Knights Admit 25 New Members In District Initiation

Would you say that a good bank is essential to community prosperity or that a good community is essential to a bank's prosperity? You might as well try to determine which came first, the chicken or the egg. Either way you figure it one depends on the other, so it doesn't seem that either could make much progress without the other.

By coincidence this column's attention was drawn this week to both sides of that relationship. The bank's 30th anniversary presents an occasion to notice a few details concerning its growth. And a statistical report just released by John and Marshall Surratt of Dallas tells about the community's growth. The study of Cooke and Montague counties reveals that the only justice precincts registering gains or a slight loss in population are those which include banking towns. Others have sustained losses ranging from 32 per cent to 73 per cent.

To us the big news is that Muenster shows the most progress with a lusty gain of 120 per cent and Nocona is next with 39. Precincts including the other four banking towns have all slipped a little.

In fairness we have to admit that Muenster had an advantage over most other towns in the two counties in that report. It was founded in 1889, and there was little here as a starter in 1890. So the town's growth had to reflect well on the area's record. But there's another factor also. Myra happens to be included in Precinct 8, which the survey identifies as the Muenster community. And Myra has declined. In other words the gain in the immediate local community must have been considerably better than 120 per cent because some of its gain was offset by Myra's loss.

It's next to impossible to say how much of success is due to one factor or another. We like to think that our community is composed of an industrious and thrifty class of people that would have fared somewhat better than the other precincts that had no local banks. But we are quite certain also that it could not have reached its present stage of progress without a bank.

Old timers around here can testify that this was a sad town during the days prior to the opening of the bank. Business of any kind just doesn't get far without facilities for free circulation of money. Besides, lots of transactions aren't possible without a bank's help. Those same old timers can tell you that activity around here perked up considerably as soon as the bank opened. That it has been going at a brisk pace ever since is indicated by the fact that both the city and the surrounding rural area have enjoyed a steady increase in population and business expansion. What's more, all of it has been good solid progress. The whole community enjoys a high level of financial stability.

As regards population, the city of Muenster has more than doubled during the bank's 30 years of service here. In 1930 the official count was 459 and in 1950 it was 900. It was considerably less in '23 and considerably more in '53. If figures were available they might show that the population has almost tripled.

As regards stability the record of bank deposits serves as a fairly good indication. The total here is about $1,675,000 as compared with an average of $910,000 in other towns of 600 to 1,000 in North Central Texas. Actually we are considerably over the average towns of 1,000 to 1,500, which is $1,265,000.

Of course there is no way of knowing what would have happened here without the help of a bank. But there is no doubt that it would have made much less progress. Just make your own guess on a few questions like these. How many business houses could have started or kept running without its help? With fewer local markets and business opportunities how much would have been lost to both farmers and town folks? How many farmers got the bank's help to get started or to keep going? How many have gained by the

Mrs. Ike Fulton of Myra entered Gainesville Sanitarium Tuesday for medical care.

Water Mornings to Prevent Shortage

If a considerable number of people in town will water their lawns and flowers in the mornings the city will not have to worry about a water shortage... unless it has a break-down, of course.

Steve Moster said Tuesday that the strain has already been relieved by about 15 persons who started watering in the morning. If more will do that, he said, the city will have no trouble keeping its tank full.

The problem in the past has been that practically all people were watering at the same time, and drained the tank faster than the booster pump could put the water there. On one occasion he found it necessary to drive around asking people to stop watering.

The ideal arrangement is to divide lawn and garden watering about 50-50 in the morning and afternoon. If that is done the pump can keep the tank full.

Water consumption hit another new high here Friday with a total of 232,000 gallons. Monday's rain and cool weather dropped it to a mere 110,000 gallons.

Bank Anniversary Marks Three Decades Of Outstanding Community Service

This week Thursday, on the thirtieth anniversary of its founding, the Muenster State Bank can look back with satisfaction not only on its own development into a sound financial institution but also on the development of a thriving city and community. The event is not being marked by a special observance, but it serves nevertheless as an occasion to recall three decades of achievement in which the bank and the area it serves have worked together to attain two fine records of progress.

Muenster was a quiet and rather gloomy town in 1923 when J. W. Meurer and J. M. Weinzapfel started mustering the stockholders and depositors to organize the bank. The effects of the depression following World War I were still hanging on. Money was scarce and people were very conscious of their losses when the German-American bank failed some 18 months before. At the same time they were very much aware, after a year and a half without banking conveniences, that a local bank was badly needed. So the community got behind the project and the bank opened its doors on the day its charter arrived, July 2, 1923.

At that time Muenster was still a fairly new town of about 350 population. A year before farmers had organized a local unit of the Farmers Union which was destined soon afterward to break away from the failing parent organization and reorganize into the present Farmers Marketing Association. There were a few general merchandise stores and produce stations, a lumber yard, a hardware store, a garage, a blacksmith shop, a cotton gin and a few other small businesses. There were no car agencies, and two gasoline pumps accounted for the filling station business.

Three years later, largely through the bank's leadership electric service was brought to

With the first semester of summer school drawing to a close, Superintendent Weldon Cowan is trying to decide now whether to have a similar semester for the next six weeks.

Some of the students have asked for a chance to continue, and arrangements will be made for them. If no more enroll they will have night classes. However the morning classes will continue if attendance is sufficient to justify them. Children or parents who are interested are asked to see Superintendent Cowan at school on or before July 10. He's there 9 to 12, Monday through Friday.

Thirty students are attending the summer school first semester which will end Friday of next week.

1.27 in. Rain Fails To Relieve Drought

Monday's rain was far from a drought buster but it serves wonderfully as temporary relief to whatever vegetation is still hanging on after the community's long dry spell.

In Muenster, according to Steve Moster's official records, the rain measured 1.27 inches. West of town it was heavier, measuring 2 inches at Al Fleitman's and east of town it tapered off to a mere .20 at Gainesville.

Practically speaking the rain was the first here for the month of June. A short light drizzle earlier in the month was recorded as .02 in. That brings the total rainfall for the first half of the year to 12.99.

Though the rain fell far short of meeting community needs it did at least give some vegetation a new lease on life, sustaining it until another rain comes along, if that is fairly soon. In many cases, however it was too late. Much of the pasture grass is reported to be dead.

Leo Felderhoff has a new 4-door two-tone brown and tan Ford sedan since Tuesday.

Year's Illness Ends Tuesday in Death Of Frank A. Kaiser

Frank A. Kaiser, 65, a long-time resident of Muenster, passed away at his home Tuesday morning about 10 o'clock following a year's illness.

Funeral services were held Thursday morning at 8:30 in Sacred Heart church with Rev. Louis Deuster officiating at the requiem high mass and at the burial in Sacred Heart cemetery. Nick Miller was in charge of arrangements.

Bearers were John Wieler, J. A. Fisher, Richard Cain, R. M. Zipper, Eugene Schmitz and Lou Wolf.

Rosary was recited at the Miller Funeral Home at 4:30 and again at 8 p.m. Wednesday. The afternoon service was conducted by the local boy scout troop.

Kaiser was a native of Remsen, Iowa, where he was born March 4, 1888, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Kaiser. The family moved to Muenster when he was six years old.

As a young man, Kaiser returned to Iowa and took up bar-boring in Remsen. In 1910 he married Miss Frances Hammon there. They later moved to Fort Worth where he entered the real estate business, and then returned to Muenster to live. After retiring from the real estate business Mr. Kaiser owned and operated a recreation hall here.

A year ago his health began failing. During the past six months he rarely left his home.

Survivors are his wife and one son, C. J. Kaiser; two grandchildren, Melvin and Joan Kaiser; three sisters, Mmes. L. A. Bernauer, John Meurer and A. H. Rebutish, all of Muenster, and nieces and nephews including Mrs. Nick Miller, Herbert Meurer and Harold Walterscheid of Muenster, and Mrs. C. A. Stelzer of Fort Worth.

Auctioneers Win 8-6 at Windthorst

The Muenster Auctioneers are playing ball again, hoping to average at least a game a week for the rest of the summer even though they are not in a league.

The team is composed mostly of youngsters who played under the sponsorship of the Livestock Auction Co. last year. They were slow to start this year because a few of the key players are gone and also because no league was organized in this area. They continue to wear the Auctioneers' uniforms but are playing now under the management of Alvin Hartman and Norbert Mages.

In their first game at Windthorst last Sunday they bested Father Francis Zimmerer's team 8-6. Windthorst started the scoring with 3 in the first and 2 in the second but its lead was overcome in the third by a 6 run rally featuring Mollenkopf's 4-run homer. Each team scored another run in the sixth. Sylvan Walterscheid pitched the first three innings for the Auctioneers and Jerry Henscheid finished the game.

Next on schedule is a game at Locke Field Friday night with the Little Hooters of Gainesville.

Up to now only four teams are known as possible opponents for the Auctioneers this season. They are two Gainesville teams, a Denton team and the Windthorst team.

Positions on the team are still open. Any youngster wishing to play is asked to see Mages or Hartman to arrange a tryout.

A RED PROFESSOR TALKS

There has been a great hue and cry in some circles against the investigations into subversive activities now being conducted by committees of Congress. It would be well for any interested citizen, before forming a conclusion in the controversy, to read the latest series of published reports by the Committee on the Judiciary, United States Senate. These reports, available to any citizen upon request, give the transcript of the actual testimony in the hearings on "Subversive Influence in the Educational Process."
When I was in Washington recently Dr. Bella V. Dodd, former school teacher and college professor and one time member of the American Communist Party's national committee, was testifying at the hearing conducted by the Judiciary sub-committee on internal security. For 12 years she taught political science and economics at Hunter College, New York City, and infected a great many students with the Communist viewpoint. During this time she worked secretly with the Communists but did not formally join the party until 1943. Thereafter she helped gain Communist control over 11,000 teachers in the New York Teachers Union. She estimated there were 1,000 Communist teachers in the union.

Worked with Reds
Professor Dodd left the Party in 1949 and has since endeavored to rectify the wrongs she did her country by warning the public of the menace of the Red infiltration in every walk of American life. Among the educational profession in New York she obviously was an influential personage. Attractive, cultured and fluent in her speech, she was an effective witness at the Judiciary hearing. The room was crowded, and the hearing was televised. However, the utmost dignity was maintained.

Two parts of Dr. Dodd's testimony especially impressed me as I heard it in Washington and then read it in the report just published. During a number of years while an influential professor at Hunter College she was secretly doing the Communists' work for them, although not officially connected with the party.

Fellow Traveler Menace

"I raised the question of whether I should or should not belong to the Communists," she testified. She was instructed by a Communist official as follows: "No, it is not advisable for people like yourself, who are in strategic positions, to become members of the Communist Party, to have a card or to attend meetings." Thus she was a fellow traveler, doing the bidding of the conspirators, while comparatively safe from exposure. Under these circumstances she was more valuable even than if she were a party member. The significant thing is that the Communists have claimed about 500,000 fellow travelers working in organizations and institutions throughout the nation, calling themselves "liberals."

The other portion of Dr. Dodd's testimony, of special interest, concerned the smear tactics which the Communists use against anyone who effectively fights them. While she was a top official in the party, she said, "If anyone tried to attack the Communist movement, the Communist Party immediately went among its allies, and on various bases got the support and help of these people to smear and to isolate any person who was hurting Communists."

Smear Their Enemies

Dr. Dodd testified: "There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that anyone in America who dares to buck the Communist conspiracy is going to receive very rough treatment from Communists, who learn how, unfortunately, to utilize many unsuspecting people who think they are supporting freedom of thought but who in reality are the best protections for the Communist conspiracy."

The actual Communist smear artists are to be found in all the media of national communications, Dr. Dodd said. "The Party has representatives, for instance, in the press, representatives in the magazine world, in the radio world. If everyone in concentrating upon one particular person, you get the cumulative effect of a party working on many different levels."

The important fact is that not many American citizens understand the workings of this widespread, powerful, undermining conspiracy. Ask your Congressman for the Judiciary Committee reports on "Subversive Influence in the Educational Process."

Freedom Comes From God

By Charles Fahy, Former Assistant U. S. Attorney General

The Fathers of the Declaration of Independence felt the necessity of basing their decision upon lasting principles. The remarkable character of these men is proven not only by the enduring quality of the principles they expressed, but also by the fruits of their work—our own country. Its greatness is built upon the foundations these men laid. In laying these foundations they turned to God.

They turned to God on four separate occasions in the formulation of the Declaration of Independence. In the opening sentence they referred to the equal station to which Americans were entitled among the powers of the earth by the laws of nature and of nature's God. In these words they recognized that nature and the laws of nature are derived from God.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness." In this one sentence they recognized that the source of life, liberty, and happiness is the Creator of Man.

The authors of the Declaration then appealed to the Supreme Judge of the world to witness the rectitude of their intentions. God, they recognized, was not only the source of nature and of nature's laws; not only the Creator who endowed man with certain inalienable rights; He was also the Supreme Judge of the world and of themselves. They accordingly laid their case before Him.

Finally, as the Declaration draws to its conclusion, they pledged their lives, fortunes and sacred honor, "with a firm reliance on the protection of a Divine Providence." God was also the Divine Protector.

The great enterprise was thus launched, and America took her place among the nations of the world upon the basis of this declaration of supernatural faith.

The superior quality of the Declaration resides in its principle that the relation of man to God establishes the true relation of man to man and between man and government. When a government, dominated by atheism, seeks to forcibly change the unchangeable relationship between man and God, man is deprived of his inalienable rights, and government becomes false to its nature.

Our duty is to make certain that the principles of the Declaration are securely in our own minds and hearts and that we live up to them ourselves and increase their influence everywhere.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Bad Case of the "Ztutters"

Our copyboy is out sick. So the editor (me) is taking over some of his chores—which include running the addressing machine on "mailing-out night."

Last week I didn't have the usual number of papers left over for sale at the office. Couldn't figure what had happened—until Chub Zimmer called to ask why he'd gotten 56 copies.

Then I realized—"Zimmer" is the last name the machine prints. Guess I forgot to turn it off... and it just kept grinding out Chub's name on all the remaining copies. That machine just didn't know when to stop.

From where I sit, people are like that sometimes. They often don't know when to stop. Like those who are prejudiced against someone with an accent, perhaps... or against someone who likes a cool bottle of beer with his supper. So, in these columns I try to persuade everyone to "throw the switch" on prejudice so it won't get repeated.

The world's most powerful all-purpose tractor!

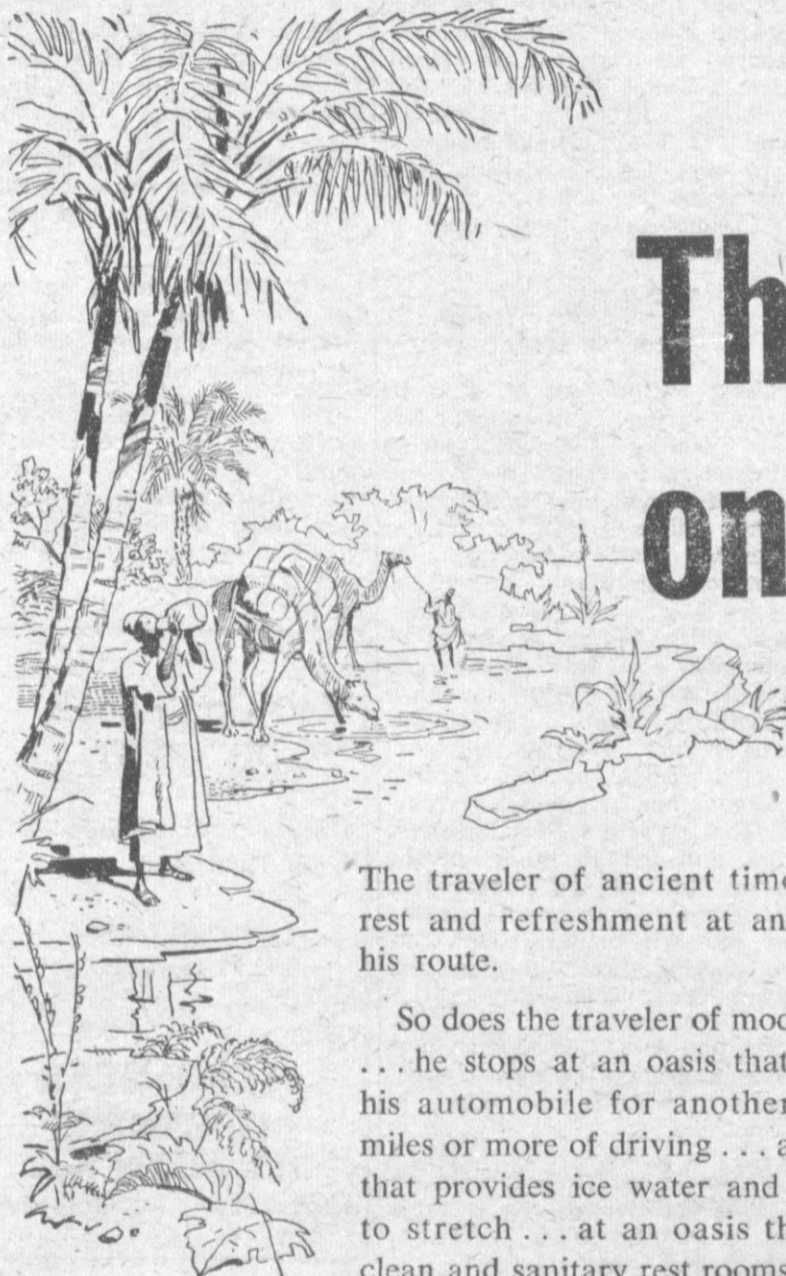

Here's the tractor that's leading the field—the McCormick Farmall Super M. It's a pace-setter based on the performance record of more than a quarter-million Farmall M's.

Never before has so much power been so easy to handle. The Farmall Super M enables you to pull more and pull it faster. Brakes are easy-acting and double-disc type... steering effort is reduced to the minimum... clutch operation is effortless. Everything about the Super M is designed to get every ounce of its 48.5 horsepower out of the tractor and into the work!

The OASIS on your route

The traveler of ancient times sought rest and refreshment at an oasis on his route.

So does the traveler of modern times... he stops at an oasis that prepares his automobile for another hundred miles or more of driving... at an oasis that provides ice water and a chance to stretch... at an oasis that offers clean and sanitary rest rooms... at an oasis where our traveler can give and get a friendly greeting.

Today's oasis is the service station on the American highway.

It makes your trip. It provides your contact with the country through which you're driving. On its driveway you feel at home; you get the impression wherever you stop, that this is your America.

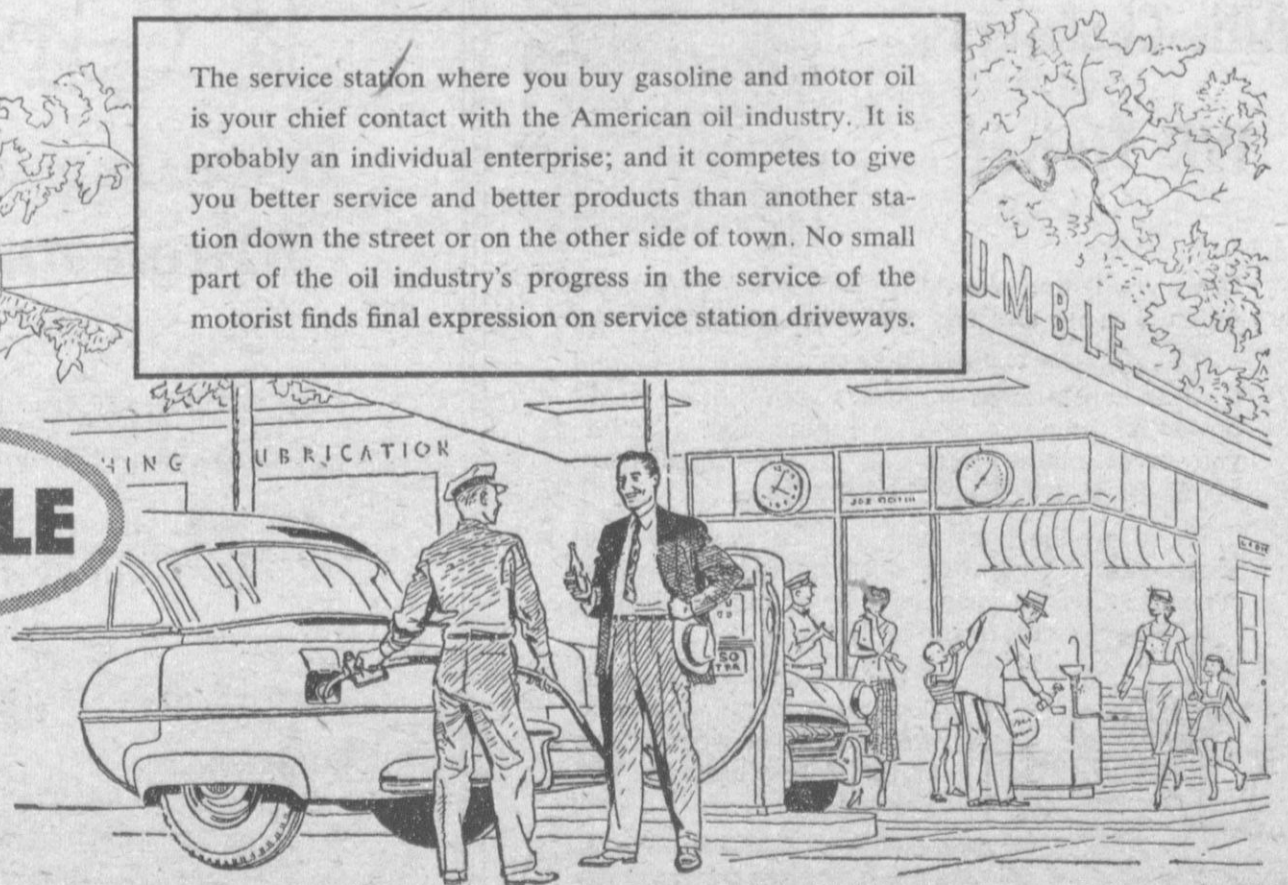

Not one service station, but thousands of them. All along the highways you'll find them staffed and equipped to give your car the expert care it requires, to make your brief visits on their driveways comfortable and pleasant.

The service station where you buy gasoline and motor oil is your chief contact with the American oil industry. It is probably an individual enterprise; and it competes to give you better service and better products than another station down the street or on the other side of town. No small part of the oil industry's progress in the service of the motorist finds final expression on service station driveways.

The class had finished studying "The Landing of the Pilgrims," and the teacher asked her little pupils to draw from their imagination a picture of Plymouth Rock. All went to work on the idea except little Elmer, who finally raised his hand and asked, "Please, teacher do you want us to draw a hen or a rooster?"

A Daffy-Dill

The Eagle, Wichita, Kan., reports that a $13,000-a-year head of a government bureau has come up with a proposal to issue United States standards for cut daffodils, providing that each bunch consist of 12 flowers, reasonably uniform in size, arranged so the blossoms form a compact head, and tied with a string or rubber band two to four inches from the cut ends of the stems. This solves another great economic problem, the Eagle observes, saying it is "comparable to previous instructions on how to determine the sex life of a watermelon."

Look After Little Things for Success In Raising Poultry

by JOHN C. WHITE
Texas Commissioner of Agriculture

Few farms are complete without at least some chickens—both fryers and layers. Even though commercial flocks may not be practical the few extra pennies earned in egg production or the money saved in raising meat for the frying pan really add up in a year's time.

In order to successfully raise chickens for home consumption, or for the market, it is important to look after the "little things" as well as the bigger problems. It may pay dividends to spend a few minutes checking on these profit leaks:

Hang up those empty feed sacks or pile them neatly on a rack. This is the best way to keep used bags in good condition. A few pains in opening sacks so as not to tear them will pay off.

Don't allow birds to waste feed. Use feeders that prevent waste and fill them only 1/2 to 3/4 full.

Make a practice to wipe off bulbs and reflectors in the pens every so often. It is surprising how much light is lost simply because bulbs and reflectors are filmed over.

Check up on the favorite laying haunts of your chickens. Eggs are lost because birds don't lay them in the nests. Dark corners, under the nests and roosts, should be wired off so birds just can't lay in those hard to get at places where eggs are either broken or get dirty.

Work out a plan to cull and sell loafers if you are trying for good egg production. Non-laying birds are lost to the market because the farmer didn't get rid of them while they were in good condition.

A good poultryman is first of all a good manager. No matter how big or how small an operation he has, mass production can never substitute for good management.

Soil Conservation Notes

Vetch seed is going into combine hoppers in the Forestburg area. Johnny Moore combined nearly 30 acres of his vetch and reports that it will probably average around 200 pounds of seed per acre. J. A. Donnell, John Smith, Glenn Huckabay and Mack Traylor are also busy combining the elusive vetch seed. W. S. Franklin of Rosston has just started harvesting operations on 50 acres of vetch that was used as a soil improving cover crop in his pecan orchard.

The Fish and Wildlife Service of the U. S. Department of the Interior sent a truck to Muenster recently to deliver fish to co-operators wishing to stock their farm ponds. Bluegill; Bass and Catfish were delivered to Alvin Cler, Al Walter, John Schmitz, Tony Felderhoff, Ike Fulton; H. L. Settle, William P. Griffis and Hollis Berry.

Properly stocked and well fertilized ponds will furnish plenty of fish for the table and lots of fun and recreation for the farm family. Fish were ordered through the local Soil Conservation Service office.

bank's efforts in community betterment, especially soil conservation?

If you are inclined to take the pessimistic view and insist that the bank has selfish motives, you are welcome to it. But remember, too, that the bank has to help you and me before it can reap any gain of its own. And we've got to admit that it's a pretty nice kind of selfishness when it works that way.

So, whether or not you take the time to extend your greetings to the bank on its anniversary, why not take time at least to appreciate that it has done a fine job for you and me.

Incidentally you might indulge in a bit of community pride. It would not have done so well, you know, if it had not had a fine group of people to work with.
