

Hightower says new attacks are political

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said criticism of the use of funds on a state-federal crop inspection program was based on partisan political attacks.

On Wednesday, The Dallas Morning News reported that a top labor official's relative received $10,000 for writing a report that federal investigators said was almost worthless.

The Texas Department of Agriculture hired Will Rogers, the son-in-law of Texas AFL-CIO president Joe Gunn, to compose a report on a federal-state crop inspection program, whose finances are now under investigation.

Federal investigators said the 12-page report lacked "fundamental research or original thought," The Morning News reported.

The inspectors also said Rogers was hired without the knowledge or consent of federal partners in the crop inspection program.

Rogers, who has no experience as an agriculture consultant, denied his relationship to Gunn had any influence over his hiring. Campaign finance records since 1986 indicate Hightower has received $27,000 from organized labor, the newspaper reported.

Rogers acknowledged the report was of little value.

"To be honest with you, I wouldn't have paid that much for it," said Rogers, a Madisonville farmer, handicrafts salesman and coin laundry operator.

Hightower already is under fire for the use of funds in the Texas-Federal Inspection Service, an agency operated jointly by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the state Agriculture Department to provide crop inspections for Texas producers.

The Morning News reported Tuesday that Hightower and his top aide, Mike Moeller, spent $7,000 for expensive meals billed to the crop inspection program, which is financed by fees from Texas producers and shippers.

Hightower said Wednesday federal farm officials cleared him of improper fund use last summer. The Morning News report used an outdated letter before the probe was resolved, he said.

Hightower said all of the meal expenses were for public functions related to agriculture. He says the most expensive item in the audit was a dinner at La Mansion in San Antonio, which was attended by the Mexican secretary of agriculture, U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza, and Texas Gov. Bill Clements.

Moeller defended all of the charges he billed to the inspection service.

"Each of those charges on my credit card were for business meetings - either Texas-Federal meetings or Texas Department of Agriculture meetings," Moeller said.

Clements, a Republican, called Hightower a "disgrace" and said the Democrat should be impeached.

Hightower blasted Clements' call for his impeachment, saying the governor's brain "isn't linked to his tongue."

Rossanna Salazar, Clements' press secretary, said, "It is unfortunate for the people of Texas that the Agriculture Commissioner continues to respond to serious questions about his integrity with one-liners."

Why?!

Here are three out of 33 memorial markers damaged by vandals at West Park Cemetery on Halloween night.

33 markers damaged by cemetery vandals

By KAY PECK

Staff Writer

Deaf Smith County Deputy Fidel Reyna is upset.

"It makes me angry when someone picks on somebody who's helpless," Reyna said.

The persons picked on: the survivors of persons buried at West Park Cemetery in Hereford.

Reyna is the investigating officer in a case of vandalism which occurred Halloween night at the West Park Cemetery. Donald Douglas, caretaker at the cemetery, reported that a total of 33 monuments were damaged during the night of destruction. Vandals are believed to have struck sometime between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

The estimated cost of replacing the stones to their upright positions is $3,350. That estimate did not include the cost of repair work to the broken stone markers and vases.

The desecration at West Park Cemetery went far beyond any typical Halloween prank. Overturned markers and bits of broken stone are scattered throughout much of the southern portion of the cemetery. Most of the damage appeared to be on the side farthest from the busy West Park Avenue.

Reyna said that the Halloween vandalism at the cemetery is no small time misdemeanor. According to state law, any desecration of a venerated object qualifies as a third degree felony.

The Tuesday night destruction is the third incident of criminal mischief investigated at West Park Cemetery in the past month. In the first two cases, spray paint was used to deface markers and flowers were stolen from the graves. It is believed that the vandalism was committed by juveniles.

"It getting to the point where nothing is sacred to these kids," Reyna said.

Evidence indicates that there may be a number of juvenile suspects in the case. Some of the markers overturned Tuesday night weighed better than 2,000 pounds. A great deal of strength, most probably a combined effort, was needed to unbalance the stones.

If a juvenile or juveniles are apprehended in the case, the parents or guardians of those children may find themselves financially responsible for the destruction.

An adult who is legally responsible for a child ages 12 to 18 who commits an act of criminal mischief may be required to pay restitution for damages, according to Deaf Smith County Juvenile Peace Officer Lupe Chavez. The ceiling of liability in such a case is $15,000 per act.

Summit, er, meeting, plans becoming firm

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. and Soviet officials are jockeying over expectations for next month's summit between President Bush and Mikhail S. Gorbachev, debating whether it will be merely a low-key meeting or a milestone in superpower relations.

Planning for the Dec. 2-3 summit took a leap forward Wednesday with the announcement that the talks will be held in the Mediterranean on ships off the coast of Malta.

An independent republic consisting of five islands, Malta lies 58 miles south of Sicily, 220 miles north of Libya and 180 miles east of Tunisia.

For years, Malta had strong ties to Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi, who stands accused by the United States of being the paymaster for bloody acts of terrorism around the globe.

But over the past two years Malta's government has taken a sharp turn and welcomed U.S. investment.

With the staging area fixed, the White House said planning was underway on the substance of ideas and issues that Bush will raise with Gorbachev.

The Soviets moved quickly to raise the stakes.

"I think that this meeting can just be the end of the Cold War," said Soviet spokesman Gennady Gerasimov. "The Cold War will be dumped down to the bottom of the Mediterranean Sea."

Gerasimov's dramatic prediction stood in stark contrast to Bush's portrayal of the talks as a relaxed opportunity for a get-acquainted session with no expectation of any agreements.

"I don't think we expect substantive results," said a U.S. official.

The official, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said Bush and Gorbachev were expected only to "make sure we have good lines of communication. It is not an area ripe for agreements."

In keeping with U.S. efforts to play down the meeting, White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater beat a hasty retreat after referring to the talks as a "summit."

"Let me retract the 'S' word," Fitzwater laughingly told reporters. "Let's call this 'The Meeting' - the 'Big M.'"

He said the whole trip, including flying back and forth to the talks, would not involve more than three days away from Washington.

The principal subject for discussion is expected to be Gorbachev's effort to boost the faltering Soviet economy through a reconstruction program known as perestroika.

It is spilling over into the political arena, encouraging political reform at home and in Eastern Europe and challenging the Marxist system and the cohesion of the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact.

While Gorbachev is expected to describe his problems in length to Bush, officials said Moscow has given no indication through diplomatic channels that the Soviet leader would ask for specific technical or other U.S. help.

"Asking for direct help would not be suitable," one official said. "It's one thing to talk about your problems. It's another to appear to be relying on the United States for help. The Soviets are strongly independent about this."

TEC: unemployment tax rate going down

There's good news for employers in 1990: for the second year in a row, employers will see a significant reduction in their unemployment tax rates.

The Texas Employment Commission reported Wednesday that it expects to collect $500 million LESS in tax revenues in 1990 than in 1989 while maintaining a solvent system. After years of suffering a depleted trust fund due to back-to-back recessions, the TEC reports a record high trust fund balance this October.

Preliminary rate calculations by TEC have produced the following estimates of 1990 unemployment taxes:

-Forty percent of all employers--those at the minimum rate, will see an estimated drop of $31.50 per employee in their taxes--a 55 percent reduction over the 1989 cost.

-Four percent (those at the maximum rate) will see an estimated $184 decrease in their per employee cost, a drop of 25 percent.

-Fifty-six percent, those whose rates fall between the minimum and maximum, should experience some reduction with the actual dollars and percent of reduction depending on the charges to their individual accounts.

The high tax rates of the past years has caused hardships for many Texas employers, according to the TEC, but the tough times are past. Along with lower tax rates in 1990, there is also a possibility of a tax credit in 1991, adds the TEC.

Service required for disabled drivers

Service stations which offer full-service refueling are now required by law to provide full-service at a self-service price for disabled drivers.

The law mandating this service was passed during this year's regular session of the Texas legislature.

In order to qualify, a driver must display a disabled persons insignia, validation sticker, identification card or license plates issued by the highway department.

The new law applies only to those stations which provide both full and self-service pumps. Self-service-only facilities are not affected by the law.

Station managers or attendants who refuse to comply with the new law may be subject to Class C misdemeanor charges.

Ortega draws criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) - Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega is drawing harsh criticism from President Bush and members of Congress for canceling his country's cease-fire, but they're not ready to resume military aid to the Contra rebels reported to be re-entering their homeland.

U.S. officials said Wednesday up to 1,500 Contras have crossed the border into Nicaragua over the past month from base camps in Honduras, bringing the guerrillas' troop strength to about 4,000.

Ortega cited renewed rebel attacks as the reason for suspending the cease-fire and hinted he might cancel the national elections set for Feb. 25, saying the actions of "Yankee Congress and the Yankee President" will determine whether they take place.

Later, a Nicaraguan official said that country has no plans to cancel the elections, and Ortega insisted in a column published in today's New York Times that the elections will be held and that the Sandinistas will win.

Bush lashed out at Ortega, saying, "The man is so out of step with the other democratic countries in this hemisphere and so wildly insensitive to the feelings of others that we shouldn't have been surprised" by his action.

"On the other hand, I don't think he has unleashed a full-scale offensive at this moment," Bush said in a radio interview with ABC News. "He's hedging his bets now."

Ortega's announcement that he was calling off the truce, reached in March 1988, touched off high-level meetings among administration officials and expressions of anger on Capitol Hill.

"Ortega is a damned fool, and he's always been a damned fool," said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee with jurisdiction over aid to the Contras.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., said, "I can't conceive of the House moving now toward providing military assistance. That's not in the direction of the peace process."

Asked about prospects for renewing military aid for the rebels, White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said, "We don't want to go that route. We want to get free elections."

But some conservative supporters of the Contras began discussing legislative language that could lead to renewal of military aid to the Contras if the elections are canceled or delayed.

The administration said Bush was consulting with leaders in Central America to bring diplomatic pressure on Ortega to reverse course.

Ortega wrote in the Times, "It is now clear that there is little point in concentrating our peace efforts around the single issue of a cease-fire. We do not consider it an acceptable cease-fire when we cease and the Contras fire."

FFA fruit sale underway

The Hereford FFA's annual fruit sale is underway.

The local FFA is using a new fruit company, Allred's Red Fruit Co. of Edinburg, this season. The company's owner, Ronnie Allred, has guaranteed the quality of all fruit this year.

Available will be:
-A gift box with pineapple, large avocados, an 8 oz. jar of honey, red apples, grapefruit, oranges and a fresh coconut, for $16;

-A mixed box with 12 grapefruit, 15 oranges and 15 apples, for $15;

-20-lb. boxes of oranges and grapefruit for $10, and 40-lb. boxes for $15; and 25-lb. boxes of extra fancy Washington State apples for $12.

The FFA is also selling pork items and turkeys for Thanksgiving and/or Christmas delivery.

Meats include a two-lb. pork sausage roll for $5; 24 pork patties for $8; 48 breakfast links for $8; 3-lb. sliced bacon for $8; 8-10 lb. smoked turkeys are $16; and a 6-lb. to 8-lb. boneless pit ham is $18.50.

FFA members will be selling door-to-door for the next two weeks, and delivery will be made by FFA members. Turkeys and meat items will be delivered prior to Thanksgiving, and fruit will be delivered Dec. 11 for the Christmas holidays.

All proceeds from the annual sale enables members to participate in several activities through the year and helps with expenses.

Warmer weather

Tonight will be clear and not so cold with a low of 28. Winds will be light from the south.

Friday will be sunny and warmer with a high near 60. Southwest winds will be 10-15 mph.

This morning's low at KPAN was 17 after a high Wednesday of 37.

Brown sues to open way for candidacy

AUSTIN (AP) - One Republican has announced his candidacy for attorney general, while another says he has put his fate in the hands of a Democratic judge.

Dallas lawyer Tex Lezar announced Wednesday, and called for tougher penalties for drug offenders.

"Drug kingpins deserve to die. Drug dealers deserve to be put away for life," said Lezar, an assistant U.S. attorney general in the Reagan administration.

Lezar also said he would form a "strike force" on his staff to assist local prosecutors in drug cases.

Meanwhile, state Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, who announced Aug. 28, said he has filed a lawsuit in Brazoria County to clear the way for his name to be placed on the GOP primary ballot next spring.

Brown, of Lake Jackson, said he would accept the verdict of state District Judge J. Ray Gayle III, a Democrat, and not appeal if he loses.

The suit is against Fred Meyer, state GOP chairman. The Republican Party could appeal the district court decision to get a final ruling from the Texas Supreme Court.

The suit responds to a letter stating that due to the uncertainty of Brown's eligibility, Meyer would refuse to accept his application for office, Brown said.

At issue is a provision in the Texas Constitution that prohibits midterm senators, such as Brown, from seeking a higher office for which lawmakers helped increase salary or benefits.

The 1989 Legislature enacted no pay raises for statewide elected offices but increased retirement benefits.

Brown was declared ineligible to run for attorney general in 1986 because he had been a member of the Legislature that gave the attorney general a pay raise in 1985.

"I'm going to get this issue cleared up," Brown told a news conference. "I'm going to demand that this issue be clarified once and for all, so that it will not be a factor in choosing the next attorney general of this state."

Brown said the change in retirement benefits would not affect him in 1991. He also noted that lawmakers this year placed a special provision in the appropriations bill to freeze the salary of any statewide office to which a midterm senator gets elected.

But Richard Smith of Dallas, the Texas Republican Party's general counsel, said he wasn't convinced the Legislature had solved the problem.

Plans of other midterm senators, such as Democrats John Montford of Lubbock and Chet Edwards of Duncannonville, could be affected by the outcome of Brown's suit. Montford has been considering a race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and Edwards is seeking the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Besides Brown and Lezar, state Rep. Pat Hill of Dallas also is seeking the Republican nomination for attorney general. Democratic candidates are state Rep. Dan Morales of San Antonio, U.S. Rep. John Bryant of Dallas and Houston lawyer John Odum.

In other political developments: Attorney General Jim Mattox said waiting until spring to act on public education reform will leave lawmakers one option, a massive tax increase.

Mattox, a Democratic candidate for governor, urged Democratic Party officials to call on Gov. Bill Clements to add a state lottery for consideration during the special legislative session that begins Nov. 14.

Clements has refused to add public education to the agenda of the November special session, saying he wants lawmakers to concentrate on overhauling the workers' compensation insurance system.

Rep. Juan Hinojosa, chairman of the Mexican American Legislative Caucus, said Wednesday he will not return to the Texas House in 1991.

Hinojosa, D-McAllen, said after being elected to five terms in the House, he was ready to spend more time with his family and law practice.

Spaghetti donations

Texas ranks second with net farm income of $3.7 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) - Bumper cotton crops helped Texas farmers rustle up $3.7 billion in net income last year, says an Agriculture Department study that ranked the state first nationally in cattle and cotton receipts, second in sorghum grains and third with a growing greenhouse industry.

Texas farmers overall fared slightly worse in 1988 than in 1987, when their net farm income totaled $3.8 billion.

Still, only California farmers brought home more bacon last year, with net income of $6.1 billion, said the USDA survey released Wednesday of economic indicators of the farm sector.

Kraig Gallimore, chief of emergency planning for the Texas Department of Agriculture, said the state's net income would have fallen further last year if not for its cotton yield in 1987-88.

"We made two bumper crops of cotton," Gallimore said. "It was not that the price was worth a dagdum, but the yield. If it hadn't been for excellent yields on cotton we would see the net income figure way down."

Gallimore said a drought now in its second year in some parts of the state has forced some South Texas ranchers to sell off 50 percent of their herds, while others have resorted to costly supplemental feedings for their herds since the summer of 1987.

"There's a heck of a bunch of losses in there," Gallimore said.

Gallimore also blamed the drought for declines in cash receipts for sheep and lambs and the angora goats raised on the Edwards Plateau for their mohair.

While cash receipts for all commodities rose from nearly $9 billion in 1987 to $10.3 billion in 1988, receipts for mohair-goats fell from $42.6 million to $28.9 million, and from $86.6 million for sheep and lambs to $64.6 million.

Texas posted gains, however, in cattle and calves receipts - from $4.6 billion to $4.9 billion - and jumped from $588 million to $643 million for dairy products.

The nursery and greenhouse industry has also flowered - growing from $449 million in 1987 to $514 million in 1988.

Texas' crops overall generated nearly $3.8 billion in cash receipts last year, up from $2.9 billion in 1987,

Navy has string of accidents

WASHINGTON (AP) - The recent string of accidents aboard Navy vessels may just be due to bad luck, rather than a lack of training or poor equipment, congressional military experts say.

But one civilian specialist who's studied hazards aboard aircraft carriers warns that budget cuts in Navy training could lead to more accidents.

"Congress is always trying to cut training budgets. But if a pilot can't practice flying, those on the deck don't get trained either. ... It's a prescription for an accident," said Karlene Roberts, an industrial psychologist participating in a five-year study of Nimitz-class aircraft carriers and hazardous industrial systems.

Overall, Ms. Roberts said, the Navy's safety record "is excellent."

From Sunday's jet crash aboard the aircraft carrier USS Lexington that claimed five lives to Wednesday's fire aboard the oiler USS Monongahela, the week has brought a series of accidents that has left Navy brass shaking their heads.

"Operating at sea is an arduous life, and the lesson is that even at peace time there are dangers," said Rear Adm. Brent Baker, the head of the Navy's information division.

"That's no consolation to the families who have lost sons or daughters. But those who have been around the Navy a long time realize that's why we train so hard and emphasize safety. ... You can't prepare for war at the pier," said Baker.

The admiral called the string of accidents "frustrating. It's a real streak of bad luck."

Sen. John Warner of Virginia, the ranking Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee who served as undersecretary and secretary of the Navy for five years, called the incidents "an extraordinary grouping of unrelated accidents."

Ms. Roberts, a professor of business at the University of California at Berkeley, said that while the sailors are young - averaging usually 20 years of age - they are trained for specific jobs through "a repetitive system that demands attention to safety and accountability."

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, November second, the 306th day of 1989. There are 59 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

One hundred years ago, on Nov. 2, 1889, North Dakota and South Dakota became the 39th and 40th states.

On this date:

In 1783, Gen. George Washington issued his farewell address to the Army near Princeton, N.J.

In 1795, the eleventh president of the United States, James Knox Polk, was born in Mecklenburg County, N.C.

In 1865, the 29th president of the United States, Warren Gamaliel Harding, was born near Corsica, Ohio.

In 1917, British Foreign Secretary Arthur Balfour expressed support for a "national home" for the Jews of Palestine in a statement that came to be known as "The Balfour Declaration."

In 1930, Haile Selassie was crowned emperor of Ethiopia.

In 1936, the British Broadcasting Corporation inaugurated public "high-definition" television service with a broadcast from Alexandra Palace in north London.

In 1947, Howard Hughes piloted his huge wooden flying boat, known as the Spruce Goose, on its only flight, which lasted about a minute over Long Beach Harbor in California.

In 1948, President Truman surprised the experts by being re-elected in a narrow upset over the Republican challenger, Thomas E. Dewey.

In 1959, game show contestant Charles Van Doren admitted to a House subcommittee that he had been given questions and answers in advance when he appeared on the NBC TV show "21."

In 1963, South Vietnam President Ngo Dinh Diem was assassinated in a military coup.

In 1976, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter became the first presidential candidate from the Deep South since the Civil War to be elected as he defeated incumbent Gerald R. Ford.

In 1983, President Ronald Reagan signed a bill establishing a federal holiday on the third Monday of January in honor of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

In 1986, Shiite Moslem kidnappers in Lebanon released American hospital administrator David Jacobsen after holding him 17 months.

Ten years ago: Black militant Joanne Chesimard escaped from a New Jersey prison, where she had been serving a life sentence for the 1973 slaying of a New Jersey state trooper. To date, Chesimard remains at liberty.

Five years ago: Velma Barfield, convicted of the poisoning death of her boyfriend, was put to death by lethal injection at a prison in Raleigh, N.C., becoming the first woman executed in the United States since Elizabeth Duncan in California in 1962.

One year ago: A computer "worm" unleashed by a Cornell University graduate student began replicating, clogging thousands of computers around the country, but causing no real damage.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: With all the bleating and braying about abortion, no one had addressed the issue of the unwanted child.

The beatings I received from my mother for as far back as I can remember were brutal. Every day I was told I was stupid and ugly and that no one would ever love me. My mother asked me dozens of times, "Why can't you be like your sister? I'll never get you off my hands."

I started to run away from that hellish house when I was 5. I got ulcers at age 12 and attempted suicide when I was 13. As I stood with the razor to my wrist, trying to decide between the sink or the tub (which would make less mess) I decided to force myself to face life and I have done it.

Now comes the kicker, Ann. Mom had no financial problems and I was perfectly legitimate. It was my mother who was the unwanted child. She was born when her mother was 43 and had grown children. Grandma ate gunpowder trying to abort, but it didn't work. My mother was put in boarding school from the time she was 6 years old. I realize now that everything my mother did to me was done to her. All the rage and rejection that she felt made her want to get even, and I was the target.

I've done quite well with my children, thanks to therapy and a wonderfully supportive husband. People who are brought up in loving, normal families have no idea what it is like never to know love and acceptance.

The reason I'm writing is to let people know that no matter how lousy their early lives may have been, they can rise above it. When you tell your readers to get counseling, it is not a cop-out, it's darned good advice. I learned from my counselor why my mother treated me the way she did and I stopped hating her. I also came to understand that the hideous chain can be broken and I was determined to break it. -- Raleigh, N.C.

DEAR RALEIGH: Thanks for a letter that will open a lot of eyes. I hope every mother who is physically rough on her children will ask herself, "Am I getting even for the way my mother treated me?" This could be the first step in recovery.

Child abusers are sick. They need help. I hope those of you who see yourself in this letter will get counseling. If you want more information on where to go, contact Parents Anonymous, 6733 S. Sepulveda Blvd., Suite 270, Los Angeles, CA. 90045.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband would like to know if he should ask his mother if he is included in her will.

His mother has always been very generous to her daughters (big expensive weddings) while my husband and I were not even given a wedding present. For Christmas we always received cheap gifts and birthdays and anniversaries nothing at all.

When my husband's father died, our son was not asked to be a pallbearer. All the other grandsons were asked. We have never been treated fairly by my mother-in-law. Now we are looking ahead and want to know what we can expect, if anything. Back to the question, Ann. Should my husband ask his mother this important question? -- Wisconsin Readers

DEAR WIS: My answer is no. Your husband's mother will leave him whatever she pleases. Asking what her intentions are won't change a thing. It will only look as if he is impatient and can't wait for her to kick off.

Applying finishing touches

Johnny and Martha Rickman, and daughter, Susan, are preparing wooden animals for the Westway Extension Homemakers Club's annual Arts and Crafts Christmas Bazaar. The event will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center Nov. 11. During the one-day event, booths will feature a variety of Christmas decorations, arts and crafts, and food items.

Few people realize that the asparagus is a member of the lily family. If allowed to grow, the asparagus tips would throw out tall stalks and crown them with six-petaled flowers, the trademark of the lily.

Switch to skim milk to reduce diet fat

Did you know that a glass of skim milk has less than two-thirds the calories of a glass of whole milk, none of the fat, and all of the calcium and protein? As we're being urged to reduce the amount of fat in our diets, switching to skim or other low-fat milk may be the easiest change you can make.

COMPARING MILKS
Here's how the different types of milk compare:

- 1 cup whole milk contains 150 calories, 8 grams fat and 291 milligrams calcium.

- 1 cup 2 percent milk contains 120 calories, 5 grams fat and 297 milligrams calcium.

- 1 cup 1 percent milk contains 100 calories, 3 grams fat and 300 milligrams calcium.

- 1 cup skim milk contains 80 calories, no fat and 302 milligrams calcium.

- 1 cup chocolate milk contains 180 calories, 5 grams fat and 284 milligrams calcium.

Because we all need two to four glasses of milk every day, the calories and fat you save by choosing to drink skim milk quickly add up. If you drink two glasses a day, for instance, you would save 140 calories by switching from whole to skim milk.

CHOOSING FOR YOUR FAMILY
- For most family members, skim milk is obviously the best choice from among the different types of milk.

- Exception: Infants younger than 2 years need the extra calories of whole milk. Don't switch a toddler to skim milk until your pediatrician says it's okay to change.

WINNING THEM OVER
If your family balks at drinking skim milk, here are some ways to try to change their minds:

- Don't try to make the switch in one step; acustom them to skim milk gradually. Start out by changing to 2 percent milk. Then work down to 1 percent milk. Finally, make the change to skim milk. You can further ease each transition by mixing equal parts of the accustomed milk and the new milk for a week.

- Serve skim milk very cold; it has a more appealing taste.

- Even if your family won't drink skim milk, use it in your cooking.

- Stir non-fat dry milk powder into skim milk (about 1 tablespoon per cup of milk). The milk powder adds body and helps mask skim milk's thin appearance. What's more, non-fat dry milk powder boosts the calcium and protein content of the milk. Use this super-milk for both drinking and cooking.

- Another type of skim milk to use in cooking is evaporated skim milk. It adds body and rich flavor to soups and sauces. One cup contains 200 calories (compared with 340 for regular evaporated milk) and just 1 gram fat.

NEW YORK (AP) - There's Times Square, Herald Square and Madison Square. Soon there may be an Ed Koch Square.

But it won't be in New York. Shlomo Lahat, the mayor of Tel Aviv, surprised New York Mayor Edward I. Koch on Wednesday by telling him that he has proposed naming an area in Israel's largest city Ed Koch Square.

Lahat said it was in honor of Koch's contributions to "the New York City of the Middle East."

He said at City Hall that Koch has helped Tel Aviv "manage its unprecedented growth and with our plans for the future."

Asked if the Tel Aviv City Council will approve the measure, Lahat said, "of course."

Koch quipped, "They'll probably approve it 12-to-11."

Herd looking to declaw Tigers

The Hereford Whitefaces will try to move one game closer to a playoff spot Friday when they travel to Wolfforth to take on the Frenship Tigers in a 7:30 p.m. contest.

The Herd, 5-2 on the year and 4-1 in District 1-4A, is in the best position of the five teams still mathematically alive for the district's second playoff seed. District-leading Estacado received a boost Monday when Dunbar had to forfeit its win over the Mats. Estacado is almost assured of a playoff berth with the forfeit.

Against Frenship, 3-4 and 2-3, the Herd will face what Coach Don Cumpton calls on of the best offenses in the district.

"They're pretty balanced," Cumpton said of the Tiger attack. "They run the I formation and are pretty balanced as far as running and throwing and the yardage and all that stuff. I think they are probably better offensively than most of the teams we've seen except Estacado."

That balance is borne out with the numbers Frenship has put up this year. The Tigers have rushed for 1,340 yards and added 791 passing while scoring an average of 22 points a game.

Cumpton said The Herd's first priority on defense will be stopping tailback David Renshaw, who has 944 yards and a team high 12 touchdowns on 150 carries.

"Their No. 1 guy on offense is Renshaw, their tailback," he said. "He's got nearly 1,000 yards rushing and he's the guy that makes the plays for them."

Cumpton said the ground success has kept Frenship from throwing as much as some teams, but they have been effective through the air.

"I think they've only thrown a hundred passes in seven games," he said, "which is about 13 or 14 a game. But they throw it good. They've got an excellent wide receiver named (Chris) Boudy (24 catches for 306 yards and two TDs). He's about 6-5 and a good athlete. They're quarterback, (Chuck) Shin (782 yards total offense), is a good player."

When they do go to the air, the Tigers have completed nearly half of their passes as Shin comes into the game 48 of 101 with four touchdowns.

Cumpton said the Herd may use some of the nickel defense that shut down Randall last week if the Tigers get too pass happy.

"It depends on how the game goes," he said. "We're going to mix it up defensively and try to keep them off balance with our defense."

When the Herd goes on the attack, Cumpton said they will have to contend with Frenship sending players from all directions.

"They run a stunting defense," he said. "They stunt every down and send linebackers every which way. If you're not alert and not really paying attention to what's going on, they can create some problems for you."

"The key," he added, "is you have to be alert and pick up all those stunts on pass blocking and run blocking."

"They run a 4-3 basic defense but they do all that stunting and then they run a 5-3 some. They show you a lot of different looks."

Cumpton said the Tigers' style of defense will provide some things the Herd hasn't seen yet, and the offensive line will be kept busy.

"They stunt more than anybody we've seen and blitz their linebackers and stuff like that. They do that more than anybody we've played this year. And that goes back to being alert and paying attention and being ready to play to pick all that stuff up."

Cumpton added that Hereford's offensive attack will not necessarily tend towards the run as much as it did against Randall when the Herd attempted just three passes in the second half.

"It'll kind of depend on how the game goes," he said. "We'll have to see what they are doing (on defense) and be in a position to take advantage of something they're giving us. We've got a new wrinkle or two, but we're not going to change the basic thing that we're doing."

One plus for the Herd is that they enter the game relatively healthy.

"We're doing pretty good health-wise," Cumpton said. "We didn't get anybody hurt against Randall. Right now, knock on wood, we don't have any new injuries."

In fact, the Herd will have some players who were shelved by injury return to the lineup.

"Steve Tucker (broken leg against Estacado) got his cast off and he's walking around," Cumpton said. "He couldn't play this week, but it's not out of the realm of possibility that he might could play next week. We'll just have to wait and see how his rehabilitation is progressing."

"Bubba Long's back (from a shoulder injury). We got him back Tuesday and he's ready to go."

"Jason Lueb (who saw limited action the past two weeks) should play, but it kind of depends on his shoulder. That's kind of a day-to-day deal."

"Other than that, there's just a lot of soreness. And that's not unusual for this time of year. When you're playing the eighth ball game, you've always got some bumps and bruises."

Cumpton said this week's cold snap should not affect the Herd's execution, but could cause other problems for the team.

"I think (sudden weather changes) caused some sickness. The weather change is maybe what's created some colds and flu and stuff like that. But other than that, it hasn't been a problem."

Slippery kind of guy

Hereford Whiteface wide receiver Russell Backus (17) eludes one Randall defensive back while looking out for others during the Herd's 38-0 homecoming win last week over the Raiders. Backus and the rest of the Herd will take on the Frenship Tigers at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Wolfforth.

Perez, Wilson add to growing free agent list

NEW YORK (AP) - Pascual Perez, Willie Wilson and seven others have joined the group of baseball free agents, raising the total to 45.

Brian Harper, on the other hand, signed a two-year, $1.025 million deal with the Minnesota Twins on Wednesday. And the Chicago Cubs and outfielder Marvel Wynne were close to agreeing to a two-year, $1.075 million contract with an option for 1992 at $600,000.

Perez, who pitched a rain-shortened no-hitter in 1988, was 9-13 this season with a 3.31 earned-run average. He struck out 152 batters in 198 1-3 innings and made $850,000.

Wilson, a member of the Kansas City Royals since 1976, hit .253 with three homers and 43 RBIs while being paid $1.38 million. Wilson signed a four-year contract in 1985 that allowed the Royals to extend the pact through 1994 by exercising an annual option. Failure to do so, however, voids the remainder of the contract.

Terry Kennedy of San Francisco, Ken Phelps of Oakland, John Shelby of Los Angeles, Charles Hudson of Detroit, Joe Price of Boston, Dave Schmidt of Baltimore and Carmen Castillo of Minnesota were the others to declare on Wednesday.

Eligible players have until Nov. 13 to file. The list of eligible players dropped to 116 on Wednesday when the Texas Rangers exercised the option on the contract of second baseman Julio Franco for $1.25 million.

Among non-free agents, the California Angels placed infielder Glenn Hoffman on waivers for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

Harper, who made $147,500 this season, gets $450,000 in 1990 and $575,000 in 1991. The catcher hit a career-high .325 last season with eight home runs and 57 RBIs.

Kennedy, the catcher for the NL pennant-winning Giants, batted .239 last season with five homers and 34 RBIs in 355 at-bats and made $850,000. Phelps, a designated hitter for the World Series champion Athletics, hit .242 with seven homers and 29 RBIs in 194 at-bats and made $655,000.

Shelby, who made $550,000, batted .183 with one homer and 12 RBIs. Hudson, who made $525,000, was 1-5 with a 6.35 ERA.

Price was 2-5 with a 4.35 ERA and made $500,000. Schmidt was 10-13 with a 5.69 ERA and made $650,000. Castillo hit .257 with eight homers and 33 RBIs and made $432,500.

Tech-UT sells out

AUSTIN (AP) - After upsets over Oklahoma and Arkansas, University of Texas football fans appear anxious to see the Longhorns again.

UT officials said Saturday's 1 p.m. game against Texas Tech should be a sellout at 77,809.

"I think it is great to see people coming out to support the team," Coach David McWilliams said. "I told the team 'you brought them in.' All we've got to do is keep 'em."

The Longhorns had only one sellout last season, against Texas A&M. Before that, the last sellout was for Baylor in 1985.

Eastland may be out in 2A

ABILENE (AP) - The University Interscholastic League is looking into reports that an Eastland High School senior football player is ineligible because he already has a diploma, according to broadcast reports.

KTXS-TV in Abilene reported Wednesday that the undefeated Mavericks, ranked fourth in Class 2-A, might have to forfeit their three district wins this season because of questions about lineman Tracy Alford.

The station reported that Alford, who dropped out of school last year but re-enrolled this year, obtained a high school-equivalency diploma in June.

Under UIL rules, a player who has any kind of diploma or who has graduated from any institution is ruled ineligible.

Alford, an offensive lineman, has played in the Mavericks' first three district games, including last week's win over district rival Cisco High School. The team, is 8-0 for the season.

The station said coaches and school officials learned of Alford's diploma on Tuesday and contacted the UIL. The UIL executive committee is scheduled to meet today on the issue, the station said.

School officials declined to comment, the station said. Eastland has about 750 students.

Herd climbs to No. 27, picked by 12 over Tigers

The Hereford Whitefaces have been rated a 12-point favorite for their game Friday at Frenship, according to the Harris Rating System.

The Herd, 5-2 on the season and 4-1 in 1-4A play, comes into the game off a 38-0 pasting of Randall. The win was Hereford's second straight shutout, giving the Whitefaces back-to-back whitewashings for the first time since the first two games of the 1986 season.

The Herd increased its Harris power rating four points to 179 with the victory and climbed 14 places in the 4A ranks to No. 27.

Frenship, 3-4 and 2-3, suffered a 44-24 beating at the hands of district leading Estacado last Thursday, dropping the Tigers' rating two points to 162 while costing them seven places to No. 91.

In other District 1-4A action, Levelland visits Dunbar on Thursday while Friday's schedule has Estacado at Borger and Pampa at Randall. Dumas enjoys this week's open date.

Levelland (3-4, 1-4) at Dunbar (0-8, 0-6) -- The Panthers' hard-luck season got even harder to take Monday when they had to forfeit their only win of the season to Estacado for using an ineligible player. That, coupled with Friday's 18-7 loss to Pampa, will give Dunbar the opportunity to lose three games in seven days when the Lobos come to town.

Dunbar did play Pampa close enough not to lose any ground, maintaining a 156 rating and actually moving up a spot to No. 113.

Levelland, meanwhile, will be looking to break out of a slump that had the Lobos 0-for-October as they come off an open date. The defending district champs dropped four in a row after opening loop play with a 6-3 squeaker over Borger.

The free week enabled the Lobos to move up a notch to No. 99 while they held on to their 160 rating.

Levelland is a four-point pick to leave the Panthers in sole possession of the district cellar.

Estacado (7-1, 6-0) at Borger (4-3, 3-2) -- The Matadors were virtually assured of the district's top playoff seed with the forfeit win over Dunbar barring a total collapse in their last two games.

Estacado comes in to the game off a pair of 40-point performances in the last two weeks. The win over Frenship boosted the Mats nine places to No. 35 and raised their rating two points to 176.

The Bulldogs have their backs against the wall as far as the playoffs are concerned after falling to Dumas, 20-17, last week. The loss sent Borger down 16 places to No. 71 and knocked three points off the rating to 167.

Estacado rates the favorite's role for the game by six points.

Pampa (4-3, 3-2) at Randall (4-3, 2-3) -- The Harvesters are another team needing a win to keep its playoff hopes alive. After back-to-back losses to the top two teams in the district - Estacado and Hereford - Pampa has come back with wins over the bottom two - Levelland and Dunbar.

Pampa had to score late to ensure the win against Dunbar, and dropped seven places to No. 66 as a result while maintaining a power rating of 169.

The Raiders will try to salvage a winning season after challenging early on for a playoff spot. Randall's three losses have been come in the last four weeks by a combined 101 points.

After being blanked by Hereford, Randall fell 13 places to No. 111 and lost four rating points to 156.

Pampa comes into the contest favored by seven points.

Dumas (3-4-1, 3-3) open date -- The Demons pulled another game out of the fire in the last minute when backup quarterback Saul Garcia hooked up with Sammy Esgarcia for a 40-yard touchdown to beat Borger. The

Heisman field crowded with possibilities

By RICK WARNER
AP Football Writer

The 1989 Heisman race might come down to a photo finish.

One month from today, the Downtown Athletic Club will announce the winner of the most coveted award in college football. Most years, that announcement carries all the suspense of a Mike Tyson fight. But this year's Heisman race may be the closest ever.

About the only thing the experts agree on is the list of leading contenders: quarterbacks Tony Rice of Notre Dame, Major Harris of West Virginia and Andre Ware of Houston and running backs Anthony Thompson of Indiana and Emmitt Smith of Florida.

Others getting serious support are quarterbacks Dee Dowis of Air Force, Darian Hagan of Colorado and Ty Detmer of Brigham Young, plus flanker-kick returner Raghib "Rocket" Ismail of Notre Dame.

But no one is considered a clear front-runner.

"You can punch holes in every candidate. There's no bulletproof guy out there," CBS commentator Mike Francesa said.

That's been demonstrated in recent polls of Heisman voters. For instance, the last three weekly surveys by the New York Post have produced three different leaders - first Dowis, then Ware and now Harris.

"I've covered seven or eight Heismans and every single time I knew who the winner was going to be," says Richard Rosenblatt, who conducts the Post poll. "This time, it's almost impossible to predict."

Each contender has major strengths ... and significant weaknesses:

RICE - He's the undisputed leader of the nation's No. 1 team and plays for a school that has produced more Heisman winners (7) than any other. But his stats aren't very impressive.

HARRIS - The nation's third-leading passer and one of the best scramblers around. Doesn't get nearly as much TV exposure as Rice, though.

WARE - His passing numbers are mind-boggling (419 yards and 4.3 touchdowns per game), but some people won't vote for him because Houston is on probation.

THOMPSON - He's the No. 2 rusher in the country and just tied the NCAA record for career touchdowns. Unfortunately, he plays for a school that's better known for basketball.

SMITH - Leads the nation in rushing with a 161-yard-per-game average. Like Ware, however, he may suffer because of the sins of his school.

A random sampling of a half dozen Heisman voters this week showed the closeness of the race. Harris got two first-place votes, while Rice, Ware, Ismail and Hagan each received one.

Rosenblatt and Bob Keisser of the Los Angeles Herald Examiner voted for Harris.

"He's a great athlete and he means so much to his team," Rosenblatt said. "Without him, West Virginia wouldn't even be ranked."

Ivan Maisel of the Dallas Morning News is a Ware supporter.

"Barry Sanders showed last year that sheer numbers can overcome anything, and Ware has more of those than anyone," Maisel said.

Paul Finebaum of the Birmingham Post-Herald likes Rice because he "led his team to rarefied heights. Notre Dame is obviously a great team, but Rice is the cog that keeps the machine going."

But Beano Cook of ESPN backs Ismail, Rice's triple-threat teammate.

"He's the most exciting player since Herschel Walker," Cook said. "He won the Michigan game almost single-handedly. He's devastating."

Steve Kornacki of the Detroit Free Press is leaning toward Hagan, who will lead second-ranked Colorado against No. 3 Nebraska in Saturday's Big Eight showdown at Boulder.

"This is his week," Kornacki said. "If Colorado beats Nebraska and Hagan has a big game, he'll get a lot of attention."

No matter what Ware does, he won't get Kornacki's vote.

"I won't vote for any player whose school is on probation," he said. "I know Ware wasn't involved (in any violations), but he's still part of a program that cheated."

BALTIMORE (AP) - Frank Robinson stepped into the Baltimore Orioles' spring training camp in February for his first full year as manager armed with a new approach and a lot of new players. It was a combination that wound up two games shy of a division title.

What happened in between was so unexpected - a team that finished 54-107 one year battling for a division crown the next - that Robinson was named the American League's Manager of the Year on Wednesday for presiding over the phenomenon.

"It ranks right up there with the MVP awards, as far as managers are concerned, because it's the highest honor that you can achieve," Robinson said by telephone from his home in Beverly Hills, Calif. "It says you did the best job with the team you had, and that your team played well."

Robinson, the only player to be named Most Valuable Player in both leagues, was rewarded for the patience with which he presided over the group of unproven players who assembled at the Orioles' training facility in Sarasota, Fla.

"The players deserve the credit. The coaching staff deserves a large part of the credit, as does the entire organization," Robinson said. "What I think I gave this ballclub was a direction, a sense of what we wanted to do. I think I kept it in the right direction through the season."

Robinson, 54, guided the Orioles to the second-best turnaround in American League history. The Orioles finished with an 87-75 record and were in the American League East title chase until the last week of the season.

The Orioles spent 116 days in first place, including 98 consecutive days from May through August, despite opening the season with baseball's youngest roster. Robinson cajoled his team through the highs and lows of the season with a temperament he didn't display during managerial stops at Cleveland and San Francisco.

Robinson, who had already been named The Associated Press Manager of the Year, got 23 of 28 first-place votes and 125 points on a 5-3-1 basis from a panel chosen by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Cito Gaston, who managed the Toronto Blue Jays to the AL East title, finished second with three first-place votes and 62 points.

Tony La Russa, who guided Oakland to the AL pennant and World Series title, was third with two first-place votes and 51 points.

California's Doug Rader finished fourth with 13 points and Kansas City's John Wathan got one point.

On Tuesday, Chicago's Don Zimmer was named the NL Manager of the Year.

The Orioles' record equaled that of the 1982 San Francisco Giants as the best for a team managed by Robinson.

Robinson, 54, who became baseball's first black manager in 1975, has a career record of 649-706. Before taking over the Orioles, he managed at Cleveland (1975-78) and San Francisco (1981-84).

After waffling a little bit towards the end of the season, Robinson has decided to return as manager in 1990.

A Hall of Famer who played with the Orioles from 1966 to 1971, Robinson moved from the front office to manager in 1988 after Baltimore began the year with six straight losses under Cal Ripken Sr. They went on to lose their first 21 games, the worst start in baseball history.

Robinson was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1982 after a 21-year playing career in which he hit 586 home runs. He was the National League's Rookie of the Year in 1956 and the Most Valuable Player in the NL in 1961 and in the AL in 1966, when he won the Triple Crown and led the Orioles to a World Series championship.

Vikes lose despite moves

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

Mike Lynn was glowing before the Minnesota Vikings played the New York Giants.

He had just pulled off a double - investing himself with new power as a leader of the NFL owners' group that installed Paul Tagliabue as commissioner, then pulling off the deal for running back Herschel Walker that seemed to give the Vikings everything necessary to get to the Super Bowl.

"Some guys are afraid to pull the trigger," the president of the Vikings said in what could have been a veiled reference to George Young of the Giants, who was sitting at the other end of the room. Young, not exactly one of Lynn's best buddies, had no desire to give Dallas six draft choices plus players even after Walker had said New York was where he wanted to go.

Then, on Monday night, the Vikings demonstrated why no amount of Lynn-engineered deals guarantee a Super Bowl.

The Vikings, to put it in three words, showed no killer instinct - at least not on Monday night.

The Giants started the game without All-Pro tight end Mark Bavaro, out with a sprained knee. During the first series, quarterback Phil Simms sprained his ankle, leaving the game in the hands of Jeff Hostetler, who in 51 NFL seasons had thrown 30 passes.

The Vikings jumped to a 7-0 lead, but then sputtered, much as the Los Angeles Rams had two weeks earlier against Buffalo and its backup quarterback, Frank Reich.

Walker disappeared from the Minnesota offense and every time the Vikings got close, Lawrence Taylor and his friends were equal to the task.

More importantly, the Vikings had failed a mid-term exam in their first game against a good team since the Walker trade. A lot of players who had been so confident coming in were left grumbling afterwards.

"I don't know what happened," said tackle Keith Millard, one of the game's most dominant defensive linemen. "We had them, then we didn't have them. Then their defense took over the game."

Obviously, it's just one loss and the Vikings still, as the players are programmed to say, control their own destiny. Midway through the season, they are tied with the Bears atop the NFC Central with a 5-3 record and have another game left with Chicago.

Cool-weather vegetables plentiful in stores

Mother Nature knows her stuff. Every fall she fills her cornucopia with hardy, nutrient-dense vegetables that provide the extra energy needed for the colder months ahead. Gone are the tender fruits of summer. In their place edible roots and gourds give both subtle and intense flavors to autumn's table. Complemented by leafy greens that also flourish as the temperature drops, these starchy vegetables satisfy the seasonal urge for more filling foods.

Vegetables that grow underground -- generally classified as roots and tubers -- are rich in complex carbohydrates. Those with a gold-orange color -- sweet potatoes and carrots, for example -- contain abundant vitamin A. Roots probably were the first vegetables harvested consistently by prehistoric men and women. Hidden underground, these vegetables were protected from foraging animals and swift changes in weather.

Winter squash or fleshy gourds harbor a wealth of nutrition inside the tough outer shells, which keep them from spoiling easily. They are especially rich in vitamin A and potassium and fairly good sources of niacin, iron and protein.

From now until spring, cool weather vegetables will be plentiful in stores throughout Texas. The freshest supplies, however, can be found in the farmers markets that stay open until frost. Paula De la Fuente, Texas Department of Agriculture farmers market coordinator, said most TDA-assisted fall markets are located in Central Texas. But some as far north as Denton and as far West as El Paso linger until local production plays out. Five markets in Austin, Yoakum, Weatherford, Corsicana and Corpus Christi are open year-round.

Turnips, sweet potatoes, carrots, pumpkins, golden and green acorn squash and butternut squash as well as broccoli, cabbage and greens should be plentiful now. Look also for citrus fruit, onions, lettuce and pecans. When a particular vegetable is not available locally, some markets buy it from growers in other parts of the state. Selling out-of-state produce is discouraged.

"Farmers markets are one place where customers can easily find out where the produce they're buying comes from," said De la Fuente. "All they have to do is ask a farmer."

VEGGIE-RICE BAKE

- 1 C. coarsely shredded carrots
- 1/2 C. coarsely shredded turnip
- 1/2 C. coarsely shredded sweet potato
- 2 1/2 C. cooked brown rice
- 1 C. shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese divided
- 1/3 C. water
- 2 T. chopped green onion
- 2 T. minced red bell pepper
- 1/4 tsp. dried thyme
- 1/8 tsp. ground nutmeg
- Dash black pepper

Cook carrots, turnip, and sweet potato in 1/2 cup boiling water for 5 minutes; drain. Combine cooked vegetables, rice and 3/4 cup of cheese. Add 1/3 cup water, green onion and red bell pepper. Blend ingredients and turn into a 1 1/2 quart shallow casserole that has been sprayed with non-stick cooking spray. Cover and bake 20 to 25 minutes at 350 degrees F. Sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup cheese. Bake, uncovered, 2 minutes more. Makes 4 servings.

TURNIPS WITH MUSHROOMS

- 6 peeled turnips, sliced 1/4-in. thick
- 6 T. butter or margarine, divided
- Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
- 8 oz. sliced mushrooms
- Minced fresh chives

In large saucepan, cover turnips with boiling salted water and cook over medium heat 8-10 minutes or until tender-crisp. Drain and toss with 2 tablespoons butter and some pepper. Sauté mushrooms in remaining 4 tablespoons butter, season with salt and pepper to taste. Scrape mushrooms and juices into turnips. Cook gently 2 minutes more. Sprinkle with chives before serving. Makes 4-6 servings.

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - Wearing cowboy hats and talking about peace between the United States and their country, 10 Soviet legislators ended a two-day visit to Kansas.

The delegation led by Yevgeniy Primakov, whose rank is similar to the speaker of the U.S. House, visited Dodge City, attended a town meeting, toured a grain elevator, had home-cooked roast beef at a farm and looked at planes at McConnell Air Force Base.

Static electricity a villain

Opposites attract and likes dislike each other. Sounds like a love story? It's not. This story has more to do with high-school physics than modern romance.

What's to dislike? You've probably never met anyone who welcomes fall's share of beauty bloopers -- the infamous hat hair (when your strands stand up to attention as you peel off your hat), skirts that creep up your charged nylon panty hose, or perhaps itchy sweaters that cling to your body in embarrassing places. What causes these memorable moments? Our villain: static electricity.

To get a good feel for this uncomfortable situation, imagine shuffling your feet along a carpeted hallway and then reaching for a doorknob, says Burt Schwarzhild, PhD, editor of Physics Today. Zap! By the time you reach for the door, you will have built up enough voltage to spark off a discharge of electrons (or negative ions), he explains. What is it about you, the rug and the doorknob that promotes this electrical shock?

When two different types of material come into close contact, the surfaces become electrically charged, according to engineer George Lamb, PhD., secretary of the Fiber Society, based in Princeton, N.J. And if the material is well insulated, it won't allow electricity to flow through, so negative charges keep building up. "As you walk across the nylon carpet, the charges transfer onto you. You can build up to nearly 5,000 volts, but the doorknob has none," Dr. Lamb continues. "Suddenly, the charges flow out to the doorknob, setting off a few sparks." The problem's particularly bad in winter, when moisture-deprived rooms (a result of artificial heat) can really make the sparks fly, he added.

Thanks for the science lesson, you say. But how will that help me dress without distress?

Wardrobe Wisdom

If you cover yourself only in the most natural of fibers -- 100 percent cotton or wool -- you need not worry as much about dreaded static cling, since these fabrics are good conductors of electricity. Why is that? Cotton and wool are made of cellulose, which holds lots of water. Water allows electricity to flow through it instead of building up.

Materials that are poor conductors of electricity, such as nylon and polyester, will promote a static buildup, says Lamb. Short of avoiding these materials altogether -- which is impossible and unnecessary -- anti-static accessories, like fabric softener sheets or special sprays can help. These formulas contain compounds that form a conductive coating and thus discharge the electrons before they can begin to build up.

Saving Strands

Fortunately, zapping the charges out of your hair is an easier endeavor. For one, all hair is made of dead protein, a substance that is triboelectric, or capable of freeing electrical charges through friction, says Antoine Constantino, director of product development. Those hardest hit are people with thin hair. It tends to have less fiber in each strand than thick or kinky hair, so it more easily becomes full of static.

But fly-away hair can be a problem for anybody now and then, according to trichologist (hair and scalp expert) Phillip Kingsley, head of a New York-based trichology clinic. What can you do to tame your fly-away locks?

Conditions of Care

A good conditioner is the easiest and most direct way to treat static-filled strands. In fact, one of the main functions of a conditioner is to eliminate static build-up, says Kingsley, and most hair care experts agree.

Conditioners coat your hair with what Constantino calls "substantive cationic surfactants," or chemical compounds that are positively charged to neutralize those nasty negative charges. Among the most powerful anti-static compounds are the quaternium family.

In addition to quaterniums, check for other cationic ingredients such as collagen, collagen derivatives, some polymers and even the previously noted cellulose, which besides being a good conductor, controls the conditioner's viscosity, or stickiness, according to Mitchell Wortzman, PhD., director of scientific affairs.

Conditioners work best just where your hair needs repair. Since the formula is positively charged, it's lured to the most negative sites along your hair shaft.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: In one of your columns about rheumatoid arthritis you said aspirin could cause complications. What complications would occur from taking aspirin and prednisone together?

I am a 65-year-old man and take one aspirin a day to ward off heart attacks and strokes. I am not a heart patient, nor do I have high blood pressure. My left arm, at the elbow, is sore all the time. When I wake up, both arms are in pain when I stretch out my elbows. That is the only time my right arm is affected.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I presume from your letter that you are taking prednisone for rheumatoid arthritis. Small doses, less than 10 mg a day, are now advocated to control it. More can pose some problems. Prednisone is usually not recommended for osteoarthritis.

Since aspirin can cause erosion of the lining of the stomach with bleeding, and prednisone can allow stomach irritation with bleeding to occur without pain, the combination is not a good one. But the smaller the dose of aspirin you take, the less the risk. You are in the age group of men who can benefit the most from taking aspirin to prevent a first heart attack. The long study of the use of aspirin to prevent a first heart attack has been published this year and it confirms that aspirin is useful for that purpose -- perhaps decreasing the risk by 40 percent.

But the study also shows that a small dose is as effective as a larger dose. I have discussed the findings of this important study in Special Issue, Latest on Aspirin, Heart Attacks and Strokes, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/34-10, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Coated aspirin and buffered aspirin were equally as effective as plain aspirin. But there seems to be no reason you couldn't get the same benefits in terms of preventing a first heart attack or stroke by taking one aspirin tablet every other day rather than daily. At the same time that would reduce the risks of the complications of aspirin.

DEAR DR. LAMB: About four years ago I noticed when I came in contact with anything cold, I developed a burning sensation, then a skin rash and itching. It has gotten progressively worse. If I drink anything cold or eat ice cream, my lips and tongue swell and I have difficulty breathing.

An allergist diagnosed my condition as cold urticaria and prescribed Seldane tablets. I was not cautioned as to the seriousness of this condition. On a vacation to Florida I went to the beach and went in the ocean. The water was cold and I went into shock and could not function at all. Luckily, I survived. After this incident my allergist told me that this condition can be very serious. What causes this? How long does it last? Is there any treatment available?

DEAR READER: Cold allergy can be very serious if you swim in cold water and produce shock as you have described. If you drink or eat cold things and develop swelling, it can block your air passages and cause suffocation. The condition may be inherited or acquired. You will have to deal with this the rest of your life. So be careful about any exposure to cold, such as a cool dip in the pool or a cold shower. There is no cure, and Seldane or other such medicines taken regularly to prevent recurrent attacks along with avoiding anything cold is the only treatment in town. You were very lucky to have survived your ocean swim.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company hereby gives notice that on August 29, 1989 the Company filed an application with the Public Utility Commission (PUC) of Texas to revise its Texas intrastate Digital Link Service Tariff. This application proposes to restructure the rates for MICROLINK II<sup>SM</sup> - Packet Switching Digital Service to establish uniform rates for the service in each of the market areas where it is offered within the State and to expand the service to an additional nineteen (19) Primary Market Areas (PMAs).

MICROLINK II<sup>SM</sup> - Packet Switching Digital Service is for business customers with interactive data transport requirements who are located within the Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Beaumont, Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, Longview, Lubbock, Midland, San Antonio, Waco, or Wichita Falls Local Access and Transport Areas (LATAs). This service utilizes several existing network services in combination with packet switching capabilities. A MICROLINK II Primary Market Area is the service area from which subscribers may reach public dial access to the service by dialing a local seven digit number. The twenty-four (24) PMAs that will be affected by this filing are: Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Beaumont, Brownsville, McAllen, Harlingen, Corpus Christi, Victoria, Dallas, Fort Worth, El Paso, Houston, Galveston, Laredo, Longview, Tyler, Lubbock, Midland, Odessa, San Antonio, Waco, Temple, and Wichita Falls.

The PUC has assigned this matter to Docket No. 9034. It is estimated that the proposed rate changes and the addition of the nineteen (19) Primary Market Areas will increase the Company's annual revenues during the first year the proposed changes are in effect approximately $222,000. For additional information regarding MicroLink II Service or this filing, please contact Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's Marketing Organization on 512-222-5808.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. The Commission has established an intervention date of November 27, 1989. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the PUC Public Information Office at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221, typewriter for the deaf.

NFL wins antitrust case with union

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Just a few days from taking over as NFL commissioner, Paul Tagliabue received good news about some previous work.

Last May, Tagliabue argued before the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals that the free agency clauses of the NFL's 1982 labor agreement with the players association can't be challenged as antitrust violations just because negotiations are at an impasse.

That impasse was cited by Judge David Doty. Doty was presiding over the NFLPA's suit filed in Minneapolis after the unsuccessful conclusion of the 24-day players strike. The judge had ruled that an "impasse" in bargaining existed and, because of that, the league's labor antitrust exemption no longer existed.

But Wednesday's 2-1 decision - Judges John R. Gibson and Roger L. Wollman, upheld the position of the NFL Management Council - left the league pushing for new negotiations.

"Today's ruling means there are no potential antitrust damage claims, nor should there be," Jack Donlan, executive director of the Management Council, said. "It's a well-deserved victory for the Management Council and the clubs and also the players because it clears the path for further collective bargaining."

"The players haven't had benefit improvements since 1982 and they've always said benefits are their priority.

It's time to get something constructive done at the bargaining table. The clubs are ready to negotiate a new labor contract as soon as the union comes to the table."

The union, not surprisingly, wasn't admitting defeat.

"It's a three-round fight and there are two rounds and it's a tie score," said NFLPA counsel Dick Berthelsen, indicating the players would appeal, either to the full nine-judge 8th Circuit or to the Supreme Court.

They also could file for decertification that would leave the NFL without labor antitrust protection.

"This decision appears to say that as long as there is an ongoing relationship between players and the league, players can't challenge restrictions, as there was in the past," Berthelsen said.

"We have to decide at this point whether it's worth continuing the relationship with management or decertifying the union relationship so that management can't hide behind the union relationship," NFLPA assistant executive director Doug Allen said.

The trial on the NFLPA lawsuit was put off indefinitely by Wednesday's split decision.

The majority judges held that because the system of free-agent compensation was the result of a collective bargaining agreement, it didn't constitute an antitrust violation. "In sum," they wrote, "we hold that the antitrust laws are inapplicable under the circumstances of this case as the ... exemption extends beyond impasse."

"This contractual provision was spawned in collective bargaining, and as it is the product of a labor relationship, we cannot agree that it should be considered a violation of antitrust laws."

The free agent system in the NFL is the major issue, of course. It was the stumbling block that led to the 1987 strike.

Called the "first refusal-compensation system," it states that a team can retain a veteran free agent by exercising a right of first refusal and by matching a competing club's offer.

If the old team decided not to match the offer, the old team would receive compensation from the new team in the form of additional draft choices.

A form of the system was included in an agreement reached in 1982 at the end of a 57-day strike by players. That agreement expired in 1987 and the players again went on strike.

No new agreement was reached, but the players returned to work a month later and took the case to court. Under labor law, terms of the old contract were considered to be in force, something that Gibson and Wollman concurred with in Wednesday's majority opinion.

NBA ready to begin life without Kareem

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

With Kareem Abdul-Jabbar out of the picture for the first time since 1969, another group of veterans who started their careers in the 1970s are setting their sights on NBA milestones in the 1990s.

Entering his 14th NBA season, 34-year-old Moses Malone has a chance to become the league's career leader in free throws made.

Malone, who will be at center for Atlanta when the Hawks open the season against Indiana Friday night, has made 7,197 free throws, 497 behind Oscar Robertson. Malone made 561 free throws last year.

Malone, with 13,671 rebounds, needs 794 to move past Nate Thurmond, Walt Bellamy and Wes Unseld into fifth place on the career list. Malone is still more than 10,000 behind career leader Wilt Chamberlain.

There's another Chamberlain record that is more accessible: most consecutive games without fouling out.

He has played 884 without drawing a sixth foul and needs two complete seasons to pass Chamberlain, who never fouled out in his career, a span of 1,045 games. Malone fouled out five times before starting his streak in 1978.

Other season openers Friday include Milwaukee at Boston, Washington at Charlotte, New Jersey at Miami, the Los Angeles Lakers at Dallas, New York at Detroit, Cleveland at Chicago, Denver at Utah, Minnesota at Seattle, Golden State at Phoenix, Houston at the Los Angeles Clippers and Sacramento at Portland.

On Saturday, it's Miami at New York, Milwaukee at Philadelphia, Detroit at Washington, New Jersey at Orlando, Cleveland at Indiana, Boston at Chicago, the Los Angeles Lakers at San Antonio, Phoenix at Denver, Houston at Golden State and Seattle at Sacramento.

Denver's Alex English, 35, is a good bet to become the seventh player in NBA history to reach 25,000 points.

English begins the season with 23,417 points after finishing 1988-89 as the first player to score more than 2,000 points in eight consecutive seasons.

English, who took 1,881 shots last season, needs 1,163 this season to crack the NBA's top five.

Adrian Dantley, 33, starting at forward when Dallas plays host to the Lakers, has made 6,614 free throws and should crack the NBA's top four by season's end. Dantley, who made 460 free throws last season, needs 366 to pass Dolph Schayes for fourth place.

Rockets put trio on injured list

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Rockets players Tim McCormick, Byron Dinkins and Mike Woodson were placed on the injured reserve list Wednesday and will miss at least the first five games of the season.

McCormick, a 7-foot center, underwent arthroscopic surgery on his right knee Wednesday after suffering a partial cartilage tear during the first quarter of an exhibition game with Boston Oct. 25, Rockets spokesman Jay Goldberg said.

McCormick, in his second year with the Rockets, will be out three to four weeks.

Woodson, who underwent arthroscopic surgery on his right knee in May, is still rehabilitating. The 6-foot-5 guard missed the entire pre-season.

Dinkins, a 6-foot-2 guard and a rookie free agent from North Carolina-Charlotte, pulled his groin during practice last weekend.

Under National Basketball Association rules, a player on the injured list is required to miss five games.

The Rockets open the season Friday in Los Angeles against the Clippers.
