One Year to Live!

The train was speeding at 70 miles an hour across northern Indiana. Two women passengers were engaged in animated conversation. The one had just finished recounting the terrible experiences of her husband in the South Pacific.

One year to live! What would you do if you knew that this year was your last? No matter what other plans you make, none could be more important than getting right with God.

Getting right with God involves two things. The first is an honest acknowledgement of our unworthiness in His sight, a frank confession of our sins.

And the second is a firm reliance upon the atoning death of Jesus Christ — not only for the sins of the world in general but for our sins in particular.

Whether we have 1 year to live or 50, there still is nothing more important for us right now than getting right with God. Life knows no greater purpose.

NORWICH, Conn. (AP) — "If you wait until inspiration strikes, you'd never get a book written," says Mildred Savage. "You go about writing systematically."

Even with the systematic approach, it took five years of daily work to produce Mrs. Savage's first novel. But the system apparently works: "Parrish," the result, was snapped up by the first publisher who looked at the manuscript, was picked by a book club for distribution to its membership and was bought before publication by Hollywood where it will be made by Joshua Logan. And Mrs. Savage will profit by a sum close to $200,000 for her effort, which even after Uncle Sam takes his cut makes a profitable occupation.

Wife of a Connecticut businessman (lumber), Mrs. Savage is the mother of two children, a housewife by primary occupation and a writer in hours when her family does not have first call on her services. That makes her writing of start at 5 a.m. (which is because she is at her best early in the day) and she has a day a week which she takes off from family chores.

"The book started with a single idea," explained the author. "That was the conviction that almost every person has some person or thing that he leans upon. And to grow up a free soul."

With her theme set, she then looked for a background in which to set her characters. She found it close to her home: the shade farms of the

Student's Robot Helps Sell Boys in Science

By RICHARD DAW Russellville, Ark. (AP) — A little man of the Ozarks, barely three feet tall, is doing his part in America's drive to out-Sputnik the Russians.

His name is Cog and he's a robot. At Halloween Cog greets trick-or-treaters with bags of candy in each hand, and at Christmas he strolls around in a Santa Claus suit singing carols.

"The neighbors think I'm crazy," says 18-year-old Robert Dupwe, Cog's creator. But Dupwe thinks Cog is a good way to get other youngsters interested in science.

The professors at Arkansas Tech agree, and use Cog — with Dupwe's help — in lectures at nearby schools.

Cog is a good introduction to science, says physics instructor Earl R. Williams, who believes the whetting of the appetite by such a device may be the birth of a future scientist.

For four years Cog has amused, frightened and educated folks in this mountainous Arkansas region.

And for all those years, Cog has challenged Dupwe. The Arkansas Tech sophomore continually works to bring the robot closer to the capabilities of a human.

Cog started as a flimsy shell of cardboard and aluminum foil with a speaker inside. All he could do was talk.

Now he's fully motorized and made of sheet aluminum, able to move in any direction, carry things about, even write on a blackboard in a childish scrawl.

In all, Dupwe estimates he has put about 1,700 hours of work and $150 into Cog. He plans to invest more of both.

Three motors power Cog's movements, and a speaker in his neck provides his voice. Red lights are his eyes, blue lights his ears and a plastic radio dial in his futuristic hat.

Between public appearances and sessions at the workbench, Cog stands quietly in the corner of Dupwe's room.

Dupwe hopes to soon free Cog from the heavy, 40-foot cord which carries impulses to him from a control board.

Then, with his metal midge operating completely by remote control, the young inventor will set out to add more embellishments in his never-ending project to humanize his creation.

Connecticut Valley which produce the high grade tobacco wrappers — outside coverings — for the best cigars. "Then I had to do lots of research," said Mrs. Savage. "One day a week I'd visit the tobacco farms, talking to the planters, to the workers, walking through the sheds. I visited libraries and universities and read up on tobacco and tobacco growing. At this point I know just about everything about cigars except how they taste. I've yet to smoke one."

Meanwhile, as a preliminary to writing, she was getting to know her characters.

"I made notes about every one of them," she continued. "I had to know each one intimately — just who they were and how they reacted to each other, things which would not necessarily be written into the book specifically, but all important if they were to be real people."

And finally after that, came the first outline of the plot and the action chapter by chapter. Mrs. Savage worked this out in such detail it was almost as long as the manuscript itself. And finally she started to write. Then she rewrote, cut, pruned, expanded.

"I tackled it like a job, which is what it was," she explained. "And I just don't see how anybody can work on a thing like that without some sort of system."

Hard-work, yes, but apparently satisfying, too. Mrs. Savage is now in the preliminary phases of a second novel — this one concerned with the pharmaceutical business — its scientists, research personnel and its business heads. Her attention was caught when she read the autobiography of Dr. Seiman Waksman.

"The setting will be different," she said, "but I suspect the philosophy of the book will be the same. I think most authors have only one important idea, and we should keep hammering at it."

Dupwe's room. Dupwe hopes to soon free Cog from the heavy, 40-foot cord which carries impulses to him from a control board.

Then, with his metal midge operating completely by remote control, the young inventor will set out to add more embellishments in his never-ending project to humanize his creation.

1958 Poor Year For News-Making Scandal

By VERN SANFORD

AUSTIN — As a news-making year, 1958 lacked the lid-blowing scandals and sensational headlines that erupted from the Capitol in '56 and '57.

But it was a momentous year in many ways. Elections, recession, state treasury bankrupt. Much talk of new taxes.

Many research reports were made — by the State Tax Study Commission, the Texas Research League, the Hale-Aikin Committee. Required reports came from the Board of Water Engineers, Higher Education Commission, and Legislative Council.

All in all, 1958 was a year of surveys, a time of critical self-examination. All the research reports made lengthy stories, little headlines. Few are complete stories. Most will be continued into the turbulent Legislative year of 1959.

A month by month review of 1958, including top news events, both good and bad, depending on your viewpoint, follows:

JANUARY — Gov. Price Daniel refused to be gloomy about state finances. He said he wasn't convinced the State Treasury would be in the red by 1959, as some said, nor of the need for new taxes.

New State Water Planning Board set up shop with the aim of doubling Texas' water storage capacity. Land Commissioner Earl Rudder resigned to become A&M Vice President. Bill Allborn of Brownwood succeeded Rudder. Rival groups of optometrists squared off in a court battle to decide legality of price advertising.

Early-day satellites swirled overhead and a lot of people were worrying whether our schools were as good as Russia's. Hale-Aikin Committee asked for grass-roots suggestions for school improvement.

FEBRUARY — Gov. Daniel proposed that precinct convention be abolished and that delegates to the county convention be named by direct primary vote. It was a surprise counter-move to the "code of ethics" campaign being conducted by the DOT as part of its drive to wrest party control from the governor.

State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert predicted a $12,000,000 state revenue deficit and need for $100,000,000 in new taxes by 1959. Economists announced bluntly that there was a recession.

MARCH — Texas oil allowance dwindled to nine producing days. Oil Imports Study Commission blamed excess stocks on over-production during Suez crisis, competition since from foreign oil.

Unemployment payments hit a figure double that of a year ago. And many Texas farmers reported it was "too wet to plow."

APRIL — Oil allowance tumbled to an all-time low, eight producing days. But TFC, for the first time in 1958, announced a significant drop in joblessness.

Former Sen. Bill Blackley, Dallas financier, announced he'd run for senate post held by Ralph Yarborough. It was starting gun for summer politicking.

MAY — Eight-day oil production pattern continued. Governor Daniel kicked off a campaign to save 254 lives in '58 by reducing the 1957 highway death toll 10 per cent.

Bureau of Business Research reported the recession "is still very much with us."

JUNE — Election campaigns got into high gear. But as much, if not more, attention focused on the "after-hours" election, the precinct conventions. Prize in the struggle would be control of the state convention in September and selection of party officials for the next two years.

Leading the rival factions were Governor Daniel for the moderate-conservatives and National Committeewoman Mrs. R. D. Randolph for the liberal DOT.

JULY — Primaries returned almost all incumbents to major offices, including Ralph Yarborough to the U. S. Senate and as governor.

Oil was up to nine producing days. Economic analysts pointed to lessening unemployment, hefty bank deposits, said it might be "a good year after all."

AUGUST — Legislative Budget Board wrestled with money requests from state agencies far in excess of expected revenue for 1960-61. Second primary settled who would sit in 56th Legislature, but not who would preside over the House.

Both Joe Burgett of Kerrville and Waggoner Carr of Lubbock claimed enough pledges to be elected speaker.

Leaders of all types of Democrats called for "harmony" at September convention. Oil allowance rose to 11 days.

SEPTEMBER — Hale-Aikin Committee made its first report on proposals to update, enrich public schools. Fiscal leaders in Legislature upped their gloomy predictions on new revenue needs to $140,000,000.

Texas Democrats turned their eyes toward 1960 after a convention controlled by the Governor despite DOT outrage over the exclusion of its members from the Executive Committee.

Commission on Higher Education proposed a more unified study program for state colleges and universities, concentrating graduate work at UT and A&M. Texans debated merits of nine proposed amendments to the state Constitution.

NOVEMBER — State fiscal officials upped their estimates of needed new revenue to nearly $200,000,000. Industry leaders called the oil industry "sick." Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson called for mandatory import controls.

Many public officials were disappointed over amendment voting. Salary raises for legislators and pension plans for county officials got thumbs down.

DECEMBER — Waning weeks of '58 saw a flood of legislative proposals flow into Austin. Hale-Aikin Committee, joined by Texas State Teachers Association, asked more pay for teachers, more courses, longer school year. Others wanted safety legislation, fiscal help for cities, flexible auto insurance rates, small loan company regulation, etc.

State Tax Study Commission made no recommendation beyond its reporting of the fiscal facts of life in Texas. Governor Daniel estimated the state would need $65,000,000 a year more for future spending plus $35,000,000 to wipe out the deficit. He said he thought it could be done without general sales or income taxes.

And the safety crusade moved toward an unknown outcome as officials, joined by newsmen, and hundreds of billboarders, sought to cut the usual holiday highway death toll.

Whatever happens to the piles of data and recommendations in '58, their accumulation made '58 a significant year. It was a year in which many thoughtful people sought to take a grasp on the problems and promise of Texas' future.

H. D. CHATTER Life Back To Normal Routine

By ARGEN DRAPER

Have you ever seen so many Saturdays and Sundays. The last week I have had to listen to the radio to be sure of the date. Hope they are keeping up with it.

It seems that everyone I have seen is more anxious than usual to get back in the groove. People have taken decorations down earlier and gotten back on regular schedule.

Christmas has been good. I have added several prize recipes to my collection. If I have a collection I guess it is good recipes that club women and others have tested and recommended. I wish someone would have the idea of publishing a local cook book. Nothing gives quite as good recipes as a cook book published from local cooks.

I would do my part in assembling, etc. The club women have investigated the publishing of a cook book, and the price of paper and printing would make it cost more than what we usually think of as right for a local cook book.

Agents from some counties say that the books are hard to sell if they cost more than $1. Anyway, let's get some suggestions and see if we can make these choice recipes available.

The club work has already started. Several club presidents have made plans for next year's work and gotten committees appointed, and some of them are at work. The year books will be to you soon.

This is going to be the best year in club work. I feel confident in making that prediction as the agents are following recommendations of the County Program Building Committee, and local people who are familiar with the county conditions naturally will make a better program. One of the main studies will be family economics.

There were only four at the meeting on Social Security. Of course, it was about the worst time of the year to have a program of any kind. Sometime during the year, probably we can have another meeting and have better attendance.

From what I read on the outlook for farm families, more women will be working and more families moving around. Greatest change in eating habits will be additional amounts of Vitamin-C in the diet, and more men and older boys will be cooking.

Mrs. T. J. Parsons and Miss Roberta Campbell are buzzing around tending to the business of the Texas Home Demonstration Association. Mrs. Parsons has the meeting scheduled for Jan. 8, well planned and the programs printed. Miss Campbell is getting news together for the first issue of the Messenger. The subscriptions are 50 cents a year, so get your sub-

Community Holidays Start With Christmas Eve Party

By MRS. OWEN ANDREWS

The Community Christmas program on Christmas Eve marked the climax of the season's activities in this community. The program was planned by Mrs. Floyd Cole and Mrs. Clark Andrews and consisted of a play, "The Big Secret," with Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Miller as the parents and Kent Glenn, Monte Gripp, Jane Cole and Carol Robbins as their children.

Also performing in the program were Bill Cole, Stevie Robbins, Dana Glenn and Karen Gamblin who sang "Rudolph, The Red-nosed Reindeer", and Cheryl Cole, Genie Robbins, Kim, Glenn and Kathy Gamblin who presented a poem.

Mrs. Weldon Stephan read "Everywhere It's Christmas Tonight." Then Santa Claus distributed gifts after visiting with the children. Treats were also distributed.

The traditional program on Christmas Eve at Frio has existed for many years. Mrs. G. P. Owen of Hereford remembers attending such an event in 1909 or 1910. She reports the thing that stands out in her memory of that time is the fact that a ladder was used as a substitute for a tree. It was decorated in gay Christmas trimmings and served the purpose well.

Mrs. Walter Easter, also of Hereford, remembers the occasion. Her mother, Mrs. Nettie Green, was active in such community activities as were other members of the Green family, the Stagners, the Lindseys, Dollars and Stanleys and a host of other pioneers whose social lives centered around a community.

Christmas Day visitors in the D. N. Gamblin home were her sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Shive, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Bearden, all of Hart, Mrs. Alma Gamblin of Amarillo. The Gamblins left Friday for a trip to New Boston, near Texarkana, to visit Gamblin's sister, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Martin and daughter, Delores, and to Sulphur Springs and Paris to visit other relatives.

A total of 40 persons were Christmas dinner guests of the J. E. Andrews family. They included Mr. and Mrs. Charles King, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry King, David and Darlene, all of Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jones, Marilyn, Patsy and Joel, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Sparkman Jr., Bonnie, Tommy and Darlene, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Andrews, Joe and Veradelle, Mrs. Allie Burris and La June, Wanda, Gary and Zadene of Texico, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Andrews and Doris Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hart of Clovis, Mrs. Louis Williams, Zala and Danny of Clovis, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Sparkman Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Clark Andrews, Rocky and Kirk.

Visiting with the Andrews in the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Velton Owens and sons of Clovis and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Andrews were in Canyon Wednesday and Thursday. Her grandmother, Mrs. Burrus, had fallen at her home in Canyon and suffered a fractured hip. She became critically ill in the Canyon hospital Wednesday and died Friday morning. Funeral services were scheduled for Saturday afternoon in Canyon.

James' boat is 8 feet wide and 22½ feet long. He has named it the "Wav-be-waya" meaning snow goose from Longfellow's "Hiawatha."
He started the hull during his vacation a year ago and prefabricated the cabin interior in seven foot sections in his workshop during the winter.

Congress Session Should Start Off With A 'Bang'

the history of this nation. The chances are that it will start off with a decided "bang". At this reading, it would be my prediction that the first pop out of the box will come a number one controversial issue that could well shake political roots clear across the nation. The controversial issue will be whether or not to receive and swear in a new Member duly certified by the State of Arkansas as having been elected.

The newspapers here have reported that objection will be made to the seating of this Member and that the matter will be put to a vote by the House of Representatives. The result of that vote will determine whether or not this Member must stand aside until the House has thoroughly investigated the election at which he was elected.

No doubt efforts will be made between now and the opening of the Congress to compromise the situation and avoid the head-on conflict that would result from such Parliamentary procedure. Whether or not these efforts are successful will depend on the willingness of the self-designated liberal group to yield on the point.

The fact is that they have the votes to prevent the seating of the Member in question, but may not want to display or test their strength on this particular issue. There will undoubtedly be some deep wounds resulting from the issue regardless of what happens; wounds that may last for many years.

It presently appears that the first order of business after the Members are sworn in will be the attempt on the part of the self-styled liberal group to throttle the power of the Rules Committee. The Rules Committee is a screening committee through which most all legislation must pass before being presented to the entire House of Representatives. It serves a most important purpose in providing an orderly flow of proper legislation before the Congress.

It serves as a traffic cop to prevent the flooding of the House with bills from the numerous committees. It constitutes a safety valve on the type of legislation to come before the Congress, and provides an opportunity for legislative bills that have been approved by the several committees to be carefully weighed with reference to the time for the presentation of such bills, whether or not the same are necessary, and whether or not the bills may be advisable when viewed in the light of the fiscal condition or fiscal policy of the government.

The reason that the self-styled liberal group wants to throttle the power of the Rules Committee is because here are a number of bills that come before the Congress each year that these Members would like to bring before the entire House for extended debate or for immediate passage if the mood of the House at that particular time so demands.

Should this power of the Rules Committee be destroyed, it is obvious that the much needed cooling-off period so necessary in the careful scrutiny of bills that are to become the law of this land would be likewise destroyed. This would cause chaos and confusion and could very well operate to the detriment of the entire country. The Congress tried this method a few years back, and found out that it would not work, and that it should be discarded. The first vote that I cast when I came to Congress was a vote to restore to the Rules Committee the power to exer-

The World Calls Her The Necktie Countess

By RICHARD EHRMAN
FLORENCE, Italy — An Italian-born noblewoman, now an American, has built a million dollar business by tying men around the neck — with expensive neckties.

Mrs. Luella Mara Vir Den built her business around two initials — "G. M." for Countess Mara — and a heraldic coronet embroidered above the initials. Although actually not a countess herself, Mrs. Vir Den, widow of New York businessman and publisher Ray Vir Den, is the daughter of one and now lives in a Florentine palace fit for one Her mother was Countess Elisa Gloria of Trieste.

Mrs. Vir Den took her business name in 1938 when she opened a shop on Park Avenue. She exercised jurisdiction over the legislation to come before the Congress. It is my sincere hope that whatever attempt is made to do away with the power of the Rules Committee will fail, and it is my studied opinion that such will be the fate of the attempt by this group should it be tried in this session of Congress.

When these two matters have been disposed of, the Congress will then begin to consider a mass of legislative proposals that may well provide the backdrop to the most hectic session in many years.

Walter Rogers
Member of Congress
18th District of Texas

COUNTRESS MARA — Noted necktie designer sketches new designs at her home, an old Florentine palace.

New York. Here the energetic countess had her first "personalized" neckties for the staggering price — in 1938 of $5 and up. She and a woman friend made them all by hand.

"Friends thought we were crazy," Mrs. Vir Den recalls. "Nobody would pay $5 for a tie, they told us." How wrong the friends were. "They sold like hot cakes. My friend and I worked at night to fill the empty shelves — or at least the empty show windows. But we couldn't keep up with the customers. We tried raising the prices, but even that didn't work. They just came faster."

"We made about a half dozen ties of really fine material and workmanship and priced them at $100 each. They were all gone in a day." Countess Mara's ties now cost from $7.50 to $50. She has well over 100 employees, including artists, clerks and seamstresses.

The countess now lives comfortably in her palace overlooking the Arno River. But she is still her own business manager and her firm's art director and only buyer. She travels regularly to Paris, London and other cities seeking fine materials for her ties made in the United States. The countess says her most successful idea was her design of a tie with the caricatures of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Stalin at the time of the YALTA conference in 1945.

A number of families have gone the rounds in a series of neighborhood dinners, each being enjoyed on account of the geniality of those present and the appetizing repasts set before them. The first was last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Sullivan. Those who enjoyed this dinner were Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Myrick and family, S. J. Dodson and wife, Ed Johnson and family, Uncle Joe Sypert and Miss Lay. The next was at H. C. Myrick's, when the following guests enjoyed a fine feast: C. L. Sullivan and family, Ed Johnson and family, C. E. Smith and family, H. H. Hawkins and family, Miss Lav. And yesterday, on New Year's day, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Johnson had a number of friends — H. H. Hawkins and family, C. E. Smith and family, C. L. Sullivan and family, H. C. Myrick and family and Mayor Knight.

OPEN HOUSE HELD

The couple was honored Tuesday evening with an open house in observance of their Golden Wedding Anniversary. Their daughter, Mrs. Walter Seed, 129 Star St., was hostess for the affair in her home between 7 and 9 p.m., assisted by other children, including Mrs. Naomi Tucker, Mrs. Emma Long and Mrs. Edith Hicks of Austin, and Clinton Jackson and his wife of Hereford. One other son, Billy Bob Jackson, who is stationed in Japan with the Navy, was unable to attend. An arrangement of gold flowers centered the table, which was laid with an antique lace cloth over yellow satin. The three tiered anniversary cake, topped with a miniature bridal couple, bore the date of their wedding and the current year. Among the out-of-town guests attending the open house were Mrs. Jackson's two sisters, Mrs. Art Inman and Mrs. George Du Bourdieu of Vista, Calif., who were present at the wedding, and Mr. and Mrs. Al Harris of Napa, Calif.
