

LATEST CHECK PLACES NUMBER OF DEAD AT 75

DALLAS, Texas, May 8.—(AP)—The deaths of five injured today brought the toll of dead in the tornadoes that swept sections of Central and South Texas Tuesday to 75. A number of other injured were not expected to recover.

The deaths were at Hillsboro, bringing the toll for that county to 16, and near Runge, where the death list was increased from 26 to 28.

The latest figures showed the following death toll: the storm area near Runge, 28; Frost, 22; Hill County, 16; Near West, 2; San Antonio, 1; Near Ennis, 3; Bronson, 2; Ottine, 1.

Some of the dead in Hill County and near Frost had not been identified, and due to the close proximity of the two storm areas it was thought possible that some of the unidentified negroes killed in the two areas were duplicated in lists compiled at Frost and Hillsboro.

Rehabilitation work is in full swing in the stricken sections, and at Frost carpenters were completing a large frame structure under which merchants of that place might carry on their businesses until they have had time to replace their own buildings.

Although not under martial law, guardsmen under orders from Gov. Dan Moody were at Frost tonight, clearing away wreckage and aiding in patrolling the devastated area.

Relief funds for the stricken communities were mounting, with some counties wiring that quotas assigned them had been raised.

Preparation for burying the dead was completed last afternoon when a mass funeral was arranged at Frost, the hardest hit of the towns.

CORSICANA, Tex., May 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Jack W. Fleicher, injured in the tornado that struck Frost, gave birth to a healthy baby boy last night in a hospital here.

FROST, Tex., May 8.—(AP)—The following persons were buried at a mass funeral here this afternoon: W. H. Bowman, Mrs. W. H. Bowman; E. A. Patterson; Mrs. Lee Woolley; Johnnie Ruth Woolley; Gilead Hogan; Turner Woolley; J. D. Lee; Mrs. Tabitha Berryman; John Flew Jr.; Plantice Flew; Leroy Bagley.

Three Die at Hillsboro
HILLSBORO, Tex., May 8.—(AP)—Three more deaths occurred in a hospital here last night and today, bringing to 16 the number of Hill county residents killed in Tuesday's tornado.

Those added to the death list were: Mrs. W. M. Huse of Maloe, Edward Isbell of Hynum and Thomas Nieto of Mertens.

Twenty injured remained in the hospital.

DALLAS, Texas, May 8.—(AP)—Immediate relief measures, undertaken by the Red Cross, the American Legion and citizens of the state, today were rushed to the aid of destitute and homeless persons in central and south Texas communities devastated Tuesday by tornadoes.

The Red Cross last night appealed for $150,000 in Texas and asked for gifts of clothes and food.

Funeral services were planned today for most of the 70 victims, and more than 100 others were being cared for in hospitals.

In Frost, Navarro county, where 22 persons out of 800 inhabitants lost their lives, and practically the entire town was demolished, the cemetery was in the path of the twister, and shattered tombstones had to be cleared away before graves could be prepared for the burial of storm victims.

Corsicana in Relief Work
Citizens of Corsicana, nearby, were leading in relief work, assisting Frost citizens in erecting temporary business buildings and repairing the town's water system.

Texas National Guardsmen, in command of Major Horton Porter of Hillsboro, were patrolling the town.

Dallas county's Red Cross chapter yesterday sent 100 coats to Frost for people made homeless by the storm.

The Red Cross also planned to assist in re-stocking farms and buying seed for replanting of crops.

Telegraph and telephone communication with the town was re-established yesterday.

Citizens of San Antonio, Cuero, Nordheim, Runge, Yorktown and Kenedy and all over South Texas gathered relief for 40 or 50 families left homeless near Nordheim and Runge, in Karnes county, where the tornado killed 30 persons and injured more than 20.

A haze of smoke hung like a pall over the storm area in Karnes and De Witt counties, from fires and almost dead live stock and debris. Loss of livestock in the storm area was expected to amount to thousands of dollars.

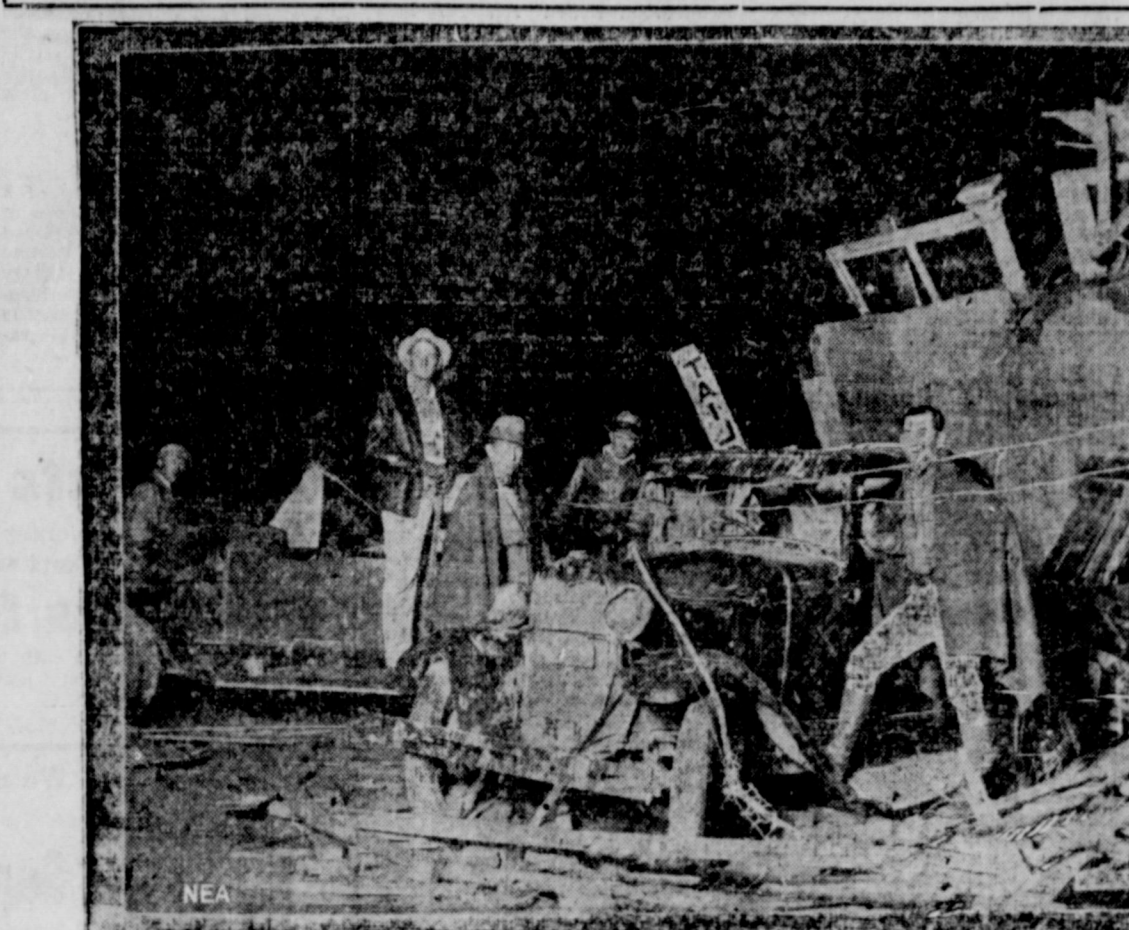

Emergency hospitals were established in Nordheim and Runge, to the physicians and nurses rushed from San Antonio and nearby towns, and several store rooms were turned into morgues for the dead.

Rapid operations were performed to save the lives of many persons maimed by flying debris, and almost wholesale burials were held for those found mangled by the crushing wind.

The death list slowly mounted upward as additional victims succumbed to their injuries.

Farmers whose homes were spoiled made a house-to-house check, gaing on horseback and in wagons through flooded roads and fields. As a wrecked house was found, the bodies of the dead and injured were loaded into wagons and transported to the nearest town.

Communication lines to the Runge and Nordheim areas also were re-established.

In North Central Texas, near Waco and Hillsboro, similar relief measures were being undertaken, the death toll there having mounted to 13 near Hillsboro, and 23 injured persons were in a Hillsboro hospital.

DALLAS, Texas, May 7.—(AP)—Sixty-five persons were killed, many were injured and property damage estimated at more than $500,000 was caused by a tornado which struck in central and south Texas late yesterday, a partial check revealed today.

The death list included the following: Twenty-five men, a woman and three children near Runge.

Seven men, three women, four children and ten negroes near Frost.

Two persons near Waco.

A fifteen-year-old boy and a child near Ennis.

Two men, two women and three negroes at Bynum.

Two men at San Antonio and Bronson.

Kenedy, 10 miles from Runge, reported 12 deaths, but it was believed some, at least, of the fatalities there were accounted for in the Runge list.

BRINK BRUNT OF STORM
The tornado took the greatest toll of life at Frost, in east central Texas and at Runge in south central Texas. The force of the storm was felt in practically all sections of the state.

Navarro, Hill, McLennan and Ellis counties in central Texas and Karnes in the southern part of the state bore the brunt of the storm.

National guardsmen, firemen and volunteers were working early today in the debris at Frost where it was feared the death list would mount higher.

Nearly every building in the town was demolished.

Descending on Frost from a southwesterly direction, the tornado passed over a residential section, sailed over a schoolhouse and then razed practically every one of about 30 business houses. Telegraph, telephone and electric wires were torn down by the wind, which was accompanied by a driving rain, accentuating the terror of the survivors.

Sensing unusual danger when the swishing of the tornado sounded over the droning of school children at their recitations, Superintendent Harrison of the Frost public schools ordered the children to march to the basement. Hardly had the pupils reached the lower floor when the storm struck, tearing off the schoolhouse roof and scattering it over the countryside.

Two Churches Destroyed
Of three churches in the town one remained—the Presbyterian. The Baptist and Methodist churches were destroyed.

Employees and customers in the two Frost banks saved themselves when they ran into an open vault and closed the door. Both buildings were wrecked.

Of Frost's population of six hundred half were homeless. Streets were blocked with debris torn from wooden and brick buildings. Automobiles were tossed about like toys. One street was almost blocked with automobiles that had been in a dealer's window.

Most of the white dead at Frost were taken to Hillsboro and Corsicana as fast as ambulances could reach them over black land roads. One wrecked building was cleared and bodies of negroes, wrapped in sheets, were laid in rows to await burial.

There was no way of compiling a list of the injured and it was believed these would aggregate several hundred. WINNERS IN COUNTY LIVING ROOM CONTEST ANNOUNCED

Mrs. LeRoy Wise of the Brooksmith Club won first place in the above $100 division and Mrs. H. A. Spivey of McDaniel's Club, won first place in the below $50 division of the annual Brown county living room contest, according to reports from Miss Mayes Malone, county home demonstration agent. Final judging of the rooms was announced today. Mrs. T. C. Petross of Center Point Club won second place in the below $50 class.

Judges of the contest were Mrs. Kent Hallum, Mrs. H. H. Negus and Mrs. Charles Gray.

The living room contest is held every year and is sponsored to help make better homes in the county. The contest is judged not only on the appearance of the home after it has been improved, but upon the expenses incurred in improving it also. Therefore the contest is divided into two classes. The first-class contestants may spend as much as over $50 as they care to in improving their living room. The second class contestants cannot spend above $50 in the improving of the room. The contestants are required to keep an itemized account of all the expenses of improving the room. Pictures of the rooms before and after improving are also required.

Mrs. Wise will be awarded a trip to the short course by the Brownwood Chamber of Commerce in recognition of the good work she did. Mrs. Spivey will be awarded a dozen square fruit containers and a set of muffin tins as winner of first in the other class. Mrs. Wise's total expense on her room was $81.61. Mrs. Spivey spent $16.78 and Mrs. Petross spent $11.46 on their improvements.

The winners of the county contest will also have a chance at winning the district contest. Brown county is in the fourth district in the contests. The scorer for this district in company with Miss Malone visited the homes of the winners in the county contest yesterday. The winners in the district will be announced about June 1.

Miss Malone said today that the contest had been very successful and that the women had worked hard toward improving their homes. The living room contest is one of the most helpful that is held in the county, and does more good toward helping the home conditions than any other contest. Miss Malone said she was pleased with the showing which the county made.

BLANTON URGES HIS CLAIMS IN ADDRESS HERE

A fairly large crowd heard Hon. Thomas L. Blanton, candidate for congress in the election to be held May 20 to fill the place made vacant by the death of Hon. R. Q. Lee, speak last night in the district court room here.

Judge Blanton spoke briefly and to the point, giving his past records as the reason why he should again be elected to represent this district in congress. Blanton said that he was speaking mostly to call the attention of the people to the election and to urge them to vote. A lot can be done in the eleven months that remain in this term and the election is therefore important to the 500,000 people in this district; they should have someone in congress to represent them and the people should vote for their representative in this special election as in the regular elections, he said. The election must not go by default, Judge Blanton urged.

He said that in the year he has been out of office he has been keeping up with the business of the people of this district and has been helping the people who came to him for help in matters between the government and the people. He said that he was going to transacting business for the people of this district. I want to hold the office. I am running in self defense," he said. He said that if he were elected on May 20, he would be ready to leave Abilene for Washington at midnight and would be in his old seat in congress in time to go to transacting business for the people of this district in the closing days of the present session of congress.

Briefly Reviews Record
Judge Blanton briefly touched on some of the things that he did during his twelve years as representative. He read from the records of the House and from newspapers some of the investigations he has made. These investigations of graft and corruption in the politics have saved the government hundreds of millions of dollars, according to the records borrowed from the government library at Washington. Blanton started some of the investigations in congress which later led to the uncovering of some of the most startling graft schemes in the history of the country, said testimony of some of his fellow members in the congress.

Blanton closed his talk by again urging the people to go to the polls and vote May 20. He had already spoken three times yesterday before he spoke here. He was introduced by O. C. Pouns last night.

Two Escape From Jail at Coleman
COLEMAN, Texas, May 8.—(Sp.)—Criminals should take notice. It takes no expert to escape from the Coleman jail, modern thirty years ago. Sheriff Frank Mills had two less to feed yesterday morning by reason of the soft iron bars that prisoners look through.

A. H. Hart, charged with cold checking, and Bill Wise, picked up for making a bad check, were freed from some time during the night with an ordinary case knife. Twelve hack saws had been taken from him when he was incarcerated, but the cheap knife, taken from a plate on which a meal was served, was made into a saw that answered the purpose. After they got out of the cages it was an easy matter for them to leave the jail building by the roof and scaling the walls.

One Safe Refuge

There is some little advantage gained by the man who writes things for publication, like paragraphs, for instance. When he is crabbed and crusty and mean and kicks the cat and slaps the children, his friends, if any, attribute it to temperament. If his wife acts that way she is just plain nasty.—Liberty Center Press.

The idea that the history of a nation is the story of the lives of its greatest men has been expressed by a number of authors. Carlyle writing "On History" says "History is the essence of innumerable biographies." And Emerson: "There is properly no history, only biography."

SHOLAPUR, BOMBAY, India, May 8—(P)—Twenty-seven or more police and natives were killed in a rioting which started last night, was resumed at dawn today and had resulted at noon in seizure of this city of 120,000 inhabitants by the adherents of Mahatma Gandhi.

Resisting the authorities who had forbidden their assemblage, the angry natives maintained attacks which threw the city into chaos. The police were powerless. TAYLOR IS LAUDED AS MAN AND EDUCATOR BY SPEAKERS TODAY

The President's Day activities at Howard Payne College were started Thursday morning at 10:00 o'clock with a program during the regular chapel hour at the school. The main speaker was Hon. Mark McGee of Fort Worth. The program included also short talks by President T. H. Taylor, Hon. Henry P. Taylor and Morris H. Richards.

The program was started by the reading of congratulatory messages to the president and of regrets sent to the officials from various heads of colleges over the state who were unable to attend the affair. These were read by Mr. M. E. Davis and included letters from Dr. S. E. Chandler, Dr. Horn of Texas Tech, Dr. Hardy of Baylor College and Commander John D. Robinson, first graduate of the school who sent his congratulations to President Taylor.

The speaker of the day was introduced by Morris H. Richards, president of the student body.

Mr. McGee said that he was glad of the chance to return to Brownwood and speak a few words for the man who he considered one of his best friends and a man who he thought one of the finest he had ever met. He said that his love and admiration for President Taylor extended back 25 years when they were both boys and students in the school. He spoke of the early days of the institution when he was a student and a graduate and of the fine work which has been done by President Taylor.

Speaks for Thousands

He said that he was not speaking merely for himself but for the thousands who had been in the school during the many years which Mr. Taylor had served the institution. He said that the influence of the man had changed the lives of hundreds who had been brought in contact with him in the school and who had been under his direction as students in the school. He said that he spoke for the people everywhere that President Taylor had gone and where he had met people of the state.

Everyone who has ever known him has loved him, and they are proud of the fact that they can include this man among their acquaintances. They are glad of the influence that he has had on them and of the many things that he has done for them while they were connected with him.

Mr. McGee said that the life of the man stood for what he had done and that he had spent the best years of his life ministering to the youth of the country. He said that his influence was felt everywhere that students had gone from the school and started life. He said that his influence was felt in mission fields and in every state where the youth who had been trained by the president had made their homes.

"He is one of the greatest men that Texas has ever had and one of the least heard of of any college head. He attends to his work and trains the youth who come under his direction in the school. He came here to minister and not to be ministered to and he has accomplished this during the thirty years he has been connected with the institution," the speaker said.

Morris Richards Speaks

Following the remarks of Mr. McGee, Morris Richards of Kirbyville made a short talk in which he said that every student of the school loved the President with a love that could be held for no other person. He said that they had been here for several years and that each one of them were proud of the fact that they could count among their professors and friends in the college this man who had been their benefactor during their college life.

He said that there was no way in which a student could go to the president and tell him just what his actual feelings were toward the man and what his influence had meant to the person, but all are willing to tell anyone else that they are proud of the fact that they are students, and under the leadership of the present president.

He said that there was no way of showing the spirit and thoughts of the student body for President Taylor, but that they had gotten a small token as an attempt to show their esteem for the man, and with these words he presented the president with a travelling bag.

Thanks for Gift Following Richards, Thomas H. Taylor thanked the students for their gift and also spoke his appreciation of the letters and telegrams and also thanked Mr. McGee and Mr. Richards for their remarks. He then made a short talk concerning the future of the small college and spoke of the needs of small schools and their prospects in the future.

President Taylor was followed by Hon. Henry P. Taylor, who is his father and a past representative of this district in the State Legislature. He told of a few of the early incidents of Tom's life and of his early schooling and his education here at Baylor University. Following the remarks of Henry P. Taylor, the benediction was said by Rev. Frank Dixon.

The program Thursday morning was the first of the day's activities which will be climaxed tonight with a banquet at the Southern Hotel in honor of President Taylor. A program has been arranged for the evening which will include local pastors and others. C. Y. Early will be toastmaster of the banquet which is to be held at 8:00 o'clock. A large crowd is expected to attend the affair, including many out of town guests who were unable to be present at the morning meeting.

All visitors were the guests of the faculty and student body at luncheon in Howard Payne Hall.

PROHIBITION

President Hoover's appeal to Congress for the immediate passage of legislation designed to strengthen his hand in the enforcement of the Prohibition laws removes all possible doubt, if any ever really existed, as to whether or not he is in earnest in his desire to make the "dry" law effective. To agitation for the repeal of Prohibition, based upon the assertion that it cannot be enforced, the President's response is that it has not had a fair chance at enforcement under the system which Congress has imposed upon the Executive. He asks that the Prohibition Unit be transferred from the Treasury, where it obviously does not belong, to the Department of Justice, where it does belong; that measures be adopted to permit the speedy trial of Prohibition violations in the Federal Courts; that more room be provided in Federal prisons for those convicted under this law; that the Border Patrol be unified and made more effective and that an adequate statute be adopted for the control of the liquor traffic in the District of Columbia, for which Congress is the local legislative body.

The President is entitled to adequate tools with which to do the work which Congress imposes upon him. If the people of the United States really want Prohibition enforced, and have impressed that fact upon their representatives in the Senate and House, Congress will strengthen the President's arm in these respects. If Congress fails to do so, the fact will be hailed by the advocates of repeal as proof that the people are tired of Prohibition and do not want it enforced. On that plea, that public senti-

BANGS BOY IS SPEECH WINNER AUSTIN FRIDAY

AUSTIN, May 2—(AP)—Twelve schools qualified in boys' high school declamation and 13 in the rural girls' declamation in the first round of these events in the Interscholastic League meet here today. Eight schools came through in the second round of boys debate. Boys' high school declamation winners were: Joe Turner of Electra; John Gray of Bonham; J. M. Preston of Childress; Conrad Newton of Dawson; Walter Kerr of Teague; Avery Downing of Hallsville; Longview; James Alvin of Bessmer; Furman Early of Bangs; Jack Hardy of Humble; Emmett Whitsett of Floresville; Lyle Lehman of Mission, and Lemore Hill of Amarillo.

SUCCESS

"You cannot say that any man is successful, so long as he is alive," said the head of one of America's great industries, not long ago. He meant that any man might make a blunder which would offset all that had gone before, no matter how successful he has been. That was drawing it pretty fine, but how many men whom the world regards as "successful" feel that way about themselves? Find the men who feel that they have succeeded in doing all that they ever hoped or tried to do and you find the unhappiest man alive. They have succeeded in their business enterprises, but they have not succeeded in living.

Winning Schools

The schools that won out in the second round of the boys' debate were Amarillo, San Benito, Temple, Jewett, Yorktown, San Jacinto High of Houston, Ranger and Abilene of Texas. In the first round of the girls' tennis doubles, Pharr, League City, Brenham, Queen City and Fort Worth were victorious. Bys were drawn by Franklin, Oklahoma and Abilene with Abilene defeating Oklahoma in the opening game of the second round. Valentine, Lockney, Rochelle, Jewett and Yancey were eliminated in the first round.

In the final match of the second round of the boys' doubles, Abilene defeated Sherman, 6-3, 8-6. The other matches of the second round were played yesterday.

State's Motion Rehearing Pittman Case Is Refused

The state's motion for re-hearing of the Ben Pittman case was refused Wednesday by the Court of Criminal Appeals, it was learned in an Associated Press dispatch from Austin.

He was convicted here in 1928 on a robbery charge and was given ten years. He appealed the case and has been in the Brown county jail waiting action on his hearing in the higher court.

Pittman was convicted on testimony of Mrs. A. A. King, widow here who claimed that she lost approximately $1,600 through the speculations of Mr. Pittman with money obtained from her after she had been told by his wife, posing as a palmist, that a man would approach her with a business proposition which would make her rich.

Can Mrs. Lee Perform the Arduous Duties? If She Can't, Who Will? That Is the Momentous Issue, Vital to the People

The question isn't one of courtesy to a woman. Everyone is courteous. It isn't one of sympathy. All sympathize deeply. It isn't a question of charity. For Mrs. Lee has much property. And besides paying all funeral expenses, Congress will soon pay her $10,000.00 in cash, intended to compensate her for the full monetary value of her husband's unexpired term. Shall you give her the office too and let her draw double pay.

Service Is What People Want and Pay For

This district has 500,000 people. They constantly have important business with the ten departments and hundreds of bureaus of the government. Service to them is just as important as legislating. Congressmen must know how to prepare technical briefs. Obtaining results requires intimate familiarity, experience, skill and bulldog pertinacity, possible only with long training.

Blanton has never stopped attending to the business. Constituents have called on him for everything. He worked gratis. Ask Hon. R. C. Winters, former state commander of the American Legion, why soldiers continue to call on Blanton. He will tell you it is because Blanton knows how, and gets results. Ask Hon. M. Y. Stokes of Lampasas why he wired Blanton at Abilene for his wife's urgent passport. Ask business men why they come to Blanton to save their boys tax tanglers. Ask grief stricken mothers and fathers why they come to Blanton to save their boys from court martials and to get them out of the army, navy, marine corps and coast guard. Ask dependent relatives why they have sought Blanton from near and distant counties to prepare gratis the legal documents and qualify guardians, administrators, obtain certificates of marriage, of births, of deaths, of divorces, of dependencies, and of service origin disbursements. They will tell you that he was their last hope, that he never turns them down, that he gets all possible results, and never charges them one penny. Since leaving congress Blanton has worked several hours daily for constituents, wholly without charge, furnishing his own office, furniture, stationery, stamps, telephone, telegraph, and given his time gratis.

Constituents Should Elect Him or Quit Calling on Him

Blanton cannot afford to do the congressional work of this district gratis any longer. Voters now have the opportunity to let him do it officially. If they want him to do the work, they should elect him. But they can't expect Blanton to do the work, and let Mrs. Lee draw the salary.

In Entire History of Congress Only Four Widows Elected to Succeed Husbands

Bess Furman's Sunday article is misleading. About 129 congressmen and senators have died since Blanton went to congress. Only four of their widows were elected to succeed them. Mr. Nolan was a national labor leader with years of experience and had been re-elected to serve in the 68th congress, and his widow completed his term. Mr. Kahn had served since 1899, was the distinguished chairman of the military affairs committee, and at his death had been re-elected to serve in the 69th congress. Mr. Rogers did valiant service during the war with 12 years in congress, and his widow who succeeded him served four years in Red Cross work caring for disabled soldiers. Mr. Oldfield was in congress 29 years, was democratic whip, had been re-elected to the 71st congress and his widow was given his unexpired term. While these four widows did succeed their husbands, there are 116 others, who did not. And when Bess Furman mentioned Mr. Langley, she should have told you that his vacancy was not caused by death but by his being sent to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

Duties Too Unpleasant and Grinding for Woman

Congressmen must investigate and condemn leading crooks of the nation. The grind of it soon demoralizes able bodied men of strong physique. Attacking grafters is unpleasant work for women. But it is work that must be done. Men should do it.

Government Funerals Are Expensive

When Blanton was investigating this item, the clerk of the house wrote him: "My dear Mr. Blanton: Replying to your letter of May 24, 1922, I beg to inform you as follows: The total expenses incident to the funeral of the late Representative John A. Elston (of Cal.) were $7,129.73 itemized as follows: Pennsylvania Railroad Company $5,337.36 Sergeant-at-Arms Expenses 890.29 M. W. Hysong Co., Funeral Director 515.00 Hotel Oakland 222.18 Wm. E. Ward, Funeral Director 209.09 J. H. Small & Sons, Flowers 36.90 Very truly yours, Wm. Tyler Page, Clerk, House of Representatives

MAY BONDS APPROVED; WOODLAND HEIGHTS ISSUE TURNED DOWN

County Superintendent J. Oscar Swindle returned Tuesday night from Austin where he went to appear before the State Department of Education with bond issues of two Brown county schools. The two bonds which he took to Austin for approval were from May and Woodland Heights. The May issue was approved and the Woodland Heights issue refused.

Mr. Swindle said Wednesday that the refusal of approval of the Woodland Heights issue came after the department informed him that there were some legal discrepancies in the drawing of the petition and that after the petition had been circulated and signed that the City of Brownwood had taken some of the territory involved in the school district. The discrepancies occurred after the transcript had been drawn and all arrangements made for the voting and approval of the bonds.

The bonds for the new May school were approved and taken without a single question being raised, he said. The May issue was also voted recently and was for $20,000 with which a new high school building is to be built.

Mrs. W. D. Armstrong returned Saturday night from Abilene where she accompanied Mrs. R. Wright Armstrong, a girl her daughter, Mary Elizabeth, of Houston, who entered the State Violin contest at the State Federation of Music Clubs. Mrs. Frank Weirich, Mrs. Harry Affleck and Mrs. Vevils of San Antonio and Mrs. Chambers of Ft. Worth spent Sunday in Brownwood to attend the Dedication services at the First Presbyterian church. While in Brownwood, they were guests of their cousin, Mrs. J. A. Austin.

3RD MAN HELD IN CONNECTION WITH BANK ROBBERY

GOLDTHWAITE, Texas, May 3.—(Sp)—Vernon Beard of Brownwood, brought to Goldthwaite by officers Friday evening for questioning in connection with the recent robbery of the bank here, made a written statement this morning in the presence of two witnesses. After making the statement he was lodged in jail here and complaint filed charging him as an accomplice in the robbery.

Vernon Beard was arrested Friday afternoon by assistant chief of police H. N. Jack in connection with the robbery of the First National Bank of Goldthwaite. Beard was taken to Goldthwaite yesterday by the chief and assistant chief of police and turned over to Mills county authorities. Chief Hise said that he had Beard under suspicion for some time and climaxed it with his arrest.

O. Thompson, a detective from Dallas came here the first part of this week at the request of Chief Hise and worked on the case for two days before the police department made the arrest Friday. Mr. Thompson has returned to Dallas.

Vernon Beard was returned here from Goldthwaite Monday by Deputy Sheriff Luther Guthrie and placed in the Brown county jail. Beard was brought here after Brown county officers had requested his return on a bond forfeiture. Sheriff M. H. Denman said today that one of Beard's bondsmen on a liquor selling case appeared in his office Saturday and forfeited the bond. With the forfeiting of the bond local officers requested Beard here.

He was being held in the Mills county jail as an accomplice to the robbery of the First National Bank of Goldthwaite which was robbed of $4,000 during a noon-day hold-up.

Land Owners In Condemnation Area To Meet May 13

At a meeting of the water district officials Monday it was decided to hold a hearing for all land owners in the area in which condemnation proceedings are proposed on Tuesday, May 13, at 10 o'clock in the court house. At that time every land owner in the Cox-McInnis tract which it is sought to condemn for building of a reservoir and dam will appear before the board and present their claims for damages.

The commission which was appointed by Judge E. M. Davis has been working on the valuation of the land and at the meeting today this matter was discussed. No other important things were discussed, according to County Judge Davis.

Origin of Dominoes
Dominoes was invented by two French monks, who amused themselves with square stones, marked with spots. The winner declared his victory by reciting the first line of the Vesper service, "Dixit Dominus." When, later, the game became the recreation of the whole convent, the Vesper line was abbreviated into "Domino," and the stones themselves received the name of "Dominoes."

tion after a tornado which swept through southern Karnes county, reports today placed the dead at 29, with more than forty injured.

Most of the dead were Mexican tenants and their families on Karnes county farms, caught in their homes as they were preparing the evening meal.

Among the dead were Ferdinand Machost, 38, and his wife, Mrs. Pauline Machost, 68. Mrs. Otto Finkler, and an unidentified man killed on a farm five miles east of Kenedy.

The storm evidently was the same one which, earlier in the afternoon, had struck the edge of Randolph field, the new army air-drome 17 miles east of San Antonio, killing J. C. Kleespies of Houston's workman, and seriously injuring Lonnie Wickman of San Antonio.

In Creek Valley

Randolph field borders Cibolo Creek which flows into the San Antonio river, and the cloud continued followed the Cibolo Valley southward until near its junction with the San Antonio River, then turned eastward.

It struck a rich farming country of wheat midway between Nordheim and Rinke and cut a path only 150 yards wide, but 10 miles long. At the edge of Goliad county it lifted and passed out into the Gulf of Mexico.

So narrow was the path of the storm that residents of Nordheim and Rinke did not suspect its seriousness until the injured began arriving for help.

House Becomes Hospital In Rinke, a vacant house became an emergency hospital and in Nordheim two offices were used for the same purpose. Townspeople contributed coats and bedding, while physicians hurried from Kenedy, Yorktown and Cuero, the latter 30 miles northeast of Rinke.

Of 30 reported injured at Nordheim only six were expected to die, thirteen remaining overnight in the emergency hospital at Rinke and three being taken to a Cuero hospital.

Everything in the path of the storm was leveled, but observers differed as to whether it was a tornado or not, some describing it as a mass of forward-tumbling clouds traveling from northwest to southeast at much greater speed than tornadoes usually move forward.

Violence of the wind east of Kenedy, where George Tips escaped death by getting off his horse and clinging to the ground, indicated that the storm was wider in places than was reported at Nordheim. Tips horse was killed.

Between Falls City and Karnes City, fifteen miles southwest of the storm's path, a severe hail storm destroyed crops.

Four Injured

CHILDRESS, Texas, May 7.—(AP)—Four persons were injured slightly and several hundred dollars damage was done by a tornado that struck 12 miles northeast of here yesterday.

J. J. Hunnicutt's farm home was demolished, but the family escaped to a cellar. W. P. Askew and his two sons were injured. The Askew home was damaged.

Mrs. R. T. Holder suffered injuries when a small house in which she was living was destroyed.

KANSAS CITY, May 7.—(AP)—While flood threats were current in Oklahoma, where tornadoes in two days had damaged a dozen communities, relief work in wind damaged communities of Kansas and Missouri today generally was well under way.

Aside from one minor twister which struck late yesterday near Union Star, Mo., and destructive winds believed to have killed at least 73 persons in Texas, no additional storms were reported in the southwest. Seven victims of wind and other disturbances were added this week to a toll of more than 30 lives, taken Thursday by tornadoes in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa.

The minor disturbance reported last night at Union Star destroyed small buildings, damaged crops, and uprooted trees, but resulted in injury to no one.

Streams in all parts of Oklahoma were rising rapidly reports indicated, with probable flooding of lowland imminent.

Two Ennis Deaths

ENNIS, Tex., May 7.—(AP)—Two were known to have been killed and about a dozen injured by a tornado which cut a path south of Ennis yesterday. The communities of Rankin, Telico, Ensign and Oak Grove were hit.

The baby daughter of Art Wagner and Bob Flannagan, 15-year-old orphan, were killed. Carl Lee Fritchett, who suffered internal injuries, was the most seriously hurt.

Reports were received that the storm had hit Alma near here but telephone lines were down and communications could not be established.

24 Dead at Frost

FROST, Texas, May 7.—(AP)—The known dead in the tornado which struck here late yesterday killing 24 persons and causing damage estimated at least $500,000, included:

- Leroy Bagley, 9 months.
- E. A. Patterson, 50.
- J. E. Lee, 65.
- John Flew, 17.
- R. L. Bell, 50, and his child.
- Mrs. League Wooley, 35, and child, 12.
- W. H. Bowman, 70.
- Old Bogart, 35.
- Toma Bogart.
- John Fly, 50.
- Mrs. W. H. Bowman, 60.
- Prentice Flew, 21.
- Mary Currie, negro, 50, and son, 28.

J. J. PRESTON DIES SUDDENLY

James John Preston, 36, an employee of the Walker-Smith Company since 1911, died at his home, 1505 Fourth Street, at midnight Thursday, his death being attributed to heart failure. Funeral services for Mr. Preston were held at 04:30 Friday afternoon from the Central Methodist church with Rev. P. T. Stanford, pastor, officiating and assisted by Rev. B. D. Kennedy, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Coleman. Burial was made in the Greenleaf cemetery with Austin-Morris Company, directing.

Mr. Preston came to Brownwood in 1911 and took a position as clerk with Walker-Smith Company. In 1918 he was placed on the road as a traveling salesman for his company and since that time has served the firm very efficiently in this position.

Mr. Preston was left an orphan when five years of age and was taken by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Irwin, of Brownwood and reared by them. In 1914 Mr. Preston was married to Miss Sallie, of De Leon, and to this union was born one daughter, Willie Julia. The wife and daughter survive.

Soon after his marriage Mr. Preston became a member of the Methodist church and at the time of his death he held his membership with the Central Methodist congregation. Since joining the church he has been an active worker in the affairs of his church.

Out of town relatives here to attend Mr. Preston's funeral, include, Mr. and Mrs. John Haynes, of De Leon, parents of Mrs. Preston; Mrs. Maggie Walker, of Waco, sister of Mrs. Preston; and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Knox of Coleman.

FIRE LOSS IN APRIL $10,000

Fire loss in Brownwood during the month of April totaled $10,890 with a total valuation of $78,500 involved in the twelve fires which were reported to the department, and of this amount there was $62,300 insurance coverage.

Causes of fires are named as follows: Three from cigarettes, one from short in wiring on automobile, two from trash fires, one from an electric iron, one from carelessness with matches, one from a cook-stove becoming overheated, and the rest from unknown causes.

Fire Marshal Wallace Pettitt said in releasing the figures that this was a high loss, but not to compare with the previous months of the year, when more property was involved in the fires. Most of the fires this month occurred on Saturday and some were beyond saving when the firemen arrived. Most of the fires were quickly extinguished on the arrival of the company and were put out before much damage was done.

Mr. Pettitt said that in answering a fire alarm the department always attempted to extinguish the fire with chemicals before water was put on the blaze. The use of chemicals, he said did away with much of the water damage which was caused when hose were played over the house and damaged parts of the house with water which were not in danger of fire. Before water is put onto a fire the chief goes into the building and if possible uses only the chemical or small water hose before allowing the water to be used.

POPULATION OF MILLS COUNTY IS NOW 8,292

Mills county complete census enumeration for 1930 shows that the county has lost 727 people during the past ten years. The check includes all towns and rural districts in the county and has been officially completed according to the supervisor's office. The population of Mills county for 1920 was compared to 9019 in 1920. There were 1,492 farms listed in the Mills county enumeration.

Only twenty-eight of the 115 enumerators in District No. 14 have not returned as their completed schedules to W. L. Turner's office. These which are still holding part of their reports have most of them completed, but are waiting to check other places where they have been unable to get a list of the people during the first call of the enumerator. Junction is the only incorporated town in the district which has not returned part of the schedules and the enumerator there is expected to have his schedules in the supervisors office this week.

Brownwood Figures Soon

Brownwood enumerators' schedule have all been returned to Mr. Turner's office and will be released for publication tomorrow. It was thought this morning, all enumerators have been completed for some time but have been waiting for the completion of the Chamber of Commerce re-checking which was made in an effort to find a number of people believed missed by the enumerators.

Mr. Turner said that he was holding the Brownwood returns until he could determine whether or not anyone had been missed and to see that the Chamber of Commerce list of names checked with those returned by the enumerators. This work has about been completed and will be finished today. The last call by any enumerator was made this morning when one of the official enumerators took a short list who reported that they had not been counted and made a trip to check them in an effort to determine whether this was true or not.

At present the employees of the supervisors office are checking the returns by counties, including all justice precincts and towns in the county. Three of the thirteen counties have been returned and complete population figures released. These three are Mills, Lampasas, and Llano. It is thought that several more of these counties will be ready for publication this week.

Business Women Encourage Education by Helping Girls

BUSINESS WOMEN'S CLUB IS INTERESTED IN EDUCATION

BY MRS. G. C. SKINNER

The Business and Professional Women's Club at large, as its name would suggest, stands for education. One of the important national committees is the educational. The policy of each local club is to stand for, or sponsor, some broad educational movement.

This large thing that the Brownwood club lives, moves and has its being for is its Loan Fund for girls who are striving for high school and college training. This is treated at length in another article.

Aside from this major effort, the club has shown its interest in education in many ways, a few typical ones of which will be mentioned.

When this county was agitated over the question of good roads and the Brownwood people thought the others in the county uninterested, and the others of the county thought Brownwood wanted to make them the goat when it came to tax-paying, this club offered flags to the schools entering an essay contest for the discussion of the good roads problem. Various groups, Mrs. Goodall was president then, went out into the various communities and presented the idea to the school children. The resulting interesting essays proved that really the county was a unit in wanting good roads, and there was no cause for misunderstanding.

As to how to secure them, but abundant ground for education on the subject. The successful essayists in each school were the guests one evening in the outstanding meeting of this club in the mullerby room of the Southern Hotel. Mrs. Jennings, as vice-president, graciously presided and Miss Carrie Reeves, always a friend by name, a member, was toastmistress. The club members had a good time that evening and they sincerely believe the essayists did.

To show appreciation of the splendid practically educational work done in the Home Demonstration Clubs throughout the county, the B. and P. has often given prizes for certain exhibits in connection with the winding up of a year's work, usually with a two-days camp or convention.

An indirectly educational project of this club is its practice of sending gifts, in conjunction with the American Legion Auxiliary, to our leper soldiers in the Louisiana hospital at holiday times throughout the year. These gifts are expected to be in part of a nature that will help the patients occupy their time profitably, as well as give them a momentary enjoyment.

Again, when the just organized Brownwood branch of the American Association of University Women began the evening school for adults, it illustrates some weeks preceding the census taking and needed books for the project, the president, the aforementioned Miss Carrie Reeves, only had to let the B. and P. know the need and the club came to the rescue with a gift of some charming little readers. As a digression, it may be said that upon final analysis the aims and ideals of these two clubs are very much alike, and all who are eligible to the A. A. U. W. would be eligible to the B. and P. if they had salaried jobs, and all who are eligible to the B. and P. would be eligible to the A. A. U. W. had they attended school at certain places, for the fact of their being business and professional women argues for their capability!

As Dr. Mollie W. Armstrong says, it had always been thought that the men would look after the Boy Scouts, but when it began to look as if they were about to fail to give them proper consideration, the members of the club set about getting themselves educated on the desirability of the scout organization and feel that they were of at least a little influence in keeping the scouts, in addition to the money they contributed.

Speaking of getting the club educated, or sold, on scouting is a reminder of the fact that not only does this club like to help in the education of others, but likes to keep its membership informed on important questions. When such questions as the water supply, the city plan, health, etc., are being considered, authorities on the various lines are asked to talk in the meetings and thoroughly explain the points at issue. Mr. Ross and Mr. Hennen have talked to the club, also various physicians. Dr. Daugherty having given an exceptionally practical talk.

The programs for the year were planned with the idea of adding a little each time to qualifications in the line of general culture for better business women for a better business world.

Gallant Soldier Dies
George Taylor, who as a trooper of the 17th British Lancers in the Zulu War in Africa, was one of the little party who recovered the body of the Prince Imperial of France, and carried it to the camp of General Newbode on a stretcher formed by men's lances, died at Leeds, England, recently, at the age of 79. Trooper Taylor also helped to recover from the Buffalo River the bodies of Lieutenants Melville and Coghill, who had so gloriously saved the Colors of the gallant 24th after the disaster of the Isandlwana. He rode in the charge of the "Death of Glory Boys" at Ulundi into the thick of 23,000 Zulus.

MRS. PITCHER JONES TELLS HOW SHE BECAME WORLD'S CHAMPION COLLECTOR OF PITCHERS

BY MRS. A. P. JONES

Isalah—in the Great Book of Books—writes "O Lord, thou art our Father; we are the clay, and thou our potter; and we all are the work of thy hand." Even as you and I!

I value my hobby, collecting pitchers of all sorts, shapes, and sizes—because it gives me much lasting interest and never failing pleasure, and it is such a merry, jolly little whim, and like "Mr. Pinney's" turnip of historic fame? out behind the barn, it grows and grows and never does any body any harm.

The study of ceramics is vast, improving and absorbing. In the very beginning of man's existence a water container of some sort was necessary, an animal skin was probably the first crude pitcher.

The most unique feature of the collection being that the greater portion are gifts from loved ones, friends, mere acquaintances, even strangers add to the number. Money can buy most any thing but does not add the zest that "good will" does. A lady once said that was looking them over that she had never seen as many "remembrances" together before in one lot.

I call the pitchers, "My Memory's Rosary"—when on them I reckon these many tokens of kind thoughts practically expressed. I count them over and over and faces of friends come before me, recalling quaint expressions, that they bring to mind, of the observers.

One small girl said in amazement, "Woman, do you just go 'round askin' fer em?" Another beautiful girl with a tiffany crown of gold said that she didn't see why she couldn't have some of them when I had so many.

A Christmas card came last year, addressed to "Mrs. Pitcher Jones" from Nashville, Tenn. On the back of the beautiful card was written, "I am so sure that this will reach you as I am that 'believe it or not,' would reach Ripley." And it did.

Get you a hobby if you want to add a real kick to living. All my life I had a weakness for pitchers. When a small girl had a little tea set of dishes, I would drink out of the tiny pitcher instead of a cup, and take the little pitcher around with me in my pocket, if I had one.

When visitors ask: "How did you come to collect?" I reply: "When I came to Brownwood in 1902 as Mrs. A. P. Jones, little did I know that I would be called "Mrs. A. Pitcher"

U. D. C. CHAPTER IS OVER THIRTY YEARS OLD IN BROWNWOOD

BY MRS. W. H. TALBOT SR.

Written for the Business and Professional Woman's Club Special Edition

Winnie Davis Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy was organized February 21, 1899, in Brownwood by Mrs. J. Z. Hill, who became the first president of the chapter. Prior to the organizing of the chapter the Ladies Memorial Association of Stonewall Jackson Camp Confederate Veterans was organized and met twice a month in a business session with Mrs. M. A. Martin as chairman and Mrs. Brook Smith, secretary. The two organizations were merged into one with Mrs. Hill as president and Miss Mary Smith, recording secretary. Every two years officers were elected and the chapter grew steadily accomplishing a great work in memorial, historical, benevolent, educational and social activities. The chapter has ever been mindful of the welfare of the confederate veterans and their widows, also the educational interests of our schools. Memorial day on the 26th of April has been observed every year since the chapter was organized. The birth days of General Lee and Stonewall Jackson in connection with the birth day of Commodore Fountain Maury (the pathfinder of the seas) is observed the 19th of January, and on the 28 years later. I hold 36 pitchers in my new home and I was so proud of them that the family began to give them to me on birthdays and at Christmas times and friends enjoying my real enjoyment in them began also to give them to me. Two families alone have given me more than one hundred. Not until my first hundred was reached did I begin to realize that I had a collection indeed.

MRS. PITCHER JONES TELLS HOW SHE BECAME WORLD'S CHAMPION COLLECTOR OF PITCHERS

In 1913 the Dallas News gave me a page in their Sunday daily paper, and I had 405 at that time. Then they began to come in.

Several Christmas since I have received from 25 to 40, so now I have well over 1,356 in my collection.

Where the Pitchers Come From
There are pitchers made by the Aztec Indians of Mexico and taken from Teihuacan territory of the Sun Pyramids of Mexico and there is one that represents the God of Sun as these people worshipped. While Lindbergh was in Mexico he made a trip to this place to enjoy the beautiful view and a pitcher attached to the place. The pyramids in Mexico are very similar to the Pyramids of Egypt in that they are erected, like those of Egypt, with the corners pointing with the compass.

A blackened pewter pitcher brought from England more than 100 years old, is in the collection. Another that attracts especial attention is a big wooden vessel, almost large enough for a water pitcher, that a preacher carved with his pocket knife.

One of the strangest of the collection is a pitcher made from a gourd, the handle and spout being short sections of what composed the gourd's long handle.

An aged crock pitcher, black as night, that was made at a famous old pottery works in the mountains of Tennessee two hundred years ago, holds a dignified place among its many companions.

INTERNATIONAL FEDERATION IN GENEVA IN JULY

BY PANSY HAMILTON

In their pleasure and enthusiasm coming out of National Federation, the Business and Professional Women's Clubs have had a bigger thought and ideal, which will soon result in International Federation if the work of this summer is a success.

International Federation is to be accomplished through Good Will Tours. In order to make it possible for everyone to go, three tours have been arranged for the different sections. These tours are known as the "Northern Section," "Southern Section," "Scottish Extension to the Southern Section," "The Geneva Special" and the "Hawaiian Section."

The Northern Section sails from New York July 16th on the Bergenfjord, and the route includes Trondheim, Stockholm, Helsinki, Leningrad, Moscow, Kiev, Warsaw, Krakow, Vienna, Munich, Oberammergau, Lucerne, Geneva and Paris.

The Southern Section sails from Montreal July 12th, on the S. S. Adriatic and will include the Shetland Islands, London, Paris, Brussels, Amsterdam, Cologne, Mainz, Heidelberg, Munich, Oberammergau, Lucerne, Lugano, Venice, Milan, Florence, Rome, Genoa, Nice and Geneva.

The Geneva Special is especially arranged for business and professional women who can not be away from their offices for quite as long as the Northern and Southern Tours will take. The Geneva Special will sail from New York on August 1, visiting London, Paris, Brussels, Amsterdam, Cologne, Heidelberg, Munich, Oberammergau and Lucerne enroute to Geneva.

This tour joins the other tours in sailing for home August 12th and reaching New York about September 3.

Miss Daisy Leake of Temple, Texas, has been appointed recruiter of all tours for Texas, and will be glad to give information about the Hawaiian Tour.

Each tour goes to Geneva, Switzerland, where in August an international federation of business and professional women is expected to be the aftermath.

Our International Relations Committee will concentrate on these intimate visits so that those who accompany the tours will return at the end of the summer with the happy consciousness of a personal acquaintance with many European women who are specialists in their own professions.

Two outstanding characters have paved the way for a most wonderful time in the Southern European Countries. Dr. Castellani in Italy, and Anna Martin in to provide the head of the noted Swiss woman.

Many charming hostesses of other years are on the alert to see that we meet the active women of Belgium, Holland, Scandinavia and Central Europe. At this very early date, letters of introduction have been furnished to the outstanding women of Russia and Poland which will be a magic wand in revealing the hospitality of those countries.

With Miss Mary C. Kennedy of Lafayette, Indiana, at the head of our recruiting staff, inquiries from 21 states have been answered. But better still is the fact that many have actually signed up with deposits paid. Several states are represented in the personnel. Miss Lena Madestin of Philadelphia, Miss Majory Lacey Baker will lead the Northern Tour. Mrs. J. K. Bowman of Richmond, Virginia, will lead the Southern Tour.

Europe will be seen at its best with gala dinners and many entertainments arranged for the pleasure of the tourists.

Women—think of it, three days in Geneva August 24, 25 and 26, with a meeting with European women each day. Then "On to Geneva." Now that we have Good Will Tours and our golden circle of friendship is widening the business woman is no longer content to stay at home and contact with women of other lands only through the pages of magazines. She, too, covets that easy familiarity with which our first Good Will emissaries speak of London and Paris and Rome. Indeed a new epoch in our Federation history approaches. Who that is really imbued with Federation spirit can resist the summons?

Scotch Farmers Aroused
Farmers of Scotland are aroused over serious conditions of agriculture, and mass meetings are being held in many parts of the country. Ten thousand farm owners and farm workers attended a mass demonstration recently at Perth, and passed a resolution demanding that the government immediately convene a joint conference of all parties to evolve plans to stabilize agriculture. More than 200 agriculturalists from all parts of the borders held a mass meeting at Kelso and passed a resolution similar to that ratified at Perth. East Fife, Wigtown and Central Banffshire have added their voices to the national protest and demonstrations have been held at Cupar, Stranraer and Keith, and other places.

YOU'G WOMEN ARE AIDED BY SCHOOL LOANS

BY ESTELLE DUREN, Treasurer

MISS ESTELLE DUREN

It would take a golden pen (that wasn't meant as a pun) to write of what the treasurer, Estelle Duren, means to the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club. Elsewhere is told of her induction into the club, of which she has been treasurer nearly ever since. The task was given into the accurate hands of Mrs. Adelia Martin for the year that Miss Duren was president. Being a banker by profession—she is another good teacher who flew the track after preparing for the work in Sam Houston Normal, then admitted the best of teacher training schools, and teaching very successfully in Brownwood and Dallas for a number of years. But perhaps it is just as well, for had she remained a teacher it is not likely that she would have returned to Brownwood, and wouldn't it be awful if she were up in Dallas getting publicity for that club? Good-bye, Scrap Book! But to go back to the sentence started above—being a banker by profession, she knows how to administer the loan fund, to say nothing of guarding the checking account. For the past year she has been Chairman of the Sixth District Federation of B. and P. W. C., reflecting much glory on the local group thereby. Another important office she has recently held is that of Grand Factotum (whatever that is) of the Square Dance—the typewriter almost made it Quare Dance. It is thought that these square dances will eventually marry her off. We can only hope for the best—interpret that oracular saying as you will.

On December 27, 1929, was given the first of a series of square dances which netted $107.77. Another on January 31, 1930, netted $285.90. The third given February 28, 1930, netted $225.41. The fourth March 28, 1930, $58.04, thus making a total of $1,681.04 raised by entertainments. Other sources of revenues the interest of the savings account $32.82, discount on a note $5.20, interest paid on notes by the girls $25.93. This brings the total of the loan fund to $1,944.99. Of this amount, $1,754.50 is now loaned to girls, and there is a balance in the bank of $190.49.

The question is sometimes asked as to how the beneficiaries are chosen. The finance committee consisting of the treasurer as chairman and two other members of the club investigate the standing of the girls. If she is a student in the college, the instructors are interviewed. If the prospect is not already a student, one or more substantial citizens sign the note. In no case has the sum loaned to one girl exceeded $150 per year. During the six years the fund has been in operation, only one girl has failed to meet her obligations in a most gracious manner.

As soon as the girls are able to secure a certificate, they become self-supporting. They begin to repay the loan month by month and thus pass the benefits on to the next generation. The forty girls who have received loans from this fund are listed below:

Mrs. Kathleen Young, Emma Leta Newton, Debbie Askew, Annie Sides, Althea Ragsdale, Bernice Morris, Hannah Mae Griffith, Bessie Miller, Della Coffee, Elma Middleton, Marie Crawford, Grace Trigg, Margaret Black, Leta Mae Garrett, Vera Hester, Lela Hayward, Clara Dunsworth, Thelma Brewster, Mrs. Johnnie B. Sullivan, Annie Fry, Ethel Bohanan, Gertrude Powell, Rhoda Willford, Elma Threalt, Lucille Marchbank, Ina Smith, Margaret St. Clair, Lillie Gains, Sarah Miller, Verda Mae Singleton, Viola Amanda Hughes, Thelma Tallant, Allene Bryan, Eva Nell Benham, Lorena Davee, Janice Walden, Hilma Hanson.

B. & P. CLUB WEEK IN MARCH

BY ESTELLE DUREN

Business and Professional Women's Club Week is an institution widely recognized throughout the country. The idea of it was conceived by Emma Dot Partridge of New York City who was secretary of the National Federation of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs from 1924 to 1927. At the national convention in 1927 at Oakland, Cal., she suggested that one week be set aside each year to call attention to the achievements of women in the business and professional circles. The convention acted upon this suggestion and designated April 15 to 22, 1928, as the first observance of Business and Professional Women's Club Week. Likewise a week in 1929 was set aside and in 1930 the week of March 10 to 16 was designated so. Gov. Dan Moody was one of the many governors in 1930 to issue proclamations asking the people of the state to encourage and give recognition to the Business and Professional Women.

The Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club deservingly served the third annual week thus designated by using the regular meeting Tuesday March 11, as a time to discuss the opportunities and benefits of such observance. Then on Friday night, March 14, the club had a public relations dinner to which presidents of various clubs in town were invited—this was followed by "Open House" when many friends called for an informal get-together.

On Saturday night the radio was claiming the attention of club members so they might have the pleasure of hearing the message by our state president, Miss Mary Jane Higgins, and some delightful musical numbers by the Fort Worth Club. The observance of the week ended Sunday morning by the club members attending in a body, services at the First Presbyterian Church.

Such a period of time as thus used gives the unique opportunity to show to the community at large that business and professional women are really doing things worth while and that a Business and Professional Women's Club is a genuine asset to the community. After the meeting in Geneva, Switzerland in August, when International Federation will be accomplished, we shall probably be hearing something about "International Business and Professional Women's Clubs Week."

M'DONALD SAYS CLUB IS WORTH MUCH TO TOWN

BY O. W. McDONALD

Mayor City of Brownwood has profited materially on account of the Business and Professional Women's Club of this city. Its work has been strictly along constructive lines, and in such ways as to be of real benefit to all the citizenship. There is nothing partisan or selfish about the Business and Professional Women's Club, but rather a work of service to all the community. I feel confident there is no other organization rendering to this city any greater or more lasting service than this fine club, a fact realized by all of us.

I believe in giving credit where credit is due. The Business and Professional Women's Club of this city has been, and is, worth much to the city government. By its friendly, and co-operative, counsel the work of the city council has been made easier, and accomplished greater results.

The secret of all this is the willing co-operation and team work of its members. It takes these two qualifications to win, whether it be a club, a city government or what not. To illustrate what I mean, a man by the name of John Jones discovered if he would attend church next Sunday, he must have a new pair of trousers. He went to the store Saturday night, found the pair he wanted, but they were four inches too long; he decided to buy them and have his wife to cut off the surplus four inches. His wife refused to alter the trousers, claiming she did not marry him to do tailoring work. His next move was to carry them to his mother. She refused to make the alteration, because, she said, that was work his wife should do. In desperation, he took the trousers to his old maid sister. She refused, said she would not do a service that his wife should do—that she didn't like his wife anyway. Poor old John went to bed that night feeling mighty blue and forsaken. After John had gone to sleep, his wife felt somewhat ashamed of her neglect of her husband, obtained the trousers and cut off the four inches, and put them back in his room. After this occurred, the old mother, thinking of her boy and that she had never before refused him aid, slipped in his room and obtained John's trousers and cut off four inches and then placed them back.

A little later on, John's old maid sister decided to lay aside her animosity for John's wife and help the poor boy out of his difficulty. She slipped in, obtained John's trousers, and cut off four inches, and returned them to John's room. When John put on the trousers to go to church, and found that his trousers had been cut off 12 inches instead of four. Now there was a sort of co-operation, but no team work. We are all glad to do honor, and acknowledge the worth of this great club. May it continue its excellent service to our community.

FINE PROGRESS IS REPORTED IN RURAL ACTIVITY

BY MAYESIE MALONE

Brown County Home Demonstration Agent

The Texas Home Demonstration Organization for 1928 consisted of 16 staff members whose headquarters are at College Station. 99 county home demonstration agents, in 95 Texas counties (we have 105 now), one negro district supervisor, located at Prairie View College and 21 negro county home demonstration agents, making a total of 137 people. The Texas Home Demonstration Staff is made up of:

One state home demonstration agent, 9 district home demonstration agents, 1 specialist in organization, 1 clothing specialist, 1 food specialist.

The 99 Texas county home demonstration agents in 1928 have worked in 1713 communities in which the extension program has been worked out by them and the people. Of these 1713 communities 1087 have Girl's Home Demonstration Clubs with a membership of 15,433 girls; 954 Women's Home Demonstration clubs with 19,063 women. This is an average of 20 women and 14 girls in a club.

Fifty-six county home demonstration agents reported 402 girls entering college this year and 472 entering high schools as a result of their club contests and work. Three college scholarships and two trips to National Farm Boys' and Girls' 4-H Club encampment at Washington, D. C., were given to five outstanding club girls in 1928.

The Texas home demonstration agents made 26,918 home visits in interest of their work and 15,918 of the 26,918 were different homes. Sixty thousand two hundred and ninety-eight office calls and 46,876 telephone calls relative to extension work were made to county home demonstration agents. This is an average of 697 callers and 413 telephone calls on each agent.

The county home demonstration agents spent 8,585 days in the office and 17,901 in the field. Some of the office days were spent in writing 5,342 articles for the press and 154,949 letters. Home demonstration exhibits were made at 283 community fairs and 95 county fairs.

The 99 agents held 23,170 method and result demonstration meetings with an attendance of 420,543 people, which is an average attendance of about 19 per meeting.

The state short course at College Station July 28 to August 2, was attended by 635 women and 805 girls, of these 316 women and 479 girls won free trips. Forty-three camps for girls, or girls and boys in some counties, were held with an attendance 3,750 girls and total attendance of 1,579. Thirty-eight women's camps were held with an attendance of 4,372 women.

Thirty-five community houses were built, 86 club kitchens equipped, in 568 communities equipment was purchased and civic improvements were made in 303 communities.

The Texas county home demonstration agents are serving a total of 34,496 women and girls who are members of 2,041 girls and women's clubs, besides those who are reached in the unorganized communities. The home demonstration program in Texas is conducted and administered through:

1. Girl's Clubs.
2. Women's Clubs.
3. Unorganized groups.
4. Individual demonstrators.
5. County Home Demonstration Councils.

This year 1,087 girl's clubs enrolled 15,433 girls and 954 women's clubs 19,063 women. Seventy-eight counties have functioned in county home demonstration councils.

In 1927 there were 79 county home demonstration agents with 838 girls clubs with an enrollment of 13,973 and 540 women's clubs with an enrollment of 13,344 in 1928 there were 98 home demonstration agents with 1,089 girls' clubs with an enrollment of 15,433, and 954 women's clubs with an enrollment of 19,063. This shows the growth of the organizations.

In Brown County we have six girls club and eighteen women's clubs working through these organizations with 725 members and reaching 7,512 people during the past year.

We have one of the oldest county home demonstration councils in the state and it is a splendid organization, composed of the presidents of each club and one member of this council meets each month on the first Saturday at Brownwood in court room for their business meetings.

We have an annual county encampment each year and last year 209 girls and women spent two days at Lakewood, which was a real vacation to them all.

We had 14 club members attending short course last year at College Station and nine of these won free trips. Four free trips were won to Dallas Fair educational encampment by club girls.

At the short course Brown county won first in state clothing contest a sewing machine. In the state living room contest we won first and second in the district and third place in the state in the contest, and fourth in state butter contest.

We also had one of the first Master Farm Homemakers in Texas. Have won many other prizes at state fair and other contests.

We used three car loads of tin cans in this county last year in spite of the long dry summer and short gardens. One hundred two home canning outfits were placed in Brown County homes. With one hundred and fifty thousand new tin cans and many old ones used.

The home demonstration clubs have three community houses and six club rooms, all of these are not fully equipped at this time but the members are working on plans for this equipment.

Home Demonstrator

MISS MAYESIE MALONE

What would Brown County do, or be, without Mayesie Malone? She sometimes threatens to quit the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club, of which she is a charter member, because her job as Home Demonstration Worker does not permit her to do as much directly for the club as Estelle Durston and Dr. Mollie Armstrong, who really have nothing to do but work for it. But if women in outstanding professions like her are not absolutely necessary for this club, what women are? We sometimes hear of "natural born orators or lawyers," well, they say Miss Malone is a natural born home demonstrator. Her years in Daniel Baker College and the College of Industrial Arts have hindered her any in this work. Her latest "thrill" (and the work is full of thrills) is over the new Home Demonstration Club House at Grosvener.

FLOWERS FOOD IN MANY LANDS

BY FAY BAKER

One of the most interesting uses for flowers in other lands, according to a bulletin that is put out by the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, is the taste shown for food made of, or flavored with flowers of different varieties, which is common to most Oriental nations. The custom of using flowers as foodstuffs is especially prevalent in Japan, China, India, Afghanistan and in the Ionian Isles, Southern France, Egypt, Italy, The Balkans and Morocco, however, also have some flower-foods.

The lily is greatly esteemed in China, and its cultivation as a vegetable is carried on in an intensive way in some parts of that country. It is served boiled, and is considered a great delicacy. Banana flowers are cooked in the West Indies by the negro plantation workers, who then eat the blossoms plentifully showered with molasses. Rose-petal jelly is a favorite dish of the denizens of the Nile delta, and candied jasmine petals and candied violet preserves favorite dishes of the peasantry of the French and Italian Riviera, have won worldwide recognition among epicures.

Americans have never taken kindly to the use of flowers as a food, here flowers are more commonly used for sentimental occasions, as food for the soul, as one might say—than in any other nation in the world. But the flower lovers of America do not ever use the blossoms for physical food.

It is interesting to note, in face of the common accusation of materialism hurled at us by nearly every other nation in the world, that we are one of the few nations which preserves the beauty of flowers for beauty's sake, rather than converting them to more material uses.

Animal Curfew for France

While lovers of quiet in France have pleasant anticipations of enforcement of the proposed curfew for animals, farmers are not so enthusiastic over the plan. The French authorities proposed that after 10 o'clock at night no dog is to be allowed to bark, no cat to serenade and no cock to crow. Farmers and owners of pets are supposed to see that this curfew is observed by their livestock, and they say that they will have a lively time in doing so. Those living in cities declare that the proposed law is only fair because in Paris motorists must not sound horns after midnight and in Saint Nazaire radio loud speakers must not be heard in the streets.

There are more active volcanoes in Salvador than in any other country.

Origin of Dominoes

Dominoes was invented by two French monks, who amused themselves with square stones, marked with spots. The winner declared his victory by reciting the first line of the Vesper service, "Dixit Domino Meo." When, later, the game became the recreation of the whole convent, the Vesper line was abbreviated into "Domino," and the stones themselves received the name of "Dominoes."

The MONEY-METR provides a grocery fund, pays doctor bills, drug bills, dry goods bills, and all other bills, including gas, water and lights. Any person in good health may own one and pay for it on small installments. It is the only METR on the market that is absolutely and positively guaranteed to return more money than can possibly be paid for it. It will pay the house rent, pay the installments on the home, pay out the family car and furnish gas and oil and have the car washed and greased as often as is necessary. Every baby, every boy and girl and every man and woman should be equipped with a MONEY-METR. It is the only METR in the world that is sold under the guarantee that if the buyer loses his health it will pay itself out and pay the buyer a lifetime monthly salary, no matter how long he lives. It will supply the money for contributions to the Chamber of Commerce, to the church, pay the pastor's salary and keep up the club dues. It will educate the children, pay the taxes and keep the bank account out of the red. It will supply the money to do anything and anyone may arrange his own budget, set the METR at the amount he wants each month and rest assured that it will deliver as ordered with most accurate promptness. We want you to know all about the MONEY-METR and either of the following representatives will consider it a special privilege to explain it to you in every detail at the time and place you suggest!

Brownwood's Best

MRS. J. W. TRAPP

"Born, reared, always lived in Brownwood, and glad of it," says Mrs. J. W. Trapp-Irene Adams Trapp. To this Brownwood adds, "How fortunate for me!" Educated in Daniel Baker College, Texas University, and Columbia, Mrs. Trapp has made teaching her vocation, having charge of the Department of Education for her Alma Mater where her influence has been untold. Her avocations are many, from culinary enterprises (when she was in New York studying she found time to make a few glasses of strawberry jelly, to bring home, and she delights to show her brothers and sisters that she can cook a Christmas dinner) to club work. The Brownwood Business and Professional Club claims her as a member, a functioning member. She is now parliamentarian and has been vice-president.

Librarian and Financier

MRS. IRA W. HALL

Mary DeBerry Hall asks that she be so called in this paper. But do not be misled--this is just Mrs. Ira Hall down at the Carnegie Library. Should she suddenly fall heir to a million dollars, this would especially the youth of it, certainly would no longer lack books needed. And she would keep on doing her best for the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club, too. The treasurer cannot surpass her when it comes to finance, for when it is her turn to serve the club luncheon, she asks everyone what she wants to eat next time, gets everything called for, has her young college daughter see to it, and makes money for the club at the usual price per plate. (It seems as if she should be allowed to buy a book for Carnegie with that seventy-five cents).

Librarian

MISS STELLA STOREY

The popular and efficient librarian of the Brownwood Senior High School, is numbered in the ranks of the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club, one of the welcomed new members of this year. Educated at Daniel Baker College, she found her first desire for her present profession when she was student assistant in the college library. Her first teaching was done in Matador, and the really important thing she did that year was to get a school library started. Later she studied Library Science in Peabody College, Nashville.

Poetry Shark

MISS ETHEL ELLER

A woman who knows "what's what" for she joined the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club right off when she came to this fair city to teach reading in Coggin Ward School. In connection with this reading she is doing an outstanding thing, that of securing the memorization of countless poems, volunteer work largely on the part of her pupils, for which they are going to call blessings upon her in years to come. She holds a North Texas Teachers College (Denton) diploma, and has studied in West Texas Teachers College (Canyon) and in the Universities of Colorado and Oklahoma.

Beautifies Public

MRS. CELAH TUCKER

Another of our members who has as her vocation the job of beautifying the public. Mrs. Tucker is in the beauty parlor business with Mrs. Howell at the Blue Bonnet Beauty Shop.

Lahador, by a decision of the privy council of England made in 1927 was granted to Newfoundland.

On Bulletin Staff

MISS KATE ERWIN

It is a joy to know "pretty Kate, clever Kate," but it may not prove to be a pleasure to write for her as she reads proof for the Bulletin and there is no telling what she may do to the commas. "In everything," as the young fellow in oral composition always says. But as she does this proof reading solely to make herself a professional business woman so that she may belong to the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club, perhaps a few commas can be sacrificed to her blue pencil--or is it the editor that has the blue pencil? For it is fun to have her and Edna Saunders serve the supper and to hear the president say, "Now Kate, be quiet." And when Kate obeys and gives attention, what she has to suggest hits the nail on the head, as the club will agree.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS IN BROWNWOOD ARE GROUP OF HAPPY YOUNGSTERS

BY RUTH COLE

What is this thing we call Camp-Fire? Why are there hundreds of thousands of Camp Fire Girls and thousands of Guardians, and Camp Fire Girls in twenty-two different countries carrying out the programs?

The germ of Camp Fire is international. In 1911, seven persons who were interested in girls saw the need of an organization that functioned for expansion as the Boy Scouts do for boys. With this objective, hours were spent in formulating the principles and philosophy of Camp Fire ideals.

Mrs. Gulick became intensely interested in developing a broader life for women, but her real field for expansion came through her Camp, Camp Gulick, in Maine, where the Camp Fire Craft program was evolved.

The greatest contribution of the American Indian to civilization was his sensitiveness to beauty. Therefore the entire Camp Fire is woven around Indian Lore, with the first law designated as "Seek Beauty." Then, the others follow, Give Service, Pursue Knowledge, Be Trustworthy, Glorify Work, Hold on to Health, and Be Happy. It gives us the recipe for a happy and serviceable life.

The watch word, "Wohelo," signifying Work, Health, and Love furnishes us a program for living. The "Desires" express a real philosophy; the comradeship of friends, the love of man for God, and the desire to share the beautiful things of the world with others. The Camp Fire of Junior High School was organized in the fall of 1928. Miss Rebecca Calloway is our president for this year. Five girls have attained the coveted rank of Fire Maker and are now ready to work for the last, and highest rank, that of Torch Bearer. They are nationally affiliated with headquarters in New York City.

ARCADIA NEWS STAND

THE LIONS CLUB

(By a Member)

Not many of you, I surmise, are interested in when the Lions Club had its beginning, or where, or in whose mind the idea originated. Such things are well enough to give during a Lions Club luncheon, but so far as the average newspaper reader is concerned, space given to such detail is space wasted. What the public wants to know is what the local Lions Club is doing for, what is it doing, and what does it hope to do. In the first place it does not owe anybody an apology for being here. There was felt a distinct need for such an organization; and far-sighted business and professional men could see plenty of work ahead for those who joined forces with the Club. Those who were added to the roster of the club were warned in advance that membership meant work. There was of course a certain and undeniable pleasure to be had from association with others around the luncheon table, and there was much enjoyment to be had from the splendid musical and educational programs put on from time to time, but back of the whole idea was the thought that the Lions Club was organized for and devoted to service--service to the town, service to the community, service, service!

This idea is impressed on every prospective member and unless he is willing to give of his time and talents to that end, when called upon by those in authority, his application is not looked upon with favor.

The net result is that the Lions Club is made up of men who have attained to prominence as civic workers. If there is a worthwhile proposition to put over the Lions are ready to do their part; if campaigns for good roads or improved streets, or larger sewers, or cleaner alleys, or better lighting, or better playgrounds, etc., are launched, the Lions are in the forefront with their help.

Lions occupy positions of importance on the City Council, the School Board, the Chamber of Commerce, in fact wherever hard work is required, and the pay consists chiefly in the satisfaction one gets out of a hard task well performed, there are found members of this organization.

What is it doing? Lions have a share in every activity that affects the public. Boy Scouts are encouraged, wholesome athletics in public schools are accorded a place in their deliberations, good roads movements are fostered and aided, contributions are made to the cause of charity--in fact no good cause is intentionally overlooked.

The local Lions Club is of and for Brownwood and Brown county.

Business Woman Is Fashion's Favorite

By Mrs. J. W. JENNINGS

In choosing clothes, is to choose them appropriate to the occasion. It is not enough to choose smart clothes and wear them smartly.

One must choose clothes that are suitable for the occasion, not only the place but for the time whether it be morning, noon, afternoon or evening.

The way for the business woman to apply this rule of correct dressing is to carefully choose her clothes, hats and accessories as part of a one occasion wardrobe. The one occasion is business. When women years ago, first entered business they did not consider clothes in this way. Clothes chosen for working hours were far less important in their scheme of things than they are today really they wore the old clothes for business, not realizing the importance of their appearance in business. Prince of the Prince School of Salesmanship of Boston, said, in an address given at a National Teachers Convention, "If a teacher is going out to seek a position and she has only $100 to spend $75 on clothes before she appeared before the board, as there is nothing that appeals to a man like a well dressed woman."

Note she said well dressed. Often business women skip on their nine to five clothes in order to have more elaborate clothes for Sunday. That is a great mistake because you are seen all day in your business clothes.

The modern young business woman usually has no Sunday best clothes at all. She buys a costume that is appropriate for all day time occasions and wears it every day in the week as well as Sunday, realizing she is better dressed in tailored clothes than fussy ones.

The length of skirts this year is the most delightful, because for the street and business, coming well below the knees in becoming and practical and the long skirt for formal, afternoon and evening is graceful and beautiful.

If you are planning to go out to dinner or the theater after business hours, and cannot get home to change your clothes, wear something that is appropriate for business and that will not be inappropriate for the evening's diversion. Don't wear something that is especially appropriate for evening and that will make you feel fussed all through the day. One of the greatest sins against good taste in dressing is to be conspicuous, and a woman in trim daytime costume is never conspicuous, save at distinctly formal evening affairs.

The girl who is not perfectly sure of her "tout ensemble" usually goes about with an awkward, embarrassed manner. She makes a quick nervous entrance into the room, strikes awkward, uneasy postures. She seems to cling to the background and seems never quite so much where she belongs as when a wall flower. Just to be sure that your clothes look right from every angle is enough to give a girl confidence, and it is this self-confidence and naturalness that have a great deal to do with popularity.

The Worth of a Friend

I slept and dreamed a lovely dream Beside my mother's chair. A lovely dream of the rainbow end With the gold that's hanging there.

In dreams I was a hunter With all my might and soul Seeking to find the rainbow end Seeking the pot of gold.

But in waking to reality I left my dreams behind. But often in my childish way Would call it to my mind. A lovely dream of rainbow gleams Yet real as life it seemed This a dream that all, tho young or old

Sometime in life have dreamed. Then I went about my daily work And toiled as others do. Till I feared the gleams of the rainbow end

Instead of gold were blue. But now as years are passing o'er I learn the Rainbow's end With its wonderful pot of gold Is a treasure. It's you, my friend.

Executive

MISS LAURA E. LOWE

Every club must have executive ability among its ranks, here is one of our members who has charge of The Brownwood Division of Bankers' Guaranty Life Company. Miss Lowe came into our club last September and we feel that she is now an "old timer among us."

CLUB EMBLEM SIGNIFICANT OF PURPOSES

BY LAURA E. LOWE

The definite aims of the Business and Professional Women's Club are set forth and embodied in our emblem which clearly signifies a four-fold purpose, and these purposes all culminate in the symbolism of the Winged Victory, Nike, the Goddess of Victory.

This majestic marble figure in 308 B. C. stood upon the prow of a ship blowing the fanfare of triumph upon a trumpet held in her right hand, while in her left she carried a trophy commemorating a naval conquest. She still rides the waves braced against the wind, her draperies fluttering in the breeze, every line of her splendid torso vibrant with strength and joy and the sense of progress. She is not passive. She is alive. She moves onward. The lines of her splendid figure are uplifted, pushing against the wind, her great wings—not straining, but outstretched, her whole body eloquent of the onward movement.

So rides the woman of today "ever onward" against the winds and waves of ancient prejudice and limitations, not static and staid, but moving steadily forward. The Winged Victory is therefore a fitting symbol for the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, joined in common purpose.

Caught and held in the encircled gold of this emblem are the pertinent facts about our organization:

The Flaming Torch of Wisdom—truth—is the Roman torch as was used by torch bearers who led the processions along the streets, not running with the flame flying backward, but carried slowly and steadily forward in leadership giving the light to the ones following. The Torch of Wisdom in our Emblem, therefore, signifies our desire and effort, in the name of the one who came to give freedom and light to all mankind, to light the way to a more perfect civilization, a higher plane of living, a nobler sense of duty, and as we go forward in the world of business to shed our light that the feet of others may not falter when the way is hard to find, and guided by this Flaming Torch of Wisdom do link hand and hand that we may smooth the path over the rough places for those who follow afterwards in this procession of business life.

The Winged Wand of the Herald—Harmony—The most beautiful of symbols. Having the power to calm all strife and conflict—ushering in a new era of opportunity. Bringing about permanent improvement for our cities, energy to aid in the uplift of our community, and perseverance to work for the common good, teaching us to put aside petty jealousy and consuming envy, and work hand in hand for all that can bring about the happiness and well-being of our people. And we build into its symbolism virtues of healing, patience, forbearance, tenderness, peace, co-operation and understanding, gracious, living virtues of Wisdom and Power.

Ship of Commerce—Progress—Bringing opportunity and carrying our message into all lands—our white winged messenger of friendship and good will. This Ship of Progress has demanded the services of women, brought her financial independence, freedom of soul and body, self-expression, individuality and recognition of ability. This ship has been one of the greatest factors in the emancipation of woman, not to dominate, but in her sphere has taught her co-operation and self-reliance, fairness and honesty, and, as the greatest benefit, has given her economic independence—the safe-guard of honor.

The Open Scroll of Learning—knowledge—It is the moral obligation of every woman to be intelligent and to use her intelligence in fine service to others. Learning gives faith, power and confidence. And though much has been accomplished, before we reach the Winged Victory we must continue our desire for self-improvement. It is therefore evident that this Emblem, the Scroll of Learning, is especially fitting for our organization. It spurs us forward to leave no stone unturned which can contribute to our advancement.

N. F. B. P. W. C. represent the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club; and the date of 1919, the year our federation was cradled in St. Louis, Mo. All of these we bind together in an endless circle of shining gold. And we wear our Emblem because it is:

A Tangible Token—Expressing a determination to maintain high standards in business and professional life.

A Symbol of Unity of Ideals—Binding together 56,000 women for mutual helpfulness.

A Mark of Distinction—A recognized insignia that bespeaks integrity of purpose and association with distinguished leaders in both the business and professional world.

An Evidence of Affiliation—With the most important organization of business and professional women in the world, with 1,103 local clubs, 46 state federations and members in Hawaii-Alaska and several foreign countries.

A Badge of Identification—Serving as a valuable asset when traveling and an aid in securing assistance from club members when in need.

A Sign of Recognition—Acting as an instant introduction to all members of our Federation at home and abroad.

A Silent Witness—Securing the privileges of club fellowship in any Federated Club.

"Onward Emblem Wearers, Strengthened by our Shield; On in work and service. The wide world our field. Through our Emblem Ideals, We'll find Victory—These for Truth and Progress Knowledge, Harmony, Onward Emblem Wearers On to Victory. Following cherished Ideals Of B. P. W. C."

"Death and the Sculptor"

(Inspired by Mr. French's Work of Art.)

Is this some dream from which I shall awake? (You came in silence from I know not where) That velvet touch of thine did I mistake?

(Some passed unnoticed over there) Shall I lay down my chisel, my mallet, too, forsake? I am but young—men call my labors fair.

O life is good and I would drain its sweet Would fill with work the hours that fly

Is there no respite, is there no treat? Shall I not serve? Forbid that I should die.

That touch again, it seems but a caress. The spirit yields when death damp chills the brow I may not fling the torch, just one glad ray

To light some seeking soul along the way. —MAY ABNEY MAYES.

Lake Brownwood ITS PLACE IN THE HEART OF TEXAS And The Hearts of Texans.

BY D. W. ROSS

Engineer, Brown County Water Improvement District No. 1
Brown County Water Improvement District No. One was organized for the purpose of providing a water supply for the City of Brownwood, irrigating about 10,000 acres of land which surrounds the city on all sides and ultimately other lands in Pecan Valley; and, incidentally, for the mitigation and ultimately the prevention of floods in Pecan Valley. The construction of the works proposed will make it possible to accomplish all of these purposes.

The District has authorized the issuance of $2,500,000 of five and one-half percent bonds, payable over a period of 32 years. More than half of this issue has been sold and the remainder will be purchased mean annual run-off—1898 to 1928—is estimated by the Board of Water Engineers at 141,000 acre feet. In order that conclusions based on available water supply might be safe, this was reduced to 124,000 acre feet. However, in considering the possible extent and effect of floods, the run off during each month of the 31 year period under consideration has not been treated as a single food, but on the basis of a mean annual run-off of 164,000 acre feet, which is nearly one-third greater than the basis for the estimate of supply.

Brownwood is situated almost at the geographical center of Texas and while, from the standpoint of temperature and length of growing season, this locality enjoys all of the advantages that nature has so lavishly bestowed upon this State, agriculture will always be hand-during the present year. The amount to be realized from the sale of these bonds will cover the cost of the works proposed.

The plans provide for the construction of a dam of the hydraulic fill type which will create a reservoir with a capacity of 100,000 acre feet, also a system of canals, pipe lines and pumping plants for conducting water to the City of Brownwood and distributing it to the lands for irrigation. These works will be as permanent as such works can be made and will have ample capacity for the purposes intended. The dam will be carried to a height well above flood level, while the spillway will safely discharge any surplus flood waters that may rise above its level. Two 12 foot diameter conduits with self-closing gates will be placed in the base of the dam for the purpose of regulating the level of the water surface of the reservoir and maintaining a margin of capacity between such regulated surface and spillway level so that all ordinary flood peaks can readily be caught and controlled. Only water from floods that occur but once in 30 to 50 years, will ever pass through this spillway.

The run-off of Pecan Bayou watershed when controlled by the works proposed, will be adequate for all of the purposes intended. The is capped by uncertain rainfall and the periodical visitation of droughts; being subject to the usual hazards incidental to so-called dry farming methods. However, this has always been a center of successful live stock activities from the days of the open range with its spectacular round-ups of Texas longhorns to the present day herds of high grade "white faces" and registered Jerseys; and there is no reason why the favorable conditions which have contributed so much to the success of this range industry to date should not be taken fuller advantage of in the development of dairying, the most dependable as well as profitable branch of animal husbandry.

Climatically, the conditions are ideal in the Pecan Valley for successful animal husbandry, and the perfect health of live stock of all kinds that live out of doors every day of the year without shelter of any description, suggests the possibilities awaiting a more intensive development of this industry in all its branches. For example: under irrigation the lands of the Pecan Valley could be made to produce three times as much forage per acre as can be grown on the run of farm land in the best dairy sections of Wisconsin where much of the long winter feeding is to maintain warmth. With an animal husbandry

Really Lives

MISS FRANCES MERRITT

Frances Merritt, who is instructing the young idea how to shoot in art and penmanship at Coggin Ward School and is the principal's idea of a good teacher—to say nothing of a few others, is a re-convert to this club, having had an idea (see how Shakespearean this article is—using one word with so many different meanings) for a while that she would like to do something else on Tuesday evenings. It is to be hoped she is as glad to come back as the "sisters" are glad to have her. And speaking of sisters reminds us of the fact that she had her early training in a convent, good Methodist though she is. After that the San Angelo High School gave her a four year's lift on the road to fame and fortune, and since then Howard Payne has done its best to further the good cause when she will stay at home and let it. But she has been too busy and happy and useful as Music Councilor at Camp Kiva on Medina Lake for four summers to really give Howard Payne a fair chance. But it is fully believed that during the coming summer that college is going to prove that it is a college. She is also the chief customer at the Carnegie Library.

based on dairying, poultry raising and the breeding of registered stock of all kinds, which could be carried on intensively under irrigation, Pecan Valley could easily win first place in the live stock and dairy industry of Texas, in fact of the South.

Irrigation has not been practicable heretofore in Pecan Valley because, without proper regulation of the natural run-off of its watershed by means of storage, Pecan Bayou does not afford a dependable flow of water for such purpose. Practical demonstration of the value of irrigation on the land of this District will encourage the irrigation of other lands in the valley, especially when there is a well regulated supply of water for such purpose. Fuller development of the agricultural resources of Pecan Valley by means of irrigation would establish at least one bright spot on the agricultural map of West Texas and insure for all time the permanent growth and prosperity of the City of Brownwood.

Texas has an area of 266,000 sq. miles, the largest political subdivision of the United States. Most of the State—more than 185,000 sq. miles—is situated west of the 30 inch rainfall line and is subject to periodical drought which makes agriculture extremely hazardous. The stream systems of this vast area (which is somewhat larger than New York, Pennsylvania, all of the New England States with New Jersey and Maryland thrown in for good measure) rise in a semi-arid or desert region where the mean annual rainfall is but 5 to 20 inches. The average annual evaporation over this entire area is over 60 inches or more than 3 times the average yearly rainfall. Practically all of the streams are dry from time to time; there are but few springs, and not a single natural lake worthy of the name. But, notwithstanding these handicaps, practically all of the land has passed from public into private ownerships and is used either for the growing of crops or for grazing purposes. The discovery of oil at a great many points throughout this region has stimulated growth of population, especially urban, beyond the requirements of agriculture and its kindred industries. This growth has now reached a point where it is well understood, in the case of many towns, that further growth, to say nothing of prosperity—in many cases existence itself—depends upon the development of an adequate water supply for urban uses and, where-fore practical, for the irrigation of adjacent lands.

However, the feasibility of such water development depends upon the existence of several natural elements, as a watershed that will yield an adequate run-off; a place to store such run-off; a body of desirable land upon which such stored water may be used, and the possibility of conducting the same works at reasonable cost. When such elements can thus be utilized the future growth and prosperity of the centers of population and industry that inevitably will be established at all such places are assured.

Then there is a by-product in some cases of almost incalculable value in connection with such development. This is the recreational possibilities of the reservoirs that will be built for these purposes. These reservoirs will vary in area from a few hundred to several thousand acres each, and their natural surroundings will vary in attractiveness from bald treeless plains to the natural beauty of well timbered park-like settings. At best, only a few of such bodies of water will be thus artificially created for the reason that the amount of water that can be stored, even on all of the great watersheds of West Texas, is not great; also, but few sites exist that are suitable for development on any considerable scale.

Lake Brownwood will have a setting of rare beauty and will also be worth-while size. Its area at spillway level is 7,500 acres; and, as indicated by the accompanying map, the Lake will occupy about an equal area in each of the valleys of Jim Ned Creek and Pecan Bayou, extending up both a distance of about nine miles from the dam with many branches and indentations. A main county highway has been projected to cross Jim Ned Creek at a narrow point in its valley a short distance below Thrifty. This highway with several short branches will provide access to the many miles of the interior shore line—the general form of the Lake being a crescent with the dam at about its outside middle point—while the exterior shore line of the Lake can be reached from existing roads with short extensions. The greatest depth of water at normal level immediately above the dam will be about 80 feet; the depth over the valley floor at that point being about 50 feet. The water will be well within the channels of Jim Ned Creek and Pecan Bayou in the neighborhood of Thrifty and Byrd's Store, respectively. The shore line at spillway level will have a length of about 82 miles, more than half of it following steep to very precipitous slopes, the adjacent land being from 50 to 100 feet above the water surface. The many high points of land that jut out into the Lake will afford hundreds of beautiful sites for homes and club houses which inevitably will be established, but of course under strict sanitary restrictions.

As stated, the recreational possibilities of this Lake will be but a by-product of the main purpose of its construction; but, while this is true, with proper control over such utilization, these possibilities are bound to be developed because of the hunger that people living under desert or semi-desert conditions have for bodies of water; also because the inherent beauty of this particular site will afford an outlet for expressing the sense of beauty and love of nature which all right minded people possess. While Lake Brownwood may not have the natural beauty of a Tahoe or Coeur d'

Alene with the grandeur of their mountain settings, it will be Brownwood's lake and can easily be made the most beautiful spot in all West Texas. The people living in Brownwood's trade territory will also claim the right to enjoy it and they will be encouraged in this claim by the people of Brownwood, and no restrictions, except those relating to sanitation, should be imposed against the gratification of this natural and most laudible desire. And here is a worth-while job for the women of Brownwood who will no doubt take an active hand in the work of developing the existing and potential beauty of this lake and promoting its fullest use within the limits of such reasonable restrictions as may be imposed.

Lake Brownwood is situated almost exactly in the heart of Texas. Its place in the hearts of Texans and the advantages which Brownwood will enjoy from such use of this resource will depend wholly upon the enterprise shown by the people of Brownwood. The trade territory which, logically, is tributary to Brownwood, embraces an area more than two hundred miles square, equal in size to the State of Ohio; and this beautiful lake will be the most attractive object in all of this region. It is safe to estimate that the value to the City of Brownwood for its recreational possibilities, if fully developed, will be greater than that of any million dollar industry that could be established here.

According to a U. S. Department of Agriculture report, feeding worms on a diet of moss and milk increases their value as fish bait by turning them a delicate pink.

ROAD BUILDING MAJOR ITEM ON C. C. PROGRAM

By H. BURKS
Manager, Brownwood Chamber of Commerce

The first legislation ever passed by our Congress on highways or National roads was passed under the leadership of Thomas Jefferson in 1802 which provided for the building of the first National Highway, but no appropriations were made until 1806, and the construction was not begun until 1819 at Cumberland, Maryland.

This road was to run to Wheeling, W. Va., but this road was not built to Wheeling until after the close of the war of 1812. Columbus, Ohio, on this highway was not reached until 1833, and Indian-apolis not until 1840 but almost a half century had elapsed before this road was completed to the banks of the Mississippi at St. Louis, the final destination of the road.

This National road became a well known artery of traffic from the East to the Great West, and has, every since its construction been maintained and known as "The National Highway."

After this highway was built, Congress devoted more time and money to developing railroads than highways. In fact, highways were almost forgotten until necessity demanded them.

Thomas Jefferson in the early 1800's realized the coming need for the thoroughfare across the mountains into the heart of the new country, and the fathering of this legislation, and he took steps necessary to build this first national highway.

The Western Country settled slowly, and was so poor that for many years the National Highway was almost forgotten until after the war in 1861-65; and the great need for roads during that conflict created in the minds of the public a further desire for highways. This agitation began in the East first because of the more thickly settled country.

The State of New Jersey pioneered by offering a bounty of one-third to the cost of the construction of roads in 1891. In 1893, Mass. passed a law providing for the construction of roads. In 1895, Connecticut passed similar laws, New York, in 1898 passed what is known as the "State Aid Law," and since that time, the states east and west have followed until practically every state in the Union have State Highway laws and Highway Departments, aiding in the building of Highways. In 1893 came the first successful automobile. Since that time, its perfection has rapidly grown, and the automobile has been the great predominant factor in bringing the masses of the country to realize the necessity of highways.

During and since our campaign for good roads in Brown County, I have repeatedly heard it said

Club Mascot

VIRGINIA SKINNER

Mrs. Skinner is known as the Mother of Virginia, of which title she is justly proud. The Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club is also happy to claim Virginia as its adopted daughter. She is always generous in the giving of her talents for the club's entertainment. She is one of the most pleasing readers in Brownwood, a student in oratory and music at Daniel Baker College. In High School she is an honor graduate in the Junior class, and were it not for the tradition of having a boy for class president might have been that instead of vice-president.

Musician

MRS. EDNA SAVAGE SAUNDERS

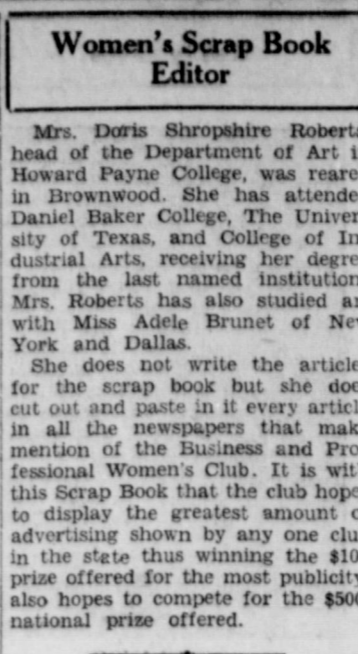

A charter member of the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club of which she is at present secretary, chairman of the Music Committee and a member of the Program Committee, has been a teacher here for eleven years of the Dunning System of Improved Music Study. She is now able to look with pride on many accomplished artists who gained their love of music through her inspiring way of using this method. She is a graduate in piano of Howard Payne College, and later studied with Mrs. Wesley Porter Mason and Harriett Bacon MacDonald of Dallas, Carrie Munger Long of Chicago, and Carrie Louise Dunning of New York.

Flowers

MISS FAYE BAKER

In the Bookkeeper and general assistant at the Brownwood Floral Co., and if you ask Faye how to say anything she always answers "Say it with flowers" and she believes in her motto for wherever she is flowers are always there too.

Women's Scrap Book Editor

Mrs. Doris Shropshire Roberts, head of the Department of Art in Howard Payne College, was reared in Brownwood. She has attended Daniel Baker College, The University of Texas, and College of Industrial Arts, receiving her degree from the last named institution. Mrs. Roberts has also studied art with Miss Adele Brunet of New York and Dallas.

She does not write the articles for the scrap book but she does cut out and paste in it every article in all the newspapers that make mention of the Business and Professional Women's Club. It is with this Scrap Book that the club hopes to display the greatest amount of advertising shown by any one club in the state thus winning the $100 prize offered for the most publicity, also hopes to compete for the $500 national prize offered.

The Dear Old Chair

I long for the old-fashioned high backed chair,
That sat by the firelight's glow;
The warmth of the old-fashioned
furniture so gay,
That soothed out my childish
woes.

When the world to me had all gone
astray,
I would seek out this quiet nest;
Pillow my head on its arms so warm,
And drowsily dream and rest.

The comfort it gave to my childish
heart,
As I sat by the firelight's glow;
The visions I saw in the leaping
flame,
That fell on the hearthstone low.

The touch of a hand, the smile of a face,
The gentle voice with its accents

that the country people did not want roads, and I herewith give you the returns of the bond election in the country from the precincts other than the four voting boxes in Brownwood:

For the Bonds 1,232
Against the Bonds 1,253

Making only 21 votes difference in the rural districts of Brown County. This vote in our own county only proves that the great masses of the people favor good roads and rapid building of roads in Texas is as it should be. I believe that whatever the majority of the people vote for, they should have.

Since the masses of the people want roads, the next great question is, the type and character of roads. In the first place, the traffic of today that the highway is subject to is a very severe test on them; hence, if we meet the demand, we must build a high type road.

But, of course, we can't all ride in Limousins and Rolls Royces, neither can all counties vote bonds sufficient to build the highest type of roads, without too great a tax burden. But I want to say that the reinforced concrete road is, in my judgment, the best road for the present traffic. Lesser types have been built in the East and the States there are now forced to spend millions of dollars in repairing the roads that they have built in order to save them.

I feel that the construction of our highways challenges the best engineering brains of the State and Nation today, for we do not want to construct roads that will be worn out and gone before the bonds are paid. I believe that it is the duty of every engineer to make a very close study of the highway situation, and not make costly mistakes as they have made in the East and elsewhere. In the building of our roads in the West we should build that type of road which will stand the terrific traffic which we know the highways are going to be subjected to in the future.

Likes Our Conventions

MRS. IRENE JACKSON MILLER

Miss Irene Jackson was elected secretary at the state convention which met in Brownwood in May 1924. She was not present at that meeting but has not missed one since even though she is now Mrs. Gaither Miller and only an associate club member. We enjoyed having her visit us during our Fifth District Conference here Feb. 22-23.

The Littlest One

MISS FAYE CHANDLER

Faye Chandler, the littlest one of the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club, does not have her efficiency measured by her size, or she would not, as bookkeeper for the Carlson Bakery Co., have stayed on the job so well, four years and four months already. Her outside interests are varied, for she has devoted much time to music, expression, physical culture and dancing, art, and—the club!

Mother-Daughter Banquet Movement Sponsored by Club

BY RUTH COLE

One of the greatest, and most beautiful contributions of the twentieth century is the Mother-Daughter banquet movement. Throughout the ages, the great have attributed their success to their mothers, but the idea of honoring mothers in this beautiful way was evolved by the glorious youth of modern times.

Last year the Girl Reserves, Girl Scouts, and Camp Fire Girls united and had one of the most impressive Mother-Daughter banquets that could be featured. We are planning the same thing this year, only on a larger scale. This year, all of the girl organizations in Junior High are included. In this way, we are looking forward to a bigger banquet than last year.

How the mothers, as well as the daughters, enjoy these occasions! How their eyes sparkle and radiate with pride as each daughter proudly introduces her mother. They catch a new vision of the new womanhood which combines the beauty of the old womanhood with citizenship and social consciousness.

NEW RESIDENCES OF ATTRACTIVE DESIGN ARE BEING ERECTED

In a recent search for items of general interest a member of the Business & Professional Women's Club has found that the general economic depression in the United States had not prevented the building of new and beautiful homes in Brownwood.

On Elizabeth Drive the work on the E. E. Kirkpatrick home is nearing completion, while the construction of a brick veneer English type for Jay Fisher is well under way.

A. D. Murphy is building a new residence at the end of Fourth St. near Woodland Heights and Carl Blalock will soon move into a beautiful new residence on Third Street.

Harvey Mason is erecting a pretty stone veneer cottage on Avenue D. J. A. Clark has just completed a five room house on Avenue C. Mrs. T. L. Crawford and children have just moved into their new six room bungalow on Brady Avenue. Other building in Brownwood of a permanent nature is going on in Brownwood. Let's look forward, be optimistic as to Brownwood and her future. You will reap your reward in better business and a bigger Brownwood.

BOOKS PRESENTED TO MEXICAN STUDENTS BY BUSINESS WOMEN

BY MRS. J. W. TRAPP

At a recent session of the night school for illiterate Mexicans, twenty books were awarded by the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club to the students who had been regular in attendance during the past month. The books contained reading matter printed in both Spanish and English, and it was interesting to watch the eagerness with which the pupils who could not read at all a month ago, displayed their ability to read simple sentences in two languages.

This school was first established under the auspices of the American Association of University Women, and under the able leadership of Miss Carrie Reeves, president of the local chapter was carried on successfully until taken over by the Board of Trustees of the Brownwood Public Schools. The new club is justly proud of its success in its first civic undertaking and promises to become one of the leading service clubs of the city.

R. C. Sheriff, of London, author of "Journey's End," the play which has been produced in all parts of the world, has given the palm for the best foreign conception of Captain Stanhope to a German actor in Berlin and is enthusiastic over the magnificent acting of a French actor as Raleigh, the second lieutenant, in Paris. In a Dutch production Raleigh is played by a girl, it being customary in Holland for young male characters to be portrayed by girls. Sheriff was surprised at the German conception of his German prisoner and could not see why the character should be

MRS. L. H. GUTHRIE

Efficient jewelry saleswoman with Armstrong's for years, has been a member of the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club for about six of its seven years. She served as president the fifth year, never missing a meeting during her term, an unequalled record. She has been chairman of the Attendance Committee ever since. Without her to get the women to come out E. Duren to influence them to pay, the organization probably would have gone on the rocks long ago. It was during her term that the very important move to the Club Rooms was made, with meals a third less.

Has Made Success of Floral Business

MRS. HELEN M. SCHLURAFF
Mrs. Helen M. Schluraff of Erie, Penn., Corresponding Secretary of National Federation, was left a widow twelve years ago with herself and two small children to support. The floral business left to her was not very flourishing but she took hold of it with a determination to make a success of it and she has done it. Today her business includes many large greenhouses and nurseries and is still growing.

Club Beauty

MRS. TEX WORSHAM

The new members of the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club this year have had many a good one among them. There is Mrs. Tex Worsham, for instance, who the very first thing was asked to work on the committee for the joint meeting of the service clubs; whereas it had been the custom not to ask such a thing until the new one was well "broke." But she is a teacher of penmanship at the J. R. Looney School, one who really teaches it, and a person who can do that may surely reasonably be expected to do anything. She is a Baylor University woman, a living example that brains and good looks can go together, or that gentlemen prefer blondes, or that gentlemen do not always marry brunettes.

Texas Own

DAISY H. LEAKE

The Second Vice President of the National Federation is none other than our own Daisy Leake who has visited Brownwood on different occasions—being the principal speaker at our Employers' Banquet last spring. Miss Leake was a successful teacher before entering the field of life insurance. She has served two terms as president of the Texas Federation. Miss Leake will be on the "Geneva Special" which sails Aug. 1—this being her second trip abroad.

Ready-to-Wear

MISS ELLA McNERNEY
Miss Ella McNERNEY who is in charge of the women's ready-to-wear department at Garner-Alvis Company, is a member of the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club. She is a Pennsylvanian, and was educated at the Young Ladies Academy and the Varsity Art School, both of Waterford, Pa. Miss McNERNEY is one of the valuable and enthusiastic members of the local organization.

VETERAN MINISTER ONCE SERVED AS PRINTER BEFORE CIVIL WAR

BY CLAIKE COURSEY

Rev. M. N. Powers, 1833 Third Street, who will soon be ninety-two years old, saw fifty-two years of service as a Methodist minister before he retired eighteen years ago. He has served as pastor of churches in Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Oklahoma and other states. Dr. Powers was born in Lawrenceville, Illinois, Nov. 30, 1838, and will be ninety-two years old on his next birthday.

His elementary education was gained in private schools and with private tutelage as there were no public schools in those days. After he had gained his preparatory education he entered the Theological Seminary in Evanston, Illinois, and was graduated in three years with a Bachelor of Divinity degree.

Dr. Powers worked in several different printing offices and on different newspapers while he was studying for the ministry. He says that he has worked on weekly, semi-weekly and daily newspapers in several different states, but did not do much printing work after he had received his degree at the seminary. His printing experience was confined to the time when he was yet preparing for the ministry. He worked at the type cases and at general office work when he was still a young boy. He was also at one time manager of a printing office. Dr. Powers says that he was standing on a type box at the cases when the report of Commodore Matthew Perry's entrance into Japan in 1854 was received. Dr. Powers put this report in type. He was at that time working on the "Indiana Gazette." Later he worked on the Missouri Democrat in Kansas City, Missouri. His job on the paper was to set up the telegraph news which came in to the office at night. He said that the dispatches were not typewritten in those days and that they were often very hard to read as they were hand written. Dr. Powers has also had experience in the advertising departments of newspapers. He recalls all the old time methods of the newspaper offices and says that it is very interesting to compare them with modern shops of today.

After he received his Bachelor of Divinity degree he was admitted to the Southern Illinois Conference where he did most of his work in the ministry; alternating at times between his home conference and conferences in Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and other states. He was at one time pastor of the Methodist Church in Salina, Kansas, having been sent there to build a new church for the people. He accomplished his mission by helping to build the first brick church in Salina, and to see that it was paid for before he returned to Illinois. He then spent six years as presiding elder of the Olney district which took in his old home town of Lawrenceville.

His next mission out of his home district was when he was sent to Little Rock, Arkansas, to build a new church for the congregation. The Methodist Church in Little Rock at that time was in a business block of the city and the people wanted a church and parsonage in the residential district. Dr. Powers conducted a great revival while there and the church membership was doubled in two years and the people had a new church and parsonage in the residential district.

He then returned to his home conference and filled several stations before he was transferred to Oklahoma, then Indian Territory. In 1904, he was superintendent of a mission while in the Territory, and was one of the leaders in bringing the Methodist Church to Oklahoma. He was in the Oklahoma conference when he retired from active service in the ministry in 1912, after fifty-two years of very active service. In later years Dr. Powers also had the degree of Doctor of Divinity conferred upon him.

During the Civil War Dr. Powers was appointed a chaplain in the United States Army, but was never permitted to fill the position as his services were needed elsewhere in the Union Army. In working in the confidential service of the Northern troops down in the border states, it was his duty to help keep down disorders in the army and to keep down riots among the people who opposed the Northern cause. On Sundays Dr. Powers preached in two churches. He said that the days of the Civil War were some of the most exciting of his life. All the differences between the North and South have long since disappeared and there is no use in having the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church South, he thinks. These two bodies should be joined together, and Dr. Powers hopes to live to see the day when they will be one, he said.

After he retired from active service in 1912, Dr. Powers was still active in preaching for some time in different states. Since that time he has made his home most of the time with his only child, Mrs. W. G. Sawyer of this city.

Careful Student
Dr. Powers has been a student all of his life and is still active in studying various subjects in which he is interested. Among his studies in recent years are astronomy and geology. Geography of the world has also been one of his studies. He has also studied the geography of all the European countries after the World War, and in fact knows the geography of the world. Dr. Powers says that he has kept up with Einstein's theory on relativity and is waiting until this great thinker releases more of his theory. Dr. Powers in all his years as a minister never wrote a sermon, he said. He always made notes of his talks but never took the notes into the pulpit. Dr. Powers' parents were of the colonial day and type. His grandfathers were both Virginians and his grandmothers were natives of New Jersey.

At only one time during his fifty-two years as an active preacher did his health prevent him from work. During this period he was in a semi-religious health resort in Dansville, New York, and became chaplain of the institute while there. His health was completely restored and Dr. Powers says that he has never been sick since. He is still very healthy for his age and is active in many ways. He takes walks almost every day for exercise and also works with the flowers and shrubs about his home. His memory is still very good and he easily recalls many instances of important children of today study in school and consider almost ancient history.

His life has been one of service and the signal honors which have been bestowed upon him from time to time were well deserved.

Ireland Has Air Rules But Planes Are Scarce

DUBLIN (AP)—The governor general of the Irish Free State has issued regulations for air navigation in conformity with the International Convention held in Paris. No aircraft can be registered in the Free State unless wholly owned by a citizen or by a company whose principal place of business is in the state. All aircraft must be certified as airworthy, and its personnel must have certificates of competency.

No aircraft will be allowed to fly over Clonrara, the Shannon electricity center, at a height less than 6,000 feet. Trick flying is prohibited except on special occasions duly licensed. The Free State is far behind other countries in development of aviation. Except for the army planes there are very few machines.

The Sixth Digit

BY MARY LOU HEATHERLY
Member of the Business and Professional Women's Club

Theodore Miller and his wife Molly lived on a small, rocky farm. They worked hard from dawn until dark, wresting a meager living, eating frugal meals, saving a penny here, a dime there, against a rainy day.

They had no children, so they prayed for a son. "To comfort us when we are old," they said. From the moment the doctor announced twins, people marveled at the likeness of Luke and Duke Miller. Each tiny feature on the face of one had its replica on the face of the other. As alike as the proverbial peas in the pod except on the left hand of Duke; and here mother nature had flouted her powers in the face of incredulity and added an extra digit as amazingly mature as the other five.

At the age of five a marked difference began to show in the characters of these two boys. Luke was a braggart, dominating the other boy with a magnificent disregard for personal feelings. To obtain a toy with which Duke was playing, he would point scornfully at Duke's left hand. "Freak! Freak!" he would shout thru sneering lips. With a sensitiveness born of the constant reminding of his inferiority, Duke became reticent and morose. At the age of 12 he held himself aloof, an onlooker always on the outer edge of life. On account of his extra finger, Duke Miller grew into manhood handicapped by his self-consciousness. Older people said, "Duke is a fine boy; steady going—not rowdy like his brother—he may never set the world on fire but he's a good lad."

Real Estate, Insurance, Loans

MRS. C. J. HEATHERLY

This energetic young business woman came into our ranks some months ago and she is always ready and willing to undertake any task which may be assigned her. Mrs. Heatherly is connected with Mrs. Holloway in real estate, insurance and loan business and they have their office in the new Citizens Bank Building.

The fates offered. A dismal atmosphere of defeat pervaded the entire farm. Even the fence that once lifted its head in pride of the various small flowers it surrounded, now sagged in forlorn desolation. The prayer that Theodore sent up for his son that night was long and supplicatory. "Heap thy wrath upon him," he adjured his God, "lest he forget his sin." The neighbors shunned Luke. They flung him a hurried, furtive look as they passed him or seemed not to see him at all. "He'll come to no good end," they muttered among themselves. "The black sheep has returned," others said, "what he'll be up to next, only the good Lord knows. Tch! Tch!" Nights when the chores were done Molly sat beside the little roundtopped table, where the bright little lamp, fighting against the gloom of some unseen presence, sent its rays in an impudent disregard of grim solitude. And the clicking of Molly's knitting needles was mingled with the heavier clink of metal as Theodore counted the round discs of gold from the little iron box.

"A thousand," he would say when the last glittering coin had been counted. "The savings of 30 years of drudgery—not much but enough for you and me, mama, when we can no longer work."

Then Theodore would take the well-thumbed Bible, and with sonorous voice read ponderous chapters, until Luke, with gritted teeth would rush out of the house.

"Oh God!" he would cry, "Oh God!" A neighbor saw it happen. Coming home late one night he saw a man suddenly round the corner of the Miller house. His movements were furtive—stealthy. The moon which for a few moments had shone brightly, was covered suddenly by a black cloud.

The neighbor stopped. "What doings is this," he said aloud. "Luke Miller up to more devilment, likely."

Then he saw a match flare out in the darkness illuminating the small room for a moment; and in that moment he saw the face of the intruder plainly. The man in the road waited a moment while the match seemed to go out. Then an unexpected blaze seemed suddenly to leap out and ignite the thin piece of scrim curtain that hung at the window. In another moment the whole room was a blazing inferno. He heard a hoarse shout—the choking scream of a woman. With swift running strides the man went forward, but even as he approached he realized the futility of his puny efforts. He rushed to the door. It was locked with a heavy old fashioned chain. He looked about quickly but could find nothing with which to batter it in. He rushed back to the window thru which the intruder had gained admission but already the flames were licking their hungry tongues thru the panes.

Neighbors gathered quickly. Soon a small wondering crowd was looking with agony and helplessness on the insatiable flames. And Theodore Miller and Molly Miller were somewhere within.

Then as if the agonized wringing hands brought it down, the black ominous clouds opened and the rain began to fall. First in great drops that splattered on the hard beaten ground. Then in driving sheets. And out of the rain and darkness came Luke Miller.

"God!" he said in a stricken voice. "How have I let this happen?" He was sodden with rain and a look of utter despair was on his face.

Two men moved forward—then another joined them—then another. They took him roughly by the arms and pulled him along. A rope—a tree—suddenly Luke Miller faced the men, horror showing in his eyes.

"You think I did that?" he cried in a hoarse incredulous voice. "It will be your last crime," they told him. Five minutes later his body hung inertly, swayed by a gentle cooling breeze.

The next day while neighbors cleared away the debris a man stooped suddenly and with a smothered oath he lifted the thing he had found. It was an iron coin box, and gripped tightly around it was a charred left hand with six fingers. He shook the box. Pierces of gold tinkled out and dropped dully among the ashes.

Tunnel Anniversaries Held
Anniversaries of Saint Gotthard and the Simplon, two of the most famous tunnels in the world, were held recently in Switzerland. Saint Gotthard was completed just 100 years ago, and the final stage of piercing the rock for the Simplon was reached 25 years ago. Fitting ceremonies were held by railroad officials and others. It was recalled that when Saint Gotthard was constructed it was the longest tunnel in the world, and until the feat was accomplished many people refused to believe that the engineers would be able to drive the bore through from two ends so that the portions would meet in the middle. Saint Gotthard is nine miles long and the Simplon is 12 1-4 miles in length.

Urge Aviation Co-operation
Leaders in European aviation circles are urging further international co-operation in aviation projects, according to a report from Paris. They have pointed out that the route of the Imperial Airways from England to Egypt and India is over Germany and the Balkans instead of following the shorter course over Italy. Discontinuance of the collaboration between aviation companies in France and the Netherlands in providing communication between France and Indo-China, was also mentioned. In January an agreement was signed between France and Italy which provides that the Italian air mail destined for points in the East covered by a French line from Marseilles to Athens, Beirut and Bagdad will be given to the French planes in their stops in Italian territory.

WELL SUPPLIED
From the 1929 automobile registration figures of Canada it is found that that country is the second largest motor transporting land in the world. The ratio there is one car for every nine persons.

A Past President In the history of nearly every progressive town, there comes a time when the assistance of its women seems necessary to further its development...

The date 1902, engraved on the walk at Carnegie Library is a silent testimonial of one of their many activities.

Within a short time, other clubs were organized, and co-operation took the form of a Federation.

Of the many undertakings which were successful, two are outstanding and deserve mention. First, the loyal support of Carnegie Library, which had been secured for Brownwood by Mr. Will H. Hayes, then an honored citizen of our town, now living in Austin.

In 1928 a new organization was affected, with new constitution and by-laws, comprising ten clubs with high ideals and great energy.

Not only are club women concerned with "keeping the home fires burning" and directing the religious training of the youth and instructing the mind, these things being considered their limit in days gone by, club women are now interested in good roads, abundant water, sanitation, conservation of forests and flowers, observance of law, and the many governmental problems that confront the authorities of the country.

The Federated Clubs are at home at the Carnegie Library (up stairs) which has ever held first place in affection, and which continues to be first in their efforts to benefit and develop.

DR. MOLLIE W. ARMSTRONG

Dr. Mollie Armstrong, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club, is a prominent part of the Armstrong Jewelry Company of this city.

Whenever a civic undertaking requires the energy of a loyal, energetic, and enthusiastic citizen, Mrs. Armstrong is called upon and presto! with her oratory and indefinable force of personality plans become accomplishments.

Recently Mrs. Armstrong was sent as a representative from Brownwood to endeavor to secure a government hospital here.

Whoever a civic undertaking requires the energy of a loyal, energetic, and enthusiastic citizen, Mrs. Armstrong is called upon and presto! with her oratory and indefinable force of personality plans become accomplishments.

My Old Man

BY MRS. J. W. TRAPP

WHO tracks to mud on my clean floor,

And never thinks to shut the door? Who can't feel well enough to go to church at night, or picture show, But can fish and wade without a slip

And walk for miles on a hunting trip!

Who smokes the strongest pipe, Good land!

Why don't you know? It's my old man!

WHO spends so many sunny hours in pruning trees and planting flowers!

Who sometimes scolds and teases too,

And laughs when I am feeling blue; And says he'll never mind the weather,

So long as we can be together. That life, after all is the good Lord's plan!

Why nobody else, but my old man!

WHO is it, I can't get along without,

Who smoothes rough places for me, no doubt,

Who is it on whom I can always depend

To speak the truth of foe or friend, Who helps to drive dull cares away, And gives me good advice each day,

Who tries to do the best he can, Of course you know! It's my old man!

OH, happy brides of this spring-time,

For you I write this little rhyme; I'll make a wish today for you,

The best of all if it should come true;

When you have lived for twenty years,

With one who's shared your hopes and fears,

May you say then, as today I can, "My best friend and pal, is my old man."

Dr. Ivy Williams, the first woman attorney in England, having been called to the Bar in 1922, has just been appointed technical adviser to the conference on the codification of international law at The Hague.

COGGIN FUND HELPS SCORES OF YOUNG WOMEN

BY RUTH GEIRKE

For the Business and Professional Women's Club

In an endeavor to make a benevolent gift to the people of Brown county, the late Mrs. Mattie R. Coggin, in accordance with the sincere desire of her deceased husband, Samuel R. Coggin, set aside the greater part of her estate as the "Coggin Endowment Fund," to be used for the promotion of domestic science in Daniel Baker College.

The awarding of the scholarships is in the hands of college officials. It is for them to decide which girls are most worthy of this assistance. The greater number of girls who apply for this gift are from rural communities, since it is necessary for them to pay room and board, their expenses are very heavy.

The first scholarships were awarded in 1921. On the average, more than twenty scholarships have been awarded each year. If a girl fails to improve their studies, she necessarily implies that she has the right to claim the use of it for the second year, as they are renewed each school year.

During the nine years that Daniel Baker has had the privilege of offering this assistance to the people of the county, much good has been done. Twenty girls each year carry to their homes and communities the latest methods in domestic arts.

Civic Clubs

If asked to define what are civic or luncheon clubs no better reply could be made than that they are business men and women through co-operation are trying to develop true friendship, better business methods, higher ideals of personal conduct and to promote education and strengthen the institutions of government.

Dr. Jacobs of Oxford University once wrote a book entitled "Constructive Citizenship" in which he says: "A constructive citizen is marked by the resolve to make the best of things as they are, by hopefulness, by self-confidence, by the charming and of 'highway' intelligence. Brown County claims her. The blanket doing its best by her, then sending her to John Tarleton and the University of Texas to 'finish' her. She began her working career as a successful teacher, but let the lure of the newspaper take her from a profession that needs such as she.

MISS FLORA SMITH

Perhaps it is especially fitting that the Publicity Committee of the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club has a representative of each newspaper of the city in its personnel. From the Brownwood News and Sunday Record is Flora Smith, capable, charming and of "highway" intelligence. Brown County claims her. National Home for Business and Professional Women To Be Built

BY ADDIE PERRY

At the National Convention last July at Macinac, Michigan, a movement was begun for the establishment of National Headquarters in Washington, D. C. The committee did not expect that any definite financial plans for purchasing and establishing a permanent home could be presented before the 1931 convention.

The spark that kindled the flame of enthusiasm in the convention was the announcement of the gift of $500 from a pioneer of the Federation, Dr. Anna Ranes of Chicago. Dr. Ranes' gift was wholly unexpected and it started an avalanche of donations and pledges. Practical-ly every state in the union and many local clubs were represented in the list of contributors.

The building fund is named for Miss Lena Madess Phillips, past president of the National Federation.

Fashions

MRS. J. W. JENNINGS

Mrs. J. W. Jennings, Brownwood's designer and creator of beautiful costumes for women, was born in Lynchburg, Virginia. She was reared in Mexico, Texas. For many years she has been a most successful manager of the Shop of Youth, an exclusive ladies' establishment.

Mrs. Jennings is an ex-student of Texas University. She has made an extensive study of costume designing under Clement Brown of New York City, and John Bonidine of Paris, France. The Shop of Youth she has rendered unique by having as its main feature the designing and manufacturing of clothes to suit the particular needs of the individual.

However, Mrs. Jennings does not devote all of her time to business, but she finds time in her busy schedule to take active part in the Business and Professional Women's Club in which organization she is chairman of the membership committee.

STUDENT LOAN FUND GROWS IN HOWARD PAYNE

Written for Business and Professional Women's Club by a Howard Payne Student

The six loan funds of Howard Payne College have been a great benefit to many boys and girls by giving them the advantages of a college education. It is the history of all schools of higher learning that many worthy boys and girls are compelled to leave school for lack of money. Because of this condition loan funds are being created and maintained for the purpose of aiding such students.

The first two funds of the kind to be started in Howard Payne College have had stories in connection with their beginning. In September 1918 Miss Eloise Anderson of Goldsmith, Texas, entered Howard Payne. Her father, Judge E. B. Anderson, paid her tuition and board for the first term in advance. Early in the fall of that year Miss Eloise died, and the money that was refunded to the college for the purpose of creating a loan fund, with which aid was to be given to worthy girls.

The next fund started was that known as the "Harry Pierce Memorial Loan Fund." Harry was the second student to die during the fall of 1918, his death coming about two weeks after that of Miss Anderson. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pierce of Walnut Springs, Texas, did as Judge and Mrs. Anderson had done. They too returned the money refunded by the college, and requested that it be used in a similar way for the aid of boys. A few of Harry's friends have increased this sum to two hundred dollars. This fund has helped ten boys who would have been forced to leave school but for the assistance received.

Any student applying for a loan from either of these funds must be recommended by at least two responsible persons. No interest will be charged while the person, receiving the loan, is a student in Howard Payne College, but after he has left college, six per cent interest will be due one year after the one receiving help leaves college. The money is to be lent in sums of one hundred and fifty dollars or less.

Some ten years ago, Mr. O. D. Henley started a fund to which he asked a few of his friends to contribute, in memory of Dr. J. D. Robnett. This fund contains at the present time $210.86, which is to be lent to either the boys or girls on the same plan as the Eloise Anderson Memorial Fund. About the same time Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Walker started a fund primarily to help boys, established on the same plan. The last report on this fund was $331.95.

Mrs. J. N. Weatherly of this city established the last fund in January of this year. She gave $150 to be lent to boys in any amount needed, following the same condition used in other loans.

The Howard Payne Auxiliary has established the F. R. Smith Scholarship Society. This fund was named in memory of F. R. Smith, father of Mrs. W. A. Bell. Mr. Smith was a trustee of the college a number of years. The money of this fund is to be lent first to a boy, but if no girls call for it, a girl may use it. The money is to be lent in sums of fifty-five dollars a term on the same terms and conditions as the Eloise Anderson Memorial Fund. The fund thus becomes self-perpetuating and in a course of a few years should read such proportion as to be of material benefit to many worthy students.

In addition to the Howard Payne loan funds, there are two other sources of financial help for Howard Payne students. The Business and Professional Women's Club of Brownwood has a fund of two thousand dollars, available to any girl who will use it to attend a Brownwood school. The two colleges, the public school, and Mc's Business College have equal claims on this money to be used by their respective students. This money is lent in any amount, with eight per cent interest from date for the length of time required for the girl to obtain her certificate to teach or to work. Forty different girls have used money from this fund and many of these girls have received help two or three different times.

The other outside help available to Howard Payne students is from the local Rotary Club. The club has two loan funds. One was established in 1924 by contributions from the members of the club. The two thousand dollars in this one is to be lent to any worthy young man.

Economics

MISS LOIS STAMPER

Lois Stamper, head of the Home Economics Department of Brownwood High School, came to our city from Mineral Wells. She is a charter member of the Association of University Women, taking an active part in that club. She has attended the University of Texas, the College of Industrial Arts and South West Teachers College, receiving her Bachelor of Science degree from the latter mentioned institution.

After this plan was fashioned our District Conference and last year Miss Daisy Leake was president of the State Federation of B. & P. Women's Clubs she inaugurated the plan of having district conferences. The state was divided into five districts, Brownwood being in District No. 5, with Abilene, Colerain, San Angelo, Stamford and Sweetwater.

Our first conference was held in San Angelo with Miss Michela Rogers acting as chairman. Then Miss Estelle Duren was appointed chairman for the coming year. The State Executive Board ruled last October that at each district conference the next chairman and place of meeting would be selected by ballot—each club having one vote, the chairman of each district serving through the time of the following state conference.

District No. 5 Conference was invited to Brownwood, and met here February 22 and 23, and up to that date had the unique distinction of being the first District Conference of the fiscal year to have representation from all clubs. All clubs give a resume of their activities of the past year and have a general exchange of ideas.

Miss Maury Jane Higgins, state president, was guest of honor, and other distinguished guests were: Mrs. R. L. Gordon, state chairman of Emblem Committee; Miss Marguerite Warren, state chairman of Program Committee; Mrs. Inez Jackson Miller, former state Recording Secretary.

At this conference Sweetwater was selected as the next meeting place and Miss Edna Cordell, the new chairman.

These conferences are proving to be a good medium for exchange of ideas, also a fine way to carry on the aims of the Federation.

Physical Education Instructor

MISS ANNE EPPS

Miss Anne Epps, Physical Education Instructor of Brownwood Junior High School, is a native of this city. However, during her childhood she moved to Stamford in search of a better place of residence but realizing that a good town she had left, she returned and attended Brownwood High School and Daniel Baker College. She received her A. B. Degree from Daniel Baker.

During the summer preceding her graduation she was a counselor at Camp Kiwa, a camp for girls on Lake Medina, near San Antonio. Her next summer was spent in the same manner at Camp Mystic, Dr. Stewart's Camp for Girls, near Kerrville.

After graduation from college, Miss Epps taught for two years in Cross Plains High School. Before filling a position at McMurry College at Abilene, she attended a summer session at Colorado University. From the physical education instructorship at McMurry she came to the Brownwood schools to teach. This her first year in the Brownwood system, has been indeed a very successful one as any spectator would opine who saw her girls gym classes in Junior High performing exercises and acrobatic stunts in clock-time, and with marvelous precision.

Miss Epps is an active member of the Schubert Choral Club and the Business and Professional Women's Club.

HOME MAKING AS VOCATION IS IMPORTANT

By LOIS A. STAMPER

Homemaking is a vocation which practically all women follow at some time in their lives. Over 20,000,000 women are engaged in this vocation which makes it the largest single occupational group in the U. S. Homemaking education is the most important type of vocational education. Effective vocational homemaking courses have been developed and are being maintained in the public schools. It is a type of training in which emphasis is placed on the scientific management of the home. Whether a girl intends to become a homemaker, engage in business, or in a profession she should include in her educational program the home economics courses which are offered in the high schools.

Homemaking involves three main aspects: (1) the control of the physical environment in the home; (2) the development of the social environment; (3) provision for the education of the individual members of the family. It is with these aspects of life in the home that home economics education concerns itself. Only a small percentage of the home makers of today have had adequate training for the complex and varied responsibilities of managing a modern home. Mere courses in food and clothing are no longer sufficient to meet the needs of the present time. Homemaking courses must be so organized as to provide training in all the important aspects of the vocation. Child care and training, sanitation, health of the family, nutrition, child feeding, home management, budgeting, home planning and furnishing and an appreciation of the social and civil responsibilities of the home are included in the program. Home economics education is in demand in but few homes.

Parallel with the recent changing social and industrial conditions in our nation there has come a change in the content of home making courses. Emphasis upon the constructive training is yielding to the selection of clothing. With the flooding of our modern markets with a multiplicity of textiles both for personal and household use there is a need for home making courses to give training in the selection and judging of fabrics. Simplified food courses with progress in the field based on income and health, has taken the place of elaborate cookery processes and service. Household furnishings are studied in terms of physical cost to the home maker as well as artistic values and money outlay. Time saving practices and labor saving devices are taught in the selection of clothing. Parent-Teachers Association

BY MRS. A. E. WILSON, President P. T. A. Council.
The first Parent-Teachers Association was organized in Brownwood in 1911 at Coggin School. Very soon after the permanent organization was affiliated with the State Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers Association. Among the programs carried out by this organization for the Coggin School was lectures on health, a library for the school was established and play ground equipment purchased, consisting of swings, bars, etc.; also a drinking fountain was erected. This original P. T. A. organization assisted in organizing the P. T. A. groups in the other schools of the city. During this pioneer work a District meeting was held in Brownwood and a District organization perfected, this being known as the seventh district of Texas.

During the World War the P. T. A. laid aside their own work and joined forces with the Red Cross and war workers in doing their bit in that time of stress and war work as their chief interest. After the Armistice, again the women interested in the P. T. A. reorganized their work and at this time High School became active in P. T. A. Work on the City Parks was one of the constructive pieces of work, working with the Chamber of Commerce and the City Council, play grounds in the Park were improved, equipment purchased and flowers planted. We also were interested and assisted in the work of the County Home Demonstration Agent and it was the pioneer work of the P. T. A. that finally led to the establishment of this great work for Brown county and we are always proud of Miss Malone and her work for the girls and women of Brown county.

In 1923 the local groups of P. T. A. organized the City Council and appointed a Park Committee and have been intensely interested in City improvement.

In 1928 the Seventh District held their annual meeting in this City. It was a great inspiration to the local organizations and many speakers of prominence in the State work were present. It was to us a great meeting and has been of lasting benefit to our local Clubs.

This year's convention was held recently in Breckenridge and a number of delegates from Brownwood enjoyed this meeting, bringing home new ideas and inspiration to carry on this great work, and helping to build for the future generations and assisting with the work each day in the year in the school system by supplying the needs of the schools that otherwise could not be given, helping the teachers every way possible, and keeping in close touch with the ideals of the school so that they may help their children become better students and keep harmony among students and teachers by a better mutual understanding. The evening of May 6th brings the work of this year to a close, at which time the reports of the local groups will be given, the official report of the delegates to the District convention, a report of the Health Day program recently given, and many things of general interest. The City Council has seven association members, representing the schools of the City. Much interesting work has been accomplished by the P. T. A. in Brownwood. Many things are now being planned for the coming year, among them a study course for summer work for the grown ups, the summing up of the organization and what it stands for could be this; for service, not self; better citizenship, better homes, better communities, gained through a better understanding of the problems of the student and the teacher and closer co-operation to the end that the highest ideals of American citizenship shall be attained.

LARGE AMOUNT OF WORK REVEALED IN REPORTS MISSIONARY WORKERS

AUSTIN, Tex., May 7.—(AP)—Twenty-five workers of the Texas Christian Missionary Society delivered 2,666 sermons and addresses, baptized 403 persons, obtained 571 other additions to churches, organized thirteen new churches and traveled 231,766 miles during the fiscal year 1929-1930. J. B. Holmes, general secretary, reported today to the annual convention of the Christian Church here.

The reports showed expenses were $55,898, with an income of $46,224, leaving a deficit of $9,574. Assets were listed at $319,696 on April 5th. Actual and potential endowments were reported as $159,395.

Fourteen Christian Churches in Texas were classed as "living link" churches, or those giving $500 or more to Texas missions. Those were: First Church, Beaumont; Bonham; Central Church, Austin; Magnolia Avenue Church, Fort Worth; First Church, San Angelo; Palestine; First, Wichita Falls; Paris; First, Houston; Central, Dallas; East, Dallas; Central, San Antonio; First, Fort Worth, and First, Amarillo.

A survey of resident membership showed 76,214 members served by 290 pastors.

In a church at the front, her brother, aged eight, is being christened.

The Parson

REV. JOHN POWER

Rev. John Power, Brownwood's poet philosopher, professor and priest, was born in England, April 18, 1846. Although now more than 84 years of age, he is active in his duties as rector of St. John's Episcopal Church where he has served for more than twenty-five years.

Dr. Power is a graduate of Oxford and has held the position of professor of classical languages in Daniel Baker College for many years. He was the first Scoutmaster of Brownwood and still aids in many ways the Boy Scouts organization in this city. His remarkable memory arouses the wonder and admiration of all who know him and the life and example of this good man are an inspiration to the entire city.

MISS ADDIE PERRY

The Corresponding Secretary (she has written one letter) and chief member of the Program Committee of the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club is Addie Perry. She is an illustration of what D. B. C., Univ. of Texas and Univ. of Colo. combined can put out. The pupils of Junior High School when she makes Ancient History articulate with history in the making think just as highly of her as do her friends of the club. An interesting thing she is doing in connection with her work is directing the Boosters Club, one that is akin to student self-government, and which is proving to be "the little heaven." Her friend, E. Duren, sees to it that her hobby is the B. & P. W. C. and all its activities.

The Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club has grown from a membership of eighteen in 1924 to a membership of over fifty in 1930. In the early days of the Club, attendance prizes used to be offered, yes, given.

The water project is still with us. The art of square dancing is becoming quite a classic institution in Brownwood circles.

The telephone girl has neither business nor profession—she has a calling.

The records say Miss Helen Post was a mind reader even back in 1925. We are not responsible for any photographs that find their way into this literary column of ours.

No more man could be recording secretary for the Business and Professional Women's Club, because the secretary is warned to get everything into the minutes that is said in the meeting.

Mrs. Hall is suspected of maneuvering to get the pot of pink hydrangeas donated by the Brownwood Floral Company and given away at the last meeting of the Club.

Pete McKenzie Writ Is Refused

AUSTIN, May 7.—(AP)—The application of John A. (Pete) McKenzie of San Antonio for a writ of habeas corpus was refused today by the court of criminal appeals. McKenzie was sentenced to death for the murder of chief of detectives Sam Street of San Antonio and was later adjudged insane.

McKenzie was committed to the Terrell State Hospital where Dr. George Powell, superintendent, declared him sane. He was taken back to San Antonio for another sanity trial, but the jury failed to agree.

Doctor Mayo: "Did you tell that young man of yours what I thought of him?"
His Daughter: "Yes, and he said you were wrong in your diagnosis, as usual."

They had been quarreling and finally she started home to mother. Left all alone, he at first felt badly, but very soon he soliloquized, "I should worry. She had a lot of dental work to be done anyway."

MRS. EVELYN HOWELL

Mrs. Howell is one member of our club that not only has as her task the beautifying of our club members, but ladies in general delight in visiting her. Versatile

MISS PANSY HAMILTON

On the Educational Committee of the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club is Pansy Hamilton. To learn her value as an educator, just ask the powers that be in the Brownwood school system, and the Daniel Baker and Howard Payne faculties. That she is interested in other things than her chosen work, remembering that "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," is evidenced by her success as leader of a class of lovely young girls in Sunday School, her devotion to the choral work of the Schubert Music Club and her love for the B. & P.

DEDICATION OF NEW CHURCH IS UNUSUAL EVENT

The First Presbyterian church, corner First and Depot Streets, was formally dedicated Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, when the congregation celebrated the payment of all obligations against the building and consecrated the property for the worship of God. For many in the large congregation attending the service it was the first dedicatory service they had ever witnessed, and the occasion will long be remembered by the members of the church who through the past ten years have struggled with the problem of paying for their handsome and elegantly furnished house of worship.

The dedicatory sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. W. B. Gray, D. D. He spoke of the church as the place where God was present, a place where God's children come for definite contact with God's Spirit. Further, Anderson streets. The present building was begun in 1920, partially completed in February, 1922, and fully finished and furnished in 1924.

L. L. White, treasurer of the church, presented cancelled notes representing outstanding building indebtedness of the congregation, and these documents were burned, thus wiping out all evidence of claims or liens against the house of worship.

As a whole the service was an impressive one, and the occasion for a great rejoicing among the members of this church.

Jimmie Snyder: "I wonder why they say 'Amen' and not 'Awoman,' 'Bobbie'?"
Neddie: "They sing hymns and not hers, stupid."

Once Upon a Time Coleman County Could Lay Claim to a Town With Abundance of Postoffices and Names

COLEMAN, Texas, May 5.—(SP)—Believe it or not—Coleman county once had a town with two post-offices and three names. Now would you like to have lived in such a town? Whether they liked it or not, several hundred people lived in such a town in Coleman county, Texas, for almost a year without knowing exactly where they were; the place is now known as Silver Valley and is located between this city and Abilene. It was in 1906 that it had the three names and the question "which is the best post-office?" was entirely appropriate.

It all started in 1899 when the Santa Fe railroad was built through that part of Coleman county. It passed near the old Mt. Vale community and postoffice and was just across a mountain from the Silver Valley community and postoffice. The railroad called the place neither Mt. Vale or Silver Valley, but Peiman.

The question naturally arose as to which postoffice would serve the new town. It was evident that the one not chosen for Peiman would be discontinued. The fight was on. Both postoffices were moved to Peiman, and the mail carrier who had carried mail between Mt. Vale and Silver Valley had an easy time—instead of traveling a distance of eight or ten miles he had only a few blocks to make.

For several months the three names continued and if you were going by the postoffice it was either Mt. Vale or Silver Valley, depending upon which was your preference; and if you happened to get off or on the train it was Peiman. Later the Silver Valley post office moved back to the community whence it came and remained there awaiting action of the government.

Silver Valley Favored

The government favored Silver Valley and the Mt. Vale post office was discontinued; the Silver Valley office moved back to remain and serve the people of that community. The townsite was established under the name of Silver Valley, and the railroad company finally abandoned the name of Peiman.

But the name proposition was not at an end. What was the community that was originally Silver Valley going to do for a name? The people had not left the place; there was still a store, a gin, a blacksmith shop, a school house and a number of homes, forming the community center. It was still Silver Valley to them, but there had to be some established difference, so it became, in the language of the community, "Old Silver Valley," and the Silver Valley with the railroad and postoffice was and is "New Silver Valley."

In recent years the community without a name has taken a new name all its own, and this only applies to the school house, for there is nothing else there except a few homes. It is now Vieta, Texas, but is still frequently referred to as Old Silver Valley.

Flourished for a 100-ile Now Silver Valley flourished at Prominent Brownwood Woman Says Orgatone (Argotane) Has Done Her Untold Good.

Mrs. A. D. Bruce, who resides at 2401 Austin Avenue, is still another Brownwood woman of high standing whose deep sense of gratitude and desire to help others will not permit her to remain silent in regard to the benefits she has derived from the remarkable medicine, Orgatone (Argotane). In a recent interview with the Orgatone (Argotane) representative Mrs. Bruce said:

"About a year ago I was operated upon and ever since that time I have been in a general run-down condition. I was nervous and restless especially at night and could not rest at all well. I was tired and languid all the time; hadn't been able to get any results from other medicines and felt that I was bordering on to more serious trouble. "Of course, I didn't know, just what I needed, but I had read so much about the splendid results others had gotten from Orgatone (Argotane) that I decided to give it a fair chance. I began to improve right from the start and the benefits I have derived from about three weeks use of it are most satisfactory. Orgatone (Argotane) has done me untold good. I am glad to recommend it to anyone in need of a medicine to give them new life and strength."

Genuine Orgatone (Argotane) may be bought in Brownwood at the Camp-Bell and Peerless Drug Stores. (adv.)

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick was recently elected to Congress by Illinois voters. She is a member of the Lena Madestin Phillips Building Committee.

President's Sister

MRS. MARGARET DUTTON
When Mrs. Margaret Dutton came first to the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club shortly after her arrival from Temple to fill a position at the Armstrong Jewelry Company's store, she was of course welcomed because she is the sister of the club's loved and admired president, Mrs. M. W. Armstrong, or in other words, Doctor Mollie Wright Armstrong. But Mrs. Dutton did not rest long on her sister's hands, for before the evening was over she had her own place in the good opinions of the members.

Former radio amateurs or "hams" are in the majority on the technical staff of the Columbia chain and WABC, New York. About two-thirds of this staff is composed of these radio pictures.

Builder

MRS. JEWELL A. JOHNSON
May Jenkins Johnson—was the President of the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club, being eligible thereto by being in the Tire Business and a few other things, but she had to have leave of absence to educate her son and her young daughter in the University of Texas. One accomplishment of hers that this town is proud of was the turning of an old house of nondescript style into a striking new one of modified Spanish type. And how she enjoyed doing it! But she warns those who want to go and do likewise to be sure to select an ordinary old house with a good foundation.

Dental Assistant

MISS BIRDIE COX
Who as a member of the finance committee of the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club helps the treasurer decide on loans and other important money matters, gets valuable training for this in handling the office affairs of the Doctors Arvin, as well as being their dental assistant. If she only had the Dental College diploma to hang on the wall, she no doubt could take Dr. J. N.'s place right now—"a worthy disciple of a worthy master."

Reformer: "Young man, do you realize that you will never get anywhere by drinking?"

Stewed: "Ain't it th' truth! I've started home from 'ish corner five times already."

Customer: "I should like to try that frock on in the window."

"Sorry, madam, but the management will not allow that. Would you care to try it on in our private fitting room?"

Mr. Dudley limps into see his family physician:

"Gracious," said the doctor, "how did you get all those awful bruises on your shins? Are you a hockey player?"

"Oh, no," said Dudley, "I didn't catch the signal and led back my wife's weak suit." (Now Dudley believes in signs.)

In the Court House

MRS. NEVA ASHMORE
Mrs. Ashmore is a woman quite envied, because in her position as assistant to the District Clerk of Brownwood, she knows all the secrets long before the public get an inkling of an idea of them, and even before they get to the courts. She has long since proven that the age old adage that woman cannot keep a secret, is quite obsolete.

Gifted

MRS. ANNIE LAURIE BENCINI
Says she has no talents. Her companions of the Business and Professional Women's Club consider the art of making cherry pies (You remember "Can she make a cherry pie, Billy Boy?") is as gracious a gift as—well, as Dr. Mollie's gift of gab or Mrs. Jennings' sense of line. After seeing that her tenants are furnished with desirable apartments to move into, it is a worthwhile thing to have as a hobby the seeing that her church and her club serve delicious, reasonable food when occasion demands. She is chairman of the very important Luncheon Committee of the B. and P. W. and when those on duty fail, she does their duty for them. By reason of this example, few fail.

"See if you can laugh that one off," said the fat man's wife as she wired a button on his vest.

The class yell of the school of experience is "ouch!"

An Innocent Man

Judge: "Are you guilty or not guilty of smashing the jewelry store window, Rastus?"

Rastus: "Not guilty, suh."

Judge: "Ever been in jail?"

Rastus: "No suh. I never stole nuthin' before."

Mr. Murphy: "Pat, you know you had no right to touch that wire. Don't you know you might have been killed by the shock?"

Pat: "Sure, I felt it carefully before I took hold of it."

Beauty

HOW TO GET IT AND WHAT TO DO WITH IT WHEN YOU GET IT SO IT WILL LAST

BY EVELYN G. HOWELL, Mgr. Blue Bénet Beauty Studio

Beauty, the goal of every sane woman. Smart women, nowadays realize how rarely they succeed without good looks. To be beautiful is no particular merit, it is necessary.

One of America's foremost beauty judges says, "it is unfortunate to be ugly at sixteen, but at forty it is unpardonable." He also says that feminine beauty is an ensemble in effect, a blending of many things.

So many elements enter into the question of what constitutes beauty, that it is difficult to give it in the form of a prescription or recipe. You don't just take a cupful of this, a few drops of that, mix in the flour and stir, which is by way of saying that a beautiful set of features and a lovely form are only a part of true beauty.

There must be charm, personality, individuality along with the beauty of face and figure else the onlooker is shocked by a sense of incompleteness. There must be poise, grace, sympathetic musical voice, harmony of dress, and behavior.

The judge's toast to the beautician is as follows: "Here's to the beautician, who makes pretty women beautiful and plain women attractive."

Women who are unattractive have only themselves to blame. Of course, we are not all ravine beauties, but every one has some good feature. The beauty business has its foundation in one of the most permanent things in the world, in the desire of woman to be desirable. Woman, beautiful, is inspiration or destroyer. Woman's smile has made gods of men or hurried nations to destruction in ancient times.

So first of all, we attract by our personal appearance or beauty, or other qualities are learned and loved by association. We all love beauty, whether it is in a wonderful painting, a beautiful automobile or in the tender little rose bud, last, but not least a beautiful woman.

It is safe to wager that there is not a woman, search the world over, who is not interested in improving her personal beauty. Today more than ever before, woman is more concerned about the personal appearance. Competition is keener, doubt it if you will, than it is in the business world.

Beauty demands today that a woman be graceful and exquisitely well-groomed, meticulous about every personal detail, that she present the perfection of her individual type of beauty. That presupposes that a woman will endeavor to study her own type and that she will be ruthless in confessing to herself, her own defects and she will do all that science and advice and personal care demands to accentuate her good points.

I think now with what has already been said we will how realistic it is to look our best, and we are now ready to go to work.

Consider the Complexion

Webster defines complexion as "the hue of the skin especially the face," and in the hue there is a wide range, even in the Caucasian race, from the milk and white and rose blonde type, grading down to the rich and dusky brunettes, all being in their special coloring.

First of all you must be in the very best of health to exhibit to the world a lovely rose petal complexion. The first signs of a disordered system usually appear on the skin of the face. Overfatigue will make even the fairest complexion dull, lifeless, gray or a muddy yellow, or lose its youthful transparency. No one thing so proclaims youth as that very self-same transparency, which in turn denotes that the circulation is active and that the sebaceous glands are functioning properly. When all is right internally, the skin with a certain amount of intelligent care, will be as lovely as can be desired.

Methods of cleansing the skin, depend upon the condition of your individual skin. For instance, certainly one would not employ the same methods for a sensitive, dry skin, which is easily irritated as the thicker, excessively oily skin.

"Oh-o-o-oh!" sighed a charming girl, as she stretched and yawned luxuriously. "I am too utterly and entirely exhausted to do anything to my face tonight." She stepped into bed and drowsily buried her head in the pillow. "I don't see where you get the energy to go through all that smearing of creams," she said to her girl friend. She was young and beautiful with

Heads Business

MRS. LULA PEARSON

Has been an outstanding Brownwood business woman for some time having operated on Center Avenue her own attractive and authoritative (fashionably speaking) Millinery and Ready-to-Wear establishment for "Everywoman." What more appropriate, then, than that she should have been one of the group that organized this Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club, of which she has been a staunch member ever since?

Can Do Anything

MRS. A. B. QUEEN

Another who does not have to bask alone in the glory of being her husband's wife nor her brother's sister, though the one is manager of the Empire Furniture Company and the other is Mr. Hilton Burks, the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Queen can manage a gift shop, sell for some one else, see that the Home Room of her little girl at school gets all the honors, help make Square Dances successful and bake Birthday Cakes equally well. Just now the club is especially interested in the latter accomplishment, as this dear lady in question volunteered to make the cake for the club's seventh birthday celebration today. Somebody suggested that she make it in seven tiers, but fearing that it might be so tall as to suggest the Tower of Babel and cause unpleasant remarks as to a well-known but harmless propensity of women (even these in the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club) she thought best to limit the cake to three or four tiers.

Cashier

MRS. ALMA K. LYLE

A present year's recruit in the ranks of the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club, is Cashier for the Bankers' Life Guaranty Company, after having served in a similar capacity for several years with the Brownwood Mutual. Her business career began with a position with Walker-Smith Co., always a good recommendation it seems.

It should be shampooed with a liquid shampoo once a week or ten days, brushed daily, massage the scalp to keep it flexible and healthy. There are various treatments for sick hair and diseased scalps.

Just a Little Hint About Your Nails Keep them well filed, never cut the nails. The cuticle pushed back and use a cuticle cream or solvent each night around the nails. Soak each night in warm olive oil, in case of excess brittleness. Using the polish of your choice. Remember the beautician's national slogan is "look your best."

Her Hobby

MISS AMY DAMRON

Once upon a time the roll call responses for the Brownwood Business and Professional Women's Club program was "Your Hobby." Amy Damron responded "This Club." So she is worthy of and trustworthy for any job or honor within the province of said club. Thoroughly trained in the best schools in her line, her employers, the Looney Mercantile Company, for whom she is bookkeeper and credit manager, seem to find this true of her, too. What more can be said? That she is just as friendly as she is capable.

a complexion like a rose petal. But it is lots easier to retain that lovely complexion than try to regain it, after it is lost. No girl or woman careful of her appearance would think of retiring without brushing her teeth. Now, why, I ask, would she even dream of going to bed without removing the dust, dirt and grime collected during the day. Not to mention the make-up she would not appear in public without, and many additional applications, of compact powder during the day. Think of that accumulation, a thick layer of it remaining on the skin over night. Through the long hours of night, when the sebaceous glands, whose real function is to excrete are actually clogged with powder, rouge and dust—yes, actual dirt!

Immaculate cleanliness is the first and quite the most important of the simple rules for obtaining, maintaining and restoring beauty. You will probably find me saying each rule is the most important, but I will say most emphatically that unless this one is strictly adhered to, the others would naturally be less effectual in results, so you see this is really the most important rule after all. Remember, a clean skin speaks for itself.

So now will you promise that if you do nothing else, you will cleanse your skin every night before retiring. Promise you will let nothing whatever interfere with that. If you are the type that can't be bothered about creams and things, you will wake up some fine day, when you have had an alluring invitation and you want to impress your escort and your friends with your appearance, to discover that your skin is weather-beaten, coarse, and possibly so rough that it is scaly. You will then wonder why you have neglected it so shamefully and will be frantic to repair the damages. But damage cannot be cured in one day when it has taken years to produce the effect you wish to banish. Now don't think I am trying to scare you, I am simply telling you what the results will be if you neglect your skin.

Now as to how and with what to cleanse it. For a dry sensitive skin use a cleansing cream that liquefies quickly, massage gently with an upward motion. For the excessively oily skin—Cleanse with almond meal or soap and water, provided the soap is not too strong, any soap that makes the skin feel taut and drawn is too drying to be used on the face. Now we are ready for the skin food.

Every skin needs a food every night. Begin early to treat those fine lines, so that they will not become wrinkles. Creepy skin and relaxed muscles resulting from neglect or advancing years may be corrected by daily care. For dry skin a heavy tissue builder with a generous amount of muscle oil, leaving it on over night, as a dry skin wrinkles earlier in life than does an oily skin. For the oily skin use a light skin food removing the excess amount of cream from your face before retiring.

When you awake in the morning, you will be surprised to find that your skin has absorbed almost all your skin food. If you will refresh your skin with your skin tonic, you will also remove all traces of the cream and help to refine and close the pores, making the skin ready for the make-up. Of course, if you insist you may cleanse the skin again the first thing in the morning before using the tonic as astringent.

The Delicate Art of Make-up You may apparently change the shape of your face, eyes, and mouth by the clever use of rouge, eye shadows, and powder accenting good points and minimizing defects. A noted beautician says, "that eye shadow is as essential as lip stick." Eye shadows cleverly applied can make a world of difference in your appearance.
