added to the jury fund, which last year was only one cent.

Assessed valuations as compiled by County Tax Collector Tom Hayes for this year amount to $21,210,620, an increase of $769,420 over last year's total of $20,441,200.

Based on a 56 cent rate this would bring in funds for the county amounting to $118,779.67. Total revenue from county, state, school and road taxes is expected to be $343,875.22. This does not include revenue from poll taxes.

The state rate has already been set for the year at 72 cents.

RETURN FROM TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Hellman and son, Monte and Damian, returned Tuesday from a vacation visit to Allagan, Mich., where they visited his sister, Mrs. Vincent Baker and family at the Bakers' summer cottage on the lake. Also visiting there are Rudy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G.H. Hellman, who have been spending the past several weeks there with their daughter. They will not return to Muenster for a few weeks. Little Gretchen and Joe Hellman enjoyed a visit in the country with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lehnertz, while their parents were away. Rudy has his annual vacation from cheese plant duties. They made the trip to Michigan by plane and returned in their car, which had been brought to Allagan by P.W. Hellman, who also had a short vacation during that time and spent it at the cottage.

Harry Houdini's real name was Eric Weiss.

Official Notification Is Received By Relatives This Week; Seaman Was Missing Since Aug. 1942

Frank O. Yosten, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Yosten, who was reported missing in Naval action August 9, 1942, has now been declared killed in action by the war department. Relatives here were advised to that effect this week by the Secretary of War. The letter, addressed to Walter Yosten, is as follows:

"Your brother, Frank Oliver Yosten, Seaman second class, United States Naval Reserve, has been carried on the official records of the Navy Department in the status of missing in action since 9 August 1942. He was serving on board the U.S.S. Jarvis when that vessel was damaged as the result of enemy air attacks off Guadalcanal on 8 August, 1942.

"The vessel was last seen by a ship on patrol in the early morning of 9 August, 1942, presumably enroute to a repair base at Noumea, New Caledonia. The Jarvis never reached the repair base and an intensive search by ships and aircraft failed to locate any trace of the missing ship or of the personnel aboard the ship. However, in the absence of conclusive evidence of death, your brother was placed in the missing status.

"In view of the length of time that has elapsed since your brother was reported to be missing in action and because there have been no official or unconfirmed reports that any of the personnel of the ship survived or were taken prisoners of war, and in view of the fact that the area the U.S.S. Jarvis normally would have traversed has increasingly come under Allied surveillance since 9 August, 1942, I am reluctantly forced to the conclusion that your brother is deceased.

"I extend my deepest sympathy to you in your sorrow. It is hoped that you may find comfort in the knowledge that your brother gave his life for his country, upholding the highest traditions of the Navy.

Sincerely Yours,
James Forrestal,
Requiem High Mass for the soul of the deceased will be offered here at Sacred Heart church one morning next week, the exact date not announced as yet in the hope that perhaps arrangements might be made for conducting memorial military rites. It is doubtful whether a unit to conduct the military services can be secured at this time.

Frank Yosten was a native of this city. He was born January 18, 1913, and attended Sacred Heart school. He was employed in oil field work until he enlisted in the Navy in March 1942. Following boot training at San Diego he was assigned to sea duty on the Jarvis.

Survivors are four brothers: Joe Yosten, MMIC with the Seabees, now enroute home from the Pacific; Cpl. Andrew Yosten, member of the 90th Division stationed in Bavaria; Pfc. Richard Yosten, Germany and Walter Yosten, Muenster; 5 sisters: Mmes. Joe Horn, Bernard Sicking, Ed Pels and Arnold Hess, Muenster, and Mrs. Leo Hoedebeck, Wichita, Kansas.

Seaman Yosten's father died in June 1944 and his mother passed away in January 1941. The report from the war department this week was the first word that relatives received in more than a year.

Charles Reiter, Jr. Receives M.D. Degree

Charles A. Reiter, Jr. of Kerrville received his degree from Northwestern Medical College at Dallas on Sept. 3, at graduation exercises in McFarlin Memorial Auditorium.

He is a native of this city and the son of Charles A. Reiter, former Muenster postmaster. Mrs. August Reiter, this city, is his grandmother.

Mrs. Clara Seale and little son Allen, of Dimmitt, are here for a few weeks' visit with her brothers and sisters. She is the former Miss Clara Hoenig, her husband, Lt. (j.g.) F.E. Seale, serves aboard the U.S.S. Schroeder D.D. 501, and has taken part in many exciting battles with the Third Fleet. He is a doctor.

that sinking fund, $4,000.00 of the sewerage bonds are held by the water-works sinking fund so the interest on that amount, only passes from one fund to the other.

It can be understood therefore the City has a net bonded debt of only $24,410.00 out of the original total issues of $33,000.00 a reduction of nearly $30,000.00, at the same time charging the lowest water and sewerage rate of any municipality in this section. Also those concerned must be reminded, that the property is rendered to nearly thirty-five percent of actual values compared to near 100% of neighboring cities, also many extensions of water and sewerage lines have been made, two water wells completed, Main Street paved and repaired and most other streets graveled.

Prospects are favorable to have all accounts paid in full after the payment of 1945 taxes. That includes water well No. 2, the new pump of 200 gal per minute capacity and the 4000 feet of 4" pipe that should arrive during September. The pump and pipe were ordered in May and due to the circumstances cannot say definitely when to expect their arrival. We were fortunate to have had the rain during this summer, otherwise we may have had some restrictions or rationing in the use of water.

The question now in our minds is what would be a reasonable bonded indebtedness Muenster should make to raise the funds, for the improvements to meet the needs for a progressive little City. It is suggested that $50,000.00 bond issue supported by the general tax rate, would refinance the outstanding sewerage bonds, to a lower rate of interest and provide funds for the municipal building, sewer extensions, street improvements, small amount of storm sewer and a new fire truck.

The water-works improvements and swimming pool can be financed with a $50,000.00 issue of revenue bonds, meaning that the revenue from these projects would be expected to liquidate the interest and principal. According to the tax income of the past and the water and sewer revenue with the prospects of the income of the swimming pool, the bonds should be fully liquidated with in twenty years.

confidence to be within sound judgement to proceed.

A fine letter this week gives suggestions as to location of the swimming pool that is a grand start and we are looking forward to greater interest by loyal faithful citizens.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fisch spent the weekend and Labor Day in Oklahoma. They visited their son, Arthur and family at Guthrie, their son, Wilfred and family at Tulsa, and old friends in Okmulgee where they formerly resided.

 Muenster Mayor

March 2nd, 1927, Muenster was incorporated and, we can hardly realize, over eighteen years have passed. Three past mayors, each have distinct accomplishments to their credit. In every case the proposal of any project later completed, would cause some to say, "The City Council must increase the tax rate to pay the debts to be made to pay for the proposed improvements."

The Statutes under the title of which Muenster is incorporated, have set the tax limit to $1.50 per hundred dollars of assessed value. This has been the rate from the beginning of incorporation therefore no higher rate can be charged. This rate with the water revenue and miscellaneous receipts, have provided sufficient income to meet promptly the operating expenses, improvements, bond maturities and accrued interest. The City of Muenster enjoys the reputation to have never defaulted on any obligation. The total delinquent taxes of $632.58 for all these past eighteen years gives evidence of the faithful support of property owners in payment of their taxes. Being 1/2 of 1% delinquent or 99 1/2 % of all assessments collected.

In 1931, originally $33,000.00 waterworks bonds were issued, $18,500.00 have been paid leaving a balance of $14,500.00 outstanding. There are $4,590.00 in the interest and sinking fund so there remains only a net debt of $9,910.00 on the water-works. The sewerage bonds of $20,000.00 issued in May 1940 have been reduced to $15,000.00 with nearly $500.00 in Muenster formerly with only 400 population had courage and fore-sight to vote for $53,000.00 bond issue surely can stand $100,000.00 Bond issue when we have more than double the population. The Bank recourses then were around $150,000.00 while they now exceed one and a quarter million dollars, besides over one-half million dollars in Government Bonds are held by the Citizens of the community. The New Church fund of over $110,000.00 and we also have established payrolls of the R.E.A. P.M.A. and others, with the oil development, that gives us

A Victory for Freedom

The Victory for Freedom has been won!

We join Texans and Americans everywhere, and all of our allies, in paying tribute to all who have achieved this triumph over despotism.

We especially acclaim the men and women of the United States of America. They have fought and toiled not for the spoils, nor for the mere sake of conquering, but for the privilege of returning to the pursuits of peace in a free land.

Freedom was their greatest weapon.

On the battlefields, on the seas, in the air, in their factories, on their farms, in their households... in every area of human endeavor which contributed to total victory... they demonstrated the superiority of a free people over enslaved peoples.

The initiative, wisdom, ingenuity and bravery of the American people, their genius for organization without regimentation, and the mighty vigor and strength of their industrial system arose from the exercise of freedom for more than a century and a half.

Freedom, then, laid the foundation for the outstanding role Americans played in winning the victory.

Texans have won an enviable place in this struggle for freedom. More than half a million Texans are in uniform and have participated in every phase of every battle in this global conflict. At home, Texans have taken a place of leadership in the vast program of industrial production. They have helped to arm, train and transport America's fighting men and to earn for this nation the designation as "The Arsenal of Democracy."

The immortal dead have solemnized this victory. Freedom was their goal and, in achieving it so nobly, they made us their humble beneficiaries.

So, as we celebrate this final victory, let us guard with all zeal and vigilance the freedom which has been so dearly won.

Let us, here in Texas, turn our thoughts now to the program of reconversion... let us plan greatly and act vigorously to consolidate our newly-gained position in America's industrial production, expanding that position in keeping with the boundless opportunities Texas affords her people.

The victory for freedom has been won on the battlefields... let us all join in making it secure at home... now and forever!

MOOS OF THE MOMENT

of the Kraft Dairy Farm Service

If you want bigger bits of butterfat, there's nothing better for bigger pats of butterfat than a better bull.

And that bunch of B's without honey brings me to the matter of insuring a better future milk production in your herd by care in picking out a herd sire.

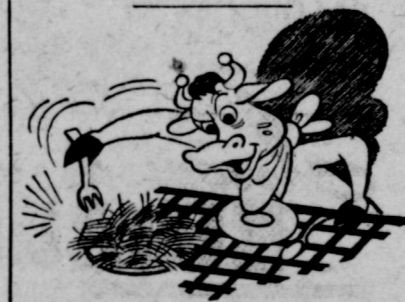

The best way to judge a bull is by the milk production records of its daughters. So before you select the animal which will sire your calves, check back on the bull's daughters. If those daughters are producing at a high rate and have done so since the first time they freshened, then the bull is good enough for your herd.

In the next few months, cows which will freshen in the fall of 1946 will be bred. A year from now, the milk producers of 1948-49 and later will be arriving on farms.

If you want cows that will make more pounds of milk and more pounds of butterfat at no more cost than ordinary cows, you have the answer in the selection of your herd sire.

I suggest you get copies of feeding bulletins from your county agent, and you might like to write for Circular 405, Extension Service, College of Agriculture, Columbia, Mo., and a new Special Circular called "Feeding the Dairy Herd" just published by the Extension Service, College of Agriculture, Madison, Wisc.

And by all means watch for the winter feeding article in the September-October issue of the Kraftman. It is a most interesting and helpful discussion of this important part of your program. If you do not get the Kraftman regularly, write Uncle Bob at 500 Peshtigo Court, Chicago 90, Ill., and I'll mail you one free.

Nearly starved to death one summer a lot of years ago. Worked on a farm which had a long-armed boarder who could reach the length of the table, with no trouble at all.

In case you've got any "boarders" in your herd, I suggest you check your feed supply and see if you can profitably replace such low producing cows with a well-bred heifer.

There's a fine hay crop this year, but it is a bit early to talk about the size of the grain crop. Just how much you'll have for your winter feeding is something you will want to check into at this time.

If your feed supplies don't look too plentiful for your herd, you surely would be using the supply you have to better advantage if part of it feeds a new and promising producer, rather than going to a low producing cow.

Heavy milk producers use feed more efficiently than do low producers and return more dollars in milk for the dollars in grain and hay consumed.

Better look into this item before you start your barn feeding program.

*NOTE: There usually is a 5c charge for pamphlets mailed to non-residents of a state, but possibly your own state has a free pamphlet on the same subject. Ask your county agent.

Confetti--
vance of current trends that may be the result.

That the situation is alarming is very evident from England's recent swing to socialism as well as dozens of developments here during the past fifteen years. Our democracy is on a most precarious footing, and if we don't move back soon we'll wake up one day to discover that we're already slipped into a raging torrent headed for chaos. Retreating a few steps now would be much easier than struggling back later.

While so many people are speculating on new features for the post war automobile, which incidentally aren't likely to show up for another few years, this column feels privileged to pulp for a few of its own preferences.

As for body design, the most desirable change would be the elimination of fenders, extending the body over the wheels somewhat like the late model busses. With a bit of streamlining that design could be made fully as attractive while sturdier, roomier and cheaper of construction than present models.

Switching the motor to the rear could make for a more compact power unit and also permit the front seat to be moved forward for better visibility.

And the motor itself needn't be the huge thing it has always been. Airplane construction has shown that the weight can be held down as low as a pound for each horse power. By that ratio every car can have far more actual power than at present and then be geared up for reasonable cruising speeds with less motor speed or strain. It's high time that automobile engineers give more thought to economical operation and long life instead of flashy inefficient performance.

That possibilities are abundant for a more practical car has long been evident from a comparison of trucks and passenger cars. While a car with a gross weight—including passengers—of less than 4,000 pounds runs less than 20 miles on a gallon of gas and wears out at 60 or 70 thousands miles a truck with a gross weight of 20,000 pounds runs 10 miles to the gallon and gives good service for well over 100,000 miles. There's only one explanation. Too much of the passenger car's efficiency is sacrificed for spunk.

The break in car production caused by the war has given designers an opportunity to come forth with radical changes incorporating improvements they have always known about. Let's hope they will have the courage to do something about it. Far from meeting disfavor, as some of them seem to fear, they'll find the public surprisingly grateful.

Now we can guess at the real reason behind Britain's unhappiness over this country's decision to lend-lease agreements. Either it anticipated President Truman's proposal to charge off all lend-lease obligations or it had intentions of making a similar proposal itself. In other words our worthy allies wanted another few million dollars worth of goods for free.
