"I would do it all over every time"

Shea Lair and husband Brian Lair. "We had a lifetime of marriage in three months," Shea said. Lezlie Andrew / Provided Photo

By JON MARK BEILUE

Nearly 3 months after a radiant Shea Lowe walked the aisle at her wedding where a beaming Brian Lair waited, hands crossed in front of him, she leaned by his side near his bed Wednesday afternoon.

"Baby, do you want some ice cream?" she asked. "Just give me a thumbs-up if you want some?"

Just more than 100 days ago, they were at First United Methodist Church in Gruver with more than 400 people filling the pews, with eight bridal attendants in purple, with piano and violin music filling the church. On Wednesday, there were a handful in and around quiet Room 115 of BSA Hospice.

There was a big wedding picture of poster size on the wall and some smaller ones surrounding it. Christmas stockings with their names hung nearby as did a few Christmas cards. On a chair, almost hidden, was a small Christmas tree with bubble lights that a neighbor had given them.

Brian, eyes closed, was mostly unresponsive. He hears and understands, but as far as talking, he musters the strength to speak every so often, and then usually just to his wife. And it's nearly always the same words: "I love you and you're beautiful."

Their Sept. 4 wedding, which I chronicled then, was like thousands that first Saturday of September. But it was also like none of them. And that was the lure. That fall evening for those 27-year-olds, their ceremony was beauty and bravery, courage and concern. But most of all, a rare love and faith which few display.

Brian was diagnosed with a brain tumor in July 2008, seven months after the two began dating long distance and three weeks after Shea moved to Amarillo to teach at Woodlands Elementary. They were together through six surgeries, six weeks of radiation, seven months of chemotherapy and a biopsy. There was no doubt they would be together as man and wife, keeping that September date even when a neurosurgeon ominously suggested they move their wedding plans ahead. Brian and Shea were not in denial or naive. They knew their fragile future. And if that were just five years, a year, six months, or unfortunately, their first married Christmas, they accepted it on that September evening.

"He was - and still is - everything I ever dreamed of in a husband and a best friend," Shea said just down the hall from Brian's room. "We both got through this 2 years because of each other."

"Five years ago, if someone would have said, 'Oh, you're going to get married, but you're going to marry someone who has brain cancer and then he's going to die three months later,' I would have said, 'No, thank you. But, now, I would do it over every time."

Brian told one of his doctors within the last year that he wanted to remain strong enough to marry the woman he loved.

How many women would have wed under those circumstances? How many would have done so knowing their vows that night - "in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish until separated by death, as God is my witness, I give you my promise" - could be so immediate?

"Most young women would have bolted," said Marshi Lair, Brian's mother. "Shea is one in a million. She is our angel of God. I know she's tired of me saying that, but she loved my son and took care of my son in ways I, even as a loving mother, could have never done."

There was a wedding and reception of a bride's dreams, and a honeymoon in Hawaii where Brian felt as good as he had in a long time. But the tumor is relentless. It is beating Brian physically, but has never touched his soul, nor his spirit.

Shea recalled a time when she was about to lose it, when she couldn't understand why her husband was never sad, never angry with God, never questioning his lot in his short life like she did.

"He looked at me in a way that I'll never forget, like I was an idiot," said Shea. "He said, 'Why would I ask God, why me? Why not say, why not me? What makes me any better than any person to take this on?' What a testament to his faith."

It was Brian's decision to stop the experimental chemotherapy. It was his decision to come to hospice last Friday for their final days together. He is ready. No doubt, all his family says that he's ready. When Brian was asked earlier in the week if he had seen Jesus, he whispered, "No, but I've talked to him."

In a way that only they and those who know them best can understand, it has been a wonderful life - for both Shea and Brian.

"I've had a lifetime of marriage in three months," Shea said. "It's been pure joy. We've gone through a lot of trials that married people go through. Sickness, health. There was a time where the tumor shrunk and we got to celebrate that. Then it came back. But, more than anything, Brian has showed me what true love is."

Two state representatives move to Republican Party

AUSTIN — Two Democratic state representatives, Allan Ritter of Nederland and Aaron Pena of Edinburg, last week announced they had joined the Republican Party.

The addition of their seats gave the Republicans 100 seats — a two-thirds "supermajority" in the 150-seat Texas House. This creates for the GOP a procedural benefit in the upcoming legislative session that convenes Jan. 11. A Republican supermajority can overcome Democratic efforts to block bills from coming to the House floor for debate.

Ritter said his decision to go Republican reflects the values of his conservative East Texas district. Pena, whose 10-year voting record in the House shows conservative tendencies on many issues, said he switched because he believes his district, which includes part of Hidalgo County, will fare better if he serves as a Republican.

Perry, Abbott, laud judge's ruling

U.S. District Judge Henry E. Hudson's recent ruling in Virginia that the federal Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act's individual mandate violates the U.S. Constitution appears to sit well with two of Texas' top state executives. In separate statements issued Dec. 13, Gov. Rick Perry and Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott praised Judge Hudson's ruling.

Perry and Abbott said they regard the act, signed into law by President Obama in August, as infringing on the 10th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, because it requires citizens to purchase health insurance.

Perry criticized what he referred to as the act's "one-size-fits-all approach to dealing with health care," and Abbott said, "No public policy goal — no matter how important or well-intentioned — can be allowed to trample the protections and rights guaranteed by our Constitution."

Texas is part of a 20-state coalition against the federal health care law. The coalition includes Florida, South Carolina, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Louisiana, Washington, Colorado, Michigan, Utah, Alabama, South Dakota, Idaho, Indiana, Mississippi, North Dakota, Arizona, Nevada, Georgia and Alaska.

Rebate to reach more Texans

Texas Comptroller Susan Combs on Dec. 15 announced her office is adding more money to the upcoming "Energy Star" appliance mail-in rebate program to allow more Texans to take advantage of rebates.

An additional $8.5 million is being added to the initial $10 million. The money comes through the federal stimulus program.

The purchase period for the now $18.5 million Texas Appliance Mail-In Rebate Program begins Dec. 20 and will remain open until the available funds are distributed.

Jobless rate increases slightly

On Dec. 17, the Texas Workforce Commission reported the state's total non-farm employment was up by 19,100 jobs in November, but the unemployment rate rose slightly to 8.2 percent for the month.

In contrast, the U.S. unemployment rate for November at 9.8 percent.

The Texas unemployment rate has ranged between 8.1 and 8.3 percent during 2010, according to the Texas Workforce Commission.

More Texas vets qualify for benefits

Texas General Land Commissioner Jerry Patterson on Dec. 16 announced the 1.7 million veterans living in Texas, regardless of when they moved here, will qualify for benefits from the Texas Veterans Land Board as of Dec. 21.

Patterson said he is dropping the one-year residency requirement "because too many deserving Texas veterans were not able to access the benefits they've earned."

The Veterans Land Board was created in 1946 after Texas voters approved a constitutional amendment authorizing $25 million in bonds to help World War II veterans buy land.

Since then, the land and home loan programs have funded more than $9 billion in loans and become popular options for veterans looking to buy the American Dream, Patterson said.

Texas is one of only five states to offer a veterans program.

Late lawmaker's son wins election

John Kuempel won a special election to fill the unexpired term of his father, long-time District 44 state Rep. Edmund Kuempel. District 44 includes Guadalupe, Gonzales and Wilson counties.

Edmund Kuempel, R-Seguin, died of a heart attack in Austin on Nov. 4 and was buried in the Texas State Cemetery on Nov. 9.

In a field of 10 candidates, John Kuempel received more than 7,000 of the 11,000 votes cast in the Dec. 14 special election.

TxDOT to Holiday Revelers: "Don't Drive if You're Tipsy, Buzzed or Blitzen" Statewide Impaired Driving Crackdown Kicks Off

Throughout the holiday season, TxDOT will be working with police departments and sheriff's offices across the Lone Star state to reduce impaired driving. Law enforcement statewide will be working overtime to find and arrest impaired drivers from now through New Year's Day. To remind Texas motorists to celebrate responsibly, TxDOT is behind a host of outreach efforts in major Texas markets. Convenience stores, restaurants, digital jukeboxes, bathroom mirrors in bars—even Facebook video games—will carry messages reminding Texans not to drink and drive. "We want everyone to enjoy a safe and happy holiday season," said Carol Rawson, TxDOT Traffic Operations Director.

"That's why we're making a special effort to reach motorists with 'don't drink and drive' reminders popping up online as well as at locations where alcohol is served or purchased." Santa's reindeer will adorn bar coasters, bathroom mirror decals, street posters and interactive digital jukeboxes to remind patrons to find a sober ride home if they've been drinking. The reindeer's message will read, "Don't drive if you're tipsy, buzzed or Blitzen. Call a cab or get a sober ride home." The campaign will also include a new animated web video featuring an office gift exchange with Santa's elves. In the midst of holiday party high jinks, one of the elves offers the best gift of all—to serve as designated driver for his tipsy co-workers. Facebook users can actually become that elf in a new video game that allows players to navigate through Santa's workshop, dodging beer mugs and champagne bottles while collecting car keys from the other elves. The video and game can be found at www.facebook.com/SantaInTexas. The Texas Restaurant Association, the Texas Petroleum Marketers and Convenience Store Association, the Texas Package Store Association, the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission and the Texas Municipal Police Association are all working with TxDOT to help distribute holiday impaired driving prevention messages. Convicted first-time DWI offenders face a fine of up to $2,000, loss of their driver's license for up to a year, and up to 180 days in jail. Safety officials say other costs associated with an impaired driving arrest and conviction can add up to more than $17,000 for bail, legal fees, court appearances, court-ordered classes, vehicle insurance increases, and other expenses. In 2009, there were 12,408 alcohol-related crashes in Texas that killed 956 motorists and injured 17,703 others.

Glory to God in the Highest ... For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the Babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.
And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."
Luke 2:11
