

Proper Methods For Handling Of Wool Explained

Expert Details Procedure
At Meeting Of Wool Growers
Here Saturday.

More than 150 wool growers from town and surrounding counties attended a meeting in Brownwood Saturday afternoon to hear expert advice on how to prepare wool for market so that it will bring the top price, and to watch shearing demonstrations. S. P. Davis, specialist on Texas A. & M. College, explained proper shearing methods and gave detailed instructions as to how the wool should be handled following the shearing operation. Following the talk, two sheep were shorn.

The meeting was held at the rehearsal of Henry Stallings & Company, and was in charge of Elmer Stephens, manager of the firm. Chester Harrison, secretary of the Brownwood chamber of commerce, presided at the meeting, and introduced the speakers.

A number of Brownwood business men attended the meeting.

The value to Brownwood and surrounding country of the establishment of a wool and mohair warehouse in Brownwood was emphasized by speakers. Opening of a local market will make Brownwood an important wool and mohair center. It was agreed, and will bring national business to the city. Several wool buyers attended the meeting and made brief talks.

Mr. Davis told of the method of shearing and handling wool in Australia, premier wool producing country. He stated that the elaborate methods used there would not be practical in this country, due to smaller production.

Important details in preparing wool for the market, as outlined by Mr. Davis, are:

- Do not shear wool when wet; remove avoid wet wool, and place heavy estimate for shrinkage, if of is accepted.
- Shear indoors where it is possible. If necessary to shear outdoors, select protected place, where wool will be free from wind and dust.
- Watch the shears, and have men avoid "second clips" and cutting the sheep.
- Use paper twine, or cotton twine, to tie the fleece. Jute or rope is not acceptable, as unravelling and shows up in the fabric, causing heavy losses. (Many buyers will not buy wool not tied with paper or cotton twine.)
- Tie the fleece with the flesh side out.
- Keep the premises clean.
- Use proper wool bags, and pack the bags. (One year present stated he would not buy Brown county wool packed in 250 pound or bag. From 100 to 300 pounds per bag was estimated to be correct for this section.)
- Put not more than four fleeces in the wool bag before packing is started.
- Don't use paint that contains lead. Proper fluid markers are available.
- Don't feed sheep from overhead, as it gets the fleece dirty, keeping them free from chaff where possible.

The directions in the preparation of wool for market do not entail additional shearing expense. If instructions are followed for period of several years, the shepherd will be in a much better position to receive better return for the added interest in this part of the sheep business, Mr. Davis said.

Judge's Son Wins Wrigley Heiress

Their friends were surprised, but Mr. and Mrs. Denis Emons Sullivan, Jr., shown here honeymooning on a Honolulu-bound liner, weren't. They'd been planning their marriage for some time. The bride was Betty Offield, granddaughter of the late William Wrigley gum magnate. Sullivan is the son of a Chicago Judge.

COURT HOUSE BUSY PLACE THIS WEEK

The busiest place in Brown county this week was the Court House. County Agent C. W. Lehmburg's office, at the main entrance to the court house, saw plenty of activity as wheat checks were being distributed, and final details of the government's cotton acreage reduction program were being worked out. The County Agent and three assistants were waiting on hundreds of farmers daily.

Tax Collector Lee Meek's office was crowded throughout the first part of the week with last minute tax collections. Poll tax payments were unusually heavy during the last two days of payments, Tuesday and Wednesday. Several hundred people crowded the office Wednesday afternoon.

The office of Mrs. J. L. Karr, tax assessor, was equally a busy place. Collection of automobile license fees was transferred from across the hall during the last rush days, and caused a heavy rush of business until Wednesday, when it became known that automobile owners would be given added time in which to make payment. Mrs. Karr and deputies, however, were busy assessing 1934 taxes, and quite a few property owners were calling to make renditions.

County Judge Courtney Gray and the commissioners were busy closing final details incident to starting work on the Cross Cut highway, and straightening out the usual CWA problems that have become matters of office routine since last November.

On the second floor, District Judge E. J. Miller had convened district court Monday, causing the usual hurried activities in the sheriff's and district clerk's offices and the grand jury deliberations were bringing a number of witnesses to the court house.

Possibly the largest crowds visited the court house this week on business with the various offices of any week in many years. Quite a few politicians were around shaking hands, too.

Production Loan Meeting Is Called

County Agent C. W. Lehmburg has announced a Production Loan meeting to be held at the court house Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Mr. Lehmburg urged all who are interested in getting a production loan office located in Brownwood especially to attend the meeting.

DROUTH RELIEF IS ANTICIPATED HERE

Hope that Brown county will secure $40,000 in drouth relief money from the government was renewed this week with the receipt by County Judge Courtney Gray of a letter from Congressman Tom Blanton, stating that the projects submitted from this county come within the provisions of the emergency act appropriating the money for Texas work, and that the county seemed to be eligible for the appropriation.

Judge Gray had requested the $40,000, covering projects originally submitted from the county to the Public Works Administration, when the Civil Works Administration took over lateral highway construction in this county. Congressman Blanton previously had written that he would assist this county in getting the appropriation.

Early last year Congress appropriated $8,000,000 for relief in the storm stricken and drouth areas in Texas. Judge Gray pointed out that much damage had been done to the county during the storm last May, and that many counties receiving drouth aid have made much better crops than were made in this county last year. Most of the money appropriated to Texas has been spent in the Panhandle and Valley areas.

Ticket Sales For Legion Circus Good

Ticket sale for the American Legion Indoor Circus, to be held at the Municipal Auditorium February 19 to 24, has been good, according to J. A. Collins, commander of the post.

Tickets were put on sale the first of the week, with every member of the American Legion having a quota of tickets to offer. Sales will be continued through opening day of the circus.

Downtown offices of the circus have been established at 309 Center Avenue in the J. W. Remington building, and anyone wanting to purchase tickets or secure tickets to sell can get in touch with the managers at this office.

The circus is said to be one of the best on the road this year. It showed last week at Beaumont, and from Brownwood will go to San Antonio, where it will show under the auspices of the Shrine.

FARM DEBT OFFICE IS OPENED HERE

Miss Estelle Duren has been named office secretary of the district offices of the Farm Debt Adjustment Committee of Texas, which opened this week in Brownwood.

E. A. Tweedy, district representative, visited Brownwood to open the offices, which are located at 307 Brown street.

Anyone in financial distress over farm and ranch loans may call at the office at any time and get information on work of the committee.

Joe H. Brown, Brownwood, is chairman of the Brown county committee. Other members are: Pierce Burns, Owens, vice-chairman; E. A. Robason, May, secretary; A. M. Weedon, Brownwood, and W. F. Barnett, Bangs.

New Cotton Deadline February 15

EMPLOYMENT OFFICE MAY BE ESTABLISHED

Establishment of a government employment office in Brownwood by the United States Department of Labor is under consideration, according to information received here this week. Definite action on the proposal should be ascertained within the next few days.

Establishment of the office will relieve the CWA office of much work in securing employment for those on the re-employment rolls.

If established, the office will be managed by someone appointed by the U. S. Department of Labor, with a local advisory committee.

EFFORT BEING MADE TO GET MORE TIME FOR WORK AT LAKE

With work progressing rapidly at the park at Lake Brownwood as the time limit set by the CWA approaches, application has been made for an additional ten weeks of work in order to complete the construction program undertaken. The application was sent to the Texas Civil Works Administration this week, asking that the project be extended until May 1.

During the past few weeks, work has been concentrated on the construction of the club house at the lake, with some time being spent on the construction of roads thru the park. In addition to this work the original project calls for the construction of a golf course, four tennis courts, boat landings, picnic sites, and a number of minor improvements, which would make the park at Lake Brownwood one of the outstanding recreational centers in the state.

The Brownwood park project has been considered one of the most important CWA projects in West Texas by the state CWA officials, and local officials believe the project will be extended so that it can be completed. The project was begun the middle of December with an allotment of $31,584 for labor. Expenditures for material have been made in addition to the labor cost.

Roy E. Lane, state CWA engineer, is in charge of the local park projects in West Texas. He comes here to inspect the park from time to time. T. A. Dale, state CWA park supervising engineer, was here Saturday and made an inspection of the park. He was well pleased with the work being done and the plans for future work.

Postal Applications Will Close Feb. 13

Applications for appointment as permanent postmaster at Brownwood will close February 13, according to announcement of the United States Civil Service Commission. The position pays $3,200 year, and is one of a half dozen civil service appointments which will be filled during the coming month. George Kild is serving as acting postmaster under appointment of President Roosevelt.

Applications must be properly executed and filed with the United States Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C., prior to the hour of closing business on February 13, according to the announcement. Particulars regarding applications may be secured from Clyde D. Woods, local secretary of the commission, at the Brownwood postoffice.

Clerical Aid Given Brownwood Schools

Four clerical assistants and attendance officers went to work this week for the Brownwood city schools, following approval of projects covering their work by the Civil Works Administration.

The four new assistants are Mrs. Myrtle Kimberlin, Miss Vera Lacy, Mrs. J. L. Cross and Mrs. Elsie Buhler. They are at work at the Senior High School, Junior High School, Ford Ward School and South Ward School.

MINROE HEADS COUNTRY CLUB

D. D. McInroe was re-elected president of the Brownwood Country Club at the annual meeting of the board of directors this week. A. H. Bell was re-elected vice-president. Port Bludworth was elected chairman of the executive committee, with Jas. R. Mitcham and T. Carlson members.

TIME EXTENDED FOR SIGNING 1934-1935 GOVERNMENT COTTON ACREAGE REDUCTION CONTRACT

A TWO WEEKS extension of time within which farmers might sign the government's 1934-1935 cotton acreage reduction contracts was granted Thursday. This word was received by County Agent C. W. Lehmburg from Government authorities at Washington. Under the original program, all contracts were to have been signed by January 31, while the new instructions are that all contracts must be in the hands of the County Agent by February 15.

MONEY IS BEING PAID TO FARMERS

More than $30,000 was being distributed to Brown County farmers this week by County Agent C. W. Lehmburg and his assistants in the agent's office.

The latter part of last week cotton option checks totaling $10,124.50 were received by the county agent, in payment of 4 cents per pound to holders of government options on cotton. The options were given in part payment for the crop-up 1933 cotton.

The first of this week wheat checks totaling $13,094.60 were received by the county agent. These were in payment of 20 cents per bushel settlement to those who signed the wheat reduction contracts.

Tuesday, cotton bonus checks totaling $8,918.40 were received, bringing the total amount of money being distributed to farmers in this county during the week up to $31,237.00.

Distribution of this money entailed a monumental office task, which was being handled by the county agent and three assistants.

REV. A. E. PRINCE RESIGNS PASTORATE OF BAPTIST CHURCH

Dr. A. E. Prince, for the past seven years pastor of the First Baptist church, Brownwood, announced his resignation as pastor Sunday. He will enter into associational work with Dr. J. Howard Williams, state Baptist executive secretary, Dallas. It is understood that he will assume his new duties June 1.

Dr. Prince's resignation will be effective in 90 days, he stated in announcing his new plans. He will remain as pastor during this time, and will complete his work of organizing the 10th Baptist district, which includes 19 counties.

Miss Beulah Doerr, educational and music director of the church, also plans to resign at the close of the present school term, it was announced. She will graduate from Howard Payne College in the spring.

Dr. Prince has been pastor of the First Baptist church since June, 1927, coming here from Marion, Illinois, where he was pastor.

Discussion of a successor to Dr. Prince in the important position was rife this week, following the pastor's resignation. A definite movement to endeavor to get Rev. W. W. Chancellor, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Mineral Wells, and one of the outstanding ministers in the church in Texas, was under way. Another name frequently mentioned was that of Rev. W. R. Hornburg, pastor of the Coggin Avenue Baptist Church.

Extra Help Secured For Agent's Office

Miss Jeanette King and Miss Willie King have been added to the office staff of County Agent C. W. Lehmburg to assist him in the volume of work of the office now is doing incident to wheat reduction, corn and hog reduction, distribution of wheat and cotton checks closing final details of 1934-1935 cotton acreage reduction program of the government. These duties are in addition to the regular work of the county agent, and call for a volume of office record work.

Mrs. Ruby French continues her work in the county agent's office. One of the new employees was secured through approval of a CWA project for the work, and the other employed by Mr. Lehmburg.

When Mrs. Ed Ray of Culbertson county says "conservation," she means it. She killed and canned 12 chickens by home demonstration methods, saved the feathers for pillows, used the intestines for wolf bait, and gave the bones back to the flock.

Crowning Of The Queen Highlight Of Birthday Ball

Proceeds Will Be Sent To President Roosevelt Before End Of This Week.

More than $500 was realized for the Warm Springs Foundation for Sufferers of Infantile Paralysis Tuesday night when Brownwood joined 6,000 other cities in the United States in holding a Birthday Ball in honor of the 52nd birthday of President Roosevelt. The money will be forwarded to the President as Brownwood's contribution toward this worthy charity.

Total receipts of the ball were $792.50, and after deduction of expenses, Brownwood will be able to send President Roosevelt more than $500, the goal set by the Brownwood committee.

The ball was one of the most colorful entertainments ever held in Brownwood, and much credit is due Dr. Mollie W. Armstrong, general chairman, and her assistants for the splendid manner in which the entertainment was presented. From the opening numbers of the hour's entertainment features until the last dance, everything moved with clocklike precision, and spectators and participants all were pleased with the manner in which it was handled.

The high point of the evening was the coronation of the queen, Miss Frances Camp, who received her crown from Rufus Stanley, who was designated as Brownwood's Most Distinguished Citizen.

Preceding the coronation, a number of period dances were given, after which J. Edward Johnson, herald, announced the arrival of the court. Colors were presented by the National Guard, the orchestra played The Star Spangled Banner. Mr. Stanley was presented and Miss Camp, as queen, came forward to receive her crown.

Following the coronation ceremonies, ladies-in-waiting were presented, after which duchesses, representing 27 Brownwood organizations and a number of near by towns, were presented to the court. Miss Camp and Mr. Stanley led the grand march, in which all members of the court participated.

Following the grand march, more than 100 couples joined in dancing.

During the evening, a huge birthday cake, donated by Brownwood bakeries, was auctioned to the highest bidder. It was bid in by Douglas Carroll, who invited all present to share it with him.

Legion To Hold Meeting Friday

Regular meeting of the American Legion will be held Friday, February 2nd. All members are urged to attend as the officers are anxious to repeat the attendance of the first meeting in January.

Matters of utmost importance will come up at this meeting and it is advisable for all members to be on hand. Members special will be better informed in regard to the big indoor circus to be held on the 19th.

Question of delegates to the district convention will come up at this meeting. Membership continues satisfactory and is now ahead of the past two in membership.

Square Dance To Held Next Saturday

Saturday, February 3, the 14th square dance, held in the auspices of the Business and Professional Women's Club, will be held at the Municipal Auditorium. Everyone is invited to be present and take part in the dances. Ample room will be provided for spectators. Since this month will be a good one for the square dancers, the five-piece orchestra furnished for the dances.

District Convention Date Set

The District Convention for the 17th District will be held at Brownwood, Texas, February 24-25. It was announced by O. H. Turner, district chairman. The convention was held in Brownwood last year.

POLL TAX PAYMENTS AROUND 4,000, AUTO PAYMENTS LAGGING

There will be approximately 4,000 qualified voters in Brown county for the coming year, figures at Tax Collector Lee Meek's office indicated Thursday, as the date for payment had ended. Workers in the office were unable to make accurate check of the figures Thursday morning, but the volume of business done Wednesday indicates a payment of approximately 4,000. A number of payments by mail also were received on the final day, and complete figures cannot be compiled until these are opened and entered.

Last year, payments in the county totaled 3,354, while two years ago, the last election year, payments totaled 4,464. It is expected that the number will run under this figure this year.

Automobile registrations were off from 200 to 300 over last year. A year ago January 31, payments totaled 3,400. The figure was approximately 3,200 this year, with records still inaccurate due to the volume of business handled during the past few days. The last minute rush was decidedly smaller than anticipated, however, due to expectation that the legislature would extend time for payment.

City tax payments were unusually heavy during the past week, with more taxpayers than ever before taking advantage of the split payment plan which the city has in effect. Under this plan half the city taxes can be paid prior to January 31, and the other half before July 1st.

GILLIAM TRIAL SET FOR FEBRUARY 8TH

The trial of E. B. Gilliam, Sr., charged with embezzlement of funds of Daniel Baker College, was set for Thursday, February 8, by District Judge E. J. Miller this week. The case was continued from last term of court, and originally set for February 7, but was continued for one day when it was found that one of the defense attorneys could not be present on the date set. Attorneys for the state and defense agreed to the setting.

A. N. Thomason, auditor for the college, was ordered to turn over to W. U. Early, attorney for Mr. Gilliam, certain checks, bank deposit slips, and other papers pertaining to the case. The order followed hearing of a motion by attorneys for Gilliam asking such action.

Trial of Elzo Thacker and Pat Watts, indicted during the present court term on charges of robbery with firearms, were set for February 23 and a special venire of 18 ordered.

BROWNWOOD BANNER

One of the most encouraging features of President Roosevelt's many drastic steps toward improving conditions is his announced intention to formulate plans to speed up home building by making financing of small homes cheaper and easier. During the past four years we have seen practically no new homes built, and as we come out of the depression, the housing problem naturally is to be one of the most perplexing we will have to face.

The Need For More Homes

Home construction, according to figures published in the American Builder, normally amounts to a little more than fifty per cent of the construction industry as a whole. In the years between 1923 and 1926, this construction amounted to four billion dollars. It gave employment to several million men actually employed in building, and as many more in factories, mines, and forests supplying necessary materials.

In 1930, to quote the same authority, one-tenth of all gainfully employed workers were engaged in construction. At least half of these were employed in home construction.

The nation's normal requirement, is 800,000 new homes each year. At the present, a tremendous housing deficit exists, due to the almost entire lack of building, particularly in the low and middle cost field, during the past four years, and the abnormally high rates of depreciation and obsolescence caused by insufficient repair and maintenance.

Success of the President's movement to put this ten per cent back to work through making it easier to build homes seems essential to recovery.

Although Americans everywhere are intensely interested in the Roosevelt Dollar devaluation bill which swept through the House by the unprecedented margin of 360 to 40 votes last week, few of us who are not financial geniuses understand the fundamental principals of the measure. As a matter of fact, dozens of representatives who, according to press dispatches freely admit they do not understand the dollar policy thoroughly, voted for it on the premises that the President was assuming responsibility for its beneficial effects.

Devaluation of The Dollar

The measure, according to official interpretation, has four specific phases:

First: The treasury is given title to all of the nation's monetary gold stock, including that held by Federal Reserve Banks.

Second: It fixes 60 per cent of the dollar's present gold content as the maximum of gold value after revaluation.

Third: It gives the Administration a fund of $2,000,000,000, to be obtained automatically from the added value of the treasury's gold after devaluation has taken place, with which to stabilize the foreign value of the dollar.

Fourth: It gives the Treasury greater power in issuing and floating government securities, thus simplifying the great refinancing task that confronts the Federal government now. The Treasury is allowed to purchase any type of government security with any other type, may sell issues privately without offering them to the general public.

The President is virtually monetary dictator under the terms of the bill, and such opposition as developed was based largely upon the theory that too much power was being put into one man's hands.

Figures just released on the 1933 cotton crop values, show that production for 1933 was about the same as 1932, despite the plow-up campaign, but brought the farmers of the South more than twice as much money. That is bringing the New Deal home to those who can use the money to advantage just at this time.

Adding To Farm Values

The 1933 crop amounted to 13,177,000 bales for the season. This brought Southern farmers $856,776,000. In 1932, the production was 13,200,000 bales, which brought cotton farmers only $425,488,000—less than half the amount realized this year. The 1933 figures include rental payments on cotton land on which the crop was plowed under, amounting to $111,500,000 and option payments to farmers amounting to $48,000,000.

The figures should be of interest to farmers who are hesitating about signing 1934-1935 cotton acreage reduction contracts. Without the government program the 1933 crop would have been far in excess of the year before, and the actual return to growers no doubt would have been less than they have realized on a cotton crop in many years.

The government is pledged to a policy of reduction for the coming two years. It prefers that this reduction be voluntary, and that the farmers enter into another partnership with the government, to the benefit of both.

But, if such a course is not taken by the farmers, it is the belief of those informed on the subject that forced reduction will be resorted to. Cotton must not go to the low of 1932.

Fifty Famous Frontiersmen

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

"Father of the Texas Panhandle"

It is difficult to say which of the many feats in the career of Col. Charles Goodnight made him most famous. Is he best remembered as the man who blazed three important trails in the old Texas cattle driving days? Or as the head of the great J. A. ranch which once comprised more than 1,300,000 acres and had more than 100,000 cattle? Or as the founder of the widely-known "Goodnight buffalo herd" and the preserver of the last remnants of the countless millions that once roamed the plains of the West? Whichever it is, his fame as the "Father of the Texas Panhandle," a title which includes in it some elements of all three seems secure.

Goodnight was born in Illinois on March 5, 1836—just three days after Texas, where he was to win his future renown, had declared its independence from Mexico. His parents moved to Texas in 1845, the year the Lone Star state entered the Union. So if there was ever a man who "grew up with a state," that man was Charles Goodnight.

During the Civil War Goodnight, the young ranchman, served with the Texas Rangers, fighting with cattle and the Texans had to horse thieves. At the close of the war the Texas plains swarmed with cattle and the Texans had to find a market for them. Some of the ranchers had already begun to trail their cattle up to Abilene, Kan., for shipment East, but Goodnight saw a greater opportunity in New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming, where there were Indian agencies looking for beef.

But between the Panhandle of Texas and these markets was a vast expanse of desert country inhabited by fierce Comanches, ready to pounce on white invaders kill them and seize their cattle. Undaunted by these dangers Goodnight, with 18 daring cowboys, gathered up a herd of several thousand cattle and started out. Two months later they arrived in Fort Sumner, N. M., with a 600-mile journey safely behind them.

This trail which they blazed immediately became known as the Goodnight Trail, and later it was extended through the Raton mountains into Colorado and Wyoming.

The second of the trails which Goodnight blazed ran from Alamo, N. M., to Granada, Colo., and this one soon became famous as the New Goodnight Trail. His third trail, laid out when he was head of the J. A. ranch, was the Palo Duro-Dodge City Trail, 250 miles in length, from his ranch to Dodge City, Kansas.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF COTTON

(From the Dallas News)

There need be no further doubt in the minds of the American people as to how far the Federal government intends to go to bring about a regulated farming system. Saturday's Associated Press story deals with the President's plans for control of cotton production. Taking the cotton growers into his confidence, the President, through his secretary of Agriculture, will ask 50,000 farmers in all parts of the South whether they want Federal control of cotton production and, if so, what form it shall take. Whether this is the beginning of a regimented agriculture for the Nation awaits the outcome of the farmers' reactions to the proposed plan.

So far as the South is concerned, no better time could have been chosen than the present. The voluntary cotton acreage reduction campaign is far behind schedule because of failure of landlords and tenant farmers to get together. The News recently voiced its views as to the danger of a collapse of cotton markets, if the sign-up campaign fails because of bickerings and quibbling. With the consummate skill that has marked President Roosevelt's efforts to solve the various ills confronting the Nation he again plays a trump card by an appeal to farmer psychology. The tillers of the South's cotton fields themselves must decide the issue, at a time when they have had a taste of timely Federal aid, which clearly can not go on forever. It is for them to say what the next step shall be.

That all this is but preliminary to putting into legislation either the Bankhead or other cotton control measures is apparent. Ultimate control is but a matter of specific details, whether it shall be a restriction of the number of bales grown each year, or whether there be a limiting tax on all cotton to be ginned or sold "with exemption for the average crop raised by such as co-operate voluntarily in adjustment programs." Cotton farmers are to make this all-important decision—to settle the question whether they shall be free to plant as they please or submit to Federal edict.

Old timers say that Goliad looks as it did in the "good old days" when shipping duty for the local cooperative cattle shipping association comes around. During the heavy movement in October, shipments averaged 3 to 4 cars every Friday.

To The Voters Of The 125th Legislative District

In announcing my candidacy for Representative of the 125th District, I desire to make the following brief statement as to some of the major measures that I shall favor, if elected.

1st: I will undertake to secure the submission of a constitutional amendment reducing the membership of the House of Representatives from 150 to 93, which will be the equivalent of three Representatives for each senatorial district. This amendment, if adopted, will save to the state thousands of dollars in mileage fees, legislative employees and $570.00 per day in per diem, and even greater benefits will result from better legislative personnel and quality of legislation enacted.

2nd: Nearly two years ago, the highway policy of the state was changed by an act of the Legislature and the state assumed payment of interest and sinking fund on bonds voted by the county to aid in the construction of state highways and allocated one cent of the gasoline tax for that purpose. This one cent tax was insufficient to enable the state to pay the full amount assumed and the counties affected have been compelled to make good the amount of the state's default. It is estimated that the state will continue to default in part payment of what it assumed for two years more. This situation particularly affects Brown and Coleman Counties and their tax rate. At the end of the four year period, during which the state will probably fall short in its payments, these two counties will have paid a large sum which the state had expressly agreed to pay. It will be my purpose and effort to secure a refund to the counties of this district of the respective amounts which they are compelled to pay for the state on their highway bonds.

3rd: The paid lobby that infests each and every legislative session has become an unmitigated evil. In many instances, through the use of money and other agencies, it has corrupted and controls many members of the Legislature and has defeated legislation calculated to benefit the state as a whole. This pernicious and insidious influence ought to be curbed by appropriate legislation.

4th: The Executive custom of granting pardons and paroles to criminals committed to the State penitentiary is making enforcement of the criminal laws increasingly more difficult and is turning loose many hardened criminals who become repeaters in crime. They are not only a menace to society, but add enormously to the cost of the criminal courts. I believe that all repeaters in crime should be prosecuted under the habitual criminal statutes, be given adequate sentences and automatically become ineligible for pardon or parole. Certain types of first offenders might well be added to this class.

5th: I believe in the principle of rigid economy in all governmental units, whether prosperous or depression conditions prevail. All graft, waste, duplications in operating expense and all unnecessary expenditures should be eliminated. I have applied this principle of economy to county affairs since my election as County Judge of Brown county and I believe that a careful study of the various units of the state government by the legislature will disclose avenues of economy through which the operating expense of the state government may be reduced several million dollars each year. I pledge my best efforts, if elected, toward the minimizing of all state operating expense.

6th: It is generally conceded that our system of taxation in Texas for the support of the state government, is a sort of patchwork. The constitutional provision is that taxation shall be equal and uniform. But in actual practice, much of the wealth of the state escapes taxation altogether and much of it is not bearing its just proportion of the tax burden. I do not subscribe to any wild or radical theories of taxation, but I do believe that a careful study of the entire system with a view to equalizing and making more uniform the tax burden, and with the further purpose of compelling the rendition of all property now escaping taxation, would result in a substantial decrease in the state tax rate. At this time, I am not offering specific remedies because the subject is a broad one and will require intensive study. We ought to have in the Legislature men who are willing and able to make the investigation which the importance of this matter involves.

7th: Many of our laws should be simplified and many of the obsolete statutes repealed. The statutory law has become so voluminous that even lawyers in the active practice can hardly keep informed as to the changes. Many of them are crudely drawn and only a decision of the Supreme Court will disclose what they really mean. We do not need a multiplicity of new laws, but rather need a breathing spell in order to understand, if we can, the laws we now have on the books. It will be my pleasure to assist in killing a few hundred of the unwise and unnecessary bills that may be proposed.

RABBIT DRIVE FOR M'DANIEL NEXT WEEK

A rabbit drive to rid the McDaniel community of rabbits will be held on Wednesday, February 7, it was announced this week by D. C. Pratt, Brownwood, one of the group arranging preliminaries for the drive. All who want to go on this drive are requested to get in touch with Mr. Pratt prior to next Tuesday, in order that ammunition can be provided.

This will be the second rabbit drive of the season for the county. A short time ago a drive was held in the Concord and Mukewater communities. Some 20 to 30 people took part in the drive, and more than 500 rabbits were killed during the day. Last year, over the same ground, about 1500 rabbits were killed, and farmers are optimistic in the belief that much progress is being made in exterminating the rabbit menace. The drives

BONHAM—How A and M methods were used to save cured pork from spoiling is told by W. E. Herriage of Harrison community in Fannin county. "I did not use the A and M method of curing my meat but when warm weather came I went to the county agent for help. The meat was beginning to sour a little so I removed the bone and smoked it with green hickory, so as to make a live smoke for about 36 hours until it turned a brown color. The smoke dried the meat out and gave it a better flavor. The meat I didn't smoke had to be thrown away. The same was true of my brother's meat which was not smoked," he states.

PROPER METHOD OF PREPARING WOOL FOR MARKET IS OUTLINED BY A. & M. WOOL SPECIALIST

S. P. Davis, wool and mohair specialist of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas A. & M. College, outlined the proper method of handling wool in preparation for the market, at a meeting of wool growers in Brownwood Saturday afternoon.

The meeting was held under the auspices of Henry Stallings & Company Brownwood warehousemen and wool buyers, at their warehouse, 1208 Fisk Street.

Following is the complete text of Mr. Davis' speech to the growers:

Wool must be carefully handled and properly prepared for market to bring its full value. Wool buyers show more discrimination in their purchases when prices are low and the market irregular than when there is a strengthening market for this commodity. Clips that are carelessly prepared for market are always at a disadvantage, and especially when trade in wool is slow. With a little extra care at the time of shearing considerable improvement may be made in the appearance of the average Texas clip. This does not necessarily involve extra expenditures in shearing costs, but it is a surety that a more desirable clip will be the result where the ranchman shows an increased interest in this matter. There is a growing tendency for wool to sell more on merit than in the past, and it is to every sheepman's interest to make his clip as attractive as possible. A well prepared clip will be sought after each year regardless of market conditions.

Australian Method

The Australian wool clip is not only the largest but it is also by far the best prepared in the world. New Zealand and South Africa use the same system as that used in Australia. South American wools are prepared in much the same manner but they do not quite meet the Australian standard.

Briefly, the method of preparation in Australia is as follows: the sheep are shorn in sheds; floors are kept clean throughout the entire operation. The fleece is removed from the sheep, using care to keep it in one piece and to avoid "second cuts". After the fleece is removed, it is put on a "slatted" table where a qualified classifier removes all interior portions of the fleece, leaving the body wool which is of uniform length and fineness. The fleece is then folded, flesh side out, into a compact package. Fleeces of the same grade are baled together. Manufacturers like this method of preparation because they are able to utilize these wools without having to dispose of off-sorts which are present in our domestic clip. The preparation of these foreign wools contribute largely to their desirability for manufacture, which in turn raises their value above the wools produced in this country.

Preparation in the U. S.

With the exception of wools produced east of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, there has been very little improvement during recent years in the preparation of the clip for market in this country. Such improvement as has been made is still far from anything that might be called ideal from the manufacturer's point of view. While it would be inadvisable at this time to go into such detail as the method used in Australia in the preparation of wools for the market, there are a few points which, if strictly adhered to, will not only greatly improve the appearance of the domestic clip but will also enhance its value.

In preparing a clip for market, the sheepman should bear in mind the following points:

1. Wool should not be sheared when damp or wet. The presence of excess moisture in wool causes the buyer to estimate a much higher shrinkage due to the increased weight of the fleeces. In instances where the wool is excessively damp or wet, a weakened, stained scour product may be expected.

2. Shear in a shed whenever possible. If shearing must be done in the open, try to choose a place that will be free from dust, and protect the entire shearing outfit from wind as much as possible. Fine dust blown into fleeces as they are shorn detract greatly from their otherwise pleasing appearance. Keep floors—or if the shearing must be done on wagon sheets—clean at all times.

3. If the sheep have not been tagged prior to shearing, instruct shearers to remove the tags and stained so that they may be easily packed separately. After the removal of the tags, the shearer should start shearing the sheep. Every care should be taken to remove the fleece in an unbroken condition. The shears should be kept close to the skin at all times to avoid making second cuts.

After the fleece is removed, the shearer should take care to see that the sheep does not break it, to pieces in making the run from the shearing floor. There will be much said in regard to the ease of fulfilling these recommendations but there is a general tendency to accept almost any quality of work put out by a shearing crew. If the sheepmen would insist that these points be closely adhered to by the shearing captain, there would be a marked improvement in the clip even at this stage of preparation.

4. After the fleece has been removed from the sheep, it should be picked up carefully and placed on a slatted table. The openings in this table allow small grease locks, second cuts, and other small particles of extraneous matter to fall away from the fleece.

If the fleece has been properly removed from the sheep and carefully handled on the trip to the tying table, it is comparatively easy for the tier to make an attractive package by keeping belly, neck, and leg wool in the center and allowing the body wool, flesh side out, to thoroughly cover the fleece.

The fleece should be tightly tied with just enough paper twine to assure its holding together if handled several times after being removed from the bag on the show-room floor. Fleeces that are loosely tied fall apart when shown for sale or when they are graded at the merchants. When such a condition exists, the poorest part of the fleece is in evidence and a rather good clip of wool may be shown to disadvantage.

5. Buck, gray, black or brown wools should be marked and bagged separately. Wools containing an excessive amount of burrs should be marked "burry" and bagged separately.

6. Wools should be kept free from all chaff, straw, hay, burrs, and other vegetable matter. When these substances are present, additional expense is encountered in the manufacture of yarns from this type of wool.

7. The manufacturer prefers paint-free wools. It may be, however, that the sheepman prefers to take a small discount on his wool due to the use of branding paint. If such is the case, a good quality of branding fluid should be used as sparingly as possible. This branding substance must be clipped by hand at the mill before scouring and the operation is costly.

8. Regular sized wool bags should be used at all times. Good wools brought to market in small gunny sacks are at a great disadvantage. It is impossible for them to show to best advantage in this condition.

9. When fleeces are tied and ready to put in the bag, the tier should hand them carefully to the bag packer. In filling the bags, care should be used not to get too many fleeces in before trying to pack them in the bottom of the empty bag. If care is taken to press several fleeces at the start so that they form a solid bottom, the package will have a smooth, even conformation.

10. If wool is to be kept at the ranch, care should be taken to store it in a clean, dry place.

The above directions in the preparation of wools for market do not entail additional shearing expense. If these instructions are followed for a period of several years, the ranchman will be in a much better position to receive better returns for the added interest in this phase of the sheep business.

Wool Scouring Plant

The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station operates a small commercial wool scouring plant for the benefit of Texas sheepmen who desire to gain more intimate knowledge of the grades and shrinkages of wools produced by their respective flocks. This affords the wool grower an opportunity to send representative wool samples to the plant to be scoured and graded. There is no cost for this service and additional information may be had by writing to the Wool Scouring Plant, College Station, Texas.

U.S. Recommends Cold Storage

The U. S. Government bulletins say: "Warm, freshly slaughtered pork carcasses should be chilled to a temperature between 34 and 40 degrees within 48 hours after slaughtering. Bacteria which may cause spoilage if their growth is not checked promptly by chilling, are often present in the tissues of the hog. Meat as it cures will normally develop a more uniform, desirable flavor if it can be held at an even temperature of about 35 degrees." In our vaults your meat is held at this even temperature.

Commercial Starter Valuable In Producing Healthy Chicks

By Henry Fields, in Dallas Semi-Weekly Farm News.

The early bird catches the worm, says the old proverb, and it is the early poultryman who catches the market at its peak. The man who is first to get broilers on the market finds himself without competition. The same is true of fryers. And it is easier to raise chicks in early spring than later, especially in summer, because early spring is the natural season. Natural enemies are fewer, insects are numerous and easy to capture, and green feed is abundant enough to make spring the ideal time for hatching chicks.

The fact should be kept in mind that it is the early-hatched chicks that mature at the right time to escape the fall molt and go into winter as layers. The exact time when a pullet should be hatched in order to miss the fall molt varies with the breed, but, in general, the date is early.

How are we to treat the youngsters when they step out of their shells so as to insure that the greatest possible number of them later will reach the frying pan or the breeding pen? It probably is true that more chicks are fed to death than are starved to death. The chick is hatched with its bread basket already filled, hence it does not need an immediate meal. Certainly, they should not be fed under twenty-four hours, and seventy-two hours is not too long to wait.

Here is a good method of handling baby chicks: When you decide to feed, give them access to sand for an hour beforehand. This will supply them with material to grind the food that is to come. Then give them a drink of sour milk as a tonic.

Begin by feeding a good commercial chick starter, or with eggs and bran as a starter. Boil the eggs hard and mix with a fair amount of bran. Let them eat their fill for fifteen minutes from a clean board. Mash should not be fed on newspapers, as this may result in spread of diseases such as bacillary white diarrhea.

Green Foods.

On the third day begin feeding finely chopped sprouted oats, lettuce, or other tender, succulent stuff. Begin the eighth day by feeding mash in a self-feeder. In addition to dry mash, give plenty of sour milk, scratch and green feed, grit and water. Continue this method of feeding until chicks are 10 weeks old, then coarsen the feed.

Separate the cockerels from the pullets as soon as they can be detected, and fatten the surplus stock for market.

Presses War Against Nazis

three kinds in equal proportions are used.

The absence of vitamin D often causes leg weakness or rickets in young chicks. Chicks that are kept in the sunshine some of the time are not likely to suffer from ricket but if the weather is cloudy, or the place in which they are housed is gloomy, it will be well to add about one pound of cod-liver oil to each 100 pounds of mash to supply the deficient vitamin D.

Young chicks need green feed, for it is from such feed that they secure the necessary vitamin A. When this is deficient, the chicks become thin, develop a watery discharge from the eyes and nose, and the throat will contain small white spots the size of a pin head. Sometimes this condition will not be noticed until fall, and then it is too late to cure it.

Must Have Plenty of Water.
Growing chicks should have lots of clean water. Usually, three one-gallon, or seven or eight one-quart crocks, will be sufficient for 200 chicks. If filled twice daily. Galvanized iron containers should not be used for sour milk, as the acid in the milk may react on the metal.
Skim milk, buttermilk, or almost any kind of clean milk, is good for chickens of all ages. Little chicks can't stand filth, and since milk seems to be the natural home of many germs, they will multiply rapidly in milk. Keep the feeding vessels clean and pour in at one time only as much milk as they will drink in a short time. Then wash the vessels and leave to sun and air until next feeding time. If chicks have time to play in the milk and get it dirty, disease, if present in any of the chicks, will spread through the flock, especially if it is a highly infectious disease.

Chicks that come from healthy breeding stock should be easy to raise. If kept warm and dry, and fed properly. Be sure your feed is fresh. One poultryman gave feed that seemed to be good, except for the presence of tiny worms. He thought, since chicks like worms, it would be all right; but in a few days the chicks began to die, and before he could cure them his loss was quite heavy.

Remedies

Charcoal is a good conditioner and should be kept before chicks. They will not eat too much, as it is harmless. A little permanganate of potash in the drinking water two or three times a week makes a good disinfectant for the digestive tract. Use just enough to make the water a nice pink. It might be a good idea to make up a bottleful of the solution and pour it into the water vessels as required.

White diarrhea is a serious disease of baby chicks and causes heavy losses. The germs get into the soil and onto everything that comes in contact with the dropping from infected stock. This disease is easier to prevent than cure. The better hatcheries use eggs from blood-tested stock, and so are bringing the chance of infection to a minimum. If the disease gets into your flock, institute a clean-up campaign at once. Separate the sick from the well, and transfer the healthy chicks to fresh quarters, give them plenty of good feed and clean water, and keep them warm, but not hot. Keep them in the sunshine as much as possible, and hope they will stay well. The sick ones might as well be killed and burned. If they should get well, they will be so slow about it that they will be unprofitable. Meanwhile they are a menace to the well ones. Mild cases of white diarrhea may be cured with good treatment, together with a tonic that will disinfect the intestines.

Early-hatched chicks bring the most profit, if there is any profit in chicken raising. Broilers will be in demand and generally bring fair prices. Early-hatched pullets make early layers. Nature says early spring is the best time to raise chickens with the least trouble and expense.

Captain Taylor Says He Will Enforce City Ordinances

As I have previously stated, I am a candidate for Chief of Police of Brownwood, and if elected will endeavor to enforce all the laws. My health is good, and my eyesight is good, and my hearing fairly good. I have had more than fifty years of experience as a peace officer, and I know the duties of a chief of police. I feel that I am now as well qualified to fulfill those duties as I was at the age of only forty years.

The efforts of a peace officer are all in vain without the cooperation of the good citizens. The underworld is gradually getting in the majority, and if the good people do not stay with the honest-to-goodness officers the underworld will soon trample them down. I will do my best to protect the lives of the people and prevent the loss of their property, and to enforce the city ordinances prohibiting going against red lights and double parking in the main streets. Cut this out for further reference. If you do not want above laws enforced, do not elect me.

Respectfully,
CAPT. D. K. TAYLOR,
1506 Vincent Street, City.
