70 DOE staffers to be placed by end of week

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

A small gathering of local dignitaries and media in attendance at the Department of Energy's project progress meeting today were told that there will be 70 project personnel on staff in Hereford by the end of this week.

Bob Wunderlich, deputy manager for the site characterization project, stated an additional 50 people are expected to be on board in June and 30 are expected in July.

"Those who are transferring in start out looking at an area to live which is similar to what they are familiar with," he stated, "Amarillo is their first choice before they begin house hunting, but when the come down and look the area over many change their minds and begin looking at Hereford."

To date, 36 employees have been transferred to the area and 33 have been hired in the Amarillo-Hereford area.

According to Wunderlich, procurements for the project have totaled over $1.2 million in commitments of which $690,000 goes to Amarillo, $335,000 to Hereford, $44,000 to Vega, $123,000 to other areas in Texas and $3,000 have been spent outside of Texas.

He said that Battelle will be purchasing two copiers which will cost $80,000 each and the contract will be let to a local vendor. He was unsure if "local" meant a Hereford firm or if it was used in the broader sense which would include the Amarillo area.

Bids for permanent office space for Battelle will be opened on June 5, according to Wunderlich the requirements on the bids are being modified and the changes will be hand delivered to those who have expressed an interest in bidding later today.

"The bids require a June 5 deadline, however, if anyone has a problem getting the information together by then they just need to contact Ken Schmader at Battelle and let him know," Wunderlich said. He explained that Schmader will be willing to extend the deadline if necessary and reasonable. Schmader may be contacted at Battelle's Hereford office, 364-8910.

Wunderlich explained that Battelle has had two problems in getting their Hereford office opened and staffed.

"They need their permanent office space and they have not completed negotiations with DOE on their new contract," he said. The contract negotiations are to be completed in Hereford this week.

Listing living expenses for employees coming in and out of the Hereford area on business trips as well as those permanently in Hereford, Wunderlich asserted that the project is bringing income into the area and that it will continue to do so.

"In addition there will be other services which will be needed which Hereford can provide, new businesses may even be generated because of the number of people moving in," Wunderlich said. "In particular it may generate fast food business. No matter where they live they will be in Hereford for lunch."

As of May 18, the Columbus, Ohio, office of DOE is a satellite office and the Hereford office is a primary office.

DOE will host an open house on Saturday, June 20, from 9 a.m. until noon. "This may answer a number of questions," Wunderlich said. "We hear, 'We know there is a lot of you, but what do you do?' Perhaps this will explain what we are all doing."

Wunderlich will be conducting weekly briefings at 7 a.m. each Wednesday in the Community Center. The public is invited to attend and to present questions or topical issues related to the DOE site characterization studies.

When funnel clouds encroached upon Deaf Smith County on Tuesday, pupils at Northwest Elementary took to the halls for safety. Deaf Smith General Hospital employees also were on alert when a funnel touched down between Hereford and Friona just before noon.

Hobby says balanced budget 'less and less likely'

AUSTIN (AP) — Time is running out on the Legislature, and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby says it appears lawmakers will fail to write a balanced budget before the June 1 deadline. "It looks less and less likely, obviously, with each passing hour," said Hobby, who presides over the Senate.

Hobby noted that the failure isn't a first, since the state's fiscal crisis has continued for more than a year after oil prices tumbled from near $30 a barrel to less than $10 and took state government into the red. "The tragic part of that is that there is not a single new fact known now that was not known last July," he said Tuesday.

Hobby said it has taken lawmakers considerably more time than it should have to correct the problems.

"The Legislature failed to address the issue last summer. It could have been done in two weeks instead of two (special) sessions last summer. All this could have been done in two months this time," he said.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said he now sees little chance now of avoiding a summer special session.

"Time's run out on us," Lewis said, adding that passage of a tax bill to fund any budget "would be almost impossible" in the Legislature's final days. The Constitution limits regular sessions to 140 days every other year.

"I think at this point you can say we'll be back here in June or July, trying to straighten out the budget," Lewis said.

The governor, who has the authority to call special sessions and set the agenda, hasn't indicated when a 30-day budget session would begin, although many lawmakers are speculating late June or early July.

House and Senate negotiators are still working on an appropriations bill, but even if they agree the Legislature hasn't finished work. Lawmakers have so far failed to pass a tax increase large enough to pay for either the House or Senate budget.

Gov. Bill Clements, who threatens to veto any tax increase larger than $2.9 billion, said he, Hobby and Lewis haven't met to discuss the budget since they went skeet shooting May 12.

"I think that we have made an effort in this regard, on meeting one-on-one, and actually they didn't accomplish anything," Clements said.

The governor again blamed the Senate, which approved a $40 billion spending plan calling for nearly twice the new taxes Clements has said he would approve.

Clements said he believes the budget and tax issue eventually will be resolved, but only after some lawmakers give in.

"It's going to take a meeting of the minds," he said. "The people of Texas do not want new taxes, period. And once we reach that understanding, I think we can move forward."

More bail denials expected following high court decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's approval of pretrial detention could lead more states to deny bail to accused criminals who are considered a threat to the community.

The ruling was welcomed by the Reagan administration and law enforcement officials but denounced by critics who said it violates individual rights and could promote racism.

The 6-3 high court ruling Tuesday said people accused of crimes may be jailed without bail while awaiting trial if a judge decides they are a threat to public safety.

"An element of racism will creep in," said Randolph Jonakait of New York Law School. "White judges will see young blacks as more of a threat" than others, he said.

"For the first time the court is sanctioning imprisoning people for their status. Before, you could lock them up only for something they have done," he said.

Jonakait said judges and prosecutors lack the ability to predict accurately who is likely to commit a crime while on bail. "Psychiatrists can't do it and neither can the courts," he said.

The administration said public safety will be enhanced by the ruling.

Terry Eastland, a Justice Department spokesman, said that from September 1985 to February of this year, federal law enforcement officials have successfully petitioned courts 2,500 times to hold a person in jail without bail.

"The ultimate impact of the court's decision will be on the streets of our nation," said Eastland. "We

Funnels, storms torment county

From Wire and Staff Reports

Funnel clouds popped down on Deaf Smith County Tuesday morning as severe thunderstorms drenched the area with up to 1.75 inches of rain. Other parts of the county were only partly cloudy during the second day of storm warnings.

County law officers and the fire department volunteers tracked the funnel clouds which started in Friona. Friona motel owner called one twister that touched down "a little small deal" as it danced in the parking lot of his business for a few minutes around noon Tuesday.

Funnel clouds were spotted over Friona and west of there starting at about 11:45 a.m., according to Deaf Smith County Sheriff's dispatcher Terry Denning.

No damaging tornadoes or serious injuries were reported late Tuesday.

Dawn got the most rain Tuesday with the storm, recording 1.75 of an inch. Downtown Hereford got .88 of an inch and Westway had .96 of an inch.

Bootleg and the Homfeld farm reported only sprinkles.

According to Ed Lemons, owner of Sutter's Inn on U.S. Highway 60 in Friona, "It didn't look real stormy" right before a tornado hit the parking lot of the business.

"The first thing I knew something was wrong was when I saw the dumpster behind Dairy Queen start rolling, and a whole bunch of loose rock started whirling around," he said.

"Then it came over near our lot. It was just a little small deal, but they still scare ya, anyway," Lemons said, adding that he and his wife had only enough time to seek cover in their ground floor motel offices.

The tornado caused minor damage to a truck and farm equipment behind a house before rising into the clouds, said Friona police dispatcher Doris Richards.

A total of 18 severe thunderstorm and tornado warnings had been issued by the weather service by late Monday, although officials were "too busy" Tuesday to have tallied all warnings for the two-day onslaught of severe storms.

think that preventive detention is an effective law enforcement tool."

Attorney General Robert Corbin of Arizona, which has a preventive detention law similar to the federal statute, predicted more states will enact laws to deny bail on the basis of danger to the community.

"We're very pleased," he said. "I'm sure more states will attempt to enact" such laws. It is also likely that some states with preventive detention will strengthen them to conform to the federal law, he said.

Twenty-four states and the District of Columbia deny bail on the basis of a defendant's perceived dangerousness, but most of those laws are not as sweeping as the federal law upheld Tuesday.

The justices upheld the pretrial detention of two reputed Mafia leaders in New York City who were denied bail on grounds they would likely engage in continued underworld activities if allowed to go free.

"We have repeatedly held that the government's regulatory interest in community safety can, in appropriate circumstances, outweigh an individual's liberty interest," Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist wrote for the court.

In a bitter dissent, Justice Thurgood Marshall called the ruling "an ominous exercise in demagoguery of constitutional rights."

The American Civil Liberties Union denounced the decision as a dangerous setback for individual rights.

The weather created a little excitement around Hereford Tuesday, as the ominous clouds moved over the area and we were put under a tornado warning due to funnel sightings to the southwest. Some of the schools and the hospital held precautionary tornado drills.

Deaf Smith General Hospital held a "very successful" drill, according to administrator Jim Bullard. We went by the hospital to check on our parents. My dad is in the hospital and mother was sitting with him.

"Your dad was trying to sleep," my mother said. "I had a hard time keeping him awake. I didn't want him to miss any of the excitement," she explained. All the patients were moved into the halls for the safety drill.

Hereford's road to the playoffs in baseball read like a Chinese fire drill Saturday. There's no doubt that the Whitefaces made every "reasonable effort" to complete the best two-of-three series.

In trying to find a dry field Saturday morning, Athletic Director Don Cumpton called the University Interscholastic League office to determine the rules. An official told Cumpton that Hereford would have to make every "reasonable effort" to get the series finished, rather than claiming the bi-district contest on a one-game basis.

"You won't need to make a ruling on that next Monday," replied Cum-ton, "because we're going to make every possible effort to get the games completed." And so they did, as they traveled to Andrews, then to New Mexico to Eunice and Jal. The remarkable thing is that 73 Herd fans stayed with the team through all the travels and were at Jal to support them in the playoff game.

A sleepy-eyed Butch White was telling his Sunday School department about the baseball trip Sunday morning. He said he called his wife, Mary Beth, from Eunice to tell her what was happening. "I'm in Eunice," he told her.

"What did you say," asked Mary Beth.

"Eunice, Eunice!" responded Butch.

"Butch, this is Mary Beth," said his wife. "Who is Eunice?"

We were preoccupied with other events and didn't have any special articles about Memorial Day in Sunday's newspaper. But the local American Legion post did not forget. Members of the Legion placed small American flags on the graves of veterans of America's wars, following a custom of more than a half century.

The real Memorial Day is Saturday, May 30, but Congress changed it to one of those Monday holidays so that citizens would have a three-day holiday. This is the day set aside to honor the nation's war dead. Since World War II was the last big patriotic war when the nation gave military men a hero status, many people did not pause Monday to reflect upon the real reason for observing Memorial Day.

We have a number of veterans in this community's cemeteries. It is surely not asking too much that those of us still around stop and pay respect to their memory.

Couple celebrates 40th anniversary

MR. AND MRS. ELMER F. REINART

In honor of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. Reinart's 40th wedding anniversary, a liturgy was celebrated Tuesday evening by Father Cletus McGorry at St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Also, family and friends held a surprise card shower for the couple. More than 120 cards were received from 20 states, five countries and two continents.

Altar servers were the couple's grandsons, Travis Mize and Todd Reinart. Ann Lueb was leader of song and Carolyn Evers organist. Janie Banner and Becky Reinart were ministers of The Word and Mark Banner, Eucharistic minister. Petitioners at the prayer of the faithful were Deby and Kasi Reinart, and Angela, Renee and Melanie Banner. Gift bearing the offertory with the honorees, which included a basket of the cards received, were their grandchildren, Marcus Banner and Jennifer Johnson.

Elmer F. Reinart and Irene L. Artho were married May 27, 1947 at St. Mary's Church in Umbarger. Their children include Wayne and Roy Reinart and Janie Banner, all of Hereford; Paulette Borgognoni of Rye, Colo.; Julie Larimer of Roanoke, Texas; Melinda Reinart of Des Moines, Iowa; and Rhonda Reinart of Dallas. They also have 10 grandchildren.

The Reinarts farmed southeast of Hereford throughout their married life. Following their retirement in 1985, the couple moved to their present home at 239 Centre.

Former resident recognized at Reese Air Force Base

Mike Caudle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Caudle of Route 5, was recognized as a distinguished military graduate and regular commission nominee upon his commissioning as a 2nd Lieutenant in the United States Air Force.

Caudle received his commission May 16 at Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock following his graduation from Texas Tech University with a bachelor of science degree in mechanized agriculture.

The 1982 Hereford High School graduate was involved in the Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) at Texas Tech for the past two-and-a-half years and served as Sabre Flight Drill Team commander for 1986-87.

As an ROTC cadet, he received the Vice Commandant's Award, Best Sabre medal, Military Order of the World Wars Gold Award, two year pilot scholarship, ROTC scholastic achievement ribbon with three oak leaf clusters and academic achievement award for being in the top five percent of his field training camp. He

Recital Scheduled

Justin Betzen, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Betzen, will be presented in a violin recital at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library. Justin is a student of the Elizabeth Criner Studio. Friends and relatives are invited to attend the event and the reception immediately following.

Suarez among 27 graduates

The Amarillo College Division of Nursing recently held pinning ceremonies for 27 vocational nursing students. Among the students were Jessie Suarez of Hereford.

These students will qualify to take the state board examination scheduled in Fort Worth in October of this year. Those who pass the tests will be certified as licensed vocational nurses, according to Sue Ann Hicks, chairman of the AC vocational nursing program.

The Amarillo College Vocational Nursing program is currently accepting applications for the fall semester. Additional information is available by calling the college at (806)354-6015 or by inquiring at the AC West Campus, 6222 W. 9th, in Amarillo (administration building, Room 205).

Deadline to register for Camp Lani Wa slated Thursday

Thursday is a signup deadline for Camp/Lani Wa, one of two summer camps sponsored by Hereford Camp Fire Council.

The camp, planned for June 1-5 in Hereford, is open to Blue Birds, Sparks, and pre-schoolers aged 4-5. Non-members pay a camp fee of $15 plus a registration fee of $7 which registers them in the council and also include insurance.

The day camp schedule is from 8:30-11:30 a.m. Monday through Thursday and on Friday (June 5) from 8:30 until 2:30 p.m. The camp will be open at 8 a.m. and youth may begin arriving at that time.

Those attending the day camp will make new friends, learn songs and games, make craft items, and learn about the out-of-doors.

Parents are to deliver their children directly to the site and pick them up at the same location. Parents are invited to attend the closing ceremonial on Friday from 1:30-2:30 p.m. In case of rain, it will be held at the Bull Barn.

Call the Camp Fire Lodge before noon at 364-0395 or 364-1624 or 364-7166 during weekday afternoons.

Youth win tennis titles

Four youth from Hereford claimed division titles in the Memorial Day Open Tennis Tournament in Amarillo Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Jake Head, Kirsten Abney, Kristie Allison, and Trisha Munoz were division champions in the tournament, which was held in conjunction with the Funfest activities.

Head won the boys' 12 and under singles title and also teamed with Kelly Arrington of Plainview to win the boys' 12 and under doubles championship.

Abney and Allison won the girls' 16 and under doubles division championship, and Munoz won the girls' 14 and under singles division title.

Head's match wins in the boys' 12 and under singles division were: 6-0, 6-1 over Ingram of Canyon in the first round; 6-0, 6-0 over Arrington in the second round; 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 over Crowell of Amarillo in the semifinals, and 6-0, 6-2 over Septian Patel of Hereford in the finals.

In the boys' 12 and under doubles division first round, Head and Arrington beat the team of Crowell and Thatcher of Amarillo by default. Head and Arrington had won the first set of the match, 7-5. In the finals, Head and Arrington defeated Septian Patel and Pratesh Patel of Hereford, 5-7, 6-4, 7-5.

Abney and Allison had a first-round bye in the girls' 16 and under doubles division. In the second round, they beat Baker and Cannon of Canyon, 6-3, 6-1, and then won the championship match over Forrester and Clark of Amarillo, 1-6, 7-6, 6-2.

Munoz also had a first-round bye, in the girls' 14 and under division. She defeated Metcalf of Canyon, 6-1, 6-3, in the second round. In the finals, Munoz defeated Frazee of Amarillo, 4-6, 6-4, 7-6.

Herd baseball statistics

Here are the Hereford High School varsity baseball statistics, through the bi-district playoffs.

The Whitefaces, 22-4 and winners over Andrews in the bi-district playoffs, play Fort Worth Brewer this week in the regional playoffs. Game one of the regional playoffs is scheduled at 8 p.m. Thursday in Snyder, and game two is set for 1 p.m. Saturday in Vernon.

Celtics edge Pistons 108-107

Bird 'steals' the game

By HOWARD ULMAN

AP Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — "I was right there," Boston's Jerry Sichting said. "I saw how it happened."

Years from now, similar words undoubtedly will be uttered by some of the 14,890 spectators who witnessed another amazing play by Larry Bird.

It was a play that saved the game and, very likely, the NBA season for the Celtics. It was a play that not even Bird's teammates expected. It was a play that Detroit certainly didn't anticipate.

"I'll put that on top of everything Larry's ever done," Boston assistant coach Chris Ford said.

Trailing by a point, Bird stole Isiah Thomas' inbound pass with five seconds left and fed Dennis Johnson for the winning layup with one second to go Tuesday night. The basket gave Boston a 108-107 victory and a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven NBA Eastern Conference final.

"We had the game won," said Thomas, who added that he didn't see Bird race to the ball.

"It looked bleak," said Sichting, who was guarding Thomas and forced him to throw the ball from the sidelines backward to Bill Laimbeer under Boston's basket. "You don't expect things like that to happen. Larry was going to the ball before Isiah threw it."

"It happened so quick, you don't have time to think about it," Bird said. "It was just a reaction. I was going to foul Laimbeer. I stuck my hand in there and then I knew I had it stolen. He (Thomas) didn't throw a good pass. He just lobbed it in the air."

"As soon as I got it I was going to shoot. I was counting four seconds in my head and then I turned around and saw D.J. cutting down the lane."

Despite being guarded closely by Joe Dumars, Johnson put the ball up with his right hand from the left side of the basket. It rolled around the rim and dropped through.

"We have a very good sense for each other," Johnson said of himself and Bird. "I'm really becoming a believer in the Boston Garden mystique."

The first big league hit for Jackie Robinson was a bunt. He made it for the Brooklyn Dodgers April 16, 1947.

The victory was Boston's 35th in its last 36 games in the Garden and 17th straight there over Detroit. But now the Celtics must play Game 6 Thursday night in Pontiac, Mich., where they lost by 18 points Saturday and 26 Sunday.

"Yogi (Berra) said it first," Boston forward Kevin McHale said. "It ain't over 'til it's over. Then Larry said it. And, sometimes, it's still not over."

If Bird didn't steal the ball or if Johnson missed the shot, the season would have been just about over for the defending champion Celtics. To stay alive in the playoffs, they would have had to win Thursday night on the road, possibly without center Robert Parish.

Now if they lose the next game, they'll return home for Game 7 Saturday to determine who will play the Los Angeles Lakers in the championship series.

Parish was helped off the floor with 7:19 remaining when he re-injured his sprained left ankle. He returned to the game 58 seconds later only to leave for good with 3:41 left when he fell and couldn't stand without help.

Bird led the Celtics with 36 points, McHale added 20 and Dennis Johnson 18. Detroit was paced by Adrian Dantley with 25, Vinnie Johnson with 20 and Thomas with 17.

HE'S THE IMAGE OF HIS FATHER.

People who turn kids onto drugs aren't always the dregs of the earth. They're people who love children more than anything. Parents. Everything mothers and fathers do, no matter how discreet, leaves a lasting impression on sons and daughters. With millions of parents doing drugs, it's no wonder millions of kids are doing the same. So if you're wondering where children pick up their habits, where in the world they get them from, you don't have to look very far. It's you.

IF PARENTS STOP, KIDS WON'T START.

New Officers Installed

Officers of the Young Mothers Study Club of Hereford were installed recently and will serve a term spanning 1987-88. They include, from left, Kathleen Brockman, president; Jeanne Landers, treasurer, and Carla Hollinger, secretary. Not pictured is Shelly Brock, vice-president.

Dinner highlighted by installation

A recent Mothers' Night Out Dinner was highlighted as new officers of the Young Mothers' Study Club of Hereford were installed.
 New officers to serve from 1987-8 include Kathlee Brockman, president; Shelly Brock, vice president; Carla Hollinger, secretary; and Jeanne Landers, treasurer.
 Plans were finalized for the June 8 tea set from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. at Brockman's home, 130 Beach. Anyone interested in Young Mother's Study Club is cordially invited to attend the come-and-go tea.

Senior Citizens Opportunities

The lunch menu at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center for Thursday and Friday includes the following:
THURSDAY - Chicken-fried steak with gravy, hash brown potatoes, beets, broccoli, pineapple-cheese salad, chocolate cake.

FRIDAY - Fish fillets, corn grits with cheese, brussels sprouts, jellied tomato salad, peach cobbler, French bread.

There are miniature kangaroos that are no bigger than rabbits.

More recipes for local cookbook needed this week

The cookbook project benefitting the Deaf Smith County unit of the American Cancer Society is in its final stages before being submitted for printing.
 According to Charlotte Clark, board member of the local unit, over 200 recipes have been received from local contributors but several more are needed. "If 50 more recipes are turned in by the end of this week, the cookbooks will be less expensive to buy," said Clark.
 Categories needing more contributions are the soup and salad sections, appetizers, and memorial section.

Recipes may be sent to Clark at Box 504, Hereford, Tx. 79045 Rt. 3, (Phone 276-5601) or at Deaf Smith General Hospital, 801 E. 3rd St., Hereford, (Phone 364-2141).

Registration for summer term Thursday

Summer school registration will be held in the Hereford High School cafeteria from 7-9 p.m. Thursday.
 The classes, to begin June 5, will be offered by Amarillo College and the Hereford Independent School district and will count towards college credit.
 Summer classes available at the AC Hereford Extension include: freshman composition I on Tuesday/Thursday evenings from 7 to 9:45; masterworks of English literature, same evenings and time; government of Texas and the U.S. same evenings and time; and history of the U.S. II, Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9:45.

'SPRUCE GOOSE' NOW ON DISPLAY
 LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - The famed "Spruce Goose," the legendary all-wood flying boat designed and produced by the late Howard Hughes, is now a popular Long Beach tourist attraction, notes Travel Agent magazine.
 The gargantuan flying boat - with a 319-foot, 11-inch wingspan - was designed to transport World War II troops across the Atlantic safely above menacing Nazi U-boats but made only one test flight at about 70 feet for some 1,000 yards.
 The aircraft now sits in a 700-foot diameter structure described as the world's largest clearspan aluminum dome, according to the publication.

Reception for Galley, Rape Thursday

A retirement reception will honor Lester H. Rape and Orval R. Galley Thursday from 3-5 p.m. in the local Texas Employment Commission located at 403 W. 7th St.
 Rape is currently serving as manager of the commission and Galley is an employment interviewer.
 The public is invited to the reception and open house.
 The Senate voted 92-3 in 1973 to confirm Gerald R. Ford as vice president, succeeding Spiro T. Agnew.

Meat inspectors do good job, generally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal inspectors generally are doing a good job protecting the nation's meat and poultry supplies, except in a few problem areas, according to an internal report by the Agriculture Department's own auditors.

The probe involved 132 plants to evaluate the management of federal meat and poultry inspection programs by the department's Food Safety and Inspection Service. Auditors also checked operations at the agency's national office, all five regional offices and two of its 27 area offices.

"We found that, generally, FSIS had been effective in fulfilling its mission of assuring that the nation's meat and poultry supply was wholesome and unadulterated," the report said. "However, we did identify areas of concern which need attention by FSIS management."

For example, the report said the agency lacked the authority to impose "appropriate and meaningful sanctions" against plants that violate federal standards, except for extreme cases.

"As a result, a few plants maintained only minimal levels of sanitation," the report said. "Many producers (plants) repeatedly marketed animals containing illegal levels of drug residues, and some manufacturers (of food products) did not provide full and accurate distribution information to aid in recalls of adulterated products."

The audit was sent last Sept. 26 to the inspection agency by the department's Office of Inspector General but was not made public at the time. A copy of the report was provided The Associated Press upon request.

Although the plants reviewed included both meat and poultry operations, large and small, the report did not identify them by name or location. Many of the types of problems and violations have been noted by private groups, whistleblowers and others.

Recent hearings have been held in Congress into the status of USDA food inspection operations and the rate of contamination by bacteria and pesticides, and more are planned.

"During our plant visits, we identified problems with the maintenance of structural fixtures, sanitation of equipment and control of condensation (water)," the report said. "In over half the plants reviewed, inspectors had not exercised adequate control over the use and storage of chemicals and pesticides."

The report added: "In over 40 percent of the plants, we identified one or more instances where condemned ... products had not been controlled to ensure that they would not re-enter the food chain."

Auditors said they found more deficiencies in large poultry slaughter plants than in the large red meat plants. And there was a relatively low rate of sanitation problems in "small processing plants with simple operations."

The USDA agency is responsible for inspecting more than 7,000 meat and poultry plants across the country, in every state and territory, the report said. In 1985, inspectors examined more than 120.5 million head of livestock and 4.8 billion chickens and other fowl, plus more than 66.4 billion pounds of processed red meat products and 53.1 billion pounds of poultry meat products.

According to the report, the inspecting agency, FSIS, responded favorably to the findings and recommendations, except for suggesting that proposals for some changes be referred to policy officials at a higher level.

In a letter included in the report, FSIS administrator Donald L. Houston agreed that some legislative changes would be required, including greater authority for cracking down on wayward plants, which often continue operating for years before current administrative procedures are exhausted.

Houston also noted that FSIS had already sought to revise federal law which requires meat and poultry to be under continuous federal inspection.

"If the statutory requirements are amended and increased discretionary authority becomes a reality, we intend to consider a reduced frequency of inspection in small processing plants with simple operations as one of the first steps in implementing the authority," Houston said.

After Houston wrote the letter last September, the 99th Congress in its final hours passed the Processed Products Inspection Improvement Act, which gives USDA greater discretion in allocating inspectors in processing plants — a step away from the historic practice of continuous inspection.

The new law, however, related only to plants that turn out processed meat and poultry products. Continuous inspection is still required at slaughter plants, but this is being questioned too.

According to the auditors, a selective, non-continuous system for inspecting cattle, hogs, sheep and poultry as they move through the plant would work as well and help save money.

"We believe that with a risk-based, statistical approach to the inspection process, FSIS could maintain or increase the current level of consumer protection and be in a better position to effectively respond to potential budget reductions," the report said.

Small zebu cow may be more productive than larger animal

TANLEON, Mexico (AP) — A university researcher who has developed a "compact cow" is trying to prove that smaller is better for milk and meat production.

Jose Manuel Berruecos' compact cow is a zebu, but it is one-half to one-third the size of a normal zebu, a bovine of Asian origin.

Berruecos, chairman of veterinary medicine at the National Autonomous University of Mexico, claims his 30 diminutive zebus are more efficient per acre than normal-sized cattle for milk and meat production.

"One normal zebu needs roughly 2½ acres to maintain it," said Berruecos, speaking at the ranch in the north central state of San Luis Potosi where the animals have been bred. "The same extension of land can support 10 small cows (zebuz)."

The zebu, recognized by a large fleshy hump over the shoulders and loose skin under the head, is valued for its resistance to heat, disease and insects.

According to experiments conducted by Berruecos and ranch owner Angel Castrillon in this arid, tropical area, the compact cow proved itself 200 to 300 percent more efficient in milk and meat production.

Curiosity played a part in the project to produce a compact cow.

"I was interested in finding the lower limits of zebu's range," said Berruecos.

The compact cow weighs about 350 pounds, while a regular zebu averages 1,100 pounds.

Berruecos said the present herd of compact cows should increase from 30 to several hundred within 1½ years by implanting embryos into ordinary cows.

Land Bank offer may boost purchases

COLLEGE STATION — A new long-term loan program offered by the Federal Land Bank of Texas should encourage new purchases of agricultural real estate and help strengthen declining land values in the state, says Dr. Danny Klinefelter, economist-management with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

On May 1, the Land Bank began offering 10-year fixed interest rate real estate loans. These loans are match-funded by 10-year securities purchased by the Land Bank at the time the loans are made, Klinefelter explains.

The loans will convert to the bank's variable rate at the end of the 10 years. The current interest rates on these loans are 8½ percent for farm loans and 9½ percent for farm related businesses and rural home loans, he adds.

Borrowers must qualify under the Land Bank's usual credit standards and use the money only for new land purchases, Klinefelter says.

With $2.38 billion in loans outstanding, the Federal Land Bank is Texas' largest agricultural lender. Loans are made and services by the Federal Land Bank Associations located throughout the state.

CLASS OF '87

Congratulations,

Hereford High graduates!

Dale West is the Hereford High Class of 1987 valedictorian with a grade point average of 105.3889, and Shyla Gerk is the salutatorian with an average of 104.7.

West, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe West, was named in April as a National Merit Scholar. West plans to will enter the honors program for liberal arts study at the University of Texas at Austin.

While at HHS, West was president of his junior and senior classes, an officer and competitor in Future Farmers of America and in Key Club. He was on the school physics academic team, was the DAR Good Citizen honoree and held membership in the National Honor Society.

Gerk, daughter of Ray Gerk and Carol Gerk, is an accomplished musician seated in all-state band and orchestra.

She has been active in the HHS Student Council and in the National Honor Society. She was the recipient of NHS scholarship and a UIL Scholar Award.

The averages are over 100 because of extra points given for honors classes. Only academic credits are averaged. West took 36 credits and Gerk had 30 in their high school careers.

Below and on the following two pages are the honor graduates for the Hereford High Class of 1987.

The largest watermelons

This watermelon was shipped to the Kiwanis Club of Little Rock, Ark. In 1926 sixty members could only consume about two thirds of it. The balance went to the colored wetters. The largest melon grown by Edgar Laseier, weighing 14 1/4 lbs., was not shipped. It was the 1926 prize winner and saved for seed. Watermelon Festivals are held annually in Hope, Arkansas. Memories of Turner by a Texas grower. And so it went down through the years with competition getting heavier and heavier. The climax of all this glorious industry coming in 1985 with 10-year old Jason Bright growing a 280 pounder - a world champion - on the Rocky Mound farm near Hope. This feat definitely put Hope on the map as the "town to beat" in melon competition, and this summer local and out-of-town growers are hoping to do just that.

"I really feel melons will get bigger than the current champion," said Smith. "The 280-pounder will be Turner's 'Jumbo' in 1980 was highly published by the Arkansas Gazette, but, according to Lloyd Bright, Turner's favorite melon weighed 185 pounds and was sent by the City of Hope to the famous Arkansas actor, Dick Powell. Powell, in the 1930s, was a danger Hollywood leading man, having Hollywood leading man, having

Missouri acts to ban hazing

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bills to outlaw hazing by college fraternities and to change how school sporting incidents were investigated were passed by the House and sent to Gov. John Asbeck Thursday. Under the hazing bill, it would be a crime punishable by up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine to engage in any activity that recklessly endangered

Hundreds of deaths predicted

CHICAGO (AP) — As Americans take to the roads for the Memorial Day weekend, authorities warned against drinking and driving and the National Safety Council estimated that between 400 and 500 people may die in traffic accidents. Between 18,000 and 23,000 people may suffer disabling injuries over the holiday weekend, which officially begins at 6 p.m. local time today and ends at midnight local time Monday, the council said. During last year's Memorial Day weekend, 485 people died and 20,300 suffered major injuries. An estimated 170 fatalities would occur over an average two-day weekend, said Stephen Dearing, a traffic engineer for the council, adding that he didn't have statistics for a typical three-day weekend. "We're urging people to use their safety belts in case other drivers lose control," said Fred Ranko, the traffic safety manager for the Chicago-based council. Ranko also urged motorists to obey the speed limits and maintain a safe following distance on the highways. The American Automobile Association-Chicago Motor Club estimated that some 24 million drivers may take to the road nationwide over the holiday weekend, which marks the start of the summer travel season. State police were gearing up for increased traffic.

STAR TIME

All city offices will be closed on Monday in observance of Memorial Day. Monday's garbage will be picked up on Tuesday. Tuesday's garbage will be picked up on Wednesday.

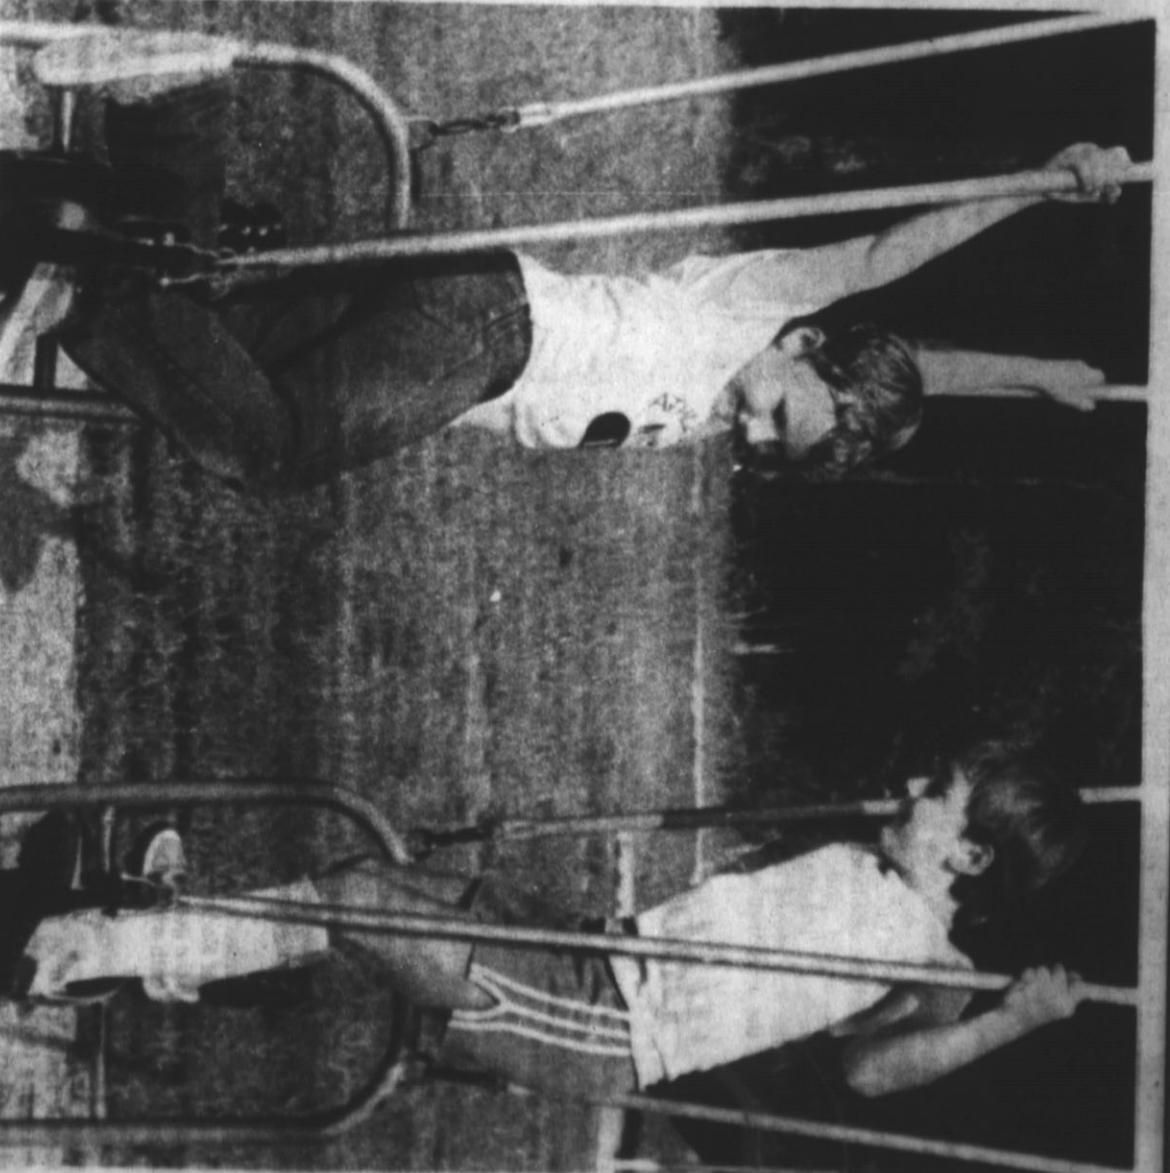

The Hope Vets Club will be reorganized at a meeting at 7 p.m. on May 28 in Hope City Hall. The Hope Vets Club is a community 4-H project. It is open to anyone 18 years of age or older in Hempstead County who is interested in learning more about horses. Ownership and showing of a horse is not required for membership. Those who cannot attend the May 28 meeting, may call the Extension Office in the Hempstead County Courthouse, 777-5771.

A summer reading festival, sponsored by the Hope Junior Auxiliary, will be held at the Hempstead County Library, the program, "Good Books... Good Times... and You" is for children in grades one through six. Registration will be from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday, June 1 at the library. A reading activity program will be held each Monday, June 8 through July 6 from 1 to 2 p.m. On July 6, a party will be given for all children who participated, and certificates will be awarded. Prizes will be given to the child in each grade level that read the most books.

Officers for the seven men's and women's social clubs at Church's Baptist University have been selected for the 1987 fall semester. Randy Cox of Millard Springs is vice-president for the Kappa Chi men's club. Russ Garner of Hope is chairman for Sigma Alpha Sigma; Tammy Keaster of Nashville is historian for Gamma Phi women's club; Sharyn Cooper of Hope is treasurer for Chi Delta women's club. The clubs at OBU seek to promote school spirit by sponsoring both formal and informal gatherings, parties, and campus and community-related activities.

Hangin' around

Mike Leslie, 8, left, and Merry Turner, 9, were just hanging around on the swings behind Hope's Medical Park Hospital Thursday afternoon while Turner's parents visited patients in the hospital. Both boys are from Hope.

First of the 'Big Melon' growers

By LINDY WILDER
One of the giants in the watermelon industry in Hope passed away May 14, but his memory lingers on. Famous as one of the major growers of big watermelons, Alfred B. Turner, known to his many friends as A.B. Turner, produced a record melon known nationally in 1980 as "Jumbo," which helped promote Hope as the watermelon capital of the world.

Turner, who passed away in Hope at 88 years old, is part of the colorful history which included lavish melon festivals and parades back in the days when a 140-pound melon was considered a "whopper." In fact, Turner gained local fame in 1926 for growing a specimen weighing in at 141 1/4 pounds. It was the largest melon shipped that year, and was sent to the Kiwanis Club of Little Rock. "Turner was a wonderful guy and had a good family," said Edner Smith of Hope, Smith who started in the melon business about 30 years ago, recalls fondly back in 1987 how Turner was producing some of the biggest specimens of the day. The grower melons in Rocky Mound, about a mile from where Ivan and Lloyd Bright have grown their big melons, Turner generated a lot of interest because he would always come up with the big ones, and he sold them locally," said Smith. "Those were great days," said the 58-year-old Smith. "I remember when I was a boy how the big growers would come to town. Turner always marked the weight of his melon on the fruit, and I remember

Folkways course is offered

The Institute for Regional Studies at Ouachita Baptist University, Arkadelphia, is sponsoring a summer academic program at Hope, Arkansas, which is celebrating the history and culture of southeastern Arkansas. The name of the course is "Folkways of the Arkansas Bad River Region," and it will be taught by Dr. Tom Green, associate professor of anthropology at OBU. Students registered for the course will attend classes in the evenings in one of the buildings at OBU in Washington. During the summer, presentations from OBU will feature on history, literature, music, and art of the region. In the afternoon, various field trips will be made to historical sites and to craft demonstrations. Students will learn to construct corn cobs with a traditional basket-making technique called "bushel-bushel" corn cobs. They will also learn to make traditional Arkansas regional folk art at OBU Washington. The course is a summer program. Registration is open to three types of students. High school students may enroll. Adults may enroll any one or more weeks and receive up to four continuing education units per week of attendance. College students (graduates and undergraduates) must attend all four weeks for up to six hours of college credit in any one of the following combinations: 1) three hours history and three hours English; 2) the hours history; 3) the hours English.

The colors of subject matter with determination special studies arranged by the direction of the project. The course will be offered in June, with registration to be offered through pre-registration forms available at OBU, or by direct registration at either the Ouachita Baptist University or the Old Courthouse at Prairie, Washington, Arkansas. For more information, contact Dr. Tom Green, P. O. Box 208, Arkadelphia, Ark. 72001 (telephone phone 265-0222, ext. 222; teletype phone 265-0222).

one time I put my hand over the weight to hide it while the men were making wagers about how much Turner's melon weighed. "It was like that in those days, and they offered prize money for the winners," Smith added. By 1980, world champion specimens had been grown in Hope by Turner, Edgar Laseier, Hugh Laseier, and others. These growers were awarded premiums of $200 by local businessmen for each record melon grown. Turner's "Jumbo" was surpassed by a larger Arkansas grown by the Harshens family of Arkadelphia. Then Hope lost the title, but not for long. O.D. Middlebrooks brought in a record melon in 1958, but this too was soon topped by an 185-pounder melon on the fruit, and I remember

Litigow in sad 'Baby Girl Scott'

NEW YORK (AP) — John Litigow is such a sympathetic figure in "Baby Girl Scott" on CBS this Sunday, you'll want to climb through the screen and hug the immature kid who is meant to him in so small a space.

In town recently for an encore appearance as host of "Saturday Night Live," Litigow took time out from thinking comedy to talk about his number role as the anguished father of a premature infant in the two-hour, made-for-television movie.

Litigow and Mary Beth Hurt are tragic, expected parents until their baby is born three months early, weighing only 1 1/2 pounds. The critically underdeveloped girl is rushed to a state-of-the-art neonatal care unit and is kept alive on machines.

As the baby's condition worsens, more procedures are tried. The parents struggle against guilt before deciding it would be better to let the baby die.

Makes no mistake, this is a message movie. References to pictures on the hospital wall of healthy babies who started out just as they are the only attempts at eye-handling.

And while realism would seem to allow a tiny bit of bleak humor, to wit, "The Egg," a play about the parents of a severely handicapped child, "Baby Girl Scott" is unrelentingly sad. Litigow thinks people will want to watch anyway.

Get out your tissues boxes. "I think people like to watch human drama, and this is unusually good human drama," he said. "People are so familiar with the clinical syndrome-of-the-week television movies. What I think is so good about this one, it's such an intense story of these characters. Their story kind of transcends the subject."

"People love to be made to cry. You don't think of 'Terms of Endearment' as a cancer movie, for instance."

Litigow was nominated for an Oscar for "Terms of Endearment," in which he played the good-hearted Nebraska banker with whom Doctors Winger had an affair.

He was also nominated for an Oscar for his role as the translucent former football star in "The World According to Garp," in which Hurt played Garp's wife.

He has played wretched dad guys in "Shogun" and "The Adventures of Buckaroo Banzai Across the Eighth Dimension." He was the irritated preacher who doused the teen-agers in "Footloose." In a movie due out in June, he plays an average guy whose family plays up with a creature called "Barry."

"I'm not allowed to tell you what exactly it is. I'll give you a hint... Said the 6-foot-actor. "He makes me look like (mildly) actor) Billy Barry."

In "Baby Girl Scott," Litigow is nice-guy Neal, a small-business man

African safari

Hope Rotarians were treated to a slide show by Larry Barton (above) at their regular meeting Thursday noon at Western Sizzlin. Barton showed his photos from a recent photographic safari to Kenya, Africa. He described Kenya as a country about the size of Texas, located on the African equator, with a population of more than 25 million people. He saw hundreds of species of wild game and birds on the two-week photographic excursion.

Wendy does more guilt than Neil, though. After the doctors recommended additional, painful procedures to try to keep the deteriorating baby alive — the doctors insist premature infants "have no memory of pain" — Wendy and Neil go to a lawyer. He asks Wendy if she's ready to face the inevitable question: "What kind of a mother would her child be?"

Byers receives SAU scholarship

Paula Renee Byers (left), a 1987 graduate of Hope High School, was awarded an academic scholarship to Southern Arkansas University in Magnolia. She is the daughter of Roy and Nell Byers, and a member of the Beta Club and National Honor Society. SAU annually awards academic scholarships paying tuition to students chosen on the basis of grade point average and either ACT scores or class standing.

Have A Garage Sale And Make Some Fast Cash!

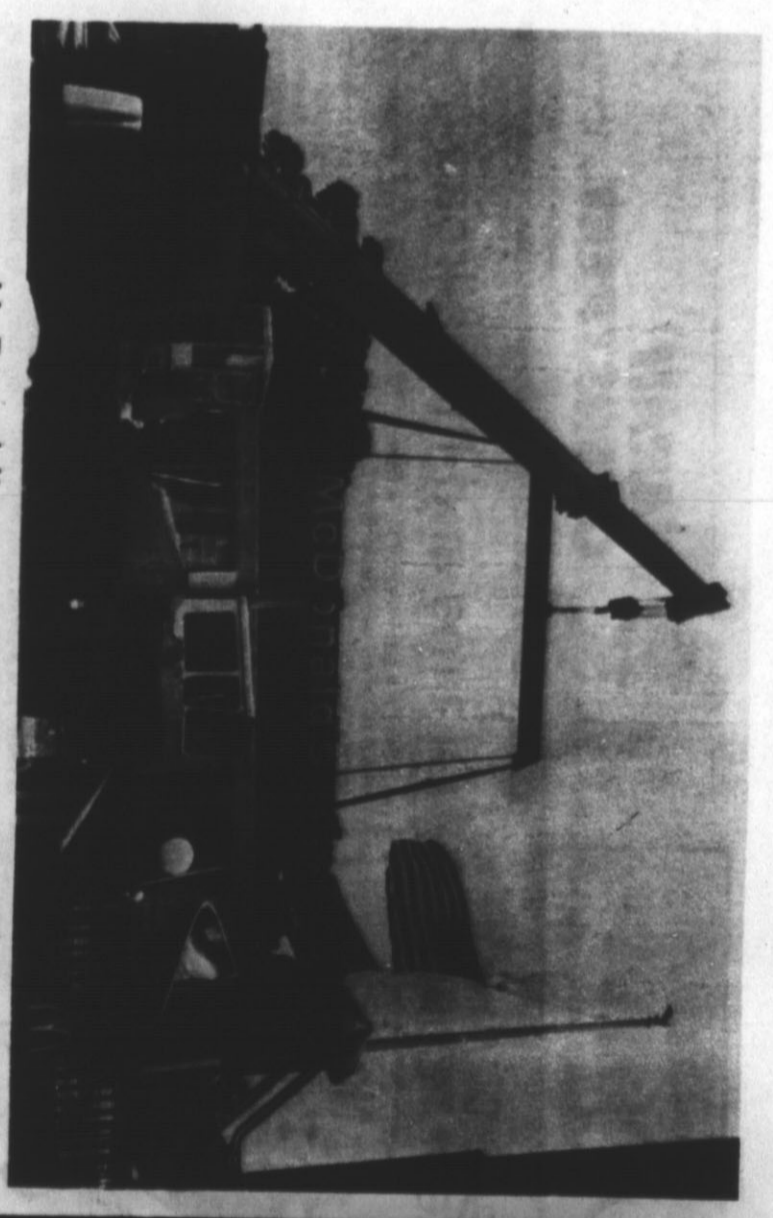

Want to clear out those unused items taking up space in your basement attic or garage? Want to make a handful of dollars while you're at it? Have a garage sale! With a little pre-planning, you can turn your furniture, appliances, clothing, sporting goods, and other household items into cash. You no longer use into cold hard cash you can use! Here's some tips on how to make your sale a success.

Have a three day sale. Day one for professional bargain hunters, day two for amateurs and browsers and day three for price slashing to clear out everything. Be sure to have plenty of change and small bills on hand. Have an adding machine or cash box, pencils, paper and stock around. Display your goods in neat, aisle-like rows. Hang clothes on a rack or line and have a mirror for those who want to try the clothes on. Notify prospective buyers in advance - call the classifieds and let all of the community know about your sale.

McDonald's expansion underway

McDonald's of Hope is adding more than 400 square feet to the inside dining area and the crane pictured above literally picked up the roof and moved it forward to accommodate the added floor space, according to Don Hermon, owner of the Hope operation. "We are in the process of completely redoing the dining room and are creating a new look," he said. Plans call for the expansion of the playground in front of the restaurant to the left and right with additional outside seating, he added. Hermon said he expects the project to be completed within the next two weeks.

Improvisation with a romantic's harmony

NEW YORK (AP) — As he walked off the stage at Carnegie Hall after a recent solo performance, Michael Petruccianni kicked up his right heel in a triumphant, Champligneque gesture. It was a moment with a father's gliding: A young French pianist, son of a jazz musician, overcomes adversity to triumph in his solo debut at Carnegie Hall. The little gesture was the dramatic act that capped it.

Petruccianni was born with osteogenesis imperfecta — "glass bone disease" — which stunted his growth and made him prone to frequent bone fractures. Today, he stands 3 feet tall and walks with the aid of braces. Like other jazz musicians, he has paid his dues. At 24 years old, he is a veteran. A child prodigy, he made his professional debut at age 13 and recorded his first album three years later. Ten other albums have followed.

At home, his father was playing jazz. Petruccianni remembers the records that influenced him as a child: Errol Garner, Bill Evans, Wes Montgomery, Oscar Peterson, Art Tatum.

At age 14, Petruccianni played with trumpeter Clark Terry in an outdoor jazz festival in Clonca, France. A short time later he quit his classical studies and devoted all his attention to jazz. At 16 he recorded his first album, "Pishah."

With his fame spreading in Europe, he decided to come to the United States two years later. Shortly after arriving, he looked up saxophonist Charles Lloyd, then in retirement in Big Sur, Calif.

Petruccianni settled in Big Sur, coaxed Lloyd out of retirement and played with him for three years. Then he moved to New York. In the past year, Petruccianni has recorded two critically acclaimed albums, "Pishah" and "Power of Three," the last with Jim Hall on saxophone.

Students attend HERO confab

A few brickbats for the Star

Dear Editor: I threw that because those are the two papers I purchase regularly. I do so on occasion to pick up papers in Prescott, Nash-ville, Magnolia, Ark. or Charlottesville, Sulphur Springs, Mt. Pleasant, New Boston, Texas, or Haskell, Broken Bow, Ok. and other cities in the Arkansas Valley. Would any of these make for better comparisons? You can buy any of these papers from the stand for less than 25 cents. I could not find an answer to my main objection of my first letter in your response. That being the price of your paper! I can get the Gazette from the stand for 40 cents a month and not get a Sunday edition. Your response stated that I could get home delivery for 12.5 cents. If you can deliver the Star at my current Texas address on the same day it's published for 12.5 cents, I'll subscribe. I do have no doubts about day delivery from the stand. I know my vending machines (they are

Angry wife is eager

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago my husband had an affair with a young co-worker. I'll call Debbie. Debbie was married and had a small child. When I learned of this affair, I was ready to throw my husband out. Well, since then, my husband has done a complete turnaround and has never been so attentive and loving in all the 27 years of our marriage.

Debbie was "let go" from her job. Her husband has divorced her — keeping the child, the house, etc. Debbie has recently married a man about five years her junior. He is the son of a very good friend of mine. She's a kind, gentle and a highly principled woman.

My question: Should I tell my friend what kind of no-good tramp her son married? My blood boils when I recall how that little slut came into my home, pretending to be my friend when all the while she was playing house with my husband.

CAN'T FORGET

DEAR CANT: Now, why on earth would you want to hurt your good friend by telling her that her son had married a "no-good tramp"? She'd be devastated to hear such shocking news about her new daughter-in-law. Let go of your anger and don't try to punish Debbie further. She's already paid dearly for the affair.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a single guy in a small town who has trouble with women in general. I just can't seem to find one who wants to go out with me. The women outnumber the guys here, and when I approach one politely and try to make conversation with her, she tells me to get lost. It's left me with a bad attitude toward women in general. I get frustrated and upset, so I stay at

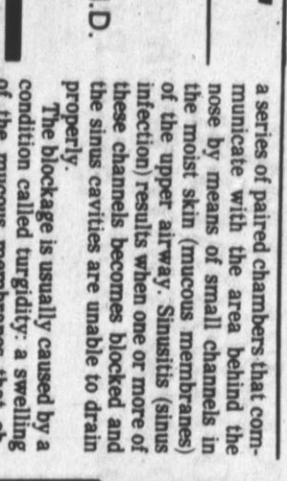

LOW ON FUNDS

DEAR LOW: Don't assume anything. And don't ask a gentleman if he plans on paying for your baby sitter. A sensible man should offer to pay the baby sitter if he suspects that it will be a financial hardship on the lady to do so, and if he can better afford it. After a few dates, both parties should be able to talk candidly about such matters.

DEAR ABBY: As a single mother who has just recently begun to date again, I am wondering if it is appropriate to assume that the gentleman who has asked me out will pay for my baby sitter.

As my finances are very limited, not knowing could be the deciding factor as to why I may have to turn down the date. Do I dare to just ask him?

DR. GOTT

Genital warts can be treated

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can be done about genital warts? I am male, 24, and single, and have refrained from sex to hide my problem. Should I see a general practitioner or a specialist? What procedure should I expect?

DEAR READER: Genital warts are skin eruptions caused by a type of virus that multiplies within the outer skin layer and is spread by sexual contact.

Genital warts can be surgically removed, frozen or burned off. There are several compounds, including salicylic acid, that can be applied to warts to cause them to disappear or drop off. In my opinion, genital warts should be removed by urologists, gynecologists, dermatologists or surgeons, depending on the sex of the patient and the number (and location) of the warts.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Every time I get a cold, it ends up as a sinus infection. I'm afraid to go out in public and breathe the air, since I fear I'll catch another cold or flu. Could something be causing this?

DEAR READER: The sinuses are

Sunday, May 24, 1987

You will make several constructive changes in the year ahead that will prove to benefit you materially. They won't be easy to swing, but you'll be prepared to diligently work them through.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you use your talents properly today, the results should be profitable. Be imaginative, enterprising and resourceful; you have what it takes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be happiest today if you associate with companions who are both physically and mentally active. Slow movers or dullards may bore you to tears.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An objective of importance can be achieved today, provided you have the tenacity to go after it. Set your sights upon your goals and proceed resolutely.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your method of expression today will capture the imagination of your listeners, especially if you speak about your newest interests.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You won't be deterred today, because today once you set your mind on a particular goal, but be sure the target you're aiming for is worthwhile.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Today, your close friends will have greater respect for you because you have the courage of your convictions. You won't be afraid to make hard decisions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A substantial portion of your efforts today may be devoted to helping others sort out their problems. You won't find it too trying, however.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Conditions in general look harmonious for you today. Should something disturbing occur, you'll be able to cope without too much difficulty.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Try to spend time today with a pet project, or puttering around doing something you enjoy. You'll find it both relaxing and gratifying.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your energies are apt to be directed today toward social events instead of industrious things. It's a good choice.

Your Birthday

Monday, May 25, 1987

Something you've always wanted but felt was beyond your means could come into your possession in the year ahead. Someone who will play a big role in bringing this about.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Usually you're not overly self-conscious, but today you may be reluctant to let someone you secretly admire know how you feel. Major changes are ahead for Gemini in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Bertice Bede Osol, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Companions will react favorably toward you today because they'll know that what you wish for yourself, you also wish for them. No wonder you're popular.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An objective that you've set for yourself is the greatest challenge is to perform today. Ignore appearances and go for it. Ignore your self-consciousness and you will profit from the experience of another. What you learn could apply to your future affairs.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The financial wherewithal to acquire something you've long wanted is being worked out today. You may have to do a little juggling, however.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) A situation that you've been wanting for yourself looks like it can be worked out today. You may have to do a little juggling, however.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Your ambitions will be turned to a higher pitch today, and you will profit from the experience of another. Consideration and thanks spell success.

Shareholders default

DALLAS (AP) — The three largest shareholders of insolvent FirstSouth Federal Savings Association of Arkansas have defaulted on $4.9 million in notes to the thrift for raw land in Colton County, a real estate research firm says.

The shareholders are Dallas developers George Watson and A. Starke "Tracy" Taylor III and Jerry Grigby of Arkansas.

The federal regulators now controlling the portfolio of the defunct FirstSouth, headquartered at Pine Bluff, could take possession of the properties through foreclosure June 2. The Dallas Morning News reported today.

The three former FirstSouth stockholders represented more than a third of a record dollar volume of defaulted notes in Colton County, according to the research firm FLS-Roddy.

The largest default was Watson & Taylor Realty Co.'s $94.2 million note to FirstSouth for 1,441 acres in Frisco. FLS-Roddy said.

The realty affiliate bought the land in June 1984, court records show.

When the thrift was declared insolvent in December 1986, Watson, Taylor and Grigby, plus their family members, had a combined stock ownership of more than 30 percent.

The Federal Asset Disposition Association now controls the FirstSouth portfolio, officials said.

The association is a federally appointed agency that liquidates assets of failed thrifts. After closing FirstSouth, regulators opened a new institution in its place, Riverside Federal Savings and Loan.

"We are negotiating with FADA," Taylor said Thursday. "The deal hasn't been worked out yet."

Grigby, former president of First Capital Property Group, defaulted on $30 million in notes to FirstSouth, either individually or through the affiliate.

He defaulted on a $6.7 million note executed in June 1985 to buy a 56-acre tract in McKinney, according to court documents.

NFL to quicken games

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — NFL owners, seeking to quicken the tempo of games, have approved the second round of a 6-second limit between plays.

The experiment will be tried during the first three preseason games, and if owners and coaches like the results, it probably will be approved for the rest of the season, said Tom Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys and chairman of the NFL Competition Committee.

Schramm made the announcement Thursday at the conclusion of the owners' two-day meeting. He said Commissioner Pete Rozelle would poll owners after the preseason trial to determine if the 6-second clock should be adopted for the rest of the year.

In other actions, Rozelle said owners indicated they will follow the lead of the San Francisco 49ers in implementing a minority coaching internship program. Under the plan, an NCAA Division I coach will be invited to train for a monthlong instructional program in NFL coaching techniques.

Also, owners gave Rozelle the authority to return the NFL's college draft to a two-day format, which the commissioner said he would implement beginning next year.

In the experiment, teams will have 40 seconds from the time officials whistle the previous play

Burns says competition tougher

ATLANTA (AP) — George Burns, a 13-year veteran of the PGA Tour, says the competition is much tougher today than it used to be.

"The kids today are better, stronger and are taking care of themselves better," Burns said Friday after shooting an 8-under-par 64 for the first round lead in the $600,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

Burns posted his score early in the day, and withstood a horrid birdie-embellish finish by one of those youngsters, 23-year-old Davis Love III, who shot a 65.

"They play for keep," Burns said of the younger players. "They're mentally tough."

Burns had no reason to participate in the event on the hilly, 7,007-yard, par 71 Atlanta Country Club course.

No one should have been surprised at Love's effort. He was playing on the course he grew up on when his father was the club pro at the Atlanta layout.

"This is a total surprise to me," said Burns, who had missed the cut in four of his six previous tournaments.

"I've never played well here," added Burns, who got his fourth career victory at the Andy Williams Open earlier this season.

Conditions were ideal — overcast 80-degree weather with no wind. Eighty-eight players broke par and 18 others in the field of 158 shot even par.

The field faced a second-round cut today to the low 70 scorers and their.

Burns had a steady, bogey-free round, scoring three of his eight birdies in the 15-25-foot range and pitting in from 30 yards away for another.

Love finished his 65 by sinking a 50-foot eagle putt on the 46-yard 18th, his second eagle of the day. He also eagled the 550-yard, par-5 No. 8 when he sank a 25-foot putt and missed a 5-4-footer that would have given him another eagle on the 56-yard 11th.

"The eagles definitely made the day," Love said.

Five other players were two shots off the pace at 66, including the Redskins brothers, Lanny and Bobby.

Also at 66 were Canada's Dave Barr, left-hander Russ Cochran and Leonard Thompson.

A true champ

Foye Muldrew, a senior member of the Ludlow track team, won the 400-meter dash of the Meet of Champions in Hot Springs Wednesday. Her time in the 400 was :57.6.

Muldrew was also a member of the 400-meter relay team that went to the meet as alternates, but didn't get to run. She was a four-year member of the track team and played for the Ladycats in basketball as well.

Ellis needs minutes for Sonics

SEATTLE (AP) — "More minutes" is what the Seattle SuperSonics' Dale Ellis says he needs if his team is going to come from two games behind on Saturday to defeat the Los Angeles Lakers in the NBA Western Conference final.

The Sonics host Los Angeles in the third game of the best-of-seven series on Saturday, and in Game 4 on Monday.

Ellis is caught in something of a Catch-22. In the playoff games where he has had more than 22 shots and totaled more than 22 points, the Sonics are 6-0. They are 1-5 in the other six games.

For Ellis, the conclusion is obvious: more minutes mean more shots.

"I would like more shots. If my teammates are missing, I'd rather be taking those shots," he said. "I would rather be on the court than on the bench."

In the first game of the series, Ellis shot just 13 times to accumulate 11 points, and the Sonics went down 96-87. He had only 18 shots and 22 points in the second game, when the Sonics were defeated 113-104.

Ellis had previously been a centerpiece in the Sonics' surprising success in the playoffs, but he's tried to avoid discussing the issue of Seattle's over-reliance on him. Until now.

"I don't think there's any pressure on me to have good games, but I am disappointed in my performance during this series," he said. "I have to play better for us to have a chance."

But his opponents don't want to give him that chance. It seems the Lakers, like the Dallas Mavericks and Houston Rockets before them, have figured out curbing Ellis' time cuts down on his chances.

So it's not surprising that Ellis has met with foul problems early in his first half, cutting down on his playing time.

While the Sonics can look forward to playing on their home court at the Seattle Center Coliseum, the Lakers are counting on their 2-0 series lead to help carry them through the Sonics' home stand.

"Having the two games means they have to beat us four out of five (remaining games) and they've got to win the two games up there," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "So, I think it takes a little pressure off us."

Riley also is counting on the Lakers' playoff experience to give them the edge.

"We've been at this a long time," he said. "Experience is definitely a factor in the last four or five minutes. Our guys at that time are pretty patient and make the plays they have to make."

Anything can happen at Indy

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The cars berrle around the track at breakfast speeds, the roar of their finely tuned engines echoing throughout historic Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

First the sound is in front of you. Then you blink, and it is behind you. Then, just as quickly, it seems to be in front of you again, playing tricks with your ears. These low-slung, high-tech racing machines challenge your senses constantly, daring you to keep up with them.

When everything is going smoothly at Indy, when the green light is on and the cars are negotiating the straightaways and the turns safely, this place is fun. It's the country fair with cotton candy and caramel corn and cereals, happy-go-lucky crowd.

But when something goes wrong and cars find the wall, the way A.J. Foyt and Emerson Fittipaldi did in the final practice round Thursday, a pall falls over the Speedway. The roar of the engines is replaced, first by a gasp and then by silence, an eerie, empty silence that is terribly out of place in this carnival atmosphere.

Foyt's car suddenly lost its stability coming through the first turn. In an instant, it was spinning madly out of control, pieces of metal and three flying off in different directions, the machine's fate out of its driver's hands.

When his car finally stopped in the infield, Foyt jumped out with nothing more serious than a muscle cramp. He blamed himself for the mishap.

"I had a meeting with all my rookies (Davy Jones and Stan Fox will drive Foyt-owned cars Sunday) and told them, 'Don't be out there racing cars in traffic, and I turn around and do it myself. The car was running good, just a little loose. I was going to pull it in and I thought I'd see what the car does in dirty air, and it just took off.'"

The driver, of course, is the first one to know when he is losing control. It is not a wonderful moment.

"You feel disoriented, sad, frustrated," dejected Indy champion Bobby Rahal said. "You've got to be realistic to be successful as a race car driver. If you took every mechanical breakdown personally, you'd be in a white jacket somewhere. You can sit at there and be devastated, but you have to say to yourself, 'OK, there's a race next week.'"

For Foyt and Fittipaldi, that race still will be Sunday. Foyt's 30th consecutive start at Indy was preserved when it was decided that his car could be repaired in time to maintain its spot in the starting lineup.

Fittipaldi will drive a backup car from the rear of the grid.

There are 33 drivers in this race and you can get at least that many reasons for the trouble the drivers have had here this year.

Some say the new radial tires are less stable. Others tell you the punishingly dry, hot weather — Thursday was another scorcher — has turned the track skidding-slick with built-up rubber. There is a theory in every garage on Gasoline Alley.

Thankfully, Indy has enjoyed a good safety record lately, considering what goes on here each May. The last Speedway fatality was Gordon Smiley, who crashed during qualifying in 1982. He is the only death here in 14 years.

Azusa Pacific defends title

RUSSELLVILLE (AP) — Despite Azusa Pacific dropping the baton in the 400-meter relay and getting shut out of the hammer and javelin competitions, the coach of the defending NAIA track champions was not worried Thursday night.

Thursday was the first day of the NAIA outdoor track championships.

"We suffered a few setbacks tonight, but these kids have been through a lot before and we've overcome setbacks like this before," Azusa Coach Perry Pransman said.

He said Wayland Baggett and Praline View AAB both looked strong, but that Azusa had a school record in the long jump Thursday, second in the long four places in the men's decathlon after the first three of the men's decathlon.

Pransman said he expects the meet to go down to the wire.

There was some controversy late Thursday when the men's 10,000-meter race ended prematurely due to an official's error. Meet officials were to decide today how to score the race.

In the women's competition, seven-time defending champion Praline View and Wayland Baggett were quickly making it a two-team competition for the title, with both squads qualifying everybody they expected in the sprint.

Wayland did especially well in the long jump, won by its Corner Legion with a leap of 29 feet, 7 1/2 inches, and Wayland athletes also taking three other places in the event.

After the first four events, Wayland Baggett led the women with 23 points, followed by Praline View, Kearney State and Midland Lutheran in a three-way tie for second with 14 points each.

Vets from forgotten war building Korean memorial

EDITOR'S NOTE — Septha Memorial Day, as Vietnam veterans are increasingly accepted and honored by a more understanding society, some of those who fought in earlier ambiguous conflicts are working for similar recognition. Veterans of the Korean War hope to break ground next month for an international memorial.

By BOB DYORCZAK

PHILADELPHIA AP

Think of a limited, unobserved war operationally called a police action in a divided Asian country where U.S. troops helped a southern republic against communist-backed aggressors in the north.

Imagine 54,296 American dead, 4,177 missing in action and 200 unreturned prisoners of war. Add fiery airplanes, helicopters and formations of soldiers who came home without flag-waving parades or a fitting memorial to their sacrifice.

Yes, Korea. Veterans of the Korean War's nasty battles, mired in the mix-up in the public consciousness, are building a memorial so they will be remembered.

"The forgotten war was not Vietnam, but Korea. Any American who fought and died should have a better fate than to be forgotten," said ex-Marine Charles Edward "Mac" McCarran, a Philadelphia resident.

McCarran, a Philadelphia resident, is the driving force behind the Korean War Veterans Memorial. He has raised more than $1.5 million for the project.

The memorial will honor the 18 countries from the United Nations whose soldiers fought the North Korean and Chinese.

The memorial will honor 15 soldiers fighting in the snow. The score was 15 to 1 in the hands of the Chinese. The memorial will honor the 15 soldiers who were killed in the hands of the Chinese.

Steroid ring investigated

MIAMI AP — A University of Miami football strength coach has been implicated in a nationwide ring trafficking in illegal body-building steroids, but school officials doubt any of their players are involved with the drug.

Couch Pat Jacobs was among 34 people indicted in San Diego on Thursday for allegedly maintaining, smuggling and distributing 70 percent of the steroids illegally sold in the United States.

"We're stunned," Miami Athletic Director Sam Janovich said. "But I would be even more surprised to learn any of our student athletes are involved. I'm not ruling out that possibility, but we've tested and we don't have a major problem with steroids."

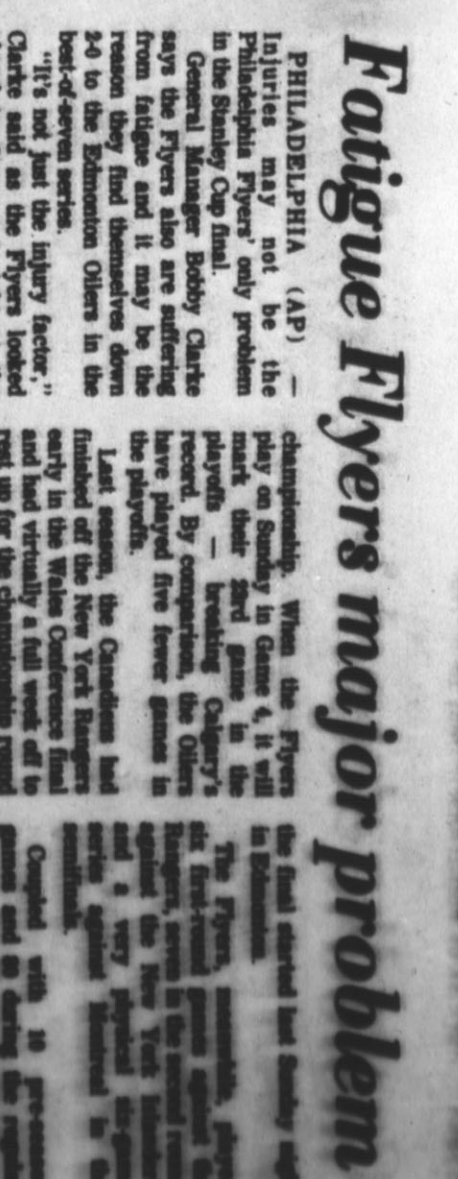

Jacobs was the only person in the indictment directly tied to college athletics, authorities said. He has been suspended from the athletic department pending the outcome of his case.

Customs agents arrested Jacobs on Thursday at his Miami apartment after seizing boxes of liquid and tablet steroids, hypodermic needles and a stack of cash marked "steroids," authorities said.

"These are steroids manufactured for use by veterinarians on animals to put more meat on them," said Customs spokesman Patrick O'Brien, adding the drugs were made at two laboratories in Tijuana, Mexico, and stamped with phony labels listing legitimate U.S. manufacturers.

Police seized the bulk of Jacobs' steroid supply and found a green university notebook that apparently lists customers' names, O'Brien said. He said university officials were cooperating in tracking down the names.

"He was a small-time guy who got caught in the wrong place at the wrong time," O'Brien said. "We have no reason to believe at this time that Jacobs was peddling the drugs on to athletes."

Fatigue Flyers major problem

PHILADELPHIA AP — Injuries may not be the Philadelphia Flyers' only problem in the Stanley Cup final.

General Manager Bobby Clarke says the Flyers also are suffering from fatigue and it may be the reason they find themselves down 2-0 to the Edmonton Oilers in the best-of-seven series.

"It's not just the injury factor," Clarke said as the Flyers looked ahead to Game 3 tonight at the Spectrum. "We've got to start looking at burnout."

Ironically, the Flyers find themselves in the same situation the Calgary Flames faced last year when they lost to Montreal in a five-game final.

Last season, the Flames were in a record 22 playoff games and were a third team when they met the Canadiens for the NHL championship.

This year, the Oilers had an easier early time reaching the final than the Flyers.

They played eight series against Los Angeles (five games), Vancouver (four) and Detroit (five) and had an extra day to rest before the final.

While the Philadelphia Flyers were in the Stanley Cup final, they were in the NHL Championship final.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR GOOD MANNERS.

Thou shalt be thyself

Good manners begin with a good sense of self. Unless you are true to yourself, you cannot be true to others. You are unique. Don't try to shape your personality to meet circumstances. Be natural, and the world will respect you for what you are.

Thou shalt say "Thank You"

Thanking others is a way of praising them and is one of the keys to having good manners. Send thank-you notes whenever someone does something nice for you, or telephone to express your gratitude. This simple act will help build lasting relationships. When someone gives you a compliment, the best response is a simple "thank you." A "don't forget" "Please," "Excuse me," and "You're welcome," which are other marks of good manners.

Thou shalt give compliments

A fundamental rule of good manners is to give. Think about what you can give to others, and remember that the most precious gifts cost nothing. When you meet someone, you can always think of a genuine compliment to give. A "Hello" or "How are you?" is not enough. You can also give your undivided attention and interest to others. You can be generous with words of praise, warm greetings, sympathy, love, or other good news.

Thou shalt not be boastful, arrogant or loud

Always exercise restraint and good taste. Your voice, your behavior and even your clothing should reflect unaccomplished elegance. Only a small person has no need for self-advertisement. Let your deeds speak for themselves.

Thou shalt listen before thou shalt speak

Respect for others is a prerequisite of good manners. Listening to others is a way to show respect. There is no worse company than a person that does not listen. Be genuinely interested in others. Hear their names, and encourage them to talk about themselves. Never interrupt. Look them in the eye, and listen carefully. The listener learns and thereby gains.

Thou shalt speak with kindness and caution

Before speaking to others, consider what effect your words will have. Pause and weigh your words carefully and say them with a quality of softness. A slip of the tongue can inflict needless hurt. Also, remember the language of the body (your posture, facial expression, hand movements) is as important as the language of words.

Thou shalt act and look your best

A gracious friend is never ruffled. Be a calm, happy influence in any stressful situation and maintain your composure. See humor whenever possible. Master self-control and have empathy for others. Always act your best with courtesy and politeness. Each day dress as if it were your only chance to shine. A smile should top your list of accessories. Your home, car and workplace should reflect your best. They should be tidy, neat and well organized. Table manners are important. Observe rules of proper conduct, such as not speaking with food in your mouth and not eating until the host has been seated. Eat slowly, enjoying each bite. Savor the moments when good friends, good conversation and good manners bring about the best life has to offer.

Good manners is not a typical subject students study in school, yet it may well be the most important skill they can learn for getting a job and succeeding in life.

For parents who feel their kids need better manners, Larry Evans may be able to help. He has surveyed the good manners and traits of successful people from Confucius to Emerson to modern times, and distilled the essence into the Ten Commandments for Good Manners. The key to these principles is their simplicity, yet they deal with the most important aspects of life.

Famous wildlife artist wasn't always a brain

WATSON, Wis. (AP) — British artist David Shepherd was herds of elephants, rabbit hares and alert birds in his campaign to save the world's wildlife.

It doesn't hurt that his paintings of these animals have won him the title of Master Wildlife Artist at the first annual Wildlife in Art exhibit at the Leigh Yawkey Woodson Art Museum here.

Or that he has been the subject of TV documentaries and has received the Order of the British Empire. Or that actor Jimmy Stewart owns his paintings.

Shepherd claims to have raised more than $1.5 million for wildlife conservation, mainly through the David Shepherd Charitable Foundation. An auction of two of his miniature paintings — 3 by 3 inches — in Zambia raised $16,000 for the "Save the Rhino Trust" in Lusaka.

The British Broadcasting Co. released a documentary on Shepherd and his work in 1972, entitled "The Man Who Loves Giants." Shepherd, who also spoke of the need for preserving the world's resources, met Shepherd when both were attending a missile launching at Cape Canaveral in 1970.

A railway buff and owner of the East Somerset Railway at Cannmore, Somerset, England, Shepherd was the subject of another TV film that told how he rescued two old locomotives and a railway coach from the Zambesi Savannah Railway in Zambia and took them 12,000 miles to England.

Shepherd, one of the show's 57 invited painters and sculptors from 11 foreign countries and the United States, said conservation of nature is being judged by the fact that wildlife art is probably winning acceptance from the critics as an art form.

Rizzo leads first round of tourney

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Golfers, unlike baseball players, don't take part in spring training. But don't let that fool you.

Rizzo, using the tournaments leading up to Thursday's first round of the LPGA Championship to lose her game, shot a 68 to take a 1-stroke lead before a downpour suspended play at the Jack Nicklaus Golf Center.

Playing in one of the first groups of the tee in the morning, Rizzo played under sunny skies and humid temperatures, then watched as a late afternoon thunderstorm ended play with 69 of the 144 players still on the course.

"I've been jockeying myself up for the last six weeks for this tournament," said Rizzo, who led Jane Crater by a shot, "I had been hitting the ball better than I'd been feeling."

So I set a goal for myself: Let's make the LPGA the goal and use the other tournaments as practice rounds.

The play worked as Rizzo, a 28-year-old Florida native with two victories in her five years on the tour, registered 18 one-putts on the four, birdied seven holes over the $200,000, par-72 Grady Course.

"I feel like I had swung up a lot of putts that dropped today," Rizzo said.

Rizzo birdied two of the first three holes by hitting 16-foot putts and

Catholic church's desire for unity is reaffirmed

ATLANTA (AP) — Amid recent questions about it, Catholicism's chief ambassador to other Christians is underscoring his church's "passion for unity" and acceptance of other denominations as part of his own way.

Cardinal Johannes Wilhelms, head of the Vatican's Secretariat for Christian Unity, visited several Eastern U.S. cities this month, emphasizing "substantial progress" toward the goal and Rome's commitment to it.

"Where there is grace there is union in Christ," he told more than 400 participants in the 24th annual National Workshop on Christian Unity in Atlanta. "All Christians' disciples are included in the church in Christ's own way. Whoever belongs to Christ belongs to the church."

In Washington, D.C., Wilhelms encouraged continued interchurch theological talks, saying they have produced "greater common insight," clearing away past mutual distortions and misunderstandings.

He said all the churches "can learn from each other."

Contry to signs seen by some of lagging Catholic concern for Christian unity, Wilhelms emphasized positions taken by the Second Vatican Council, which recognized other denominations as churches alongside Roman Catholicism.

In Atlanta, his stand was termed particularly significant in the present atmosphere by Brother

Jeffrey Gros, theology expert of the National Council of Churches, embracing most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations.

Gros said recent statements from other Vatican officials, including the doctrinal head, Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, have led some ecumenical leaders to believe Roman Catholicism was returning to views that it was the only true church.

But Wilhelms said the declaration of the Vatican II that the Christian church "subsists in" Catholicism, instead of being confined to it, proves it has widened its view to include other churches "in the body of Christ."

There are about 800 million Catholics worldwide, with about 52 million in the United States. There are about 600 million Protestants and Eastern Orthodox Christians worldwide, about 100 million in the United States.

Religion in the news

ADVANCE, N.C. (AP) — Singer Pat Boone says he would consider sitting in as host of the troubled "PTL Club" program if someone in authority at the television ministry convinced him he was needed.

"I don't see myself as a permanent host, but if I could step in awhile and help, and if the people that are running things wanted me to, I'd have to consider that," Boone said while practicing Thursday for a celebrity golf tournament in this western North Carolina town.

Last week, Boone told a Durham radio station that he hoped the ministry would not offer him the job as host. But he acknowledged discussing the possibility with the Rev. Jerry Falwell, who took over PTL in March after Jim Bakker resigned because of a sexual encounter with a church secretary.

A series of different hosts, including Falwell, have appeared on the show since Bakker's departure and the firing April 28 of his successor, Richard Dortch. Boone, who has appeared on the PTL show as a guest over the years, said if he were to be host, changes would be made.

"I'd like to see more entertainment, which is not to say that I shouldn't maintain a strong spiritual thrust," Boone said. "But I think when a group of people sit around on a couch and talk for an hour that's not very entertaining."

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Members of the Southern Baptist Alliance unanimously approved a constitution and bylaws but said they intended to stay in the Southern Baptist Convention — for now.

"We have no intention of leaving the convention as far as I'm concerned," said W. Henry Crouch, the alliance president, James C. Strickland, an alliance director.

"The sentiment is we do not want to be a new denomination," Strickland said. "But we will wait to see what circumstances dictate. We need to cling together for awhile and wait to see what's going to happen."

About 500 members of the alliance met in Raleigh Friday and set up their organization with little controversy. Crouch said that the group's newly adopted constitution mirrors those of the SBC.

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Conference of Christians and Jews has criticized a current Public Service TV documentary about the Mormons, claiming it lacks "balanced perspective" and misrepresents them as lacking respect for other faiths.

Jacqueline Weiler, NCCJ president, said the documentary, "Mormons: Missionaries to the World," "legitimately concentrates on young Mormons who had unpleasant missionary experiences, suggesting a sinister motivation" by the church.

She also said the documentary suggestions of Mormon disregard for other faiths "is out of keeping with the assessment" of the NCCJ, which knows firsthand that Mormon missionary training insists on respect for other religious commitments.

In Salt Lake City, Utah, Mormon headquarters also completed their two-year service involved only 2 percent, or 600 out of 30,000, and that half of that small number withdrew for health reasons.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Black Roman Catholics from across the country are holding a National Black Catholic Congress May 21-24 at the Catholic University of America to strengthen the church's ministries to blacks.

Sponsors include the nation's 11 black Catholic bishops, the National Black Catholic Clergy Caucus and the National Black Sisters Conference.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The design for the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum, dedicated to the millions slaughtered by the Nazis during World War II, calls for a hexagonal memorial connected to a five-story museum structure.

The design by architect James Ingo Freed of I.M. Pei and Partners in association with Noller Finegold and Alexander Inc., is "a masterpiece, world class," said William Lowenberg of San Francisco, a survivor of the Auschwitz concentration camp and the vice chairman of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Council.

The design for the museum-memorial, approved by the council April 23, was being unveiled to the public Friday. The structure will be located on Radcliff Walkway — formerly 15th Street — near Independence Avenue in the southern section of the capital, and will face the Washington Monument and Jefferson Memorial.

Faith Reminds Us OF THE PRICE THEY PAID FOR OUR FREEDOM

In this era of turmoil and terrorism, it is becoming increasingly difficult to call it peace. Because of the factions which have been waging their brand of warfare on the civilized world, we live in an age of kidnapping, hijacking, bombing, shooting and trumped-up spy charges, with most of the victims being completely innocent of any responsibility for the conditions which supposedly caused these acts.

However, it is also a time to remember those in all the former, declared wars of our history who have given their lives so that even in these turbulent times we can still live in a land of liberty, where we may write and speak our minds and worship as we choose; and we must continue to guard these rights.

Meanwhile, go to your House of Worship and thank God for them, and remember to honor those who through the years have bought them for you on the battlefield with their lives.

Fulton street scene -- ca. 1875

This photograph is courtesy of Miss Ina Logon, of Fulton, whose ancestors were pioneers in the area before the Civil War. This is the Fulton that Sam Williams describes in his memoirs entitled "Memorabilia of Hempstead County," written in a series of newspaper articles in the Southwest Press in 1886 and 1887. The photograph shows not the first Main Street but possibly the second or third. Fulton was always being washed away by the rampaging Red River before modern flood control methods were put into practice. Early steamboats docked in Fulton to pick up cotton and take it to the New Orleans markets. The building on the right is a tavern of that day and possibly a boarding house of a later day.

The following is by Sam Williams describing Fulton:

"Life in Fulton was depressingly dull and uneventful -- save only certain weeks of the year when each inhabitant was destined to take his turn with shoking with the Ague (Malaria chills). The occasional arrival of a steamboat from below afforded a great relief from the hum-drum monotony, in that it brought an influx of strangers in town, and fresh supplies of the necessary supplies."

The Sam Williams article printed above and others have been collected and published in a book entitled "Sam Williams: Printer's Devil" available at the Southwest Arkansas Regional Archives, in the 1874 courthouse in Old Washington.

EDITOR'S NOTE: "Pictures from the Past" feature of your HOPE STAR WEEKENDER edition. Each week we will run an old photograph of historical significance. It is our aim that, through publication of these old photographs, a sense of history can be preserved for posterity. We encourage you to submit your old pictures for publication. The photographs will be copied, which you own, and the originals returned to you unharmed. We would like to get any pertinent historical data from you pertaining to the picture to further document the history. If you have old photographs which you think have historical value and would like to submit to our readers, please write down as much of the following information as possible and bring it by our office at West Third and Grand Streets in Hope for copies. We would like to know when the photo was taken (an approximate date is fine), who is pictured in the photo, describe the event shown and possibly any buildings, structures, features, photographs that enhance or might be lost forever, can be shared with the readers of this newspaper. Credit will be given to the person providing the picture, and reader's comments about a published photo are welcomed in the form of a letter to the Editor. The photographs will be preserved in the Sam Williams Regional Archives of Old Washington.

Fun festival scheduled

The Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce is filling four days in June with family fun. It is all part of the 17th Annual Arkansas Fun Festival, scheduled on June 11-14.

"What we have done is taken the old Fun Festival, hauled it down to four days, and spaced it up as never before. This year's Fun Fest will truly be the best yet," stated Dr. Lehmann Henderson, festival chairman. "The event, more concentrated days of activities worked wonderfully well last year."

The festival kicks off Thursday at 6 a.m. when the KATV Channel 7 "Daybreak" program airs live from Hot Springs, showcasing the "Taste of Hot Springs," a local restaurant showcase which is open to the public later that day at 5 p.m. in the Hot Springs Convention Center.

The official Grand Opening Ceremonies will occur at 11 a.m. Thursday in Arlington Park. Master of Ceremonies, Bill Ott Jr., of OT-THOUSE II Advertising, Inc., of Hot Springs, will be joined by "Daybreak" hosts, Ron Sherman and Suzette Chalvres. Miss Arkansas 1987, Julie Russell, and the clowns from Open Alley of Arkansas.

Bill Starnes, president and chief executive officer of the Louisiana Hayride, Gene Dickerson, general manager of KWKE, and Jodie Stevens, general manager of the Ramada Inn Bossier City, make the following announcements:

The Louisiana Hayride will return to Shreveport-Bossier on June 12, 13 and 14, 1987, with a tremendous musical weekend at the Shreveport Municipal Auditorium. Friday, June 12, will feature a Hayride Reunion starring Slim Whitman, his son Byron, Kitty Wells, her husband Johnny Wright, and son Bobby Wright. Johnny Wright was formerly Johnny of Johnny and Jack, and Bobby Wright, star of McStable's Navy, is the son of Kitty Wells and Johnny Wright. Also on the show is the former Shreveport radio announcer Nat Shookery, along with Debbie Johnson and a band from the old Louisiana Hayride, the new Hayride Band and three of the new Hayride members. Due to the tremendous number of calls regarding tickets, there will be two Saturday the 13. These shows will be at 7 and 9:30 p.m. All seats are reserved and ticket prices are $10, $7.50 and $5. A ticket for all three days is available and there will be a $5 savings on the three day ticket price. Tickets are available at the Municipal Auditorium from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Monday thru Friday. Tickets may also be purchased at the Ramada Inn, Bossier City.

The Saturday night performance will feature the four Louisiana Hayride Band, a four member background vocal group, and 15 new performers, including F.L. Warner, Mick Patman, Bubba Talbert, Toby Young, Jimmy Melton, Marvin Short and several others yet to be announced. A special guest star will

The Sunday show will be one performance only at 2 p.m. This will be the beginning of a monthly Louisiana Hayride Gospel Music Show. The first show will feature the Louisiana Hayride Band.

PCB fish found in Pine Bluff

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The discovery of three PCB-contaminated fish in Lake Pine Bluff has led to the cancellation of the commercial fishing season at the lake and plans are under way for extensive tests.

Phyllis Moore, formerly Phyllis Garnett, director of the state Pollution Control and Ecology Department, said Thursday that the agency will test water, soil and fish at Lake Pine Bluff.

Mrs. Moore said the three fish containing cancer-causing polychlorinated biphenyls were caught during testing at the lake this week.

A 55-pound big-mouth catfish fish was found Thursday to contain 7.9 parts per million of PCBs, and two hybrid striped bass were found Wednesday to contain 13.5 parts per million of PCBs.

U.S. Food and Drug Administration regulations say edible fish must contain less than two parts per million of PCBs.

Doug Sessler, a spokesman for the PCK&E, said the testing probably will begin in the next few days, and that the state Health Department and the state Game and Fish Commission are expected to participate.

Sessler said there were no plans to close the lake, but the Game and Fish Commission canceled the commercial fishing season that was to start Monday.

The lake is still open for sport fishermen, but one state health official has warned fishermen against eating the fish.

The FDA banned PCBs in 1977 after it was found that the chemicals could cause a variety of health problems, including cancer and liver damage.

Game and Fish spokesman Jim Low said PCBs tend to accumulate in lake bottom sediment. Fish can absorb PCBs as they eat insects and crustaceans that live on the lake bottom. Bass are predators and feed on other fish. The PCBs accumulate in fatty tissue and break down into harmless compounds slowly.

In 1981, a local study conducted under the Federal Clean Lakes Program found PCB contamination in the lake and Brumley Bayou, its main tributary. Following the study, Pollution Control collected soil and fish samples along the drainage paths to the lake.

Mrs. Moore said the Central Missouri Transformer Division of CMI Industries was identified as a potential source of the PCBs during the 1981 study. Central Missouri tested the soil around the plant and removed contaminated soil. Mr. Moore said soil tests conducted after the cleanup showed only very low levels of PCBs.

Dramatic changes for 21st century farm

As the 21st century approaches, American agriculture is in major transition and faces even more dramatic changes and opportunities than in past years.

This is the report from speakers at a Cornell University symposium celebrating 100 years of agricultural research in the United States. The symposium was held to mark the centennial of the Hatch Act of 1887, which paved the way for establishing agricultural experiment stations across the nation, and the centennial of the Cornell University Agricultural Experiment Station.

Focusing on the theme, "The Next Century," speakers covered topics ranging from the role of agricultural research in the world economy to the impact of technology on the 21st century farm.

Biology and other areas of science and engineering will revolutionize agriculture in the next century and dramatically change the methods by which American farmers produce food and fiber, predicted Sylvan H. Wittwer, former director of the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station.

Wittwer said that there is no question that agriculture, which he called "the world's most important and dynamic industry," is in a transition.

"More and more, technology will be seen as the major force shaping the structure of U.S. agriculture and what happens out on the farm," he said.

Highlights of his projections for the American farm as it heads towards the 21st century included:

- Dairying will remain the most stable and value-added agricultural industry of the world. U.S. milk production per cow, which has doubled during the past 40 years, is likely to double again by the year 2000, while the number of cows will double from 11 million to 7 to 8 million.
- The beef industry is at a crossroads, with consumers demanding low-fat, palatable and tender beef. The future of this industry hinges upon consumer acceptance of the product. There will be no great expansion of exports, and the fate of the industry lies with the domestic market. Acceptance of bovine growth hormone and its use will result in leaner beef and greater yields of gain.

• Pigs will be developed that will produce leaner meat with less fat. The pig growth hormone tested at Cornell and other universities had enhanced rates of gain up to 15 percent, reduced carcass fat by as much as 30 percent and back fat by 70 percent, and this produced a 100 percent increase in lean eye area.

• Commercial use of growth hormone for dairy, beef and swine will become a reality by 1990 and will be widespread by the year 2000. With appropriate management, the growth hormone technology could produce rewards to the smaller producer equal to those for the larger operator.

• Consumption of boluses and turkeys will continue to expand in competition with red meat. By 1990, poultry meat consumption is expected to equal that of beef and pork taken together. For cattle and consumption in the United States will continue its downward trend.

• The world's dominant food crops will continue to be rice, wheat, corn, sorghum, millet, oats, barley, rye, soybeans, field beans, chick peas, pigeon peas, cowpeas, peanuts, potatoes, sweet potatoes, cassava, bananas and coconuts.

• The amount of pesticides used for agriculture will be reduced substantially. Costs of materials and of application, increasing environmental constraints and destruction of non-target organisms, food safety and human health and increasing numbers of drug-resistant disease organisms will require less chemical usage.

• Conservation tillage practices, such as no-till, ridge and living mulching systems, will be the norm of the future. This is an energy-efficient system that for resource conservation, including water, energy, fertilizer, soil and erosion control, will be critical for productive and profitable farm production.

• The "plastic revolution" will undergo far cry progress throughout the world. Plastic greenhouse, row covers, tunnels and mulches extend production areas, control weeds, conserve soil moisture, repel insects, and protect crops from freezing, thus greatly improving yields and quality of crops.

Hong Kong buying big

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tiny Hong Kong, a total area of 412 square miles, has 6 million inhabitants who are turning into some of the best customers of the American farmer. And one of their big U.S. imports is a product, usually identified with the Orient: beef.

According to Michael L. Humphrey, who is the Agricultural Department's chief representative there, Hong Kong serves another function as "a conduit to introduce U.S. products and technology to potential buyers" in China, its neighbor, historical homeland and future administrator.

Hong Kong was a market for nearly $98 million worth of U.S. agricultural products last year. In addition to grain, a root used medicinally by the Chinese, other U.S. exports to Hong Kong include oranges, $70.4 million; poultry meat, $38.1 million; tobacco, $28.9 million; grapes, $14.5 million; and wheat, $14 million.

Still others include apples, beer, beef, milk, skins, lemons, melons, cattle hides, eggs, poultry feed, poultry feed, cotton, lemons, oranges and refined cereals.

"It is important to recognize that China was Hong Kong's main trading partner in 1986, with two-way trade totaling more than $18 billion (U.S.), a 17 percent

A little bit of HUMOR

Teacher: Larry, can you describe an elevator?
Larry: Sure, teacher. It's a little room you get into, and when you shut the door the upstairs comes down.
Teacher: Tommy, where is Mexico?
Tommy: On page eleven in the geography book.
John: Seven is an odd number. How can you make it even?
Don: Remove the 's'.
Mother: Eat your spinach, dear. It will put some color in your cheeks.
Little Boy: But Mom, I don't want green cheeks!

1. Juliette Gordon Low, founder of the Girl Scouts, organized the first group of girls on March 12, 1912, in Savannah, Georgia.
2. WAGGGS (World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts) is the largest voluntary organization for girls in the world.
3. More than 670,000 adult scouting members - women and men - work with girls in troops around the world.
4. Girl Scouts celebrate three special birthdays: Founder's Day, October 31, Thinking Day, February 22 and the birthday of Girl Scouting in the United States, March 12.
5. Five things often associated with Girl Scouts are: cleanliness, sunshine, food, rest and exercise.

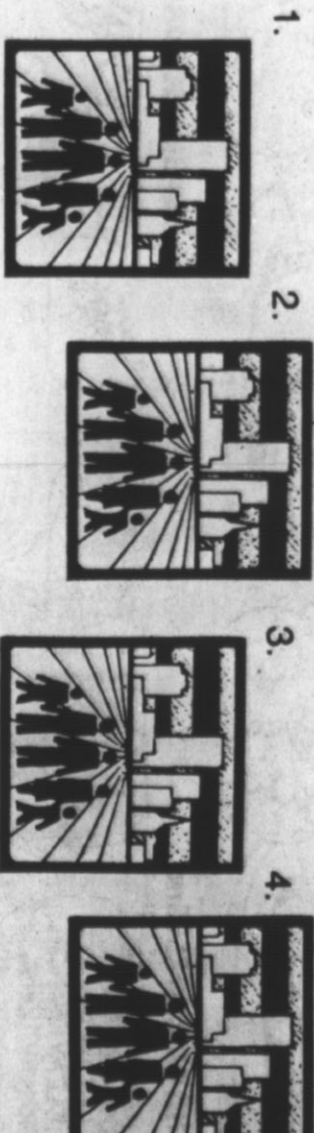

SUPER SELLERS

The first nationally franchised Girl Scout cookie sale was held in 1936. Since that time, this annual event has become a very successful fundraiser for the Girl Scouts organization. Allie Alligator has bought many boxes of cookies. He is not sure just how many he bought. Can you help him count the boxes? How many did you count?

COMMON COMMUNITY

The Girl Scouts organization provides opportunities for girls ages 5 through 17 to develop their potential, make friends and become a vital part of their community. One path of discovery for the scouts is The Community. Only two of the symbols for the community shown below are exactly alike. Circle the two identical symbols.

Arkansans enjoy abundance of outdoor activities

By JOHN MILLER

Mother Nature has been kind to the people of Arkansas in creating a state with plenty of wildlife and natural beauty.

Arkansas also has a relatively mild climate year-round that allows for an abundance of outdoor activities.

Presently, the weather has been conducive to hiking the mountain and lake areas in the state, taking time to enjoy the peace and quiet of the surrounding countryside. But, it is always a good idea to prepare for anything unexpected, like snakes, which Arkansas also has an abundance of.

When hiking the mountains, remember to wear protective clothing and good, sturdy hiking boots. The feet must be protected from sharp stones, as well as the rough terrain and creepy, crawly critters that roam in the woods. Dentin jeans are also recommended, since the heavy material affords plenty of protection to the entire leg, and will keep a hiker fairly warm at night. In choosing a shirt, the hiker should look for something strong, but lightweight, and preferably carry at least one extra shirt along.

For overnight hikers, the backpack is essential. In it, the hiker should have foodstuffs, fresh socks, since the feet take the worst pounding on the trail, a first aid kit and manual. It wouldn't hurt to carry a sharp knife, some rope and string along as well.

But the most important thing for anyone hiking to take along, is a companion. An extra person provides company and a source of emergency. But, the main reason for having a companion is the sharing of the outdoors.

World War II. (Gene Ford, Gig Stalk, Anne Francis) 1957. NR. 1-42

5:15 HBO MOVIE One on One A naive high school basketball star accepts a scholarship and learns a lot about the politics and corruption of the sport. (Tommy Lee, Jason Robson, Jennifer O'Neal, G.D. Spradlin) 1977. PG. 1-38

Couple's agonizing decision sets tone of 'Baby Girl Scott'

CBS drama airs Sunday

John Lithgow, Mary Beth Hurt and Linda Kelsey star in Baby Girl Scott, a contemporary and dramatic special dealing with a married couple's right to decide the fate of their premature and severely damaged infant daughter. It will be broadcast Sunday on CBS.

Should parents always have the right to approve medical care for their severely damaged children? Or does the state have the responsibility to step in on such cases, even if that means going against the parents' wishes? These emotionally explosive questions will have to be faced by Neil and Wendy Scott (Lithgow and Hurt), who are eagerly looking forward to the birth of their first child.

Neil and Wendy's happy anticipation is destroyed when Wendy goes into premature labor, is rushed to the hospital and delivers a one-pound, four-ounce baby girl—tragically underdeveloped with no esophagus, no muscle tone or reflexes and a ragged heartbeat. The parents are told that the infant stands almost no chance of survival.

However, Dr. Radburn (Robert DeSiderio) has no intention of giving up without doing everything possible to keep the "aged heartbeat" going. It has become an intense challenge to him, and he is aware that medical science has some astonishing new methods and machines to prolong such life. The Scotts, momentarily encouraged, sign consent for standard medical procedures and are, thereby, plunged into a nightmare which will change their lives permanently.

Actress Linda Kelsey, who plays a hospital social service representative, had a tough choice to make in deciding whether or not to take the role. After devoting most of her time to rearing two young daughters, she was anxious to get her career in full swing again and was close to accepting a feature film role. Then an offer came to star in Baby Girl Scott.

Kelsey was asked to play Jean Gelson, a social worker who lends the couple both professional and moral support.

"I really love this project," Kelsey said. "The feature would have been a wonderful career move, but because of the story, I really wanted to do this." Kelsey is known to television viewers from her role as Billie Newman in the Love Train series.

"This poignant special allows us all to experience vicariously the emotion, frustration, wonder and fear that we all had about this subject. What if it happened to you? And there is a fear of this technology. Where is it all going through this and think about it," she said.
