

Energy Secretary To Quit Post?

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's flurry of domestic policy conferences is apparently drawing to a close amid heightened speculation his embattled energy secretary, James R. Schlesinger, is about to leave office.

There were signs, too, that after a week of meeting with about 130 official and unofficial advisers and perhaps the most important speech of his presidency ahead, Carter was about to shake up his staff as he tries to deal with the nation's economic and energy woes.

The subject of Schlesinger's departure brought a spate of comments from White House officials, none denying flatly a report he is resigning.

The Energy Department's chief spokesman said Wednesday evening Schlesinger had not resigned. But the spokesman, James Bishop Jr., stopped short of denying the secretary was being fired.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said the report was "uninformed speculation."

One sign the president was beginning work on a speech to the nation summing up his seminars was the presence Wednesday at the Camp David retreat of Hendrik Hertzberg, a key speechwriter.

Powell said no date has been set for Carter's return to Washington, but he said "for the next couple of days or so, he will be here at Camp David."

This fueled speculation that Carter was planning to remain there working on an address that could be delivered Sunday evening before he sets out on a planned trip to the Midwest on Monday.

Powell said during the remainder of his stay at the hideaway in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains, Carter would review options for reducing oil imports and reviving the economy in the face of an approaching recession.

A White House aide, who asked to remain anonymous, said the president had made no final decision related to energy, although he was considering "some pretty bold stuff."

Carter is expected to endorse some type of mobilization board to cut through government red-tape and speed up crucial energy projects, said administration sources who asked not to be identified. It was not yet clear how much power the board would have.

An energy task force delivered this and other proposals to Carter Wednesday.

The Washington Post said today the

Skylab Crashes, Ends 6-Year Orbit

PERTH, Australia (AP) - Australians went on a Skylab hunt today, chartering planes and piling into jeeps and Land Rovers to search for the space debris that showered down on southwest Australia like "a train on fire."

The U.S. space station ended its six-year odyssey early today in one of the world's most desolate areas, tumbling to Earth in a spectacular fireworks show in the night sky.

More than 12 hours after Skylab's fiery re-entry there were no reports of casualties or property damage.

The hunt for metal debris centered near Balladonia, a sparsely populated ranch area 530 miles east of Perth where authorities calculated most or all of the space station's remains landed.

U.S. officials estimated 20 to 25 tons of metal survived Skylab's disintegration when it plunged into the Earth's atmosphere about 2 a.m. today 12:37 p.m. EDT Wednesday. Tony Boulton, operations officer of the Western Australian Emergency Service said he believed all of it came down in western Australia.

"It came down like a rainstorm," said Ray Smith, who was camping with his wife at Balladonia. "There were bits to the east, to the north, to the west, all around us."

"It was an incredible sight," said rancher Ray Seiler, 10 miles north of Balladonia. "...hundreds of shining lights dropping all around the homestead. They were white as they headed for us, but as they began dropping the pieces of Skylab turned dull red."

"All the time, there was a tremendous sonic boom as it hit. It must have lasted about a minute."

"Then we could hear the noise of wind in the air as bigger pieces passed over us. Just after the last pieces dropped out of sight the whole house shook three times. It must have been the biggest pieces crashing down."

"The horses on the property ran mad. They galloped all over the place and the dogs were barking. We couldn't calm them down. I've never seen them like more" from their windows.

'United Stand' Wages War On Oil Giants

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The slogan is "Put Your Foot Down" and the attitude reminds you of those people in the movie "Network" shouting "I'm mad as Hell and I'm not going to take it any more" from their windows.

Backed by a small cheering section, Travis County Commissioner David Samuelson and Miami, Fla., lawyer Ellis Rubin announced the birth of "United Stand" Wednesday.

They said "United Stand" will mobilize independent truckers, farmers and "average citizens" to fight OPEC by withholding American food.

Rubin said Iran would starve without American rice and Arab nations need huge amounts of corn oil that only the United States can supply.

"This is reminiscent of the Boston Tea Party. We should call this the Austin Trade Party," Rubin said. "We should tell Russia and OPEC, 'You want food? A bushel of wheat for a barrel of oil.'"

The "Put Your Foot Down" slogan already has been emblazoned on bumper stickers, T-shirts and other typical means by which American advertise their politics to one another.

Samuelson said independent truckers and members of American Agriculture are among the group's early supporters.

"It's not a political movement," Samuelson told a news conference, but both he and Rubin faulted President Carter's handling of OPEC.

Murder Trial Delayed Again

PLAINVIEW — The murder trial date for Loy and Louise Stone, accused of the Oct. 31, 1977 shotgun death of a 15-year-old Dimmitt girl was postponed this week until Nov. 27.

The Stones are accused of shooting 15-year-old Roxanne Casas, a Dimmitt High School student, as she and other high school students drove to the Stones' home at Easter. The Stones contend they had been harassed by young people during that Halloween night.

The trial, moved here from Dimmitt on a change of venue, will be heard in the 64th U.S. District Court, following a motion of continuance from the Castro County District Attorney's Office.

The trial, originally scheduled for April, was moved to July because a Department of Public Safety chemist was unavailable for testimony. The latest delay occurred after two prosecution witnesses were unable to appear in court Monday.

Proposed to give Carter rationing powers. The House energy and power subcommittee was expected to finish work on the compromise plan today, paving the way for anticipated approval by the full House Commerce Committee. House floor action is likely later this month.

While Congress considers future plans,

For Big-City Gas Problems

Labor Leader Blames Clements

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - President Harry Hubbard of the Texas AFL-CIO blames Gov. Bill Clements for big city gasoline shortages and suggests making motor fuel a public utility.

"Clearly the governor has failed to take positive steps to substantially alleviate the hardship that workers in our big cities now are enduring, and I for one am ready to hold him directly responsible," said Hubbard.

His testimony Wednesday before the Senate Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs, which held a day long hearing to probe the Texas gasoline shortage which has produced long lines in some metropolitan areas.

Hubbard compared the situation with the 1920s and 1930s when he said the government helped farmers and ranchers set up electric companies to compete with uncooperative utilities.

"Perhaps we are at that point on gasoline supplies...it is time that we at least begin exploring the possibility of making gasoline a public utility," Hubbard said.

Clarence Johnson, representing the Texas Consumer Association, said his organization fears Texas politicians will use the gasoline shortage in trying to reduce government control of major oil companies.

"Because of the nature of Texas political power, there is a tendency for Texas politicians to pity the 'poor oil companies' who they say have been maligned by unfortunate events, while attacking the familiar targets of the federal government and government regulations," Johnson said.

Johnson criticized the legislature for cutting funds for mass transit and failing to pass a solar energy package. He also criticized Clements for vetoing the funds for solar energy and gasohol research.

"Also shocking," Johnson said, "was the belittlement Governor Clements made of conservation on network

United Way Board Okays Appointments

Deaf Smith County United Way directors this morning approved the appointments of the Rev. Doug Manning as campaign chairman for this fall's fund drive and budget and admissions committee members.

The board, meeting in regular session at Dickie's Restaurant, accepted the recommendation of president Bud Eades to name Rev. Manning, pastor of First Baptist Church, as campaign chairman.

Appointed as budget and admissions committee members were chairman Clint Formby, Helen Smith, Bill Davis, Charles Hoover and Jim Bullard. The committee, which will first meet in early August, will be responsible for scrutinizing budgets of the various United Way agencies to determine allocations.

Eades reported that approximately 200 public surveys concerning the upcoming campaign had been received, with 83 percent stating that the United Way drive "is the best and most economical way to raise operating funds for the youth and adult programs...instead of drives by each separate agency."

Response to a second question showed that 75 percent favored the sale of products such as candy and light bulbs as an additional way of raising operating expenses. Agencies selling products must first obtain permission from the United Way board and not conduct the sales from Sept. 1, to Oct. 31.

The board today also approved the hiring of Carolyn Baxter as part-time secretary, $1,000 advertising budget and the purchase of a $50 desk.

Eades, in other business, said he would appoint a committee to study the United Way bylaws and make recommendations concerning their amending.

United Way directors have established an office at the Hereford Federal Credit Union, 330 Schley. Persons wanting to contact United Way representatives may write P.O. Box 206 or call 364-5220.

Eades said today that Mrs. Baxter would work out of the office. Board meetings will be held every second Thursday afternoon of the month in the office.

Pictures of Jupiter Thrill Earth Observers

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - Scientists howled with glee as beautifully clear pictures of Jupiter and its newly-found ring were beamed to Earth by Voyager 2, now sliding toward a 1981 rendezvous with Saturn.

"Oh, hell. It's wild," raved Dr. Bradford A. Smith of the University of Arizona. "It's been one spectacular discovery after another. This is the most exciting unmanned mission in history."

Smith, head of the Voyager photography team, said the photographs show Jupiter's ring, discovered by Voyager 1 four months earlier, extends all the way to the surface.

"There is structure in the rings of Jupiter," Smith said at a Wednesday news conference summing up Voyager 2's preliminary findings. "We have a very narrow outer ring about 6,500 kilometers wide and an inner ring of thinner matter that goes all the way down to the surface."

One theory about the ring configuration is that it may be composed of mass lost from the volcanic moon or possibly material from a satellite ripped apart by Jupiter's fierce gravity pull, Smith said.

The pictures being beamed back to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Jet Propulsion Laboratory here since Sunday were taken about one million miles from the dark side of Jupiter, the fifth planet from the sun. They clearly show a large portion of the ring structure.

Early findings also indicate similarities in atmospheric movement, including storms and clouds, between Earth and

Filing Not Needed From Pioneer Gas Customers

Agricultural customers and industries served by Pioneer Natural Gas Company do not need to file a Priority 2 Form with the U.S. Department of Agriculture by July 16 as to eligibility and classification as a "priority 2" essential agricultural user.

The Priority 2 Form, available at county ASCS offices, is requested of agricultural users served by interstate pipeline systems under federal regulation.

Pioneer Natural Gas Company, an intrastate utility division of Pioneer Corporation, is subject to regulatory provisions of the Texas Railroad Commission.

Pioneer will be taking actions to assure that supplemental supplies of gas purchased by Pioneer from interstate companies for irrigation use obtain the high priority available under recent federal proceedings.

Fire Kills 41

In Spanish Hotel

ZARAGOZA, Spain (AP) - Fire swept through a luxury hotel in northwest Zaragoza early today, killing at least 50 persons and injuring others, including the 79-year-old widow of dictator Francisco Franco, officials said.

Some of the victims leaped to their deaths from the six-story Corona de Aragon Hotel. Police said bodies were still being found in the smoldering 240-room structure. Most of the guests were believed to be Spaniards.

Carmen Polo de Franco, the dictator's widow, was hospitalized with minor injuries, the Zaragoza clinic said. "I led her to safety from a hotel escalator," an unidentified fireman said.

Mrs. Franco was in Zaragoza with her granddaughter and son-in-law to see her great grandson enroll in a military academy. The family stayed in a private home but Mrs. Franco was alone in the hotel, friends said.

Police reported three or four other guests were plucked to safety from the roof of the hotel by helicopters from nearby Zaragoza air base. Others were taken to safety on fire ladders.

Estes Found Guilty, Awaits Sentencing

DALLAS (AP) - The long courtroom vigil is over for Billie Sol Estes, but problems may have just begun for the former West Texas promoter, who still faces a parole hearing and the possibility of a second trial.

A federal jury found Estes, 54, guilty Wednesday on two of five counts contained in two indictments charging he masterminded a scheme to defraud investors and conceal assets from the Internal Revenue Service to avoid paying $10 million in back taxes.

He could be assessed a 10-year prison term and fined up to $20,000 at a sentencing hearing Aug. 6.

Horton, a Midland oil and real estate businessman, was found guilty on one count of conspiring to conceal assets. That conviction carries a maximum sentence of five years and a fine of $10,000.

Estes, wearing the same wrinkled, dark blue suit he had worn since the trial began June 13, and Horton stared straight ahead, emotionless, as U.S. District Judge Robert Hill read the verdict.

The families of both men began crying. Horton turned to look at his wife and children, but Estes remained in a trance-like daze.

Four Gunmen Face Kidnapping Charge

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) - The four gunmen who allegedly held a woman hostage for nearly four hours Tuesday in Carlsbad Caverns were being held in lieu of $250,000 bond each today despite promises they would face only misdemeanor charges if they freed their prisoner and surrendered.

Dennis Mark, 39, of Riesel, Texas, and David Kuczynski, 28, Eugene Hiram Meroney, 31, and William Charles Lovejoy, all of Odessa, Texas, were arraigned Wednesday before Carlsbad Magistrate H.H. Linneweh on one count of kidnapping and two counts of aggravated assault.

The four appeared unruffled Tuesday night when they walked out of the Caverns and surrendered, but in court, handcuffed together in pairs, they were subdued.

Authorities said they commandeered an elevator about 3 p.m. Tuesday and released their hostage, Linda Phillips, 25, and Carlsbad Current-Argus publisher Ned Cantwell, at 7 p.m. Cantwell had gone alone into the Cavern to talk to the men when they demanded to speak to a reporter.

The men reportedly initially demanded amnesty, an airplane to fly them to Brazil and $1 million. But Cantwell said the men were drinking when he went down alone to talk. He said the men became primarily concerned with "getting out alive" as the holdout continued.

Street-Corner Clinics Vaccinate Animals

EAGLE PASS, Texas (AP) - Veterinary teams set up street corner clinics Wednesday and workers went door to door collecting pets for inoculation in a last-ditch effort to curb a rabies outbreak.

Two children have already died of the disease in this border area of Southwest Texas and northeastern Mexico. A third is critically ill in a San Antonio hospital.

Eagle Pass authorities had urged residents to vaccinate their pets but the response had been described only as "fair." They had hoped to get an 80 percent vaccination rate through voluntary efforts.

The city council then passed emergency measures leading to Wednesday's action.

Four teams set up shop at street intersections in the city limits and two others scoured the county. Each team had a vet, two syringe loaders, two clerks, four persons going house to house and one person who helped with the larger animals.

Police officers were also on hand in case residents refused to surrender their pets.

"If pet owners refuse to give up their animals, we will get them the pets and they will be destroyed immediately," said Police Chief Frank Chavarría Jr.

However, Dr. William Nettles, a state veterinarian from nearby Uvalde in charge of the program, said everyone cooperated with the workers.

But Bishop would not say whether Carter has told Schlesinger his services are not needed.

Carter on Wednesday, one of his busiest days of the week, conferred with more than 40 government officials, union and business leaders, and civil rights figures.

Afterwards, Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit said Carter was "seeking criticism across-the-board. I don't think he ever before listened to a cross-section of genuine friends, dubious allies and outright enemies."

Powell said during a morning meeting on unemployment, Carter said increased energy prices would lead to "an economic down-turn."

Powell said Carter plans to confer later with major corporation executives to discuss the private sector's role in fighting unemployment.

He said gasoline "is every bit as important to our modern way of life as electricity and water," and he added:

"If your committee wants to begin a long-term solution to the problems of gasoline shortages and long lines, I would recommend that you begin exploring the ramifications of making the whole chain of gasoline production and distribution a public utility."

Hubbard also offered these recommendations as "partial solutions" to the gasoline shortage:

Blackout Not Likely For NYC

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Two years ago Friday, on a sweltering city night, a combination of nature, machines and man plunged New York into darkness.

Consolidated Edison says that kind of power blackout is not likely this summer. But spokesman Marty Gitten is quick to add: "Things can go wrong. You never say never."

Gitten's mixture of optimism and caution is echoed by utility officials across the country. Most of those contacted in an Associated Press spot check say they expect to have enough electricity to meet the demand.

They say fuel supplies are adequate and equipment is in good condition. But they also warn that the unexpected could happen.

In some parts of the country, mainly the East, an unusually cool summer so far has helped keep demand down. There also are signs that people are trying to conserve. The biggest potential for trouble seems to be in the Middle Atlantic states and in Northern California where the shutdown of nuclear facilities has left utilities with less power than they expected.

The July 13, 1977, blackout occurred when lightning hit several power lines running from upstate New York to the city. Mechanical devices designed to limit the damage failed and, by the time the Con Ed controller on duty reacted, the entire system was out.

Gitten said the company, which supplies power to New York and some of its northern suburbs, has "sufficient capacity to meet demand." He said several upstate plants have been added to the system since the 1977 blackout and added that this year, for the first time, Con Ed is importing "a sizable amount of hydroelectric power from Canada."

Energy

Energy Department gave Carter four options for reducing oil imports by 40 percent to 60 percent in 1990.

The proposals reportedly call for slashing imports through a combination of synthetic fuel production, reduced use of oil by utilities, greater production of hard-to-get oil and gas, better insulation of houses and commercial buildings and more switchovers from oil to natural gas heating.

Among the staff changes Carter is contemplating giving Hamilton Jordan, his longtime aide, more direct lines of authority in the role of chief of staff, said an official, requesting anonymity.

Plans also call for "chopping off" a number of second-level White House aides and moving others to the Carter re-election campaign staff, according to another White House source, who also asked not to be named.

This source also said Californian Victor H. Palmieri was under consideration to be deputy energy secretary, a job that will be open in September when John F. O'Leary resigns.

Palmieri, 49, is a lawyer and real estate developer in the Los Angeles area. He is on the board of directors of Phillips Petroleum Co. and has served on a number of federal commissions.

Democratic National Committee Chairman John White, after speaking to Schlesinger late Wednesday afternoon, said the secretary told him there was no truth to the report of his departure.

A friend of Schlesinger's said the secretary plans to resign, but not before early September.

He surmised Schlesinger would leave because he sees himself as a political liability to Carter.

This source, an administration official who didn't want to be named, said Schlesinger has commented privately he has no plans to quit at this time.

Energy Department spokesman Bishop said Schlesinger had stated Wednesday he would continue in his job "until the that before. "After the ground stopped shaking, there was a very strong burnt smell that hung in the air for about half an hour. It's incredible."

"It was terrifying," said Seiler's wife, Elizabeth. "First we heard these gigantic booms. I have heard sonic booms before and these were three times as loud."

The hunt for debris on Seiler's ranch and in the neighboring area began at first light, but was hampered by fog. Authorities in Perth said all available aircraft had been chartered.

There were reports in the United States that pieces had been found, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said, although Skylab barely flew over the U.S. in its final pass. NASA said it would investigate those that sounded legitimate.

The North American Air Defense Command reported that the last and largest piece of the derelict space station lost its forward motion and started to drop over Kalgoolie, in southwestern Australia, about 700 to 800 miles northeast of the Indian Ocean position predicted earlier.

to attach the new rationing measure to a bill giving the president a variety of new energy-conservation powers - including authority to require motorists to leave their cars home one day a week.

The bill's chances of acceptance were enhanced by the approval of a compromise that would bar rationing unless oil supplies drop by 20 percent or more - a decrease roughly equivalent to the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo - or as part of an international fuel-allocation agreement.

The new plan simply says gasoline should be rationed and leaves all details up to the president. If the president tried from angry, upset people.

"I think it stinks that they delayed the descent for 18 minutes so it missed them and hit us," said one housewife in a call to a Perth newspaper. "I don't think our so-called American allies like us very much."

A drifting hulk since the last astronaut left it in 1974, Skylab died as the scientists said it would and disintegrated almost according to plan after one of the most excited worldwide space watches in history.

A maneuver Wednesday sent it into a tumbling orbit that reduced atmospheric drag and prevented it from crashing on North America. It made an arc across the North American continent, swept southwest over the Atlantic and broke apart over the Indian Ocean.

The North American Air Defense Command reported that the last and largest piece of the derelict space station lost its forward motion and started to drop over Kalgoolie, in southwestern Australia, about 700 to 800 miles northeast of the Indian Ocean position predicted earlier.

The crew and 55 passengers of an Australian airliner watched the disintegration from less than 400 miles away, to invoke the new plan, either chamber could veto the plan within 30 days.

House leaders have said they hoped to have the new plan approved by the House before the congressional August recess.

In other energy developments Wednesday:

-A House Appropriations energy subcommittee voted to designate up to $25 billion in federal subsidies for synthetic fuel development - far more than the $3 billion proposed in a bill recently approved by the House. House leaders gave the expanded program little chance of passage.

After 4-3 Win Over Canyon

All-Stars One Step From State Playoffs

By MARC HERRING
Brand Sports Editor

PAMPA - The second step to a trip to the state playoffs became a reality for the Babe Ruth 14-15 year old All-Stars last night as they edged Canyon 4-3 in extra innings here.

The all-stars improved their tournament record to 2-0 with the win with a place in the finals of the double elimination event. Canyon suffered its first loss to drop to 1-1 and must play High Plains, also 1-1 with the winner to face Hereford Friday.

Canyon started the game with the look that they were going to derail the Herd express, scoring all three of its runs in the second and third inning while holding the Herd scoreless.

Behind 3-0, Hereford got untracked in the fourth with a base on balls, a triple, a double and a fielder's choice to even the score in the fourth. Don Delozier started the rally with the walk, followed by a triple from Matt Collier. With one run across the plate, Rod Simon belted a double to right centerfield to score Collier and the locals trailed 3-2.

Mike Mason followed with an infield out that moved Simon to third and then an error on a ball hit by Alex Valdez pushed the tying run across the plate.

The next three innings showed strong defensive playing on both teams as neither team got a man into scoring position until the seventh when Canyon moved a runner to third before Hereford could stop the threat.

Simon pitched the entire game, striking out five batters. The defense proved to be the difference as Hereford kept the Canyon team off the bases with strong fielding.

The final run in the contest came on a single by Arnold Villegas, who had replaced Alfred Ball in the outfield. An unusual turn of events, which according to manager David Ashby had him wondering, but Villegas in position to score at third.

A delayed steal, which is instrumented as the catcher is throwing the ball back to the pitcher was tried by Villegas, with not exactly the intended result happening. Canyon's catcher recognized the attempt in time and made the throw to second, but failure by the shortstop or second baseman to cover the base let the throw go into the outfield, which enabled Villegas to make it to third.

With one out Ken Cosper then blooped a single into the outfield to push across the deciding run and the win for Hereford.

"We played pretty well defensively," Ashby said. "But our problem was on the base paths as we made some mistakes that should not have happened.

"We did not get very many hits but got them all together when it counted, which is what a team has to do if they want to win."

Ashby noted that Simon pitched a strong game, allowing only three hits. Hereford managed five hits but made use of the opportunities.

In the game Friday, Hereford will play the winner of the High Plains-Canyon game with Hereford going to have to be defeated twice to be eliminated.

Pampa was eliminated from the title picture with a loss to High Plains last night, which followed the loss to Hereford Monday night. High Plains, who had lost to Canyon, 3-2 on Tuesday night, whipped the host team 10-7 to stay alive for the title.

If Hereford wins, the team will be following the path that the younger all-star group, which won their division last week. A win in the 7 p.m. game Friday will send the team to Graham for the state playoffs in the Babe Ruth division.

Kuhn Happy With Picks

NEW YORK (AP) - Commissioner Bowie Kuhn defended the All Star vote by baseball fans, saying he could find no cause for criticism in the teams they chose for next Tuesday night's game at the Seattle Kingdome.

"I think they did a pretty good job," the commissioner said Wednesday. "I'm not certain I'd change much of what they picked."

Several players including Bobby Bonds of the Cleveland Indians and Don Baylor of the California Angels, have criticized the system which turns selection of the eight starters for the National and American League teams over to the fans. It was Kuhn who returned the vote to the baseball public in 1970.

"Player gripes don't upset me," the commissioner said. "That just shows they've got a keen interest in the game. Sometimes they're disappointed but I think by and large they respect the right of the fans to vote. They are perceptive enough to see the importance of the fans' participation."

Kuhn said the fan vote maintained the original idea of the All-Star Game when the mid-season contest between the leagues began in 1933.

"The whole concept of the All-Star Game is to match two dream teams of the fans," he said. "They're the fans' teams, nobody else's. Not Bowie Kuhn's. Not the player's and not the manager's."

Kuhn sees no way around the arguments that the voting always seems to produce.

"Sure, there are quarrels with some of the picks down through the years," he said, "but that's what baseball's all about. It's often a game of controversy and I don't think the discussions over the All-Star choices are bad at all."

The commissioner called the return of the vote to the fans one of the most successful accomplishments of his administration.

"There's been a fair amount of criticism of the fans and the system," he said. "But I think it's time that somebody ought to stand up loud and clear and say 'hooray for the fans.' I think their selections were pretty astute."

"Along the way, you might question some of the weekly leaders, but in the long run, the fans proved to be as knowledgeable as we thought they were. They're doing it right."

Kuhn also said the voting system allows fans to elect fading stars for that one last hurrah for some of them and a sentimental opportunity for the fans to say goodbye. Why not? Remember, it's their game. Over 12 million of them participate in the vote. And I think they do an admirable job of it."

Coaching Changes Grow For Schools

By MARC HERRING
Brand Sports Editor
New faces will abound this year in the Hereford school system coaching staff as seven coaches in the athletic department have either taken other school related jobs or entered private business.

The high school lost four coaches. Roy Shipp, Terry Russell, Mickey Miller and Kenny Barnes have made changes to leave town with the exception of Russell who has been selected to take the assistant principal job at Stanton Junior High.

Shipp, who was girls athletic director and head basketball and track coach for the high school is moving to Tyler, Tx., while Barnes, former assistant football coach, will take over the head coaching job at Stinnett.

Miller accepted the head basketball job at Joshua, Tx., leaving the assistant basketball and baseball position here in Hereford.

Other local coaches leaving will be Gail Barnes, Eddie Helms and Asher Issacs, all from La Plata Junior High. Barnes will be joining her husband in Stinnett as will Helms, who will take one of the high school coaching positions. Issacs will be entering private business.

To replace some of the losses, Athletic Director Don Cumpton announced the signing of two coaches to replace openings in the schools athletic programs.

Johnny Taylor, of Olton, was hired to take the defensive line coaching job and will also work in the track program with the field events. Cumpton calls Taylor a definite asset to the high school program in both football and track.

The other coach hired, Bob Hornon of Clayton, N.M., will be working in the girls athletics in the areas of basketball and track. He will teach at La Plata and coach there as well as at the high school. His job will be replacing that of Gail Barnes.

As a replacement for Shipp, Larry Sowers, who has been coaching at Stanton Junior High will assume the head basketball duties in the high school. Sowers, before coming to Hereford was head basketball coach at Crown Point, N.M., where he took his team to the state finals.

To replace Russell in the head golf spot, Raymond Schroeder, assistant golf and football coach in the high school last year, will assume fulltime golfing duties.

Cumpton reported there are still four positions to be filled, including two at La Plata, and one at Stanton and the high school.

"We lost some real good people this summer, more than what is normal, but we're happy for them if it is an improvement and it appears that it is for everyone of them," Cumpton said.

"A lot of people ask why we can't keep coaches around, and as far as I'm concerned it shows what an excellent staff we have if other schools are wanting to hire them."

49er's Simpson To Play One More Year

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
O.J. Simpson will be doing less running through airports and more running on the ball field next fall - but, after that, the procedure will be reversed.

"One more year and that's it - definitely," vows the star running back of the San Francisco 49ers, putting his priorities in order for retirement at age 32.

"When I was traded to the 49ers by Buffalo a year ago I committed myself to play two years. It's an obligation. I still love the game. Despite my knee problems, I am still physically fit."

"But I have other involvements - particularly movies and TV. I can't do them and do full justice to football. Football is not something you can give just part time to. You have to pay the price."

O.J. insists that he will not change his retirement plans even if he falls short, as now seems likely, of attaining two longtime goals - breaking Jim Brown's career rushing record and scoring a touchdown in the Super Bowl.

Simpson flew into New York Wednesday to present Hertz No. 1 awards to high school athletes chosen from the 50 states and the District of Columbia.

He patiently posed with each of the 52 honorees, flashed 52 separate smiles, signed autographs and had a personal word for every youthful winner.

"Amazing," commented an on-looker. "I don't see how the guy does it. He never gets tetchy or bored."

"Class - the guy simply has class," another was heard to say.

"Class" is the word for O.J., Heisman Trophy winner out of the University of Southern California, one of the National Football League's all-time ball-carriers and the indisputable "Mr. Nice Guy" of sports.

"I like people," he said. "If you like people, you don't have a problem. One of my heroes always has been Muhammad Ali. He likes people, too. He has a wonderful, outgoing nature."

O.J., who underwent an operation on his left knee before last season, ran for only 593 yards but boosted his career total to 10,776, second in the NFL only to Brown's 12,312.

Simpson's football salary is $733,000 a year. He gets a reported $200,000 a year from Hertz, has a lucrative orange juice contract and is kept busy doing movies and TV.

His greatest exposure, Simpson says, comes from the TV commercial which has him running through an airport.

"Everytime I go into an airport, people say, 'O.J., why aren't you running?'" he says. "I will do less running in my new commercials."

White Sox Continue Hold Over Rangers With Sweep Of Series

CHICAGO (AP) - Whether his talent is in his genes is debatable. There is little question that it's in his arm. Steve "Rainbow" Trout, offspring of Paul "Dizzy" Trout, came up with his third sparkling start in a row Wednesday night, rebounding after a rough sixth inning to hold back the Texas Rangers 5-3.

The second-year left-hander for the Chicago White Sox still has a way to go to match the 170-161 major-league pitching mark and 3.23 earned run average of his late father, who spent most of his career with the Detroit Tigers.

He was 3-0 for Chicago last season and is 3-3 this year, having won four hits Wednesday night, retired 13 men in a row at one point and hurled his second complete game out of four starts.

"That guy really has great stuff," said Chicago Manager Don Kessinger after the three-game sweep of Texas. "He wanted to finish. I was really impressed by his fortitude."

"I felt I was going to finish because I was getting stronger. I was determined to finish the game," Trout said.

But he almost didn't make it to the seventh inning.

With the White Sox leading 3-1, the Rangers loaded the bases in the sixth on infield hits by Bump Wills and Buddy Bell and a walk to Bill Sample. John Ellis struck out, but Al Oliver doubled in two runs to tie the game.

"He just dropped his arm a little bit in the sixth but then he got right back on top," said Chicago catcher Mike Colbern. Trout got through the last three innings without giving up a hit. "We had a chance but he just slammed it away," said Texas

Manager Pat Corrales. "He changed speeds and moved the ball in and out."

"I was pretty spent in the last inning but I still had a good fastball," said Trout. Sample, the final batter of the game, drove Rusty Torres to the left-field wall for the last out.

But winning also takes hitting and it was the seventh inning before the White Sox got what they needed as successive singles by Alan Bannister, Junior Moore, Chet Lemon and Lamar Johnson produced the last two runs of the game.

Lemon's game-winning hit was off reliever Danny Darwin, 2-1, who had pitched hitless ball for 3 1/2 innings. "He threw it with something on it," Lemon said. "I was just fortunate to get a hit."

That single gave Chicago its seventh victory in eight games and boosted its record over the Rangers to 8-2 this year and 19-6 over two seasons.

"There's teams you beat up and teams that beat up on you. It just so happens that Chicago beats up on us," Corrales said.

Said Kessinger: "We may beat them a lot but we don't beat them easily."

Pirates Extend Astro Losing Streak To Five

HOUSTON (AP) - After leading the major leagues in hitting last year, Dave Parker is less than happy with this season's plate performance, but the Pittsburgh right fielder is convinced things will change soon.

"I'm a positive thinker, and I believe something spontaneous is going to happen that will lead to my third batting title," said Parker, who was hitting .297 going into Wednesday's game with the Houston Astros.

"It's the law of averages," he continued. "If you're a .290 hitter, you may hit .390 sometime during the season, but you're going to end up hitting .290. I think I'm a .330 hitter."

He only got one hit in four times at bat against the Astros, but it was a big one. He and Willie Stargell blasted their 16th homeruns of the year back-to-back to lead a Pirate onslaught that buried Houston 5-1.

The Astros managed to score first when shortstop Craig Reynolds was hit by winning pitcher Bruce Kison, took second on a Jose Cruz grounder and scored on a close play at the plate when Enos Cabell singled up the middle.

Meanwhile, losing pitcher J.R. Richard was doing a good job of controlling the Pirates, striking out seven of them to run his season total to 151, tying Nolan Ryan of the California Angels for the major league lead.

But the Pirates broke the game open in the seventh inning with five consecutive hits and four runs. Parker led off with a solo shot over the center field fence, and Stargell followed with his homer.

John Milner continued the attack with a triple, and Bill Madlock singled him home. Catcher Ed Ott got a single-base hit and Madlock moved to third on an error by Astro first baseman Cesar Cedeno. Madlock scored on a grounder to second by Rennie Stennett.

The Pirates added another run in the eighth inning when Bill Robinson - substituting for Stargell - walked, stole second, took third on a passed ball and came home on a single by Milner.

The loss was the fifth in a row for the leading Astros, who saw their lead in the National League West drop to 5 1/2 games over second-place Cincinnati, which beat St. Louis Wednesday night.

Houston Manager Bill Virndon said the sudden losing streak isn't due to problems with his All-Star pitching staff or an emotional letdown by the rest of his Astros.

Crenshaw Can Scramble

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) - Ben Crenshaw, hailed as a future superstar when he joined the Professional Golfers Association Tour in 1973, now admits golf is a tougher game than he expected. Although he has won on the tour, wild driving from the tee has caused problems for him, as fellow golfer Tom Weiskopf noted.

"In his first few years on the tour," Weiskopf said, "Ben should have worn red hunting vests. He was always in the trees. That's when I realized what a great competitor he is. He had to be great to get a par from some of those lies."

Macy Home With Broken Jaw; Knight Out On $500 Bail

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) - When the United States men's basketball team takes the floor tonight against Brazil in its quest for a Pan American Games gold medal and its fifth straight victory without a loss, its floor leader will be out with a broken jaw and its coach will be out on bail.

Even though they didn't play Wednesday, the foibles of the American basketballers once again headlined action at the VIII Pan American Games. Even five out of six gold medals for the U.S. track and field team was secondary news by comparison.

Guard Kyle Macy returned to his home in Lexington, Ky., Wednesday for surgery on his broken jaw. The break was suffered Tuesday night when Cuban basketball player Tomas Herrera whacked Macy during action under the basket. Some said it was a punch thrown by Herrera, but television replays made it look like a flying elbow.

A punch of a different kind almost sidelined Coach Bobby Knight.

Knight was released on $500 bail after a trial date of Friday was set to hear charges of aggravated assault brought by a police officer who said Knight hit him in the face last Sunday during an argument over a practice facility.

Knight faces up to six months in prison if convicted.

Knight's charges against the officer, which included assault and battery and violation of civil rights, were dismissed.

U.S. Olympic Committee attorney Patrick Sullivan, who is representing Knight, called the legal action against his client "a miscarriage of justice."

In their assorted specialties, American athletes did very well

Wednesday.

Evelyn Ashford of Los Angeles won her second gold medal in track with a wind-assisted 22.24 seconds in the women's 200 meters. The time would have been a Games and American record except for a wind .12 meters per second over the allowable limit.

The wind abated just enough .05 mps under the limit, for Renaldo Nehemiah to set a Pan Am record of 13.20 seconds in the 110-meter hurdles, beating Cuban Alejandro Casanas handily.

Franklin Jacobs of Patterson, N.J., cleared a Games record 7 feet, 5 inches for a high jump gold.

Olympian Mac Wilkins, Soquel, Calif., tossed the discus 207-8 for another Pan Am mark.

Matt Centrowitz, New York, won the 5,000 meters in 14 minutes, 1.0 seconds.

Paul Pesthy, San Antonio, Texas, collected a silver medal in the men's individual epee fencing.

Barbara Reinalda, Cerritos, Calif., pitched a two-hit shutout to lead the U.S. women's softball team over Canada, 5-0.

In baseball, the Cubans eliminated the U.S. from medal consideration with a 7-1 victory. The Americans beat Brazil 5-1 in roller hockey. And the men's volleyball team outlasted Canada 3-1.

In boxing, featherweight Bernard Taylor, Charlotte, N.C., and junior flyweight Richard Sandoval, Pomona, Calif., advanced to the finals with unanimous decisions in Wednesday's semifinals. But favored flyweight Jerome Coffee, Nashville, Tenn., lost a decision to Pedro Nolasco of the Dominican Republic.

SMU's Lundquist Ready To Train

ATLANTA (AP) - Steve Lundquist is ready to start training for the Southwest Conference swimming season and the Moscow Olympics.

The Jonesboro High School graduate who has received a scholarship to Southern Methodist University for this fall, admitted he didn't train for the just-concluded Pan American Games.

"Sure, I didn't train before Puerto Rico, but I'm going to start needing training now," said Lundquist, who won three gold medals in the Pan American games.

He won the 200-meter breaststroke, the 100-meter breaststroke and swam the anchor leg in the Americans' winning 400-meter medley relay team.

"I didn't expect to win the gold medals," said Lundquist, who for a while held the world 200-meter medley record. "Honestly, I didn't expect to win anything."

He chose Southern Methodist over several Southeastern Conference schools because "they've got a real nice program," Lundquist said.

"It wasn't swimming that was the only factor. I liked SMU as a school. It's small, excellent academically, and right in the middle of Dallas. And I could have a close relationship with my teachers."

SMU Coach George McMillion, who recruited the 18-year-old Lundquist, called him "the finest product coming out of high school this year."

"In fact, I think he's the finest swimmer coming out of high school ever. And that includes Mark Spitz. He's got more all-around talent than any of them. I really mean it and other coaches think so, too," he said.

Lundquist said McMillion is another reason he chose SMU. McMillion is a backstroke coach, and "that's my weakest stroke," he said.

When the 6-foot-2, 180-pounder is training, he swims 4 1/2 hours a day, runs for an hour and then lifts weights for an hour.

"That's when he trains," said local swim club coach Art Winters. "Before the Pan Am games he'd been in the pool only twice the week before."

Part of the reason for the lack of training was his high school senior trip to the Bahamas.

After the summer, the goofing off is over, said Lundquist. "When I get to SMU, it's going to be an all-out effort to reach those Olympics."

Sox Sign Douglass

CHICAGO (AP) - Rifle-armed Bobby Douglass figures control will be his immediate problem, and that could be a problem for batters, too.

That's right: batters. Not receivers.

The 10-year veteran of quarterbacking in the National Football League has been signed by the Chicago White Sox of the American League and sent to the Iowa Oaks of the American Association.

The Sox - run by stunt-loving Bill Veck - insist the 32-year-old southpaw has big-league potential even though he hasn't played baseball since his college days.

"This is not a gimmick," Roland Hemond, Sox vice president, said Wednesday. "If his name was not Bobby Douglass and you saw him pitch, you'd say, 'You've got to sign this guy.' So that's what we did."

Although there is no cure for high blood pressure, it is a controllable disease. If you are on medication for hypertension, be sure to take the medication regularly, urges Carla Shearer, a health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Ann Landers

Forgiveness Required

DEAR ANN: Recently I found a tender, loving letter written by my husband of 30 years. I was touched to think he was writing to renew our love.

As I read on I noted references to places I had never been and people I did not know. Soon it became apparent the letter was not written to me.

I asked him about it and he said, "Forget it. It means nothing." He swears he still loves me, adores our children and does not want out of our marriage.

I want to believe him. I'm trying to forget the whole thing, but I can't get rid of this gnawing pain in my insides. I've been reading all sorts of books on the male middle-life crisis.

trying to rationalize his behavior.

After so many years of believing in and trusting someone so completely, I am crushed. I now find myself wondering where he is every minute he is out of my sight, and I hate myself for it. What's the answer, Ann? What should I do? — Mildewed in Milwaukee

DEAR MIL: What is your objective? Do you want to keep your home and marriage together? If so, forget the past and never mention it again. If, on the other hand, you'd prefer a life without the man, continue to question his every move, check on him, nag, accuse, cry a lot, demand to know more about the past, and in time he'll get fed up and leave.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I don't know if this question is medical, psychological, or one for Ann Landers, but I hope you will answer it for me.

I am very fond of a man I work with. I became attracted to him because he is so friendly and pleasant, has a cute sense of humor and his manners are awfully nice, you might even say "courtly."

The problem is that when I'm close to him I get these wonderful, warm vibrations. Does this mean he is getting them, too? What I am trying to say is -- are such feelings transmitted from one human being to another?

If this letter isn't worth printing, just put the answer in a Confidential. It might sound silly to others but I really need to know. — Blushing B.

DEAR B.: Those "wonderful, warm vibrations" aren't catching, honey, but it may be that Mr. Courtyly is feeling them also.

If he's unattached and available why not invite him over for a home-cooked meal? It would be nice to find out from the only person who can tell you. HIM.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am going with a man who is divorced. He has two daughters, ages six and eight. They are crazy about their daddy and he would do anything for them -- except stay married to their mother, apparently.

What bothers me is that the ex-wife and the girls work together to get extra time and attention from "Jack." On birthdays, holidays -- even Mother's Day -- they want to be "like a family."

"Jack" keeps falling into these traps and seems to think I should understand. Well, I DON'T UNDERSTAND. In fact, I am furious. What shall I do? — An Ex-Wife And Two Daughters Versus ME

DEAR YOU: Your signature tells me almost as much as your letter. I suggest you change your tune and accept the situation with grace. Actually you have no choice -- but you don't know it yet.

Barbecued Chicken Summer Favorite

COLLEGE STATION — Time's at hand for some lip-smacking barbecued chicken.

Texas weather is right for barbecuing, and broiler chickens are one of the most popular meats to barbecue, says Dr. David B. Mellor, poultry marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

For tastebud-tantalizing chicken barbecue, cook slowly over a glowing fire, turning the meat frequently and basting often to keep it moist, emphasizes Mellor.

Barbecue whole birds on a rotisserie or place halves, quarters or parts on a grill. Charcoal or wood fire, open pit or small patio grill--no matter what you use, barbecued chicken is always good, Mellor says.

Some people marinate chicken overnight and use the remainder of the marinade for basting. Others partially cook chicken in marinade on top of a stove and then finish it on a grill. Purists don't marinate at all, but barbecue slowly over an open fire, says the specialist.

According to Mellor, each American consumed 47.6 pounds of chicken last year, most of this being broilers. And broilers should be plentiful this year, with production expected to increase 10 percent.

So, stock up on broilers at your favorite supermarket and get ready for some chicken barbecue, urges Mellor. It's right for a big social gathering as well as for a family event.

Safety Hints Make Summer Picnic Fun

COLLEGE STATION — Your idea of putting on a picnic can mean fun -- or food spoilage, says Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Whether you view safety steps as "trite" or "terrific," they're the key, she says.

KEEP IT CLEAN
Keep hands, utensils, dishes and work surfaces as clean as possible during preparation -- the first safety step.

Control of bacteria will cut down the chances of food spoilage.

KEEP IT HOT, COLD
Proper temperature is equally important.

Use insulated containers to keep food cold or hot. Keep lids tightly closed when not in use.

Newspaper is another excellent insulator. It works for both hot and cold foods. Wrap five or six layers of newspaper around food containers, fold the ends down and secure with masking tape. Even frozen foods will stay safe for hours.

FREEZE SOME ITEMS
Consider freezing some items before packing them for the picnic.

Foods that freeze well are luncheon meats, wieners and meat salads (without eggs).

Luncheon meat slices and wieners will thaw quickly at the picnic site.

Simply take along mayonnaise or mustard to spread on the bread at serving time.

Put unused portions back into the cooler immediately to prevent spoilage.

LEAVE IT CLEAN
Consider others who will use the picnic area after you.

Dispose of all litter or take garbage home in a bag.

Do not leave food leftovers at picnic areas. They attract insects and rodents.

The Beatles were discovered by promoter Brian Epstein.

Newcomers To Stage Coffee

New residents of Hereford are invited to attend a coffee from 9:30 - 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Community Center. The come-and-go affair is being sponsored by Hereford Newcomers Club.

According to a club spokesman, the coffee is being staged as an opportunity for new residents to meet new people and get acquainted with the area.

No babysitting services will be available.

Car Seats Vital To Baby's Safety

COLLEGE STATION — Never allow a child to ride unrestricted in the front seat of a motor vehicle, cautions Lillian Chenoweth, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Starting with his first trip home from the hospital, he should occupy a safety seat especially designed for babies, the specialist says.

For help in choosing an auto restraint for a baby, consider the following features:

*Look for the words "dynamically tested." This means that the restraint has been tested under simulated crash conditions.

*Also, be sure to check that the restraint has passed such tests.

*Use a restraint appropriate for the baby's size with adequate head and back support.

Some brands are designed for early use with a baby. They face rearward initially. Later, after the baby reaches a certain weight, the seat can be switched to face forward.

*Look for straps that adjust easily, are at least one and one-half inch wide and are very sturdy.

Check that latches do not come in direct contact with the baby's body.

*Avoid aluminum-framed car seats that may fold up on impact.

*Older car seats may have dangerous toy steering wheels and unsafe harness systems. Once the auto restraint is selected, install it correctly. Make a habit of using it everytime, the baby-rides.

Stanton Dogie Roundup

In 1949, Shirley Elementary School was opened, offering twelve new classrooms for the children of Hereford. At that time there were 73 teachers in the school system with an enrollment of 1749 students. Six more classrooms were added to Shirley in 1950.

Shirley Elementary was named for T.E. Shirley, a Hereford pioneer who came to this area in 1906 for his health. Mr. Shirley was an active supporter of education from the time he arrived in Hereford. He worked untiringly for the support of Panhandle Christian College, which was being operated by the Christian Church when the Shirleys arrived in Hereford. He was among the leaders in financing of the Christian Church building located at Sixth and Main in 1910.

Records show that at one time he mortgaged his home to pay a debt that was threatening to close TCU. In appreciation, the school has given scholarships to his grandchildren who wish to attend TCU. The land on which Shirley Elementary School stands was given to the public schools by Shirley and his wife, who has extensive land holdings in Deaf Smith, Castro and Floyd counties.

Thornton Edgar (T.E.) Shirley was born in Kentucky in July of 1849, the youngest of 17 children. He came to Texas as a small boy with his father. He was married in Grayson County to Virginia Harriet Bean. Shirley died in 1937 in Arizona, where he had been living with his daughter.

During the years of the late thirties and early forties, many of the rural schools began sending their high school age students to Hereford to school and some of the rural schools closed, therefore sending all their students in to town to school. In 1941, the 12th grade was added.

In 1947, the Hereford Rural High School District was formed and barracks were moved in for the 7th and 8th grades. Parkview School, Hereford's first and only Negro School was opened in 1953. In 1956, Aikman school was completed, and the barracks moved away.

1959 saw the opening of an eight room unit of Northwest Elementary School, a major addition to Stanton Junior High and the completion of the Administration Building and Cafeteria for junior and senior high schools completed.

The Hereford School System became an Independent School District again in 1963. Seventeen rooms were added to Northwest; ten classrooms, shop and agriculture building, girls' P.E. facilities, and the remodeling of the homemaking labs improved the high school campus; the ninth grade was moved back to the high school; and a field house was built near Northwest School and the football stadium was moved from north of the high school building to the location of the new fieldhouse. Dawn School, the only remaining rural school in the Hereford Independent District, and Parkview School were closed.

(Next week - more schools, more improvements.)

Older Adults at Home Deserve Independence

COLLEGE STATION — Older adults say their home contributes the most to well-being and satisfaction, next to good health—especially if it permits independent living.

Many independent-living features will easily "build in" to most homes, making the residence more suitable for an older adult, says Jane Berry.

Dr. Berry is a housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Easy-living features for older adults include wide, "stepless" entrances, doors with special open-close devices and wide hallways.

Also, windows, lighting and electrical outlets should be easy to reach and easy to operate.

Other areas that need special attention are floors, bathrooms, kitchens and bedrooms, Dr. Berry says.

ENTRANCES

Front and back entrances that are at least 36 inches wide permit easy passage of furniture and people confined to wheelchairs.

To reduce the chance of falls at entrances, you can replace steps with a ramp or incline with a rise of only one inch for each 12 inches of distance. Be sure the ramp is at least three-feet wide.

If steps cannot be replaced, place handrails on both sides—at a height of 30-38 inches upward from the step.

Be sure steps are uniform in height and tread depth. A riser height of seven inches and a tread depth of 11 inches are most desirable.

DOORS

Equip interior doors with locks that have safety releases to they will open from either side.

Also, add handles or lever-type opening devices instead of conventional round knobs.

HALLWAYS

Make hallways 40-48 inches wide to permit easy passage of a wheelchair or stretcher. Wide hallways also make moving furniture and cleaning easier.

LIGHTING

Be sure lighting has easy-to-locate switches so the older adult can turn on a light when entering a room and turn it off when leaving.

Groping for a switch in a dark room is hazardous.

ELECTRICAL OUTLETS

Place electrical outlets 20 inches above the floor—for easy access. Make sure outlets are not covered by furniture.

WINDOWS

Provide easy ways for the older adult to control uncomfortable glare from windows. Also, make sure windows are easy to open, close and lock.

FLOORS

Non-skid floors are a must. Floors are a threat when they have a high gloss or shine. It is important to make sure they are not slippery—and do not look slippery.

Use minimum-care flooring that does not need scrubbing, waxing or frequent cleaning.

Wall-to-wall carpeting—with short or medium-length pile—is recommended.

Avoid long, stringy yarns, and avoid throw rugs or area rugs.

Tack curling edges down, using tacks or double-faced tape.

BATHROOMS

Because the older person often needs assistance, be sure bathrooms are large enough to accommodate two people without crowding.

Grab bars installed by toilets and bathtubs are safety "musts." Be sure they are properly secured to framing members, such as wall studs.

Make sure water faucet handles are easy to regulate to prevent burns. A handheld shower offers real advantages.

KITCHEN

A chair for resting between tasks and a safe range are two musts for kitchens.

Electric ranges avoid accidentally escaping gas, and front or side-panel controls prevent accidental burns.

BEDROOMS

For easy bedmaking, make sure there are at least 22 inches of space at the sides and foot of each bed.

Gloria Cano, Mary Williamson and Fran Ambold were recognized as the "best losers" Monday evening during the quarterly Fun Night of the city's TOPS chapters. Approximately 40 TOPS members attended the meeting in the library's Heritage Room. Chapters represented were #918, #941 and #576. Members of Chapter #1011 did not attend the Fun Night because it conflicted with a previously-scheduled program. (Brand photo by Tommy Weaver)

Food Facts Explains Inflation

COLLEGE STATION — "We're going to have to face facts about food costs."

"That is, if we're going to keep our financial heads above water in these days of inflated costs for everything," says Gwendolyn Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist.

Mrs. Clyatt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

FACT 1 -- Food prices were going up slower than prices for other things in the past.

Now they are going up at about the same rate.

FACT 2 -- All grocery stores are in business to make money.

This is no bad thing, because it encourages stores to provide brands, kinds and varieties of food—along with kinds and cuts of meat and services—that we, the consumers, want to buy.

Grocery stores can stay in business only if they provide us with what we want at the best possible prices.

FACT 3 -- Roughly one-third of our food budgets go for meat, so when there are "specials" on meat, we're likely to save more money per item than we would on most other "specials."

FACT 4 -- Cuts of meat in the least demand are almost always the cheapest.

These cuts generally take a little more time to cook -- and a bit more attention on the cook's part--to make them tender and delicious, but it can be done and the results are well worth the effort.

Host Families Needed For Foreign Students

More than twenty-five hundred foreign students will come to the U.S. for the coming school year, or for 3- or 6-month periods under the sponsorship of International Fellowship, Inc. This non-profit organization is now in its 27th year and is the largest exchange student program in Latin America. I.F.I. also maintains chapters in Europe and in the Orient.

These youngsters, scheduled to arrive between September 1 and January 1, will need host homes. They want to live with U.S. families for 3, 6 or 9 months, and attend the high school to which the children of the neighborhood go. High schools, as a rule, are anxious to participate in exchange programs when there is no cost involved.

The students range from 14 to 18. They are recommended by their own schools, screened by the foreign chapter of I.F.I. and for the most part, speak English. They come, not as guests but as members of the family, sharing in the tasks, and the family hosting them may claim them for income tax purposes. Students have their own money for personal expenses and are insured against accidents, illness, prescriptions. The receiving family agrees to provide a bed, three meals daily, transportation to school and church, and laundry. Students may share a room.

For each foreign student attending a U.S. High School, that school is eligible to send a student abroad. The scholarship fee includes Transportation both ways, room, board, tuition, insurance and services of the I.F.I. chapter in the foreign country.

Families willing to host a student may write or call collect to the Western Office of International Fellowship, Inc., Post Office Box 1212, Sedona, Arizona 86336, or call the principal or other concerned educator at the local high school and ask him to contact I.F.I.

In an era when peaceful international relations depends more and more on one nation's sympathetic understanding of another's culture and problems, such programs can be valuable. The foreign student who gets a chance to sample family and school life here will return to his own country with a better understanding of this nation.

And it is from their ranks that the foreign leaders of tomorrow may come. So in addition to broadening the horizons of the visiting student and the people he or she meets, the Student Exchange Program, in a small way, may further the cause of international peace.

COMMENTARY THE U.S. AND YOU

William Steif
Everyone knows the cost of food is zooming upward. But what if you — or your friends — are living on a very small, fixed income, such as Social Security or a veteran's pension?
That's where the crunch comes. And that's what food stamps are for.
Since Jan. 1, food stamps have been free. If you qualify, they won't cost you anything (of course, they're going to cost U.S. taxpayers more than $7 billion in 1979).
The Agriculture Department's food stamp program began on an experimental basis in 1961, but it didn't go nationwide until 1974. The original idea was for the federal government to sell poor people stamps worth two or three times their purchase price when used to buy groceries.
The trouble with that was that several million people didn't have enough money to buy the stamps. At the other end of the spectrum, some students, owners of luxury cars and others who might not really need the stamps were getting them.
So Congress in late 1977 directed that the stamps become free last Jan. 1 and "indexed" them so that their value rises every six months with the increase in the cost of food. Congress also incorporated new, simpler rules in the law, making it easier for older people to get the stamps and eliminating marginal people.
Result: By April 1 there were 19.1 million people in the U.S. getting food stamps, more than three million above the 1978 average.
But that still leaves eight to 10 million Americans who would be eligible if they applied.
A family of four with a $2,000-a-year net income will get $154 worth of food stamps monthly, starting July 1. That's when the latest, 6.8 percent increase in the stamps' value goes into effect.
A family of four with a net yearly income of $4,000 will get $106 worth of stamps monthly. A family of four with a net yearly income of $6,000 will get $54 worth of stamps monthly. Even $54 can buy a lot of groceries.
The stamps are used like cash at most stores, but they can only be used for food, and seed and plants to grow food. Although food stamps are federally funded, the program is run through state public assistance (welfare) agencies. Here's what to do to get the stamps:
— Go to your local food stamp office, get an application form, fill it in. If you qualify, you'll get stamps within 30 days.
— After you've applied, you or someone in your household will be interviewed by a food stamp worker. If you're handicapped, or 65 or older, you can be interviewed at home or by phone.
— You have to prove you're a U.S. citizen or a legal alien. Most able-bodied persons 18 to 60 must register to work and accept offers of stable jobs.
— All households are permitted up to $1,750 worth of resources, and households of two persons or more in which at least one member is 60 or older are permitted up to $3,000. You must also show what your income is, and you get some deductions to see if your net monthly income makes you eligible.
— The food stamp office notifies you about your eligibility, tells you how many stamps you get, when you must re-apply, and sends a food stamp identification card. If you're rejected or are given fewer stamps than you think you should get, you can appeal.
To qualify for food stamps, a family of four must have a net income of no more than $7,152 for the year ending in October. Net income means a gross income of slightly more than $10,000.
Best way to go about applying for the stamps is to call the toll-free information number, 800-555-1212, and ask for the toll-free number of the Food Stamp Hotline in your state. Every state has a free Food-Stamp Hotline. The person who answers your call can direct you to the food stamp office nearest you.

Personalizing Weddings

NEW YORK (NEA) — Traditional weddings — those beginning with "Here Comes the Bride" and ending with "I now pronounce you man and wife" — are rapidly becoming things of the past. They are being replaced by ceremonies that better reflect the personalities and lifestyles of their principals.

"Many contemporary couples object to the idea of a carbon-copy wedding," says Colorado writer Susan Polis Schutz. "They would prefer to take part in a ceremony that is relevant and expressive of their own lives."

But many are not sure how to plan such ceremonies. Inspired by a traditional wedding that she found ill-suited to the bride and groom, Mrs. Schutz began work on her latest book, "Expressing Our Love," which offers suggestions and readings for personalized ceremonies.

Mrs. Schutz stresses that a wedding need not take place on a mountain peak at sunrise to qualify as original.

"To give your wedding an individualized touch, you should have the freedom to do as little or as much as you want," she says. It could simply mean adding a favorite poem or song to the standard ceremony.

Mrs. Schutz offers a checklist to consider in personalizing your wedding:

- When will we get married? What time of year? What time of day?
- Will we write any or all of the ceremony? If so, what words best convey our feelings about marriage?
- What poems, readings and music will be included? How will they be performed?
- Where will the wedding take place? If outdoors, is there an alternate plan in case of bad weather?

These personalized wedding vows are excerpted from a sample ceremony contained in Susan Polis Schutz's "Expressing Our Love."

Officiant (to bride): ... will you have ... to be your wedded husband? Will you love him, comfort him, honor and keep him in sickness and in health? Will you share with him your fears and your failures, your aspirations and triumphs, your hopes and dreams from this day forward?

Bride: I will.

Officiant (to groom): ... will you have ... to be your wedded wife? Will you love her, comfort her, honor and keep her in sickness and in health? Will you share with her your fears and your failures, your aspirations and triumphs, your hopes and dreams from this day forward?

Groom: I will.

Song.

Groom (to bride): ... I pledge myself to you, to be your husband. It is my vow to love you and stay by you, furnishing smiles and support, giving challenge and encouraging growth, understanding our individuality and cherishing our oneness. You are my beloved and you are my friend.

Bride (to groom): ... I pledge myself to you, to be your wife. It is my vow to create for us a love that grows deeper with each passing day in honesty, faith and tenderness; a love that will enrich our lives separately and together; a love that respects our uniqueness and celebrates our union. You are my beloved and you are my friend.

- Who will perform the ceremony?
- How many guests will we invite? Who will they be?
- What about invitations and programs?
- Will dress be formal or informal?
- What colors, flowers and symbols will accent our celebration?

Mrs. Schutz suggests beginning work by studying the traditional vows of your faith. Question anything that seems unclear or offensive. (For example, you may prefer being pronounced "husband and wife" to "man and wife.")

Once you are familiar with the standard service, you can decide whether to work within its framework or start from scratch. Check early that the person who is to perform the ceremony is amenable to your plans.

Then it's time to begin writing. Mrs. Schutz suggests breaking the job into sections: opening greeting, wedding pledge, prayer or meditation, marriage vows, exchange and blessing of rings, marriage pronouncement and closing words. After that, devise smooth transitions — perhaps musical — between sections.

Make "sincerity and simplicity" the keynotes of your service, she says. And don't make it too long — a common mistake of those writing their own vows.

Your written words may not translate well into speech. So, read your draft aloud, preferably into a tape recorder. Revise anything that seems awkward.

In selecting the music and poetry or prose readings to accompany your ceremony, keep in mind both personal favorites and the tone of the occasion. Mrs. Schutz notes that weddings have successfully featured the writings of everyone from Elizabeth Barrett Browning to Dolly Parton, William Shakespeare to Leonard Nimoy.

quotes from a person they admire. Some read from their own poetry or from their diaries or love letters.

Take your resources into account in deciding upon music, Mrs. Schutz advises. You may have trouble squeezing a 100-voice choir into a tiny chapel or transporting a pipe organ to a mountain meadow.

You may wish to perform some of the music yourself. Mrs. Schutz recalls one ceremony in which the groom played the guitar, the bride sang and their guests joined hands in a circle around them.

That brings up guest participation, which Mrs. Schutz believes can add a memorable touch to a wedding. She explains that it can be achieved with group singing or reading — or simply by a moment of silent prayer.

The group involvement at one wedding consisted of guests helping put together the bridal bouquet, recalls Mrs. Schutz. Each was greeted upon arrival with a flower and note requesting that the flower be given to the bride at a point in the ceremony.

Once every details of the ceremony is decided upon, walk through the entire service, asking yourselves such questions as: Does the service capture the perfect mood? Does it express our feelings about marriage? Does it reflect our personalities?

If everything meets your expectations, prepare a final copy of the service. It should resemble a play script, including all spoken words, speakers and movements. This document will guide the rehearsal and ceremony.

The fruit of all this labor is not only a memorable wedding, concludes Mrs. Schutz. It also teaches you to work together; that's good practice for the rest of your married lives.

Food-Fad Practices Unnecessary

Over the years there have been many fad diets and unusual food practices including complete fasting, eating nothing but a single food (like grapefruit), protein packing, carbohydrate loading, gargling water but not swallowing it, etc., etc.

Other practices are eating steak and egg to build muscles, taking spoonfuls of honey for quick energy, and avoiding milk in the mistaken belief that it causes cottonmouth and cuts wind.

Practices such as these are not only useless and inaccurate but also may be harmful. Steak and eggs do provide protein needed to build muscle tissue, but an extra serving or two is not going to positively affect the outcome of athletic competition. Honey, glucose, or any other "quick energy" food will not necessarily improve performance.

It may, in fact, hinder performance by giving a sharp rise in the insulin response which can cause premature exhaustion.

Studies have shown that cottonmouth is caused by dryness in the mouth from a decreased saliva flow brought on by one's emotional state. There is no difference in training response or performance either with or without milk in the diet.

According to the National Dairy Council (NDC), the best diet for athletes is the same as that recommended for all individuals — a wide variety of foods. A helpful guideline for choosing a wide variety of foods is the four food groups: the milk, meat, fruit-vegetable, and grain groups.

In addition to the general recommendations for nutrients, athletes may need additional energy due to their calorie-consuming training programs. These extra calories can be obtained from more servings of these same basic foods, focusing on those containing carbohydrate — milk, fruit-vegetable, and grain.

Water is probably the most important nutrient for athletes. During training, especially hot weather training, the intake of water is crucial to health as well as performance. A loss of water equal to one percent of body weight can cause significant changes in the pulse rate. Slightly higher losses (two percent) can also cause an elevated body temperature. With greater losses than this, health and performance are compromised.

Dehydration with rubberized sweat suits is a flagrant violation of safety and should be disavowed by coaches and trainers. For each one pound of weight lost as sweat, the athlete should be "forced" to drink two cups of fluid, preferably cool, plain water.

If water is limited especially in hot weather, great stress is placed upon the kidneys. With a diet high in protein, even greater stress is placed on the kidneys. NDC recommends that the athlete be encouraged to eat normal amounts of high quality protein — milk and meat — and to drink plenty of fluids.

Carbohydrate loading is a practice used by endurance athletes to increase the length of time they can compete at peak capacity. This practice calls for the same basic diet as mentioned earlier — milk, meat, fruit-vegetable, and grain — but has a greater emphasis on carbohydrate-rich foods — breads, cereals, pasta, fruits, and vegetables. With this diet the muscles can store more energy as carbohydrate (glycogen) to be used during competition. An excessive intake of carbohydrate from simple sugars (i.e., honey, sugar) is not encouraged since this will draw water from the extracellular fluid into the intestines and can cause cramps, diarrhea, and even dehydration.

A high-fat diet is not recommended for athletes prior to competition since it is digested slowly and may adversely affect performance. However, fats are important in the regular diet of athletes, says NDC, since they are concentrated sources of calories, a commodity much needed by the athlete in heavy training.

The consensus among those who have studied the effects of physical activity/athletics on nutrition is that the athlete's needs in terms of nutrients are the same as those of the general population.

It is necessary to warm eggs to room temperature only when blending fat, sugar and eggs.

Permanent Press Fabrics Require Buying Know-How

COLLEGE STATION — Easy-care permanent press fabrics need special buying and sewing "know-how" — to avoid possible problems, Becky Culp advises.

Ms. Culp is a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

HOW TO CHOOSE PATTERN
For permanent press—or durable press-fabrics, choose a pattern with few seams and details.

Avoid those with topstitching or pleats—or sharp creases or long zippers in straight seams. Consider designs with button closures instead of zippers.

Also, since these fabrics are difficult to ease, choose styles with little fullness. Soft gathers and folds give best results.

Bias darts and seams look better than straight ones which tend to pucker.

HOW TO CHOOSE FABRIC
Buy only fabrics that are on-grain, since permanent press fabrics cannot be straightened.

Make sure the crosswise grain is at a right angle to the selvage.

Avoid fabrics with uneven color or strong chemical color.

Examine the fold made when the fabric was rolled onto the bolt. Since the fold may be impossible to press out, be sure the garment design avoids using the fold.

Also, look for fabrics with soil-release finishes, since permanent press fabrics attract—and tend to hold—stains. Soil-release finishes aid stain removal in laundering.

Finally, ask for care labels with the fabric. Sew them to the garment for reference.

HOW TO CHOOSE NOTIONS
Select permanent press interfacing and trims, washable buttons and notions with the same easy-care qualities as the fabric.

FRESHIRK FABRIC, NOTIONS

Before cutting, preshrink all fabrics, trims and zippers—by following the fabric's washing and drying instructions.

LAYOUT AND CUTTING
If a plaid or repeat design is off-grain, place the pattern so it follows the design rather than the grainline.

Otherwise, lay out the pattern as usual.

Pin only in seam allowance using fine, sharp pins—since pin holes may remain.

Make as many fitting alterations as possible before cutting.

Once pressed, adjustments may show.

HOW TO SEW
"Test stitch" a fabric scrap, and adjust machine to avoid puckered seams.

For most fabric weights, use a loose but balanced tension, a medium or medium-long stitch length, a size 11 (80) or 14 (90) sharp needle and an all-purpose synthetic thread.

For straight-stitching, use a small hole throat plate—or use a right or left needle position for a multi-purpose throat plate.

Stitch at a consistent medium rate of speed.

To double-check for seam puckering, wash and dry the test seam first.

If you must topstitch, stitch as close to the edge as possible for best results.

Select plain seams instead of double-stitched ones.

Pink or zigzag seams and raw edges, such as facings or hems.

Keep hem allowances narrow to reduce easing, especially in flared hems.

For sleeves, set-in sleeves may look more attractive—and be easier to stitch—if they are set in using the "skirt method."

To do that, leave underarm seams open, stitch sleeve to armhole, trim and press toward sleeve. Stitch underarm seam in one continuous seam.

What is A Town?

A town is a group of people.

It is schools.

It is city government.

It is churches.

It is hospitals

It is industry and jobs.

It is retail businesses.

They all have to work together. All must have the support of the people.

Or there is no town.

Give your local merchant a chance for your business. You shouldn't spend your hard earned money with him unless his selection is adequate and his price competitive. But give him the first opportunity to make the sale.

For the local retailer pays the highest percentage of local taxes. He most often is the civic leader who dedicates his time and talents to his town. He is contacted first for contributions to charitable projects. He provides jobs. Without his store you have no town.

Give the local merchant a fair shake

New Zealand extended the vote to women in 1893, while women had to wait until 1918 in Canada, 1919 in Britain and 1920 in the United States.

An AP News Analysis

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, after blaming the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries for America's economic woes, is now praising Saudi Arabia as a good friend of the United States.

The president at first accused the oil cartel of causing world suffering and possibly an election-year recession in the United States. He seemed to be running for re-election as though OPEC were his opponent.

But now he has gone out of his way to thank the cartel's most important member for pumping a little more oil, promising to ease fuel shortages but swelling for a while the petroleum imports Carter has promised to cut.

The president's zigzag runs counter to the advice given him by his domestic policy aide,

Stuart Eizenstat, who had said "a statement which goes light on OPEC ... will not convince the public that anything is different."

The seeming inconsistency thus leaves questions about whether Carter can seize what his advisers tell him is an unprecedented opportunity to rally the nation, cure the nation's energy sickness and enhance his chances for re-election.

Ironically, the cartel's huge price increases were seen in the White House as a political windfall for Carter.

As OPEC acted, American voters were fuming in gasoline lines, inflation was running at an annual rate of more than 13 percent despite nearly a year of anti-inflation efforts by Carter, a recession was viewed as all but certain and the president's approval rating had sunk to virtually the lowest point of any president since the advent of public opinion polling.

The price increase, while it promised to worsen inflationary pressures and dampen economic growth, gave Carter someone else to blame.

It also added to a crisis atmosphere that may have scared Congress enough to follow where Carter wants to lead.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said the OPEC boost and long gas lines had made Congress more receptive to Carter initiatives than at any time since he took office.

Maybe so. After rejecting virtually every proposal made by Carter over the last two years to curb the U.S. thirst for imported oil, the House passed the president's oil-profits tax and Congress began talking seriously about reviving a standby plan to ration gasoline. Criticism of Carter's decontrol of domestic oil prices receded. Eizenstat wrote a memorandum to Carter dated June 28, which was later published in the Washington Post. His advice: "assert leadership ... shift the cause for inflation and energy problems to OPEC ... seize this opportunity." He said it could be Carter's last chance.

The main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway was opened for public traffic in 1887.

Boston Pops Conductor Dies After Illness

BOSTON (AP) - Arthur Fiedler, the zesty showman who brought classical music to millions as conductor of the Boston Pops, died Tuesday at his Brookline home, a Boston Pops spokesman said. The 84-year-old maestro, who had remained vigorously active until the past year, died at 7 a.m. at his home, Pops spokesman Larry Murray said. On June 9, Fiedler suffered a heart attack, his fifth since age 44.

The hospitalization was the latest in a series of illnesses that began with surgery to relieve pressure on his brain in December, 1978. Fiedler opened his 50th season with the Pops in May. But a few days later, he collapsed backstage and spent several days in the hospital suffering from exhaustion. In November, he was hospitalized for exhaustion, and on Dec. 11, he underwent brain surgery at Tufts New England Medical Center to correct difficulty walking. The illness had forced Fiedler to cancel a planned televised celebration Dec. 17 on his 84th birthday. Fiedler became conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra in 1930, and in the years that followed, he molded it into a Boston institution that lovingly fed classical music to people who swore they did not like classical music. For 10 weeks each spring, he channeled the sometimes forbidding virtuosity of the Boston Symphony into the musical tastes of the "average guy." For most people, he was the Pops. With his stern military mustache and flowing white hair, he led the orchestra through bouncy mixtures of light classics, show tunes and Top 10 hits. Probably the biggest audience of his long career was on the night of the bicentennial

Fourth of July, he led violins, horns, a row of cannons and the bells of a nearby church in a rousing version of "The 1812 Overture" before a brimming crowd of 400,000 people on the banks of the Charles River. The performance was such a success that 325,000 showed up for an encore on Independence Day, 1977. When not conducting Pops concerts in Boston, Fiedler traveled throughout the world leading local orchestras. His schedules would have been numbingly exhausting for most men half his age. For instance, in 1976, at age 82, he made 164 appearances outside of Boston. He delighted generations of audiences with his unconventional musical choices. He was the first to play Beatles' music with a symphony orchestra. Fiedler was born Dec. 17, 1894, in Boston, the son of Emanuel Fiedler, the Austrian-born first violinist with the Boston Symphony.

In 1910, the family moved to Berlin when his father retired. Young Fiedler went to school there at the Royal Academy of Music. But as World War I approached, he returned to Boston. Some lizards can look in two directions at once while others have adhesive pads on their toes that let them walk upside down. Other species, such as the anoles, change color according to their mood, the light, moisture or temperature.

Every night cargo planes bring 3,000 pounds of fresh flowers, several thousand pounds of strawberries, and 10,000 pounds of Chinese vegetables for New York City.

HEALTH
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
B-12 shots needed

DEAR DR. LAMB - I had a portion of my stomach removed because of a bleeding ulcer. Due to my operation I have been told to take B-12 pills and to get B-12 injections to prevent or correct a type of anemia that develops when people have had this stomach operation. My question is, are the B-12 pills alone sufficient?
DEAR READER - You're talking about pernicious anemia which results from a vitamin B-12 deficiency. The anemia is only part of the picture. You can also have changes in the spinal cord causing permanent paralysis if your body doesn't get enough B-12.
I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-5, Vitamin B-12, Folic Acid, Pernicious Anemia, to give you more information on this subject. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.
As The Health Letter I'm sending you explains, B-12 is absorbed into your bloodstream through the small intestine. First, though, it has to be acted on by a substance from your stomach called the intrinsic factor. Without this substance the B-12 cannot be absorbed. After surgical removal of a major portion of your stomach, it may not produce enough intrinsic factor. That same thing can happen to the stomach without surgery causing pernicious anemia. Obviously, if you swallow vitamin B-12 you still won't replace the intrinsic factor provided by your stomach. The way doctors get around this problem is by injecting the vitamin B-12. Once it's injected, it can be picked up directly by your bloodstream and you don't have to depend on intrinsic factor or your digestive system to provide it to your circulation.

So the answer to your question is that you do need B-12 injections, not just pills.
DEAR DR. LAMB - I have noticed that you suggest using corn oil to lower one's cholesterol level. I'd like to know if taking the same amount of safflower oil has the same effect. I'm not quarreling with your opinion, but since I use safflower oil, I'd like to know if it's doing more harm than good. I am taking two tablespoons daily.
DEAR READER - Apparently you have misunderstood my remarks. I do not recommend taking either corn oil, safflower oil or any other oil to lower one's cholesterol. I do recommend that you use one of the polyunsaturated oils for cooking and salads rather than saturated fats.

That doesn't mean I think you should add a lot of fat to your diet. Quite the contrary. The prevailing opinion among heart specialists is that you should limit your total intake of fat of all types, saturated, monounsaturated and polyunsaturated.
You do need some polyunsaturated oils in your diet, and safflower oil is a relatively low in saturated fat and high in polyunsaturated fat. Corn oil has a little bit more saturated fat than safflower oil.
The fat in fish contains some of the most unsaturated fats in our food.
