JULY 5, 1988

On treasured display in the National Archives of Washington is a sacred document which is one of the world's foremost expressions of human rights. It is the Declaration of Independence, authored by Thomas Jefferson and signed on July 4, 1776 by brave American pioneers who supported their statement with a pledge of their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor.

As the coming years were to reveal, the pledge was prophetic. All of the signers were respected public figures, well known to the British authorities as well as their fellow Americans. Promptly placed on the mother country's list of public enemies, they instantly became the targets of retaliation and paid for their patriotism in many ways. Without exception, they became fugitives from English justice. As a result, all were permanently separated from their families and those who were captured were charged with treason. Some others, as volunteers supporting the revolution, became victims of war.

Regarding the pledge of fortunes, the signers were men of means who saw their homes and businesses destroyed by the vindictive enemy. And still others along with them became hated by loyalists or people who accused them of bringing on the death and hardship of war.

Of course, it's well known that thousands of supporters of the Declaration of Independence were participants of the Revolutionary War and endured the same tragedies as the signers. Considering all, we have to realize that many people paid a great price in establishing the great ideals which make our country the land of the free, guaranteeing "that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

In support of that belief, Jefferson pointed out "that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed." The principle is that people are governed by persons as their representatives, not by persons who inherit the throne or seize it by conquest. From its beginning, our government was the ideal of people all over the world who wanted to think and do according to their own convictions and to reap opportunities resulting from their own efforts.

To get a better idea of the blessings that trace back to the July 4 principles, we need only make a few comparisons. Communists are the least free of all. They are completely under control of self-appointed dictators who determine what everyone can do or say or where he can go, where he may work and what pay he can receive, and whether he may practice his religion. To see that people keep in line, they are confined by an iron curtain and spied upon. And violators or dissenters are subject to concentration camps.

Furthermore, the economic creed proclaims the Marxist principle "from each according to his ability and to each according to his need." Its error was obvious when loafers shared equally with the industrious in the fruits of labor. Big Reds saw the error long ago, but they are cautious about changes because each improvement is a move toward the hated free enterprise system.

By contrast, we have the freedom opportunities that Red captives can only dream about. We choose from a great selection See CONFETTI, Page 2

City keeps street-curb ordinance

Members of the Muenster City Council in regular session Monday night chose not to adopt a proposed amendment to a subdivision ordinance on streets and gutters in a new development of the city.

The present ordinance specifies that pavement, curbs and gutters must be installed within or abutting a proposed subdivision and the suggested amendment would relieve the developer of that responsibility...in effect require the homeowner and city to arrange for those improvements.

In support of the existing ordinance, Councilman John Pagel said, "I don't want to drive through town and see parts of it paved and curbed but not other parts, because we dropped this ordinance."

A big point of contention was requiring a resident to pay the additional cost of street and gutter when building a new house.

Mayor Richard Grewing said, "These young people have a hard enough time making payments without more cost being added."

Another difficulty applies if the city, rather than the developer, installs the streets and gutters. In that case, the expense has to be paid by taxpayers and persons all over town who have paid tax all along become further obligated.

Further discussion brought out a number of related opinions:

...That the council should retain authority to require curb and pavement on new additions where it is obviously for the good of all.

...That pavement should not be required where there is no adjacent pavement to connect to, and that small patches of the improvement are not practical.

...That a requirement for curb and gutter only, without pavement, be regarded as a compromise.

...That the future benefits to the city are important and many people have indicated a desire to keep the ordinance.

In support of keeping it, Chuck Bartush Jr., city attorney, said

"the variance under the existing ordinance allows for discretion in cases of hardship or impracticability. This is built into the rule to deal with any eventuality and to treat everyone fairly."

It was pointed out that this variance has applied to a south town addition where street work using gravel only was allowed.

In other action, the council discussed the use of Germanfest gate receipts to repair recent floodwater damage to a footbridge at the park. The project is subject to approval of the park board, Jaycees and Chamber of Commerce.

Also, it approved a request to send two firemen to the annual firemen's school at A&M University at a cost of $400 each. Failure to attend would result in losing the usual key rate reductions and causing problems in procedure.

An OK was also given to the fire department in its request to reserve the city park and pool for fundraiser on Aug. 24. The funds are intended to buy protective coats, boots and hats for all members.

Street repair in high gear

City employees have been putting every available manhour into patching streets both last week and this.

According to City Administrator Joe Fenton, the city crew has expanded for the summer and has begun to patch streets on a regular basis.

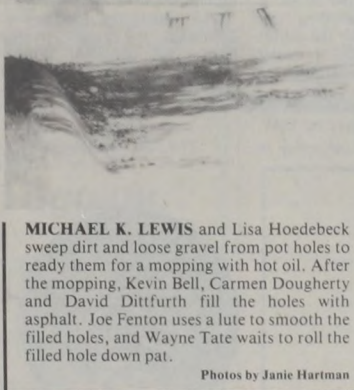

New summer help includes Lisa Hoedebeck, Carmen Dougherty and Kevin Bell, all of whom are on the Summer Youth Training Employment Program sponsored through the Texoma Regional Planning Commission and administered by Jim Anderson.

Mikael Fette has also joined the crew on a parttime basis for the summer.

It is hoped that in the next few weeks the present crop of pot holes will be repaired and the streets brought back to good condition, Fenton said.

He said the present condition of the streets was contributed to by a rough winter and a wet spring, which delayed repairs and worsened already bad conditions.

"Being unable to repair all of the streets before winter also contributed to their present poor condition," Fenton said. "We had to patch last fall on an irregular basis, and only when there were men available after regular duties had been attended to."

MICHAEL K. LEWIS and Lisa Hoedebeck sweep dirt and loose gravel from pot holes to ready them for a mopping with hot oil. After the mopping, Kevin Bell, Carmen Dougherty and David Dittfurth fill the holes with asphalt. Joe Fenton uses a lute to smooth the filled holes, and Wayne Tate waits to roll the filled hole down pat.

DPS estimates death toll at 17

The Texas Department of Public Safety estimates that as many as 17 people will die in traffic accidents in the state during the 30-hour July 4 holiday period.

"Though this year's estimate is lower than last year's death toll, the final figure could be even lower if Texans refrained from drinking and driving, stayed within the speed limit and buckled their safety belts," said Colonel Jim Adams, director of the DPS.

Last year, 20 persons died in crashes on Texas streets and highways during the July 4 holiday period. Three additional fatalities resulting from serious injuries during the period pushed the final toll to 23.

"This year's estimate of 17 deaths compared to the higher number of fatalities last year is in keeping with a downward trend in Texas traffic fatalities," said Adams.

In 1984, 48 percent of the fatalities reported during the July 4 period resulted from accidents in which speed or DWI was listed as a contributing factor.

"In an effort to limit the number of deaths, additional DPS troopers will again be patrolling rural roads and highways during the holiday period," Adams said.

The Department's "Operati Motorcade," in which the number of fatalities will be reported at intervals through the period remind Texas drivers of holiday driving dangers, begins at 6 p.m. Wednesday, July 3, and continues through midnight Thursday, July 4.

Teddy talks about The Fourth

One of the nation's more memorable but little known Fourth of July orations was delivered by Theodore Roosevelt 99 years ago when he was 27 years old and living his beloved outdoor life in the cattle territory of Dickinson, Dakota Territory.

The story of the future-26th president's speech was told in the 1981 issue of Parade Magazine. At the traditional observance of the great holiday, the town of 700 made a special effort to make it the best ever and invited Theodore to be "orator of the day."

The celebration started with a spectacular parade in which almost all spectators joined as participants, then a reading of the Declaration of Independence and group singing of "America the Beautiful," then Roosevelt's address, as follows:

"I am peculiarly glad to have an opportunity of addressing you, my fellow citizens of Dakota, on the Fourth of July, because it always seems to me that those who dwell in a new territory, and whose actions, therefore, are peculiarly fruitful, for good and bad alike, in shaping the future, have in consequence peculiar responsibilities... Much has been given to us, and so, much will be expected of us; and we must take heed to use aright the gifts entrusted to our care.

"The Declaration of Independence derived its peculiar importance, not on account of what America was, but because of what she was to become; she shared with other nations the present, and she yielded to them the past, but it was felt in return that to her, and to her especially, belonged the future.

"It is the same with us here. We, grangers and cowboys alike, have opened a new land; and we are the pioneers, and as we shape the course of the stream near its head, our efforts have infinitely more effect, in bending it in any given direction... In other words, the first comers in a land can, by their individual efforts, do far more than can those who come after them; and their labors, whether exercised on the side of evil or on the side of good, are far more effective than if they had remained in old settled communities.

"So it is peculiarly incumbent on us here today so to act throughout our lives as to leave our children a heritage, for which we will receive their blessing and not their curse... If you fail to work in public life, as well as in private, for honesty and uprightness and virtue, if you condone vice because the vicious man is smart, or if you in any other way cast your weight into the scales in favor of evil, you are just so far corrupting and making less valuable the birthright of your children...

It is not what we have that will make us a great nation; it is the way in which we use it.

"I do not undervalue for a moment our material prosperity; like all Americans, I like big things; big prairies, big forests and mountains, big wheatfields, railroads - and herds of cattle, too - big factories, steamboats and everything else. But we must keep steadily in mind that no people were ever yet benefited by riches if their prosperity corrupted their virtue. It is of more importance that we should show ourselves honest, brave, truthful and intelligent than that we should own all the railways and grain elevators in the world. We have fallen heirs to the most glorious heritage a people ever received, and each one must do his part if we wish to show that the nation is worthy of its good fortune.

"Here we are not ruled over by others, as in the case of Europe; we rule ourselves. All American citizens, whether born here or elsewhere, whether of one creed or another, stand on the same footing; we welcome every honest immigrant no matter from what country he comes, provided only that he leaves off his former nationality and remains neither Celt nor Saxon, neither Frenchman nor German, but becomes an American, desirous of fulfilling in good faith the duties of American citizenship.

"When we thus rule ourselves, we have the responsibilities of sovereigns, not of subjects. We must never exercise our rights either wickedly or thoughtlessly; we can continue to preserve them in but one possible way, by making the proper use of them. In a new portion of the country, especially here in the Far West, it is peculiarly important to do so; and on this day of all others, we ought soberly to realize the weight of the responsibility that rests upon us. I am, myself, at heart as much a Westerner as an Easterner; I am proud, indeed, to be considered one of yourselves, and I address you in this rather solemn strain today, only because of my pride in you, and because your welfare, moral as well as material, is so near my heart."

Following the address, Teddy remarked to a companion that he thought now he could do his best work "in a public and political way." His friend replied, "Then you will become president of the United States."

Liberty Enlightening the World

MANY AMERICANS proudly display on the walls of their homes or offices a picture of one of America's most inspiring monuments, generally referred to as the "Statue of Liberty."

As is often the case, much is lost when a title is shortened or popularized. Although we have all been taught to call this magnificent and cherished national treasure the Statue of Liberty, that is not its name.

What has been lost in this case is much more than the correct name of the statue, but more important, the real meaning and significance of the monument.

The statue on Bedloe's Island, now called Liberty Island, close by the New Jersey shore of New York Harbor, is actually, "Liberty Enlightening the World." It was executed by the French sculptor Frederic Bartholdi and presented by the people of France to the people of the United States in Paris on July 4, 1884. It was formally dedicated in 1886.

Ask anyone what the Statue of Liberty means to them, and in all probability they will respond to the effect that it is a symbol or memorial to the millions of immigrants who have been welcomed to America.

That has been the consequence of the distorted emphasis placed on the Statue by certain special interest groups, especially those whose goals included weakening our immigration and naturalization laws.

The Statue is in fact a gift from France commemorating the alliance of that country and the American colonies during the Revolutionary War. The Statue represents Liberty stepping from the broken shackles of tyranny.

Liberty's right hand holds a burning torch representing our message of freedom for the world; the left hand holds a tablet representing the Declaration of Independence.

Bartholdi conceived the idea of the colossus of Liberty in 1865.

Work was begun on the statue in 1875 and completed in 1885. Liberty Enlightening the World was dedicated on Oct. 28, 1886 by President Grover Cleveland.

Although the 151-foot high Statue was a gift from the people of France, who raised $250,000 to pay for the project, the 65-foot high foundation built inside old Fort Wood, and an 89-foot high pedestal were paid for by contributions from U.S. citizens.

The year the Statue was dedicated, the great American poet, John Greenleaf Whittier, penned a poem in her honor, one verse of which reads:

"Rise, stately Symbol!
holding forth
Thy light and hope to all who sit

In chains and darkness!
Bel the earth
With watch-fires from thy torch uplift!"

Obviously, Liberty Enlightening the World was never intended as a beacon to immigrants but was rather a statement about the importance of individual liberty and the hope that the spark ignited here in the 1770's would spread the flame of freedom around the world!

As one writer put it, Liberty is "a lasting symbol of one of man's most powerful forces: the desire to be free."

of jobs, do and go and speak and believe as we please, and acquire possessions as the fruits of our labor. Comparing countries convinces us that the American way is the hope of millions of captive people.

As this column was being written Sunday night, our grateful nation was rejoicing over the safe return of those hostages from Beirut to the U.S. air base in Frankfurt. The return was especially significant a few days before the Fourth because it sharpens the contrast of our blessings with the violence and hatred to which the hostages were exposed.

State Capitol Highlight

AUSTIN - In these delicate days of budget peril due to dropping oil prices, several state officials are fighting for every cent due the Lone Star State.

In recent days: — Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro challenged the Supreme Court to reconsider a controversial ruling he says could lose millions in future revenues to Texas schoolchildren.

— Texas Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace warned that conditions are ripe for another Arab oil embargo.

Mauro Challenges Ruling
In June, the Texas Supreme Court gave shallow mineral rights on 817 acres to a Webb County property owner, a position opposite the state's long-standing claim of ownership.

But Mauro is challenging the high court to reconsider its decision, saying if applied statewide, it could eventually affect about seven million acres of land the millions in revenues which finance Texas public schoolchildren.

Mauro manages that fund, the Permanent School Fund, and warns that as much as $918 million in future monies will be lost.

Texas Lawyers Surprised
The Court's ruling changes the traditional interpretation of the 1895 Legislature's intent when it passed the Relinquishment Act, allowing the State to sell the surface but not the minerals of public lands. Since then, the state has divided all mineral income off Relinquishment Act lands 60-40 with the surface owner.

But the ruling would take from the state its heretofore assumed ownership of the shallow minerals, coal and lignite, and Mauro is arguing that the Supreme Court "has given away the mineral rights to state land that the surface owner had never even paid for."

The case strikes near the heart of Texas' traditional mode of funding its public system, and the Texas legal world and several present and former state officials are much surprised, if not astounded, by the high court's decision.

New Oil Embargo
Dropping oil prices are contributing to lower inflation, and if it weren't a Texas Railroad Commissioner sounding the warning, few would give heed to the thought of another oil embargo which caused high prices and long filling stations lines in 1973.

But Commissioner Mack Wallace is again warning of the folly of failing to plan for energy independence, and he's comparing today's conditions, with those preceding 1973: foreign nations are flooding the U.S. with lower-priced, government-subsidized oil products and are driving American refineries out of business.

"I saw what happened in '73, and I don't want it to happen again. This is not a hollow threat. This is an economic war we are fighting now," Wallace said.

Texas Hit Hard
Texas comes out worse than any other state, bearing the brunt of decreased domestic production, closed refineries, loss of thousands of jobs.

Some oil industry spokesmen are predicting from $4-$8 billion in lost business for Texas by 1990. Domestic refineries would lose 63,000 American jobs.

Wallace says the free market isn't free, because nations like Libya and Saudi Arabia subsidize their refineries, which is why some Texans are calling for a tax or quota on foreign oil. Skeptics may wish to recall that Wallace traveled the country with the same warning prior to the '73 crisis.

Believers can probably be readily found in Houston, where 35 percent of total employment is connected to oil and 120,000 jobs have been lost in the past 30 months. Area housing starts are down 47 percent, one-fourth of all Houston apartments are vacant, and some 37 million square feet of downtown office space is unrented.

White, Clements...Briscoe?
Former Gov. Bill Clements is happy about a movement to draft him to run against his old nemesis, Gov. Mark White, and White acted like he was happy, too.

Told of Clements' possible rematch challenge in '86, White said to reporters: "Come on, Bill! Come on, Bill!"

Clements, for his part, was flattered by the formation of a "Draft Clements Committee," but did not commit to a race. He has made no secret of his search for a GOP candidate to whip White, though.

But so far White has gotten the most fight from a Democrat, the second cousin of White's former boss, G. Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Andrew Briscoe III, a Dallas businessman, criticized White for weak leadership, for raising taxes and for misleading voters about bringing lower utility rates.

White served as Secretary of State to Gov. Briscoe, also a strong supporter of White. The former governor was "a little hesitant" about the challenge.

Scouts advance at camp

MUESTER BOY SCOUTS and their scoutmaster work on merit badges and skill awards at Texoma are ready to board their bus for a week of hard summer camp.

Twenty Boy Scouts of Muenster Troop 664, accompanied by their scoutmaster and two guest scouts, earned 71 merit badges and 56 skill awards during their summer camp at Lake Texoma June 9 to 15.

In addition, two of the members, Chad Fleitman and Keith Vogel, were admitted into the Order of the Arrow.

The badges and awards were scheduled to be presented at a court of honor Monday night, July 1, and promotions were to be announced at the same ceremony. Because of early publication for the Fourth, The Enterprise will list the presentations and promotions the following week.

Categories in which the merit badges were earned are archery, basketball, camping, environmental science, first aid, leatherwork, lifesaving, nature, pioneering, rifle and shotgun, swimming and woodcarving. Skill awards were in camping, environment and first aid.

Scouts attending were Jason Gehrig, John Herr, Joe Weinzapfel, Scott Hennigan, Michael Gobble, Chad Fleitman, Rodney Knabe, Jim Herr, Ryan Gehrig, Jason Endres, Josh McCoy, Keith Vogel, Kenneth Walterscheid, Mark Flusche, Helmuth Koelzer, Ryan Sicking, August Felderhoff, John Fleitman, Chad Simmons, Eric Dankesreiter and Scoutmaster Wayne Pooler, with visitors Reese Parton and Chad Wilson.

Myra sponsors fund raiser

To raise funds for the remodeling project on their community center, members of the Myra Improvement Club will sponsor a community-wide garage sale on July 4 and 5. Food and cold drinks will be available.

A special added attraction will be a tour of the Myra Hospital, operated by Dr. Corwin Maxwell at the turn of the century. The building now is the home of the Paul Sicking. Included in the tour is a wash house where the hospital's laundry was done.

Still another attraction is a tour of the home built for Dr. Maxwell in 1903. Permission to show it was granted by his son, Dr. Hal Maxwell of Dallas, on a recent visit to Myra. The tours will be scheduled regularly from 10 to 6 at a small charge.

Planning for the event was done at the regular meeting of the improvement club. Other activity then was a discussion to sell the Myra Library's books because of declining interest and a shortage of operating personnel. Members also heard a progress report on the club's remodeling.

Beginner swim classes start

Muenster's annual free swimming lessons for beginners will begin next Monday, July 8, at the city's pool and continue through July 19. As usual, it is a Red Cross program conducted by persons with a rating of Water Safety Instructor (WSI).

At the registration during the past weekend, 234 children were enrolled into two classes, the first group including 126 and set to start on July 8. The remaining 108 were assigned to start on the 15th. More students are welcome, preferably in the second week, which has fewer enrolled. Children who have completed kindergarten are welcome. Class hours are 9 to 12 Monday through Friday, both weeks.

The Red Cross program is directed by Jeannine Flusche and taught by a staff of six WSI instructors including Serena Wright, Jeannine Flusche, JoAnn Pagel, Carol Henscheid, Kathy Hartman and Marilyn Smith. Their assistants are 12 students who finished the recent local course of basic rescue and life saving and 10 who completed advanced life saving.

Summertime can be a problem time for pets and their owners

By B. J. Fenton

It seems that with the pleasures of summer also come some difficulties. As recent news items have cautioned, both rabies and Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever are a current concern to pet owners. Another, more constant, concern is your pet or someone else roaming freely through the streets, yards, flower beds and garbage bags of our fair city.

RABIES

State and County Health Department officials have recently confirmed eight cases of rabies in animals in Cooke County since the suspected animals should be handled only with gloves, even if it is dead. This is because the virus is transmitted in the animal's saliva. Even a small cut on a hand can be contaminated from the saliva.

As a final note, Dr. Tisdale offers the following guidelines:

— If you see a suspicious animal, and have cause to kill that animal, do all you can to keep the head intact. The brain must be able to be examined.

— If a domestic animal (a pet dog or cat) is not vaccinated and contracts rabies it must be put to sleep.

first of the year. Officials also note that that figure matches the number of cases for all of 1984.

Residents of Cooke County are being cautioned to stay away from wild animals, in particular skunks, who seem to be the main carriers of the disease.

This caution takes on extra concern for rural residents and their children, who love being able to roam the fields and woods in the summertime.

Muenster veterinarian, Dr. Larry W. Tisdale, suggests that people with pets (dogs, cats, whatever) have them vaccinated and keep them away from any wild animals.

Health Department officials note that since the first of the year four skunks, two cows, a dog and a cat have been positively diagnosed for rabies.

Dr. Tisdale said a rural family brought a puppy in that had been attacked by a skunk. The puppy turned out to have rabies. The children in the family had to undergo a series of shots.

Dr. Tisdale also noted that the preventive treatment for humans was once a series of 21 abdominal injections. That technique, he said, has been changed. A new vaccine is now used which requires only 3-5 shots about a week apart. "It is less painful, but still very expensive," Tisdale said.

Rabies is notoriously a dangerous disease. A person attacked or bitten by a suspected rabid animal should seek medical attention and should take the animal, head intact, to the vet for examination. For once the symptoms of rabies begin, there is no treatment. It is fatal.

As Dr. Tisdale explained, rabies attacks the central nervous system. That is why it is so important that the head of a suspected animal be kept intact. The brain must be examined to be positively identify rabies.

Dr. Tisdale said he used to deodorized skunks for persons who wanted to keep them for pets but that he will no longer do that. "In the last 10 years there has been a tremendous increase in the instances of rabies in skunks. I no longer recommend that they be kept as pets, and I will no longer deodorize them. There have been cases of skunks as pets that have contracted rabies. There is no vaccination we can give to wild animals to prevent them from contracting rabies. There is no vaccination that is approved and that we can give to wild animals, and giving the shot could cause the animal to develop rabies instead of preventing it."

The old story that a rabbit animal can be recognized by the "foaming" of the mouth is a fallacy. According to Dr. Tisdale, the virus is transmitted in the saliva of the animal but that animal may be rabid and not be profusely salivating.

"The rabbit animal may simply act sick or show no fear of a human and be just as rabid as if it were profusely salivating," Tisdale said.

Anyone seeing a suspicious animal should contact either the County Health Department at 817-665-3902 or the Public Health Headquarters of Region 5 for the State Department of Health in Arlington at 817-460-3032.

As an additional note, — Animals bitten by or attacked by a suspected rabid animal must be quarantined for observation or put to sleep.

— Get your pets vaccinated and stay away from wild animals.

SPOTTED FEVER

While Dr. Tisdale said he personally does not know of any cases of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever in our immediate area, a bulletin has been issued through the North Texas Veterinarians, the Dallas County Veterinary Medical Association, the Tarrant County Veterinary Medical Association, the North Texas Equine Association and the Texas Association of Veterinary Referral Practitioners concerning three confirmed, unrelated cases of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever in family dogs.

These cases have been reported in the Dallas area in animals who have returned to Dallas from the East Texas area. Health Department officials noted there have been eight confirmed cases of the fever seen in dogs in this 19-county North Texas area (Region 5) since January 1.

While dogs carry the tick they are not prone to the fever as are humans, who pick up a tick, just like any other warm-blooded animal.

Precautions recommended include:

— Pet owners should use flea/tick prevention with weekly baths, dips, powders and repellent collars as recommended for their particular pet.

— The Fever can be transmitted to humans by contact with ticks. Check your clothes, body and pets after coming inside from out-of-doors.

— Ticks can be picked up when walking in open fields, along roadsides, in wooded areas, at the park or by a lake or creek.

— Never pull a tick with your bare hands. Protect yourself by wearing a rubber or plastic glove, by inserting your fingers into a small plastic bag or by using tweezers before you touch a tick.

— Remember, all ticks are potentially dangerous.

ANIMAL CONTROL

For all who have pets — especially dogs and cats — that are allowed to roam freely through the neighbors yards, to say nothing of the neighborhood and the town, you are risking your pet's life.

If your pet is picked up by the city in violation of the City's Animal Control Ordinance, you may be subject to a fine and restitution. Even worse, if you do not think to check with the city when your pet is missing, you may unthinkingly be sentencing your pet to death.

The City of Muenster adopted an Animal Control Ordinance on July 7, 1980. That ordinance requires all animals kept as pets must be vaccinated on a regular basis, wear a vaccination tag and be confined to the owner's property.

Briefly, the Ordinance requires:

LICENSE FEES/TAGS

All pets kept by their owners and over the age of four months must be licensed at a cost of $5 per pet. The license is valid for one year. Before the license can be issued, each pet must be vaccinated and evidenced by a vaccination tag and certificate issued by a veterinarian.

Each annual renewal fee for the license is $2.50. The shape of the tag is changed yearly.

Every owner is required to provide each pet with a collar to which the license tag must be affixed and shall see that the collar and tag are worn constantly by the pet.

If the tag is lost or destroyed, the owner must present a receipt showing the payment of the original license fee or the renewal, whichever the case may be for the current year, and pay a 50-cent fee before a duplicate tag can be issued.

Pet tags are neither transferable or refundable.

RUNNING AT LARGE

This, according to city officials, is the major problem with pets.

It is unlawful for pets to run at large within the city limits. They are to be enclosed or tied with a suitable leash on the owner's property.

Pets which are picked up by city officials are impounded. They can be reclaimed by their owner if they are duly licensed and shelter fees and penalties are paid.

IMPOUNDMENT

When a pet is impounded by the city, it is placed in a designated area and a record is made of the impoundment, according to the ordinance. If the animal is tagged the owner is notified.

If the owner of such impounded pet cannot be identified or located a description of the animal is posted at City Hall. The animal remains impounded for a period of 48-hours after the notice is posted.

If the animal is not claimed by the owner, the license secured, shelter fees paid and penalty fees paid, the animal can be offered for sale — payment being whatever is deemed adequate to cover the reclaiming fees and costs involved.

If the animal is neither claimed or sold it is destroyed.

Dr. Tisdale said, "I believe there is really a large segment of the population that is not aware that the city has an ordinance for animal control. It really bothers me to put an animal to sleep that I feel certain is someone's pet, but who has not been reclaimed."

Tisdale said he and city officials have sometimes kept an animal a few days longer than required to try to locate the owner or find a good home.

PENALTIES

Any person violating or failing to comply with any provision of the ordinance shall, upon conviction, be fined not less than $5 nor more than $200, per day, per violation, per animal.

In addition, shelter fees of $2.50 per day, per pet, and any incidental fees in disposing of the pet are the burden of the owner.

In accordance with the ordinance, the burden of proof of any exception, excuse, provision, or exemption is on the defendant.

City Manager, Joe Fenton, said the cost to the city per year to feed impounded animals runs around $100. The City is also responsible for disposal fees for unclaimed animals.

"Since I've been here, (11 months)" Fenton said, "I only remember one owner claiming their dog. There are so few bailed out and so many put to sleep. People just aren't bothering to call and see if we have their dog."

City records indicate that since November some 28-30 animals have been impounded and unclaimed.

HARM TO OTHERS

According to the Animal Control Ordinance, any owner of a pet that bites, scratches or attacks any person, when the person was not trespassing upon the property of the owner of the pet, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and the fine set according to the courts.

So, if you are a pet owner, you have a good deal of responsibility not only to the well being of your pet but also to the well being of your neighborhood and your city.

Dr. Tisdale said he vaccinated between 500-600 animals in his service area and that the figures are running about normal for this time of year. However, he encourages every pet owner not only to have their pets vaccinated, but also to maintain those pets and to check with City Hall if their pet is missing — before it's too late.

Nuptial unites Bowen, Kennedy

Sacred Heart Church in Muenster was the scene of the wedding on June 8 of Toni Renee Bowen of Gainesville to Toby Lee Kennedy.

Father Victor Gillespie officiated for the double ring ceremony and Nuptial Mass at 7 p.m. Saturday evening.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Margie Matthews and David Bowen. She is a graduate of Gainesville High School and is a secretary employed by Brown Motor Co.

The groom is the son of Mary and David H. Kennedy of Whitesboro and formerly of Muenster and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Knabe of Muenster. He is a graduate of Callisburg High School and is a craftsman employed by Oak Creek Homes in Gainesville.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her grandfather, D.L. Bowles. She was wearing a wedding gown made by the groom's aunt, Mrs. Gerrie Burr, of satin and chiffon, designed with a bodice of chantilly lace and seed pearls, with a Queen Anne neckline. A double ruffle surrounded the skirt hemline and extended around the train.

Her full, cathedral-length veil was held to a wreath of white stephanotis, and her bridal bouquet included pink roses, pink and white stephanotis and white carnations.

For "something old," she wore a ring passed from the maternal grandmother, to the mother and to the bride. She also borrowed diamond earrings and a pendant from her aunt.

Attendants

Kim Houghton of Gainesville, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor and Heidi Stephenson Beasley was matron of honor. Missy Reed of Gainesville, Connie Kennedy, sister of the groom of Whitesboro, and Tarjia Beaver of Era, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids.

They wore pink Southern Belle style gowns, with a gray ruffle at the hem and off-shoulder, double pink and gray ruffles. They carried arm bouquets of pink roses, white babies breath and ivy, tied with cascades of pink ribbon.

Audra Bryant of Valley View, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and A.J. Knabe, cousin of the groom, was ringbearer.

Russell Hutchison of Gainesville was best man. Allen Shuggart of Gainesville, Chris Hermes of Woodbine, James Kennedy, the groom's brother of Whitesboro, and Steven Matthews, the bride's brother of Gainesville, were groomsmen.

Stephen Vogel, Johnny Moore, Coyt Hutchison and Mike Pilchec were ushers.

Brian Englebright, cousin of the bride, and Roxy Knabe, cousin of the groom, were candlelighters.

Ruth Felderhoff, organist, and Susan (Crenshaw) Barthold, vocalist, presented wedding music. Church decorations included silk arrangements of pink carnations and gladioli, mixed with almond blossoms and dark green eucalyptus leaves on the altar.

Reception

A reception followed in the Sacred Heart Community Center in Muenster.

Mrs. Brian Stiles (Dana) of Gainesville, a friend, and Sheree Hamilton of Thackerville, cousin of the bride, were in charge of the bride's book.

The bride's and groom's cakes were made by Peggy Gray of Bolivar, Texas and were decorated with pink rosettes and gray trim. Reception assistants were Mrs. Larry Bryant (Barbara), aunt of the bride, Mrs. Kirk Klement (Donna), cousin of the groom, and Martha Bowen, sister of the bride.

Since returning from a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple is at home in Gainesville.

The rehearsal dinner was held at Rohmer's Restaurant. Two showers honored the bride-elect, one given by the bridesmaids and another by the bride's aunts.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES TOLBERT COWDEN III
... nee Joan Thelma Voth ...

Joan Voth, James Cowden III wed

Joan Thelma Voth, daughter of Joe and Alvina Voth, became the bride of James Tolbert Cowden III, son of James Tolbert Cowden II and the late Jewell Imdeau Schoolcraft, on Saturday, June 15, at 7 p.m.

The double-ring ceremony was held on the patio at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Jim and Fran Voth, and officiated by Dorothy Smith, Cooke County Justice of the Peace.

Patio decorations included a white wrought iron floral archway and groupings of green and blooming plants.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was wearing a floor-length, white taffeta wedding gown designed and created by her mother and a cousin, Mrs. Thelma Trubenbach. Self-fabric double ruffles surrounded the shoulders and neckline. A full skirt was gathered to the fitted bodice. Two rows of gathered lace flounced the hemline and minitrain. In keeping with tradition, she wore a gold cross and chain worn by her mother on her wedding day. She carried a nosegay of white and orchid silk flowers.

Attendants

Lola Kindiger of Lindsay, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Rose Hudson of Saint Jo, a friend, was bridesmaid. They wore orchid taffeta floor-length gowns, ruffled at the shoulders and flounced at the skirt hemline, and made by the bride's mother. Each carried long-stemmed orchid carnations and wore a matching carnation in her hair.

Randall Ogletree of Gainesville was best man and Donald Pince was groomsman. Jerome Voth, oldest brother of the bride, was the usher.

A buffet of assorted pick-up foods was served following the ceremony. The bride's tiered angel food cake and the groom's chocolate cake were made by Betty Rose Walterscheid. The cake table held an orchid cloth overlaid with white lace, and an arrangement of orchid carnations. The buffet table was covered similarly and held a pair of white candelabras with lighted votive candles.

Nieces of the bride, Shari Voth and Traci Voth, registered 50 guests at a table covered with an orchid cloth with lace overlay, and orchid carnations in a bud vase.

Cathy Wicker, niece of the bride, served punch and Carol Voth, the bride's sister-in-law, and Kathy O'Brien, the bride's sister, served wedding cake.

A miscellaneous shower honored the bride-elect on June 2, hosted by her sisters, in the Kindiger home.

The bride attended Sacred Heart School and Gainesville High School and is employed by Fry-Brant in Muenster. The groom attended schools in Argyle and Denton and is employed by Hacker Brothers.

Happy Birthday,
Mr. Administrator

License fees increased

Resident and non-resident Texas hunting licenses will cost more in 1985-86 as a result of action by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission last week.

Commission Chairman Ed Cox Jr. said the commission members all regretted having to raise license fees, but additional revenue is required to maintain Parks and Wildlife Department functions during the coming year.

The most dramatic increases were for non-resident hunting licenses, with the general non-resident license price raised from $100.75 to $200 and the non-resident small game license from the current $37.75 to $75.

Staff members told the commission that the increased fees bring the cost of Texas non-resident licenses more in line with those in other states, and especially those states which provide the bulk of hunters visiting Texas.

All the increases will be effective Sept. 1, 1985. Licenses for the 1985-86 seasons will be available from department offices and retail outlets by August, officials said.

Other license fees increased are: resident combination hunting/fishing, from $12 to $15; resident hunting, $8 to $10; resident hunting exempt, $5 to $6; hunting duplicate, $5 to $6; and temporary non-resident fishing, $7 to $8.

EVOKING FOND MEMORIES and nostalgic community pride in Muenster's first clinic are these pictures of Dr. T.S. Myrick's offices, located in the old Dixie Drug Store building. At upper left and clearly noticeable is the sign indicating his office and the exterior stairway to his second floor clinic. Shown also are two of his nurses, Loretta (Hartman) Mason and Dorothy Hartman, who shared this series of pictures with Janie Hartman, for Photos From The Past. At their side is C.J. Kaiser, who at that time was owner of the downstairs drug store. In 1936, Dr. Myrick bought the building and 12 years later bought the drug store, where he is shown in the upper right picture. He then remodeled the second floor into patient rooms and a nursery and delivery room, and moved his offices and examining rooms to the lower floor. At lower right, Dr. Myrick works in his lab. Several years after his death, his family sold the building to the city of Muenster. The exterior of the building, with a new coat of white stucco, is shown at lower left and begins to reveal to viewers the more familiar lines of the present Muenster Public Library.

Bible school closes June 28

The annual vacation bible school of Sacred Heart Parish ended Friday, June 28, with a eucharistic celebration featuring the theme of the week, "Glory Days."

The school's enrollment included children of age four through the sixth grade and its purpose was to teach them about the love of Jesus and being a part of God's family. The messages were woven into crafts, games, scriptures, socializing, singing and sharing blessings through a mission project. That project was a donation of household items to McDonald Houses of Dallas and Fort Worth and money for financial aid to Vanessa Knabe, a leukemia patient.

Average daily attendance of the school was 225 and the average teaching staff was more than 150, consisting of teachers, aides, craft helpers, refreshment hostesses and nursery attendants.

Daily classes started with a worship service led by Emily Klement, Patti Bayer and Jean Pagel. Next, the children were taught in Christian living, bible stories and assorted learning situations. And at mid-morning, they received refreshments with Mary Endres, Karen Moster and Peggy Grewing directing.

Father Victor visited all classes on Thursday, giving each child a souvenir holy card. Other gifts were free coupons for McDonald's hamburgers as an expression of thanks for donations to McDonald House. Jeannine Patterson of Denton represented McDonald's; Linda Knabe gave the coupons.

The solemn closing liturgy was planned by Father Victor, Emily Klement, Patti Bayer and Linda Knabe. Father Victor, Mass celebrant, was attended by Kody Trubenbach, Martin McCoy, Michael Hacker, Darren Bindel and Justin Hartman, as Mass servers. Other participants in the opening procession were Margie Klement, Michelle Knauf, Kim Hess and Vicky Bayer; and participants during the Mass were Linda Knabe, Dana Hess, Cheryl Hacker, Scott Poole, Cory Knabe, Becky Fleitman, Darlene Hess, Cher Moster, Jeff Sicking, C.J. Muller, Sabrina Trubenbach, Mary Knabe, Laura Klement, Debra Voth, Kelly Bob Bayer and Lisa Russell.

Songs were "Glory Days," "Oh, How I Love Jesus," "Jesus Loves Me," "Do Lord," "Praise God," and a meditation song with hand motions.

Special recognition at the closing was a plant presented by Emily Klement to Margie Klement as a token of love and appreciation from teachers and students for a super job.

Forestburg News

by Myrt Denham

I, for one, was very amused when the article I wrote on the 1985 Senior Trip to Hawaii came out in last week's paper. The heading to it was not mine, for certainly I knew how many seniors made the trip besides us Denhams and Dan Hamric. We are wondering who the extra four seniors are as there were only 14 graduating seniors this year and four of those didn't make the trip for various reasons. Guess Dan is wondering where he left the other eight - here or over in Hawaii. Perhaps he'd like to go back to see if he can find them - plus wondering just who the extra four seniors were in the first place.

It has recently been brought to my attention that there are some of you that seem unhappy with my contacting you for news items for this column. To those of you that feel this way - I have this to say and ask. How do you think I come by all the news items for you to read and perhaps enjoy? Very few, and I do mean a very few, call me or hand me news items - thus the calls.

Therefore, if you are one of those who dislike my calls, tell me so the next time I call and I will certainly refrain from calling you. Fair enough? On the other hand, if you have news items you would like to appear in this column - ALL you have to do is call me and I will do my best to get them in it. I have told everyone that this column is only as good as you, the readers, help me to make it. It is all up to you!

Thursday night, July 5, and Saturday night, July 6, are rodeo nights in Forestburg. The Forestburg High School cheerleaders will be selling homemade ice cream at the rodeos. The money they raise is for the cheerleading school at TCU in Fort Worth. The school starts July 29 and goes for a week. The Forestburg PTO will be in charge of the concession stand at the rodeo on both nights.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson of Midland are in residence at their Forestburg abode since the first part of last week.

At this writing, our Vera Mae McGee is still on the sick list - and she is undergoing various tests.

Kenneth and Peggy Holland made a business trip to the Fort Worth Post Office Monday, June 24. On to Farmersville and Denton where they visited their daughter, Mrs. Christy Rashid.

Mrs. Paula (Hudspeth) Barber and daughter, Angie of Wichita Falls, and Paula's mother-in-law,

FARM & RANCH

LEE WOLF, David Schneiderjan and Marvin Rauschuber, dairy farmers from Gainesville, look over promotional materials for the summer promotion campaign funded by dairy farmers nationwide.

Ad campaign features ice cream

Ice cream lovers across the country will find themselves sorely tempted this summer by a new ice cream advertising campaign. "Ice Cream the Beautiful" is the theme of two new commercials on TV and promotional materials in grocery stores nationwide.

The TV commercials feature a variety of different situations in which ice cream hits the spot - with meals and as a snack at home, at work, and for special occasions. The commercials are designed to appeal to all age groups, with a special message to Mom to keep a supply of ice cream on hand.

The campaign is being funded by the National Dairy Board, a dairy farmer funded promotion organization, and state and regional dairy promotion organizations, in cooperation with the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers.

The advertising campaign is the first in which dairy farmers and ice cream manufacturers have joined forces to promote their product.

Total expenditures for the campaign will be nearly $14 million. Of this, the National Dairy Board will spend approximately $4 million on national network advertising. The ice cream manufacturers have pledged over $8 million. Of this $5 million will go for local, branded TV ads and $3 million for newspaper and radio ads. State and regional dairy promotion groups will spend up to $2 million on promotional materials in grocery stores nationwide.

Henrietta man is chief of SCS

Wilson Scaling of Henrietta became chief of the USDA Soil Conservation Service on May 21. In the July issue of Soil and Water Conservation News, he said he is pleased with his new job.

"The Soil Conservation Service runs an excellent voluntary soil and water conservation program," Scaling said. "I'm proud to be named the agency's new chief and I am confident in my knowledge and understanding of the strong partnership between SCS and conservation districts."

"I've learned firsthand how that partnership works - as a practicing steward of the soil, director of the Little Wichita Soil and Water Conservation District, area director of the Texas Association of Conservation Districts and member of the National Association of Conservation Districts."

Conservation districts are governed by locally elected landowners who coordinate conservation work within their district.

Scaling said he firmly believes soil and water conservation is the key to America's long-term productivity in agriculture.

County Agent's Report

Texas Grain Sorghum producers will vote in August to decide if they want to expand the check-off territory from the existing 29 High Plains counties under the jurisdiction of the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board.

To learn more about the upcoming grain sorghum referendum, producers in Cooke and surrounding counties will want to attend an informational meeting conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service on July 11 at the Texas A&M Extension and Research Center, 17360 Coit Road in Dallas. The meeting will start at 1:30 p.m. and last until 3:00 p.m.

Producers will hear from an Extension economist regarding the current feed grain situation and outlook and the changing sorghum production trends in the state. Also, the mechanics and timing of the referendum voting process will be discussed, including recent changes in the commodity referendum law. Following these discussions, Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board representatives will present information on the existing grain sorghum check-off program and the potential outcome of a total statewide effort. Producers will have ample time to ask questions about the program.

For additional information, please contact the County Extension Office at 665-4931.

Field inspector appointed

Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association has appointed Doyce Frederick Cook, 36, of Huntsville, Texas to serve as field inspector for TSCRA District 26 in the Gulf Coast area of Texas, effective immediately, says Don C. King, TSCRA secretary-general manager in Fort Worth.

TSCRA, a 108-year-old cattlemen's organization, employs 32 field inspectors, all certified peace officers carrying special Ranger commissions, to assist cattlemen and conduct livestock theft investigations in Texas and Oklahoma.

In 1984, these inspectors, working with state and local law enforcement agencies, developed 170 theft cases, primarily dealing with cattle, and recovered or accounted for 5,447 head of livestock and ranch-related property valued in excess of $2.3 million, King said.

Inspector Cook, who served as a Walker County deputy sheriff before joining TSCRA, will work with cattlemen in Galveston, south Harris, Fort Bend, Wharton, Colorado, Brazoria and Matagorda counties. He will be headquartered in Wharton and will supervise the brand inspection activities within his district, King said.

Big cows not always efficient

Big cows may not be the most efficient producers in a beef cattle herd. Although big cows generally produce the heaviest calves, their maintenance costs may outweigh the benefits of the extra pounds of beef, notes a beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. A demonstration at the Four G Ranch near Hempstead the past two years showed that cow maintenance costs need to be considered along with the age of cows in coming up with an efficient herd. In the demonstration, the heaviest cows produced cows only 13 pounds (two percent) heavier than calves from medium-weight cows, but these heavy cows required about 18 percent more energy and 13 percent more protein on a daily basis.
