CROWD CHEERS SPEECHES HERE FOR FERGUSON

District court room was filled almost to capacity today with people who had come to hear Judge J. K. Baker of Coleman and Ghent Sandeford of Eastland, former private secretary to Miriam A. Ferguson, score Ross Sterling, Governor Dan Moody and Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman, in a Ferguson rally.

Much of the talk was directed against Governor Moody and Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman. Judge Baker declaring that Sterling would only carry out the principles of Moody if he were elected governor. The crowd was enthusiastic and did a great deal of clapping and shouting when the speakers made stirring remarks.

Judge Baker was introduced to the audience by Judge James W. McCartney who said that Baker was a man who knew the facts in the campaign. The meeting was opened by W. D. Armstrong who talked briefly on the local campaign progress and introduced Judge McCartney.

Judge Baker said that he would give his ideas on the evils or asserted evils brought up by Sterling supporters in the campaign for governor of the state of Texas. He stated that he was going back into history like the Sterling men had done and bring up some of the facts in the case of the impeachment of James E. Ferguson. The reason for the impeachment, he continued, was because that the political machines and rich men of the state could not use him as a tool and because he did not favor the universities and the common schools. Judge Baker gave as the reason for the impeachment charges against Ferguson his veto of a bill for appropriations to the universities. He said that this veto got Ferguson in disfavor with the high officials of the universities and they pushed the impeachment charges.

About Proxy Governors

"Talk about your proxy governors," said Baker, "but what about Sterling and Dan Moody? They are just proxies of each other. What I say about Dan and his administration I mean about Sterling as well."

"Ferguson helped Dan Moody get into the Attorney General's office and now Moody is working against his former friend," continued Baker. He said that Moody was the most ungrateful man in Texas, because he was going out over the state talking against the man who helped him become known to the people of the state.

The Sterling supporters and leaders state Judge Baker, when they saw Mrs. Ferguson pile up a 60,000 lead in the first primary got together and decided to let the horse issue drop as much as possible from the campaign and make Fergusonism the main issue in the run-off. They did this, he said, so that they could get the votes that had been lost because the people did not approve of the bond issue.

Baker in scoring Governor Moody said that the governor had double-crossed every man in Texas when he had remained quiet at the democratic convention instead of getting up and talking for Texas and the Democratic party like some Texans did. By keeping his mouth shut Moody helped put Hoover in the president's chair and helped cause the hardest financial conditions ever known, Baker continued.

"Moody has wanted to make many of the offices at Austin appointive by the governor. He called the legislature in five special sessions to try to make them sell some of the rich lands owned by the penitentiaries, and his plan will be carried out by Sterling if he is elected," Judge Baker said.

Question of Pardons

In taking up the question of pardons, Baker said that the Sterling supporters had brought up the question, but that Fergusonism had the better part of it. Baker stated that he had rather have a governor who would give pardons to deserving men than one who now had 1,400 applications for pardons and would not do anything about them until after the campaign. It is a law of Texas, he continued, that makes it impossible for a governor to pardon a man unless his record is investigated and his application for pardon has been filed for thirty days. Sterling speakers, Baker said, had brought up the Marshall-Raliff case, but he defended Ferguson in granting the pardon to Raliff by saying that the application for the pardon had been signed by many of the leading citizens of Eastland and Brown counties and after several officials had advised that he be pardoned.

Baker then brought up the case of Bob Silver whose death sentence was commuted by Moody and told of Silver's deeds after he escaped from the penitentiary. He brought up several other pardon cases under Moody and declared that the men pardoned by Moody had just as bad records as those pardoned by the Ferguson.

SMALL SPEAKS FOR STERLING, MILLER FOR MRS. FERGUSON; CANDIDATES AND WORKERS BUSY

By The Associated Press.

Drawing new support for their respective campaigns from strong political leaders, Ross S. Sterling and James E. Ferguson continued Thursday to hammer away in the eleventh hour effort to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Saturday's run-off primary, Ferguson speaking for the candidacy of his wife, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson.

Senator Clint C. Small of Wellington, third ranking candidate in the July primary, who carried West Texas almost solidly, was arrayed with the Sterling ranks, making his first speech last night at Waco.

Lieutenant Governor Barry Miller, also an eliminated candidate for the governorship in the first primary, spoke last night at La Grange for Mrs. Ferguson's candidacy.

Governor Dan Moody, who delivered a denunciation of "Fergusonism" at Dallas Tuesday night, made a long jump into West Texas for a similar attack at Brownwood yesterday morning and last night at San Angelo. With equal rapidity, he expected to trek across the state today for another appeal tonight at Houston.

Sterling's speech at a rally on the Milam county courthouse lawn again was an attack centering upon the Ferguson pardon record.

Albert Sidney Johnson, secretary of the Democratic state executive committee, called out indictments against Ferguson and his record.

Sterling again explained the state highway bond proposal, saying he wished to "unbound" the people of the state, not to "bound" them and added, "I want you people who have differed with me on the bond issue to understand that a vote for me is not a vote for the bond issue. No Governor could issue one dollar's worth of bonds. The people would have to vote for them." Attacking Ferguson Sterling asked, "Did you read what his brother said about him? If a brother of mine said that about me, I would get down off this platform. Besides, he wouldn't have an opportunity to vote for me for anything."

Ferguson, at Terrell, unleashed another attack on Governor Dan Moody and on Sterling. Attacking Sterling's proposed state highway bond issue, Ferguson told the people to "get the poll, chop off his head and we'll end this proposition forever."

"For 16 years they've been making the charge that Jim Ferguson was a thief," he said. "What is it? When is it? They've never found a nickel he's stolen. If they're such fourth-raters that they can't figure anything out, you ought to quit fooling around with them. They talk about all the money I've stolen. I'm a broke farmer and rancher just like you. I don't even own a piece of property that is not mortgaged."

Lieutenant Governor Barry Miller, speaking for Mrs. Ferguson's candidacy at La Grange, said he had chiefly four reasons for supporting her:

"I believe the best interests of those who supported me loyally are served by electing a Governor not of long standing in the millionaire class," he said, "and who has lost the common touch, but whose heart is with the common people. Mrs. Ferguson's heart shares the trials and tribulations of the masses."

Opposes Bond Plan

He opposed the Sterling road bond plan, reiterating arguments against it made in his own campaign. He also expressed opposition to Sterling, because, he said, the latter's campaign seemed to indicate "an attempt of the Ku Klux Klan to make a rear door entry and seek control, as in 1924." Miller planned to speak tonight at San Antonio.

Launching his attack upon "Fergusonism" in three thrusts, Senator Clint Small spoke at Waco in his first address of the campaign for Sterling's candidacy.

His three broadsides at the Ferguson past were "Ma's pardon record, the highway contract scandal and a comparison of Ferguson, the politician, to Ross Sterling, the business man."

Governor Moody, speaking at San Angelo, opened his address with reference to Ferguson's offer of $50 to him for every speech he delivered in West Texas. "I know Jim won't live up to his agreement," the Governor said. "Besides, if he did pay me $50, I wouldn't accept it."

He devoted practically all of his address to a recital of the Ferguson impeachment proceedings and to the pardon record of Mrs. Ferguson. He charged that Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson together had freed more than 6,000 convicts while they were in office and that the cost of convicting these prisoners had been about $1,000 each.

SEVEN PERSONS LOSE LIVES AS YACHT SINKS

FOWEY, Cornwall, Eng., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Commodore Henry Douglas King, conservative member of Parliament, brilliant soldier and one-time aide-de-camp to King George was believed to have met death with probably half a dozen others aboard the 22-ton motor yacht Islander wrecked here in the night.

One woman, two children and a well known naval surgeon were believed aboard the vessel when it went to pieces after going on the rocks of the Cornwall coast at Lantivet Bay. Definite knowledge of the makeup of the yachting party still was lacking this evening. That Commodore King changed his mind about inviting some fellow members of Parliament to accompany him on several voyages on the floor around the Islander were lost, according to lifeguards who battled desperately in darkness under the 265-foot cliff where the tragedy of the English channel was enacted, in efforts to rescue some of those aboard.

When a lifeline finally was shot across the yacht there seemed hope on the craft to catch it. Daring coastguardsmen, lowered from the brink of the rock, said they heard a woman scream in a cabin. The guardsmen could not contrive to get aboard the distressed vessel.

Late today the police reported that the bodies of two young children had been washed ashore near the scene of the wreck. At that time the authorities expressed the fear the death toll would reach eight. Much of the night and nearly all of the day had passed without the recovery of any bodies.

FOWEY, CORNWALL, England, Aug. 21.—(AP)—At least six persons among whom it was feared were two or three members of parliament and one or more women, were believed drowned when the yacht Islander was wrecked on the rocks of Lantivet Bay during a violent storm in the night.

The yacht had been chartered by Commodore Henry Douglas King, conservative member of parliament and there was grave apprehension that he, with other members who had been invited to accompany him in the cruise, had perished when the yacht met disaster in a channel gale.

FRESHWATER, Isle of Wight, Aug. 21.—(AP)—When news of the disaster to the yacht Islander off Cornwall was communicated today to Mrs. King, wife of Commodore King, she said:

"My husband had been cruising on the yacht since last Saturday week. No other member of the family was with him. He had been living on the yacht, calling in at various ports. I received a letter from Dartmouth yesterday in which he said he was enjoying the trip immensely. I am leaving at once for London. So far as I know there were no women on board the yacht."

Fair Sidelights

The Brown County Fair re-opened this morning and was going in full swing by ten o'clock. The cold drink stands were doing a rushing business and a large crowd was making the rounds of the exhibits, despite the heat.

Supporters of various men who are running for state office were tacking up signs advertising the merits of their candidates. Men were busy engaged in repairing the bronze chutes that were damaged by the horses in yesterday's rodeo. The Magnolia Petroleum Company's oil exhibit continued to draw its large crowds, for this hovers the complete operations of the oil industry.

A large case of arrow-heads is on display in the agricultural building and contains many perfect arrow-heads.

The ground was sprinkled this morning to lay the dust and the sprinkling proved a great help.

The flower show is very beautiful and draws many admiring people to its part of the building. The flowers are in vases which are arranged in tiers, of which there are five. There are also several vases on the floor around the tiers.

The Home Demonstration Department has many unique articles on display and draws many delightful exclamations from the women who visit the booth. Among these articles are rugs made of sacks. Flowered and knitted rugs also provide an attractive display. Improvised show the aptitude of the country's housewives and dresses and other garments show their needle skill.

The water cooler is very liberally patronized because of the heat. Large numbers of people depend on this ice water for quenching thirst and cooling their throats. Improvised fans can be seen going nearly all the time. Electric fans always have a large crowd.

Nearly all of the stalls in the stables are filled and horses for display and racing are in them. Boys of all ages come to see the horses and admire them.

The 4-H club girls competed for prizes with folders describing their work around their home and their attempts at beautifying their homes. These folders described their canning, cooking, home improvement and a complete record of their club work. These folders will give a very good idea of what 4-H clubs are doing. All people who attend the fair are urged to see for themselves what the clubs are doing for both boys and girls.

FIRE TAKES 1 LIFE; OTHERS FATALLY HURT

ABILENE, Tex., Aug. 21.—(UP)—Three persons were burned, one fatally, last night when flaming gasoline was thrown over them intentionally in an effort to avert an explosion of a boiler.

Mrs. M. H. Wilkinson was dead, her mother-in-law, Mrs. Sue Wilkerson, of O'Donnell was fighting for her life in a hospital, and her husband was less seriously burned in trying to extinguish the flames.

Fire started in a bucket of gasoline which was being transferred from one automobile to another by lantern light and Wilkinson excitedly dashed the bucket of blazing liquid over his wife and mother before realizing they were near.

Wilkinson and his mother will recover, doctors said.

SWEETWATER, Tex., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Rudolph A. Wila, 18, employed at a dam construction camp, drowned in Lake Sweetwater here yesterday while in swimming with a number of other employees. Funeral services were planned for Friday at Uvalde.

GAINESVILLE, Texas, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Accidental discharge of a gun with which his wife intended to shoot a dog believed to have been suffering from hydrophobia today seriously wounded J. C. Jirasek, 37, farmer living five miles south of here.

Jirasek was working in his yard when Mrs. Jirasek sent her small son into the house to get the gun with which she intended to shoot the stray dog. The weapon was discharged as the lad handed it to his mother.

The bullet struck Jirasek under the shoulder blade and hit his spine, causing paralysis.

He was brought to a sanitarium where physicians said there was little hope for his recovery, in which event, they said, he probably would be permanently paralyzed.

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Dr. S. D. Wall, 54, of Port Arthur, is dead of injuries suffered Sunday when a vacation trip on which he was to have visited his brother, Dr. J. A. Wall of San Antonio, ended tragically in a highway collision near here. He died at a hospital here, last night.

Mrs. Wall and three daughters, Virginia, 14; Frances, 8, and Helen, 19, were discharged from hospitals after they had been given first aid for injuries.

2,000 PURCHASE ADMISSION ON OPENING DAY

Beginning with the formal opening of the Brown County Fair at the address of Governor Dan Moody Wednesday afternoon, the crowds increased greatly throughout the rest of the day yesterday and showed a total of 2,000 paid admissions. The admissions at the gate and the grandstand were more than was expected for the first day and considering everything the Fair Association was well pleased with the outcome.

The crowds were small at the beginning of the races yesterday afternoon, but before the end of the program a large crowd was present with many remaining for the baseball game.

The crowd last night at the community stunts and the wedding was one of the largest to witness an attraction in the grandstand in some time. Officials stated that it compared more than favorably with any attendance at the grandstand last year.

Visit Exhibit Hall

Practically everyone who visited the fair passed through the exhibit halls, with the larger number going through the merchants' exhibit hall. There was a large crowd in the building during the whole day and until closing time at 10:30 last night. Other exhibit halls were visited by many people, a large number visiting the livestock exhibits.

The carnival midway was crowded during the afternoon and evening performance. The crowd filled the whole space which has been allowed for the carnival and they were unable to change.

A large number of people rode the street bus to and from town, but the majority of these attending were in their own automobiles.

Judging of Exhibits Under Way Today

Judging of the various exhibits and in the many departments was the chief order of the day this morning at the Brown County Fair. Practically all the judging had been completed before noon and that which was not finished this morning will be concluded this afternoon.

The second day of the fair got under way with a good crowd early during the morning, which slowly dwindled until the noon hour when there were only a few on the grounds. Following the noon hour they began to return for their visit during the second big day of the fair.

The looks of the exhibits were changed today with many showing colored ribbons either in blue, white or white as the judges finished their tasks.

Bigger Crows Today

With more than 2,500 being present for the first day, officials were preparing for more than 3,000 today and tonight for the two feature programs.

Judging in the livestock, culinary, floral, textile, and most of the other departments was completed at noon.

The art exhibit has been attracting much attention and covers a large part of the space in the merchants' exhibit hall. The paintings and drawings are attractively arranged along the wall and have a black background over which they are hung to give them an even more beautiful appearance.

The sheep and goat department is not attracting much attention as it is off at one side of the buildings; they are not seen by many of the fair visitors. Those who are interested in these animals have inquired as to the exhibit hall and have viewed them that way.

Races and Rodeo

The race program and rodeo this afternoon was attracting most of the crowd shortly after the noon hour and after the pleasing program presented yesterday afternoon it was thought by the officials that a larger crowd would be present for the afternoon show today than yesterday. The races were fast and the rodeo acts good yesterday which officials believe is the best advertising that they can secure.

Concession men were in happier moods today following the first day and many stated that they were experiencing the best business at this fair that they had found during the whole season in other places. More people are visiting the fair and all visitors are pleased with the exhibits and the performances which the concession operators say is what makes their business.

Special Days

Today was celebrated as children's day, Brady, Coleman and Hallinger day. It was expected that several hundred from the three towns would be present this afternoon for the program and again tonight for the evening performance. Officials were preparing to entertain visitors from other towns this afternoon as well as Brownwood and Brown county visitors and the many children which began to gather at noon.

Ferguson Turns His Guns on Clint Small

TERRELL, Tex., Aug. 21.—(UP)—Resentful at a new dissenting voice heard last night in Waco, James E. Ferguson, speaking for the candidacy for governor of his wife, turned a volley of verbal shots upon Clint Small, West Texas candidate defeated in the first primary. In his address here last night.

"Small is too small I say," cried Ferguson, awakened to a new pitch in political skies but two days before Saturday's polls. "This fellow Small from West Texas at this late hour thinks he is somebody. As soon as the first election was over he issued a statement saying he would not undertake to control his friends or deliver anybody."

"As to Sterling he (Small) said: I would not be caught with the Sterling crowd," and told me he was leaving for his home in Wellington."

Ferguson related an encounter with Small in a Fort Worth hotel when he declared Small said "I am already supporting your wife. I just want to warn you what is going on," said Ferguson to an audience that was enjoying the new attack. "If Sterling was trying to buy the governorship in the first election you can just bet your last dollar he is trying harder than ever now."

Elaborates Pro Plan

Entering a section of the country where "wets" are rare, Ferguson elaborated the prohibition plank in his wife's platform, and offered to compare the prohibition records of himself and his wife with that of Sterling.

Condemning the bond issue more heartily than ever before, Ferguson and his audience acclaimed the Moody administration as the sorrier in Texas' history. With a verbal art that is Ferguson's own, he recounted administrative acts of his own and of his wife and held up "Fergusonism," characterized by introductory speakers as the "great blessing that ever came to Texas," for the roaring approval of the crowd.

Ferguson swings his message back into central Texas with an address tonight in Fort Worth.

WACO, Tex., Aug. 21.—(UP)—Pleading with the voters of Texas to rid the state permanently of "such pernicious influences as those illustrated in Fergusonism," state senator Clint Small of Wellington delivered his first address of the run-off campaign at a political rally here last night.

Small, who ran third in the July primary race for governor, spoke in support of the candidacy of Ross Sterling of Houston. He said Ferguson and Sterling were "as far apart as the poles" and asked voters to cast their ballots for the Houston candidate in next Saturday's primary.

Only Two Texas Counties Not Hold A Run-Off Primary

DALLAS, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Only two Texas counties will not hold a run-off primary next Saturday as against 17 which failed to hold run-off primaries in 1928, according to reports reaching Professor A. F. Henning, director of the Texas Election Bureau, here today.

Borden and Kendall counties, which polled 343 and 113 votes, respectively, in the July primary are the two which will not hold a run-off.

In Borden county Sterling got 147 votes and Mrs. Ferguson 127 in the July primary and in Kendall Mrs. Ferguson got 38 votes and Sterling 37.

That no more than two of Texas' 253 organized counties would fail to hold a run-off primary was accepted by Professor Henning as indicative of the deep interest Texans are taking in the contest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Mrs. Nannie Shocklee died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. C. Barnett, in this city last Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Shocklee was born in Kentucky and was married in that state but soon after her marriage they came to Texas and settled in Bonham. She was 70 years nine months and three days old at the time of her death. She joined the Southern Baptist church at the age of twelve years and lived a good Christian life. Mrs. Shocklee was always loyal to her church and never absent herself from the regular worship unless something unavoidable on her part kept her away. Her death was a severe shock to her many friends here as she was only sick about four days. Her health had not been good for some time but her family was not alarmed about her condition until Saturday night, August 16. All that a devoted daughter and family, kind friends and a skilled physician could do was done but to no avail. The funeral services were held Thursday morning at 10:30 in the Baptist church conducted by her pastor, Rev. G. C. Evans, assisted by Rev. S. D. Lambert, pastor of the Methodist church. Interment was made in the Odd Fellows Cemetery. Mrs. Shocklee leaves one son, Alex Shocklee of Coleman, and three daughters, one in Pilot Point, one in Lexington, Texas, and Mrs. D. C. Barnett of this place. Also one brother, J. J. Cockrell of Big Valley, this county. To know her was to love her. To the sorrowing ones we offer sympathy.

His wife preceded him to her reward several years ago. Mr. Straley leaves three sons, French Chauncey and Vann Straley, also a step son, Will Jackson, and a host of friends to mourn his going. To the grief stricken ones we offer our sympathy.

Two Tyler Children See President But They Almost Failed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP)—President Hoover today held up the reception of many callers to grant a special audience to smiling Gertrude Ann and Billy Windsor, who came all the way from Tyler, Texas, to see the executive and nearly lost out.

Gertrude, who is eleven, with pretty chestnut curls, and her brother Billy, three years her junior, drove up to the White House with their parents. While the mother and father waited in the lobby, Gertrude and Billy went to see Secretary Akerson and gave him the following letter:

"Dear President Hoover: "Billy and I came all the way from Tyler, Texas, to see you and now they tell us that we can't see you because the senators we know are away from Washington. "I don't blame you for not wanting to shake hands with so many people, but isn't there some way we could just see you before we leave? I am eleven and Billy is eight. "We have begged Mother and Daddy for nearly a year to bring us here and I'm afraid we won't get to come back for a long, long time. "With love from Gertrude Ann Windsor."

The president was shown the letter and immediately granted the children an interview and sent them away happy with autographed pictures of himself. Neither Gertrude nor Billy were shy when confronted by newspapermen. "We enjoyed it fine," the little girl said with a smile.

Billy was beaming too, and when asked what the President talked about, replied:

"Oh, he told us a lot of things. He told us about a dog he got from the south pole—or maybe it was the north pole—and it was so warm for him here that whenever the ice came around he used to sit on the cakes of ice."

The court adjourned until next Monday when several cases will be heard. The local grand jury was not called into a special session as had been anticipated.

10 Cents a Pound Cotton Loans Are Urged by Senator

MARLIN, Tex., Aug. 21.—(UP)—Senator Tom Connally has telegraphed Chairman Alexander Legge of the federal farm board and Secretary of Agriculture Hyde urging that the farm board authorize loans on cotton in hand of at least 10 cents per pound.

The great cotton crop of the south is in the most critical situation since 1914," Connally's telegram said. "The success of the farm board and the farm relief act is on trial. If it fails the farmers at this critical time they will despair of its usefulness. Please call the board in an extraordinary session if necessary and take favorable action."

TO EXECUTE NEGRO

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Lee Davis, negro, will be executed here early tomorrow for the slaying of a prison guard.

Warden W. W. Waid, who described Davis' apparently placid attitude, said the negro had had no callers except his mother and perhaps the chaplain. "He's denied all along that he fired the shot," the warden added.

Davis was convicted by a Brazoria county jury of the murder of Guard Sidney Symms in a break from the Retrieve State prison farm about a year ago. Another negro accompanied him and they were recaptured the next day.

WOMANLESS STYLE SHOW STUNT NIGHT WINNER AT THE FAIR

Woodland Heights won first place in the community stunt night program at the Brown County Fair Wednesday night in the initial night's program of the year. The Jones Chapel stunt won second prize. The two stunts, with the big wedding, a rodeo and a dance made up the evening's program.

The grandstand was well filled for the entertainment and one of the largest crowds to attend a night performance for several years was on hand to see a first night record for more than three years at the fair.

The night's program was opened by the Jones Chapel stunt, which consisted of a program presented by four young girls. The stunt was an imitation operation in which a girl dressed in men's clothing had an arm amputated. A rusty saw and other carpenter's tools completed the operation.

Womanless Style Show
The Woodland Heights stunt was a womanless style show in which an orchestra furnished music and about twenty men acted as models. The clothing for the occasion was furnished by merchants of Brownwood and the men all painted and dressed in feminine clothing paraded before the crowd twice. The antics of the men and the dress both brought roars of laughter from the audience and greatly enjoyed the presentation.

The men taking part in the style show, representing different Brownwood firms were: Bill Bruce, Clint Low, Tom Kellum, Bud Reese, Homer Boyd, Ernest Clardy, Jeff Keris, Duke Fry and Will Lacy. Bert Clardy did the announcing.

The prizes for this part of the program was $100 in gold with $50 going to Woodland Heights and $40 to Jones Chapel.

Following these stunts, the wedding, which was one of the attractions announced for the evening.

Outlaw Horses
After the wedding a rodeo was presented in which several bad animals were exhibited. The horses all managed to throw their riders, both at the afternoon and night performances. The horses are all well trained and none of them were successfully ridden. They added thrills to the program, furnishing the thrills of the evening and also a large part of the program.

The biggest excitement of the performance was when Lloyd Johnson was dragged a short distance by one of the outlaw horses after being thrown. The horse stepped on the man but he was only slightly injured. He was injured about the face and the breath was knocked from his body. He was revived after a few moments by members of the rodeo company and nearby physicians.

A dance featured the rest of the evening's performance and a large crowd remained for this part of the program.

The music for both the evening and the afternoon shows was furnished by the Coits Band of Brownwood.

New Personnel at Brady Bank

BRADY, Texas, Aug. 21.—(Sp.)—An almost entirely new personnel in the Commercial National Bank of Brady was completed today with the arrival from Waco of A. L. Gray, who had been made assistant cashier of the Brady institution.

An alleged shortage of approximately $92,000 in the bank's funds discovered last month, in which a number of the employees are said to have been implicated, caused the officers and directors of the bank to dismiss practically the entire bank force.

The new personnel of the bank consists of W. D. Crothers, active vice president who has been in charge of the affairs of this bank ever since its organization about 25 years ago, Griffith, cashier; P. B. Melton, teller; C. H. Smith and E. L. Bodenhamer, bookkeepers; Ted Broman, clerk; and Mildred Jones, stenographer.

Not Supporting the Fergusons

The Bulletin has received the following statement from Dr. William H. Coleman, presiding elder of the Brownwood District, Methodist church: "A good friend called me last night and said: 'It is being rumored that you are supporting the Fergusons.'"

"There is no foundation for any such rumor," he said. "I do not support any one in the Fergusons. I am an independent democrat. Therefore, I am going to vote Saturday for Ross Sterling with the distinct understanding that I am not taking that un-democratic pledge to 'support the nominees of this primary.'"

"EL BANDITO", MUSICAL PLAY, IS A MAJOR FAIR ATTRACTION

"El Bandito" the musical play which is to be presented tonight as the grandstand attraction at the Brown County Fair will be one of the major attractions of the four days. The play is being presented by Cameron Marshall who is also appearing in the production. The cast includes 26 of the best singers in Brownwood and the surrounding section and will also present many old favorites well known to Brownwood audiences.

The scenery for the production was all constructed and painted by Mr. Marshall, Lloyd Nixon, A. J. Nixon, and Bob May. It presents the exterior of a Spanish house and the art work will compare favorably with that of any master scene painter. Mr. Marshall did the art work on the building and the rest of the scenery and it is built special for this occasion.

The play itself has a Spanish setting and is an amusing comedy as well as presenting several well known songs which will be featured by members of the cast. The production presents Mr. Marshall as a pompous Spanish nobleman who while visiting in the home of a friend falls in love with the heroine and along with the hero attempts to win her love.

The performance will last for one hour and 15 minutes and will be started at 8 o'clock this evening. Members of the cast include Hampton Keatley, Miss Josephine Anderson, Miss Bob Knox, Miss Marguerite Wilson, Miss Edna Gertrude, Miss Katie Merle Parks, Miss Louise McDaniel, A. J. Nixon, Bob Payne, Pat Everett and Cameron Marshall. Several others will also have parts in the production.

Hilton Burks, secretary of the fair association, said today that he felt that the organization was more than fortunate to secure a production of this nature and presenting a local cast as one of the feature attractions of the fair.

LIVESTOCK AT 1930 FAIR ARE OF HIGH GRADE

More than 100 head of livestock were entered in the displays and competition in the livestock division at the fair, which was judged this morning. The livestock exhibit is housed in two sheds, the sheep and goats in one group and the cattle in another.

Officials in charge of the livestock show stated that the showing this year is better than that of last season. Although there are not as many animals entered or as many kinds as the class is better and a higher grade of stuff is noted in every pen. The exhibits of animals, both in cattle and sheep, is well arranged and much interest is being shown by the general public. More visitors are entering the shows of live stock than last year which is another feature which is pleasing the men in charge of the work.

Shelton Brothers of Brownwood were the winners of most of the prizes in the Jersey Show, dividing honors with Leonard Hancock & Son of Dublin who also won several ribbons. C. O. Tervooren of Brownwood and N. A. Cropp of Brownwood were also winners in the Jersey Show.

There were 34 animals entered in the show and this included Jolly's Cleo, the champion milk producer owned by Shelton Brothers which has been a feature attraction during the whole fair.

Good Club Boys Exhibit The boys' club workers had many good exhibits in the shows and all animals showed much care and good breeding. There were eight winners among the boys' group and many head of animals entered. Burnell Vick of Brownwood exhibited the only draft stallion in the horse division.

Miss Netha Stovall will return to her home in Ballinger this week. She will accept a position in the county superintendent's office there. Miss Eula Washburn spent last week-end in Sipe Springs with her parents.

Miss Gladys Kirksey visited her parents last week in Woodland Heights. Miss Frances Boatright spent last week-end in Abilene with friends. Mrs. Blanche Garner visited at her home in Comanche last week-end. Miss Jeanette King is back in school after a few days absence.

Extreme Care In Feeding of Grain Sorghums Urged

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Extreme care should be exercised by farmers in feeding grain sorghums to their cattle, according to J. M. Del Curto, chief entomologist of the state department of agriculture. Del Curto issued the warning as the result of the drought in the Panhandle and in West Texas where the larger portion of the sorghums is grown.

The normal growth of the grain is retarded by drought, causing the stalks to retain a high per cent of Prussic acid. In normal weather three-fourths of the prussic acid is released through slow curing while rapid drying, such as is experienced during drought periods, may result in serious loss if the cattle are turned to pasture in the sorghum fields.

Del Curto advised farmers to turn an animal of little value into the sorghum field before using it as pasture. He also advised giving the animals a lighter feed of grain before permitting them to enter the sorghum fields. There has been no sure cure effected for prussic acid poisoning but large doses of glucose and milk have proved helpful. Del Curto stated that one-half teaspoonful of soda mixed with vinegar also had been used with good results.

Laboratory Tests Show No Germs In Brownwood Water

C. N. Davis, chief pumping engineer at the city water station, stated today that he had sent several specimens of Brownwood water to the Rosenthal Laboratories at Dallas for inspection and that in every instance the water was pronounced 99 percent pure. The Rosenthal Laboratories are considered the best in the whole south, ranking above the State Department laboratories, it is stated.

There were no B. Coli or other bacteria found in the water and as far as germs were considered there were none. "The report that the chemists returned was more than satisfactory and showed that Brownwood had nothing to fear from its water. Of course we have been sending our water to the state laboratories regularly but I wanted to have others investigate as well and I thought that two opinions on the water would be better than one and that is why I sent the water to Dallas," Mr. Davis said.

Types of Success Discussed by Dean Hart in Address to D. B. C. Class

Dean T. H. Hart spoke as follows Wednesday night in delivering the baccalaureate address to the graduating class of the Daniel Baker College summer school: "Every well regulated address to a graduating class should contain three parts. 1. It should congratulate the class, 2. It should give advice, 3. It should wish the members of the class success.

"I congratulate you on your success thus far. It is no little thing that you have done. Fifteen years is a long time to spend on one job, but you have been in school that long. Most of you have spent eleven years in public school and now you are finishing four years of college work. That shows that you have grit and determination. I congratulate you for it.

"I congratulate you second on the lives in which you live. I know that you have had nothing to do with the choice of the time. Nevertheless, it is a great privilege to live at this time. You hear a great deal about the 'good old times', but none of us would exchange the present for the past, so I congratulate you on the privileges of the present.

"In the third place I congratulate you upon the opportunities of the future. The last fifty years have been years of wonderful progress, but they will be as nothing compared with the next fifty. It was said of Alexander the Great's mother, that she was very jealous of the success of his father Phillip. She thought that he would leave nothing for Alexander to conquer, but he found that the work which his father had done in conquering the other Grecian states made it possible for him to conquer the world. So it is with you. The success of the past make possible your greater success.

Giving Advice "Then I must give you advice. "I know that you think that it is preposterous for me to advise you, but really there are some things that you do not know. Truth is not the heritage of any one class, age, nor people, and it is even quite probable that your parents and teachers know some things that you do not. My advice to you, then, is first learn as soon as possible that you do not know it all. Until you have done this, all further progress must stop. When you have learned this you can learn from people, from reading and from nature. Keep an open mind. Continue to learn.

"Some of you are going to work. Others will continue to go to school. All of you should find your work as you are prepared for it. My second word of advice is that you should not be afraid to begin at the bottom. No one has yet found himself at the top who did not first lose himself at the bottom. Having found your work, remember that 'He that is faithful in little will be faithful also in much.'

"There are various ways of looking upon one's work. I am reminded of Sir Christopher Wren who was given the task of restoring Saint Paul's Cathedral after the great fire in London. He was unknown to most of the workmen. He had a habit of talking with them as they worked. One said, when he asked him what he was doing, 'I am making a stone.' Another, 'I am making a living,' another, 'I am helping the great architect to build this great cathedral.' You can look at life that way. You can just be cutting a stone, or making a living, or you can be helping the Great Architect of the Universe to build a world. All useful work is God's work and it is your privilege to help Him to work out his plan.

Woman's Death Mourned

"Then success of being and of getting is within the reach of all. We can not all be rich, nor can we all be wise, nor can we all be loaded with honors, but we can have the characters that we desire, and we can all serve.

HOTEL MAN COMES OUT WITH A STRONG STATEMENT

"Since Taking Argotane I Feel Simply Fine," Says Breckenridge Citizen. R. B. House of 233 N. Baylor Street, owner of the Arlington hotel, is still another of Breckenridge's representative citizens to give his unqualified endorsement for Argotane. Mr. House has been a resident of this city for many years and his standing and influence are so well known to require further comment.

In a conversation with the Argotane representative a few days ago Mr. House said: "For five years I suffered from indigestion, nervousness and other troubles, and was never able to get more than a little temporary relief until I began taking Argotane. I had no appetite. My stomach was all out of order, and I hadn't eaten a square meal in so long that I was all out of sorts. I would swell up with gas after meals and feel miserable for hours, and for years I rocked along eating barely enough to keep me up. The truth is, eating had become a matter of more or less dread to me on account of the suffering I had to undergo from it. I looked strong and hearty and no one suspected that I was not a well man but my health was broken in many ways. My nerves were becoming all shattered and I could not sleep at all well. When I would wake up in the morning I would feel nauseated and sick; I was away off in strength and energy and felt so bad all the time I was in no shape to give my business proper attention.

"I was in a very bad way and seemed to be losing ground every day. I realized something had to be done if possible to check my troubles and as Argotane was so highly endorsed I decided to give it a trial. It proved to be just the thing and very much to my satisfaction, I now have an appetite to eat anything without it hurting me in the least. I have no swelling or gas after eating; everything tastes good and I enjoy every bit of my food. My nerves are strong as iron, I feel fine and can look after my business without the slightest trouble and I am glad to endorse Argotane because I have found out by experience what it will do.

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Brownwood at the Camp-Bell and Peppers Drug Stores. (adv)

To the Voters of

(Including Ward 2 in Brownwood)

The results of the election on July 26th were very gratifying to me, because I led in every box in the precinct, and lacked only 214 votes of receiving as many votes as my other four opponents combined.
On account of the additional work placed on the commissioners by reason of our road program, it has been impossible for me to see the voters personally, and express my appreciation for their endorsement in the first primary; and I take this means of thanking the people for their hearty support and cooperation in the past, and of soliciting your vote for another term, in order that I may complete and coordinate your lateral road program in precinct No. 4.

The commissioners are elected by precincts, but my interest has been for the county as a whole, and not one portion as against some other portion thereof.

During the last two years, I have labored incessantly to carry out and complete the road program voted and decreed by the people of Brown county. In the carrying out of this program, I have tried to use rigid economy, and the records will show that every road I have built has shown a saving, instead of going over the amount allotted to said road. I trust that my efforts have met with your approval, and I will appreciate your continued support and confidence. If re-elected, I shall undertake to repay you in untiring and efficient service.

Rumor persists that I have been commissioner of Precinct No. 4 for twelve years. As a matter of fact,
I am now serving my third term as commissioner of said precinct. In this crucial time in the road building program of Brown county, I submit that my past experience as commissioner is an asset, rather than a handicap. Do you not think it a bad idea to change horses in the middle of the stream?

Thanking you in advance for your continued support, I am

(Including Ward 3 in Brownwood)

On account of the additional work placed on the commissioners by reason of our road program, it has been impossible for me to make a personal canvass for re-election without neglecting road work, and I take this means of thanking the people of Precinct No. 3, for their hearty support and co-operation in the past, and of soliciting your vote in Saturday's election in order that I may complete the lateral road program in Precinct No. 3.

During the last two years, I have labored incessantly to carry out and complete the road program voted and decreed by the people of Brown county. I have stood for all progressive movements in the county, but have tried to use the same rigid economy in the county's business that I have been forced to use in my own. I trust that my efforts have met with your approval, and I will appreciate your continued support and confidence. If re-elected,
I shall undertake to repay you in untiring and efficient service.

MISS NUTHALL FAVORITE AT FOREST HILLS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 21. (UP)—The scene at Forest Hills changes today from one of friendly contests, with shrill cries of "good shot, dear" and "so sorry, try it over," to the serious business of determining a successor to Helen Wills Moody.

Play has reached the quarter-final stage in the women's national tennis singles championship, with six American girls, three from Mrs. Moody's home state, barring the way to the foreign threats of Betty Nuthall, blonde, buxom English star and tall, swarthy Baroness Levi of Italy.

Miss Nuthall, whose play has been the most impressive of any of the contenders for the title now is favored to win. Before she does so, the English girl must conquer little Dorothy Weissel, 17-year-old junior champion of California, in today's fourth round match, and probably Marjorie Morrill of Boston in the semi-finals.

Baroness Levi, drawn in the lower bracket, meets Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., this afternoon, with the prospect of facing Mrs. L. A. Harper, brilliant California southpaw, in the other semi-final match.

Three of America's first ten women players were put out of the championship in the third round. Miss Nuthall defeated Edith Cross of San Francisco, ranked No. 3, Baroness Levi, the former Maude Roseham of Chicago, disposed of Jessie Cruickshank, No. 10, while Dot Weissel, in a stirring three-set match, eliminated Sarah Palfrey of Boston, No. 4.

Today's schedule brings Baroness Levi vs. Penelope Anderson; Mrs. Harper vs. Miss Greef; Miss Morrill vs. Miss Burkhardt and Betty Nuthall vs. Miss Weissel.

Texas Clay Target Champion Is Winner

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Gus Payne of Cleveland has worked off with a lion's share of the honors in the Grand American Handicap trap shoot tournament for the second successive day.

Shooting last and facing the necessity of a high score, he broke 189 out of a possible 200 targets yesterday to catch the team championship of states for the Ohio No. 2 squad. Payne's work brought the Ohio team's total to 977 targets out of a possible 1,960, four better than the Texas No. 1 squad.

E. F. Woodward of Houston, Texas state champion, won the shoot for state champions by breaking 25 straight targets in a shoot-off with H. P. Roberts of East Fultonham, the Ohio titleholder, after they had tied at 197.

Howard Benson of Pontiac, Mich., took the professional clay target championship of North America in a shoot-off with Earl Donohue of Minneapolis and John John of Spirit Lake, Ia., all of whom had 197. The veterans championship for those of 70 years and older went to F. D. Kelsey, 78, of East Aurora, N. Y., with 181.

ABNEY SPEAKS FOR STERLING, MRS. ARMSTRONG FOR FERGUSON

Despite the threatening weather a fair sized crowd was present at Indian Creek Monday night to hear the announcements of county candidates and to hear Ross Sterling for governor and Dr. Mollie Armstrong for Miriam A. Ferguson for governor. This was the first political speaking in the last week before the run-off primary and all candidates are making their final efforts to pile up votes in the various precincts. The speaking marked the first of the local Sterling for Governor Club's campaign speaking in the final week.

M. G. Perry of Indian Creek presided at the meeting and called on the different candidates or their representatives to talk.

County Candidates Speak. Candidates for county offices in the run-off primary made their announcements, each making a short talk concerning his or her candidacy, as follows: Mrs. Neva Ashmore, district clerk; Allen D. Forsythe, district clerk; Mrs. J. L. Karr, tax assessor; Ike Mullins, county treasurer; J. H. Lewis, county treasurer; Courtney Gray, county judge; W. A. Butler, county judge.

Fred S. Abney, district chairman of Sterling for Governor Clubs, then spoke in the interest of Ross Sterling for governor of Texas. He said that he knew James S. Ferguson and had known him for many years and had voted for him and his wife on various occasions, but that he did not approve of his record and said that anyone who would look into the records with an open mind would not approve of the many things done by James Ferguson who directed and controlled his wife even when she was governor. He told of Ferguson when he first ran for governor in 1917 of his subsequent doings and final impeachment; about his organization, the American party, saying that Ferguson did not throw over the Democratic party, but that the party threw him out; about his idea of getting his wife to run as a flunkie and of the things they had done at different times during the years in Texas politics. He continued, saying that Ferguson's famous tenant farmer's bill was not made a law because it was unconstitutional and that many other promises had failed in the same manner.

was a girlhood friend of Mrs. Ferguson and knew her qualifications. Mrs. Ferguson will make prohibition effective if she is elected, because she has a plan whereby the officials in the offices will have to temperate before they can arrest anyone, continued Dr. Armstrong.

For three reasons Mrs. Armstrong would like to see Mrs. Ferguson elected again, she said, because, first of their friendship, second because Mrs. Ferguson is capable and third because she did not get to accomplish many things she had planned when she did not get office the second time.

Mrs. Armstrong continued, stating that the farmers and common people would support Mrs. Ferguson and that she would carry the election next Saturday by a two hundred thousand majority.

RAIL RATES ON COTTON TO BE CHANGED UP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP)—A general revision of railroad rates on cotton was ordered today by the Interstate Commerce Commission to be effective next January 10.

In its main features the order left practically undisturbed the present cotton rates applying to the southern quarter of the country, but reduced rates applying to the Mississippi valley to the point of equalizing them with the eastern rates. It provided for cotton rates in the southwest on a basis ten percent higher than that applying in southeast; and it altered the export rates on cotton to Texas seaports in such fashion as to decrease the charges levied for short hauls and increase those applying to long ones. It required also the equalization of Mobile with New Orleans in the matter of cotton export rates.

For shipment of cotton out of the Mississippi Valley, the general scale the commission laid down fixed rates of 18 cents per 100 pounds for distances of five miles; 36 cents for distances of 50; 82 cents for distances of 500; 81 cents for distances of 1,000 miles, with proportionate amounts for intervening distances. By differentials varying the scales, it was arranged to meet the conditions of southern, northern and western shipments.

The standard, the commission observed, "is designed as nearly as may be to reduce the Mississippi valley cotton rate level only enough to put it on approximately the same level as obtained in the remainder of southern territory."

For movements through the southwestern states, the separate mileage scale was approximately 10 per cent higher than that set for the Mississippi Valley. A special arrangement was made for shipments to Houston, Galveston and Texas City through which cotton ordinarily moves in quantity for export.

At present the largest portion of Texas production territory pays a flat 81 cents for cotton shipments to the ports. A scale ordered by the commission in connection with the decision fixes a rate of 81 cents to the Texas ports for cotton shipped 325 miles; 91 cents for 500 miles and 97 cents for 600 miles.

It is expected that "the new rates will produce a reduction in the carrier's revenue but it is impossible to say how much," the commission observed as to this portion of its adjustment.

Rates from Oklahoma to Texas ports will range under the adjustment from 84 cents to $1.00 per hundred pounds as compared with a range now of from $1.02 to $1.07-1-2 cents.

In the matter of port relationship, carriers serving both Mobile and New Orleans were notified to refrain from giving any special preference to shipments reaching New Orleans.

Why Applied.

Application of the new mileage scale from the Mississippi Valley is intended to remove unjust discriminations which it was held Mobile had sustained in cotton traffic. In the preparation of the new schedules, railroads were notified that they would be allowed to make equal rates to both Mobile and New Orleans from valley points where distances were unequal to the extent of 25 per cent.

On long staple cotton grown in the western irrigated zone of Arizona, New Mexico and California, the commission fixed the southwestern scale. The decision resulted from proceedings filed by cooperative organizations of cotton producers and handlers representing all the cotton states. As to rail-and-water rates the decision reserved findings.

DROUGHT LOAN PLAN WILL BE PUT IN EFFECT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Seeking early definition of the financial program involved in the drought relief organization, President Hoover will confer next Tuesday with banking representatives on the state relief committee.

A call for this conference to be held at the White House went to the drought states late yesterday. Meanwhile, following the channels through which Mr. Hoover directed the 1927 Mississippi flood relief, plans went forward today for establishment of state or local credit corporations to arrange loans to farmers through intermediate credit banks where local banks are unable or unwilling to carry the financial load.

The maximum interest which the credit corporation would be permitted to charge farmers, under the tentative program would be six per cent. This is two per cent more than the interest charged by the intermediate credit bank to which the loans would be turned over.

Under present plans loans would be granted farmers on easy security with the endorsement of the credit agencies. In event the banking representatives of the state committee agree upon the proposal, the Federal Farm Loan Board, which supervises intermediate credit banks, will supervise the creation of the credit agencies.

It was estimated that $20,000,000 would be required to meet loan demands.

Announcement as made by Secretary Hyde, chairman of the national committee that the $400,000,000 balance of a $8,000,000 fund created at the last session of congress for flood and storm relief in more than a dozen states will be used for seed loans to drought stricken farmers. Under the terms of the act, however, it can be used only in Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri and Montana of the drought states.

The emergency feed and livestock railroad freight rates now in effect in the east and south will be extended to western drought states on Friday.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(P)—Scattered showers over the plains states were reported to the weather bureau today as having aided in relieving drought conditions during the past 24 hours.

Rains were reported from western North Dakota and northeastern South Dakota, central and eastern Iowa and southwest Wisconsin with light showers in the vicinity of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma and northeastern Texas.

Additional showers, were forecast for western Iowa tonight and for central Iowa tomorrow, for western Minnesota tonight, eastern Minnesota tomorrow and for eastern North Dakota and eastern Nebraska tonight.

Income Tax Cut May Not Be Given by U. S. This Year

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(P)—Treasury officials see little prospect of maintaining for next year the reduction of one per cent in income taxes which was allowed this year as an emergency measure by congress.

Congressional action would be necessary to extend the emergency reduction over another year. Unless action is taken at the short session beginning next December, the tax rates enacted in 1929 would apply on next year's taxes.

While the outlook is not regarded as hopeful for the lower tax scale, Secretary Mellon said today it was too early to begin talking with any definiteness about the tax situation.

The treasury secretary said no estimate would be made about the future at this time. It was indicated he agreed with the treasury experts that the general business situation just now does not warrant extending the emergency provision for another year.

No action is expected to be taken by the treasury in the formulation of the tax policy for next year until shortly before the December session of congress convenes.

HEEN MOTHERS PIGS

LOGANSPORT, Ind. (UP)—Four baby pigs on a farm near here have as their proud "mother" a hen. The real mother of the pigs died at their birth and they were adopted shortly after by the hen. She stands guard as they eat and spreads her wings over them at night when they sleep.

To the Voters of Brownwood and Brown County

What does the office of County Judge really mean to you?

It is the most important office in the county! Why?

Because the County Judge, in addition to his other duties, is judge of the probate court. If you make a will leaving your property to children under age, and you should die, the probate judge must act to protect the interest of those minor heirs; he must pass on titles and valuations in making loans of guardianship moneys, and he must assure himself that those titles are BEYOND QUESTION.

He cannot do this properly unless he has had LEGAL TRAINING and LEGAL EXPERIENCE.

The County Judge Must Act as Trial Judge in Both Civil and Criminal Cases.

As such trial judge he must have knowledge of pleadings and the legal rules of evidence; he must rule on objections made by trial lawyers on either side. He cannot adjourn court until he finds out what the law is, but must decide instantly. To enable him to do this he must have legal training and legal experience. A judicial error in the trial of a case means an appeal and a reversal. This is an added burden upon the taxpayers and the litigants. The county court of Brown county during the next 18 months will try suits involving more money and property than have ever been tried in our district court in three years.

The County Judge Is Presiding Officer of the Commissioners' Court

As such he is the legal adviser to the commissioners and tells them what they can and cannot do legally. His is the deciding vote in the event of a tie among the commissioners. Upon the judgment of this court depends the wise spending of the taxpayer's money. No man can act efficiently as judge of this court unless he has had legal training and legal experience.

These things mean far more to YOU than who will or will not be nominated for the office of governor—because they hit you right where you live your everyday life.

The Highways.

The highway fund of Brown county has been and is being administered honestly and wisely. The policy for the present and future work will compare favorably with that of any other county or state in this country. There has been no inefficiency or dishonesty. Anyone who says otherwise, is plainly ignorant of the actual facts. Here are the facts:

Present Status of Road Program:

There has been sold $850,000 of our bonds, for which the court received $890,326.41, or $40,326.41 above the face value of said bonds. Thus you see that your commissioners' court sold your bonds for a handsome premium, and not below par, as persistently stated during the campaign.

The commissioners' court has spent for right-of-way, construction of lateral roads to date, and in contributions on state highway work, $47,961.09, and has on hand at the present time $418,365.32, or enough money to complete the later road program, and match funds with the state and federal governments on all contracts to be let during the year 1930.

The county has remaining $677,000 of bonds to sell, which, with the $418,365.32 of money on hand leaves $1,095.32 of our bond money yet to be spent.

The state highway department has been good to Brown county. They have agreed to appropriate $322,000 above the "two for one" on the newly designated U. S. highway No. 67 from the Comanche county line through Brownwood to the Coleman county line. They have recommended the designation of the highway from Rising Star through Brownwood to the McCulloch county line as a section of the Canada-to-Gulf U. S. highway, and this will mean enough additional money to make this road a concrete highway. We have also been assured that the Brownwood-Cross Plains road will be designated as a state highway at an early date, which will mean an additional $200,000 for our road program, or a grand total of approximately $1,700,000 to be expended out of State and Federal funds as aid on Brown county roads—an amount in excess of the total bonded indebtedness of Brown county.

In view of all these facts, do you not think that we need a man for county judge who is committed to said program, and in whole-hearted sympathy with the plans and program of the highway department in our county?

Courtney Gray Will Meet the Needs of the Hour.

He has the legal training and legal experience to enable him to act intelligently as probate judge, as judge of the Brown county court in both civil and criminal cases, and as presiding officer of the Brown county commissioners' court.

He believes in good roads as a powerful factor to benefit Brown county trade territory, and is firmly committed to the present highway policy. It must be remembered that the future attitude of the state highway commission will depend a great deal upon the position taken by the county judge and the commissioners' court.

Courtney Gray has pledged himself to cooperate to the extent of his ability and energy toward the completion of this program as outlined by the county commissioners, highway engineer and by the Texas and United States highway commission.

He is not a continuous performer as an office holder. He believes the other fellow ought to have a chance to hold office once in a dozen years at least.

Big Things in the Future.

There are big things in store for Brown county within the next year or two—the water project, the good roads movement that is now started; the industrial program that must be carried out, which will bring new people and new capital when they are assured of an adequate water supply; the tremendous tourist business that will be assured when the traveling public are no longer warned: "Steer clear of Brown county; they've got bum roads."

COURTNEY GRAY has never been a crape hanger or a knocker, and hasn't time to learn to be one now. He wants to see Brownwood and Brown county go ahead and keep abreast of other progressive counties.

He has always been for something, and not against everything. Vote for Courtney Gray and you will not be sorry later.

THE FRIEND WHO DOES NOT FAIL

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Aug. 24, The Friend Who Does Not Fail, I Sam. 18:1-14-17, 32-34, 41, 42.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist

FROM the mad jealousy of Saul, I repeatedly endangering the life of David, it is a pleasure to turn to the friendship for David of Jonathan, Saul's son.

The tokens of this friendship were manifested in a covenant between them and in the consideration with which Jonathan placed upon David his own robes and arms. It is a strange story, full of conflicting elements, but out of it all stands the strength and beauty of a great friendship.

Jonathan seems to have been endowed with all of Saul's finer traits and to have escaped that demon of jealousy which was his father's undoing. In a sense there was everything to have made Jonathan envious and jealous of David. In the hope of succeeding his father as king, worldly advantage might have made him distrustful of David and anxious to get him out of the way.

Spiritualities Strongest What advantage could these two young men could have had from their compact of friendship other than the beauty of the friendship itself, it is not easy to see. The relationship between them seems to have been one of disinterested appreciation and of brotherly love and confidence. There was in it no element of selfishness. The lesson seems to suggest that strong as are the ties of kinship and nature, the ties of spiritual relationship are even stronger.

Two great friendships stand out from the ancient world that have become a model for mutual devotion in the ties of brotherhood. One, the story of Damon and Pythias, comes to us from the Greek world, and the relationship has been immortalized in a fraternal order widely organized here in America. The other comes to us from the Biblical record in this story of David and Jonathan. It was a friendship that triumphed over hindrances and severe tests.

And Jonathan answered Saul his father, and said unto him, Wherefore shall he be slain? What hath he done? And Saul cast a javelin at him to smite him; whereby Jonathan knew that it was determined of his father to slay David.

So Jonathan arose from the table in fierce anger, and did eat no meat the second day of the month; for he was grieved for David, because his father had done him shame.

And as soon as the lad was gone, David arose out of a place toward the south and fell on his face to the ground, and bowed himself three times; and they kissed one another, and wept one with another, until David exceeded.

And Jonathan said to David, Go in peace, forasmuch as we have here in America the other comes to us from the Biblical record in this story of David and Jonathan. It was a friendship that triumphed over hindrances and severe tests.

And Jonathan said to David, Go in peace, forasmuch as we have here in America the other comes to us from the Biblical record in this story of David and Jonathan. It was a friendship that triumphed over hindrances and severe tests.

Pecan Men Will Select Office in New Organization

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 20.—(P)—Looking to developments of co-operative farm marketing, the nation's pecan growers today were cracking the nutty problems of their industry as the board of directors of the National Pecan Marketing Association convened to perfect the organization.

Representatives gathered here from Southern states embraced by Texas and the Carolinas focused their attention upon the selection of a headquarters for the newly created and federal farm board approved organization.

The new headquarters when set up will be the center of marketing activities and tentative plans call for a corps of workers under a sales manager and organization director with future development including the acquisition of storage facilities and probably construction of a processing plant to handle supplies of nuts which cannot demand an equitable marketing price.

Cities desiring the headquarters include Memphis, Tenn., Jackson, Miss., Mobile, Ala., St. Louis, Mo., and Birmingham, Ala.

The directors, holding their first meeting since decision was reached last June to organize a cooperative marketing body for pecans, first assembled in a general session and then delegated its business problems to committees appointed yesterday at preliminary meeting of the executive committee.

The groups which will make recommendations relative to headquarters location, perfecting of a uniform system of machine grading of pecans, and plans for the year's business including advertising of their product, were spurred forward in their work by highly favorable reports from the states of rapid growth in local organizations and the resultant increase in the association's membership.

A JOURNEY TO FAR-AWAY FAIRS

A Journey To Far-Away Fairs
BY RICHARD LAWSON

Anticipating our annual fair, we find ourselves delighted by the prospects. We picture the commercial and recreational activities; the agricultural exhibits; the mechanical exhibits; the trade exhibits; and, no less important, the countless diversions.

Likewise, we find ourselves wondering as to the great fairs of other days and other lands. We wish that we might recapture the past, and visit, for example, the Sturbridge Fair of early eighteenth century England, or the famed Nijni Novgorod Fair of nineteenth century Russia. Perhaps wishing will do it. Perhaps the signs of an approaching fair will help us to transcend time and space; if only for today, or the moment.

Sturbridge Fair
Not many miles from Cambridge, in Merrie Old England tenant farmers are busily removing the last traces of corn from a fine flat field, about half a mile square. They are working at top speed, as indeed they must, since it is August, 1723, and the Sturbridge Fair-keepers will soon have the legal right to trample the corn under foot and build their booths on this very field.

Now the tents and booths are rising. They are arranged in rows like streets. One street is called Cheapside, being devoted exclusively to inexpensive shops. Most of the retailers are from London. They are goldsmiths, braziers, pewterers, turners, milliners, haberdashers, drapers, china shops, toy shops, brandy shops and eating houses.

In the center of the field is a square, where the larger booths stand. For no discoverable reason, this is called the Duddery. Here the dealers have room to bring in their wagons, unload and open their packs. Merchandise is piled up to the roofs of the shops.

Boats From London
The River Cam, which bounds one side of the fair, is navigable between Ely and Cambridge; so it begins to bear a heavy traffic. Goods are being shipped from all sections of England. There are also wharries brought down from London on wagons, to provide a pleasant form of travel for lodgers in Cambridge.

Not only Cambridge, but every town in the neighborhood, is overflowing with the tremendous fair population. Even the barns and stables have been promoted to the station of inns. Fifty London hackney coaches have been drafted into transport service.

The fair-people themselves eat and sleep in their booths, which are generously intermingled with taverns, coffee houses and cook-shops. Also, they have the opportunity, each morning, of purchasing beef, mutton, fowls, bread, butter, cheese and eggs from the butchers and hagglers who come from door to door.

Wool and Hops
The wholesale business chiefly transacted on paper, gathers momentum. In less than a week, a half million dollars' worth of woolen goods have been sold. The wholesalers in salt, groceries, iron and wine are flourishing. A thousand horse-packs of unfinished cotton wool have descended upon the Duddery. There is considerable trading in upholstery's ware; tackings, sackings, blankets, etc., rugs and quilts.

As soon as the woolen business draws to a close, attention is focused on the hops. They come in vast quantities, from Essex, Kent and Herefordshire. They fill the major portion of the fair grounds. Paradoxically, the fair is not located in the hop-growing area, but is the distribution center. Hops hold the stage magnificently. The price of hops in England is fixed only after it has been determined at Sturbridge Fair.

The Gentry Arrives
The wholesalers have, for the most part, completed their business. The retailers and entertainers come to the fore. The gentry has arrived for the last week of the fair. In quest of amusements and bargains. The clowns and rope-dancers are receiving a shower of coins for their efforts. Music is being played. Street-cries, in various keys and with various inflections, are heard. "Buy any wax or wafers?" "Buy a rabbit, a rabbit?" "Fine writing ink."

"Oh, rare shoes!" "Crab, crab, any crab?" "Buy my fat chickens!"

Amusements of the Fair
A ballad singer is belting a "ca-veal against cut purses" while a sly confederate is picking puppets in the audience. They are puppet shows and plays and conjurers. Acrobats are performing much-applauded feats. More street cries demand a hearing.

"Lily white vinegar." "Fair lemons and oranges." "Will you buy a mouse-trap, or a rat-trap?" "Turnips and carrots, oh!" "Round and round, fivepence a pound, duke cherries." "A new love song, only a penny apiece."

"Hot spiced gingerbread, smoking hot."

To Overthrow Everything
The concluding day of the Sturbridge Fair is at hand. Today the Horse-Fair is held. The entire event draws to a finale amid the cheering of the horse and foot races. The crowds dwindle. The Fair-keepers are feverishly engaged in taking down their booths, for tomorrow, the tenant farmers will have the most legal right to overthrow everything and trample it under foot with their plows and carts.

The last cries of "Strawberries, carlet strawberries!" and "Two bundles a penny, primoses, two bundles a penny" are lost in the confusion.

Standing on the Otkos, a terrace built by Czar Nicholas I, of Russia, one perceives an immense plain, rich with cultivated lands, and studded with forests. It is slashed by the serpentine blue of the Volga. Below is the town of Nijni Novgorod, with its low-arched gates, its luxuriant foliage, its whitewashed towers and elegant residences. It is 1865. The normal population of some 30,000 is swelled to a total of 200,000. The world's most extravagant fair, originated in 1366, is about to open.

Nijni Novgorod Fair
Outside of the town is the fair site, on a triangular flat formed by the joining of the rivers Volga and Okra. In that the soil is of a swampy nature, a complex drainage system has been developed. The plain is covered with many feet of gravel and clean sand. In the middle is an enormous market-place, divided by lanes into sixty-four square groups of permanent stone buildings, most of them two-storey warehouses, with verandahs. Here are twenty-five hundred stores, each with a small chamber for the merchant.

The fair streets, from thirty to forty feet wide, resemble those of a Bazaar in Cairo. Some are lined with trees. Others have splendid arcades, supported in front by wrought-iron columns. There the trading is well-sheltered in all weathers.

Many Steamers in River
The rivers present the amazing sight of steamers that number at least 500, and of medieval-looking barges that come from the farthest corners of the Russian Empire. The masts form a veritable wall. These ships have brought merchandise from every quarter of the globe. Some of them have been several years in the coming. The cargoes are being discharged by huge-muscle Tartars.

What a conglomeration of goods and nationalities is to be seen in this scope of seven square miles! One entire side is occupied by the Chinese market, a pavilion of Chinese architecture, principally devoted to tea and to brilliant silks and shawls. Along the wharves are gigantic pyramids of wicker-covered tea chests.

Wild Horse Hides
Beyond the stone buildings are the wooden booths of the wild-appearing Siberian tribes. They sell furs and pelts, including the precious mouse-colored hides of the wild horse. The Armenians offer rugs and beads. Wines from the Caucasus are displayed.

French women, attracting purchasers as much through their beauty as through their wares, hold forth charmingly on the excellence of their gloves, handkerchiefs, ribbons and hats. The English are here with broadcloth. Then there are the dark-skinned and obese Bokharians, the Georgians, Persian, Hindus, Poles and Germans.

During the operation surgeons discovered a malignant condition, in advanced stage and according to the diagnosis, Mr. McGhee may never entirely recover.

MRS. DAVIS CITES ERRORS IN PRIZES TEXTILE EXHIBIT

Mrs. E. E. Davis, superintendent of the Textile Department exhibit at the 1930 Brown County Fair, has called attention to errors in the premium list as published in the catalogue for the 1930 Fair. In the knitting and tating divisions of the textile exhibit, prizes for knitted sweaters, scarfs, baby sacks and spreads are quoted as $3 and $1 for first and second prizes, respectively. The same premiums are quoted for the best tatted handkerchief, the best baby cap and the best display of tating.

Mrs. Davis states that these premiums will be $1 and $5.50, respectively, for first and second places. Attention was called to these errors to avoid any possible misunderstanding between exhibitors and those in charge of the textile exhibit.

Lometa Bank Is Closed; Audit Is Now Being Made

The First National Bank of Lometa was closed Saturday morning by order of its board of directors and an audit is now being made by the State Banking Department, according to information received from Lometa today. Representatives of the State Banking Department arrived Sunday to take charge and make the audit.

Until the audit is completed, it was stated, or at least until further progress has been made with it, no statement will be made concerning the affairs of the bank. The bank was voluntarily closed by the directors. While there were rumors of a shortage in the bank's funds, no authentic statement would be made by the directors or department concerning this, nor comments made on the rumor.

W. W. Tippen, president of the bank, who has been in active charge of its affairs for the last six years, has been away from Lometa since last Monday. It was stated and so far as could be learned from citizens of Lometa his whereabouts are not known.

The First National Bank of Lometa has been in business since 1913. Its capital stock was $25,000.

The new Boulder dam will be 45 feet thick at the top and 650 feet at the bottom with a length of 1,054 feet.

LARGE CROWD AT BABY REVUE

Two hundred visitors and twenty-three baby members were present at the annual meeting of the Babies' Alumni Association and first annual homecoming at the Bellevue Hospital Saturday afternoon, August 16, according to reports from the officials in charge of the affair.

Twenty-three of the thirty-nine babies that have been born at the hospital since it was first established about one year ago took part in the show and one observer has the following to say: "Babies to the right, babies to the left, babies in front, babies at the rear! The hospital was simply alive with them, some wriggling red babies of a few weeks, some laughing and cooing at the half-year age; plump little curly haired girls with frills and ribbons, and rowdy boys. Such an assembly of babyhood!"

The babies were judged on physical fitness based on the decisions of Miss Zoella McKissack, assisted by Mrs. Myrtle Lovelady and Mrs. Dyer, graduate nurses of Santa Anna. Every baby went through a process of examination which included weight, measure, temperature, condition of eyes, ears, nose and throat, body development, posture, heart beat, skin, hair, feet and hands. Out of the twenty-three babies there were no deformities and the lowest average was 90 1-2 per cent. Some had slight rickets, but not a single child was found to be diseased.

The Prize Winners

The prize winners were the three highest average girls and the three highest average boys, namely:

Jenne Ann Baugh, one year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Baugh of Route 2, winner of a silver loving cup, properly engraved, as highest average of girl babies.

Jo Ann Armstrong, three weeks old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Armstrong, of Poyote, second highest average girl and winner of a beautiful bed lamp.

Carlynn Ingram, eight month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zeno Ingram of 1908 Avenue E, third highest average girl and winner of hand made dress.

Joseph Louis Stalcup, eight month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Stalcup of 701 Avenue G, won a silver loving cup, properly engraved as the highest average boy at the show.

Charles Ethelbert Moore, one and a half months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore of Texon, Texas, won second highest average among the boys with a jumping swing as prize.

Bobby Dean Dillard, four months old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Dillard of Coleman, won third highest boy average and an 8x10 hand colored enlargement of his photograph as prize.

Estelle Ann Baker, two weeks old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Baker of 1616 Second Street won a beautiful baby present for being the youngest baby present.

A. C. Winkler, Jr., year old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Winkler, Second street, won a toilet set for being the oldest baby present.

Group Features

Following the baby show, group pictures of not only the alumni association and their mothers were made, but pictures of visitors and their babies were also made.

Mrs. Owen V. Hall received the visitors and presided over the registry and the show and Misses Aileen Spence and Emily Simmons presided over the punch bowl. Misses Lovell Thompson and Thelma Schneider registered the babies of the alumni association and prepared them for the examination.

The prizes to the winners were given by Brownwood merchants and complimentary gifts were given to all present by the hospital and Brownwood merchants.

Members of the alumni association present at the show were: Jo Ann Armstrong, Estelle Ann Baker, Lydia Lee Baker, Jenne Ann Baugh, Loyd William Barrett, Thomas Davee, Bobby Dean Dillard, Coralee Paine, Carolyn Gaines, Charles Ice, Jr., Mazelle Isham, Carlynn Ingram, Dwight Stephen Lester, James George Lively, Charles Ethelbert Moore, Peggy Christine McClatchey, Jerry Donald Rashell, John Yantis Robnett, Joseph Louis Stalcup, Clyde Wise, Jr., Jack Raymond Weedon, A. C. Winkler, Jr., Sarah Joan Youngblood.

Officials of the hospital say that they were more than pleased with the success of the homecoming and first meeting of the alumni association. They expressed their appreciation of the help given by the judges and others who helped in the affair and to the visitors who attended.

Seriously Burned By Gas Explosion

Marvin Mobley, 1309 Melwood Ave. was victim of quite serious burns on the right side of his body and abdomen Friday when the gas under a boiler which he was firing at an oil well on the Boyesen tract, about three miles from Brownwood on the Bangs road, exploded and ignited his clothing.

Mr. Mobley is employed by J. E. Ellis, who is drilling on the Boyesen tract and was working with the boiler at the well Friday morning. Gas under the boiler has gone out and when a light was struck the gas exploded and Mr. Mobley's clothing caught fire and burned him seriously on the body before the fire could be extinguished. He was treated by local physicians as quickly as possible and is reported to be resting nicely at his home.

SUNDAY SHOW FINE IS $50 AND COSTS

J. C. Tunstall, manager of the Lyric and Gem Theatres, was given the maximum fine of $50 and costs on charge of violation of the Sunday laws of Texas by the verdict of the jury in Justice Court Monday afternoon.

The specific charge in the case was the operation of the Lyric Theatre on Sunday, August 16th. This is the second trial for Sunday law violations against Mr. Tunstall for operation of Sunday movies. The other trial was held during the week of August 4th and at that time he was fined $20 and costs in city court.

He was again arrested Sunday for the third time by city police and will be tried soon for the operation of the Lyric last Sunday.

In both trials McGaugh and Darroch, attorneys for the defense filed notice of appeal to county court immediately following the jury verdict.

The jury in the case Monday was out for about 45 minutes. The foreman of the jury was W. E. Brogden. The attorneys completed their arguments at about 4:00 o'clock. The entire morning was spent in the selection of the jurors and immediately following the noon recess the trial was started with the six jurors chosen.

Only four witnesses were questioned during the trial and as these were subpoenaed by the state.

APPEAL FILED IN THE BRADY CASE TUESDAY

AUSTIN, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Appeal on behalf of John W. Brady, former appeals court judge, who was convicted of the slaying of Miss Leahia Highsmith, was filed today in the state court of criminal appeals.

Only the statement of facts was filed today, consisting of the records of the case at two lower court trials, in Travis and Dallas counties.

The case will probably be set for review some time during the October term of court.

Brady was convicted at his second trial of murder without malice and sentenced to three years imprisonment. His first trial at Austin resulted in a hung jury.

Miss Highsmith, a court stenographer and an intimate of Judge Brady, was stabbed to death in front of her boarding house in Austin on the night of November 9, last year. Brady was found guilty of her slaying seven months later, in May 17.

His principal defense was insanity, induced by over-indulgence in "bootleg" liquor.

His attorneys pictured the judge, who was nearly 60 years old, as a man whose once brilliant mind had deteriorated through years of self-indulgence, to the point where he was no longer responsible for his actions.

Miss Highsmith was about half his age. Attorneys for the state contended he stabbed her to death in a fit of jealousy when he found he was losing her affections to a younger man.

The stabbing occurred, according to the testimony, after Brady had been evicted from an apartment where Miss Highsmith and others were guests at a party, after a football game here. Witnesses testified that Brady had been drinking heavily.

Third Sunday Show Trial Next Week

Trial in the city court of J. C. Tunstall, manager of the Lyric and Gem theatres, on charge of violation of the Sunday law in connection with the Sunday show at the Lyric last Sunday has been set for next week, according to City Attorney E. E. Lee. Judge Lee said that the date had not been set but that the trial would be postponed until next week because of the fair this week and other things interfering with the arrangements.

This will be the third trial for Sunday law violations. In the first trial Mr. Tunstall was assessed a fine of $20 and costs in city court. This week he was fined $50 and costs which totaled $72.25 in Justice Court, this being for the operation of the Lyric on Sunday, August 16.

Jolly's Cleo (557,477)

The Only Medal of Merit Cow in Texas

Shelton Brothers of Brownwood, Texas, long prominent in the Jersey industry in Texas, have recently become the only Jersey breeders in the State to best a Medal of Merit cow through the qualification of their outstanding producer, Jolly's Cleo 557,477, for the prized medal. Jolly's Cleo is the second Texas cow to win the Medal of Merit, and the first in the State in seven years to accomplish the feat.

Her record of 754.07 pounds butter fat, 12,887 pounds of milk in 305 days not only exceeds the required yield for the medal by more than 140 pounds of butter-fat, but is the highest yield of butter-fat ever completed by a Texas Jersey cow in a 305 day Register of Merit test. In addition, Jolly's Cleo wins the state championship in the class for cows over 5 years of age with her record, superseding Solvictor Odelle 466,488, tested by Mary M. Lasater, Falfurrias, Texas. Solvictor Odelle held the championship honor with a record of 695.44 pounds butter-fat completed in a test started when she was 7 years and 5 months of age. Jolly's Cleo was 6 years and 11 months of age when started on her recent test, and previously had qualified for a GOLD and SILVER medal.

While making her Medal of Merit record Jolly's Cleo maintained her yield of about 70 pounds of butterfat for seven months and during her best month produced 83.63 pounds. She qualified for a medal in class AAA, and was with calf for 203 days during the ten months of test.

Work of Judge W. P. Doty as Civil Engineer Associated Interesting Events of Earlier Days in Texas

By TELVIS CLYDE SMITH
 Judge W. P. Doty, 1103 Durham Street, is 81 years old, but if you think he is encumbered by age take a field trip with him some day—and you'll come out the loser. He'll walk you to death on hot summer days when the sun feels like it's about ten miles away; walk until you drop panting for rest beneath the shade of some tree, and then stand by and smile at you while you recover. For the Judge is used to such things. He's been a surveyor for over sixty years, and he was trained in a hard school.

William P. Doty was born in Westfield, Pennsylvania, August 27, 1849. He moved to Iowa a few years later, and took up the study of civil engineering. In 1870, assured of a job in Texas, he took a boat at Muscatine, journeying to the Lone Star state by way of New Orleans and Galveston.

Surveyed For International
 "As soon as I got off the boat at Galveston, I boarded a train for Houston," said Judge Doty. "I didn't spend a month in more time than I had to in the seaport town, because it was full of cases of yellow fever."

"I went from Houston to Hearne, where I reported for work. The boss looked rather leary at the sight of me, and when I asked him what to buy, he told me to purchase a shirt, a blanket, and a pair of durable pants. He wound up by suggesting that I would probably last three days. But I fooled him. I lasted a great deal longer than that."

"I went to work surveying the route for the International; it's now called the I. & G. N. We worked through the piney woods for a couple of years before completing the road. At the end of that time, I came down with malaria. I spent a month in more time than I was able to get around again, the boss said that I had better go back home."

Worked For T. & P.
 "Not for me," I said. "I'm going to Fort Worth, and get in on this 'T. & P. job.' And I did."

"That was in 1872."

"Let me tell you, Dallas and Fort Worth were both different in those days to what they are now. Dallas? Just a muddy street, with a few houses lining it. And Fort Worth—well, there was a square there, and a few houses, but that was all. They didn't even have a school in the Panther City, so you can see how civilized they were; at least, from the point of view of most of the boys. A finer set of men I've never seen than our crew but most of them took things in when they came to town. They wanted to booze, and plenty of it. Wild and carefree—that was life in those days."

"We surveyed a tentative route from Fort Worth west to beyond what is now Aspermont, in Stone-wall county. General Dodge was building a road from Los Angeles to Texas, and we were surveying the eastern part of the country."

"Indians? No, our gang never was bothered by them. But the men working out of El Paso were. There were 25 men to a crew; in addition, each crew had a guard of a company of U. S. soldiers. A company, in those days, consisted of 30 privates, and 2 officers."

Camp Surrounded
 "One morning, the crew working in West Texas to each up, they found their camp surrounded by a large party of Comanches and Kiowas. Now the regulars with this company were niggers, and they didn't budge when the Indians came in sight. Instead, they hugged their blankets while the redskins rode around the camp yelling for the soldiers to shoot at them. They laughed, and jeered, and then rode away with all the horses. Not a shot was fired. The whites kept quiet, too."

"Of course, that was the sensible thing to do. The Indians far outnumbered the beset party; the soldiers and surveyors both would have finished things by having their scalps decorated some lodge if they had resisted."

"The government not only assigned some to each camp; they also gave each trail blazer a pepperbox revolver. These guns were six-shooters, and they lived up to their name. Pull the trigger once, and all six of the cylinders went off at the same time. I threw mine away after shooting it once, and bought me a Smith and Wesson for safety's sake."

"The soldiers furnished us with supplies. The western country was alive with game in those days. Deer, antelope, turkeys, prairie chicken, and buffalo—the plains abounded with them. It was a beautiful sight to see a herd of two hundred buffalo moving in arrowhead formation across the open country, bulls to the front and rear, cows wedged in the center of the flying group. And wild turkeys—I've seen as many as five hundred of them in a single bunch in Palo Pinto county."

Faced Starvation
 "But there was one time when we faced starvation. All of our supplies played out until we had nothing left but some condemned sauerkraut. We were in a section of the country where we couldn't find any game. So we ate the kraut. But it didn't stay with us very long."

"This experience didn't last very long, though. In a short time we sighted a bison, and made a good kill."

"In 1874, our route completed, we went back to Fort Worth. It had become a booming town, and had been declared a city since I had passed through there. In a short time, however, it suffered a financial setback as the result of the panic."

"Money was hard to get in those days. I came to Texas with a wad of greenbacks, but it didn't take me long to find out my mistake. Greenbacks weren't considered good in this section then—they were discounted fifty per cent. Gold was the medium of exchange."

"All of us landed in Fort Worth ready for our pay. The railroad, through Jay Cook's investment, had been plunged into near bankruptcy. None of us, with the exception of O'Neill, our division manager, had received anything but food for a year and four months. O'Neill had earned us into singing for four months pay before the pay wagon came in—then, he had gone off, gotten drunk, and flung away the whole company's pay check in a single spree. Since then, no money had shown up, and all of us were beginning to feel murderous toward the company, as well as toward O'Neill."

"The money came in, and O'Neill wanted us to sign before he paid us! We didn't lynch him, but we refused emphatically to sign until we got the money in our own pockets."

Took Mules on Debt
 "O'Neill still owed me for that four months, and I was determined to get even with him some way. Seeing that he would never be able to pay me with currency, I took four mules and camp outfit in payment. I tried to sell the mules, but couldn't get the price for them, so I quit the railroad, and went down to San Saba, where I sold the outfit."

"Yes, those were great days. And there were some great men at work in those days, just as well as there are now. Old General Dodge; he was the greatest engineer of them all. He built more miles of railroad than any man that has ever lived. When he'd get through with one line, and somebody would ask him what he was going to do next, he'd say 'I'm going to build another railroad.'"

"And there were Evans and Hays—great builders, both of them. It was always U. P."

"I almost feel as if I had worked on the U. P. All of the old engineers and roadbuilders went to work on other routes as soon as the Union Pacific was completed. You can't get around in second-class those big red-faced micks, who always asked, by way of introduction, 'Was you on the U. P.?' When you said no, they looked reserved and haughty, and you knew that you could never gain their confidence. They were blood brothers, those men who built a railroad across scorching miles of desert sands, and high mountain peaks, in the face of starvation and sunstroke, and swift death from the bullets of Indian warriors. And they had always a word to say about that road; by day, as they worked, and by night, as they sat around the campfire, they spoke of nothing else."

Oldest Citizen

take the oath required of soldiers in the Southern armies. Reconstruction never reached Alfred Brown. He was true to his convictions and still is.

In politics Mr. Brown has always been a Democrat and in the recent primary he voted for Barry Miller.

Mr. Brown was married in Georgia to Mrs. Brown and to the union were born eight children, two boys and six girls. Of these only one is living, she being Mrs. M. R. Crooks, who lives three miles northeast of May. Mr. Brown has made his home with his daughter the past 40 years.

When Mr. Brown first came to Texas, he settled in Williamson county but was there only a short time before moving to Brown county where he has lived for more than half a century. Mr. Brown has been a life long prohibitionist and for seventy years has been a member of the Baptist Church.

Despite his advanced years, Mr. Brown is not feeble and his mind is remarkably active for a man of his age. He has been a most wonderful citizen, in fact he still is.

AGED CITIZEN OF MAY VOTES IN PRIMARIES
 By W. R. CHAMBERS
 The little city of May, in north Brown county, claims the oldest citizen in Brown county, at least the oldest citizen to cast a vote in the recent Democratic primary election and who plans to again vote next Saturday. This aged citizen is Alfred E. Brown, who was born September 18, 1832 in Townes county, Georgia. Mr. Brown will celebrate his 98th birthday in less than a month.

Mr. Brown was a soldier under Robert E. Lee and participated in the most important engagements of the war, "The Battle of the Wilderness," "Gettysburg," "Antietam," the siege at Richmond and the battle at Chancellorsville, in fact he was in every major battle of the Civil War. He was very badly wounded several times during the four year struggle. Two of his brothers died for the Confederate cause.

He was at Appomattox when Gen. Lee surrendered but Mr. Brown did not surrender and never did

THERMOMETER AGAIN AT 107
 The previous record in warm weather in Brownwood for this summer was tied Tuesday when the mercury topped 107 degrees for the second time this year. On July 14th the temperature reading was 107.

On several days the temperature has gone two or three or even four degrees above 100.

The reading was made on the official government thermometer. One hundred and seven was the maximum temperature, but before last night was over the mercury dropped to 73 degrees, making a difference of 34 degrees between the maximum and minimum temperature, which is a record within itself.

EVIDENCES OF GROWING RESPONSIBILITIES OF RAILROAD COMMISSION
 AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Evidence of the growing responsibilities of the state railroad commission was found in the report of the commission for 1929, which has just come from the press.

Nearly 700 pages of closely printed matter were needed to detail the work of the commission, and the report did not include the activities of the oil and gas division, administration of the gas utilities law, and the motor transportation division.

Employees of the commission have been working on the report steadily since the end of 1929.

What the commission believes about its growing authority was disclosed in the letter of transmittal to the governor.

"It is entirely within the bounds of a conservative statement," the commission wrote "to say that the responsibilities of the commission have increased 500 per cent within the past ten years. This has been brought about by the development and growth of commerce in the state and nation and because that in the evolution of transportation it has been necessary to keep rates and transportation matter affecting commerce between the states, and within the separate states, on a more uniform and non-discriminatory basis."

Need for larger appropriations was cited in another section.

"The railroad commission is, and has been for many years, under-financed, if it is to perform fully its duties. There are various matters with respect to railroad and express regulation which the commission would undertake if it had available sufficient force and finances with which to do our work."

Commending the legislature for passing the law allowing any one member to conduct a hearing, the commission made its recommendation for other needed legislation.

This was to the effect that in hearings with the interstate commerce commission, or commissions with other states, testimony presented there might be made a part of the Texas commission's records, to save the duplication of effort.

And wild turkeys—I've seen as many as five hundred of them in a single bunch in Palo Pinto county."

Faced Starvation
 "But there was one time when we faced starvation. All of our supplies played out until we had nothing left but some condemned sauerkraut. We were in a section of the country where we couldn't find any game. So we ate the kraut. But it didn't stay with us very long."

"This experience didn't last very long, though. In a short time we sighted a bison, and made a good kill."

"In 1874, our route completed, we went back to Fort Worth. It had become a booming town, and had been declared a city since I had passed through there. In a short time, however, it suffered a financial setback as the result of the panic."

"Money was hard to get in those days. I came to Texas with a wad of greenbacks, but it didn't take me long to find out my mistake. Greenbacks weren't considered good in this section then—they were discounted fifty per cent. Gold was the medium of exchange."

"All of us landed in Fort Worth ready for our pay. The railroad, through Jay Cook's investment, had been plunged into near bankruptcy. None of us, with the exception of O'Neill, our division manager, had received anything but food for a year and four months. O'Neill had earned us into singing for four months pay before the pay wagon came in—then, he had gone off, gotten drunk, and flung away the whole company's pay check in a single spree. Since then, no money had shown up, and all of us were beginning to feel murderous toward the company, as well as toward O'Neill."

"The money came in, and O'Neill wanted us to sign before he paid us! We didn't lynch him, but we refused emphatically to sign until we got the money in our own pockets."

Took Mules on Debt
 "O'Neill still owed me for that four months, and I was determined to get even with him some way. Seeing that he would never be able to pay me with currency, I took four mules and camp outfit in payment. I tried to sell the mules, but couldn't get the price for them, so I quit the railroad, and went down to San Saba, where I sold the outfit."

"Yes, those were great days. And there were some great men at work in those days, just as well as there are now. Old General Dodge; he was the greatest engineer of them all. He built more miles of railroad than any man that has ever lived. When he'd get through with one line, and somebody would ask him what he was going to do next, he'd say 'I'm going to build another railroad.'"

"And there were Evans and Hays—great builders, both of them. It was always U. P."

"I almost feel as if I had worked on the U. P. All of the old engineers and roadbuilders went to work on other routes as soon as the Union Pacific was completed. You can't get around in second-class those big red-faced micks, who always asked, by way of introduction, 'Was you on the U. P.?' When you said no, they looked reserved and haughty, and you knew that you could never gain their confidence. They were blood brothers, those men who built a railroad across scorching miles of desert sands, and high mountain peaks, in the face of starvation and sunstroke, and swift death from the bullets of Indian warriors. And they had always a word to say about that road; by day, as they worked, and by night, as they sat around the campfire, they spoke of nothing else."

EVIDENCES OF GROWING RESPONSIBILITIES OF RAILROAD COMMISSION
 AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Evidence of the growing responsibilities of the state railroad commission was found in the report of the commission for 1929, which has just come from the press.

Nearly 700 pages of closely printed matter were needed to detail the work of the commission, and the report did not include the activities of the oil and gas division, administration of the gas utilities law, and the motor transportation division.

Employees of the commission have been working on the report steadily since the end of 1929.

What the commission believes about its growing authority was disclosed in the letter of transmittal to the governor.

"It is entirely within the bounds of a conservative statement," the commission wrote "to say that the responsibilities of the commission have increased 500 per cent within the past ten years. This has been brought about by the development and growth of commerce in the state and nation and because that in the evolution of transportation it has been necessary to keep rates and transportation matter affecting commerce between the states, and within the separate states, on a more uniform and non-discriminatory basis."

Need for larger appropriations was cited in another section.

"The railroad commission is, and has been for many years, under-financed, if it is to perform fully its duties. There are various matters with respect to railroad and express regulation which the commission would undertake if it had available sufficient force and finances with which to do our work."

Commending the legislature for passing the law allowing any one member to conduct a hearing, the commission made its recommendation for other needed legislation.

This was to the effect that in hearings with the interstate commerce commission, or commissions with other states, testimony presented there might be made a part of the Texas commission's records, to save the duplication of effort.

MOODY SCORES FERGUSON IN SPEECH HERE

Dan Moody, who for nearly four years has served the state of Texas as Governor, spoke for almost two hours Wednesday at the Brown county court house to a crowd of between 1,000 and 1,500 in the interest of Ross S. Sterling, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of the state.

Throughout his lengthy and interesting discourse, the Governor devoted much attention to what he termed "Fergusonism," delivering all the while a scathing attack upon the political record that James E. Ferguson has made during the past 16 years and throughout his discourse, the Governor declared that the gubernatorial campaign is one of morals rather than of politics, that it is a contest between good government and bad government, decent government and indecent government, responsible and irresponsible government.

Introduced by McLaughlin, F. S. Abney opened the morning's program by introducing Walter U. Early as master of ceremonies and Mr. Early in turn introduced E. L. McLaughlin, who presented to the large crowd, "His Honor, Dan Moody, Governor of the State of Texas."

Governor Moody devoted the first hour of his address to a scathing attack of Jim Ferguson, reviewing the impeached governor's record from the time of his impeachment by the state senate through the administration of his wife, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, in 1925 and 1926. Throughout the discourse, Governor Moody, without mincing words, pictured Jim Ferguson, husband of Texas' only woman governor, as a despot, a man of unlimited greed and a man who has been a dismal failure in every undertaking, private and public.

And from the very beginning, Gov. Moody pointed out what he said was the folly and danger of electing another proxy governor, "a man who is under no oath whatsoever to perform the duties of the office which in reality he will occupy, if Mrs. Ferguson is elected governor."

The speaker asked time and again whether or not the people of Texas wished to create a situation whereby Jim Ferguson, "under the pretense of being a lawyer, can collect large fees for using his influence in the governor's office?" "No," the governor thundered, "Texas wants a decent government, a responsible government and a governor who will be responsible to the people and under oath to perform the duties of office. The governor should be under oath, acting under some legal restraints and there's not a law in Texas that can cope with the ravages of Jim Ferguson acting as governor under the name of his wife," the governor continued.

Reviews Impachment Governor Moody then reverted to Jim Ferguson's own administration prior to and including the time of his impeachment. Governor Moody pointed out the various articles of impeachment. He told of Ferguson being indicted by the Travis county grand jury after he was removed from office and of why Jim Ferguson was never tried.

"Jim says that I said that I was going to put him in the penitentiary and I didn't say it, but had I been district attorney in Travis county when the grand jury indicted old Jim, I would have done my best to put the old boy in the pen," Gov. Moody stated.

Governor Moody then launched into an attack of Jim Ferguson's acts during his wife's term of office during 1925 and 1926. The governor dealt at length on Ferguson's connection with the state highway department and especially his dealings with the American Road Company. Governor Moody stated that when the Ferguson's went out of office and he, Moody, took charge, that the state highway department was in debt $6,250,000 and had enough money on hand to pay about ten cents on the dollar owed.

"If Ferguson had stayed in office six months longer, the state highway department would have had to cease business."

The Parole Record Governor Moody then discussed at length the Ferguson's pardon record, beginning with Ferguson's own statement that 2,000 convicts will be pardoned if Mrs. Ferguson is elected governor.

"Ferguson has now reduced this number to 1,000 but any statement of this nature is too vicious for any sensible people to seriously consider."

Jim Ferguson, when governor, pardoned 2,600 convicts and Mrs. Ferguson pardoned 3,737, a total of more than 6,300. And it has cost the state of Texas more than six million dollars to put these criminals behind the bars, yet one man turned them all free to continue their depredations on society," the governor declared.

He concluded his scathing attack on the Ferguson pardon record by saying that all the bootleggers, hijackers, burglars and all potential or actual criminals will vote for the Ferguson's. Governor Moody told of a straw vote taken in the Tom Green county jail last week, adding that every prisoner behind the bars in that jail favored the election of Mrs. Ferguson.

Denies Education Claim Governor Moody then disputed Ferguson's claim to being a friend of education, pointing out the fact that during his own administration and the term of his wife, that he had never increased the per capita appropriation for rural education. In contrast with this, Governor Moody cited the fact that during his (Moody's) four years in office the per capita for rural schools had risen from $14 to $17.50.

Tells of Sterling's Life Governor Moody then turned to Ross S. Sterling and told of the Houston man's life history, beginning with Sterling's forefathers who came to Texas with the earliest colonists, continuing through the battles for Texas Independence, tracing the family name and record even to the present day.

He told of Sterling's early struggles as a laboring man, as an operator and owner of a small country store, of his rise in business, his success as a banker, his major successes as an oil operator and his success in the newspaper business, in which he is now engaged.

Friend of Common People He pictured Ross S. Sterling as a friend of the common people, in this connection, telling of the numerous acts of philanthropy by Sterling, including the providing of compensation insurance for employees of oil companies he headed, of liberal pay given employees of a railroad he headed and concluded by citing the facts that today Sterling carries on his payroll widows of veteran employees of the Houston paper he owns.

He then told of the boys' camp established on the coast by Sterling in memory of his own little boy who died in recent years.

He pictured Ross S. Sterling as an upright citizen, a successful business man, a man of integrity and a man whose honesty has never been questioned and a man willing to serve the great state of Texas as governor, not for financial gain but for the honor of giving Texas a decent, honest and economical administration.

The governor closed his discourse by emphasizing his claim that the present campaign is not one of politics but one of morals, decent government, honest government and responsible government, on the one hand, and all that is bad in government on the other hand. Met Here This Morning Fred S. Abney, district chairman of Sterling for Governor clubs; Harry Knox, Sr., R. B. Rogers and H. M. Hughes made up the reception committee of local Sterling supporters for Governor Dan Moody when he arrived in Brownwood on the Frisco at 6:00 o'clock Wednesday morning. The group met the Governor at the train and welcomed him to Brownwood, then accompanied him to the Southern Hotel where he rested until time for the speaking.

Prohibition Is Again Big Topic At Washington

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Prohibition bobbed up again in capital discussions today after having yielded the spotlight to the long-drawn drought.

Another proposal by Representative Laguardia of New York, a Republican wet bloc leader, suggesting a showdown on prohibition enforcement effort, shared attention with a report by a Washington board of trade committee condemning employment of disreputable persons as "stool pigeons and informers" by federal dry agents in the district and the alleged disappearance of liquor seized in evidence.

The report was prepared for the law enforcement commission. Laguardia suggested the department of justice be given every facility for a strong enforcement drive. He said the department was entitled to it in "this last attempt to enforce the law."

"If they fail," the New Yorker added, "I think the country should expect from them a fair, frank statement by the first regular session of the seventy-second congress that it can't be done, or what is needed to enforce it against the will of the majority of the people in many states and quite a large percentage in other states."

The board of trade report complained of "lawless conduct" by federal prohibition agents, listing employment of "disreputable persons as stool pigeons and informers" as one of the worst.

'ST. LOUIS' ENDS FLIGHT; NEW TEST STARTED

Landed Sunday ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien were back to earth today after completing the longest sustained flight in history. Conflicting versions of what brought the sturdy monoplane, Greater St. Louis, back to ground were given by the fliers and their manager.

The pilots said they landed because of a break in the crankcase of the motor. William Pickens, manager of Jackson and O'Brien, said they landed because of lack of financial returns.

The Greater St. Louis touched ground at Lambert-St. Louis field at 6:39:30 a. m. (CST) yesterday after having spent 647 hours, 28 minutes and 30 seconds cruising over the field. They lacked but 31 1-2 minutes of having been aloft 27 days. Their new record exceeded that of John and Kenneth Hunter by 93 hours and 47 minutes, but lacks 352 hours, 31 minutes and 30 seconds of the fliers' goal of 1,000.

The end of the flight, the only come-back endurance flight on record, was abrupt and unexpected. Between 2 and 3 a. m. mechanics heard the first break in the smooth sound of the motor. "She's missing," they said.

Lands Early From then on until dawn the missing kept up and at 6:15 a. m. the fliers radioed that the crankcase was broken, two cylinders were missing and oil was spraying over the ship. Before a special police detail could arrive the plane began aloft in wide circles and at 6:39:30 the record-breaking craft touched ground in a perfect three-point landing.

Only about 300 persons witnessed the landing. In July, 1929, when O'Brien and Jackson landed with a new record of 420 hours, thousands were at the field. The fliers were borne like conquering heroes through streets lined with cheering admirers. Yesterday there was only an occasional cheer.

At the hotel where the airmen were taken, Pickens told reporters the fliers landed because "they had been so hot." Jackson and O'Brien did not owe St. Louis anything. There was nothing to gain by continued flying. Why spend money keeping aloft?

Not Finances "Finances had nothing to do with it," both fliers said. "We would have paid for supplies to continue the flight ourselves had the motor continued to function."

Cost of the flight, exclusive of investment in planes and equipment, was about $1,000 a week. The fliers earned $8,500 and have contracts to appear at state fairs which will net them $30,500, making a total of $39,000 to be divided between them with a percentage for Pickens. In addition, they have prospects for getting more contracts.

Officers Thwart Mob Threatening Children's Camp

ELMIRA, N. Y., Aug. 15.—(AP)—A threatening mob of 2,000 men and boys with a sprinkling of women, were held to a deadline today by Sheriff Harry J. Tift and six deputies, assisted by a dozen state troopers, at the Communist Children's Camp at Van Ketteren, following threats last night to burn the camp.

Leaders of a mob of 200 persons from Waverly, N. Y., and Sayre and Athens, Pa., last night gave camp heads and the 70 children under their charge a half hour to leave before they moved to the camp. Authorities arrived just in time to prevent the threat being carried out and established a deadline after dispersing the mob.

The trouble began last Friday, when a society's offer of an American flag was refused by Mabel Husa and Alice Holmes, leaders of the International Workers' Relief Camp at Van Ketteren.

Miss Husa and Miss Holmes were arrested on a charge of desecrating the flag after a mob had torn a red flag from the entrance and burned a flying cross there. At their hearing yesterday the two young women obtained a postponement until tomorrow. Members of the International Labor defense were present at the hearing.

The 70 children in the camp were terrified when the mob crossed them wearing white armbands, ordered the camp heads to leave before they burned it. Mob leaders said they were determined to destroy the camp before the inmates leave tomorrow, the last day of their stay.

Baby Mixup Case Again Gets Into The Courts Friday

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The Bamberger-Watkins baby mixup flared again in Chicago courts today, after having been quiescent for a week. Attorneys for the Bambergers asked for a writ restraining the Watkinses from permitting any more scientific tests of the baby which Mrs. Watkins has and which she maintains belongs to the Bambergers.

Attorneys pointed out to the court that if the Watkinses believe the baby they have is not theirs, but the Bambergers, as they declared in court last week, they should not be allowed to molest it with further scientific examinations which, the Bambergers believe, might endanger its life or health.

The request for the restraining writ is especially aimed to prevent further tests by experts whom the Watkins attorney, Barratt O'Hara, is seeking in New York and Washington.

20 Cent Cotton In Texas Said Be Possibility DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Twenty cent cotton before Christmas is a possibility, with safe, sane and concerted action on the part of farmers, bankers and business men, according to M. H. Wolfe, general manager of the Farmers' marketing association of America, who returned today from Atlanta, Ga., where he attended a meeting of the commissioners of agriculture of the cotton states.

Texas Livestock Condition Fair; Rain Is Needed

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Livestock in Texas has held up "remarkably well," in the long period of drought, but cattle, sheep and goats are "beginning to show the effects of the hot dry weather," the United States Department of Agriculture here reported today.

Ranges deteriorated during July and a "critical condition" prevails, the report said. Only a few scattered localities received rain during July and only a few extreme northwestern counties reported ranges in excellent condition.

The condition of cattle on August 1 was reported as 82 per cent, compared with 86 per cent on July 1, and 86.8 per cent average for the past five years. Condition of sheep was 81 per cent, compared with 87 per cent a month ago and 89.6 per cent average the last five years.

There has been little buying or contracting of cattle, calves, sheep and lambs, the report said. If feed is available there will be a tendency to hold cattle and sheep where financial conditions permit. Shipments of cattle the past two months have been considerably below last year with a small movement of steers and calves to California.

The long time outlook for the sheep industry, said the report, is for a considerable reduction in sheep numbers, both in this country and abroad, during the next two or three years, which will probably place the sheep and wool industries in a better economic condition than at present.

The problem of the western sheep growers, it was said, is very difficult. The lamb crop of 1930 being about 2,000,000 head larger than the crop of the two preceding years. Eighty per cent of the increase was in the western states, and the hay crop in some of these states is short. Demand has been considerably below last year, the report said.

McCulloch County Tax Rate Gets 5 Cents Increase

BRADY, Texas, Aug. 19.—(Sp.)—A five cent increase in the county tax rate was voted by the McCulloch County Commissioners Court, who set the tax rate for next year at 80 cents.

The like in the county's taxes was necessitated by the courthouse maintenance and the jury funds. The courthouse maintenance fund as raised six and one-half cents to a total of 15 1-2 cents, while an additional two cents was allotted the jury fund raising it to a total of three cents.

While these two funds were in reality boosted a total of 8 1-2 cents, a reduction of 3 1-2 cents in three other county funds reduced the net raise to five cents. The road and bridge funding bonds fund was cut 1 1-2 cents, the new bridge bonds fund was reduced one cent, while the bridge refunding bonds fund of one cent was entirely eliminated.

With an increased criminal docket more money will be required to defray the expenses of McCulloch county's court procedure.

Issue Proration Order on Van Field

AUSTIN, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Application of the common purchaser act to the Van Oil Field in Van Zandt county was ordered today by the State Railroad Commission, with the provision that in no case shall production from the field exceed 27,500 barrels daily.

The order provided that purchases by pipe line companies and other from the field shall be on the basis of the potential of each well in the field, as compared with the total of market nominations, to prevent discrimination in purchases.

The proration was made effective for a period of six months. A hearing will be held here on September 2nd for any complaints arising under the order.

CONSIDER BILLS

AUSTIN, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Bids for the state's supply of oil and gas for the next two years, estimated to cost $1,600,000 or more a year, were under consideration by the state board of control today.

The awards will not be made for several days, as it will be a difficult task to compile all the bids made.

IT'S WISE TO CHEVROLET CHOOSE A SIX

Announcing a new production record

2,000,000 Chevrolet Sixes now on the road

Since January, 1929, Chevrolet has produced and sold over 2,000,000 six-cylinder automobiles—nearly five times as many as any other manufacturer has ever built in an equal length of time.

These 2,000,000 buyers have chosen Chevrolet because it offers many desirable qualities not obtainable in any other car so low in price—

—the smoothness, silence and flexibility of a modern six-cylinder engine—the comfort and roadability of a modern, full-length chassis—and the style, safety and distinction of bodies by Fisher.

Yet, despite these fine car advantages, the Chevrolet Six is unusually economical. Its gas, oil, tire and upkeep economy is unsurpassed. And

Guard Units Back From Encampment

Company A, under Captain Gus Rosenberg and a part of the Service Company under Lt. William King of the National Guard, returned from Camp Palacios Saturday night and the rear detachment of the Service Company under Lt. Rex Gaither returned to Brownwood Sunday night. Sixty-eight men went from here with the Service Company and fifty-four men were with Company A. Both Captain Rosenberg and Lieutenant Gaither say that the camp was the most successful one ever held by the National Guard and that the Brownwood men were a credit to the city, working hard and conducting themselves in the manner of soldiers. Both leaders said that they were proud of their companies and that the men in both companies were high class soldiers. Lt. Gaither said that he especially wanted to commend his detachment which came in Sunday night on the way they unloaded the car and got the equipment into the armory. Equipment for sixty-eight men was transferred from the car to the armory in forty minutes, he declared. Lt. Gaither was senior lieutenant of his regiment and had the honor of having one of the trails on the combat field named the Red Trail for him. He said that all the men commanded by him were to be commended on their work during camp and that he and his men enjoyed the camp very much. Captain Rosenberg and Company A had the distinction of scoring highest in the whole division when using real ammunition on the combat problem. He said that the officers commended Company A on their high degree of training and their conduct as soldiers. He said the men enjoyed the camp and were sorry to see it break.

Cotton Lowest Since 1915 On N. Orleans Mart

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Prices for cotton on the New Orleans exchange dropped to the lowest levels since 1915 today under heavy hedge selling with very little trade in speculatively demanded to absorb the offerings. Breaking of the drought in several states also was a contributing factor to the decline. October contracts broke through the 11-cent line to 10.85 cents a pound while December contracts sold off to 11.06, which represented a loss of approximately $2.59 a bale from Saturday's close.

Big Attendance at Byrds Picnic

A large crowd attended the picnic at Byrds Saturday, according to reports of those who attended from Brownwood. They state that a large number were present throughout the day and that all seemed to have a good time. The first feature of the picnic was a free basket lunch at noon. One of the largest crowds of the day helped to dispose of the big lunch which was arranged on tables and the crowd could pass along the line as many times as they wanted to. Following the lunch the political speaking was started and lasted until well into the afternoon. Almost every county candidate was present and asked for the support of the voters of that section. Mark Callaway spoke in interest of the candidacy of Miriam A. Ferguson for governor and W. R. Chambers spoke for Sterling.

We know well enough that we should scarcely ever speak of our wives, but we do not well know that we should speak still less of ourselves.—La Rochefoucauld.

To the Voters of Brown County

On July 26th, you gave me a nice lead in my race for County Judge, giving me a majority vote over both my opponents, outside of the city wards. But in Brownwood the Big Boys have decreed that I must not be elected, circulating the reports that I will discharge the highway engineer, stop the road work, and ruin the county generally. This they know is as false as it is ridiculous.

After twelve years' service as your Tax Collector they can find nothing to censure me for except that they can run my office so they have resorted to the above reports. Do not be deceived. Go to the polls and vote for me, and you will get the same efficient service in the office of County Judge as you have enjoyed in various other offices I have filled for you in the past.

Tree Sitting Chief Is Down

BY BUDGE LEE
Ray Saunders, present world's champion tree sitter, descended from his leafy perch Monday night at 8 o'clock. He had been up 816 hours, and laced only one hour being up 34 days. He had not touched the ground since the 15 of July at nine o'clock p. m. Saunders was none the worse for his long stay in the branches, but felt a little "wobbly", according to some of the boys who witnessed the descent. Saunders himself could not be found this morning. He was enjoying his free ticket to a miniature golf course in town. The story told by Bobby Watson as to the descent from the tree by Saunders differs from that told by Jeff Thomas Wilkes, another witness. Watson says that while the boys were discussing the reasons why young Saunders should or should not come down from his tree, Saunders all at once dropped to the ground. Wilkes says that the boy just calmly got down to help another boy fix his car. But however it was, the champ is down, and glad of it. He gives no excuse for his descent, merely saying that he was tired of staying cooped up.

Holds World's Record

Saunders now holds the world's record for sustained sitting, being off the ground longer than any other person in the world, except, according to Bert Hawthorne, Hammett Robinson's ancestors, who thought nothing of spending all their lives in trees. Saunders has a record of 816 hours. A review of the tree sitting activities of Brownwood youths shows that Saunders was the first Brownwood boy to take to the tall timber after Jack Richards of Kansas City made a record of 186 hours. Shortly after Saunders went up, Garland Bankston joined him in the same tree, and sat with Saunders until he (Bankston) fell out. But before Bankston fell out, both boys had passed Buck Sawyer of Sweetwater, Saunders' old rival for tree sitting honors.

Blanket Fair Draws Large Attendance

A large number of first class exhibits of agriculture products featured Blanket's fair. The exhibits of garden and orchard products were unusually good, as were exhibits of small grain. In addition to these, there were eight heads of baby beaves and five or six spring lambs on exhibit. Another feature was a collection of curios.

5 Raids Made by Police Department

Members of the police department made five raids Tuesday afternoon and secured a quantity of beer and equipment at two of the places. Mobell Hall, negro, was arrested and was fined $39.70 in city court before City Judge James McCauley this morning. Chief of Police Hise said that about 100 bottles of beer and plenty of equipment was secured at his place during the raid. Some beer and equipment was gotten at another place but no arrest was made. Three other places were raided but no beer was found. Chief Hise said that this was only a continuance of his policy to raid all illicit liquor establishments in Brownwood and that he would continue the raiding until he had gotten most of the town "dried up" and the sale of beer and liquor stopped as much as possible.

Brownwood Aviator Was Near Planes In Fatal Crash

According to a letter received here from Joe Edgar Wright who is an advanced student at Kelly Field, government flying school at San Antonio, the crash which occurred there Monday in which two men were killed was in a formation in which he was flying. The formation was flying at 300 feet above the ground and consisted of nine planes. According to Wright's letter he was only about twenty feet away from the two planes when they hit and only by quick manipulation of his controls avoided being caught in the tangled wreckage of the two planes. He stated that it was a horrible crash and that others of the squadron also narrowly escaped.
