EXCERPTS FROM SPEECH BY FRED W. DAVIS, PRESIDENT FARMERS MARKETING ASS'N. OF AMERICA DELIVERED AT DALLAS, JULY 4, 1927

The cotton crop as it comes from the fields adds a billion dollars a year to the wealth of the nation. Every citizen of the United States should therefore have a pride in this annual production of wealth. Almost every citizen in the South has a direct interest, and to that extent should feel a pride in the value of our cotton crop.

"Cotton is not a commodity that may be grown or not grown according to the whims or tastes of the people. It is a commodity indispensable to both the comforts and progress of the world. Not to grow cotton for one single year would produce world wide chaos and disaster. In the very nature of things, should not a people who have a decided advantage in the production of such a product be prosperous and the envy of mankind? But such is not the case. King Cotton is a suppliant and a bankrupt. The economist says that this is true because he is subject to the law of supply and demand. Were this really true there would be more stability to the price of raw cotton than to the finished product, because a period of two months harvest gives a very definite idea of the supply for the whole year. According to this law the price might be high or might be low, but would not be nervous and fickle. But the claim can not be made that the law of supply and demand prevails in the selling of cotton, because such a law can prevail only when and where buyer and seller are permitted to meet on equal grounds of barter. It is then the law that favors the one or the other. Moreover, there is no surplus in the laws of trade until stocks are accumulated to the point of enforced idleness on the part of the producer or producers. In the case of cotton this can not be determined by one harvest alone. In the first place it is common history that crop goods do not often follow each other, and in the next place it is being made easier each year for farmers to curtail cotton production in so far as reduction of acreage is concerned, without having to close down their plants and lay off their help. Their machinery is geared to turn out other products, and this the farmers are doing of late years, when threatened disaster arouses every one to the necessity of such change of program. Let us not forget that for the last twenty odd years, extremely low prices have been followed by material reduction of acreage. And on the average we have not produced too much cotton.

"The South has a low standard of rural life in the face of her strategic position in the world of production, not because she has produced too much cotton, but because the entire citizenship of the South has not crowned her. She has because of loss been the foot ball of irresponsible price makers, and the victim of anticipated surpluses. Price makers without investments, who reckon not in tearing down constructed efforts as in building them up will ruin any industry that must submit to their game.

"When a campaign for cheap cotton can not be sustained by claiming a large surplus, and when cotton prices are going up, the enemies of the South solemnly inform the public that should prices remain profitable it will stimulate production in other countries and we will soon be facing ruinous competition. Let us see if facts sustain their claim. The greatest efforts ever put forth by any foreign government for cotton production has been by the British Empire. The stimulus to the efforts of Great Britain to grow cotton has not been high prices, but fear that she will not be able to get a sufficient amount of cotton to supply her mills. The cotton countries are the great consumers of cotton goods, and it is not sound business for cotton spinners to want cheap cotton. This fact was announced to the world last fall by the president of the Spinners' Association of the United States. But what did our manipulators last fall care what the producers needed or the spinners desired? Conditions were favorable to a bear raid; and that meant wealth to the bears, though poverty and ruin to the South.

"No one can read the future, but taking the past as a guide, there is little danger of an over-production of cotton. Every step of progress, such as autos, movies, road building, aviation, is punctuated and perforated with increasing demands for more cotton. Why should we fear competition when the greatest empire of all history is curtailing acreage by law? Again, of all commodities for holding during periods of heavy production, cotton is the easiest. Being highly condensed it can be kept cheaply—and indefinitely. "In conclusion let me say our cotton troubles have not in reality been because of over-production; but because a helpless people have had no sustaining power in regulating the sale of their goods, and were compelled to submit to the results of manipulation. Our troubles will continue in the future, and become worse, unless the whole country wakes up to the fact that a great and industrious people are being outraged, unless we will all unite in finding the value of the South's classic crop, and back its value with sustaining power which will balance the fickle whims of the seasons, and give assurance to production of at least approximate profit above cost. A crop like cotton can be grown and sold profitably if a united effort is made to do so. The farmers can not do so alone, because years of loss have made them helpless.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

To the home of Prof and Mollie Elwell in Camdenville, Indiana, one night in October, 1926, is brought a woman who had fainted on a train. That night she bears twin girls and dies without revealing her name.

The story then moves forward 18 years. The twins, now growing to beautiful womanhood, have been adopted and named Margaret and Elizabeth. They are called Rusty and Betty.

Jim Elwell, the son, enlists in the World War. He then discovers that one of the twins loves him.

He is shell-shocked at the Battle of Sedan and at first is reported dead. Finally, however, he is identified in a New York hospital and his mother and father see him and find he has completely lost his memory and speech. He is like a living dead man.

Specialists despair of his recovery. They believe an operation might be fatal. His parents decide to take him home. The day before they are to leave Nurse Nellie Downing and his mother leave him for a few minutes and he disappears.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY CHAPTER XXXI

"HE'S gone!" burst from Mollie Elwell in tones of dismay. She asked Nellie Downing, "Do you suppose he followed us? He wouldn't be likely, do you think, to wander off the other way into the woods?"

The nurse stood speechless, stricken with sudden fear.

"Oh, dear!" Mollie cried a little wildly, her glance darting here and there, "he's getting to be just one thing or another. Where is he? Where can he have gone to?"

She wrung her hands in helplessness, paced back and forth wildly. "What had we better do? Go back and get some help? Turn in an alarm!"

Contribution had laid hold of Nellie Downing. It was her fault entirely, she was telling herself miserably. Why had she done it? It was she, even, who had suggested it. She, a nurse, who should have known better.

"It's my fault," she said to Mollie Elwell. "It's all my fault. We'll go right to the superintendent. He'll know what to do. Jim must have followed the path out of the park, the transfer man and he never tries anything he hasn't tried before. We probably will find him up near the administration building."

She spoke with an assurance, an optimism she was far from feeling. Fear held her in its grip. Where had Jim Elwell gone?

They didn't find Jim at the administration building but they found the superintendent.

He spoke briefly when he had heard the story. "We'll start a search right away."

The supervisors of the different buildings were notified by telephone that a psychopathic patient was missing. Within ten minutes fifty searchers, including orderlies, nurses, and nurses who weren't needed for something else and others about the institution were called into action. It was half past four when the hunt started.

The five o'clock trolley brought Prof and Mike Hennegan. The hunt still was on. At five-thirty two blood-hounds, kept for just such emergencies, were taken to the rustic seat where Jim had been seen last and given his scent. They took up the trail on a tight leash. It led straight back to the administration building and stopped at the place where the trackless trolleys stopped.

The two dogs settled back on their haunches, pointed their noses up in the air and gave voice to their reasonings. Then they stretched out with their bellies on the ground and licked their chops. This was dog code, their keeper stated, which signified that the trail now led up in the direction of the main building.

"But he couldn't have boarded one of the trolley buses," averred the superintendent, though none too positively. "The driver would have seen at once that something was wrong when he couldn't have collected the fare. He would have brought him back and notified us."

Mike Hennegan broke in at this point with something to show that the superintendent easily might be wrong in his deductions and the hound dogs perfectly right in their sniffing.

"The driver wouldn't have been likely to notice a thing out of the way with the fare-paying business," he announced positively. "Jim could pay his fare as well as anybody when he had the fare to pay. Did he have any money on him, Prof?"

"He must have had nearly a dollar," Prof Elwell answered. "And," he added, "it's ten to one that's just what happened. He boarded the trolley bus and got off at the street car connection. Probably the Staten Island police already have picked him up."

He turned to Mollie and Nellie Downing, whose faces had lighted, as he finished speaking, with a new hope.

"You say it was about five minutes to four when you left him in the park?" Prof asked.

"About ten minutes, I think," said Nellie Downing.

"Well, if he followed you right up he could have been at this spot at four o'clock," the time the bus left here.

Prof Elwell's glance shifted back to the superintendent.

"Who's the driver of that bus, Mr. Dennison?" he inquired. "And when will he be back?"

"George Burdick is the driver," the hospital head told him. He looked at his watch, adding, "It's five-fifty now."

They waited for the bus, deciding to stay where they were until that lead had been run down.

The bus driver arrived promptly on schedule.

"Why, yes, that young feller rode with me," he told the anxious questioners when he had brought his car to a stop in front of the administration building. "I didn't know that anything was wrong with him in particular. He got off all right at his transfer man and I saw him get on the ferry car."

Prof repeated blankly, "You saw him get on the ferry car?"

"Absolutely."

"We must follow him at once, Prof," said Mollie from her stand at his side. She spoke without excitement, but in her anxious eyes lurked the dark specter of a new and unnamed fear.

"Don't you think we had better call the Staten Island police first?" Nellie Downing asked. "They may, ferry."

The nurse was trembling. Prof laid a steady hand on her arm. "Don't take this too much to heart, young lady," he commanded gruffly. "And don't get it into your head that it's your fault. Who in thunder would have thought that he'd walk off like that? He might have done it on me or Mike or Mollie—anyone."

She had no right, he concluded, blaming herself.

Nellie Downing shot him a grateful look. "Nevertheless I should have known better. I was responsible for him."

"You've already done more than anyone could expect of you," Prof told her. "I don't know what we'd have done without your help. Don't worry, now—and you, too," to Mollie, who was clinging to him. "We'll find him all right."

er and mother, Nellie Downing and the faithful Mike Hennegan.

Mike now was swearing softly to himself. "A damn shame," he kept repeating; "a damn shame, that's what it is."

The ticket-taker at the ferry dock, a man of 50 or thereabouts, to whom they all had become familiar during the summer, was getting ready to go home. He had, he said, noticed Jim Elwell, or one who answered his description, late that afternoon. He was pretty sure it was Jim, though, for he had commented to himself on his being alone. Yes, he had been wearing a gray summer suit and a straw hat.

"Well," said Nellie Downing when they finally had found a place to stand in the bow of the crowded ferry boat, "the best thing for us to do now is to get a taxi at the Battery and go right to police headquarters."

"It is the only thing to do," agreed Prof.

There was a reporter on one of the New York papers, Nellie Downing went on, who might be able to help them with the police.

"His name is Jack Nevin. He's on The Planet. I think he works regularly at police headquarters, although I don't know much about how such things are run. I think he used to work for the City News Bureau, and he's well acquainted with most of the police around the headquarters."

Jack Nevin, she went on, had been a second lieutenant in a New York regiment. She had met him first in a hospital in Paris. He had left a leg on the bank of the Argonne.

"I saw him again on the day of my return from France and he told me he was on The Planet staff and still was called upon to do a lot of police reporting. If anyone can help us Jack can."

Silence fell over the anxious little group. The impending storm that had been voicing its approach for three hours and more in low rumblings was now sending its heralds of wind hurries in from the ocean. The shadows of night were beginning to spread over New York Bay.

Occasionally the sky was lit up with a flash of lightning, to be followed by the heavy roll of thunder.

The four peered into the fast-gathering gloom ahead. A colossal statue, which but a moment before had stood out in plain relief on their left, was only dimly discernible now. Suddenly as they looked they saw a light flash into life at the end of the outstretched arm. It was the beacon torch of Liberty and the signal gleam it sent across the waters touched for a fleeting instant the face of Mollie Elwell.

It picked out her features as if they had been cameo against a dead black cloth. And Prof, who was watching, was startled.

"Mollie!" he exclaimed, frightened, for the expression on her face had made him fearful. "Mollie, dear, don't take it so to heart. We'll find the boy."

His wife turned to him with a patient smile, a smile so pitiful that erally speaking, staple crops having a world market, such as cotton, grain and livestock, will yield greater and more certain returns than highly perishable produce for any local market.

As fine canteloupes as any in the world can be produced in Brown county, and large quantities of this delicious melon are being produced here.

There is no reason, however, for limiting the production of canteloupes and other truck garden products to the home market, except the lack of cooperation on the part of the growers.

Fully half the fruits and vegetables consumed in Brownwood come here from other sections of Texas and from other states.

GOOD ROADS ENDORSED

VOTING six to one in favor of the proposition, the people of Grayson county a few days ago authorized a good roads bond issue of a little more than two million dollars.

As a result of their action in authorizing the big bond issue, Grayson county people are to receive for use on their highway system $1,680,000 of state and federal aid, with still further aid in the construction of "black top" roads on some of the main highways.

This is another evidence of the value of a comprehensive road building program, covering an entire county. We firmly believe that as soon as we have disposed of the pending water project, Brown county should take up its good roads problem with the purpose of working out a county-wide program.

THE DEATH OF KING FERDINAND

Springfield Republican: In the history of Europe the reign of King Ferdinand of Rumania, whose death from a lingering disease came yesterday, will fill a considerable place because of his country's participation in the World War, which had just begun when he came to the throne.

How powerful her influence was may be somewhat in doubt, since in no country were the wires of political intrigue more adroitly pulled, but whatever the forces at work may have been, the destiny of Rumania was greatly affected by the decision at first to remain neutral and then to join the allies when their victory began to seem probable.

With this sudden expansion came new problems, political and economic, for which King Ferdinand's limited abilities would probably have been inadequate even if he had been in vigorous health.

Her visit also enlightened the American public in regard to the dynastic crisis in Rumania, brought about by the disinheriting of the heir to the throne, Prince Carol, and the substitution of his infant son, Prince Michael, now 6 years old, who becomes king of Rumania under a regency.

Since Prince Carol could not bring himself to the personal sacrifices expected of a monarch, it is fortunate that he believes in "All for love and the world well lost." But the question of the regency may cause contention, and wonder is already expressed that Rumania's millionaire "big boss," Premier Bratiano, is not included among the regents.

COTTON IN THE SOUTHWEST IS REDUCED IN NEW ESTIMATE

DALLAS, July 23.—(P)—A decrease of approximately 2,740,000 bales of cotton is estimated for the production in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas in the report issued by R. C. Andrews, district manager of the car service division of the American Railway Association for the first half of July.

"Summing up the entire situation in the four Southwestern states and considering the decrease in acreage and the much smaller quantity of fertilizer used as compared with last year, it would seem that not more than seven million bales will be produced, which compares with 9,742,875 bales produced in 1926," Mr. Andrews said.

The crop in central, north central and south central sections of the Southwest is in good condition generally. Too much rain in extreme southern sections has continued to interfere with picking and has caused increased weevil and army worm activity, shedding and detaching of necessary leaves in southern operations are in progress in southern counties and will extend northward as the season advances.

Market Affected: Considerable strength in the cotton market has been shown on account of the probable decrease in production, but stocks on hand, plus this year's indicated production, by no means represents a shortage of cotton for necessary requirements, and producers should not be misled by the small advance in price into thinking that the present market strength will be maintained without a systematic and definite effort to market the year's crop in an orderly manner and in proportion to current consumptive demands.

Mr. Andrews cautions that the business situation generally in the Southwest is affected favorably or unfavorably in proportion to the ratio of cotton prices to production costs, and the matter of orderly marketing of this season's crop should have the serious consideration and assistance of all interests.

SCHOOL BOARD IS TO ACT ON TAX QUESTION

The Board of Trustees of Brownwood schools will meet Monday to outline a plan of action, following a second refusal of the City Council Tuesday night to grant the schools additional financial assistance.

The School Board is asking for a five or ten cent raise in the tax levy. The schools are now receiving 60 cents, although the city charter generally grants the maximum of any portion which is asked by the school board, after the board has shown the need for the additional funds, according to the School Board's view.

Dr. Shelton and Miss Carrie Reeves, for the second time presented figures to Council Tuesday night, showing that additional revenue was a necessity.

The law provides that Council must grant the maximum of any portion which is asked by the school board, after the board has shown the need for the additional funds, according to the School Board's view.

"FATHER OF TRUSTS" WEDS WOMAN FORTY YEARS HIS JUNIOR

NEW YORK, July 28.—(P)—Charles R. Flint, 77 year old financier known as "Father of the Trusts," today takes as his bride Miss Charlotte Reeves, of Washington, forty years his junior.

The ceremony, which culminates a wartime Washington romance, will take place at the First Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Flint, who earned his sobriquet of "Father of the Trusts" through organization of 22 of the country's greatest industries, including the United States Rubber Company and the American Woolen Company, said he planned a honeymoon trip to Europe when he returns from his present tour of inspection in connection with propositions to bring about international industrial consolidation.

Miss Reeves is the daughter of Edward F. Reeves, many years telegraph operator at the House of Representatives in Washington. Yesterday she was busily engaged shopping to complete her trousseau. Both Mr. Flint and Miss Reeves were married before.

Humphreys No. 1 McCully Good Oil Flow, No Water

The Humphreys Bros. No. 1 McCully, ten miles northwest of Brownwood, offsetting the Leslie on the east, was drilled a foot into the pay this morning at 4 o'clock, and flowing by heads went over the mast this morning following the tools out of the hole. The hole had filled half full of oil in 30 minutes after the sand was penetrated. No trace of water has been found thus far, it is said.

The pay was reached at 1,290 feet, and has not been penetrated more than 12 inches. It will not be drilled deeper, for the present at least, said Mr. Murphy of the Humphreys company this morning, unless present plans are changed.

Mr. Murphy nor D. H. Byrd of the Humphreys organization would either hazard any guess this morning as to the probable amount that the well might make, but were both admittedly greatly pleased with the showing. This well has only about 200,000 feet of gas, it is stated, probably not enough to flow it.

The Cave well of Humphreys Brothers, south of the McCully, topped the gas sand at 1,224 and has been drilled five feet in. At two feet in the sand it flowed two and a half million feet of gas. It was let flow all night, when the amount decreased, and was drilled three feet deeper, bringing it back up to about two and a quarter million. Five inches casing is being run and the well will be drilled in. At five feet in the sand the well had just begun to "sweat" oil.

In view of the water trouble in the discovery well on the Leslie and the Beall and Bishop well on the Cave, it is the hope that the water in this well may be drawn out in the gas sand and cased off.

These wells are watched with more than ordinary interest. The water wells by the Empire on the north and the Simms well on the south, have made a keen interest in the extension of the field east or west. The McCully well appears to establish the field to the east extension. Other tests now drilling should give a verdict soon on the west or southwest.

2 LATE WELLS ARE BIGGEST IN NEW POOL

Reports from the field today state that both the Moore No. 1 and the Smith No. 5 of Rosenfield and Hart and T. H. Drake in the new production area northeast of the Fry field, in the section south of Grosvenor, are larger than that indicated by the earlier gauges, on which reports of production earlier this morning were based. The Moore No. 1 is said to have gauged 360 barrels last night, putting it at a 600 to 700 barrel well. The Smith No. 5 is declared to be making around 50 barrels an hour, or from 1,000 to 1,300 barrels a day.

The Algie Moore No. 1 of Rosenfield and Hart and T. H. Drake reported yesterday as extending three-quarters of a mile to the northeast, the producing area south of Grosvenor and northeast of the Fry field, proved to be a larger producer than first reports indicated and the Smith-Ellis area was still further boosted by the bringing in of the same operators' Smith No. 5 Monday evening, which bids fair to be the best well of the field thus far.

The Moore No. 1, which topped the sand at 1,233 and was producing at four feet in the sand when yesterday's report was given, was drilled to seven and a half feet in, or a total depth of 1,260 1-2 Monday afternoon. The well tested 325 barrels for 24 hours, flowing at the rate of 15 barrels an hour, or above 350 bars a day for the last five hours of the gauge.

The Rosenfield & Hart and T. H. Drake Smith No. 5 topped the sand at 1,335 and drilled 12 feet in, or to a total of 1,347 feet. It was flowing by heads every fifteen minutes last night, making about 20 barrels an hour, and appeared to be certain of making as much as a 400 or 500-barrel well. The Selby Oil & Gas Company's Ellis No. 2, on adjoining tract which was drilled in 6 weeks ago, had a flush production of 500 or 600 barrels. The producer brought in yesterday, it appears, will be as good or better than that well.

The Selby's Ellis No. 5, offsetting the Smith No. 5, is due to be drilled in this evening or tonight.

Man Injured While Seeking Bride May Succumb to Wounds

AUSTIN, July 28.—(P)—With two brothers from Texas at his bedside, George Gabour, merchant of that city, who came here with a pocket full of money hunting a bride, was still in a serious condition today from injuries received Wednesday when he was run down by a Texas Oil Company truck.

Gabour's skull was fractured at the base, one ear drum was ruptured and he was severely bruised, physicians said, indicating that his condition may be critical for several days.

MEETING HELD AT BRADY TO GET RAILROAD

A meeting termed the first step in a determined campaign to assure designation of any proposed railroad from Corpus Christi through San Antonio into the Northwest was held at Brady Tuesday with representatives from Fredericksburg, Mason and Brady united to promote their interests.

President W. F. Murphy of the Brownwood Chamber of Commerce and G. D. Crabtree, former secretary of the civic body, attended the session and added their support to the other three cities.

The session was held with representatives from San Antonio and Corpus Christi, who were on their way to San Angelo where a meeting was to be held Tuesday night to complete final organization towards obtaining a charter for the proposed Gulf and Northwestern railroad.

Armed with complete data on production and activities in this section, Fredericksburg, Mason and Brady delegates were prepared to show that this route lay through one of the richest sections of Texas—and one of the resources of which scarcely had been touched. Assurance was given by Corpus Christi and San Antonio committees that no specific route would be designated at the San Angelo meeting, but that opportunity would be given to all interested centers to present their facts and figures when the question comes up for consideration.

The meeting here was followed with a luncheon given to the visiting delegates by the Brady Chamber of Commerce, and at which Brownwood also was represented. The interests of Brownwood will be served only if the proposed road is routed through Brady, there by giving Brownwood direct rail connection with San Antonio and the Gulf by way of the Frisco, whose line extends to Menard, but is closest to San Antonio at Brady.

Mr. Murphy declared Wednesday he had no statement to make concerning the plans discussed at the Brady session Tuesday.

CONTROVERSY TO BE TAKEN TO COMMISSION

A TEMPORARY injunction to restrain the City of Brownwood from enforcing lower gas rates is being sought by Community Natural Gas Company, Inc., formerly Brownwood Gas Company. Judge C. L. McCartney, attorney for Community Gas, went to Coleman Tuesday afternoon to confer with District Judge J. O. Woodward and to ask him to grant a temporary injunction against the city until such time as a hearing before the Railroad Commission may be given.

If the injunction is granted, the old rates will remain in effect until the Railroad Commission passes on the matter. The commission has the power to order that the old rates be retained, that the new rates be effective, or to set other rates in accordance with what the commission thinks is proper.

An ordinance forcing the company to furnish 2,000 cubic feet of gas for the same minimum rate now charged for 1,000 cubic feet, was passed by City Council early this month, for the second time. The first time the ordinance was passed, Brownwood Gas claimed no hearing had been given them, and after a hearing was allowed, the ordinance was again passed. The new rates were to be effective August 1.

If the injunction is granted, as it probably will be, according to attorneys, the old rates will remain in force until the hearing before the commission. If the commission sustains the rate reduction, the gas company will be forced to pay to the city the difference in rates during the time the injunction is in force.

Name is Changed: The Brownwood Gas Company was purchased July 1 by Lone Star Gas Company of Dallas. The name has been changed to Community Natural Gas Company, incorporated under the laws of Delaware.

Gene Morgan, formerly of Electric, has been appointed manager. He and M. G. James of the Dallas office have been in charge here since Lone Star took over the company.

Several other subsidiary companies of Lone Star Gas operate under the name of Community Natural Gas. The property here is valued at $650,000, according to the application for injunction. The purchase price paid by Lone Star to Brownwood Gas stockholders was never made public. Mr. Morgan said he had no statement to make in regard to the application for an injunction.

Dreaming of Wreck, Moody's Secretary Shatters Window And Leaps From Fast Train

DENVER, Colo., July 26.—(P)—Carl Phinney of Austin, secretary to Gov. Dan Moody of Texas, was recovering in his hotel room Monday from injuries suffered last week when a nightmare caused him to leap from a speeding Colorado & Southern train in New Mexico. Phinney, from his bed here Monday, gave an account of his mid-night plunge.

"The train, I was on, derailed because of a wreck near Trinidad, Colo., and that story of the wreck must have gripped my subconscious mind," said the secretary. "Dreaming that our train was wrecked, I smashed the window in my Pullman berth and leaped to the ground with nothing on but my pajamas." Phinney said he was partially stunned by the fall and suffered a bad cut on his foot. He made his way back to a small station which his train had just passed and was given medical aid.

Phinney is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Phinney of Brownwood.

Improvements being made by Telephone Company at $15,000. Additional switchboard equipment is being installed Monday by West Texas Telephone Company at a cost of approximately $15,000, according to F. W. Greber, manager of the organization. Six extra positions are being installed on the local switchboard, only three of which are to be put into use at present, and two extra positions are to be added to the long distance switchboard. The equipment arrived here late last week. Additional subscribers and a greater call for service, both local and long distance, has necessitated the installation of the additional equipment, Mr. Greber said. This is the latest move in a program of improvement which has been under way for several months. Recently a large number of underground conduits were installed by the company.

MOORE-NO. 1 EXTENDS FIELD TO NORTHEAST

An important extension to the field in the Grosvenor district was made yesterday when the Rosenfield et al. No. 1 Algie Moore was drilled 12 and showed up for a nice producer. The well flowed 30 barrels Sunday night, according to reports from the field this morning. The sand was topped at 1,251, it is stated, and has been drilled four feet in.

The new well is in the section south of Grosvenor, and about three-quarters of a mile northeast of the Rosenfield et al. production on the M. L. Smith and the Selby production on the H. J. Ellis.

New Jersey Democrats lived up to their wet reputation by adopting a platform favoring modification of the Volstead act.

CASH MISSING AFTER POKER PARTY

W. A. Duffey, 30, Dallas traveling salesman, sustained a fractured skull and minor injuries at an early hour Monday in an altercation with City Detective Carl Adams on Vine St.

The police department was notified at about 9 o'clock by an unknown woman, that a man was lying unconscious in lot on Vine street.

According to Patrolman Remington, Adams told him he hit the man in the head with his gun when the man disturbed the peace near his house and refused to leave the premises, after asking for some ice water.

In a statement made Monday afternoon to Remington, Dr. T. B. Bailey and a Bulletin reporter, Duffey said he had been playing poker since midnight at a house near where he was found, and that he and three other men had been drinking corn liquor, but said he didn't know whether the others were drunk.

Another salesman, who was traveling with Duffey, and a prominent Brownwood merchant, were mentioned in the statement made by Duffey.

Two other cities for Brownwood's fight to get water rights

TWO more cities have passed resolutions protesting against the action of the State Board of Water Engineers in granting to the Syndicate Power Company of Dallas all waters flowing from the Colorado river watershed for power purposes.

WHEREAS, believing that the people of Texas, especially those who live in the semi-arid portion of the state, have a God-given right to apply the public waters to their natural uses, which are domestic, stock raising and irrigation, subject only to such prior or superior rights as may exist; also believing that the Legislature of Texas has made clear, through laws enacted from time to time, that the policy of the state is to protect the people living in those portions of the state where rainfall is uncertain in this right, as against the use of such waters for the development of power for other inferior uses, in a way that would prevent these natural uses.

WHEREAS, the Board of City Development of Sweetwater, Texas, representing the best interests of Sweetwater and vicinity, vigorously protest against a recent action of the State Board of Water Engineers granting to the Syndicate Power Company of Dallas, Texas, the right to more than four times the flow of the Colorado River and its tributaries such water to be used for the development of power, as being against the best interests of the people of the state; and a reversal of the public policy upon which the water right laws of the state are based, and it is further

Resolved, That a copy of this protest be sent to the State Board of Water Engineers, the Governor of the State and Attorney General.

OTHER CITIES WAGE FIGHT FOR CLEANER DAIRIES AND CAFES

Brownwood is not the only city fighting for cleaner dairies and cafes and other food handling concerns.

The Houston Council of Parent-Teacher Association has decided not to launch a proposed campaign for health' campaigns for the reason that Houston milk doesn't reach certain standard required by the U. S. Health Bureau.

An ordinance, similar to the one on the books of the City of Brownwood and which is not being enforced, is being drawn up by Houston officials and will be read to Houston Council soon. The ordinance is also similar to that of Fort Worth and San Antonio.

Slack enforcement of the code now in force and insufficient inspection of food dispensaries constitute a menace to Dallas health, it is said. Commissioner Davis in a published interview yesterday said the top of the city board keeping all health matters from the public and the newspapers.

New Orleans is also fighting for cleaner milk and distribution systems through their greatest enemy is caused by the ravages of the Texas fever tick.

McCartney Urges Adoption Judiciary Amendment Monday

In a statement prepared for The Bulletin today, Judge C. L. McCartney urged his hearty endorsement of the pending judiciary amendment, and urged its adoption in the special amendment election which is to be held throughout the State of Texas next Monday.

"A great deal is being written about the constitutional amendments to be voted on August first, I do not know that I am entitled to give an opinion on any of them except one, but I believe I can say with some fair degree of modesty, that I am entitled to express an opinion on the judiciary amendment which proposes to increase the Supreme Court to a membership of nine."

It is absolutely necessary to enlarge the Supreme Court. When Texas was a Territory we had a very scant population and practically no development, it had three members. This number of judges was unable to handle the business of the Territory. The volume of business has multiplied vastly since then, and is growing rapidly every year. Texas is in fact becoming developed to the point where it would make a good sized republic all alone. The proposed amendment will put nine judges on the court and will at the same time eliminate six judges who at present act as mere axils to the court, and whose work when done is not authoritative and has to be passed upon and worked over by the already over-worked three regular judges. It is imperative to have some sort of relief. The court is now more than three years behind in its work. Such a condition amounts to a practical denial of justice. It is humanly impossible for any three men to do the work.

Ferguson Makes Attack on Moody and Amendments

AUSTIN, July 25.—(AP)—Governor Moody is the political child of Congress and Texas, and is being vigorously supported by the proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on August 1st, and will look like a political orphan when the returns come in next Monday, former Governor James E. Ferguson, in an attack on the amendments, said today.

City Employee is Slightly Injured by Gravel Cave-in

J. A. Underwood, 40, city employe, was slightly injured shortly after noon Monday when a bank at the city gravel pit on Vine street caved in and imprisoned him.

His side was badly smashed and he sustained other minor injuries. He was given medical attention and then taken to his home on Fourth street.

The gravel slide was caused by rain of the past few days, it is thought.

Underwood is the second man to be injured in the pit within the last two weeks Ed Basham was hurt under similar circumstances recently.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick will conduct a meeting for the young people in the League room at the Methodist Church next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. There will be no League program for next Sunday as Mrs. Kirkpatrick will conduct the service. All young people and older ones who are interested in young people's work are requested and urged to be present. Mrs. Kirkpatrick has had lots of experience in young people's work and is very anxious to meet all the young people of this community.

In a letter last week to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wetz a few days ago from their grand-daughter, Mrs. Lucille McCollough (nee Miss Lucille Tucker) she tells them of the recent death of her husband, Robert McCollough, which occurred at Portland, June 25, 1927. Mr. McCollough was born in Arlington, Neb., Aug. 9, 1887. He was married September 21, 1918, to Lucille Tucker of Blanket. Their four children are: Christina, Robert, Orvil and Mary. With his wife he united with the Christian Church in Brownwood. On November 5, 1917, he enlisted as a volunteer in the service of his country and was a member of 688th Aero Squadron in the Air service at Kelly field. He was honorably discharged on December 22, 1918. As a boy he always possessed those true principles of manhood that reflected credit to the name of McCollough. His army discharge papers stated that his character was excellent. Funeral services were held in the community church of Prineville, the American Legion being in charge. The many friends present and the beautiful display of flowers expressed their sympathy and the esteem in which they held the deceased. Friends here of Mrs. McCollough sympathize with her greatly in her sorrow.

Leslie Well Oil Flow Now 24 to 27 Barrels Daily

The discovery well on the W. A. Leslie tract southeast of Thirty, ten miles northwest of Brownwood, now owned by Johnny Cox and the Nimrod Oil Company is showing a daily oil production now of 24 to 27 barrels, according to one of the owners. This is with 40 or 50 barrels of water daily.

While no authoritative statement has been obtained in the last day or two on the Beall and Bishop well on the Cavel tract, offsetting the Leslie, it is said to be making about 10 barrels of oil a day, with 50 or 60 barrels of water.
