

BURN RECEIVED IN NOV. FATAL TO BEN ALBERS

Funeral Services Wednesday Morning From St. Peter's Church at Lindsay

Lindsay.—Funeral services were held at 8:30 Wednesday in St. Peter's church for Bernard Albers who died at his home about 1:30 a. m. Tuesday from burns received in an accident last November.

Father Bonaventure, assistant pastor of Lindsay, was celebrant at his Mass of Requiem and officiated at the burial which followed in St. Peter's cemetery. Funeral arrangements were under the direction of George Carroll and Son of Gainesville. Pallbearers were Joe Bezner, Oscar Zwingski and Bernard Zimmerer and three of Mr. Albers' nephews, Henry, Joe and Ferd Luttmir of Muenster.

The injury which resulted in Mr. Albers' death was sustained last November when, in a fainting spell, he fell into a burning pile of weeds. It was thought that he had been in the fire for some time before regaining consciousness because when he was seen shortly afterward going toward the house much of his clothes had already burned away and the fire had seared deep into his flesh. During the first days after the accident, Mr. Albers was constantly on the brink of death, but rallied and then began the slow sinking that lasted for five months.

He was born on December 29, 1891 in Lillyville, Ill. and came to Lindsay in 1912.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary Albers, Lindsay; four sisters, Mrs. Herman Luttmir, Muenster; Mrs. Albert Mosser, Lindsay; Mrs. Nick Mosman, Gainesville; and Mrs. Joe Nichols, Gainesville; and four brothers, Joe of Great Bend, Kan., Ferd and Clarence of Lindsay; and John of Muenster.

JOHN PURCELL ASKS SUPPORT IN RACE FOR COOKE COUNTY CLERK

John H. Purcell of the Hood community and well known to many Muenster citizens authorizes the Enterprise to publish his formal announcement as candidate for the office of Cooke County Clerk.

Mr. Purcell was reared and educated in the county. He enjoys a reputation for honest pleasant dealings and is held in high esteem by his many friends and acquaintances. He has a high school education and the benefit of years of experience in keeping books and records of various forms. He feels that he is well qualified to fill the office he seeks and, while he has never held public office to which he can refer for past records, states that he can and will make a good county clerk.

Mr. Purcell seeks office on his own merits rather than on the demerits of opposing candidates. He intends to see as many voters as possible, offer his services, and trust in their confidence for a favorable vote on election day.

In making his announcement he solicits the support of voters, and, if elected, pledges himself to discharge his duties honestly, courteously and efficiently and to employ only clerks who will render equally satisfactory service.

Mr. Purcell is making an active campaign, covering all parts of the county and trying hard to meet each voter personally. He is deeply grateful for support he now receives and will appreciate each and every vote he receives on July 23.

LAGUARDIA KIDNAPPED AT MUENSTER, SAYS NEW YORK REPORTER

Writing in the New York Daily News Lowell Limpus, the press agent accompanying Mayor LaGuardia on his recent tour, comments as follows on the mayor's momentary stop over at Muenster:

"The warmth of his reception astonished veteran observers. Typical was his kidnapping by citizens of Muenster, Texas. That cow-country village sent out automobile patrols, one of which flagged down the Mayor's racing caravan as it hurried him across the State to catch a train.

"Yielding to their pleas, LaGuardia turned back and spent exactly one minute in the town—but Muenster went crazy during that minute. He was surrounded by yelling cow-punchers and oil workers, while a pretty girl reporter danced excitedly on the edge of the crowd, 'interviewing' him over intervening shoulders.

NEW ALDERMEN TAKE OFFICE IN MONDAY CITY COUNCIL MEET

Outstanding procedure of the city council in its regular meeting last Monday night was the installation of its two new aldermen, Nick Miller and Al Walterscheid, in the positions left vacant by Henry Stelzer's expiring term and by the death of Joe Felderhoff last fall.

In recognition of Mr. Stelzer's ten years of faithful service in behalf of the city, members of the council voted unanimously in favor of a formal letter of appreciation. Mr. Stelzer had been a member of the council since the time of the city's incorporation.

Appointments for the coming year were announced as follows by Mayor M. J. Endres: Mayor pro tem, Henry Hennigan; Street Commissioner, Henry Fleitman; Park Commissioner Al Walterscheid; Water Commissioner, John Fisher; Fire Chief, Nick Miller; Sanitary Commissioner, Henry Hennigan; Secretary, Henry Luke; Treasurer, Leo Henschel; Health Officer, Dr. T. S. Myrick; Tax Assessor-Collector, Rosabell Driever; Fire Marshal, J. M. Luke.

Following a suggestion that the R. W. McKinney Company will very likely have surfacing material left after finishing their present Highway 5 paving project, the council discussed the advisability of having another layer of tar and rock applied on Main Street. Feeling that the surplus could be secured at salvage price and also that the surfacing crew has its equipment in readiness, some advanced the opinion that pavement could be secured very moderately. Also advanced was the opinion that another surface might prove excessive and cause the topping to gather in ripples placing the street in worse condition than it is now. Some suggested that the pavement, if it can be secured at a moderate price, be applied on North Main beyond the present pavement limit or on some of the more frequently used side-streets.

Announcement was made by Mayor Endres that Gainesville's tar melting pot will be moved to Muenster soon for repair work on the many holes in the pavement. The machine is being borrowed in accordance with an offer made several weeks ago by Secretary McCann of the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce to President Leo Henschel of the Muenster Chamber and referred by him to Mayor Endres.

Reporting on his progress in detecting leaks in the city water main J. M. Luke said that three major leaks and several minor ones have been located and repaired. Mr. Luke is using a geophone loaned to Muenster by the City of Sherman.

VALLEY CREEK JOINS MUENSTER PUPILS IN TAKING STATE EXAMS

About 8 students of the Valley Creek school will be in Muenster to join Muenster High School students in taking the State College Entrance Examinations, Principal Elton Burger stated Tuesday after making arrangements with Enos Steen, principal at Valley Creek.

The exams, which are provided by the state department of education as a convenience to students of non-affiliated schools, will be taken before May 15. Any student passing a course in that exam will not be required to take another exam in the course if and when he enters college.

CROSS DEDICATED

This large cross at the top of a hill at the east edge of Clarinda, Iowa, dedicated this Easter has been made a permanent outdoor shrine, free to the use of any who care to use it for worship. It is permanently flood-lighted by the simple and costless power of a wind-charger such as are now common to give power for farm radios and small lighting systems. The cross was placed by direction of the pastor of the United Presbyterian church of Clarinda, The Rev. Mr. Henry Orr Lietman. By night its glow may be seen for several miles.

ALMOST 500 GUESTS PRESENT FOR ANNUAL INSURANCE CO. DANCE

About 475 persons is the estimated attendance at the State Reserve Life Insurance dance given Tuesday night through the joint efforts of the main office and its Cooke County representatives, F. E. Schmitz, Joe Schmitz and Charles Gandillion. It was held in the K. of C. Hall.

Streamers, confetti, and clownish caps were there in abundance to give a true holiday color to the gala event that continued in full force until 1:30 o'clock. Contests added more variety and interest.

The large number of Cooke County guests was noticeably swelled by a good attendance from cities as far distant as 100 miles.

LOCAL MEN ATTEND SOIL CONSERVATION MEET IN PILOT POINT

A movement which, it is hoped, will eventually result in a gigantic soil conservation project covering the entire Lake Dallas watershed, was introduced at a community meeting in Pilot Point on Wednesday of last week, when four citizens of Muenster and two soil conservation workers of the government CCC camp at Denton met with a representative group of Pilot Point citizens to discuss ways and means of reaching their goal.

The meeting was arranged by the vocational agriculture teacher of the Pilot Point high school in co-operation with joint efforts by Herbert Meurer and the Pilot Point postmaster to secure necessary data for the contemplated project.

"The outstanding hindrance to be overcome," Mr. Meurer explained to the group, "is that this state has not passed an enabling act by which it

6 YEAR MILK RECORD AT CHEESE FACTORY SHATTERED THURSDAY

A six year record for milk receipts at the cheese factory was shattered on last Thursday and Friday when the figure stepped up to 60,500 pounds. The previous high production figure was only a few pounds over 60,000 established in April 1932.

Warm weather bringing out droves of flies to cut down herd production as well as to cause rejection of several cans of soured milk, was responsible for an immediate decrease to almost 58,000 on Saturday and Sunday, Rudy Hellman, manager of the plant said, but it has again passed 60,000 and, under favorable conditions, will probably continue to rise until about May 15. The peak production is estimated at about 65,000.

EXPANSION PROGRAM AT CHEESE FACTORY NOW IN FULL SWING

The boiler long awaited at the cheese plant was brought in Tuesday. With the assistance of several men and Andy Flusche's winch truck, J. W. Hess, superintendent of the plant's expansion program, spent all day loading the huge boiler at the Gainesville Water Works, transporting it to Muenster and unloading it at the plant.

On Wednesday Mr. Hess and his assistants were busy locating the boiler in the new annex and preparing to build the fire box and apply the asbestos coating to exposed areas.

The plant is expected to be a beehive of activity for at least the next thirty days. When the boiler is ready for use the old boiler will be removed and the small emergency boiler moved up beside it. Completion of the walls on the annex will take place as soon as the old boiler is out of the way.

What is now the boiler room will be fitted with heavy condensing equipment which has been ordered and is due to arrive sometime next week.

Another structure that is a part of the building program is the cooling tower. The concrete foundation was completed on Friday of last week and subsequent work will continue as men find time to spare from other work.

Plant Manager Rudy Hellman stated the men expect to have the entire program completed in time to begin condensing whey during the early part of June.

MUENSTER HATCHERY PREPARES TO LOCK UP FOR CURRENT SEASON

Activity at the Muenster Hatchery this week was confined principally to packing away equipment for the summer and preparing for Felix Becker's exodus during the early part of next week.

The last hatch is due to come out of the incubator next Monday, all deliveries should be over on the following day, and Mr. Becker will be free to go back to the farm as soon as he cleans up and locks up.

In reviewing the season's business Mr. Becker estimated an increase of at least 50 per cent over that of last year. A good number of satisfied customers in the community, he said, were back with larger orders and induced many new customers to give the hatchery a trial. In the same way the hatchery extended its trade area over the surrounding communities. Mail orders also played a part in the hatchery's success. Another prominent factor was the tendency toward substantial increases in flocks over those of last year.

Mr. Becker regards this year's this year's business as a stepping stone to an even more successful season next year. Some new patrons have already expressed their intentions of patronizing him next year as a result of recommendations from satisfied customers.

The establishment of more numerous certified throughbred flocks is Mr. Becker's plan for next year. Inducements to poultry raisers will be premium prices for hatching eggs. For the hatchery his plan permits an opportunity to offer a greater number of throughbred chicks and eventually improving the standard of local flocks.

Recent Reports are that the Dave Greeson property on North Main was purchased last Saturday by Ed Schmitt.

ROSABELL DRIEVER TO JOIN ENTERPRISE STAFF NEXT WEEK

A new era in the history of the Muenster Enterprise begins next week when Rosabell Driever, for the past three years associated with the Muenster News, makes her introductory bow as a member of the Enterprise staff.

With the assistance of this talented and energetic reporter, the Enterprise publishers confidently look forward to a program of steady growth in both quantity and quality and the establishment of their product as an outstanding publication, thoroughly representative of the thriving community it represents.

Rosabell's duties will remain very much the same as they were with her previous connection. She will solicit news items, advertising and subscriptions and give special attention to the paper's social and personal columns.

Replacing her on the Muenster News staff is Josephine Wilde.

BULCHER SWAMPED 27-13 WEDNESDAY BY MUENSTER BIG BOYS

Regaining their composure after a heart breaking loss to the school-boy upstarts, the Muenster Seniors, or Old Folks, or whatever they call themselves, came back with a bang Wednesday night to take a well earned 27 to 13 decision from Newby's tribe of Bulcher.

In spite of the long, one sided count the game was no cinch for the local lads and showed flashes of neat performance in many spots. Both clubs pounded the ball lustily to net the large number of runs. Bulcher got 13 safeties and Muenster got 22. The only homers were by Harper Monroe and Paul Walterscheid.

Another scheduled game for Wednesday night, between Ross Point and Muenster's junior contenders was called off when the visitors failed to appear.

A most humiliating game was that in which Paul Walterscheid's warriors bit the dust before "Poss" Swirczynski's lineup of little boys. Going in with a threat to annihilate the lads, the oldsters cracked, flew to pieces, and left their opponents cross the platter 20 times. A last inning spurge for 4 saved them the embarrassment of being blanked.

A game regarded as more than the money's worth is Paul Walterscheid's scheduled attempt to stop the Marathon runners of Gainesville Friday night. Advance dope proclaims the crew as speedy performers who will make the old timers park their rheumatism to stay in the running.

In spite of cool evenings, the games are drawing encouraging attendance that promises to increase as the season advances and more teams get into the running. At the present time there is a probability that the Lindsay athletes will succeed in gathering their quorum and be over for an opening contest soon.

The ball field is said to be in the best condition ever. All weeds have been cut in the infield and the ground has been made as slick as a floor by grading.

NICK TREATS SCOUTS TO WEEK-END FISHING TRIP AT LAKE DALLAS

Fishing was very very poor but the scouts had a grand time in spite of it last Saturday night and Sunday when they went to Lake Dallas as guests of their scoutmaster, Nick Miller.

Leaving here about 3 in the afternoon six of the boys and Mr. Miller and Scout Committee Chairman Herbert Meurer drove to the lake with a generous supply of food and all equipment necessary to prepare their anticipated huge catch of fish. But the fish refused to be caught. The net result of hours of patient waiting was a very few legal size fish and several more undersized fish that had to be thrown back.

In Mr. Miller's opinion the boys had plenty of fun. Their appetites were heavy and their spirits light.

Those making the trip were Louis Nieball, Norman Luke, Ray Wilde, Eugene Schmitz, Gerald Stelzer, and J. D. Harmon. J. D. is a new scout who was admitted to the troop last Friday.

The boys' regular Monday evening meeting was occupied with cleaning and packing away the equipment they had used on their outing.

McKinney Men Shoot Last Load Surface Material At Noon Wednesday

Highway 5 in Cooke County is open to traffic.

At noon Wednesday the R. W. McKinney surfacing crew shot its last load of asphalt and opened its entire expanse of road to the public. The barricades were not removed, however, because Thomas and Rattliff, paving in Montague County, had not completed their job between Saint Jo and the county line.

Reports Wednesday evening were that the Saint Jo end of the road would be open sometime Thursday and that all barricades would be removed at that time. McKinney workers were reasonably certain that the entire highway would be open during this week-end.

As far as the public is concerned the job is finished. From now on the road will remain open permanently but a considerable amount of work still faces a crew of workers. Extensive grader work will be necessary to get shoulders in the proper condition, then all the roadside must be planted in grass. The drains and grass retards will also be placed where necessary.

More McKinney workers are pulling out since the application of surface material is completed. Equipment was being prepared for shipment Thursday.

TUESDAY SEES START OF ACTIVITY BY NEW REFINERY MANAGERS

Muenster's newest business, the Muenster Oil and Refining Company, fired up its stills for the first time Tuesday and offered its first products to the public that evening.

In speaking of his venture, Jack Hunter, owner and manager of the business, which until two weeks ago was known as A. G. Hutton's Muenster Refining Company, stated that it is his intention to build a thriving business that will be mutually beneficial to himself and the people of Muenster.

Both Mr. Hunter and his assistant, J. F. Muense have a background of more than 20 years in the refinery business and Fred Hennigan, who spent several years in the employ of Mr. Hutton is thoroughly familiar with the local plant.

Crude from the Muenster oil field will be used in the refinery. It is described by Mr. Hunter as a good grade of crude from which he and his assistants will be able to put out the highest quality products.

Markets for gasoline, kerosene, distillate, gas oil and fuel oil have already been secured, Mr. Hunter continued, but he is especially anxious to develop a good local market. He intends to contact tractor farmers and have them give his products a trial. Another inducement he will offer is a lower rate to those who come to the refinery for delivery. Tax exemption tickets for tractor customers are already on hand. The refinery's first shipment of high grade lubricating oil and grease is expected this week-end.

"I see possibilities for a prosperous future here," Mr. Hunter said. "I am going to make Muenster my home and its people my friends. I am going to give them good products at a saving and develop the local refining business into a real community asset."

TELEPHONE COMPANY SETS LARGER POLES NEAR ROCK STATION

At a short meeting of officers of the Muenster Telephone Company Monday afternoon it was decided to replace line poles for the wires crossing Highway 5 near the Rock Station with higher, more sturdy poles. The change is being made to provide ample clearance for high truck loads passing along the road.

Several smaller improvements also received approval at the meeting.

RETURNS SHOW HIGH GRADES FOR STUDENTS IN NATIONAL CONTEST

There was cause for disappointment and also for rejoicing last Friday when Latin students of the Parochial High School learned of results in the national Latin contest they entered several months ago. No one was so fortunate as to win a prize but all had the consolation of knowing that their grades were well above the average grade of all entries in the contest.

It was the annual high school outing and a much more successful day than their choice of last year when a near cloudburst interrupted their fun and soaked them thoroughly. On Tuesday clouds threatened again but did not strike.

Food was the feature of the outing, and it in turn was featured by camp fire toasted wieners and ice cream. All the trimmings for both dishes were also there in abundance. When the crowd was not eating it was enjoying a well planned schedule of picnic games and contests.

For generosity in providing cars for the party the sisters expressed special appreciation to J. B. Wilde, Matt Miller, C. J. Wimmer, Barney Voth and Felix Becker.

FEDERAL INJUNCTION
BLOCKS ARBITRARY
GAS RATE REDUCTION

Federal Judge James C. Wilson sitting in Fort Worth Monday restrained temporarily the cities of Quanah, Memphis and Wellington from enforcing ordinances reducing natural gas rates. United Gas Corporation, which serves the cities, filed separate petitions for each city charging that the company had not been given an opportunity to be heard before the reduction was ordered.

This follows closely a federal court temporary injunction against El Paso where the city council had reduced rates without giving the company a hearing. This case was filed by Texas Cities Gas Company, a member of Lone Star Gas System.

A few cities and towns passed rate reduction ordinances or resolutions inviting the Railroad Commission to investigate gas rates, following announcement by two Railroad Commissioners, who are running for high state offices, that the commission would take concurrent original jurisdiction with city councils and investigate gas rates free of charge upon invitation. Lone Star Gas System officials deny that the commission has such a legal right.

"As a result of another decision in the Travis County District Court last week denying the Texas Railroad Commission an injunction against Texas Cities and Community Natural Gas Companies, we expect to proceed by every legal means possible to prevent the Railroad Commission from making this company a political football and putting it to the enormous and unnecessary expense of rate controversies," Roy C. Coffey, general attorney for Lone Star, said. "We will permit the commission access to our books, records and property over our protest in incorporated cities and towns, as we agreed in open court, until the Commission's jurisdiction is finally settled. Regulation as prescribed by law is not opposed by us, but we will resist any and all illegal aggressions against our gas service for political purposes.

"The state attempted to enjoin the company from trying to prevent the Railroad Commission from exercising original jurisdiction in incorporated cities and towns. We believe this original jurisdiction is exclusive with the city council in such towns, and we expect to do everything we can legally to keep the Commission within the law in this matter.

"It is evident that since the Commission has done nothing to make valuations in these towns for seventeen years and has during such time taken the position that they had no original jurisdiction under the law in such cities, the Commission's sudden change in this election year is nothing more than a political move."

LOS ANGELES.—The game advanced to where there was $340,000 in checks and IOUs in the pot, one of the largest reported in these parts.

It was stud poker and three of the five players dropped out. When all bets were finished and the hole cards turned up, one player had two pair, kings and jacks, and the other had three sevens.

Harry T. Clifton, scion of a wealthy English family and a visitor here, told District Attorney Burton Pitts Saturday, after obtaining a temporary court order halting payment on his checks for $150,000, that he held the two pair. Lew Brice, former song and dance man and brother of Fanny Brice, the comedienne, held the three sevens, he said.

Clifton charged "trick and device, and misrepresentation," claiming that Brice had represented himself as a wealthy man, capable of paying a similar loss had the cards gone against him.

John Klein, chief investigator for the District Attorney, said guards had been furnished for Clifton after he had received a telephone threat that unless he ordered payment on the checks "the boys will take it out of your hide."

The other players, Clifton said, were Tommy Guinan, brother of the late Texas Guinan; Jack Reynolds and George Lewis. He said that two years ago he met Brice and Lewis, who represented himself as a millionaire, that he lost $10,000 to them in a poker game and thought nothing of it.

A week ago he met Guinan at Long Beach where he is staying. He said they looked up Lewis and Reynolds and telephoned for Brice, who was supposed to be in Los Angeles but arrived in a surprisingly short time.

Clifton said the five played dealers choice and he lost about $1,000. Then came the big hand.

He had kings back to back, Clifton said, and had bet $50,000 up to the last card. On the fifth card he got a second jack, while Brice had only a pair of sevens showing, so he bet another $100,000. Then Brice called and turned over the third seven.

Superior Judge Emmet H. Wilson granted a restraining order against a Los Angeles bank, where payment was to have been made. The $50,000 check was on a New York bank and the $100,000 draft was on a London bank.

Brice said Clifton had appeared a good loser and watched him pocket the checks without a whimper.

State Attorney General U. S. Webb recently held in effect that draw poker was legal, provided there was no house take, but that stud poker was specifically defined in the penal code as a game of chance and therefore illegal.

NEARLY ALL DRIVING
3 TO 4 A. M. SUNDAY
FOUND TO BE DRUNK

CHICAGO.—A man in a white tunic stepped into the street and halted a passing automobile. It was 3 a. m. Sunday.

"Here," he said, extending a toy balloon to the startled driver, "blow this up."

The driver obliged and the white-clad man seized the inflated balloon, ran to a trailer parked near by and closed the door.

Despite his irregular procedure at such an hour the man in the tunic was not intoxicated. But he did establish that virtually every motorist operating his car at 3 to 4 o'clock Sunday morning was under the influence of liquor.

The finding was disclosed Saturday by the Northwestern University traffic institute in the first scientific sampling ever made of the extent of drinking among automobile drivers and the days and hours when one is most likely to encounter the drinking driver on street or highway.

The man in the white tunic was Richard L. Holcomb, director of the traffic institute, or one of his assistants located at strategic points throughout Chicago and its suburbs for more than a week.

"Those inflated balloons," he explained, "were really a scientific measuring device. Since there is close correlation between alcohol on the breath and alcohol in the blood stream and the brain, tests made of the air blown into those balloons showed accurately which drivers had been drinking and exactly the extent of their intoxication."

Inside the trailer laboratories air from the inflated balloons was passed through reddish-purple solution of potassium permanganate and sulphuric acid. If the solution bleached a pale yellowish brown it was incontrovertible that the obliging, balloon-blowing driver had been tipping.

That much established, the remainder of the air in the sample balloon was tested on the drunkometer developed by Dr. R. N. Harger of the Indiana University school of medicine. The drunkometer gave an accurate measurement of the extent of the motorist's intoxication.

"We found," Holcomb said, "that the peak for driving after drinking is reached between 3 and 4 a. m. Sunday when almost every driver on the street has had at least one drink. The same hour during the remainder of the week finds drivers about equally divided between those who have and those who have not been drinking."

The low point for prevalence of intoxicated drivers, the survey revealed is at 10 a. m.

"One thing that surprised us," Holcomb said, "was the fact that of more than 2,000 drivers sampled at all hours of the day and night only twenty-four, drunk or sober, refused to comply when informed a scientific driving survey was being conducted."

DON'T QUIT

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will, When the road you're trudging seems all up hill,

When the funds are low and the debts are high And you want to smile, but you have to sigh,

When care is pressing you down a bit, Rest, if you must, but Don't Quit!

Life is queer with its twists and turns,

As everyone of us some time learns, And many a failure turns about,

When he might have won had he stuck it out;

Don't give up though the pace seems slow—

You may succeed with another blow!

MOTHER'S DAY

Again the day set aside to honor mothers in a special manner is at hand. Next Sunday people by the dozens will pin on their roses; more fortunate will be wearing red, others will show an inestimable loss in wearing white.

Respect and love of motherhood is one of the finer points of our civilization and holds its place of importance in spite of many alarming changes tending in the direction of materialism and selfishness. True, there are people who fail to remember the sacrifice and suffering of their mothers, but even those join in the general movement to make mothers happier on their special day. Whether such persons are entitled to credit for their thoughtfulness when an entire nation reminds them, is questionable, but that the nation generally honors its mothers is a praiseworthy circumstance of which we can well be proud.

But forgetting the national viewpoint and considering our own individual attitudes, can we sincerely feel that Mother's Day means just what it should? Or are we just falling in line with another custom, honoring mothers and wearing roses because it is the fashionable thing to do?

The answer to this question must be made by sons and daughters, not by the mothers. The world knows that mothers go to the grave with a great loyalty for their children, they will not complain of the consideration they receive or of the heartaches they endure. Sons and daughters must decide whether their display of affection next Sunday is just a fashionable gesture or whether it is founded on a sincere love during every day of the year.

Of course circumstances do not permit the observance of every day with special attention toward mothers. The struggle for life makes that impossible and impractical, and mothers themselves do not desire it. A correct and more sincere way of honoring mothers is to be the fine men and women they wished their children to be. Persons who follow vices of any kind cannot truthfully say they love their mothers. Every time they cheat, steal, or injure others, or involve themselves in any shady affair they cause pain to their mothers.

Mother's Day has a real meaning to those who strive every day to be the kind of children their mothers wished. This thought should be uppermost next Sunday.

RIGHT PREVAILS

Recent press dispatches from war torn Spain indicate that the end is near. After about two years of the most brutal conflict in history, right is taking the upper hand and promises to restore the ancient traditions and customs that have been sacred to Spaniards through the centuries.

Almost as important as the restoration of tranquility in Spain is the severe blow being dealt to Communism. In the Iberian Peninsula that system, as an important power, can be said to be gasping its last.

Another encouraging indication is that revealed by H. R. Knickerbocker, ace observer for the International News Service, who says that Russia's real terror is condemned to death, that Communism is destroying itself.

When considering the many mock trials and executions that have held Russians in terror, one is inclined to believe that an upheaval is not far in the offing. Any system that subordinates individual rights to state advantage, any system that discards religion and morality with their attendant conviction of duty, any system that must hold sway by ruthlessly murdering all opposition is on unstable grounds. People will not submit indefinitely to the bullying of government henchmen, to starvation, misery and filth. Some day the Russian powder keg will be ignited and a system of tyrants will be blown to bits.

As the Spanish war cloud is drifting away it is consoling to learn that patriots of that fair land are regaining here in America much of the favor that was denied them through the influence of highly efficient Red propaganda. The recent letter by 61 Protestant bishops calling on American Catholics to use their influence in having the Franco forces desist from air raids on non combatants brought forth scores of letters from other Protestants who recalled that Reds invited disaster by using schools and hospitals for munitions plants and that non combatants in Barcelona should have heeded Franco's warning.

Controversy over the famous letter also brought to prominence an analogy with our own history. Franco is referred to as a rebel just as George Washington was a rebel. The rebel army is compared to our rebel army in the war for freedom from foreign aggression, which in this case is Red Russia. Loyalists are those who were loyal to foreign aggressors. Red propaganda succeeded in having its selection of terms accepted but the world is slowly getting a different view of the ideals on each side.

OUR NEW ROAD

A new era in the history of Muenster opened last Saturday when the barricade was removed from Highway 5 east of town. Sometime this week (perhaps it has happened before this appears) the west section of that same road will be opened.

Muenster has the good fortune to be located on an important traffic artery of North Texas. Before long the road will be regarded in its proper value and will carry much of the travel that here-to-fore has passed over other roads.

The word "artery" was used in another sense also. From elementary physiology we recall that arteries carry the nourishing, vital blood to various parts of the body. Our town is a tiny spot in this vast country and now makes its bid for some of the trade life that is destined to pass over our trade artery.

Every one of our business men stands ready to accept all the trade the new road will bring in. It is more important, however, that they attract more trade. A better road shortens the distance between our business men and competitors of other cities. Unless this fact is fully appreciated, and unless we strive to surpass our competitors in values, service, and courtesy that road will fail to bring in new business and will even carry away much of our local business.

We take pride in our reputation for industry, integrity and prosperity. Our town is one of the very few that did not suffer during the national depression. In other places Muenster people are known for being able to carry on efficiently while others need help. Is it because circumstances favor us, or has our progress been due to our merits?

Naturally we contend that we have merited every advantage that has come our way. But the real test is just around the corner. If we have been getting along well because a sort of isolation kept much business at home, we are due to begin a backward slide very shortly. If our progress was based on merit we will not only retain what business we have but attract more of it. Our reputation as well as our future is at stake.

Muenster has wonderful possibilities in her own right and the new road opens another great opportunity. Much depends now on our attitude. Will the new highway be considered a road to or a road from Muenster?

He that establishes his argument by noise and command, shows that his argument is weak.—Montaigne.

What Others Have to Say--

A GREAT SOCIAL FORCE

The thing most vital to every normal man is his ability to work and provide for his dependents. If he owns life insurance, that part of him which has provided, week by week, lives on.

There are two kinds of wills a man can leave when he dies. A man's property will distribute that which he has accumulated. His life insurance will distribute, in small part, that which he might have accumulated had he lived. It keeps him living until his obligations to those who loved him are fulfilled.

Life insurance is a social force. Human live-values—that is, the character and ability and earning power of individual citizens—constitute a real asset to this nation which must be given careful consideration and constant protection. The perpetuation of family relationship—that is, the love and affection of human beings—must become a chief national concern. The pegging of the price of wheat and of cotton is no more important than the safeguarding of life insurance reserves. Life insurance is different from property in its usual sense—expendable, consumable, speculative and every other kind. Money put into life insurance is different from that with which we take fliers in real estate or in stocks.

Life insurance policies cancel debts; help pay taxes; liquidate mortgages, guarantee income; help build homes; keep children in school; stabilize business; prevent financial worry.—Royal Neighbor.

IN SHABBYTOWN

The following poem, written by Walt Mason, the Kansas poet, was submitted by one of our readers, who suggested that it might be of use while the clean-up and paint-up campaign, sponsored by the improvement committee of the Chamber of Commerce, is in progress. This poem, written in Mason's inimitable "rhymed-prose" style, is so appropriate at the present time that we are reproducing it without comment, dedicating it to those who are sponsoring and participating in the paint-up drive. The poem reads:

"In Shabbytown they do not care if things look seedy everywhere. They have no pep, they've lost their grip, they simply sit around and yip, in envy's tones, of Glossyville, the shining village on the hill. Oh, Shabbytown is punk and gray, and it shows symptoms of decay, and strangers passing through remark, 'It surely dates back to the Ark.' 'Clean Up and Paint Up' makes men frown along the streets in Shabbytown. A can of paint makes no appeal to this bum village down at the heel; the people think there is no sense in going to so much expense; so things are always going down, and getting worse in Shabbytown. It always gives my soul a thrill when I arrive in Glossyville. The town looks like a blooming bride; the people take a hearty pride, in making things look clean and bright, and in their labors take delight. They're lavish with the helpful paint, selecting colors chaste or quaint, and decorating every shack; thus warding off decay's attack, and making all the buildings look like buildings read of in a book. And strangers, when they see the town say, 'Here we'll come and settle down, and raise us nineteen kids a-piece, and live and die as slick as grease.' This happy burg goes right ahead, while Shabbytown is prone and dead."—Denison Herald.

IT STILL PAYS!

Just 234 years ago this month America witnessed the publication of its first permanent newspaper, the Boston "News Letter."

But the birth of this famed fledgling on April 24,

1704, is memorable not only as a worthy landmark in the history of American journalism. It is also memorable because the "News Letter's" new ancient pages contained the first advertisements America had seen, and because these advertisements held revolutionary implications. They contained the seeds of the mass production of goods, lower costs, and an increasingly higher living standard.

Without advertising, your family car would possibly cost $3,000, your washing machine $400, a tube of toothpaste, $1.

We mention these things, and we hope you will excuse the editor for taking this opportunity to talk a bit of shop, because in looking at this newspaper's advertisements today, you may say of some item, "Looks like a bargain all right, but how much is this advertising me?"

In answer to this, Paul S. Willis, an authority on advertising costs, recently disclosed the precise truth of the matter. On a nationally advertised brand of soup, you pay 35-1000th of a cent per can, for advertising, on a similar advertised soft drink, 1,576-100,000 on each five cent bottle. On all other popular items the costs are just as microscopic.

But as every wise businessman knows, first you've chanted hide their light under a bushel, as the saying got to tell the world what you have to offer. If mer goes, the consumer can't be expected to see the light, or their bargains. Far-sighted merchants knew that when they placed ads in the Boston "News Letter" 234 years ago. And their principle remains constant, "It pays to advertise!"—Ozona Stockman.

WHAT CAUSES 'EM

Motorists who wonder what causes the greatest number of accidents might try listening to Chief Flynn, for 30 years a traffic officer on the Chicago police department. He lists the causes in this order: First, speed second, booze; third, horns, and fourth, carelessness. It probably will not surprise the average motorist to learn that most mishaps are the result of speed, though many had come to believe that booze had edged into first place within the past year or so. But few can realize that the horn—held by many experts to be the almost unnecessary part of the car—is responsible for so many deaths. Flynn explains that horns confuse both the very young and the very old, and they rush in front of a car instead of away from it. His entire list is interesting and worthy of study, and that part referring to the horn especially. Every motorist should think that over.—Melvin Enterprise.

THEORY BETWEEN THE PLOW HANDLES

In one town a number of years ago was a banker who dispensed loans to farmers with a lordly hand and felt that the dispensing gave him the right to tell them how to farm. Farmers learned that part of the business of getting a loan was to listen with a show of respect to the old man's advice. Then they went home and did as they pleased.

He told them what to plant and when to plant it, the time to harvest, and when to sell the livestock. Then the banker bought a farm himself, and somehow the counsel he had given so freely to borrowing farmers did not seem suitable for his own use. Instead he began asking advice from the very farmers he used to give it to so confidentially.

It often happens that a person can tell others how to do a thing which he cannot do himself. One of the most valuable instructors in an agricultural college is a man who twice failed farming for himself. And one of the state's most brilliant heads of the department of agriculture was a distinct failure in his own farming.

See for Yourself What It's Like to Cultivate with the "70"

Don't take anybody's say-so about what a great job the Oliver Row Crop "70" does with its centrally mounted cultivator. Drive the "70" and see for yourself how it has everything, does everything and is a beauty to handle as well as in looks.

See the shovels working in plain sight right in front of you, as you roll straight down the row, at 4 1/2 m.p.h. on Tip Toe Wheels that tread so lightly that they actually cultivate the soil. You draw close up to the fence...a second's pause, up come the gangs as you whip the wheel around and the automatic steering brakes come into play...you're on line, the brakes release, down come the gangs and away you go down the rows with a running start.

That's cultivating as only the Row Crop "70" cultivator does it. That's smooth, lively 6-cylinder power under finger tip control from the comfortable driver's seat—automotive steering with steering-braking on turns—the Oliver Variable Speed Governor Control that enables you to use only the fuel needed to do the work—speed that gets cultivating done when it will do the most good.

The "70" is built in two fuel types: the "70" IIC with high compression engine for gasoline and the "70" KD with engine designed for kerosene or distillate. Pick your fuel and your "70" and get modern low-cost tractor power. See us about a demonstration today.

Confetti

That opinions differ on almost every subject was evident again last week when some said a fellow was lucky and others said he showed good judgment in having his crop insured against hail. Luck or no luck it must be admitted he is quite fortunate now in being able to realize something on a demolished crop. Furthermore he is quite unique in that he was back to report his loss the day after his policy went into effect. On Tuesday he paid his premium, Wednesday the policy became effective, Thursday the hail came.

Judging from some reports lately that man may be just lucky after all. If worms in grain are as bad as some say he was lucky to have the weather strike it first. It is possible that the ones who have received all the sympathy since the storm will be no worse off than the others.

This is the time of year when farmers begin getting uneasy. Every one is in the position of a big time gambler with big money in the pot, tensely hoping the swag is his. It has been said that the farmer is the world's greatest gambler. He begins putting money into the game at plowing time and adds to his expense with seeding and other tilling operations. Playing with big stakes he gambles against weather and finally against the market. Every year he stands a chance of coming out of the game with less than he put in. Frequently his farm and equipment and home are at stake. Compared with him the salaried man with an assured income is a piker.

Something I did not know until a recent magazine item told me so, is that beavers are amphibious, which, according to Mr. Noah Webster, means that they can live either in water or on land. Perhaps that is the reason beavers are said to be able to do more work than any other animal by a dam site. The mention of dams reminds us of extensive government dam projects, and that the way to discover a person's attitude on the subject is to notice what syllable is emphasized in pronouncing the two words.

That there is a fine art in using words correctly is a fact scrupulously and consistently remembered by Noah Webster, the dictionary man. It is said that Mrs. Webster once caught her hubby kissing the maid. "Why, Noah, I'm surprised," she said. He promptly corrected "No, wifey, you are astonished, I'm the one who is surprised."

Sometimes we are led to believe that the R. W. McKinney road crew intentionally gives out a lot of bum tips in order to make newspaper people appear ridiculous. We cannot help recalling that one of the fellows expressed the possibility of opening the new road two weeks ago. That didn't happen. The next Wednesday they were complaining about rain that would keep them idle at least until Friday and that the east portion of the road would probably be finished by this week-end. But they resumed work Thursday and opened the road the following Saturday. Is it surprising that people read the papers and still say "I wonder how they're getting along?"

Misinformation on details has made gouts out of us paper people, but just the same we are grateful to Jack and Joe and Ben and the others who did keep us well posted on general progress. People away from the road were not wise to the little mistakes but they do know about how things were coming along.

Will a lady admit her age for the price of a theatre ticket? They're going to find out at the Majestic next Sunday when all mothers over 50 years of age will be guests of the house. There's generosity in that offer, but at the same time it sort of puts some ladies on the spot.

Oh, were some guys humiliated after the Junior-Senior softball game last Friday night. It seems that an enthusiastic crowd of youngsters—mostly of the tribe that used to call themselves the Peppershakers—have been horning into the lineup frequently, and the older heads decided the kids were due for a first class squelching. Friday's game was the result. The seniors came in like lions and went out like lambs.

But this affair is not settled, they say. There will come a day. As far as ball fans are concerned nothing better could have happened. That game set off a sizzling rivalry that will probably last through the season. Furthermore, Muenster definitely has two clubs. We'll take the liberty of naming them the Juniors and Seniors.

There are rumors that a whole gang of peeping toms in a neighboring city were herded to the hogsgow and fined for looking on while two girls were changing clothes before an open window. While admitting that their action was not in the best of taste we are inclined to believe that the men were sinned against as much as sinning. There is a weakness in human nature that is reluctant to ignore such a spectacle as the boys were observing. If anyone was at fault it was the two young things who, it seems, should have been fined for indecent exposure rather than the men for indecent observation. But such is our twisted idea of chivalry. A woman can be downright offensive in her actions or attire and the man who notices it is an evil minded scoundrel.

Shorty Herr doesn't wish to hear anything about the theft of his pickup Saturday night. Coming down to his garage Sunday he noticed the machine missing and promptly phoned a report to county officers at Gainesville. At just about the time a state wide search was getting under way Shorty saw his own book-keeper coming in with the car. Anthony explained that at the time he was ready to leave Saturday evening Shorty was not around, so he took it for granted it would be OK to run a used car home. Shorty agreed that it was OK but he did hate to call the officers and admit he had turned a false alarm.

BURGER AND CHARGES PRACTICE FOR TITLE GAMES IN BASEBALL

Toney Burger is working again to get his Sumacs in shape for the annual state high school baseball race. Information received by him early this week revealed that his opening encounter will be with the winner of the Tredell-Hillsboro game after which, if the boys survive, they will be eligible for entry in the State High School Baseball Tournament in Dallas. Winners of eight districts are to be represented at that time.

Though low on material and with a very slim chance of making a showing, Toney says he will give his boys the pleasure of a trip and the benefit of a little more experience. The time and place of the game remains to be decided by Mr. Burger and the coach of the team he will play.

For practice Toney has arranged a tilt with the colorful Brownies, the colored crew that has obliged with previous practice games and never fail to put on a show. That encounter is set for next Sunday afternoon. Another practice game has been arranged with a group of young men taken principally from Hans Cook's Gainesville Cookies squad. The date has not yet been announced.

SOIL CONSERVATION

may qualify for Federal assistance on so vast a project. Before we can get help from Washington," he said, "we must have co-operation from Austin." Efforts to have the act brought before state officials is the first step to be undertaken, it was agreed.

To that end a suggestion was made for a general meeting open to all persons of the Lake Dallas watershed. By that means the ultimate goal and the plan of action can be made known to all concerned.

The reason behind the present movement is the alarming rate of soil erosion in this area, a circumstance which is annually robbing farmers of millions of dollars worth of productivity. That the project would have the approval and support of Dallas is taken for granted because the soil lost to farmers is gradually silting its water supply and slowly but inevitably forcing that city to repeat its huge expenditure in another place.

A smaller soil conservation project extending over a radius of 20 miles from Denton is now in progress.

Muenster men attending the meeting were J. W. Meurer, J. M. Weinzapfel, Herbert Meurer and Rudy Hellman.

CITY USES GEOPHONE TO DISCOVER LEAKS IN WATER MAINS

The leakage of water that has been distressing city officials for several months is being eliminated at least in part, according to a statement Tuesday by J. M. Luke, who during the past week has busied himself at every favorable moment in hunting leaks with a geophone, a highly sensitive instrument that amplifies the very faint hissing or gurgling of underground escaping water.

The instrument was loaned to the city by the city of Sherman, where it was said to have been quite useful in aiding the discovery of leaks.

Being supersensitive the geophone can be used only under favorable conditions. Myriad conflicting sounds are caused by traffic, wind, the rustling of grass or leaves, distant trains etc., so that the tell-tale hissing is frequently drowned out by other noises. Sometimes a sound is heard but it is questionable whether the origin is a leaking main, a drain pipe or a natural underground current.

Present plans are to explore the entire length of the main. To date only a small portion has been covered but three major leaks and several minor leaks are already discovered.

HOUSECLEANING AND RENOVATING IN EFFECT AT SHORTY'S GARAGE

Spring housecleaning and renovation has been very much in effect at the Herr Motor Company during the past week. Outstanding in the improvements is a neon strip along the canopy over the gasoline pumps and retouching of display signs.

Inside the walls were favored with a new coat of paint, and a new cash register was installed as office equipment.

Improvements in the shop include a complete set of special new tools for the late model Fords and brake equipment.

BEN SEYLER TO WEAR CAST 6 MORE WEEKS, ARM NOT IMPROVED

Ben Seyler is destined to carry his right arm in a cast for at least 6 more weeks. He received the bad news Monday when he went to his Fort Worth doctor in the hope of having the cast removed and was advised that the injured bones had not begun to mend.

About six weeks ago Mr. Seyler had a small piece of bone taken from his shin and grafted to his forearm bone, which refused to heal in spite of the constant attention since his injury in an accident early last June. His leg is healing nicely from the operation in which the portion of shin bone was secured.

A more favorable report was given to Mrs. Seyler in connection with the leg injury she received in the same accident. Likewise very obstinate in healing, the bones are now said to be well on their way. Mrs. Seyler also feels much better and intends to take over her household duties in the near future.

MÜNSTER CITIZENS FAVOR REMOVAL OF DAM AT GAINESVILLE

Fifty-one names of Muenster citizens appeared Tuesday on a petition, which was at the FMA Store for about two weeks, requesting the County Commissioners' Court to eliminate both dams at the Elm creek in Gainesville.

Fish have no chance to swim upstream past the dam, the petition stated, and the removal is suggested in the interests of fishermen in the western portion of this county. The change is considered especially desirable because the dam apparently has no practical use.

Other copies of the same petition have been in other Muenster business houses but the number of signatures each contained was not revealed.

from a two day fish-picnic which he describes as the most enjoyable of his long and varied angling career. The scene of his fun was the J. J. Taylor ranch, now leased as a dairy farm by Mr. Schenk's nephew and host, Joe Martini, and wife.

Trot and throw lines were used exclusively in catching ninety three cat fish during a fifteen hour period of fishing. All of them ranged from one half pound to a pound in size. Twenty of the one pounders were packed in ice and brought home.

Other guests on the ranch were Mrs. Kate Martini, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Martini and Miss Lillian Martini of Windthorst.
