

Crop Losses Not Bad in County

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says inflation is easily recognized as that time when necessities and luxuries are selling for about the same price.

When a habit begins to cost money, it's called a hobby.

AMERICANS AVERAGE giving about $30 billion a year in contributions to various causes in the service of their communities. We firmly believe that Hereford and Deaf Smith County citizens are above average in giving to charitable causes.

Public giving is a unique feature in our system. Out of this traditional spirit have come institutions such as libraries, museums, civic organizations, chambers of commerce, great colleges and universities, symphony orchestras, garden clubs, hospitals, religious organizations, 4-H Clubs and many others.

But the trend has been going against voluntarism ever since the advent of welfareism. The "government knows best" people are now wanting to do away with the freedom of the tax deductible gift. Those who hold this theory purpose to take your money into the treasury, then let Congress and the Federal Agency appropriate it for the charitable cause. We are being told again that government bureaucracies can do a better job. The track record hardly substantiates this contention.

John Gardner, writing for TIME magazine, recently described the American spirit of living. These Americans are a peculiar people. If in a local community a citizen becomes aware of a human need which is not being met, he thereon discusses the situation with his neighbors. Suddenly a committee begins to operate on behalf of the need and a new community function is established. It is like watching a miracle because these citizens perform this act without a single reference to any bureaucracy or any official agency.

We have already gone down the welfareism road too far. The diversity and the qualities of individual giving for public good represents a freedom of judgment over which no government authority should be imposed.

124 Votes Cast By Deadline

Based on the number of absentee votes cast by Tuesday afternoon's deadline, Deaf Smith County Clerk B.F. Cain said he expects a large turnout for Saturday's primary runoffs.

At 5 p.m. Tuesday, 118 Democrats and six Republicans had voted in the county primaries. Cain called the 124 voters "a good turnout for a runoff especially since a lot of people are on vacation."

"I wouldn't be surprised if we had 2,000 Saturday."

That figure would be well below last month's primaries, in which nearly 4,500 voted in the county. Cain said the reasons for the large turnout may have been the Democratic gubernatorial race and several contested local contests, including those for district judge, district attorney, county judge and county justice.

Texas City Explosion Probed

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) - Officials at a Gulf Coast refinery began that arduous job of determining what caused Tuesday's multiple pre-dawn blasts that killed five persons and injured six others, two critically.

Recovered from the burning Texas City Refinery, Inc., plant were the bodies of employees Carl K. Cope, 34, and Joseph M. Bertrand, 59, and security guard Aaron A. Browning, 46.

Two other employees, Daniel R. Dore, 23, and Roxanne Johnican, 37, died later in the day from burns.

By late Tuesday firefighters had subdued the last small pockets of flames

Largest Rise Seen Since 1977

Consumer Price Index Jumps

WASHINGTON (AP) - A record increase in beef prices forced consumer prices up 0.9 percent in April, the largest rise in more than a year, the Labor Department said today.

The latest increase meant the annual rate of inflation for the past three months was 10 percent, the department said. Beef prices jumped 6.6 percent in April, accounting for more than one-third of the 2.4 percent in grocery prices.

The 0.9 percent increase in the Consumer Price Index was the largest since February 1977, when prices rose by the same amount. The increase in beef prices surpassed the record 6.5 percent rise in May 1975.

Food prices have climbed steadily since the start of the year, but the largest report showed they were accelerating even faster.

Prices for all foods and beverages were up 1.8 percent in April after rising about 1.2 percent in each of the three previous months.

Prices for fresh vegetables, which declined in March, rose 9.7 percent in April, led by an increase for lettuce. Since then, lettuce prices have started coming down, however.

Prices of pork, poultry, dairy products, sugar, candy and vegetable oils all increased more in April than in March or February. Prices turned downward for eggs, fresh fruit and coffee.

Another big contributor to inflation during April was rising housing expenses, which were up 0.9 percent. Cost of home financing, taxes and insurance advanced 1.7 percent, while home maintenance and repair services rose 1.4 percent.

Home purchase prices increased 0.5 percent and rent was up 0.7 percent.

Charges for natural gas and electricity each rose 1.5 percent in April, the third straight month of big increases.

Also showing sharp rises were furniture and bedding, up 1.1 percent; clothing, 1 percent; medical care, 0.7 percent; and dental fees, 0.6 percent.

The price of new and used cars went up 0.3 percent, and gasoline prices edged up 0.1 percent.

All figures are adjusted for normal seasonal variations in prices. The 0.9 percent increase in consumer prices followed gains of 0.8 percent in January, 0.6 percent in February and 0.8 in March. However, the prices last month were only 0.6 percent higher than in April 1977 because of a steady inflation picture at the end of last year.

The Consumer Price Index for urban consumers in April was 191.5, meaning it cost $191.50 to buy what $100 would buy in the base period of 1967.

The gloomy April report followed an Agriculture Department estimate Tuesday that consumer food prices will rise 8 percent to 10 percent this year, up from an earlier forecast of 6 percent to 8 percent.

Despite the deepening inflation rate, Patrick Caddell, President Carter's personal pollster, says the cost of living figures should not emerge this year as a major political issue.

"The country does not seem to be possessed with great concerns over any sets of particular issues that we tend to think dominate public attention, including inflation," said Caddell, head of the Cambridge Research Associates polling organization.

Caddell's views were based upon a canvass of institutional investors here earlier this month.

The Agriculture Department had predicted last fall that 1978 food prices would average 4 percent to 6 percent higher than in 1977. On March 28, the department raised its estimate to 6 percent to 8 percent higher and on Tuesday to 8 percent to 10 percent.

The new forecast might mean the biggest food prices increase since the inflationary spiral of 1973-1974, when grocery costs rose an average of 14.5 percent a year.

"The sharp advance in retail food

NATO Leaders Consider Action against Commies

WASHINGTON (AP) - Key leaders of the Atlantic alliance are informally discussing possible joint action against future Soviet and Cuban actions in Africa, while focusing their formal meetings here on efforts to keep pace with the Communist military buildup in Eastern Europe.

Outside the State Department meeting rooms, North Atlantic Treaty Organization delegates were talking informally about formation of an African security force to combat the estimated 38,000 to 40,000 Cuban troops in Africa.

The two-day summit of NATO heads of state ends today.

Meanwhile, Patrick Caddell, President Carter's pollster, said the only issue that may emerge in this year's congressional elections is the question of foreign policy and national defense. "But at this point the issue is 'only a speck on the horizon,'" he said.

Carter set the tone for the informal talks when he emerged from a secret NATO session Tuesday and told reporters: "The general feeling inside NATO is that the Cubans have exceeded any bounds of propriety in having massive placement of troops in Africa and this certainly makes their claim to be a non-aligned country ridiculous."

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said no specific proposals on the Pan-African force were made but added the concept "is one we would like to consider."

"I certainly wouldn't rule out the possibility of some sort of economic assistance to such a force, but it's much too early to draw any conclusions on it," Vance said.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter ruled out sending U.S. troops to Africa.

French sources reported that Carter and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing discussed the force at the White House last Friday.

It came up again at a dinner Monday night of the foreign ministers of the United States, France, Great Britain and West Germany. Carter discussed it with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt Tuesday morning.

Vance indicated without giving details that the United States has some leverage over the Cubans, who were accused by Carter of training the rebels who invaded Zaire's Shaba province earlier this month.

Officials have said the administration has ruled out withdrawing the U.S. diplomatic mission from Havana and expelling the Cuban delegation here.

One idea discussed at the State Department involves a U.S. radio propaganda campaign into Cuba to generate popular dissatisfaction with the government's Africa policies.

Deaf Smith County farmers may have gotten off lighter than was originally thought after a "gully washer" accompanied by howling winds and frequent hail pounded local cropland with torrents of water Thursday and Friday.

With at least three center pivot irrigation systems still standing under water Tuesday after at least eight inches of rain last week, representatives of the local ASCS office and field men for the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant made their way rather gingerly across wide sections of the county, surveying washout and hail damage. Wet fields prevented as complete an assessment of damages as local officials would have preferred to make, but judging from their initial observations, they report that crop losses here will not be as severe as was originally expected.

John Fuston, executive director of the Deaf Smith ASCS office reported only negligible loss to the corn crop of about 2,000 to 3,000 acres, while washouts will necessitate the replanting of some grain sorghum.

"There is 15 to 30 percent hail damage on 30,000 to 40,000 acres of wheat, which will constitute the major portion of our damage. Some of the wheat got tangled up by the wind and blew over, but it looks now like it's gonna' respond and straighten back up and we should be able to harvest it okay," Fuston reported.

He estimated that weather damage could cut the yield on the county's irrigated wheat by as much as half, however, stating that yields may run from 30 to 40 bushels per acre now, instead of a normal 50-70 bushels.

Some 3,000 to 4,000 acres of cotton could be lost here, primarily from washing, although muddy fields will delay a final determination for another day or two.

"Some of our worst damage came from washing. The worst of this type of damage is out in the Dawn area, where there was rainfall up to eight inches last week. Some of the fields had washing damage down to the hardpan over 35 to 40 percent of their surface. This means replowing before farmers in that area can even try to replant," said the local ASCS director.

Heavy rains to the north of town left some crops under water where farmers were attempting to farm playa lakes under sprinkler irrigation, and crops were not the only victim of the high water. Losses to equipment may result after at least five center pivot irrigation systems were left submerged by last week's downpour.

At least three of the systems were reportedly still under water Tuesday, and a pickup owned by Edward Allison was under water as well.

Allison, who farms north of Hereford, had to be plucked from a perch atop his

Assistance Possible From Feds

Deaf Smith County residents who sustained flood, hail or wind damage from Thursday and Friday nights' thunderstorms may be eligible for long-term, low-interest loans from the federal government, The Brand learned today.

Jess Ward, resources management officer for the governor, said that Gov. Dolph Briscoe has written a letter to the Small Business Administration asking that Randall County and adjacent counties, including Deaf Smith, be declared a disaster area.

That designation, if approved by the SBA, will qualify those individuals who suffered property damage of any kind during the storms for federal loans.

"It will be for any hail, wind or flood damage caused by the particular front that came through there," Ward said. "Anybody who can qualify will be eligible for the loans."

Deaf Smith County Judge Sam Morgan said that Mike Cooper, another representative of the governor, said this week that the county may be eligible for federal assistance.

County commissioners today are assessing the amount of damage in their respective precincts.

"In every case where there is a loss, we must get the name of the person, the amount of dollars lost and how much of it is covered by insurance," Morgan said.

Morgan said that persons who suffered human need losses, private property losses or road damage should contact their commissioners.

Soviet UN Employees Charged as Spies

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - By telephone and by notes in crumpled cigarette packs and other trash, two Soviet employees of the United Nations instructed an undercover Navy man on delivery of what they assumed were classified U.S. defense documents, a federal grand jury indictment of the pair reveals.

The three-count indictment handed down Tuesday outlines an espionage scheme in which the Soviet pair made their contact with the unidentified Navy man, whom they had never met, and eventually paid him $20,000 for the U.S. government-falsified documents.

Valdik Aleksandrovich Enger, 39, a political affairs officer at the U.N. Secretariat, and Rudolf Petrovich Chernyayev, 43, a personnel officer at the U.N. Secretariat, could be sentenced to life in prison if convicted on charges they conspired with Vladimir Petrovich Zinyakin, the third secretary of the Soviet U.N. mission, to obtain the classified Navy documents.

Zinyakin, who has left the country, was named as an unindicted co-conspirator, but was not charged because he possessed diplomatic immunity.

The indictment alleges the scheme began last August after the naval officer took a cruise to Bermuda on the MS Kazakhstan, which is owned and operated by the Soviet Union.

Appointed Attorney Ruling Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court said Tuesday it will decide under what circumstances poor persons charged with minor crimes are entitled to court-appointed lawyers.

The decision may clear up some of the confusion over one of the court's 1973 decisions.

The justices voted to hear the appeal of a Chicago man whose case requires the high court to study once again the rights of criminal defendants who cannot afford legal help.

At issue are two interpretations of the court's 1973 decision.

One view of the court's ruling is that any criminal defendant facing misdemeanor charges for which time in jail is a possible penalty has a constitutional right to a court-appointed lawyer if the defendant cannot afford one.

The second view is that the court's ruling about lawyer help applies only to those criminal defendants who actually do get sentenced to jail and not those who are merely fined.

The 1973 ruling came a decade after the Supreme Court substantially altered the criminal justice system in a landmark decision. It ruled in 1963 that all criminal defendants charged with more serious crimes, felonies, are entitled to court-appointed lawyers if they are too poor to afford their own legal help.

Traffic Death County Shocks Safety Council

CHICAGO (AP) - The Memorial Day weekend death traffic toll of 528 - the highest toll for this holiday period since the 55 mph speed limit went into effect in 1974 - has the National Safety Council shocked, alarmed and looking for the cause.

The substantial increase of deaths on the nation's roads surprised the council. It had estimated that 400 to 500 people would die during The Associated Press count running from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday, local time.

Vincent Tofany, council president, said the death toll "rivals those before the energy shortage and the 55 mph limit. But the number of day-by-day traffic deaths generally is staying about the same."

"There are many factors contributing to the total, including the number of persons traveling, weather conditions, observance of the speed limit and safety belt use," Tofany said. "These kinds of things will tend to have an effect on the total."

"Until we can analyze the data," he said, "we cannot accurately identify to what extent these various factors contributed to the startling increase in highway deaths."

The previous highest Memorial Day death toll since 1974 was 442 in 1976. Last year it was 432. Since 1974, the greatest toll for any holiday has been 553 during Independence Day holiday last year.

Hill Hires Ledbetter To Write Budget

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - John Hill, showing no trace of doubt he will be elected governor in November, has hired defeated treasurer candidate Harry Ledbetter to write him a state budget.

"The only way I can be effective in January is to begin preparations in June," Hill told a news conference Tuesday. He still has Republican Bill Clements to contend with in November.

Ledbetter was Comptroller Bob Bullock's chief clerk when Bullock first was elected. Bullock, a political foe of Hill, makes revenue estimates that could help or hinder a governor's budgetary activities.

Hill laughingly admitted Ledbetter's friendship with Bullock "might be a fringe benefit."

Every governor has a budget director, and Ledbetter appears to be first in line for the job if Hill is elected. But Hill was non-committal, saying he couldn't promise jobs at this stage.

On other matters, Hill said: - Billy Goldberg, a Houston lawyer and major Hill fundraiser, is among the two names recommended to him most frequently for chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee. He declined to name the other.

-The state party's September convention - not the gubernatorial nominee - should select replacements for Democratic National Committee members Jess Hay, Alicia Chacon and Joe Bernal, who are resigning.

Postal Service Seeks Carriers

Postmaster Nolan Grady of Hereford has announced that examinations for clerk-carrier and substitute rural carrier are open to the public until June 5 at 4:30 p.m.

He urged all interested persons to apply to take the job-related tests that could lead to Postal Service employment. Those wishing to take the exams may file applications at the Hereford Post Office from now through June 5 at 4:30 p.m.

"We have not opened our registers in quite some time and an examination of these registers has led us to believe they are out of date," Grady said.

"I do not want to give the impression we will be hiring great numbers of people in the coming months," the Postmaster added. "I anticipate approximately four vacancies will occur in the next two years that will be filled by hiring people from our up-dated registers. We need qualified people who will be willing to accept employment, and we want to offer people in the local community the chance to compete for these openings."

The Postmaster said the Postal Service established the policy two years ago of extending eligibility for those on the job registers because little hiring was being done. Those who have been on the job registers for more than two years as of Oct. 8 will have to reapply, he said.

Starting salaries for part-time clerk-carriers and for substitute rural carriers of record are $6.90 an hour with steps taking rate up to $8.19 per hour over an eight year period. There are 12 rate steps, with maximum time between steps of 52 weeks, minimum of 26 weeks.

Beginning salary for full-time clerk-carrier employees is $13,916 with steps up to $16,501 over an eight year period.

Machine Guns Big in Garland

GARLAND, Texas (AP) - Want your mother-in-law to leave a week early? Take her to the Garland Public Shooting Range today and show her your expertise with a machine gun.

Maybe she'll get the hint. Jim Day can rent or sell the equipment. It's Day's theory that people are sufficiently fascinated by the rat-a-tat-tat to lay out $30 for the privilege of hanging on to a bucking CIA-issued Ingram .45-caliber weapon for a few noisy minutes.

Day said of his first seven customers last Sunday, "Most of them are people interested in buying a machine gun. And most of them are prominent people."

The fact might cause authorities to wince a bit, but Day points out the average citizen can legally own an automatic weapon providing he or she has no criminal record or history of illegal activity. The process involves fingerprinting, a $200 one-time license fee and a check of criminal records.

A spokesman at the U.S. Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Bureau here said his office is "literally swamped" with calls each week from startled people who reported seeing their friends and neighbors with machine guns.

Day said he has taken more than 60 calls from people interested in buying automatic weapons since placing his classified ad last Friday. He is confident business soon will be literally booming as a natural reaction to the spread of international terrorism.

He said bankers, lawyers and public officials are becoming more concerned about their potential status as possible kidnap victims.

Mark Brown, a licensed machine gun dealer in Dallas, said he has sold 23 automatic weapons in the past five months. He said foreign governments have been contacting Texas machine gun dealers recently about buying arms for their countries.

As for the American buyer, Brown cited the last New York blackout as an example when a machine gun might replace the dog as man's best friend.

"You take a wealthy person, at home with a great many valuables, and the police have their hands full with other problems," he said. "Well, in a situation like that, there's nothing like an automatic weapon to get attention."

Court To Decide On Alimony

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court agreed Tuesday to decide whether state laws providing alimony payments for women only foster unconstitutional sex discrimination.

The justices said they will study a challenge to Alabama's alimony laws.

Thirteen states award alimony to women only. In addition to Alabama, they are Arkansas, Georgia, Idaho, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, Nevada, New York, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee and Wyoming.

In other matters Tuesday, the Supreme Court:

-Ruled that lawyers generally cannot solicit business by personally contacting potential clients but may do so, in some cases, when representing non-profit groups that engage in lawsuits as a "form of political expression."

-Said it will decide under what circumstances poor persons charged with minor crimes are entitled to court-appointed lawyers.

-Agreed to study a request by Massachusetts authorities that it ease significantly the constitutional restrictions on police searches.

In a case that may become a rallying point for the women's rights movement, William Orr, now a San Francisco resident where he is president of the Orrox Corp., says Alabama's law discriminates against men.

Orr and his wife Lillian, still a resident of Opelika, Ala., were divorced in 1974. Orr agreed to pay Mrs. Orr $1,240 a month in alimony.

In July 1976, Mrs. Orr charged that her ex-husband was almost $3,000 in arrears in his alimony payments, and Orr was ordered to show why he should not be held in contempt of court by disobeying terms of the divorce decree.

As a defense, lawyers for Orr argued that the decree was invalid because it was based on unconstitutional state laws. The laws providing for alimony only to women violate the equal-protection guarantees of the Constitution's 14th Amendment, they said.

A Lee County trial court held Orr in contempt, and its ruling was upheld without opinion by the state's highest court.

In seeking Supreme Court review, Orr's lawyers argued that recent court holdings state that laws based on sex-centered generalizations - such as wives are always dependent on their husbands for financial support and husbands never are financially dependent on their wives - cannot pass constitutional muster.

The nation's highest court has been confronted with the legal issue once before, in 1974. At that time, the justices left intact without comment a Georgia law that also provides for alimony payments only to women.

Theodor Mommsen of Germany won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1902.

Obituaries

WAYNE B. STARK Services for a former Hereford coach, Wayne B. Stark of Amarillo, will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in University Church of Christ at Canyon with Bob Wear, minister of Central Church of Christ in Hereford, officiating.

Graveside services will be at 4 p.m. Thursday in Friona Cemetery at Friona. Burial will be under direction of Schooler-Gordon Funeral Directors of Canyon.

Mr. Stark died Tuesday evening at McClean at the age of 51. He was born April 19, 1927 in Fargo, Okla. and graduated from Friona High School. He received his bachelor's degree from Tulsa University at Tulsa, Okla.

Mr. Stark was a coach at Hereford High School for six years, from 1949-55. He was a retired life underwriter for New York Life Insurance Co. He was also active in farming and ranching for the past several years.

He had lived in Amarillo 1 1/2 years, having moved there from Canyon, where he resided for 9 1/2 years. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include the widow, Sue; two sons, Ken L. Stark of Hereford and J. Nate Stark of Austin; and a daughter, Mrs. Connie Doak of Oklahoma City.

Tools Among Accident Factors

COLLEGE STATION - Some accidents will remain inevitable until the design of certain tools and equipment is changed, says Dr. Gary S. Nelson, a safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Nelson cited a recent experience as an example. "Has the following or similar incident ever happened to you? The other day I volunteered to work the concession stand at the local baseball park. After closing, it was dishwashing time. I turned on the right hand faucet knob to rinse a dish in cold water and, after scalding a couple of fingers, I realized that the individual installing the faucet had reversed the hot and cold water lines. I then noticed the sign behind the sink intended to warn me of this hazard. Throughout the evening, I continued to make mistakes with the faucet. Sign or no sign, the force of habit was just too strong."

This incident points out a common cause of many accidents, points out the engineer. "That is, the design of our tools and equipment may be incompatible with common human characteristics, experience, and expectancy."

When a designer builds or installs equipment without taking into account a host of common human characteristics involving man's physical size and strength as well as such things as his perception capabilities, his habits and customs, the designer is setting a trap for the equipment user's eventual and inevitable accident.

"There are many examples of these errors in design," notes Nelson. "Did you ever drive past the intersection where you intended to turn because the signs were too small or too cluttered to read at normal speed? Did you ever drive a car where the headlight beam indicator or the turn signal indicators were hidden by part of the steering wheel? Did you ever trip on a stair and then discover that one step was higher than the rest?"

Did you ever push a light switch "up" to turn a light "on" and cause another light to go "off" instead? Generally, Nelson says, Americans expect switches to activate power when they are pushed "up." We also expect the switch at the left to control the light or appliance positioned to the left of a pair of switches and the switch at the right to control the light or appliance positioned to the right of the switches.

"Violate these and other human expectancies during design and installation, and human error and associated accidents become inevitable," contends the engineer. "Accidents caused by these and similar design errors cannot be controlled by a cautious person for they occur before one is aware that the trap exists."

Nelson urges individuals finding similar errors in equipment or appliances they own or use to take time to inform the manufacturer or installer. "Your comments may influence a future change in design in your favor," he says.

Schools Not Using Tax Aid

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Only one in seven Texas school districts used a major increase in state aid last fall to cut local taxes, the Texas Research League said Tuesday.

The 158 districts - out of a total of 1,079 - accounted for 10.5 percent of the taxable property values in Texas.

The 1977 Legislature raised state aid by $446 million, with $130 million earmarked for reducing local tax burdens, although actual reductions were not required.

"Despite a letter from the speaker of the Texas House of Representatives to each school board president urging reductions in local school taxes, the total levy was increased by $48 million," the league report said.

Had it not been for increased operating budgets, the 1977 school finance bill would have enabled school districts to lower taxes an average of 11 cents per $100 valuation, the league said.

Some increased expenses were mandated by the Legislature.

But the league said that while the Foundation School Program was raised by $71 per student, state aid was increased by $161 per pupil in "average daily attendance."

State aid will rise by another $90 million this fall, far less than last year's increase, and school boards will be starting from the current spending level of $4.5 billion when they write 1978-79 budgets.

"Furthermore, with school property tax levies reaching the $1.7 billion level this year, taxpayer resistance and pleas for more exemptions can be anticipated," the league said.

Losses

vehicle Friday by two men in a boat. Fuston predicts that the benefits of anywhere from three to eight inches of rainfall over wide portions of the county could eventually outweigh the losses because the moisture will prove a boost to the local milo crop, even if it has to be replanted, and pastures in the Hereford area have greened up noticeably since the downpour.

Ironically, much of the dryland country to the west of Hereford remains under drought conditions, even as farmers in the Hereford area wait for water to recede.

With the exception of an area far to the northwest of Hereford, most of the dryland country received only minor moisture, and farmers are still waiting for sufficient moisture to allow them to plant a dryland sorghum crop after the failure of their wheat crop.

John Worrall, eastern agriculture manager for the Holly Sugar Corporation reported today that "it's a little early to make a final assessment on the storm damage to the area sugar beet crop."

Holly crews were out attempting to survey damage yesterday, but they too were hampered by wet fields, and Worrall reported that more surveys were to be made today.

He indicated that the most severe storm damage to the beet crop appeared to be centered to the north and east of Hereford, although there was hail damage to the crop to the south and west as well.

Blasts

like it covered the whole IRC plant."

The blasts were felt in a 20-mile radius, and Houston police on patrol in the southwest section of the city some 35 miles away said they saw an orange glow light up the skys about 2 a.m.

F.D. Pennington, 44, a 16-year-veteran at the plant, said he had just closed some valves at 2 a.m. when "there was just fire everywhere... than one explosion after another."

Voting

of the peace. There will be three local democratic races involved in Saturday's runoff.

Still campaigning for the county judgeship are W. Glen Nelson, who currently serves as justice of the peace, and automobile salesman L.B. "Scat" Russell, former superintendent of the Walcott Independent School District and Hereford High School principal.

Prices

prices, which began to accelerate last winter has continued this spring," the department's outlook board said. "First half retail food prices are rising and continue to run around 8 percent above a year ago."

Prices are going up, officials said, because of smaller supplies of red meat and bad weather which has damaged fresh vegetable crops.

Other contributing factors are the thriving export of farm commodities and a brisk American consumer demand for food, the board said.

As measured by the USDA, food prices in 1977 gained about 6.2 percent. They increased over the previous year by 3.1 percent in 1976 and by 8.5 percent in Pennington, who suffered burns and inch-thick blisters, said he and another employee ran out of the area and scaled an eight-foot fence. He said they could only watch, horrified, as two women co-workers ran from the site with their clothing ablaze.

"We couldn't get to them. If we'd have been on their side of the fence we'd have gone back and got them. It was so hot you couldn't do anything," Pennington said from his hospital bed.

Candidates for justice of the peace are policeman O.K. Neal and restaurant owner and former teacher Paul Abalos. Those two are the survivors from a field of seven candidates.

Seeking the Democratic nomination for county commissioner, Precinct 4, are incumbent James Voyles and city commissioner Stan Fry.

The only statewide runoff is for the unexpired term of railroad commissioner,

Some of the beet crop was injured by silting, and a small portion of the acreage was inundated by the pouring rains.

"A couple of days could make a lot of difference with the beet crop. Beets are hardy and given any chance, the young plants could make a comeback in a short time. Generally, there is not as extensive an amount of damage as we had expected," said Worrall.

Fuston summed up the general sentiment of getting off better than expected: "We are fortunate the corn crop looks as good as it does at this time. I was kind of pleasantly surprised when I went to the country Tuesday and our crops looked as good as they did."

Another pumper-gauger, LaVernon Easterling, said he tried to close off the valves to the burning area and then tried to find Pennington.

"I was damned lucky," he said from the hospital where he was sent after inhaling acid fumes spewing from one of the tanks.

"I could have been drinking around up there in the units where it happened. I go up there two, three, four, five maybe six times a night. It just depends."

Bullets Even Series

By TONY BAKER
AP Sports Writer
SEATTLE (AP) - Whether you're rooting for the Washington Bullets or the Seattle SuperSonics, big leads spell big trouble for your team.

"I really don't think big leads are that important," said Bullets Coach Dick Motta, who watched his players dig themselves out of a 15-point third-quarter hole and climb past the Sonics 120-116 in overtime Tuesday night in Game 4 of the National Basketball Association championship series.

"I said it earlier in the series, it's difficult to keep a 15-point lead. That 24-second clock dictates that you have to keep playing," added Motta, whose Bullets learned that lesson the hard way in Game 1 when they saw a 19-point third-period lead evaporate into a four-point Seattle victory.

Tuesday night's game, which had a record crowd of 39,457 in the Kingdome on the edge of their seats throughout the final frantic minutes, evened the best-of-seven title series at two games apiece. Game 5 is set for Friday night in the Seattle Center Coliseum.

The Sonics appeared headed for a runaway victory after rookie forward Jack Sikma's three-point play gave them a 85-70 lead with 2:22 left in the third quarter. But suddenly, the Sonics stopped running, began taking bad shots and the big lead slowly began to dwindle into a big disappointment.

"We played the last quarter and a half like we had played the last playoff series against Philadelphia," said Motta, referring to the Bullets' upset of the Philadelphia 76ers in the semifinals.

"We'll come back and play harder Friday and we'll win," said Seattle guard Dennis Johnson, who scored a career-high 33 points and blocked a Bobby Dandridge shot in the final moments that assured an overtime session.

"We let them off the hook," said Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkens. "We had it and we just weren't patient. We didn't execute down the stretch."

Down the stretch is where Washington played its best.

The Bullets tied the game midway through the final period, in which they outscored Seattle 28-19, and led 106-104 after forward Bobby Dandridge hit a three-point play with 20 seconds to go.

But clutch-shooting guard Fred Brown sent the game into overtime with a jumper from the right corner with 14 seconds on the clock.

"I thought we had it won in regulation," said Motta, "but Seattle executed that play to Freddie very well, and then DJ (Dennis Johnson) came out of nowhere, like he has all series, to block Bobby's shot."

Guard Charles Johnson, who had scored just eight points in regulation time, took command in overtime for the Bullets, scoring the first basket on a fast-break layup, then beating Seattle's defense down-court for a jumper that made it 110-106 with 3:35 to go.

The Bullets led the rest of the way.

Beacon Cops Title

Beacon toppled the Toters twice in late Monday night softball action at Veteran's Park to claim the championship of the Hereford Memorial Day Tournament. The victories avenged an earlier loss by Beacon to Toters, which swept through the winners' bracket.

Sully's Vending finished third in the affair after losing to Toters in the winners' bracket finals and then falling to eventual champ Beacon. Caviness Packing placed fourth in the tourney.

The tournament, which was scheduled to begin last Friday, was delayed until Sunday due to rainy conditions. The late start necessitated a change to the 3-2 format of play.

Local teams will begin league play here next Monday night. All games are being played at the Veteran's Park field since the Kids, Inc. Pony League teams have moved to the new complex at 15th and Whittier.

Lee Downs MHS, 6-4

MIDLAND - The Monterey Plainmen, District 4-4A champs and owners of a 21-game win skein saw that streak ended Tuesday here as Midland Lee axed the Plainmen 6-4 in the opening game of the 4A baseball quarterfinal series.

A five-run explosion in the second inning saw Lee wipe out a 3-0 Monterey lead as John White led the way with a three-run four-bagger to left. Steve Pitts and Doug Schmidt added run-scoring singles as the winners picked up five hits in the frame.

The outburst handed MHS star Ron Reeves his first loss of the year. Reeves had gone 13-0 for the year until Tuesday. Terry Willis (10-2) etched the win for Lee.

Willis withstood a three-run binge by the Plainmen in the first. Mike Wooten plated one run with a double and then scored himself on a homer by Dana Rieger.

Lee, now 26-9, will attempt to sweep the Plainmen (30-5) in a second quarterfinal contest at 2 p.m. Friday at Lubbock's Lowery Field. A third game if necessary will immediately follow.

Silvio Almost Perfect In Big League Debut

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
If Silvio Martinez is looking for a pitcher to emulate, Juan Marichal is certainly a better choice than Bobo Holloman.

Silvio, a 22-year-old right-hander for the St. Louis Cardinals, making his first major league start Tuesday night, held the New York Mets hitless for six innings. Three more and he would have matched the feat Holloman achieved way back on the night of May 6, 1953 - a no-hitter in his first big-league start. Holloman did it for the St. Louis Browns, a 6-0 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

But in the seventh inning, leadoff batter Steve Henderson pounced on a Martinez pitch and sent it far over the left field wall.

End of no-hitter and end of shutout.

Eventually the Cards won 8-2 - but Henderson's hit was the only one the Mets managed.

It could be a better one than he'd pulled a Holloman. Marichal went on to become a consistent all-star, chalking up 243 career victories, which is to say 240 more than Holloman, who vanished after one year and a 3-7 record in the majors.

The Cards scored twice in the second off Jerry Koonsman on Ken Reitz's single. RBI singles by Garry Templeton in the third and Mike Tyson in the fourth made it 4-0, then they blew it open against reliever Butch Metzger with four runs in the seventh, three on George Hendrick's homer, his fourth of the season and the first since being obtained last Sunday from San Diego.

Giants 1, Astros 0
Bob Knepper did it all for the Giants, scattering five Houston hits for his seventh victory and second shutout of the season, and hitting a seventh-inning sacrifice fly for San Francisco's only run.

It was the Giants' 15th victory in their last 18 games and widened their NL West lead to 2 1/4 games over Cincinnati.

Phillies 6, Pirates 1
Greg Luzinski blasted a three-run homer off Pittsburgh's Bert Blyleven in the first inning, all the runs the Phil's Steve Carlton needed. Carlton hurled a five-hitter.

Expos 7, Cubs 4
Montreal's outfielders, Ellis Valentine, Andre Dawson and Warren Cromartie, homered in the Expos' victory over Chicago. The Cubs' NL East lead was shaved to 1 1/2 games over the Expos and Phillies.

Valentine's two-out homer in the fourth off Rick Reuschel broke a scoreless tie.

Dodgers 10, Padres 2
Rick Rhoden's four-hitter and homers by Steve Garvey and Lee Lacy carried Los Angeles past the Padres. The Dodgers blasted Eric Rasmussen off the mound in his first start since being obtained from St. Louis, scoring seven runs off him in the first two innings.

Braves 4, Reds 3
Gary Matthews' leadoff homer, a first-pitch rocket over the center field fence off Cincinnati relief star Doug Bair, gave Atlanta its 10-inning triumph. Bair, who entered the game with an 0.60 earned-run average, left it at 0.89.

The 'Birds will open the home slate Saturday with the first of a pair of doubleheaders on consecutive days at Whiteface Field. Hooker, Oklahoma will challenge the Redbirds on the home diamond with the initial quarterfinals opener. Kevin Burke turned in a sparkling performance on the mound for the winners, striking out 11 Bulldogs enroute to the win, which came via an unearned run in the first frame.

Ted Robertson scored the game's only run in the first. His single paved the way for a Borger error, which moved him to third. Tom McGill, who had reached on the error, was caught in a rundown attempting to steal second and Robertson slipped through unnoticed to score.

Borger's Greg Fleming (9-3) also turned in a stalwart effort on the mound. Fleming struck out five and walked none in taking the loss.

The Bulldogs fell to 11-11 on the year with the loss, while Burk Burnett raised his mark to 19-9. The two teams will meet for the second and possible third games of the series in Borger Friday.

Zahn, Twins Keep Baffling Rangers
By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
Detroit rookie Steve Baker says he doesn't like to face the same team twice in a row and you can imagine how the Texas Rangers feel about their second straight fruitless run-in with Minnesota's Geoff Zahn.

Baker, a 21-year-old right-hander pitching in only his second major league game - both against Baltimore - held the Orioles to three hits in seven innings Tuesday night as the Tigers snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 5-2 victory.

"I kinda like being a stopper," said Baker. "It's a challenge to go in there and try to break a losing streak."

Meanwhile, Zahn and Mike Marshall combined to shut out Texas for the second time in nine days, both by 2-0 scores.

Baker, called up last week from Evansville of the American Associates had a 4-0 record and 1.88 earned run average, held Baltimore to one run in 6 1-3 innings in his debut last Thursday in a game eventually lost by reliever John Hiller. This time, Hiller came on in the

The Lighter Side

MIDDLEBURG HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) - Robert D. Elrick just loves to fly his helicopter out of his back yard.

The city council, however, is trying to put a crimp in the 65-year-old retiree's flight patterns.

Reacting to what they said was months of complaints from Elrick's neighbors, councilmen in the Cleveland suburb passed an ordinance last week giving the town authority to determine where helicopters can land.

It is not being enforced, pending a legal opinion on its validity.

But Elrick said he has no plans to keep his helicopter anywhere except in his backyard - an acre of land that he uses as

Lobbying, Leaking Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) - The recent claims that an oil lobbyist got advance drafts of regulations and sometimes influenced them could hardly surprise anyone who has worked in Washington.

Leaking and lobbying are two of the most popular games in town, next to tennis.

But the claims sent a spasm of soul-searching through the Department of Energy.

"This had better not be true," growled spokesman James Bishop Jr., on behalf of Secretary James R. Schlesinger.

Economic Regulatory Administrator David J. Bardin questioned his staff and then turned the affair over to the department's Inspector General for further investigation.

Bardin aide Douglas G. Robinson said department officials were already thinking of putting summaries of private meetings with regulated companies "on the record" for public inspection.

Robinson said in an interview he has already told his staff to do it.

If Bardin and Robinson succeed in controlling leaks and lobbies, their next logical assignment has to be the Agriculture Department, for a total war against crabgrass.

Exchanges of advice, information and executives between government and private organizations are common here.

And whatever a government office does, it invariably "leaks" - trickling out supposedly confidential information and proposals to a favored few who know where to tap the holes.

John F. O'Leary, deputy secretary of energy and a respected veteran of the federal agencies, says a lot of the exchange is legitimate - even necessary - but it can get out of hand.

Thus, the American Petroleum Institute said the activities boasted by "regulatory analyst" John Iannone in a memo to his boss were entirely legal, and part of a legitimate effort to understand and advise its industry's federal regulators.

But the memo spotlighted a chronic dilemma of those regulators: close contact with the regulated industry is useful and sometimes vital to them, and yet too close a relationship threatens to corrupt the process of honest regulation.

Iannone claimed, "I received draft of Subpart K a proposed natural gas liquids regulation two weeks before DOE (Department of Energy) officials."

He said he "worked closely with DOE on gasoline price monitoring and got them to agree to a number of important changes, before the system was released for public comment."

He said he got internal department studies which then "were carefully distributed to members of Congress and were used to discredit DOE's arguments" on behalf of President Carter's National Energy Plan.

DOVER TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) - The chief said it looked like a baboon to him. Other officers who have seen it think it may be a spider monkey. Or perhaps a chimpanzee.

Whatever it is, efforts to track it down have kept them jumping for two days.

"The switchboard has been jammed with callers who are either reporting the animal or checking their sanity," said community public information officer Thomas Wilson.

The crafty beast has been seen swinging through trees, dangling from utility wires and scurrying through woods, Wilson said Tuesday.

It was first spotted Monday afternoon.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - The Secret Service doesn't find congressional candidate Jack Horn's phony money funny. It looks too much like the real thing.

The bogus money, which Horn is using to draw attention to his campaign, was confiscated and turned over to the U.S. attorney's office, a spokesman for the Secret Service said Tuesday.

When folded, the $10 bills might pass for real currency at first glance. But when unfolded, Horn's name and slogan, "Time for a Change," appear superimposed on the photocopied bills.

The other side of the bill contained a listing of Horn's educational and career background.

Horn, who is challenging Rep. Joseph Minish in the June 6 Democratic primary, could not be reached for comment.

U.S. Attorney Robert Del Tufo said Tuesday he will not prosecute the case. "There was a violation, but in our judgment it was not intentional. There was no criminal intent."

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

By Lyndell Williams

AUSTIN — Texas Public Utility Commission staff members have proposed slashing more than $116.5 million from a proposed $214.3 million Southwestern Bell telephone rate increase.

PUC staffers would allow an increase of about $97.7 million.

Bell sought a 10.4 percent rate of return, but the recommendation would allow 9.3 percent. Based on equity, Bell sought a 14 percent rate, and the staff would allow 12 percent.

Company officials called the recommendations inadequate to meet their needs.

Declaring the company's cost of doing business in the state was $1.84 billion, the PUC staff would not allow these Bell requests:

—Including $245 million in construction programs in the rate base.

—Consideration of $50 million in claimed federal income taxes.

—Allowance of $3 million in advertising and contribution expenses.

—Inclusion of $2.4 million in ad valorem tax claims.

Hearing on the Bell request is scheduled for May 22, and probably will last three weeks.

Average home telephone subscribers would see little change in rates under the staff proposal, and rural rates may decrease slightly, PUC indicated.

Allowable Set

For the 16th straight month, the Railroad Commission set the statewide oil allowable, for June, at 100 percent of market demand.

Nominations to buy Texas crude oil totaled 3.5 million barrels daily, just 6,037 barrels fewer than in May.

Commission calculations anticipate 2.9 million barrels daily crude output during June.

Chairman Mack Wallace reported June nominations for the purchase of Texas natural gas totaled 23,103,367,000 cubic feet daily, an increase of two percent over May.

Wallace also noted crude and petroleum products imports were 7,631,000 barrels daily during the four weeks ended April 28, representing 42 percent of current U.S. demand.

Special allowables were assigned to 11 fields for conservation purposes. June 20 is the next monthly oil and gas proration hearing date here.

Crime Force Rapped

An audit by the governor's Criminal Justice Division organized crime task force rapped Attorney General John Hill's organized crime task force for allegedly operating illegally as police officers and packing guns.

The report also claimed the attorney general has no authority to operate an intelligence agency and criticized poor record keeping.

Tim James, head of the unit, called the report ridiculous, politically motivated and "just plain sorry."

James also made the point that the unit is federally funded, and that no criticism has been made of it earlier when financing of its operations was renewed.

Courts Speak

The State Supreme Court, upholding the Third Court of Civil Appeals, held children of illegal aliens are not entitled to free public education. The same issue is before a federal court.

In other actions, the high court:

—Agreed to hear arguments June 7 on an appeal by Firestone Tire and Rubber Company from a lower court finding that it should pay sales taxes on auto parts used in minor repair jobs.

—Concluded multi-county electric power providers don't have to submit cost and rate base data for every city where they seek rate increases.

—Affirmed an award of an Odessa man who sued Gibson's Discount Center, Inc. for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution.

Low Vote

Nearly four out of five Texans of voting age failed to vote in the May 6 primary election.

The official vote canvass of the Democratic primary showed slightly more than 1.8 million votes cast. Turnout of Republicans in their primary was only 156,979.

Both parties canvassed the primary votes here last week. There were no surprises.

Attorney General John Hill, the Democratic nominee for governor, urged Democrats to unite against a strong Republican ticket challenge in November.

The single statewide Democratic runoff June 3 is between Jerry Sadler and John H. Poerner (appointed incumbent) for an unexpired term on the Texas Railroad Commission.

Short Snorts

Attorney General John Hill urged a district court in Austin to dismiss a suit by Rep. Wayne Peveto of Orange to invalidate the 10-cent state property tax. Hill said the legislature should be allowed to consider the issue.

Gov. Briscoe appointed Raul A. Gonzalez of Brownsville judge of the 103rd district court of Cameron and Willacy counties, succeeding Judge William Scanlan who resigned.

Hill said in a recent opinion Harris County commissioners can pay themselves or their stand-ins $10 for attending business meetings of private groups where attendance is related to duties of office.

Nine applications to sell $32.3 million in securities in Texas were filed with the State Securities Board last week.

John Soule will head the Railroad Commission's transportation division.

The Sunset Advisory Commission will consider recommendations on eight agencies Thursday, May 25.

The Small Business Administration has declared 102 of 254 Texas counties as disaster areas due to drought damage to 1977 crops.

Texas City Residents Panic after Explosion

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) - When an explosion rocked a Texas City refinery early Tuesday morning, many of the town's 40,000 residents, awakened by the blast, rushed from their homes and jammed highways leading out of town.

"It was bumper to bumper," said Cathy Gillentine, a reporter for the Texas City Sun who was aroused by the explosions. "I think people found the quickest and shortest way out of town."

Many of those who fled, like Ms. Gillentine, had heard the stories or remembered themselves the April 16, 1947, Texas City explosion that killed more than 500 people, injured another 3,000 and left $32 million in property damage.

The early count on the 1947 explosion was at first set at 561 but 10 years later, all investigative agencies together announced that the death count had been revised downward to 512.

"I've heard enough stories about the 1947 disaster to remember," said Ms. Gillentine.

The 1947 accident was the worst industrial mishap in American history.

Longshoremen were loading fertilizer onto the SS Grandcamp, a French vessel, when orange smoke began billowing from one of the hatches about 8 a.m. About an hour later, two thunderous explosions blew the ship to shreds.

The explosions were so powerful that two airplanes flying above were sucked into the fireball, killing four men. Most of the victims died in the initial blasts.

Burning chunks of the big ship, like shrapnel from a bomb, spread the fire in all directions. In moments, acres of oil and chemical tanks along the waterfront began popping like cheap fireworks.

At the huge Monsanto chemical plant, tanks of benzene ripped apart and burning liquid washed through the plant where hundreds of people were working.

A chain reaction set off more explosions and destroyed oil storage tanks even as rescuers turned the high school gymnasium and the bowling alley into morgues.

After three days, the fires were finally under control. Some of the dead were never found. Others were never identified.

Investigators said a cigarette thrown into the Grandcamp's hold might have started the fire that ignited the ammonium nitrate fertilizer.

Three days later, as the fire was being calmed, pilots as far north as Missouri still could see the dark stain of smoke from Texas City.

IN WASHINGTON Martha Angle and Robert Walters

Back to barter?

WASHINGTON (NEA) - President Carter is missing the point when he rattles off facts and figures proving middle-income families would gain more from his student aid proposal than from a tuition tax credit.

In dollars and cents, Carter is no doubt correct. But there is more at stake in his fight with Congress than the amount of money any given family might receive under the two alternatives.

The impetus behind the tuition tax credit is as much philosophical as fiscal. Its greatest appeal is that parents could take advantage of it with a simple check mark on their income tax returns — without first shipping their money to Washington and filling out pages upon pages of applications to get it back again.

The popularity of the tuition tax credit is part and parcel of the public backlash against big government and high taxes. Carter's enlarged student loan and grant plan, although welcomed warmly by colleges and the teachers' lobbies, remains just another expansion of Big Brotherism.

People are getting tired of Big Brother in all his guises. Federal, state and local taxes combined now gobble up more than 40 percent of all national income, and those who pay the bill increasingly feel they are getting precious little in return.

It is true that increases in state and local taxes over the past decade have far outpaced the growth of federal income taxes, but Uncle Sam remains the primary target of taxpayer resentment. And no wonder.

Those who pay state and local taxes at least see what their money buys — schools, garbage collection, street lighting, recreation centers and other visible programs. But the people who pay federal income taxes are seldom the same people who benefit from them in any direct fashion.

In fiscal 1977, for instance, 69 percent of total federal tax receipts went for "income transfer" programs — Social Security, medicare, Medicaid, welfare, food stamps and the like.

By any measure that is income redistribution on a massive scale, and conservatives are beginning to draw blood when they rail against such a huge transfer of money "from those who earn it to those who yearn it."

Most taxpayers are not clamoring to get a piece of the government pie for themselves. What they want is to keep a larger slice in their own pockets, to spend as they see fit.

The overt signs of a taxpayer revolt are evident all over the political landscape these days, both in Washington and in the states. But there is a hidden and more ominous side to the rebellion as well.

Although the government prefers to ignore the phenomenon, a "subterranean" economy is growing by leaps and bounds. It is an economy based on cash transactions and barter, unreported and untaxed.

Government figures show that by the end of 1976, some $381 billion in cash for every man, woman and child in America was sloshing around somewhere outside of banks. Economist Peter Gutmann of Baruch College in New York estimates the "gross national product" of the underground economy at $200 billion a year — which represents a tax loss to Uncle Sam of some $40 billion.

Barter clubs are springing up across the country as professionals and businessmen trade services, without reporting the transactions to the tax man. Small retailers are dealing "out of pocket" instead of from the cash register.

When otherwise law-abiding citizens start resorting to this kind of widespread tax evasion, it's clearly time for the government to take a new look at what it is doing.

Cost Outlook To Be Higher

NEW YORK (AP) - Among the items you may expect to hear about over the next few weeks and months are these:

-Higher food prices. In the first quarter of the year they rose at an annual rate of better than 16 percent, and the Agriculture Department concedes that the yearly increase might be 8 percent to 9 percent.

-A better idea of what's in store will come Wednesday, when figures for the April consumer price index will be released, perhaps shocking some economists whose research is conducted in labs rather than stores.

-We know that beef prices will be higher. The National Cattleman's Association has informed us that in the month to May 11, the national average of five beef cuts was $1.89 a pound, up 11 cents from April 11.

-Some non-governmental forecasters are now saying that food prices for the entire year could inch into the double digits, although barely so. But even the minimum double digit, 10 percent, is extraordinary.

-A slowdown in the strong first-half increases in personal income. It was these increases - 1.4 percent in both March and April, adding more than $40 billion to incomes - that staved off consumer bitterness.

-Which such increases unlikely in the second half of the year, and with prices rising, consumers are likely to become more vocal, especially since many of them already are borrowed up to their limits.

-Rising interest rates. The prime lending rate for most banks is now up to 8.5 percent and rising. While the prime does not directly affect consumer rates, it is an early indicator of general market pressure.

Eventually, these pressures affect consumer loans and home mortgage rates, and could force the latter up close to double-digit levels later this year. While this isn't certain, mortgage lenders are worried.

-More corporations are likely to announce they will cooperate with the Carter administration and hold executive salary increases to 5 percent. But they'll be less likely to offer cooperation on prices.

-Recession. Many independent economists are already raising the odds for the beginning of one very late this year. But while the amount of discussion will increase, it does not mean recession is inevitable.

In fact, one of the most positive statements about the economy, that there wouldn't be a recession this year, was issued a few weeks ago by the National Association of Purchasing Executives.

The executives even extended their forecast into the very early part of next year, based on the strength of orders at the nation's factories. After that, it seems, the possibility might increase.

-Considering the negative aura of business news, you'll probably hear little about the economy's pluses, such as the greatest number of workers, and the greatest number of homeowners and homebuyers ever.

Soliciting Lawyers Have Restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) - Lawyers generally cannot solicit business by personally contacting potential clients but may do so, in some cases, when representing non-profit groups that engage in lawsuits as a "form of political expression," the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

Deciding a pair of cases, the justices drew a distinction between lawyers who solicit clients for personal monetary gain and those who volunteer free help after telling potential clients about their legal rights.

The court's decisions spelled defeat for disbarred Cleveland lawyer Albert Ohralik but victory for Columbia, S.C., attorney Edna Smith Primus, who had been publicly reprimanded by her state's highest court.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. wrote decisions for the court. In Mrs. Primus' case, the justices voted 7-1, with only Justice William H. Rehnquist dissenting, that South Carolina's application of its disciplinary rules deprived Mrs. Primus and the American Civil Liberties Union of free-speech rights.

In Ohralik's case, the court voted unanimously that Ohralik's disbarment was valid.

Ohralik, a 56-year-old Montville, Ohio, resident who maintained a law office in Cleveland since 1948, was indefinitely suspended for seeking to represent two 18-year-old girls injured in a car accident.

The Ohio Bar Association and the state Supreme Court found Ohralik guilty of violating professional ethics by recommending his own employment and by accepting employment resulting from unsolicited legal advice.

Such prohibited behavior is called barratry by lawyers, and sometimes is referred to as "ambulance-chasing."

Carol McClintock and Wanda Lou Holbert were seriously injured in a 1974 car crash. Ohralik, who was acquainted with Miss McClintock's parents, visited the young girl at the hospital and discussed the possibility of his representing her.

He later visited Miss Holbert and sought to represent her.

Ann Landers Helpful Referee

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please settle a family fight. It's more than I can handle.

My mother telephoned me this morning and asked me to bring my two-year-old son to the photographer's studio Tuesday for a four-generation picture. I asked who was going to be in the picture. She said, "Your father and me, your grandpa and grandma, you and the baby."

My husband was just getting ready to go to work. He heard the conversation and asked how come he wasn't asked to be in the picture. I then put the question to my mother.

She said, "Because the picture is just of blood relatives." I told my husband her answer and he got very upset and yelled, "I am the baby's father. How can a person be more of a blood relative than that?" He then slammed the door and went to work.

I phoned my mother back and told her I agreed with my husband. If both great-grandparents and both grandparents were going to be in the picture, why not both parents?

My mother then telephoned my husband at work and called him "immature and self-centered." She told him he didn't belong in the picture and accused him of being a chronic troublemaker.

We need an honest referee. Please help smooth out this mess. -- Fireworks In The Suburbs

DEAR FIREWORKS: If both great-grandparents and both grandparents are going to be in the picture, both parents should be included also.

I'm glad your mother doesn't have MY phone number because I don't want to hear what she has to say after she reads the referee's decision.

DEAR ANN: I'm getting fed up with the women's libbers screaming for all the things they think they want but shouldn't have.

Will you please rerun the anti-lib letter you printed a few years ago that started out, "I am bored with liberation and sexual freedom..." Thanks a lot. -- Also Bored With Women's Lib

DEAR ALSO: I believe I have found the letter you want but I certainly don't consider it anti-women's lib. It points out the emptiness of sex when there is no total commitment. I print it in the hope that you will take a second look and read between the lines.

DEAR ANN: I am tired of being a lonely, self-reliant adult. I am bored with liberation. I am up to here with sexual freedom, and sick to death of life without commitment. I wish I had someone to take care of me when I feel rotten, yet grant me independence when I need it. I want a man who has the good sense not to "confess" when he cheats, because I don't care to know. I hate living in a world where love lasts only for an hour and the future is a dirty word. I am no longer able to live by the old rules but I can't find any new rules that work. I'm beginning to feel too frightened to ever love again. I'm a lonely, self-reliant, liberated adult and quite frankly, I despise it. -- Also Confused

Children Might Have Been Saved

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Four children who died in an explosion and fire early Monday in their housing project apartment might have been saved if responding fire crews had not been shorthanded, the head of the city's firefighters' association has charged.

San Antonio City Manager Tom Huebner responded by saying Joe Kierstead, president of the San Antonio Firefighters' Association, was giving a "distorted" view of the situation.

The fire, which investigators believe to be the work of arsonists, killed four of Mary Villarreal's children. Mrs. Villarreal and her three children leaped to safety from a second-story bedroom window and suffered only minor injuries.

The four victims, two boys and two girls, died of suffocation in their upstairs bedrooms.

Kierstead said seven firemen answered the first call, with three manning the pumper and four manning the ladder truck.

"Had they had eight men they probably could have got water on it the fire sooner. A second alarm was called for more manpower. They felt they were shorthanded," said Kierstead.

"I'm not saying we could have saved the four children, but we possibly could have with the right amount of manpower," he added.

More men on the pumper, he said, would have enabled firemen to more quickly bring the fire under control.

Fire Chief I.O. Martinez could not be reached for comment, but Huebner said, "I seriously disagree whether a pumper having three or four men would have made any difference whatsoever in terms of that particular incident."

He said Kierstead, who charged that the department needs an additional 100-200 men in all departments, was giving a "very distorted view of what our staffing in the city fire department is."

Investigators at the scene said the two girls, Mary Janet Villarreal, 13, and Julie Ann Villarreal, 10, had almost made it to their bedroom window. The other victims were Eddie Villarreal, 6, and Jesse Villarreal, 9.

Court Studies Searches

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court agreed Tuesday to study a request by Massachusetts authorities that it ease significantly the constitutional restrictions on police searches.

The justices said they will decide whether criminal suspects' statements ruled inadmissible as trial evidence under the so-called Miranda rule may be used to justify a search warrant.

Under the Supreme Court's Miranda decision in 1966, police must warn criminal suspects of their rights to remain silent and to be helped by a lawyer.

Any evidence gained in violation of the Miranda requirement is barred, under most circumstances, from use in a criminal trial.

A liberal Supreme Court ruled in Miranda that imposing such a procedural requirement on police was in line with the Constitution's Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination.

Massachusetts law enforcement officials told the Supreme Court, now generally more conservative in matters of individual rights than it was 12 years ago, that their state's highest court had unduly extended the Miranda requirement.

At issue is the Massachusetts court's overturning of the 1978 drug-possession conviction of Charles White.

White was arrested in 1975 after running his car off a road in Ashfield, Mass. Police suspected White of being drunk or under the influence of alcohol.

Cain Gets New Job

WASHINGTON (AP) - Harry Cain, the bureaucrat who got fed up with government and quit last month, has found a new job - watching whoever gets his old one. Cain is expected to be named soon as the executive director of the American Health Planning Association, the Washington representative of local health services agencies and state planning boards. A 16-year veteran of the government health bureaucracy, Cain resigned his $42,000 a year post last month saying he could no longer tolerate the "bureaucratic swamp." As head of the 400-employee Bureau of Health Planning and Resources Development in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Cain was particularly frustrated by not being able to fire the people he did not like and hire those he did. In his new post, he will have a staff of eight, not 400 and a salary between $45,000 and $55,000.

Restaurants Much Too Odorous

By HUGO A. MULLIGAN
 WASHINGTON (AP) - Waiter, roll that fiery chuck chariot, that flaming chuck wagon, back into the kitchen. The flambe course is not for me. As one who has spent all his formative years and a good portion of his married life eating in the kitchen, I do not yearn to have the scene and the smells recreated for me at the table when I dip into my credit card purse to dine in the poshest of places. Do the necessary with the steak Diane and le canard flambeau out of my sight and as far as possible from my queasy sense of smell. Never mind flashing those gleaming copper skillets and polish silver cooking urns with a spirit lamp flickering underneath. The hiss of burning fat, the sizzle of scorched suet provide nothing short of a complete turn-off for my taste buds. The reek of garlic, the gestation aromas of sauce Bernaise, the acrid smell of onions browning in hot butter invest my nostrils with a nostalgic revulsion for the old company mess hall at Fort Dix, where the mess sergeant ladled out greasy portions of corned beef hash from the steaming steam table, while little rivulets of perspiration ran down his bare chest and under his dog tags. Why do I always think of that when the maitre d' is standing there in his cut away coat and starched, studded shirtfront ready to pour the cream to my dish, caused the fire that burned down Brennan's great restaurant in New Orleans. "Not here," I want to scream. "Take it back to the kitchen where it belongs!" Does this fear of flambe go back to some childhood trauma, a glob of undigested campfire marshmallow? A coal-black Boy Scout hot dog? I know for sure the short order cook in the diner at the intersection of the Interstate does a better job cooking in public than these aging Tenderfoot scouts in their frock coats and grease-wilted carnations. At least I don't go out into the night with my hair reeking of garlic and the back of my collar stained and singed by the blue flame of cognac cookery. Cuisine au table is fraught with dangers. I was on a Norwegian ship once when they doused the lights for the windup of the captain's gala dinner and the waiters came in with trays of Baked Alaska held on high. High enough to set off the ceiling fire sprinklers. Ananas Foster, a delicious

Controlling acne

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 25 and have a bad acne problem with my chin and the corners of my chin. Just recently the acne has flared up and it seems nothing I use helps. I am not on birth control pills or any medication. Would you please send me some information on what to do or a Health Letter if you have one?
 DEAR READER - In some instances birth control pills help control acne. It depends upon the mix of female hormones used. Acne is usually related to an overproduction of oily secretions called sebum. That forms the white heads and black heads. The fatty sebum is broken down into fatty acids that irritate the tissues and start the formation of the pimple. My best home remedy suggestion is to keep the areas involved as dry and free of oil as possible. You can do that by washing with warm water and mild soap don't use a beauty soap that contains oils or creams in the soap - and wipe off the areas regularly, either with plain rubbing alcohol or a half-alcohol half-water mixture. You can use the alcohol sponge technique as many times as needed a day to keep the area free of oil. Then avoid using any oily preparations on the face. That simply aggravates the problem. If it doesn't clear up, go to the dermatologist. He can use a more aggressive treatment that may include agents to peel the abnormal skin surface and perhaps antibiotics to eliminate bacteria that split the fat into irritating fatty acids. Meanwhile I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, that you requested. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, New York, NY 10019.

 DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 61 and diabetic. Due to being a diabetic and having a hysterectomy my doctor put me on Premarin. I take them three weeks and skip one week. He said it would help retard hardening of the arteries. I've been taking it since 1966. Now another doctor wants me to quit taking it because of the danger of cancer. This is my first week to quit taking it. Do you think I should quit or continue? What can I expect by not taking them?
 DEAR READER - You should ask your doctor what he thinks you will get a cancer of - certainly not your uterus if you have had it removed. And if you have no lumps or evidence of breast disease there is no evidence that female hormones will increase your chances of having breast cancer. There is evidence that taking female hormones will otherwise improve a woman's longevity and health. Health and longevity was quite a bit better in women taking female hormones after a surgical menopause contrasted to those not taking it - that was because of less heart attacks and fewer other forms of cancer. Do you need female hormones? That depends. Some women produce enough from their adrenal glands over the kidneys to get along just fine. These are the women who have few real menopause symptoms. If you are in that category you may not notice any symptoms if you stop the medicine. If you are not you may have menopause symptoms - particularly hot flashes. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Shaggy dog story

By Polly Cramer
POLLY'S PROBLEM
 DEAR POLLY - We are having a problem with our long-haired dog leaving hairs on the rug and furniture. We can never get them out and they get on our clothes, etc. due to static electricity. Does anyone have a solution? - ROBERT
 DEAR ROBERT - Denise and others have asked the same question. The following letters tell us what various readers have done to help solve the problem. Do hope one of them helps you. - POLLY
 DEAR POLLY - Denise wanted to know how to get rid of dog hairs. We have the same problem with cat hairs. I use a piece of nylon net to pick them up and it works wonders. Wad up a piece of net and go over any place where there is hair. - PHYLLIS
 DEAR POLLY - I find the solution for hairs in the house very simple. I just use ordinary masking tape. It even works on carpet lint. I have been doing this for years and it is cheap, too. - VY
 DEAR POLLY - I hope I can help Denise with her hair problems. Our dog stays in the garage but often some of his hairs get tracked into the house and onto the carpet. I cut a piece of adhesive-backed paper so that is the width of my paint roller. Remove backing and put paper around the roller with the sticky side out but be sure there is an overlap so the paper stays on the roller. Roll over any hairy area. Fresh paper will have to be put on as the stickiness wears off. This works great for me. - HESTER
 DEAR POLLY - This is for those with hair problems. I have two daughters with long blonde hair and had to concoct a method to keep my sanity. On carpets I reverse the sweeper attachment and use the bristle side. Pull slowly backward toward you. Hair has so much electricity it will not be sucked up like crumbs, etc. You will have to remove handfuls of hair every few feet when using the bristles because they hang on. I do this about every third time I vacuum. As for the laundry I take care of the problem before I start washing and while I sort the clothes. I hold them up to the light to be sure all hair is removed so it is not floating around in the washer getting on everyone's clothes. All this hair is tossed in a bag and pitched in the garbage. A damp paper towel will remove hairs from sinks, tubs and so on. - HAZEL

Cheating Witnessed In Tots

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) Academic cheating has trickled down to the pre-school set - with parents' connivance, according to school officials and at least one mother.

But the cheating is designed to produce a low grade, not a high one, on kindergarten screening tests, they say.

Johnnie Boone, coordinator of primary grades for the Austin school district, says principals are being advised to look for zero scores on the tests.

Cheating will be discussed at a workshop for school administrators in August, she said.

Why cheat? Because state law gives a child a full day of kindergarten free if he or she flunks the test. All children get a half day free, but families of those passing the test in Austin have to pay $30 per month tuition for the rest of the day.

M.G. Bowden, director of elementary education for the district, said the law says kindergarten students who are economically deprived or educationally handicapped must be given a full day tuition-free.

One mother was quoted by the Austin American-Statesman as saying two of her friends instructed their children to answer "I don't know" to questions on the short oral test.

"I feel if my two friends knew about it, then there must be more," said Linda West. Mrs. West quoted one of the women as telling her if she "had any sense" she would have done the same thing.

"She said that she knew that her child would not be deprived and she's save $30," Mrs. West said.

Bowden acknowledged that parents might be instructing their children to cheat on the test, but "I don't believe there are many."

About two-thirds of Austin's 3,800 kindergarten pupils attend all day, and about 42 percent of the full-day youngsters pay the tuition.

The objective of crosstown busing of schoolchildren was "better education for blacks."

It was assumed, when the Supreme Court outlawed racially separate schools 25 years ago, that enforcing a black-white balance in city schools would result, in better education and eventual social harmony.

In the decades since, taxpayers have invested millions implementing the busing concept—yet in most big cities most schools are now almost all blacks.

In Washington, D.C., more than 96 percent of all public school students are black, in Detroit 82 percent.

Federal judges, educators, HEW officials—all are frustrated in their efforts to do what the Supreme Court has decreed they must do: achieve racial balance.

Now what? U.S. News and World Report sent staffers to key cities in all regions to check up on the black-white ratio in public schools and in all 29 of our nation's major school systems whites are a smaller minority than 10 years ago.

Schools—all the court orders notwithstanding—are resegregating themselves. The obvious explanation is that so many white families have fled the cities that no matter how many pupils are bused back and forth among the neighborhoods, most schools remain mostly black; many of them all black.

Now some cities have been court-ordered to bus city blacks into white suburbs and suburban whites into black city neighborhoods.

A soon-to-be-published book by the Brookings Institute will say that this is the only answer.

Paul Harvey News
Crosstown Busing Boomerangs

Experience of the cities suggests that the Brookings prescription would merely result in further white flight—into private schools.

New York City has given up on racially balancing its schools. New York City schools are now more segregated than ever, with most black and Puerto Rican children attending schools with few, if any, white students.

To bus New York City schoolchildren to suburbs—should a court order it—would be impractical. They would spend most or all of every school day in the buses.

In 1954, New Orleans schools were about half and half, black and white. Now they are almost 82 percent black.

In Atlanta, without large-scale busing, schools have gone from 59 percent white to 90 percent nonwhite.

Now the resegregation of the cities has resulted in another kind of discrimination, as country folks have to pay taxes to support their own schools and more taxes to support city schools. Ohio farmers have contributed $28 million to keep Cleveland schools from going bankrupt.

And that will not be all.

Condominiums Recovering

NEW YORK (AP)—The condominium market is recovering, but don't believe those forecasts of it becoming the dominant form of housing ownership in the future, says the National Association of Realtors.

Prices for condos are now rising at a rate comparable to those of detached single-family units, after lagging for several years because of massive overbuilding in many areas, the Realtors say.

Three years ago, for example, prices in many areas were appreciating at a rate less than one-half that of detached homes, and prices in "some locales declined substantially."

Owners seeking to sell their units faced competition not only from other resales but from a glut of unsold new units. Condo promoters went broke and entire buildings stood nearly empty for months.

According to a Realtor survey, a "more reasonable" construction picture prevails this year. It finds "Both builders and lenders now are doing their homework before plunging into the market."

While prices are said to be improving and demand, it is claimed, is up over a year ago, the Realtors seek to disabuse people of the notion that condominiums are going to replace traditional detached homes.

In 80 percent of markets, the association observes, condos account for less than 10 percent of sales. In small and medium-size towns, mainly in the Midwest and South, they have never gained much acceptance.

About 67 percent of American families now live in their own homes, and for the most part, it seems, they prefer a detached unit on its own plot of ground, rather than sharing facilities or structures.

YOU DECIDE

On June 3, Texas voters will elect one of two men as the Democratic candidate for Railroad Commissioner:

Jerry Sadler, 70, is a twice-defeated former Land Commissioner. Here's what three of the state's leading newspapers have to say about him:

The Austin American-Statesman: "Voters deserve to know whom they will be choosing between in the runoff June 3. Poerner is not a household name; Sadler is. But Sadler has a sorry record in state government. He is the only person ever censured by the Texas House of Representatives (for failure to cooperate with an investigation). He became notorious for attempting to choke then-State Rep. Jake Johnson. He was defeated at the polls in 1970 and lost to Jon Newton in a race for Railroad Commissioner in 1976. And now he's back again."

The Dallas Times Herald: "Sadler has made Texas government a universal target of ridicule and derision."

The San Angelo Standard Times: "Under Sadler, the Railroad Commission just might become the laughing stock he once made of the General Land Office."

John Poerner, 45, is a respected businessman and rancher. John Poerner was elected to three successive terms in the Texas House before being named Executive Director of the Governor's Committee on Aging and Director, Education Resources of Texas.

His honors include being named "Citizen of the Year" in his hometown of Hondo, receiving a "Distinguished Legislator" award from the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association, and being named to the "Agriculture Hall of Fame" at Southwest Texas State University.

He was recently appointed to the Railroad Commission by the Governor.

"Poerner is a solid, competent individual with a record of 10 years of dedicated public service," says the Houston Chronicle. "(We urge) his election."

Pd. pol. ad. to elect John Poerner Railroad Commissioner. Ed Ingram, treas., 1037 Brown Bldg., Austin, Texas 78701

IS THERE REALLY ANY CHOICE?

The Railroad Commission regulates the oil, gas and transportation industries in Texas. Our energy and utility rate problems demand vigorous and responsible leadership. We need John Poerner to fight for Texas and protect what is rightfully ours.
