

Heavy Thundershowers Roam over Panhandle

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Heavy thundershowers built over widely scattered portions of the Panhandle Wednesday and dropped varying amounts of moisture over the area last night.

Widespread showers visited Deaf Smith County shortly after 11 last night after thunderheads built for most of the afternoon in the west, the direction from which most significant moisture arrives in this area.

The heaviest rainfall bypassed the local area however and centered over the eastern and northeastern Panhandle, with a whopping 2.73 inches of rainfall reported from Perryton.

The most significant moisture accumulation in Deaf Smith County was reported north of Dawn on land owned by John Hays, where 1.20 inches of moisture fell.

The heaviest rains were centered over the eastern portion of Deaf Smith County, while the dryland wheat country to the west, sorely in need of rainfall, received the smallest amounts.

KPAN radio logged a total of .40 inches of rainfall for the city of Hereford with .40 inch reports also received from the Raymond Schlabs farm five miles north of Hereford and Pioneer Fertilizer at the Milo Center community north of Hereford.

Northwest Grain, west of Farmer's Corner, recorded .50 inches of rainfall, while the H.L. Hershey farm 13 miles northeast of Hereford received .50 inches.

To the south of Hereford, Easter Grain logged .60 inches of moisture in that community.

Ranging eastward from Hereford, Dawn Co-Op at the Dawn community reported an even inch of rainfall, again one of the better rainfall reports from last night's activity.

Farmer's Elevator north of Dawn also recorded an inch of rainfall.

Rainfall of .60 inches was reported just southeast of the Dawn community.

Rainfall accumulations were lighter but just as welcome in the county's "dryland country" to the west, where wheat has been under moisture stress but still offers the potential for a harvest if sufficient moisture is received this spring.

Bill Page at Bootleg Corner reported .35 inches of rainfall, as did Bruce Coleman of the Walcott area. The Clint Homfeld farm 47 miles northwest of Hereford recorded only a trace of moisture, as the storm which built in the west apparently moved over the county's westernmost areas before unloading any meaningful moisture.

Mike Brumley reported .40 inches of rainfall on rangeland about 20 miles west of Hereford.

Mrs. Eldred Brown who drives a school bus for the Walcott School reported only light rainfall was received over most of her route, although there was one report of .50 inches of rainfall north of Bootleg Corner.

Mrs. Brown estimated rainfall at .10 inches at the Brown farm location 28 miles north of Hereford.

The Johnny Jesko farm at the Westway community received .80 inches of

Iranians Remove Money from Europe

Oil-Company Profits Soar

NEW YORK (AP) — Rapidly rising oil prices have helped propel Exxon Corp.'s first-quarter profits 101.6 percent ahead of last year and to an American corporate record.

Exxon, the world's largest oil company, said Wednesday its quarterly earnings soared to $1.925 billion from $955 million a year earlier. That total is the largest ever for any U.S. corporation and the second-largest for an oil company in a three-month period.

Exxon's revenues in the first quarter rose to $27.6 billion from $18.8 billion, and earnings per share rose to $4.40 from $2.16.

But Chairman Clifton C. Garvin Jr. said "I don't expect to see the great amount of improvement" in Exxon's earnings repeated over the rest of 1980. He also was pessimistic on future world oil prices, which have doubled to an average of about $30 per 42-gallon barrel in the past year.

Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries members have raised their prices "far more ... than is warranted. But I don't think it's over with yet," Garvin told a news conference.

Exxon's quarterly profits exceeded the previous U.S. corporate record of $1.466 billion reported by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. for the three months ended last Aug. 31. But the results remained below the oil industry's $2.4 billion three-month profit record logged by the Royal Dutch-Shell Group of Companies in the last quarter of 1979.

Among companies reporting first-quarter profits:

- No. 8-ranked Shell Oil Co. earned $373 million, or $2.42 a share, up 67 percent from $224 million, or $1.47 a share. Sales rose to $7.8 billion from $3.1 billion.

- No. 12 Occidental earned $277.9 million, or $3.62 a share, up 236 percent from $82.6 million, or $1.04 a share. The earnings included $119.6 million in gold and silver trading profits. Sales rose to $3.3 billion from $1.8 billion.

- No. 14 Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) earned $450.7 million, or $3.67 a share, up from $167.5 million, or $1.39 a share. Sales rose to $2.51 billion from $1.65 billion.

Exxon credited part of its earnings gain to a doubling of overseas refining and marketing profits. But increasing oil prices were another contributor.

Rising prices — and higher oil production in Alaska — played a major role in a 169 percent quarterly profit gain at Sohio, while improved exploration and production results helped Shell.

The overseas price increases are moving U.S. crude oil prices higher as price controls are gradually lifted here. A "windfall" tax that took effect March 1 seeks to raise $227 billion from revenues resulting from lifting domestic controls.

Exxon Controller U.J. LeGrange said the windfall tax took $40 million of the $60 million in new revenues the company Whose Week Is It?

It would be easy for Dwight Turner of Security Federal Savings and Loan to forget that this week is National Secretaries Week and instead think that April 20-26 is "bosses week," based on the royal treatment he is receiving from secretaries (from left) Cory Campos, Lynn Tolson, Toni Sonnenburg and Mary Ann Nunley. Iran is moving its petrodollars out of banks in Common Market countries and Japan as the threat of an export embargo by America's allies on May 17 drives the Tehran regime closer to the Soviet Bloc. Meanwhile, more fighting was reported on Iran's campuses and in Kurdistan.

Aireza Nobari, governor of Iran's central bank, said his government began reducing its deposits with banks in Common Market countries when President Carter froze $8 billion in Iranian government assets in the United States following the seizure of the American hostages in Tehran Nov. 4.

He said the shift of funds to "other countries, including some East-Block countries," accelerated after the Common Market countries agreed on Tuesday that their nine governments would end exports to Iran May 17 unless there was "decisive progress" toward freeing the 53 captives.

The Japanese financial newspaper Nihon Keizai reported that the Iranian central bank also was withdrawing funds from commercial banks in Japan and transferring them to financial institutions in neutral Austria, neutral Switzerland and other countries.

Iranian oil exports of 530,000 barrels daily have been suspended to Japan because Japanese importers refused to meet Iran's price increase from $32.50 to $35 per barrel. Japan decided today to reduce the staff of its embassy in Tehran and advise Japanese firms to curb exports to Iran in line with the Common Market foreign ministers' decision.

Canada announced a limited business ban with Iran Wednesday, following a visit to Ottawa by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance. External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan said the Canadian government would consider more economic sanctions if "diplomatic approaches to be made shortly by Canada and other countries to Iran regarding the hostage situation do not yield satisfactory results by May 17."

However, the secretary of Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council, Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, told reporters in Tehran, "We

Official: Soviets Might Seize Control

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Failure to resolve the hostage crisis is pushing Iran toward "paralysis" and disintegration and increasing the prospect that the Soviet Union may try to seize control of the northern part of the country, a senior Carter administration official says.

The official, a key administration strategist who asked not to be identified, told reporters that if Iran collapses, the United States might move to protect southern Iranian oil fields that once were a principal Western supply source. But he said the prospect of U.S. intervention still is "far-fetched" and remote.

The warning of Iran's instability and vulnerability to the Soviets came against a background of continued fighting involving Islamic fundamentalists and leftists. Six deaths were reported on Iranian university campuses Wednesday, one day after Tehran newspapers said 18 students died in campus violence.

There also were indications Wednesday of closer economic and industrial ties between the Soviets and Iran.

The Carter administration strategist said Iran's best hope is that "rational" people will take charge of the Tehran government and conclude that its gravest threat comes not from the United States, but from the Soviet Union, which shares much of Iran's northern border.

That realization, the official said, could prevent partition of Iran by the Soviets in the north and Iraq along the Persian Gulf in the west and could lead to release of the 53 American hostages in Tehran.

"Maybe enough of them will conclude it is time to deal with the problem," he said. This hope was coupled

Candidates To Field Questions

Hereford residents, assured of a hometown candidate against State Senator Bob Price in the November general election, will have the opportunity to hear the stands of Democratic hopefuls Gerald McCathern and Bill Sarpalus at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Community Center.

McCathern and Sarpalus, both of Hereford and the only two Senate candidates for the May 3 Democratic primary, have agreed to appear in a "Meet the Candidates Forum," sponsored by The Hereford Brand.

The candidates will field questions first from the news media, then from the general public.

The forum is expected to be the only such affair in Hereford prior to the primary election.

Reagan-Bush' Platforms Vary Little

HOUSTON (AP) — George Bush and Ronald Reagan are heading their separate ways along the campaign trail after a debate that disappointed those who hoped their one-on-one confrontation would produce clear policy differences between the two Republicans.

Perhaps most disappointed of all with Wednesday night's debate was Bush, who said:

"It didn't seem to move as the other debates did. It didn't have the zip. Maybe I contributed to that. I don't know. It just seemed long to me."

Reagan said only that "there hadn't been any fast balls thrown that I couldn't answer. So I was satisfied with that."

During their one-hour exchange, the only clear differences were over the size of tax cuts and Reagan's proposal that the United States consider blockading Cuba in retaliation for the Soviet move into Afghanistan.

And neither dispute produced any rhetorical fireworks. They agreed heartily on the need to oust Jimmy Carter from the White House and joined, too, in playing down the effect of an independent presidential candidacy by Rep. John B. Anderson, their former rival for the GOP nomination.

Both said Anderson is more likely to draw votes away from President Carter than from the GOP ticket.

Anderson was to have been the third man on the stage at Albert Thomas Auditorium, but he withdrew and sources in his campaign indicated that the congressman would announce today his intention to seek the presidency as an independent.

Reagan and Bush came to the debate fresh from Bush's victory in Tuesday's Pennsylvania primary. With 99 percent of the vote counted, Bush had 619,235 votes, or 54 percent, and Reagan had 525,697, or 45 percent. Reagan, however, maintains he came out on top in the separate selection of delegates to the Republican National Convention.

The two men had a major disagreement on taxes. Reagan advocated a 30 percent across-the-board cut in income tax rates to be phased in over a three-year period, a proposal pushed in Congress by Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. Bill Roth, R-Del.

"Your plan would risk exacerbating the deficit," said

Terrorists May Free Hostages

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The 16-diplomats held hostage in the Dominican Republic's embassy for two months may be freed by Tuesday, their 63rd day in captivity, say informed sources who report agreement is near between the guerrillas and the Colombian government.

The last major hurdle to the release of the hostages was cleared Wednesday when the guerrillas dropped their demand that at least seven leaders of their organization, Movement 19, be freed from Colombian jails, the sources said.

There is still no agreement on just how the seven and about 300 other alleged guerrillas will be tried by the government, the informants added. But they said two members of the Inter-American Human Rights Commission who visited the embassy Tuesday promised representatives of their group would attend the trials.

"The intervention by the Inter-American Human Rights Commission has been fundamental in pushing the negotiations forward," said one high-ranking government official.

President Julio Cesar Turbay's office in a statement issued after Wednesday's negotiations between the government and the guerrilla representative said "several points were cleared up" but did not elaborate. There was no comment from the guerrillas.

Another negotiating session was scheduled today, the 58th day of confinement for U.S. Ambassador Diego Ascencio and the other 15 diplomats.

The sources said two other items in addition to the trial procedure remain to be settled: the amount of a ransom to be paid and arrangements for safe conduct out of the country for the 20 or more guerrillas who seized the embassy during a reception Feb. 27.

55 Pints Donated

Local residents made a dent in the 392 pint debt to Coffee Memorial Blood Bank by giving a total of 55 pints Wednesday at the Community Center.

Blood given was designated to the following accounts: Blood insurance, 18 pints; blood donor club, 8 pints; personal credit, 2 pints; Arlie Dean, 1 pt.; Allen Cumpton, 1 pt.; J.E. Sorrells, 4 pints;

Kenneth Jeter, 1 pt.; baby girl Andrews, 5 pints; Mamie McGowan, 3 pints; David Aguilar, 3 pints; Weldon Lindsey, 3 pints; Mary Whiteside, 1 pt.; Pasquala Rodriguez, 1 pt.; Carol A. Gilbert, 1 pt.; and Knights of Columbus, 2 pints.

Five people came to the Community Center to donate, but were rejected due to medical reasons.

Hereford Receives $20,570 Tax Check

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has sent the City of Hereford a check for $20,570 as its share of the local-option one-percent sales tax.

Bullock's office reported that city sales tax rebates for April totaled $24.1 million, about $10 million less than Texas cities received in the same month last year.

The office stated that 1980 rebate payments of the optional one-percent city sales tax from the first of the year total $162.8 million, compared to $135.2 million over the same period in 1979.

"Because year-to-date payments are up over last year, it's too early to say whether the decreased monthly payments reflect a downward trend in taxable sales or simply seasonal adjustments," Bullock said in a press release.

"The next couple months bear special attention and may give us a clear x-ray about what's happening and what to expect from the Texas economy," he added.

Hereford's rebate, as compared to last year, is in line with the remainder of the state. The city received $29,764 in April a year ago.

Hereford this year has received $136,800 in tax rebates, up 16 percent from last year's total of $117,344.

The city sales tax is collected by merchants and other sales-tax permit holders, along with the state sales tax, and rebated monthly to cities in which it is collected by the comptroller's office.

Lawyer for Iran Criticizes Lawsuit

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A local realty company has sued the wrong government, according to a lawyer representing Iran.

Uncle Sam, not the Ayatollah, is responsible for the trouble Associated Builders Realtors Inc. has had trying to sell the former Lubbock home of the Iranian Crown Prince.

"If plaintiff has a cause of action against anyone, it would be against the president of the United States, the secretary of the treasury, the United States government or its various agencies and instrumentalities," contended Dallas lawyer Louis P. Bickel Wednesday.

Bickel made the argument in his answer to an April 15 suit brought by the real estate company, which said that the taking of hostages and subsequent freeze of Iranian assets in the United States breached the contract between the company and the Iranian government.

Shell Says Decontrol Boosted Profits

HOUSTON (AP) — Strong performance in exploration and production brightened Shell Oil Co.'s first quarter profits picture despite a light decline in oil products profits, said company president John F. Bookout.

"Since our crude oil properties are largely in the United States, phased price decontrol benefitted us during the first quarter," Bookout said Wednesday.

Exploration and production revenues totaled $312 million for the first quarter of 1980 as compared with $148 million a year earlier, Bookout said.

"This increase was partially offset by the effect of the windfall profits tax enacted in March," he added.

Earnings from oil products in the refining and marketing segment dropped from $74 million in 1979 to $72 in 1980, but total revenues this year were $4.789 billion compared with $3.076 billion last year.

Anderson To Run As Independent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois dropped out of the race for the Republican presidential nomination today and announced he would run as an independent candidate "unfettered by party positions."

"I have chosen this course of action because it is now clear that I cannot attain a majority of the delegates who will be attending the Republican National Convention in July," Anderson said.

While he will remain a Republican, Anderson said he is convinced there is enough voter dissatisfaction with President Carter and the Republican front-runner, Ronald Reagan, to allow him to become the first independent candidate ever to win a presidential election. His first campaign trip as an independent will begin Saturday with stops in New York City, Washington, Atlanta, West Virginia, Detroit, Lansing, Mich., and Boston.

In a prepared statement, Anderson said he was releasing all convention delegates pledged to support him at the GOP convention in Detroit this summer. In his 10-month campaign as a Republican, Anderson had gained only 57 delegate votes, trailing Reagan and George Bush, and had never won a primary.

Banks To Loan Money to Hunts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal Reserve Chairman Paul A. Volcker oversaw the extension of an $800 million credit line to the Hunt brothers of Texas to avoid an economic panic after a margin call was made on the Hunts' vast silver holdings, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

A group of the nation's largest banks agreed to the loan after details were worked out by Volcker and other top government officials with the heads of the banks, unidentified sources told the newspaper.

A spokesman for the Federal Reserve refused Wednesday to "confirm or deny" Volcker's role in the $800 million credit arrangement.

The brothers — Nelson Bunker and William Herbert Hunt — so far have borrowed $300 million to pay off maturing debts on silver, the newspaper said. In future months, as more of the Hunt's past contract promises to buy silver come due, they are expected to use much of the rest of the credit line, it said.

Nude Sisters Charged

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — One of three sisters, naked and smeared with mustard when they were arrested in a stolen truck says she isn't sure whether the devil or God made them do it.

"Maybe (it) was a little of both trying to outdo the other," said Doshaline McCuin, 30, in a telephone interview from her Ingham County Jail cell.

Mrs. McCuin said she and her sisters "were reading the Bible and got filled with the Holy Spirit" when the episode began.

Mrs. McCuin, and her sisters, Charlene Roper, 27, and Sandra Lewis, 25, have been jailed since their arrest last Thursday, unable to post $1,000 bond each on charges of joyriding and indecent exposure.

Police were summoned to a Lansing Township home on a report that three naked women were running around outside in the sunshine. The officers said they found the three in a delivery truck being chased by a uniformed truck driver.

Police said all three women, who share a house, were smeared with super-market-variety mustard.

Mrs. McCuin said mustard is in Chapter 13 of the Bible's Book of Matthew, which states:

"The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed ... which indeed is the least of all seeds. But when it is grown, it is the greatest among the herbs and becometh a tree."

She added, "We went out naked because the Bible said we had to get back to the Garden of Eden."

And the truck? "It was just a spur-of-the-moment thing," she said. "It was just sitting there with the keys in it."

"We just don't understand why we took the truck," she added.

Although the sisters entered pleas of innocent at their court arraignments, they are now admitting their guilt, Mrs. McCuin said.

"We broke the laws of God and man and now must suffer the consequences," she said. "We acknowledge what we did was wrong, and throw ourselves on the mercy of the court, this being our first offense."

In jail, the sisters continue to read the Bible while awaiting a preliminary hearing.

"We are certainly not members of a cult," Mrs. McCuin said. "We caused a lot of commotion. But we were brought up with the Bible and this is God's way to get us back."

"We were lost and had to find our way back to the garden," she concluded. "With God sustaining us, we are on the right track."

—Washington Briefs—

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a week-long filibuster, William A. Lubbers has won Senate approval for a four-year term as general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

President Carter's appointment of Lubbers, 55, a 27-year employee of the NLRB, was confirmed on a 57-39 Senate vote Wednesday. Prior to his nomination for the $57,750-a-year job, Lubbers was executive secretary of the NLRB, a top aide to chairman John Fanning. Business groups opposed Lubbers' appointment on grounds that he was too pro-labor. They said the general counsel should be a more impartial person because he decides which complaints of federal labor law violations should be pursued by the five-member board.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The crises in Iran and Afghanistan may be giving the United States a lever to prod its allies into carrying out pledges in recent years to strengthen their forces in Western Europe.

A senior Pentagon official, who asked to be unidentified, said Wednesday NATO defense ministers have reacted favorably to U.S. urgings that they speed improvements in their military forces in case the United States has to divert major forces to the Persian Gulf. The Pentagon official said the allies seem anxious to comply because they appear "very nervous that they have not done enough" to support U.S. efforts to secure oil resources in the Persian Gulf region.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cosmetic industry says it is searching for alternatives to using animals to test the safety of their products.

Until another accurate method is found, however, the Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association said it will continue to conduct some initial animal testing to assure that products are safe for humans. A coalition of animal protection groups picketed the trade association's offices here

Wednesday, urging the industry to stop using animals in tests. The group said animals are being made to suffer "just so women can make themselves beautiful." The protesters cited one test, used to determine irritancy, in which they said rabbits' eyes are damaged by drops of cosmetics and other products.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pressure is increasing on President Carter to withdraw his plan to raise gasoline prices 10 cents a gallon by imposing a fee on imported oil.

Consumer organizations, gasoline marketers and labor and rural groups charged Wednesday that the fee is really a disguised and perhaps unconstitutional tax. They were joined at a news conference by Reps. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., and James Shannon, D-Mass. Moffett said opposition "is incredibly widespread in the Congress," where Shannon has introduced a resolution opposing imposition of the fee. Carter signed a proclamation last month immediately imposing a fee of $4.62 per barrel on imported oil.

Debate

Bush. But he also said he would advocate a tax cut, though a smaller one.

The major difference between the two on foreign policy centered on Reagan's proposal that the United States consider a blockade of Cuba as a response to the Soviet move into Afghanistan.

Bush has branded the proposal impractical, saying it would "require the entire Atlantic fleet," and also has derided it by saying, "it wasn't Cubans who invaded Afghanistan."

The debate was the sixth for the two men, though in all the earlier ones except that before the New Hampshire primary, they were joined by other GOP candidates.

At one point, Reagan made a remark that appeared to eliminate Bush from consideration as a possible running mate if the former California governor gets the nomination, but later he called his comment "an ill-chosen bit of humor."

The remark was a reference to a major disagreement between the two men over taxes.

The dispute over taxes dominated the opening minutes of the debate. Later, when taking questions from the audience, the candidates were asked if they would name the people they would consider as running mates.

Both declined, but then Reagan, with a chuckle, added, "Whoever I picked would have to agree with the Kemp-Roth tax bill."

"I don't mean it that way," Reagan said later when reporters asked if his remark was meant to eliminate Bush from consideration.

"I never thought of that at all, so it was an ill-chosen bit of humor," said the GOP front-runner.

On the Democratic side, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy was relieved but not satisfied with his barest of victories over President Carter in Tuesday's Pennsylvania primary. Kennedy's lead was a mere 10,000 votes as counting continued Wednesday and the national convention delegates were split almost even — 93 for Kennedy, 92 for Carter.

The Massachusetts senator said that was enough to still have a fighting chance for the nomination, but he acknowledged he will have to do better as he turns his challenge to recession-hit Michigan.

The company's return on equity — a measure of profitability comprising the ratio of net income to shareholders' investment — was 23.6 percent in the first quarter, slightly above the oil industry average of 22.9 percent last year but ahead of the manufacturing sector's 18.4 percent average.

Sohio, Shell and Occidental did not report return on equity.

United States is moving toward a naval blockade or mining Iranian oil ports.

Carter said last week that if U.S. and allied economic pressures against Iran fail, "the only next step available that I can see would be some form of military action."

Fighting also was reported continuing between Khomeini's forces and Kurdish rebels in and around Sanandaj, capital of northwestern Kurdistan. Japan's Kyodo news agency reported from Iran the fighting left scores of troops dead, and Sanandaj in a "state of civil war."

Iran and Iraq also are skirmishing along their 800-mile border, and Pars reported that 951 more Iranians were expelled from Iraq Wednesday, bringing the total to 26,478 since hostilities erupted several weeks ago.

Relatives of four of the American hostages were meeting European leaders today to try to gain support for a massive letter-writing campaign demanding the captives' release. The four met with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing Wednesday.

Louisa Kennedy, wife of the captive U.S. economic attache, Morehead Kennedy, was meeting with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in London. Barbara Rosen, wife of press attache Barry Rosen, was to meet with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in Bonn. Jeanne Queen, mother of consular affairs officer Richard Queen, was to meet Italian leaders in Rome. Pearl Golacinski, mother of security guard Alan Golacinski, remained in Paris.

The women said they had no plans to try to visit Tehran, as Barbara Timm did in defiance of Carter's travel ban to Iran. Mrs. Timm, mother of Marine Sgt. Kevin Hermening, visited her son Friday. She told an RKO Radio Network interviewer from Tehran today: "I've got some kind of flu bug that I've been down in bed all day with being sick and now I'm trying to catch up on some lost sleep."

Absences Concern District

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) — Forged absence excuses have led the Lamar Consolidated School District to take a "novel approach" in dealing with students who miss school, says Superintendent Edgar Wilhelm.

"This will put the burden of attending school back on the child and the parent, where it belongs," Wilhelm said Wednesday after school trustees voted to allow students 10 unexcused absences per semester.

Wilhelm said teachers, tired of reading forged excuses from parents, complained about the problem and the trustees decided to grant the extra absences.

"The teachers figured it would be better to hear an honest reason for missing school even if it was a bad one rather than reading a forged note," Wilhelm said.

He said parents frequently write false notes for the child "because they're afraid the real reason won't be good enough and their child might get into trouble."

Absences due to illness verified by a doctor or a death in the family will not count against the ten extra absences, Wilhelm said, but he issued a word of caution for students who used more than their ten days.

"If (a student) misses that 11th day and doesn't have a good reason to present before a committee selected by the principal, (the student) could lose credit for the courses he skipped," Wilhelm said.

FFA Team To Compete In Contest

The Hereford FFA livestock judging team will compete in the state livestock judging meet at Texas A&M University tomorrow.

The livestock judging team finished fourth in the area and 10th overall in the Texas Tech judging contest.

Members of the team include Tania Willson, Lisa Phillips, Mac Hagar and John Meyer. In recent competition at the West Texas State Judging Contest the dairy cattle team finished fifth in the district, the meats judging team placed second in the district and the land judging team finished third in the district.

Mr. Bishop died Tuesday in Central Plains Regional Hospital in Plainview after a lengthy illness.

A retired carpenter, Mr. Bishop was born Sept. 21, 1911 in Rogers. He came to Plainview in 1924 from Edna, Okla. He married Lois Holloway Dec. 23, 1933 in Plainview.

A Veteran of World War II having served in the 86th infantry known as the Black Hawk division, Mr. Bishop has been in both Asia and Europe Theatres and is a charter member of Wilson Brothers VFW Post. He was also a member of Odd Fellows Lodge and Carpenters local union #1884.

Additional survivors include the widow; two sons, Bobby Joe of Tampa, Florida, and Wayne Bishop of Marietta, Georgia; an additional brother, James P. Bishop of Fairfield, Calif.; seven grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Indecency Probed By Police

Hereford police today were still investigating a report of indecency with a child turned into officers Monday.

The report involved an alleged incident of a man fondling a 10-year-old girl.

Police have made no arrest in connection with the incident.

Police Wednesday night arrested a man for public intoxication and another on a traffic warrant.

They also investigated a family fight in the 100 fight of Ave. A. According to a woman, her husband beat her up before walking out of the residence. The wife refused to file charges, police said.

U.S. Army Announces

2 Recruiters

The U.S. Army Oklahoma City District Recruiting Command has opened a new recruiting station at 308 16th in Canyon.

Staff Sergeants Ted Long and Charles Murphy are recruiters at the command.

Long, an eight-year Army veteran, has served in Germany and Vietnam. He was a recruiter at the Harrisburg, Penn. recruiting command for three years prior to transferring to Oklahoma City last August. He has earned three gold stars in his recruiting badge for excellence in recruiting.

Murphy spent six years in the U.S. Navy before joining the Army in 1974. He was a military police investigator at West Point and Germany before his assignment to the Oklahoma City recruiting command in July, 1979.

Information about opportunities in the Army or Army Reserve may be obtained by calling 655-1155.

Rain

moisture in one of the better rainfall reports to the west of Hereford.

Last night's shower activity was triggered by the combination of a surface low pressure system southwest of Lubbock and a stationary front extending from western Oklahoma through the southern Panhandle into eastern New Mexico.

The surface low pressure system and the stationary front are expected to combine with strong upper level disturbance moving eastward out of Arizona to trigger additional shower and thunderstorm activity in West Texas for the next two days.

Some other rainfall reports from across the Panhandle reflected the heavier moisture accumulations to the east and northeast as Amarillo logged only .30 inches. Borger received .33 inches, a total of .69 inches fell at Dumas, and 1.84 inches fell at Clarendon.

A flash flood watch remained in effect for the Eastern Panhandle today and numerous showers and thunderstorms are predicted for the eastern portions of the region.

Soviets

with a frank admission that the U.S. strategy of appealing to moderate elements in Tehran has failed.

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said in a broadcast interview Wednesday that despite the new commercial agreement with the Soviet Union on Tuesday, Iran will not allow the Soviets to attain as much influence as the United States had under the deposed shah.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd demanded on Wednesday that Congress be fully consulted, and permitted to give its advice, if use of force is contemplated.

The Carter administration strategist confirmed a published report that senior White House staff members expressed strong apprehensions at a closed-door meeting Tuesday that the United States is moving toward a naval blockade or mining Iranian oil ports.

Carter said last week that if U.S. and allied economic pressures against Iran fail, "the only next step available that I can see would be some form of military action."

need more time." He also was quoted as saying, "The socialist and developing countries are ready to support Iran, and the negotiations of a Soviet trade and economic delegation which were held in Tehran is one of the examples of this."

Iranian Economic Affairs Minister Reza Salimi announced Tuesday that Russia has agreed to let Iran use its roads if the United States blockades its southern water route. Pars said Iran increased oil sales to Soviet-bloc member Romania from 60,000 to 100,000 barrels daily under an agreement signed Sunday, and that an agreement was signed with East Germany Wednesday on developing cooperation in industrial, agricultural, energy and trade matters.

In Washington, a senior Carter administration strategist said prospects are increasing that the Soviet Union may try to seize control of the northern part of Iran because failure to solve the hostage crisis is pushing the country toward "paralysis" and disintegration.

The official, who refused to be quoted by name, told reporters that if the Iranian government collapses, the United States might move to protect the oil fields in southern Iran. But he said the prospect of U.S. intervention was still "far-fetched" and remote.

At least six persons were reported killed and 80 injured in clashes Wednesday between supporters and opponents of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary leader, at the university in the northern city of Rasht. This brought the toll to 24 killed and 1,800 injured since Friday when Khomeini decided to shut down the leftists' campus offices and purge the university system of "anti-Islamic" ideology.

Ex-GI Can't Learn About Agent Orange

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Introducing himself only as an ex-GI who had been exposed to Agent Orange in Vietnam, Max Cleland, head of the Veterans Administration, called several VA hospitals to ask if his health had been endangered by the herbicide.

To his astonishment, no one knew what he was talking about.

On The Light Side

Holding On For A New Car
FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — A pregnant Fort Myers woman says she is determined to win a car that a dealership is giving away — so determined that even going into labor won't get in her way.

"I'm prepared to have my baby here (in the showroom) if that's what it takes," said 22-year-old Cassandra Sapp. Ms. Sapp, who is two months pregnant, is one of two persons clinging to a new 1979 Plymouth Arrow car dealer Ken Lee of Fort Myers says he will give to the person who holds onto it longest.

Lee's rules are that contestants must hold onto the auto and that during the hourly 10-minute break each contestant is allowed, someone must act as stand-in.

It started April 1. One by one, the 15 other original contestants dropped out. On Wednesday, Ms. Sapp and Michael Noll, a former restaurant employee undaunted by a bad cold over the weekend, clung to the exterior of the blue compact.

assistant chief medical director, took it from there. In a conference call, he told the medical chiefs of staff and environmental health physicians of the nation's 172 VA hospitals:

"You folks had better get your act together."

Only a few days earlier, Cleland had assured Congress that every veteran who suspects his ailments are tied to the herbicide can get counseling and a thorough physical exam at any VA hospital.

the flu, I can hang on to the end," Noll said.

Noll hangs onto one end of the car, Ms. Sapp the other. They sleep on the floor, their wrists taped to the auto.

Suit and Tie Tradition Gets New Wrinkle

DENVER (AP) — The businessman's tradition of wearing a suit and tie to work has been given a new wrinkle by some Denver men who work on — not in — the city's office buildings.

Bob Pearson and four fellow ironworkers decided they should offer a salute to the legions of neatly dressed office workers. So, on Tuesday the five men donned their own suits and ties — along with the mandatory hardhats — as they helped raise two 66-ton steel trusses nearly 100 feet and set them in place on a partly completed 42-story building in Denver's business district.

Pearson says he admires the workers who fill the insides of Denver's skyscrapers but that he prefers his own line of work. "I couldn't handle it, working in an office," he said.

Each case, Cleland said, is entered into a computerized record so the veteran can be located if experts should conclude that exposure to Agent Orange can lead to long-term harm.

So far, 10,000 veterans have complained of ailments or sought information and 1,600 have applied for disability payments. Only a handful are getting benefits because the VA's position is that "no conclusive evidence" has linked the herbicide to the cancers, liver disorders, personality changes and other difficulties the veterans complain of.

Over a 10-year period, U.S. forces sprayed 10 million gallons of Agent Orange, containing dioxin, the most dangerous man-made poison, on the jungles of Vietnam to strip the leaves from trees, denying communist forces their hiding places. Later, many GIs blamed mysterious ailments on exposure to the substance.

The VA, one of several government agencies with investigations under way, told its medical staffs to take the complaining GIs seriously.

But Cleland's experience showed the orders didn't take hold. The irony is that while Cleland didn't identify himself as the VA boss, he was, in fact, twice exposed to Agent Orange in Vietnam.

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) — Residents of Muncie may not have to boil drinking water after Saturday if tests continue to show no trace of a bacteria that invaded their water supply two weeks ago.

"We're tremendously optimistic" that the health hazard has passed, said K. Brock Earnhardt, manager of the Muncie Water Works Co., after recent water samples showed no evidence of the coliform bacteria.

Officials ordered residents to boil their drinking water and have been pumping high doses of chlorine into the water supply since the bacteria was found.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Rain, snow and high winds have forced a 24-hour delay in an underground nuclear weapons test at the Nevada Test Site.

The test has been rescheduled for 7 a.m. Friday, Department of Energy spokesman David Miller said Thursday. He said the test, with a yield equivalent to between 20,000 and 150,000 tons of high explosive TNT, would be powerful enough to be felt in Las Vegas 110 miles to the southeast.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state Court of Appeal has overturned the conviction of a youth who allegedly disposed of guns used in the bloody Golden Dragon massacre.

The court said testimony "cast some suspicion on" but "does not reasonably connect" Tony Chun-Ho Szeto with the 1977 shootings in a Chinatown restaurant that left five dead and 11 wounded.

Szeto was convicted of being an accessory after the fact and possessing a sawed-off shotgun. The weapons, including the shotgun, were retrieved from San Francisco Bay.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A pre-dawn fire at a University of Michigan dormitory forced the evacuation of 800 students and left two residents hospitalized with injuries, authorities said.

The fire, which damaged 16 rooms in the dorm, broke out early Wednesday in a trash receptacle in Prescott House on the East Quadrangle. Michigan's classes ended the day before, with final exams to begin Saturday.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Lawyers who pushed the desegregation suit against the Austin school system have asked local taxpayers to pay about $650,000 in legal fees.

Attorneys for minority groups involved in the nine-year federal court fight asked U.S. District Court Judge Jack Roberts to order the Austin school district to reimburse them for court costs, travel expenses and legal fees.

Five lawyers, four representing the NAACP and one from the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund, asked for payments varying from $75 to $110 an hour for the 2,600 hours spent working on the case with U.S. Justice Department attorneys.

The attorneys said they essentially doubled their regular fees and asked Roberts to consider the impact of inflation on the purchasing power of the dollar during the past decade.

NAACP attorney Bill Lann Lee of New York asked for $125,977, the largest amount.

Dallas attorney Samuel T. Biscoe, formerly of Austin, asked for $52,321 for six years of work.

No action was taken on the requests.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Texas Supreme Court agreed Wednesday to decide a Houston man's suit against the city for injuries he received from driving over an unmarked hole in a city street.

The court set a May 21 hearing on Leroy K. Turvey's suit against Houston.

Turvey was driving a mail truck when he struck the hole on June 19, 1975, injuring his face and teeth.

A jury found the city was negligent and should pay for Turvey's injuries. But the 1st Court of Civil Appeals in Houston reversed the decision. The court said Turvey had not notified the city of his injuries within the 90 days required by the Houston charter.

Turvey's appeal to the Supreme Court says the suit falls under the Texas Tort Claims Act, which overrides the city charter provisions when injuries result from negligence in performing a governmental function.

The appeal said a hole in a street is "an extra hazardous condition of a roadway that all units of government a duty to warn of."

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)

Application for a new state bank in Sachse, Liberty County, has been denied, the State Department of Banking said Wednesday.

The State Banking Board said it found there was no public necessity for the proposed Liberty Bank and Trust Co. in Sachse and the volume of business in the community indicated it would not be profitable.

WACO, Texas (AP) - Texas farmers, caught in a crisis they did not create, will see their net income drop by 25 percent in 1980, says Texas Farm Bureau President Carroll Chaloupka.

The bureau's board of directors, Chaloupka said, has adopted a five-point program to deal with the problem, putting inflation control first on the list.

"Farmers and ranchers are caught in a crisis that is not of their asking," Chaloupka said, after the Tuesday meeting. "Indications are that net farm income will be about one-fourth below what it was last year."

He said agricultural problems stem largely from federal deficits and resulting inflation along with government embargoes on farm exports.

The farm bureau's five-point program includes inflation control through tax cuts, balancing the federal budget and increasing productivity; expanding foreign agricultural markets for U.S. products; deregulating the petroleum industry; eliminating market restraints, such as embargoes, and easing federal credit limitations in the national money market.

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Tarrant County's Democratic Party Chairman was demanded the resignation of a veteran party precinct chairman because he endorsed a Republican Congressional candidate.

John Wood, chairman in precinct 151 of east Fort Worth for 11 years, Tuesday announced his support for Jim Bradshaw, a Republican running in District 12.

Democrat Jim Wright currently holds the seat and is seeking re-election.

County Chairman Estil Vance Jr., informed of Wood's position, said, "His office is immediately vacant."

Vance cited a new statewide party rule, requiring party officials to support party candidates or forfeit their positions.

STAMFORD, Texas (AP) - Crews worked Wednesday trying to repair a water line between this West Texas city and Lake Stamford.

The pipe broke Tuesday when workers were excavating in a pasture to repair a leak. The city's water tanks had enough to last until 9 a.m. Wednesday, when the town of 4,200 persons went dry.

City Manager Ken Roberson said he expected water service to return to normal by Thursday.

HOUSTON (AP) - Garth Bates, a former criminal district judge who received shock probation after serving four months on an eight-year prison sentence, has been granted permission to vacation in the Virgin Islands.

"I have given him permission to go," said Glenn Musselman, Bates' probation officer.

State District Judge Thomas H. Routh, who granted the shock probation Feb. 20, said Musselman had informed him of the trip plans.

"Musselman is an able and experienced probation officer," Routh said. "Normally these things are left to his discretion."

Bates entered prison late last year after losing appeals of his conviction on a charge of accepting a $59,000 bribe in return for a promise to go easy on a robbery defendant in his court.

HOUSTON (AP) - A son of state District Judge Bill Elliott was reported Wednesday to be missing on a private plane flight to Mexico.

Emilie Elliott said her son, Bill Jr., 28, left Houston on March 21 alone to meet friends in Cozumel but never arrived.

Elliott said his son, a home remodeler, had from 200 to 300 hours of solo flying time.

CONROE, Texas (AP) - A laborer has drawn a 30-year prison sentence after being found guilty of deliberately setting an apartment fire in which two residents were killed.

A jury deliberated almost five hours in finding John Wesley Jones Jr., 30, guilty and about two hours on the sentencing phase.

A man and a woman died in the Dec. 1 fire that destroyed 10 apartment units.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Joseph Califano Jr., former secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will address 1980 graduates of the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas.

His commencement address is scheduled for May 17 at 9:30 a.m.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Texas Railroad Commission has granted the application of Texas Land Specialists, Inc., of Caldwell to operate an oil reclamation plant in the Chambers Navarro Field of Burleson County.

The site of the proposed reclamation facility is on five acres of Texas 36 between Milano and Caldwell.

Wayne Durham, president of Texas Land Specialists, testified Feb. 27 that the nearest oil reclamation facility is 180 miles away in Kilgore.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Texas Railroad Commission has approved an increase in rates that is expected to boost the annual revenue of the Oil Field Haulers Association, Inc., by slightly more than $9 million.

The more than 200 haulers of drilling rigs, pumps and other oil and gas equipment had sought additional revenue totaling $13.5 million a year.

The commission also granted a rehearing for Texas Tank Truck Carriers Association, Inc., and Texas Bulk Carriers, Inc., which sought an 8 percent rate increase. The commission granted a 4 percent hike, which was expected to produce an additional $4.15 million a year.

Carter To Meet Pope at Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) - President Carter will meet Pope John Paul II at the Vatican June 21 before attending the summit of the leading Western industrial nations in Venice, Vatican sources said today.

John Paul II visited Carter at the White House in October and had a general review of problems of world peace. This time, Vatican officials say, the talks are expected to focus on more concrete issues, such as Iran.

Carter arrives in Rome June 19, will meet Premier Francesco Cossiga and other Italian officials, and go sightseeing before the audience with the pontiff.

Last week, U.S. Ambassador Richard Gardner told the American Club in Rome he was having a problem "explaining to the Secret Service that there are no cars in Venice."

"I keep getting highly classified cables asking me to describe the routes for the motorcade. And I try to explain to them that there is no motorcade possible in Venice. There might be a gondalocade, but they don't believe there is a city in the world that has no motorcars."

New Breed of American Indians

American Indians have had more than their share of mercenary misleaders, self-appointed "chiefs" whose presumptuous utterances become an embarrassment to responsible tribespeople and whose activities frequently eventuate in damaging criminality.

Now, up from the inside of the Blackfeet and the Apaches, the Oneida and the Chippewas, the Cree, Choctaw, Kiowa and Navajo, come a new breed of "warriors," young enough to move forward without looking back upon ancient tribal rivalries and animosities—mature enough to recognize that the American Indians' worst enemy has been himself.

The numbers indict the American Indian! Disproportionate misuse of alcohol and drugs, inadequate health habits, chronic unemployment, soaring rate of school dropouts.

All of which problems relate, directly or indirectly, to well-intentioned but stupid federal government spoon-feeding of the reservation population.

But "riding out of the sunset" comes a band of braves declaring this is weaning time—eventuating in total independence from government wet-nursing.

They call themselves UNITY—United National Indian Tribal Youth. In early April these young people, high school through age 25, converged on Great Falls, Mont., for a "national Indian youth leadership conference."

From northwest states and as far away as Alaska and Mississippi they came to contemplate self-sufficiency for their people.

Ignoring ancient tribal differences, systematically they established separate task forces for each of our nation's 12 geographical areas—assigned California to Joseph Running Fox; Washington, Oregon and Idaho to Colleen Friedlander, Arizona to Mary Titta, New Mexico to Michael Day and so on.

Separately and together they pledged themselves to the improvement of education for native students, promoting economic development for all the native people of North America, to sponsor health-related careers among new generation Indians.

And foremost, to foster eventual Indian independence from bureaucratic snobbery.

Respected President Wendell Chino of the Mescalero Apaches says, "Indian tribes more than ever need quality youth—competent to inspire quality in others—in the Indian community, in the Indian pueblo, on the Indian reservation.

"The urgent need," says Chino, "is for the sons and daughters of a resigned generation of second-class citizens to be shown how they can become first class."

Executive director of UNITY, J.R. Cook, says, "Until now Indians have reacted to events instead of helping shape events. We are planning for the year 2000. We will engineer such changes as to make Indian art a support base for the development of other talents and careers."

He says, "Today's young Indian must learn that he has to do his own growing—however tall his grandfather was."

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — If President Carter calls his mother to get a sympathetic ear for his troubles with ayatollahs, economists and politicians, he's likely to hear that times are tough all over.

It hasn't been a good week for Lillian Carter.

Her Pond House was broken into this week while she was touring Africa, police said Wednesday.

Plains Police Chief William Thomas said it could not be determined whether anything of value was taken, but big, obvious items, such as the television, were still there.

The break-in was discovered by Mrs. Carter's grandson, Buddy Carter, who stopped by the weekend house outside Plains after fishing in the pond with a friend.

And in Cairo, Egypt, on Wednesday, Mrs. Carter had to take part of her tour of a nursing school in a wheelchair after she was momentarily affected by the 95-degree heat. The 81-year-old first mother recovered quickly. She is to fly home Saturday.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Now Johnny Carson has some place to go on his frequent absences from his "Tonight Show." He and hotel executive Ed Nigro bought the Aladdin Hotel and its casino for $103 million.

The Aladdin's owners have been under order to sell because of violations of hidden ownership laws designed to keep organized crime out of the legalized gambling business.

If state gaming officials approve the deal, it will be "Johnny Carson's Aladdin." State officials said they didn't foresee any problems.

Nigro, who will be president and chief executive officer, said Carson "plans to take a very active role."

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — Barbarella and Wonder Women took on the California Highway Patrol and lost.

Patrolman Newton Tobin bagged movie star Jane Fonda, who starred in a motion picture as science fiction superheroine Barbarella and has since gone on to better roles, while Miss Fonda was allegedly doing 75 mph on U.S. 101 in Ventura County on Sunday.

Even if Tobin wasn't impressed with his prey, he might have noticed Miss Fonda's passenger, television's Wonder Woman, Lynda Carter.

Miss Fonda faces a maximum $50 fine for breaking the 55 mph limit.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Assassin James Earl Ray can keep any money he makes from his hobby as landscape painter, a Tennessee official says.

Although Ray is prohibited by state law from profiting by writing a book about the 1968 slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Attorney General William Lee said Wednesday that Ray can keep money from artistic works not related to his crimes.

Anna Sandhu, Ray's artist wife, says she and her husband had a joint art show and sale at an Oak Ridge museum in March.

"James had four paintings," she said in a telephone interview from Knoxville. "We still have two of them." Ray gave away one as a gift and the fourth was sold. Without giving the price, Mrs. Ray said, "He did very well."

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Finnish film experts selected Orson Welles' "Citizen Kane" as the best movie ever made, the Finnish Film Club announced.

"Kane" was cited by all 29 of the experts polled, followed by Jean Renoir's "Rules of the Game" with 27 votes, Sergei Eisenstein's "Battleship Potemkin" with 23, Buster Keaton's "General" with 22 and Charlie Chaplin's "Modern Times" with 20, the club announced.

Asked to compile a list of the world's best 100 films, the Finns chose 40 from the United States and 22 from France, and several each from the Soviet Union and Italy, the film club announced Tuesday.

DIJON, France (AP) — The death toll rose to 26 in an arson fire at a home for the elderly on Monday at nearby Saint-Jean-de-Losne, officials said. The victims ranged in age from 74 to 93.

2 Liberians Die After Acquittal

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Ignoring Western appeals for clemency, the army enlisted men who seized power in Liberia two weeks ago ordered the executions of 13 members of the deposed government although an officers' tribunal sentenced seven of them to life imprisonment and acquitted two of them.

The president of the military court, Col. Frank P. Senkpeni, told reporters his tribunal was overruled by the 17-man People's Redemption Council headed by President Samuel K. Doe.

Doe, a 28-year-old master sergeant, led the April 12 military coup that overthrew President William R. Tolbert's government.

Tolbert died in the coup, reportedly slain by Doe.

The dead president's elder brother, Edward, chairman of the Senate, was among the 13 men executed Tuesday on a Monrovia beach while thousands cheered. He also was one of the four sentenced to death.

All 13 were accused of treason, "rampant corruption," abuse of public office and violation of human rights. But Senkpeni said only Tolbert, House Speaker Richard Henries, Chief Justice James A. Pierre and E. Reginald Townsend, chairman of Tolbert's True Whig Party, were given death sentences.

He said seven others were acquitted on some of the charges and sentenced to life imprisonment, while two others were acquitted.

All were descendants of the freed American slaves who founded Liberia in 1847, a minority that had ruled the country ever since.

A 14th defendant, former Information Minister Johnny McClain, also was acquitted and was not executed. McClain, who assumed to be still in custody, was of tribal origin, like Doe and the other members of the Redemption Council.

The United States and other Western governments had appealed to the new government not to kill any more former officials. The State Department said it "deeply deplored" the executions, and U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim urged a halt to "summary executions without due process of law."

Sessions Can't Be Tape Recorded

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that a school trustee may not tape record an executive session of the trustees if a majority objects.

The issue arose when trustee Beatrice Zamora of the Edgewood Independent School District in San Antonio turned on her tape recorder during a May 29, 1978, executive session.

When she refused to turn it off, court records show, the meeting broke up. Other trustees testified she threatened to make the recording available to the public if she thought it necessary. She denied the allegation.

The trial court ruled that she could not tape record the proceedings against the wishes of the majority. Ms. Zamora appealed, claiming the Open Meetings Law does not prohibit or address itself to tape recordings of such executive sessions.

The Beaumont Court of Civil Appeals upheld the trial court ruling, with Chief Justice Martin Dies Jr. writing:

"We are of the opinion that significance should be attached to the fact that the Legislature specifically authorized the use of tape recorders at public meetings while it made no similar provisions for use at executive sessions of the same public body."

"The need for some subjects to be discussed in closed sessions is apparent and the Legislature recognizes the importance thereof," said Dies, and he added:

Foreign Briefs

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Local medical authorities reported what could be the world's first case of smallpox in three years, although officials at the Italian Health Ministry and the World Health Organization were skeptical.

"We have had innumerable reports of suspected smallpox cases from all over the world in recent years," said Gino Levy, spokesman for the WHO, which declared last October that the once-dreaded disease had been eradicated. "All have been thoroughly checked and disproved one after the other."

The suspected smallpox victim, 32-year-old engineer Umberto Moretti, developed a fever and skin marks earlier this month, five days after he returned from a business trip to Indonesia. He was hospitalized Wednesday along with his wife and father, who are under observation. Moretti was reported in good condition.

LEUVEN, Belgium (AP) — A divorced couple, feuding over parental visiting rights, were advised by a Belgian judge to see the Oscar-winning American film "Kramer vs. Kramer" before he rules on their dispute.

"I'm not going to issue a ruling today," the judge told the surprised couple on

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — If President Carter calls his mother to get a sympathetic ear for his troubles with ayatollahs, economists and politicians, he's likely to hear that times are tough all over.

It hasn't been a good week for Lillian Carter.

Her Pond House was broken into this week while she was touring Africa, police said Wednesday.

Plains Police Chief William Thomas said it could not be determined whether anything of value was taken, but big, obvious items, such as the television, were still there.

The break-in was discovered by Mrs. Carter's grandson, Buddy Carter, who stopped by the weekend house outside Plains after fishing in the pond with a friend.

And in Cairo, Egypt, on Wednesday, Mrs. Carter had to take part of her tour of a nursing school in a wheelchair after she was momentarily affected by the 95-degree heat. The 81-year-old first mother recovered quickly. She is to fly home Saturday.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Now Johnny Carson has some place to go on his frequent absences from his "Tonight Show." He and hotel executive Ed Nigro bought the Aladdin Hotel and its casino for $103 million.

The Aladdin's owners have been under order to sell because of violations of hidden ownership laws designed to keep organized crime out of the legalized gambling business.

If state gaming officials approve the deal, it will be "Johnny Carson's Aladdin." State officials said they didn't foresee any problems.

Nigro, who will be president and chief executive officer, said Carson "plans to take a very active role."

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — Barbarella and Wonder Women took on the California Highway Patrol and lost.

Patrolman Newton Tobin bagged movie star Jane Fonda, who starred in a

Even if Tobin wasn't impressed with his prey, he might have noticed Miss Fonda's passenger, television's Wonder Woman, Lynda Carter.

Miss Fonda faces a maximum $50 fine for breaking the 55 mph limit.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Assassin James Earl Ray can keep any money he makes from his hobby as landscape painter, a Tennessee official says.

Although Ray is prohibited by state law from profiting by writing a book about the 1968 slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Attorney General William Lee said Wednesday that Ray can keep money from artistic works not related to his crimes.

Anna Sandhu, Ray's artist wife, says she and her husband had a joint art show and sale at an Oak Ridge museum in March.

Los Angeles Routs Sonics To Tie NBA Playoff Series

By KEN PETERS
AP Sport Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's homecourt advantage, sort of, to the SuperSonics as their National Basketball Association playoff series with the Los Angeles Lakers shifts to Seattle.

third game of the best-of-seven playoffs, tied 1-1 following the Lakers' 108-99 victory Wednesday in Los Angeles.

Down to their third choice of an arena after being preempted from the Kingdome by the Seattle Mariners and from the Seattle Coliseum by an ice show, the defending NBA champion Sonics will host Game Three in the University of Washington's Hec Edmundson Pavilion.

"We haven't played in Edmundson in 10 years," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens.

Sunday's fourth game of the Western Conference finals will also be held in Edmundson, which, with a capacity of around 8,000, seats some 32,000 less than might be expected in the Kingdome.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was the big man for the Lakers as they squared the series, scoring 31 points and collecting 16 rebounds. Guards Norm Nixon and Earvin "Magic" Johnson added 19 points each, and Jamaal Wilkes had 16.

Gus Williams led Seattle with 24 points, Dennis Johnson had 20 and Lonnie Shelton 15. Fred Brown, who scored 34 points in the opening game, had 14.

While both coaches and most of the players generally play down the Laker Coach Paul Westhead, crediting "contagious energy" for the Lakers' victory, said of the upcoming two games: "If we're going to be champions,

"homecourt advantage," Wilkens, whose Sonics won 108-107 Tuesday night, admitted after Game Two that he was happy to depart Los Angeles with the series even.

"I feel good with a split, although we certainly would like to have won two here," he said. "The Lakers played well."

then we must win on the road. Really, we've reached a level now that the homecourt doesn't mean a lot either way. It's pure math to say that we're going to have to win in Seattle."

The math is simply that if the Lakers lose the third, fourth and sixth games in Seattle, it's the Sonics 4-3.

The Lakers looked much sharper in the nationally televised Game Two than they had in the opener, managing to cut down dramatically on mistakes. They turned the ball over just 12 times, including twice in the second half and none in the final quarter. The Sonics, who rallied from an 11-point deficit at the end of three quarters to win three before the Lakers pulled away again, had 24 turnovers.

"We finally got our fastbreak going," said Westhead. "I thought it was a better game than the first one. Believe it or not, I think Seattle played better."

The fifth game is scheduled in Los Angeles next Wednesday. If necessary, Game Six will be played May 2 in Seattle, with the final game in Los Angeles on May 4. The winner plays the Boston-Philadelphia series winner for the NBA championship.

Reds Upend Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Cincinnati pinch hitter Harry Spilman knows Houston relief pitcher Joaquin Andujar from playing on the same team with him the past two off-seasons in the Dominican League.

So, after waiting his turn for about eight hours Wednesday night, Spilman hit a pinch-hit double and then scored the winning run on Dave Concepcion's 12-inning single for a hard-fought 3-2 victory over the Houston Astros.

"I figured he would challenge me with his fast ball and he got it out and over the plate," said Spilman, now 3-5 as a pinch hitter this year. "I've got a lot more confidence this year, so I was ready and I hit it."

Spilman, who had reported early Wednesday afternoon to the Astrodome for extra batting practice, advanced to third base on a ground out by Junior Kennedy prior to Concepcion's game winning hit.

"We hit extra every day, even when we are on the road," Spilman said. "The extra players have to be ready any time they are called on. That's what's going to make us a winning club this year."

Concepcion's game-winner came off an experimental bat. Concepcion said he had gone to a 36-inch bat instead of his regular 35-inch bat.

"I've been using it the past two days because they've been pitching me away," Concepcion said. "It was a good pitch, but I guess I've got long arms and the longer bat helped me reach it."

Concepcion's single sailed untouched into right field with the winning run and reliever Doug Bair put the Astros down in order in the 12th to secure the victory.

Cincinnati had taken a 2-0 lead after 2½ innings on a walk in the first inning by Houston starter Ken Forsch and Dan Driessen's third inning single.

Houston tied it in the bottom of the third on Joe Morgan's double and a triple by Art Howe and that's the way it stood until the decisive 12th.

The victory gave Cincinnati two victories in the three game series and a 3½ game lead in the National League Western Division over the Astros. But the Astros remained unbowed.

"These are important games but there is nothing drastic about the first series of the season," Astro Manager Bill Virdon said. "This is only an indication of the close games we will be playing all season."

The Astros loaded the bases with two outs in the ninth and 11th innings, but Houston shortstop Craig Reynolds produced the third out on each occasion.

"It's no fun to lose games like this," Reynolds said. "We had a lot more chances to win than they did. But it's a long season."

Tom Hume, 2-0, who relieved Cincinnati starter Charlie Leibrandt to start the night, got the victory. Andujar, 0-1, got the loss.

Legends of Golf Tourney Kicks Off

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Professional golfer's millionaires find an invitation to the suddenly prestigious Legends of Golf tournament eases the pain of turning 50.

Arnold Palmer got his invitation this year and will be shooting for the $70,000 first-place prize with Dow Finsterwald in this third annual 54-hole team tournament that begins Friday.

Fred Raphael, the originator of the tournament, said that next year Gene "The Machine" Littler and "Mr. X," Miller Barber, will be invited to play.

Palmer is already in the swing of things over the tight but treacherous Onion Creek club course.

Asked what he thought about being a legend, Palmer said, "I think it is fine. I'm just happy to be here. I think the potential for this type of golf is tremendous. I think the future of a tournament like this is unlimited."

Littler, along with Sam

Snead, is thought to have one of the finest swings in golf. He parlayed that swing into 29 tournament victories and a whopping $1.5 million in career winnings.

Barber, known as "Mr. X" because of his mysterious look while wearing sunglasses while playing, has collected 11 tournament victories and $1.4 million since he joined the tour in 1959.

Palmer stole half the gallery Wednesday and his appearance prompted Raphael to predict this as the year the tournament makes money.

"Our tournament was an artistic success before we got Palmer but there's no secret he will boost our galleries," said Raphael.

"I'm convinced the Legends of Golf is here to stay. There is no doubt NBC feels that way, and I'm convinced the players feel that way. I think the finest compliment we got was Arnold joining us," said Raphael.

The tournament features a unique format. The 38 pros and two amateurs play a best ball. The best score of the twosome stands as their total for that particular hole.

Brave's Horner Asks for Trade

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner said he'll talk "man-to-man" with star third-basemen Bob Horner, whom he demoted to the minors, and Horner took him up on it.

Horner wants to be traded. Turner wants the third-year man who is hitting .059 in 10 games this year, to put his game back together in the minors for a couple of weeks.

"Right now, we probably are going to call Ted and look into sitting down and talking to him," Horner said by telephone from his home Wednesday night. "This (Turner's comment) is something new to me."

Turner agreed to a meeting during an interview on WTBS-TV's broadcast of Atlanta's 2-1 victory over San Diego.

"I'd certainly be willing to" talk with Horner or his agent, Bucky Woy, of Dallas, Turner said.

But Turner said he would not meet Horner's demand to be traded.

"When he signed a contract with the Atlanta Braves a couple of years ago, he agreed to play with us for five or six years, whatever the rules are, and I'm sure he knew it at the time," Turner said. "We're bound by the rules of baseball and so is he."

Turner said Horner was sent down and Gary Matthews benched to shake up a 1-9 team, which is now 3-9.

"If we were a perennial pennant contender, maybe we could afford to get off to a slow start. The fans around here are sick and tired of being last and so am I," Turner said. "All I want is my money's worth. We've got a payroll of close to $3.5 million. I don't know, but it's probably four times what Oakland's payroll is and they're leading their division."

Woy said he'd have to give some thought to meeting with Turner.

"As of this moment, our position is that it's gone too far. We have sat down and talked it out before. It's in Bob's best interest to be traded. On the other side of the ledger, I would never turn my back on somebody who wanted to talk," Woy said by telephone from Dallas. "There's never anything wrong in talking. But if we sat down and talked, we would want to talk about trade."

Horner went directly to the Braves' starting lineup fresh out of Arizona State almost midway through the 1978 season. In 1979 he batted

.314 and hit 33 home runs.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said he is watching the situation.

"I feel the Braves are trying to do what is best for the club and for Bob Horner," Kuhn said in New York. "I also feel they like Bob Horner and consider him a valuable talent for the future."

Asked during the television interview what he'd say to Horner if he knew Horner were listening, Turner said: "I'd just say I hope he'll get down there (to Richmond) and get his game together and get back up here and help us get to .500 and make a drive for the pennant."

Kison Gets First Win

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

For Bruce Kison, it was an "instant replay" one year later.

Kison, the former Pittsburgh Pirates' right-hander who signed a free agent contract with the California Angels for $2.4 million during the offseason, got his first American League victory Wednesday with a sparkling one-hitter.

"A no-hitter would have been nice, but if you've got to lose one, that's the way to lose it," Kison said of a one-out, ninth-inning double into the left field corner by Minnesota's Ken Landreaux.

"It was the only bad pitch he threw all afternoon," said Angels catcher Tom Donahue. "His sinker was awesome."

Last year, Kison missed a no-hitter against the San Diego Padres on a controversial call. The hit, by the Padres' Barry Evans, also came with one out in the ninth inning.

"This situation was a lot easier to handle (than last year's) because it was a clean base hit," said Kison, now 1-2. "Both one-hitters were similar. I stayed ahead of the hitters and got them to hit a lot of ground balls."

It also didn't hurt that Kison had a 17-0 lead.

In other American League games Wednesday, Cleveland stopped Milwaukee 7-3, the New York Yankees edged Baltimore 6-5, Detroit nipped Texas 5-4, Kansas City beat Toronto 7-4 and Oakland toppled Seattle 5-2. The Chicago White Sox at Boston game was rained out.

Al Cowens and Fred Patek had three hits each to pace the Angels' 17-hit barrage off five Minnesota pitchers. California was aided by four Twins errors.

Tigers 5, Rangers 4
A two-run double by Jason Thompson capped a three-run first inning and the Detroit infield pulled off double plays to kill two Texas rallies as the Tigers downed the Rangers.

Detroit starter Jack Morris, 3-1, hit Al Oliver in the foot in the third inning and both benches cleared when Texas pitcher Steve Comer, 0-2, hit Champ Summers in the shoulder on his first pitch of the fourth inning.

Indians 7, Brewers 3
Rookie Joe Charboneau slammed a three-run homer and Toby Harrah singled home two runs to pace Cleveland's victory over Milwaukee.

Don Money homered with a man on for the Brewers.

Yankees 6, Orioles 5
A mammoth two-run homer by Reggie Jackson in the fifth inning snapped a tie and lifted the Yankees to their victory over Baltimore. It was only the second home run of Jackson's career off of Jim Palmer, 2-1.

Oscar Gamble and Jim Spencer also homered for the Yankees while Ed Murray belted a pair of solo homers for Baltimore. The two teams also combined for three triples and three doubles.

Jackson's smash, the 372nd home run of his career and third of this season,

'Too Tall' Negotiates New Contract With Cowboys

Boxing Can't Be That Great!

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Football player-turned-boxer Ed "Too Tall" Jones is negotiating a new contract to return to the Dallas Cowboys, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

The copyright report was based on interviews with Cowboys officials and Jones' manager, Dave Wolf.

But Jones, who has insisted he intends to stick with boxing, was quoted in the Dallas Times Herald as saying he had "thought about" returning to football but "I haven't gone as far as considering it."

Wolf cited many reasons for advising Jones to enter negotiations to return to the Cowboys, where he was a star defensive end.

"It was the venom with which the (Nevada boxing) commissioners attacked Ed that hurt the most," he told the Star-Telegram. "They said the (proposed Jones vs. Raoul Gorsito) fight would be a farce. We learned from that incident that Ed was going to have a serious problem in some states to get a fair chance to practice his trade. Shortly after that, we concluded that football might be a good idea."

Cowboys Coach Tom Landry told the newspaper, "If he is going to play football, we need to get him back fairly quickly. He would need to get back into it. As much as he trains, I know he is in good shape, but he needs to get himself prepared to play football again."

Wolf said the decision was made after the Nevada Boxing Commission failed to sanction two fights.

"It left us in a position where he could not fight enough to be a contender," Wolf said. "We needed 35 to 40 fights in his first two years, and that just wasn't going to happen. We just decided that it would not be fair for him to think that he could go on. By the same token, Ed was not enjoying boxing as much as he thought he would."

"We decided that if he could get a good offer in football, that it would make sense for him to return," Wolf said.

But Jones told the Times Herald in an article published today, "I'm only concentrating on one thing — boxing."

Asked about rumors an NFL comeback was possible, he said, "I haven't gone as far as considering it. I have thought about it, but only because my mother doesn't like me boxing. She's always said, 'Do what you want to because you'll go a lot farther.'"

"I visited her around Christmas and she mentioned not liking boxing. That's the only time I've thought about it ... when it concerned her. But as far as considering it, no, I haven't," Jones said.

'Dr. J' Triggers Sixers Victory

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Someone once said that television instant replay was invented for Julius Erving.

Erving does something that you see and don't believe. Then you see it on instant replay and still don't believe it.

That's what happened Wednesday night as "Dr. J" scored 28 points, 22 in the second half, to trigger the 76ers' 99-97 victory over the Boston Celtics in a National Basketball Association semifinals game.

The next game will be played here Friday night, with the Sixers leading the playoff series 2-1.

Erving had a subpar first half, scoring just six points. He spent some time on the bench as the Celtics took a 47-45 halftime lead.

In the dressing room during intermission Erving gave himself a silent pep talk.

"I'm going out there and give it my best shot," Erving said he told himself. "I'm going to play with reckless abandon. I'm going stronger to the basket."

True to himself, Erving took over. The 76ers trailed 60-59 with 5:19 to play in the third period, and went on to outscore the team with the best record in the NBA 19-8 for a 78-66 three-quarter lead.

Erving scored 12 in the period as the 76ers shot 64 percent in the quarter. During the spurt Erving contributed eight points and Bobby Jones four. It wasn't just the points Erving scored, but the way he scored them. He hit jumpers, slam dunks, layups, drove between defenders as if they were invisible.

When the final statistics were calculated, Erving had his 28 points, 11 rebounds, seven assists and five steals. He had the sellout crowd of 18,276 in hysterics.

The 76ers increased their lead to 14 at 88-74 when Erving scored on a driving scoop over M.L. Carr with 6:35 to play. It looked like a rout.

But the 76ers forgot about Larry Bird, the Celtics' fabulous rookie. Bird, who scored 22 points, also grabbed 21 rebounds and had four assists. He hit three of four three-point field goal attempts.

Boston kept pecking away and with 17 seconds left, Bird hit a 26-foot three pointer to cut the Sixers' lead to a shaky two points. The Celtics had one final chance to tie or win. The ball was inbounded to Dave Cowens, who lost the handle.

What's Colonel's Recipe for Success?

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (NEA) — Col. Harland Sanders, totaling up his 89 years on earth, gives any credit for his success to the man upstairs.

"I've got God on my side," says the courtly Southern gentleman with the snow-white hair during an interview at his rambling colonial-style Kentucky Fried Chicken headquarters.

"I figured he put me here for one of two things: to either use me or punish me," he explains. "I've had three close calls with death, and the Lord has always spared me. I have a great gratitude towards him."

Sanders' story is a publicist's fantasy come true: Senior citizen (age 66) living on $105 a month in Social Security works hard, saves his money, believes in his product and becomes a multimillionaire.

But Kentuckians who hold the colonel right up there with Man O' War, Jim Beam bourbon and the Derby might be shaken to learn that Sanders is actually a Hoosier.

He was born Sept. 9, 1890, just east of Henryville, Ind. When he was 6, his father died and his mother went to work in a cannery, often leaving the children alone.

Sanders took care of his younger brother and sister. He became not only a capable young cook but a great one.

At 10, he got his first job on a farm near his home for $2 a month.

That was the beginning of a varied — if not always successful — career. He was a street-car conductor, a soldier, a railroad fireman, a law student via correspondence courses, a justice of the peace, an insurance salesman, a steamboat-ferry operator, a tire salesman, a manufacturer of acetylene lighting systems and a service-station operator. (He was named a Kentucky colonel in 1935 by Gov. Ruby Laffoon.)

It was at the little gas station he operated in Corbin, Ky., that Sanders started cooking for hungry travelers. He served them on a small table in his own dining room.

During the next nine years, the colonel struck upon a secret that would make him famous: a blend of 11 herbs and spices (sage and "other ingredients on everyone's shelf") and a technique for frying chicken.

In 1939, gourmet Duncan Hines listed Sanders Cafe in his "Adventures in Good Eating."

Sanders added on a motel — the first in Kentucky — to the restaurant. But he was forced to close when World War II and gas rationing ended tourist travel.

He re-opened the cafe-motel after the war. Then, in the early 1950s, a new interstate highway was planned to bypass the town.

Seeing the end of his business, the colonel auctioned off his goods. He lived on his Social Security check of $105 a month.

But he had a dream. So he and second wife Claudia (a former Sanders Cafe waitress who he married in 1949) set off cross-country in a station wagon, selling chicken.

They slept at night in the back of the wagon and refreshed themselves the next morning in the washrooms of service stations.

He told restaurateurs simply that "my chicken's better than your chicken." And that he would prove it.

While he fried chicken in the kitchen, his wife, in a hoop-skirted gown, did the "hostessing" in the dining room.

If they liked his chicken — they almost always did — Sanders entered into a handshake agreement stipulating that he would be paid a nickel for each chicken the restaurant fried and sold "his" way.

By 1963, Sanders had more than 600 franchised outlets for his chicken in the United States and Canada. He sold his U.S. interests in 1964 for $2 million to John Y. Brown, now governor of Kentucky, and Jack Massey. He gave the Canadian company to a charitable foundation.

KFC Corp. grew rapidly. More than 3,500 franchised and company-owned stores were in worldwide operation when Heublein Inc. acquired KFC Corp. in 1971 for $285 million.

Sanders says he had a falling out with Brown over the sale of KFC. There were lawsuits that ended with an out-of-court settlement in 1975. KFC says it was $1 million; other sources say $2 million.

Sanders still visits many KFC franchises each year, overseeing his recipe. He teaches young people how to make his "chicken fixin's" (gravy, potatoes and such) at KFC restaurants.

He always wears one of his 40 to 50 distinctive white suits, some heavier for winter. Each suit lasts six or eight wearings. They get gray through cleanings, he explains.

Sanders says he gives away as much or more than he earns each year. (Some estimate his annual earnings at $250,000.)

His favorite causes are the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the Salvation Army and scholarship recipients must promise never to smoke or drink, two rules the colonel strictly adheres to, although he admits he has a bad habit of cursing.

"The most stabilizing force in America right now is her youth," says Sanders. "You have a few rowdies now and then and a lot of them have a lot of foolishness, like golfing and tennis and that, instead of concentrating on work. You can't mix work and play."

"I'VE NEVER ASKED God in prayers for anything," says Col. Harland Sanders. "Every time I pray, I'm thanking God for what he's done for me."

Christopher Columbus made four voyages to the New World, the last in 1502.

Working Cattle

Using cattle to produce meat is a relatively recent development in the relationship between man and Bos taurus (as cattle are called by their proper Latin name), according to the National Live Stock and Meat Board. From prehistoric times to about the 1700's, cattle were valued more as draft animals than food producers. By law, in the American colonial period, cattle could not be used for meat until they were no longer valuable for work purposes.

CBS Says Turkey Publicity Stunt

NEW YORK — That wild turkey at the White House this week got there through some fowl play to promote a certain Kentucky bourbon, CBS reports.

The bird found roosting in a linden tree on the front lawn of the president's home Tuesday morning was put there by "a certain New York advertising agency which is employed by a certain Kentucky distiller which markets a certain product," CBS White House correspondent Robert Pierpoint reported Wednesday night.

Anchorman Walter Cronkite introduced the "scoop" this way:

"There was an Old Crow reported in the Four Roses garden at the White House today, spotted by an Old Fitzgerald, a Virginia Gentleman, our man on the scene Robert Pierpoint, abashedly reports."

Pierpoint said, "It was not the first time and it won't be the last time the White House press corps was taken for a ride, though it is probably one of the few times the president himself was also fooled by a publicity stunt."

He said President Carter suspected the turkey was a plant, perhaps put there by the National Wild Turkey Federation of Edgefield, S.C., which last month gave the president a print of a wild turkey.

But, no, Pierpoint said, "The credit has to go to a certain New York advertising agency which is employed by as certain Kentucky distiller which markets a certain product with a certain name."

"We won't give any of them the free publicity they may deserve for thinking up the stunt, nor will we make a federal case out of the laws they may have violated by tossing something over the fence onto the white house grounds."

"We'll just promise that next time we'll be a little more careful before we give away any so-called wildlife that much free advertising from here."

There was no comment from the distiller.

Ice 3 inches thick will support a man, 7 1/2 inches thick will hold an automobile, and a foot thick will sustain a truck.

The Newspaper Bible

HE ACTUALLY WALKED ON WATER!

Jesus saw that they were ready to take Him by force and make Him their king, so He went higher into the mountains alone.

That evening His disciples went down to the shore to wait for Him.

But as darkness fell and Jesus still hadn't come back, they got into the boat and headed out across the lake toward Capernaum.

But soon a gale swept down upon them as they rowed, and the sea grew very rough. They were three or four miles out when suddenly they saw Jesus walking toward the boat! They were terrified.

But He called out to them and told them not to be afraid. Then they were willing to let Him in, and immediately the boat was where they were going!

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

What caused cancer?

DEAR DR. LAMB — I lost my mother a week ago and needless to say I'm heartbroken. I had lived with her for 54 years and we were extremely close.

Her final illness puzzles me. She was 87 years old with a rugged constitution, had arthritis of the knees but walked with a cane. She controlled her gallbladder condition by watching her diet. She entered the hospital because of a tiny stroke on the left side. Her arm was affected and she had congestion from the flu, a low hemoglobin of six and a liver tumor. A total of six pints gradually brought her blood count up and a barium enema was clear.

She did not smoke, drink or eat spicy foods. She got plenty of sleep and rest and did not overeat or overexert. How could she get such a terrible tumor? Did the gallbladder cause it? She fought to live. About two months after she entered the hospital she vomited blood and was very weak and slipped away. I'd be so grateful to hear from you.

DEAR READER — In all the years that I've seen patients I've never found the right words that would ever really replace the loss of a loved one or would really console the grief that a person such as yourself feels. Just saying that you're sorry isn't enough. Unfortunately, even though a person has an ideal life style and follows healthy living patterns throughout life, that is not a guarantee that he or she will not develop cancer. After all, one out of four people have or will develop cancer. It's possible as more of our population lives to older ages that we may see even a greater number of cancers than we do today.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-8, Cancer: A Fact of Life. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The Health Letter I'm sending you will give you some of the basic information about cancers and what we know about their cause and, more importantly, what can be done to prevent them. Many of the cancers people have can be prevented, including cancer of the lungs in about 80 percent of the cases. Many other cancers, if detected early enough, can also be cured.

Liver cancer is fairly rare. It is true that a person with gallbladder disease is more likely to have cancer of the gallbladder. And whether that's what occurred with your mother with extension to the liver or not, I wouldn't know without knowing specifically what the pathology report disclosed. That's one of the arguments for removing a gallbladder full of stones even if it's not causing any symptoms or problems. If your mother had primary cancer of the liver, meaning it originated from liver cells, then it was probably not related to her gallbladder disease at all.

The fact that your mother had a stroke is interesting since severe anemias can contribute to the development of a stroke. The anemia in her case was undoubtedly secondary to the cancer.

The liver often has a tumor in it if a cancer occurs elsewhere in the digestive system. That's because the cancer cells are carried by the bloodstream to the liver.

DEAR DR. LAMB — At present I'm considering a tubal ligation. Would you please write an article on the possible side effects? About a year ago we read an article in a magazine about the effects of vasectomy. Because of some of the problems that were mentioned for men, we decided against that method. I'm in my early 40s and am about to have a baby and we certainly don't want any more after this one based on my age and the size of our family already. We need an honest answer about tubal ligations.

DEAR READER — From a medical point of view, it's one of the safest and surest forms of birth control. Some of the questions that have been raised about vasectomies have not been observed with tubal ligations. Specifically, the problems associated with the immune system and some questions about the relationship of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. Also, tubal ligations have been done for years. That means that the medical profession has years and years of experience with the procedure and still has failed to note many significant complications from the procedure.

Art Guild Installs 1980-81 Officers

The Hereford Art Guild installed 1980-81 officers Tuesday evening at the Thompson House Restaurant during their monthly meeting.

Retiring president, Ruby Lee Hickman, installed the following:

Travis McPherson, president; Lottie Werthenburger, first vice president; Jolene Bledsoe, second vice president; Opal Elliston, secretary; Hilda Haven, treasurer; Ruby Lee Hickman, parliamentarian; and Lucille Naylor, reporter.

A miniature windmill, loaned to the Art Guild by Roberta Campbell, was used in the installation ceremony. The tower of the windmill represented the members of the club, the wheel served as a symbol of the officers, and the fan symbolized the president, described as the guiding force.

Fifteen members were present. The president presented each retiring officer with a gift of appreciation. The members gave retiring president Ruby Lee Hickman a gold table ornament as a farewell gift and a "thank you," for her leadership.

The Guild will have an Art Show Sunday, May 25 from 1-5 p.m. This will be the last meeting before the summer vacation. Each member is urged to attend and bring some form of art to display.

The meeting was adjourned.

To Assume Office

Thompson House To Be Dedicated

Dedication ceremonies for the "Aunt Jennie" Thompson House at 515 Union Avenue will be held at that address Sunday at 3 p.m.

Ceremonies will be under the auspices of the Deaf Smith County Historical Commission, with Mrs. Henry Sears and A.J. Schroeter in charge.

The Aunt Jennie Thompson Historical House was built in 1906 by S.S. Evans, the subdivider of the Addition that bears his name. Evans sold the house to Jennie Thompson, an early pioneer in 1906 and she resided there with her son and grandchildren until her death in 1955. She was the grandmother of Ruby Carmichael and Margaret Schroeter.

The home restored by Bill Devers, is presently owned by Mr. and Mrs. Joe D. Rogers, who are currently residing there.

The historical marker program is an ongoing effort by the State and County historical committees to mark and designate historical structures within the area and state.

Local residents are invited to attend the dedication ceremony.

At Wits End

By ERMA BOMBECK

Researchers are finally getting down to some real serious studies on the post-natal depression. Do you know what they've discovered?

You're not supposed to have a good time after the baby is born.

It's something a lot of us suspected, but were never really sure about.

My post-natal depression was longer than most. I went into it seven months before the baby came and it lasted until the kid was 17. Then it began to taper off.

Had it not been for "As the World Turns" and pacifiers, I'd have slipped into humming and braiding my hair. Every day I'd put a pacifier into whatever part of his face was open, get a plate full of buttered noodles and sit in front of the TV set and watch someone who was worse off than I was.

Every time I went to the pediatrician, I'd try to search the faces of the other mothers for some sign of exhaustion. I only saw one mother "break," and that was when her son, a real hellion, had skated across the carpet "shocking" everyone with his static electricity, rearranged the furniture, licked the drinking fountain, taken a book away from another child, and finally submerged his hand in the aquarium. She just sat there, numb, and finally said softly, "Think piranha."

Another rare moment of honesty that suggested motherhood was less than perfect came one Mother's Day in church when a new priest looked out and said to the mothers, "I know what you're thinking. You're tired. You feel pulled in nine different directions. You think no one understands you and you're saying to yourself, 'Mary and her one kid. Big deal!'"

According to the new theory, ambivalent feelings are perfectly natural. It doesn't mean you love your child any less, it means you're realistic about the demands on your personal life.

A new mother in Colorado wrote recently about her two children, ages two years and three months. She put the toddler on a potty seat so she could bathe the baby. She lathered up the baby when the meter man appeared. The dog suddenly went into heat. The phone rang. The toddler jumped up and overturned the potty on the new shag rug. He then stuck his head in between the washer and the wall to see what the meter reader was doing and got stuck. The baby got cold and began screaming. Strange dogs began running through the house. She moved the washer and her son emerged bleeding. "What would you do?" she asked.

I'd do now what I should have done years ago....cry!

Lodge Reminded Of Area Meeting

A reminder of the upcoming Panhandle Association meeting in Amarillo was extended to 17 members of Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 Tuesday evening during a business meeting in IOOF Temple. The association will convene April 26-27.

Noble Grand Martha Bridges presided over the business agenda, which included reports of sick members and friends.

Lydia Hopson presented a report of the state president's recent visit to District #5 at Friona Lodge. Nine Hereford members traveled to Friona to hear the message from Betty Medford, state president, and to attend the covered dish supper held in her honor.

It was announced that Verna Sowell and Susie Curtsinger attended the Open House of Dimmitt IOOF Lodge #159 and Rebekah Lodge #54, which were celebrating 50th and 40th anniversaries respectively. Speeches were heard by State Warden of Rebekah Assembly Edna Schuster.

Tobacco was once considered by Europeans to be a cure-all for every ill of mankind, including the plague.

4-H'ers Give Program For Dawn Club Members

Three Deaf Smith County 4-H members presented the program "How to Train Your Puppy" Friday morning for members of Dawn Extension Homemakers Club, who met in Dawn Community Center. Presenting the method demonstration were Patsy and Kandi Sparkman and Andrea Wall.

In addition to the three 4-H girls, another guest of the club was Pat Hickman.

Pam Wilson, president, called the meeting to order. Lazelle Fowler, who acted as leader, introduced the program. Members answered roll call by listing their favorite 4-H activities.

Martha Paetzold served as hostess.

Other members present were Becky Caraway, Joy Fowler, Kim Golden, Doris Johnson, June McCabe and Rebekahs President Susie Curtsinger.

Lodge deputy Edna Mathes gave a brief school of instruction during the business meeting Tuesday evening.

In other business, the lodge voted to convene at 8 p.m. for the ensuing six-month period.

Bessie Saulcy sent refreshments for the following lodge members: Martha Bridges, Lydia Hopson, Susie Curtsinger, Ursalee Jacobson, Ada Hollabaugh, Peggy Lemons, Frances Parker, Helen Sowell, Edna Mathes, Bessie Lawrence, Nellie Beauford, Faye Brownlow, Mary Flowers, Verna Sowell, Ola Hacker, Merl Bridges and Guy Lawrence.

Parish to Sponsor May Benefit Dance

St. Anthony's Parish will sponsor a benefit dance on Saturday, May 10 from 8:30-12:30 p.m. at St. Anthony's School.

Proceeds from the dance will go to defray medical expenses incurred by the family of Allan Brockman. Music will be provided by "Country Cookin'" and a fee of $15 per couple or $7.50 for a single will be charged.

The public is encouraged to attend the benefit.

Mexican Americans To Stage Banquet

CANYON — The Mexican American Association, a newly formed organization at West Texas State University, will host a banquet at 5 p.m., Saturday, April 26, at the Wishing Well in Hereford. Cost for the banquet is $3 per person.

Three speakers will address the banquet. They include Louis Brasher, candidate for justice of the peace of Potter County; Rumaldo Garcia, president of the American GI; and Bill Sarpalius of Plainview, a candidate for the 31st district Texas Senate race.

A dance, featuring Los Sunkings, will follow the banquet at 9 p.m. Tickets are $5 at the door and $4 in advance.

The dance is a scholarship fund-raiser for area high seniors, said Jerry Reyna, the association president.

The association also will sponsor an art show on the second floor of the Activities Center through Sunday, April 27.

The show will feature artwork of Hereford public school students.

The Mexican American Association was formed March 17 of this year and has 10 members.

Reyna is president; Lydia Alcozar, Canyon junior, vice president; Herb de la Rosa, Pacima, Calif., sophomore, treasurer; and Capt. Ralph Moglia, assistant professor of military science, sponsor.

Ann Landers

Lovin' on the Beach

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

My hang-up is too embarrassing to discuss with anyone I know. Please try to help me. It's a problem I'm having with my husband. We are in our late 30s and recently moved to a lovely new home on the beach. For several weeks now we have been enjoying moonlight swims, but now he wants to go beyond that. He becomes amorous in the water and I have difficulty getting him into the house. Has the man been seeing too many foreign films or what?

We have two young children, and I would die if they ever caught us making love. Also, we have neighbors, Ann. Although their homes are quite a distance from ours, they do sometimes walk the beach at night.

I don't want to dampen my husband's ardor, but the hazards I've listed are terribly inhibiting. If you say I'm being prudish (his word), I'll accept it—but I would appreciate some counsel. Overexposed.

DEAR OVER: From your remarks about the neighbors and the children, it sounds as if there is too great a chance that your privacy might be invaded. My advice is to put Lover Boy on hold until you can get him in the house.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have printed many letters about donating organs so that those who are no longer alive can give sight and added years of life to others, but you've never printed a letter like this:

My husband and I both discussed donating our eyes to an eye bank, and we agreed it was what we wanted to do. So we signed up, informed our families of our wishes and carried the donor cards in our wallets.

My husband then suffered a massive coronary. We were in another state when it happened. I was terribly upset and tried so hard to keep my courage up for his sake that I had a hard time functioning. When he died I was exhausted and in a state of shock. I'm ashamed to admit it, but I forgot about his wish to donate his eyes. The guilt has been with me ever since.

I am suggesting that when a death occurs the attending doctor or nurse or clergyman ask the next of kin this simple question: "Did he (or she) wish to donate organs to help those who are living?" If a survivor becomes angry, that's HIS hang-up. It could be settled by simply saying, "It is strictly a donation and nothing will be done without your permission."

I can assure you, Ann, the survivors who are in shock (as I was) will be forever grateful.—Sad Eyes In Greenville, Tex.

DEAR SAD EYES: Your suggestion is a good one, and I hope many doctors, nurses and clergymen will pick up on it.

For those who have not considered donating their eyes, I urge you to do so. Write to the main headquarters of the Eye-Bank Assn. of America, 3195 Maplewood Ave., Winston-Salem, N.C. 27103. This is truly the gift that keeps on giving. Those who wish to donate other organs as well should write for a Uniform Donor Card. Write to the National Kidney Foundation, 2 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016. (P.S. I have carried one in my wallet for many years.)

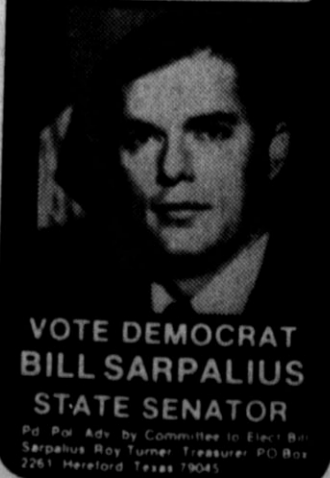

CONFIDENTIAL to Fed Up with Her Sick Sense of Humor: Sometimes people laugh because they are nervous, ill-at-ease or embarrassed. It has nothing to do with what they consider funny. I suspect your friend is in this category.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You—For Teen-Agers Only." Send 50 cents and a self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Bread Important Part of Nutrition

COLLEGE STATION — Include bread in the diet—even when trying to lose weight, advises Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist.

"Breads are an inexpensive source of thiamin, iron and riboflavin.

"They also provide protein and are a major source of protein in vegetarian diets.

"In addition, whose grain breads provide a bonus of magnesium, folacin and fiber," Miss Haggard says.

Miss Haggard is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Generally, the food items put on bread are higher in calories than the bread itself.

For instance, a slice of white bread contains only about 65 to 75 calories.

Add a pat of margarine, 35 calories, and a tablespoon of jelly, 50 calories, and the calorie count is more than doubled, she points out.

Four servings of bread are recommended in the daily diet.

One serving might include one slice of bread, one tortill or one biscuit. Each half of a hamburger or hot dog bun is one serving.

Other bread-and-cereal-group servings are 1/2 to 3/4 cup cooked cereal, cornmeal, grits, macaroni, noodles, rice or spaghetti, or one ounce ready-to-eat cereal, Miss Haggard adds.

The Hereford Council of Camp Fire held its Annual Open House and Art Show at the Camp Fire Lodge last Sunday. Art entries were submitted by the youth and adults membership of the local Council. National Art Show entries must be objects of art dealing with fibers such as latch hook, crochet, knitting, and any needlepoint and macrame. The winning entries this year are: FIRST PLACE: Daphne Roddy, Jayne Moore, and Joey Malmen. Crystal Finley, Sandy Evers, Edna Soliz, Shannon Evers, Leslie Birdwell, Georgia Collins, Paula Ponder and Rita Collins.

Second Place: Sandra Hacker, Rae Lynn Scribner, Niki Hammond, Shawney White, Stacy Crocan, Sherry French, and Crystal Finley, Gwen Wilhelm, Jonathan Haney, Dawn Gilster and Donann Cummings.

Third place was won by Janeth Garza, Jill Walterscheid, Robin White, Dawn Gilster, Cindy Morgan, Beth Clark, Janette Morgan, Dawn Cararez and Charlotte Carter.

There were four divisions: Art, Crafts, Stitchery and Fibers. These were broken into sub-divisions according to age groups, Bluebirds or Blue Jays, Adventure, Discovery and Horizon Clubs.

The Art Show and Open House were under the direction of Mrs. David Hill. Discovery Clubs hosting the affair were under the leadership of Carolyn Gallagher, Ellen Collins and Karrol Rettman. Wall & Sons donated a cake decorated with the Camp Fire logo served to approximately one hundred guests.

Local Residents to Preside At Association Convention

The Panhandle Association of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs will be meeting April 26-27 in Amarillo at 312 1/2 East 5th St.

The area convention is to be hosted by IOOF Lodge #410, Queen of the Plains Rebekah Lodge #276 and Amarillo Rebekah Lodge #222.

Officiating will be Odd Fellow PHA president Merl Bridges and Rebekah president Susie Curtsinger, both of Hereford. Martha Bridges of Hereford, PHA chaplain, will be in charge of a memorial service on Sunday morning.

A portion of Mrs. Curtsinger's President's program for 1979-80 follows:

"In the time of Nero, 55 A.D., five Roman soldiers saw the need of a brotherhood and banded together in a group that was first called 'Fellow Citizens.' Later, in the reign of Titus Caesar in 79 A.D., they adopted the name 'Odd Fellows.'

The object of the organization was to watch over each other as well as their families.

They believed in a divine creator, friendship to all mankind, love for their fellowman and truth as an imperial virtue.

We have three links as symbols of the beliefs of Odd Fellowship.

The first of these links is friendship, a truly noble sentiment and one that deserves the exalted rank which Odd Fellowship assigns it. Friendship, above all ties, binds the heart and promotes faith in others.

We are all Sisters and Brothers. Let us be friends as well.

The third link symbolizes truth. How terrible life would be without Truth to guide us.

"Know the truth and truth shall make you free." We have an obligation as Rebekahs to always seek out the truth about everything we say or do.

The center and most important link is love. Without this link there would be no chain. Love is the link that holds friendship and truth together. Jesus said, 'If ye love me, keep my commandments,' one of which is 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.'

With love in our hearts what can keep us from having a united membership, striving to carry out the obligations of Rebekah Odd Fellowship. We as Rebekahs have an obligation to others.

What are the general duties prescribed for our members? "To live peaceably, do good unto all as we have opportunity, and especially to obey the Golden Rule: 'Whatsoever ye would that others should do unto you, do ye even so unto them.'"

Physical illness can result when we aren't able to cope with stress effectively, warns Dr. Betty Jo Smith, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The first session of the First Congress of the United States, meeting in New York, submitted to the states on Sept. 25, 1789, the original constitutional amendments now known as the Bill of Rights.

Fresh Fruits Lead List of Best Buys

COLLEGE STATION — Best food buys for the next week or two include fresh fruits and vegetables, pork, poultry and eggs.

From the standpoint of Dr. Carol Akkerman, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, here's how the picture shapes up:

FRESH VEGETABLES — are becoming more plentiful in local markets as "their" season begins. Take advantage of good buys—pay close attention to cabbage, sweet potatoes, Oregon potatoes, green onions, radishes, carrots, tomatoes, salad greens and rutabagas.

You'll find prices down considerably on lemons, pineapple, strawberries, Valencia oranges and apples—red, golden delicious and Granny Smith. These apples are crisp, juicy and good for eating fresh or cooking.

Pineapples are ripe when only a slight yellowish tinge is on the green shell. To prepare, cut off the ends, slice in half lengthwise and carefully peel the thorny skin. If pineapple eyes remain in the juicy pulp, using a paring knife to lift them out. Slice and remove the fruit from the pithy core. Eat fresh with or without a little sugar.

Eating a wide variety of fresh vegetables and fruits will add the essential nutrients to your diet, the minimum amount of calories, and it will cost next to nothing.

MEAT — in the meat department, pork, chickens, turkeys and eggs are still best buys.

Because of the variety of fresh and cured pork available, select different cuts, including pork chops, rib-end and loin-end roast, ham and bacon.

Beef production is still down, and it's likely prices will continue to go up in the next few months. If you have extra cash and freezer space, you may want to stock up on beef.

Eggs are still available at bargain prices.

Shell color doesn't affect the grade, nutritive value, flavor or cooking performance. Color is determined by the breed of hen.

Eggs are an excellent source of vitamins, minerals and protein. Include them in the diet in moderation.

Easy-to-prepare main dishes with eggs are cheese souffles, ham omelets, and quiche.

Always store eggs in a cool, covered container with the large end of the egg turned upward.

DAIRY — specials for the next couple of weeks will include milk, sour cream, yogurt, and a variety of cheeses.

Approximately nine pounds of milk is used to make one pound of cheese, so cheese is considered a milk substitute.

Exact food values differ among cheese varieties, but all are exceptional sources of calcium, and all are good meat substitutes.

In summary, remember, your best food buys for the upcoming week or two will be fresh fruits and vegetables, pork, poultry and eggs.

IN WASHINGTON VA: in for big trouble?

WASHINGTON (NEA) — An isolated, relatively obscure and fiercely independent government agency throughout the past half-century, the Veterans Administration now faces unprecedented pressures that demand the public's attention.

At a time when the VA's own statistics show the public is already dissatisfied with its performance, the agency must soon confront a human tidal wave of older veterans requiring pensions, medical care and a host of other federal benefits.

The pressure of preparing for a vastly expanded caseload which it is ill-equipped to handle already has produced strains within the coalition that has effectively insulated the agency from outside criticism ever since it was established in 1930.

The three principal components of that coalition have been the VA itself, the committees of the House and Senate with jurisdiction over the agency and the long-established veterans' organizations such as the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans.

The congressional committees, for example, traditionally have served as little more than cheerleaders for expanded veterans' benefits and increased VA appropriations.

But in recent years, the Senate Veterans' Affairs Committee, under the chairmanship of Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., has insisted upon conducting a critical examination of unnecessary, deficient and extravagant programs.

At the same time, increasingly vocal veterans of the Vietnam era have begun to criticize the programs, priorities and goals of the VFW, DAV and other old-line organizations, claiming they ignore a younger generation with different needs.

Providing pensions, disability payments, burial benefits, vocational rehabilitation, educational assistance, home purchase loan guarantees, life insurance, hospitalization, outpatient medical care, prosthetic devices and countless other government benefits has become a massive federal operation. The VA's 172 hospitals, 229 outpatient clinics and 97 nursing homes qualify it as the largest operator of a medical care delivery system in the Western world.

The agency's payroll of more than 220,000 people makes it the second largest employer within the federal government, ranking behind only the Defense Department, while the VA's annual budget now exceeds $21 billion.

Despite the commitment of all that money and manpower, when the VA last year commissioned Louis Harris and Associates to conduct a national survey of public attitudes, the agency received "decidedly negative marks" among those asked how well it was serving veterans' needs.

"The VA's less than positive job rating," said the report on the survey, "suggests much room for improvement."

But at the same time the VA is being pressed to upgrade its performance to meet current needs, it also must prepare to handle the old-age needs of the nation's World War II veterans.

American Demographics magazine recently noted that the number of veterans over the age of 65 now numbers 2.7 million but will soar to 7.2 million by 1990.

"World War II veterans represent the largest group of living veterans — 12.8 million, fully 42 percent of the 30 million total veteran population. Their average age is already 59," the magazine added. "Close behind are 4.8 million Korean conflict veterans, whose average age now is 59."

Another perspective on those numbers: Within 10 years, more than half of all American men over the age of 65 will be veterans, eligible for free hospital and nursing home care from the VA regardless of their ability to pay.

Similar pressure for vastly increased federal assistance will be placed on the VA pension program; required by law to provide government retirement payments to all veterans over 65 or their survivors.

In an era of soaring inflation and tight federal budgets, the government may well lack the resources to meet those demands — but neither the public nor its political leaders has begun to seriously consider the problem.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, April 24, the 115th day of 1980. There are 251 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1898, Spain declared war on the United States, after receiving an American ultimatum to withdraw from Cuba.

Also on this date:

In 1704, the first American newspaper printed regularly — the Boston News Letter — was published for the first time.

One year ago: President Carter appointed Robert Strauss to serve as his chief aide in solving the Middle East peace stalemate.

Today's birthdays: Singer-actress Barbra Streisand is 38. Shirley MacLaine is 46.

Thought for today: A feeble body weakens the mind — Jean Jacques Rousseau (1712-1778).

in San Diego. While deployed, his ship operated as a unit of the U.S. 7th Fleet.

During the seven-month cruise, the Bainbridge steamed over 60,000 miles and operated with three battle groups. Assignments took his ship from the Sea of Okhotsk to the Arabian Sea as it participated in training exercises with other 7th Fleet units. He and his fellow crewmembers had the opportunity to visit Mombasa, Kenya and Perth, Australia.

The Bainbridge is 565 feet long and carries a crew of 500. His ship is outfitted with "Harpoon" missiles and anti-submarine rockets.

A 1961 graduate of Hereford High School, and a 1966 graduate of the University of Texas with a bachelor of science in mechanical engineering, Coneway joined the Navy in June 1966.

Hall of Fame Slates 'Top Hand' Art Show

Five artists have been invited to exhibit their work during the Special Spring "Top Hand" Art Show sponsored by the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center, held in the Hall of Fame at 211 E. 4th St., on May 3 and 4 and will feature Travis McPherson, Keith Avery, Kenneth Wyatt and Andy Wilks, all well-known western artists. A new Panhandle artist, Kim Poarch, formerly of Hereford, will be introduced at this Special Spring Art Show.

and a Saturday afternoon roping at the Rider's Club Arena. Saturday events will include team tying, girls roping, men's roping and mixed roping. The events will be open to anyone, any age.

Wrapping up the weekend's activities will be the benefit ball, appropriately named The Rhinestone Roundup. A silent auction, a mini-art show, and the introduction and presentation of the 1980 honorees for the Hall of Fame will highlight the evening's activities.

Margaret Formby, president of the Hall, has expressed gratitude for the work and encouragement of the many people who help make the Hall of Fame Weekend a success each year. She said, "We realize that economies and energy concerns have caused us to limit some of the annual events, namely the rodeo that we cancelled, but other exciting and meaningful activities are planned to make 1980 one of the best years ever for the Hall of Fame."

Scissors an Investment

COLLEGE STATION — Buy the best-quality scissors or shears you can afford, because they are an investment, says one clothing specialist.

With care, good scissors and shears should last a lifetime, if they are treated with respect, Nancy Brown adds.

Miss Brown is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

One important thing to know is now scissors or shears are made.

Usually, it's one of four ways:

1) Casting is one method. It produces scissors or shears that often are brittle. They do not have much durability. Also, they are joined with a rivet.

2) Hop-drop or hot-hammer forging is another method. This product--made by pounding a red-hot bar of steel with a heavy drop hammer--retains its keenness longer, can be adjusted to a permanent finish, is durable and can be repaired.

3) Cold-pressing or forged steel is the squeezing of cold metal into forms under pressure. This method produces a product that is soft, does not maintain a sharp edge and gives only limited satisfaction.

4) In-laid means welding a thin strip of cutlery steel to a softer steel frame for purposes of adjustment and blade hardness.

This method produces very good quality shears.

Shopping for scissors and shears, make sure the blades are fitted with a steel screw, not a rivet.

Be sure the hard, bright surface does not hide a soft, dull blade.

Be sure the scissors or shears are hot-drop or shot-hammer forged from a single block of cutlery steel.

Try them first. Test for comfort and balance in your hand. Try them for cutting, and listen for a smooth blade that "runs" smoothly.

Finally, make sure you can obtain service from the manufacturer in case your shears ever need reconditioning.

Let dishes air-dry in the dishwasher, advises Nancy Granovsky, a family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

This will reduce the amount of energy used by the appliance, since the drying cycle uses much of the energy required by the dishwasher.

The sunlight streaming through a window left the surface of the sun only eight minutes earlier.

Highest point on the European continent is Mount El'brus, in the Caucasus Mountains of the Soviet Union.

Also, in an announcement that looks ahead to the fall, the Cowgirl Hall of Fame has set October 17 and 18 as the Hall of Fame Weekend. Activities will include open barrel racing on Friday night

In loading a dryer, don't mix lightweight fabrics and heavy fabrics.

Lightweight fabrics dry much faster, so they'll overdry if you mix them with heavy fabrics, and that may cause shrinkage, cautions Nancy Brown, a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The average United States family of four eats almost three tons of food annually.

Agnew Claims Nixon Had Him 'Railroaded'

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Spiro T. Agnew says he was railroaded out of the vice presidency by Richard Nixon, who "naively believed that by throwing me to the wolves, he had appeased his enemies."
Agnew says Nixon played him "as a pawn in the desperate game for his survival." His resignation, Agnew said, followed veiled threats on his life, relayed by Nixon's chief lieutenant, Alexander Haig. "I don't mind admitting I was frightened," Agnew says.

But had he known the extent of Nixon's involvement in Watergate, Agnew says, he might have stayed in office and ultimately become president himself.
Haig "desired not only to move me out, but in due course...to move Mr. Nixon out, too," Agnew claims in his new book. He called Haig, Nixon's chief of staff, the "de facto president" for Nixon's last year in the White House.

Agnew opens the book "Go Quietly...Or Else" by writing, "I am innocent of the allegations against me which compelled me to resign from the vice presidency of the United States in 1973."
He describes prolonged confrontations with prosecutors and administration leaks to the press. When his attorney "suggested maybe we should try to find a way to end the nightmare, I was mentally and physically exhausted enough to agree," Agnew says.

Agnew resigned and pleaded no contest on Oct. 10, 1973, to a single count of income tax evasion in exchange for not going to prison and other concessions. He had served nine months of his second term as vice president.

Agnew said he worried whether, as a former Maryland governor who had lectured black moderates over their failure to speak out against civil disorders, he could receive a fair trial in Baltimore with its large black populace.
He writes that he resisted efforts to force his resignation until Haig told an Agnew aide "anything may be in the offing. It can and will get nasty and dirty. Don't think the game cannot be played from here."

Says Agnew: "I knew that men in the White House, professing to speak for the president, could order the CIA to carry out missions that were very unhealthy for people who were considered enemies...I did not know what might happen to me.

But I don't mind admitting I was frightened."
Haig, recuperating from heart surgery, was said to have laughed when told of the claim.
Agnew says that the day after he resigned, singer Frank Sinatra sent him $30,000, out of which Agnew paid his $10,000 fine, imposed as part of the plea bargain. Later, when the government billed him for $160,000 in back taxes, Agnew said Sinatra lent him that money, too.

Agnew says he did not owe the taxes but paid them because "it would have been useless to fight. The press had already convicted me."
Sinatra remains Agnew's good friend and they live near each other in the Palm Springs, Calif., area. The book's dedication: "To Frank Sinatra."

Hospitals Keeping ICU Patients Too Long?

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Nearly half the people held in intensive care for possible heart attacks can safely be released a day earlier than usual, a move that could cut their hospital bills by an average 26 percent, a study shows.

Hospitals spend as much as 20 percent of their budgets on intensive care, and cutting the service could mean substantial savings for them as well.

People with chest pains are routinely put in intensive care until doctors figure out whether they really have had heart attacks. These people make up 39 percent of all admissions to intensive care units, the most expensive ward in a hospital.

Researchers at Massachusetts General Hospital have found a few simple tests can quickly weed out healthy people so they can be discharged from intensive care within a day. Currently, these low-risk patients stay in intensive care an average of two days.

If hospitals followed their guidelines, the doctors estimate it would reduce the number of intensive care beds reserved for heart patients by 9 percent.

Two studies on the use of intensive care units, directed by physicians Albert G. Mulley and George E. Tibault, were published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The cost of staying in intensive care is often two or three times that of a private room. At Massachusetts General, intensive care costs an average of $2,000 for patients admitted for chest pains who are later given clean bills of health.

Intensive care units came into vogue in the early 1960s. They provide sophisticated monitoring and life-saving equipment and are staffed by specially trained nurses. At first, they were reserved for victims of serious heart disease, but later they were expanded to provide care for other critically ill people.

In an accompanying editorial, journal editor

Arnold S. Relman wrote, "We are by now investing such vast resources in intensive care ... We are in urgent need of data to tell us who needs to be in the ICU and for how long."

The Boston doctors reviewed 2,693 patients admitted to an intensive care unit over two years.

They found 47 percent of the people in intensive care for chest pains had normal blood tests and electrocardiograms and were free of major complications within a day of admission.

The Bath White Butterfly was named in England in 1702 because of its resemblance to a piece of embroidery created in Bath.

Drug Executions Concern Doctors

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors swear to heal the sick. But should they kill the condemned?

Three months ago, two Harvard professors argued that if physicians help with executions by drug injection, they will be taking part in "a corruption and exploitation of the healing profession's role in society."

Now it appears that the nation's doctors — at least the ones who feel strongly enough to write letters — are evenly split on the question.

In today's issue, the New England Journal of Medicine publishes a sampling of the reaction it received to the controversial stand taken by the two experts in its Jan. 24 edition.

William J. Curran, a lawyer who is head of the medical ethics program at Harvard Medical School, and Ward Casscells, an internist on the school's faculty, argued then that physicians will violate their Hippocratic Oath if they oversee the lethal drug injections, which is America's newest form of capital punishment.

Virginia Bates, the journal's letters editor, said the article prompted 40 letters, an unusually large number, and they were evenly divided between doctors who agree and those who say participation in executions should be an individual decision.

Not everyone took sides. Dr. Pamela Hemphill of San Francisco, for instance, argued that the Harvard men muddied the capital punishment issue by acting possessive about the means of death.

"The electric chair and the gas chamber have been used for years, and I have not heard electricians' unions or plumbers' unions decrying the use of their tools," she declared.

Dr. Marilyn Ward of Syracuse, N.Y., went even further. She questioned the morality of psychiatrists whose courtroom testimony can lead to the conviction and eventual execution of criminals.

Some doctors took the side of J.P. Robert Nelson of Georgetown University's Kennedy Institute of Ethics. He contended, "This abhorrent practice would corrupt and brutalize the physician..."

Others agreed with Dr. John D. King of St. Francis Hospital in Peoria, Ill., who noted that doctors can kill in wartime or in self-defense.

He concluded, "Conduct in the matter ought to be left to individuals, not organizations."

Another doctor, Herbert H. Kersten of the Fort Dodge Medical Center in Iowa, took the prisoner's point of view. He thought many condemned inmates "would prefer the lethal injection to electrocution."

His solution: "Why not give prisoners with death sentences the option of self-administering a toxic substance that would permit them to die painlessly in their sleep?"

National Assembly

The first National Assembly, representing both parts of Vietnam, met on June 24, 1976. The country was officially reunited on July 2, 1976. The former North Vietnamese flag, capital, anthem, emblem and currency were applied to the new state. Nearly all major government posts went to officials of the former Northern government.

Each year the Kentucky Derby trophy is designed, in keeping with the 1921 gold cup, for the owner of the winning horse. Silver replicas in a smaller size are presented to the winning jockey and trainer.

Spring Fling Donation

Merry Mixers Square Dance club recently raised $455 from their Spring Fling held in April and presented the proceeds to Allan Brockman and his family to defray medical expenses they are encountering. Making the presentation is from left Freddie McKee of Amarillo, caller at the Spring Fling; Allan Brockman, and Forrest and Ruth McDowell, president of Merry Mixers. The Merry Mixers will meet May 2 at the Community Center with business beginning at 7:30 p.m. and dancing at 8:30 p.m. Caller for the evening will be Larry Linders of Amarillo. [Brand Photo by Denise Smith]

Two Texas Seats in Spotlight

By GARTH JONES

Associated Press Writer AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two congressional districts without incumbents provide most of the controversy over Texas' Washington delegation in the May 3 primary.

Democratic primary ballots will list nine races for Congress while Republican ballots will carry three.

Five current congressmen have no opponents from either party.

In November, there will be Democrat-Republican contests in 19 of the 24 congressional districts.

And this is considered a quiet election for the Washington delegation. There is no U.S. senator race and many would-be congressmen are waiting to see what happens after the 1980 census when Texas is expected to get two new places in Congress.

The hottest congressional race appears to be in the 14th District to succeed Joe Wyatt, a first-term member from Bloomington, who resigned after starting treatment for alcoholism.

State Sen. William N. Patman of Ganado and Nueces County Judge Robert N. Barnes are considered probable runoff candidates among the Democrats. Close behind are former Corpus Christi Mayor Jason Luby and former state Rep. Joe Salem of Corpus Christi.

Three Republican candidates are active, spending much of their time talking about the Democrats. They are Russ Baird, Wharton physical therapist; Gerald D'Unger, petroleum engineer, and pediatrician C.L. Concklin, both of Corpus Christi.

In the 4th District, home of the late Speaker, Sam Rayburn, there is a hot race for a successor to Rep. Ray Roberts, who is retiring after holding the seat since 1961 after Rayburn's death.

The Democratic contestants are former state Sen. Relph Hall of Rockwall and former Denison Mayor Jerdy Gary, son of a former Oklahoma governor. Both are running strong.

Republicans are expected to run strong in the East

Texas end of the 4th District, will choose between two Tyler men, oilman J.L. Gulley, and John Wright, former member of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Other contested congressional races in the primaries include:

— District 2, Rep. Charles Wilson, Lufkin, faces Allen L. Summers, Lufkin, in the Democratic primary. The winner goes against Republican F.R. Pannill Sr., Huntsville.

— District 6, two Republicans, Dave Haskins and Darla H. Mortensen, both of Fort Worth, fight it out in the primary, with the winner meeting Rep. Phil Gramm, College Station, a first-term Democrat.

— District 8, Rep. Bob Eckhardt, veteran Democrat from Houston, is opposed in the primary by Larry C. Washburn of Spring. In November, the Republican competition will be Jack Fields of Humble.

— District 9, another Texas veteran, Rep. Jack Brooks of Beaumont has competition in the Democratic primary from Jack Brookshire and W.L. Pate, both of Beaumont. Brooks, who holds influential committee positions in Washington because of his seniority, is an easy favorite.

— District 10, Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, Austin Democrat, faces one Democrat and three Republicans for the old Lyndon B. Johnson seat he has held since 1963. The Democrat is Greg Stallings, former Internal Revenue Service employee who is running on environmental and taxation issues. The Republicans are Jack Bower, sales representative for Kodak; John Biggar, who owns a materials hauling business; and Radcliff J. Finley, a jewelry salesman.

— District 12, Democratic majority leader Rep. Jim Wright, Fort Worth, has made frequent trips home to make speeches in preparation for a Democratic opponent on May 3 and the winner of two Republicans in November. C.R. Silcox, Fort Worth; is the Democratic challenger. The two Republicans are Jim Bradshaw, Fort Worth, who has been campaigning constantly "running on Wright's record," and Jim Ryan of Euless.

— District 21, two Democrats of San Antonio, Marilyn Gibson Jones and Joe Sullivan, are trying to run against one of Texas' three Republican incumbents, Rep. Tom Loeffler of Hunt. There were questions raised about Sullivan's filing petition and his name was removed from the ballot but later restored by a federal judge.

— District 22, another Texas Republican congressman, Rep. Ron Paul, will face the winner of a Democratic contest between former state Sen. Bob Gammage, Michael A. Andres, and Joseph F. Pentony, a former state representative. Gammage beat Paul once then was defeated by him.

— District 23, Democrat Rep. Abraham Kazan, Jr., Laredo, is considered in good shape against his Democrat opponent, Paul D. Rich of Von Ormy and two Republicans, Bobby Locke and Martin P. Ross, both of San Antonio.

City, State Payrolls Getting Smaller

By LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer
The country's public payroll is getting smaller. More and more cities and states are laying off workers or not filling vacancies as they try to balance budgets squeezed by rising costs and a drop in federal aid.

are managing to cut employment by attrition instead. But government and union spokesmen say the situation will get worse as the economy weakens and as July 1 — the start of the fiscal year in many places — approaches.

Federal statistics from the Census Bureau show that state and local employment grew at an annual rate of 4 percent in the years from 1967 to 1974. The rate of growth slowed to 2 percent and then, in 1977 and 1978, to 1 percent. After 1978, public employment started to drop. "It's not new," said Don Wasserman, director of research for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Virginia is typical. State employment had been growing by 5 percent a year until 1979 when Gov. John Dalton put a freeze on hiring. Dalton said job vacancies could be filled only if the agency involved could justify its action to him. About 115 jobs — roughly two-tenths of a percent of the state payroll — have been eliminated so far.

Gov. Hugh Gallen of New Hampshire has proposed a similar plan; vacant jobs could not be filled unless he and a fiscal committee from the Legislature agree. Gallen also wants to freeze upgrading of state employees from one pay level to the next.

Virginia and New Hampshire have avoided outright firings. Detroit hasn't. Almost 400 police already have been laid off. Mayor Coleman Young, facing a potential budget deficit of $56 million, wants to lay off an additional 703 members of the 4,600-member force — 670 of on Sept. 5 and the rest on Jan. 1, 1981.

Officials in New York City say no layoffs are planned, but the city payroll has been reduced by attrition. Kansas City, Mo., is laying off 76 of its 5,110 employees, ranging from professional engineers to laborers. An additional 100 jobs will be left vacant. "We're trying to minimize layoffs and maximize transfers," said Tom Lewinsohn, the city's personnel director.

A major problem for many cities is the potential loss of federal revenue sharing funds. President Carter has proposed eliminating the $2.3 billion program under which the states got block grants, then passed about 44 percent of the money on to local governments.

Unemployment in the private sector also is putting pressure on public workers. Tax revenues — from individuals and companies — are going down at the same time demand for services is going up. "We anticipate that we'll see some (layoffs), particularly in local government as the tax bases start to shrink with the shutdown of certain companies," said Thomas E. Schneider, executive director of the Montana Public Employees Association.

Gene Denton, the city manager of Wichita, Kan., blamed a combination of inflation, federal cutbacks and salary increases for a hiring freeze instituted on April 1. Cleveland is cutting about 650 from its work force of 10,000; 150 people will have to go when federal funds for public service jobs run out.

Wasserman is critical of federal lawmakers. "The administration has planned and wants a recession," he said. "They have talked of a recession with glee. It's quite obvious that we fault the administration and many in Congress who have tried to outdo the administration in cutbacks."

Local spending lids as well as federal ones have caused the loss of jobs. In New Jersey, for example, municipal budgets cannot increase by more than 5 percent a year without specific voter approval. Jack Trafford, executive director of the New Jersey League of Municipalities, said the limit was reasonable when it was enacted in 1976, "but with the inflation rate the way it is today, that's not very much....Every year you cut and cut and cut, and now many municipalities are cut to the wire."

Newark, N.J., cut its work force by 12 percent, including 258 police officers; Paterson laid off 188 administrative employees in 1979 and city officials are talking about firing 48 firefighters and 47 policemen this year; Orange eliminated 80 workers. "The present belt tightening will get worse," said Trafford.

Out in Wyoming, Robert Cantine, executive director of that state's Association of Municipalities, was equally pessimistic. He said mass layoffs have been avoided so far — "More of what we have is doing it through attrition. It's less painful that way." But he also said that local governments got only a tenth of what they asked for from the state this year. "It's going to be extremely difficult next year," said Cantine. "I think it's going to get much worse."

Robert Mosher, the state comptroller in Iowa, said that a recently announced freeze on hiring will last "at least a year." Meanwhile, Mosher said, "We will not fill a position unless it has been deemed absolutely necessary to do so."

William Boys, the director of the Illinois Department of Personnel, said the state has not been forced to freeze hiring or lay off workers so far. But he said that unemployment in private industry is having its effect on the state all the same. "I have noticed a considerable increase in the number of people applying for state jobs," Boys said.

THE ROAD TO victory was rocky indeed for motorcyclists competing in recent world championship trials near Bilsaint, Belgium. Belgian racer B. Cordonnier attempted a "wheelie" when his cycle became caught between the proverbial rock and hard place.

'Boatlift' Brings Cubans Across Florida Straits

By STEVE WILSON

Associated Press Writer
KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Another 560 Cubans poured ashore as countrymen already in the United States hired an armada of 600 relatives to freedom in defiance of State Department warnings that the boatlift may lead to jail terms and stiff fines.

"They ain't got enough men to stop us," declared one exile.

There were also warnings that some small craft are not seaworthy for the 180-mile roundtrip across the choppy Florida Straits and that profiteering was rampant as demand for boats pushed rental prices into the thousands of dollars.

Ferried by a flotilla of hundreds of vessels, more than 630 Cubans have reached South Florida in the last three days.

The Coast Guard was warning boatlift operators they face arrest and heavy fines for bringing illegal aliens into the country. But there were no reports of arrests by late Wednesday, and Coast Guard officials had no immediate plans to stop exile boats.

"The phone has been ringing every 30 seconds," said spokesman David Hatton at the Coast Guard station here. "Everybody's asking if they can go to Cuba."

The State Department in Washington also warned that boat owners were subject to prosecution. The Immigration and Naturalization Service said it would "act to stop boat owners from bringing Cubans and other aliens" into the country.

The immigration service said boat owners must pay $1,000 for every refugee without a visa, and those owners who are caught evading the reporting requirement would be penalized.

"I want to see them arrested for going to get my parents," said Jose Perez, as he readied his boat for the 12-hour voyage.

As many as 500 boats, some smaller than 20 feet, were heading for Cuba or returning to Key West early today, exile leaders said.

Vessels were putting to sea from Key West Marina every five minutes Wednesday as bidding for charter boats reached as high as $10,000.

coupled with a surcharge would be sufficient to assume the line.

MKT Considers Shippers' Offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad will consider in the next few days an offer from shippers on a three-state route of the bankrupt Rock Island Railroad to finance its operation of that line.

But MKT attorney Art Albin declined to say whether the railroad's management would accept the offer made by the shippers at a meeting in Washington.

"We hate to risk shippers' money because we have no way to guarantee it would be successful," Albin said. "We'd hate to jeopardize their financial situation on such a marginal operation."

Service along the 450-mile route from Herrington, Kan., through Oklahoma City to Fort Worth, Texas, stopped Mar. 23 when federal operating subsidies expired.

On Wednesday, the shippers offered to loan the MKT $1.5 million to restore service and said they would pay higher freight rates so it would have the money to repay that loan.

"If there's anyway to save the rail service of the Rock Island — it affects so many people — we'll be glad to do our share," said John McPherren, vice president of Dolese Bros. Co. of Oklahoma City.

The proposal was tentatively endorsed by federal regulatory officials attending the session.

"It's essential that service be provided on this line," Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., added.

Although other railroads have assumed temporary operation of other segments of the Rock Island at their own risk, the MKT had offered to assume operation only if the government provided $3 million in start-up money. Officials of both the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Railroad Administration reiterated, however, that no such funds are available.

Albin the railroad's management would decide whether the proposed loan

The Dolese Bros. Co., the Sun Petroleum Products Co. and a coalition of other smaller shippers each agreed to put up $500,000. A group of grain shippers said they would also provide MKT loans of $200 per car once service is resumed.

"The shippers understand the risk of that money, that they could lose it," said Garland Rice of the Atchison County, Kan., Co-op. "But without it (service) they could lose a lot more."

Since trains stopped running, the shippers have been forced to stockpile much of their goods and rely on trucks to move the rest.

Real Estate Tips

On what basis are mortgage loans approved or disapproved by a savings and loan company?
The primary criteria a savings and loan uses for approving a request for a loan is your ability to repay the money. Individuals denied loans have the right to be told the reason for the rejection of their loan application. Any company that is insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation cannot deny to make a loan because of discriminatory reasons. A loan cannot be turned down because of your age, sex, marital status, race, color, religion or national origin or because you receive income from welfare or Social Security. Nor, can you be denied a home improvement or mortgage loan because of the age or the location of the house.

LEGAL NOTICE On or about March 26, 1980, Pioneer Natural Gas Company ("Pioneer"), a division of Pioneer Corporation, filed a Statement of Intent with the Railroad Commission of Texas proposing to increase natural gas rates to the following larger volume, special contract customers: American Cotton Growers Celanese Chemical Company Dorcham, Inc. Hi Plains Feed Yard, Inc. Plainview Oil Mill, Ltd. Lubbock Beef Processors, Inc. Occidental Chemical Company Tal Pro, Inc. Texas Pipe Line Company The proposed rate change, which has been agreed to by these customers, consists of an increase from 29.92¢ per Mcf to 33.90¢ per Mcf above Pioneer's cost of gas plus certain adjustments for changes in the Consumer Price Index. The rate change is to become effective thirty-five (35) days after filing of the aforesaid Statement of Intent, or such other date as is permitted by the Railroad Commission. The increase will not constitute a "major change" as defined in Section 43(b) of Article 1448c, V.A.T.C.S., and will not affect any of Pioneer's customers other than those listed herein.
