Merger not expected to affect health care here

Lubbock hospitals announce plans Monday

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

A proposed merger between two of Lubbock's biggest hospitals -- both of which have ties to Hereford -- should not affect health care in Deaf Smith County, according to the head of Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Jim Robinson, HRMC chief executive officer, was in Lubbock Monday for a meeting concerning the proposed merger of Methodist and St. Mary Hospitals.

Robinson said that what was announced Monday was that the owners of both hospitals have agreed to sign a letter of intent that will give them 120 days to negotiate the merger.

If completed and approved by governmental regulators, the assets will be held equally by the two institutions.

In a news release provided to Robinson at Monday's meeting, the new corporation will be locally owned and will be called Methodist/St. Mary Health System. Chairman of the new board will be Alan B. White, currently chairman of the board of the Lubbock Methodist Hospital System board of directors.

Robinson said HRMC has an agreement with Methodist Hospital regarding management services, but that will not be affected by the ownership change.

"We have an agreement with Lubbock Methodist to provide management services to Hereford Regional Medical Center," he said.

Robinson is the only paid employee of Lubbock Methodist who works at HRMC. But he said he was hired by the local board of directors and his salary and benefits are reimbursed to Methodist by HRMC.

He said Methodist does not operate HRMC, but that the Lubbock health care system comes in and presents several management candidates to be interviewed by the local board when a CEO is needed.

In addition, Hereford physicians Dr. Gerald Payne and Dr. Duffy McBrayer recently aligned themselves with St. Mary's, as their office was designated a St. Mary's clinic.

But, Robinson said, the pending merger should not affect that contract either, since part of the St. Mary contract calls for the doctors to primarily support the local hospital, something he said they have been very good about doing.

Robinson said the merger will be beneficial to health care.

"It will take them out of a competitive mode," he said, and will combine the facilities to provide additional managed care while eliminated duplicated services.

Methodist, Robinson said, brings to the merger its large market share in the region, as well as an integrated system of 28 hospitals like HRMC throughout the region.

St. Mary, he said, brings the benefits of being one of nine hospitals in the St. Joseph Health System, a Sisters of St. Joseph of Orange corporation.

This corporate size, Robinson said, brings greater access to capital and a higher bond rating.

The Lubbock Methodist Hospital System was founded in 1918.

Today the corporation includes Methodist Hospital, Methodist Children's Hospital, FirstCare HMO, Methodist Southwest Provider Organization, Methodist Medical Group, Hodges Cancer Center, Methodist Heart Center, AeroCare aeromedical service and other entities.

The regional network is made up of more than 50 managed and affiliated hospitals and health clinics, including Methodist Hospital Plainview and Methodist Hospital Levelland.

St. Mary was founded in 1939 by the Sisters of St. Joseph of Orange. It maintains management contracts with four area hospitals and an affiliation agreement with Memorial Hospital in Seminole.

Cheering on the Herd

Hereford High School cheerleaders, from left, Cassie Abney, Kari Barrett, "Scat" Dimas Beltran, Amy Andrews and Crystal Mercer lend their voices to the Hereford High School boy's basketball team during recent action. The group will join the Herd in Dumas tonight, where both the girls and boys varsity teams will take on the Demons. Barrett and Mercer pull double duty, playing on the basketball team in girls games, while the other three cheerleaders prowl the sidelines for both varsity games. The Herd -- and cheerleaders -- will be at home on Friday to take on the Borger Bulldogs in District 1-4A action.

Judge steps down from considering injunction

A hearing on a petition for an injunction to force removal of an "incomplete house" from acreage north of the Hereford city limits was stopped Monday by 222nd District Court Judge David Wesley Gulley.

After about an hour of testimony, Judge Gulley called a recess and on reconvening, he announced that he would remove himself from the case partly because Deaf Smith County Commissioner Johnny Latham is one of about 30 plaintiffs in the case.

The judge said he felt he should not continue since a county official, Latham, is involved.

Judge Gulley said he had contacted the administrative judicial district office and asked for another judge to be assigned.

The case was further complicated, he said, when he learned that the defendants in the case, Domingo Diaz Jr., and his wife, Juanita, had not been served court papers until Jan. 23. The petition was filed in the district clerk's office on Jan. 11.

Judge Gulley said apparently the papers were sent to an attorney who represented the couple but was relieved of his duties. Defendants were not represented by counsel at the hearing Monday.

Plaintiffs in the petition claim that deed restrictions and covenants in the North Acres Subdivision have been violated by the building moved onto the Diaz property. The top of the house was taken off before it was moved from a site in Hereford to the location.

Prison ordered in court here

A defendant in 222nd District Court Monday was ordered to serve a four-year prison sentence on revocation of his probation.

Judge David Wesley Gulley ordered Marvin Lee Gavina, 23, to Texas Department of Criminal Justice with diversion to TDCJ boot camp. He previously was convicted of felony driving while intoxicated and given a five-year probated sentence.

On the state's motion for revocation of probation of Abraham Alvarado Lopez, also known as Abraham Lopez Alvarado, Judge Gulley accepted a recommendation for modification of terms of probation on the felony DWI conviction.

The defendant was ordered to enter the Tom Green County Restitution Center and on release, he will be subject to intensive supervision for three months.

Woman set to meet sibling on talk show

A Hereford woman, Darlene Turner, left at noon Tuesday for Chicago where she expected to meet a brother for the first time, and on a nationally-syndicated television show, at that.

Turner was placed for adoption as an infant and later learned that both of her parents had children in other marriages.

The brother she is to meet for the first time is Brit Rowland, her father's son.

Turner and Rowland are to appear on the Oprah Winfrey Show.

"All I know is it will be taped Wednesday morning," said Turner before she left for Chicago. "They didn't tell me when it will be aired."

Although Turner knew the names of her birth parents, she did not know there was a large family.

"I got a call in November 1994 from a sister who had hired a private investigator to find me," she said. "I was really surprised when I got the phone call."

She learned her mother had 10 children, including her and an older sister who was not placed for adoption.

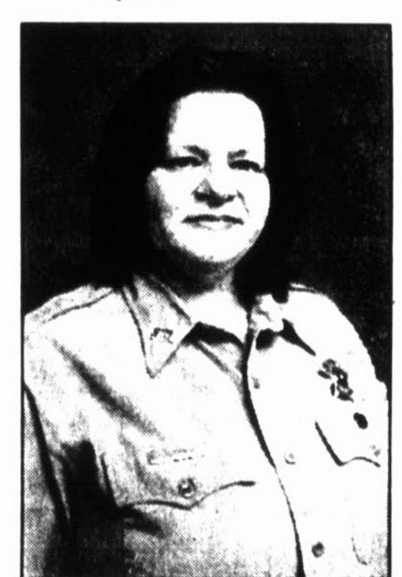

"I went to Florida last March and met my mother, older sister and two brothers," said Turner.

She has not met her father or the four siblings on his side, she said. Turner grew up in Houston. Her adoptive father and mother are deceased. She stays in touch with an adoptive sister in that family.

Although she has met few of her family, Turner said she has "talked to all of them" by telephone.

A resident of Hereford since August 1994, Turner works as a dispatcher with the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department. Her husband, John Turner is employed in a feedyard.

Texas gets OK to waive federal education laws

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas is among five states given authority to waive hundreds of federal education laws and regulations in a move to let schools better fit their programs to students' needs.

"From this day forward, (Texas Education) Commissioner Mike Moses will have the authority to waive the requirements of most federal education programs if they interfere with locally developed approaches to teaching and learning at individual schools, at individual school districts or in this state as a whole," said Mike Cohen, senior adviser to U.S. Education Secretary Richard Riley.

"In exchange, there will be an increased emphasis and focus on accountability where it really counts - on accountability for results, and accountability for what students learn," Cohen said Monday.

The new power doesn't apply to federal requirements on civil rights, health or safety. But it could, for example, allow schools more flexibility in how they spend federal funds.

Houston Independent School District Superintendent Rod Paige was among officials welcoming the new federal flexibility, which comes on the heels of a Texas law to move more school control from the state to the local level.

"For too long, we've been held responsible for how the pie comes out, but the recipe has been dictated to us," Paige said. "This will give the professionals at the scene the idea that they can customize the program, within certain limits, as long they are to be responsible for how it comes out."

The new flexibility comes under the federal Goals 2000 education program, which has drawn fire from some conservatives who feared its federal grant money is an unwarranted intrusion by the U.S. government into Texas education.

Texas decided to accept millions of dollars in Goals 2000 funding despite those concerns, submitted an education improvement plan to use the money and requested the waiver authority.

Sale serves as finale for 1996 Junior Livestock Show

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Bidders lined up Saturday to place their money on the line for the right to buy a piece of the 1996 Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show as the Livestock Sale concluded the annual event.

When all eligible animals had been before the auctioneer, the sale had raised $123,000, said bookkeeper Charla Schlabs. While that total was down from the $125,000 in last year's sale, Mrs. Schlabs said the floor price was higher this year, adding $10,000 to the total take in the sale.

Overall, she said, all county steers sold for at least $1.25 a pound, more than double the floor price. All county hogs in the sale went for at least $2 a pound, while all county lambs brought at least $3 per pound.

No entries in the first-year goat show were sold at the sale -- those sold went for 70 cents a pound on the floor.

Among the top steer entries in the sale, Five-County and County Grand Champion Colby Christie's entry went for $3 per pound, while Five-County and County Reserve Champion Brent Carlson's entry fetched $2.75 per pound. Both were purchased by the Feedyard Buyers Group.

From the hog show, County Grand Champion Rhiana Noland's animal was purchased by the Booster Club for $6.50 per pound, which also purchased Britney Binder's County Reserve Champion hog for $5 per pound.

Five-County Reserve Champion Tanner Self of Dimmitt FFA sold his animal for $5 per pound, which was purchased by a private buyer group.

Five-County and County Grand Champion Chad Christie found his buyer close to home -- grandmother Dolores Christie bought his lamb for a whopping $16 per pound.

The Five-County and County Reserve Grand Champion lamb, shown by Janae Schlabs, was bought by Wall and Sons Drilling for $6.50 per pound.

Another notable lamb price was the tag on the last lamb in the sale, shown by Eddie Trotter, which was also purchased by Wall and Sons, for $10 per pound.

Mrs. Schlabs said some animals had their prices boosted by additions, which are donations to a specific showman by parties who cannot purchase an entire animal, but who want to support a particular young person.

Youngsters who did not place high enough to have their animals in the sale were able to sell for the floor price.

This year's floor prices were: 72 cents per pound on lambs; 63 cents per pound on steers; 40-1/2 cents per pound on hogs; and 70 cents per pound on goats.

Piggy chasers

Participants in the 4 and under division of Friday's PeeWee Showmanship competition try to keep track of their entries, while volunteers stand by to rescue unsuspecting showtots from over-rambunctious hogs. The PeeWee Showmanship event was one of many held during the 1996 Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show. The show concluded Saturday with the annual Livestock Sale.

Retail sales record only slight rise

Holiday shopping fails to boost consumer spending

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - In its last economic report prior to a major Federal Reserve policy meeting, the government said retail sales edged up a scant 0.3 percent in December in a lackluster holiday shopping season.

The Commerce Department said today sales totaled a seasonally adjusted $198.6 billion, up from $198 billion a month earlier. That was a smaller increase than November's revised 0.7 percent gain. Sales in November originally were estimated to have advanced 0.8 percent.

Many analysts had expected a 0.6 percent increase in December. Sales had fallen 0.2 percent in October and 0.1 percent in September.

The December activity boosted retail sales for the year to $2.3 trillion, 4.9 percent above those of 1994 and the smallest gain since a 0.6 percent advance in 1991 as the last recession was ending.

The report was released as Federal Reserve policy makers prepared to open a two-day meeting to consider whether to cut short-term interest rates for a third time in seven months to stimulate the economy.

The Federal Open Market Committee lowered the central bank's federal funds rate from 6 percent to 5.75 percent in July and then to 5.5 percent in December. The rate is what banks charge each other for overnight loans.

Because of the partial government shutdown in late December and early January, many economic reports have been postponed, giving policy makers an abbreviated view of official data. The December retail sales report originally was scheduled for Jan. 12.

Anecdotal data and reports from private organizations and government agencies not affected by the shutdown have painted a bleak picture of the economy lately.

A Fed survey of regional economic activity in early January, for instance, found that "holiday retail sales were generally reported to be below expectations, with extensive discounting."

The finding mirrored reports at year's end that retailers were deeply disappointed with the holiday shopping season despite a sharp increase in sales in November, when gift-buying usually begins.

Retail sales represent about one-half of consumer spending, and the holiday shopping season can account for as much as one-half of a retailer's yearly profits.

Automobile sales rose 0.7 percent in December, down from a 1.1 percent gain a month earlier. Excluding this component, sales were up just 0.2 percent.

Sales of building materials, hardware, garden supplies and mobile homes fell 0.8 percent, wiping out a 0.6 percent increase a month earlier. Sales of furniture and other home furnishings were down 0.2 percent after a 1.7 percent advance in November.

Sales of durable goods inched up 0.3 percent, much weaker than the 1.4 percent gain in November. Sales of nondurable goods also advanced 0.3 percent, topping a 0.2 percent increase the previous month.

Department store sales fell 0.1 percent in December after a 0.4 percent increase a month earlier.

Apparel stores posted a 0.4 percent decline after a 2.0 percent gain in November.

Grocery stores rang up a 0.5 percent increase, erasing a 0.2 percent decrease the previous month.

Gasoline stations pumped up sales activity by 0.9 percent. Business at bars and restaurants rose 0.8 percent but drug store sales dropped 1.1 percent.

Straw poll in Alaska surprises Buchanan

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - Pat Buchanan outlasted Steve Forbes for a narrow victory in Alaska's Republican straw poll, while Bob Dole received barely half as many votes as the winner.

Buchanan received 33 percent of the total, or 2,988 votes. Forbes was 168 votes back with 2,818 votes - or 31 percent. Dole got just 17 percent, or 1,565 votes.

"It's startling. This is just a phenomenal victory," Buchanan said in a telephone interview from Davenport, Iowa, after the results of the Saturday-to-Monday balloting were determined early today. "What it shows is Pat Buchanan is the conservative who can beat Bob Dole and can defeat the multi-million-dollar campaign of Steve Forbes, with energy, issues and ideas. This is going to provide us with tremendous momentum."

Party leaders terminated the straw poll at midnight Alaska time with votes from 38 of Alaska's 40 districts counted. Two districts, one covering Northwest Alaska and the North Slope, and the other in Southwest Alaska, did not report results. Party leaders estimated that they represented fewer than a hundred votes altogether.

Among the trailing candidates, Alan Keyes received 10 percent of the votes and Phil Gramm 9 percent. Keyes had 901 votes to 786 for Gramm. Lamar Alexander had 53 votes or 1 percent.

Other candidates had less than 1 percent of the 9,172 votes.

While Alaska's vote is a tiny fraction of the national total, the early straw poll engineered by Anchorage radio commentator Fritz Pettyjohn drew attention - and several candidates - to the state.

Forbes, Buchanan, Gramm and Keyes all made personal stops and the candidates spent thousands of dollars on Alaska advertising.

Forbes has been a frequent visitor to Alaska on the lecture circuit for more than 15 years. He's addressed pro-development groups on economic issues - and he floated his flat-tax proposal at a speech in Anchorage a few weeks before announcing his candidacy.

Singer declines AMA award, leaves trophy for artist of year on podium

By JOHN ANTZAK
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The American Music Awards finally got around to choosing an artist of the year and the winner didn't even want the trophy.

Garth Brooks, saying there was no disrespect intended, told the audience Monday night that he didn't believe in the concept of picking an artist of the year. "So I'm going to leave it here."

He then walked away, with the crowd cheering and the trophy for the evening's last award still on the podium.

"I couldn't accept it, just out of the love of the fellow musicians. I think we're all one," Brooks said backstage.

Show spokesman Paul Shefrin said he did not know whether Brooks would accept the trophy when it is sent to him.

Earlier, Mariah Carey, the favorite female artist in soul-rhythm & blues, and pop-rock, offered sentiments similar to Brooks' in her acceptance speech: "This is so weird, the whole competition thing."

Brooks said Hootie & the Blowfish should have won artist of the year because people he spoke to in record stores credited the band with turning record sales around.

In addition to Brooks and Hootie, the other nominees for artist of the year were Boyz II Men, Green Day and TLC.

Hootie & the Blowfish - whose debut album, "Cracked Rear View," was 1995's biggest seller, selling 10 million copies - did win favorite new pop-rock artist.

Brooks had no problem accepting two other awards, for favorite country male artist, for the fifth straight year, and favorite country album, "Hits," boosting his career American Music Award total to 10.

The other big winner of the 23rd annual awards were the Eagles, who like Brooks, received three awards - favorite pop-rock album for "Hell Freezes Over," favorite pop-rock band award and favorite adult contemporary artist.

Only one band member showed up to accept. "Everybody's out of town doing different things," Timothy B. Schmit explained.

Boyz II Men was a double winner in the soul-R&B categories, taking the album trophy for "II" and the favorite group title.

Pearl Jam also scored twice as favorite artist in both the alternative and heavy metal-hard rock categories.

Michael Jackson did not show up to pick up the award for favorite male pop-rock artist, adding another trophy to the 18 competitive and special American Music Awards he's collected.

Alabama was once again the top country group, winning a 19th American Music Award. Reba McEntire was country's favorite female artist, her 13th award.

Stress was the topic of a presentation by Beverly Harder, County Extension Agent, to the La Afflatus Estudio Club at its recent meeting in the home of club president Louise Streun.

Harder discussed types of stress and how to deal them.

Aileen Montgomery led the club collect. Virginia Curtsinger read the minutes and gave the financial report.

In attendance were one guest, Christine Lance, and members Opal Elliston, Roxie Phipps, Annie DeLozier, Alberta Higgins, Virginia Beasley, Leola Cook, Emily Suggs, Della Stagner, Montgomery, Curtsinger and Streun.

The club's next meeting will be with Cook. Stagner will serve as hostess and the program will be the responsibility of Phipps.

Lueb added as club nominee

In a recent article listing the nominees for Family Community Education Club Woman of the Year, one name was inadvertently omitted.

Martha Lueb, representing North Hereford FCE Club, is also a nominee for Club Woman of the Year.

There is something about a cupboard that makes a skeleton truly restless.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I can't believe how many mean-spirited people there are in the world. This letter is for "Outraged in Albuquerque," who thinks prison rape is just fine because "they deserve it," and for "Reedley, Calif.," who believes everyone in prison is "a subhuman pervert."

These two people have absolutely no idea of what constitutes today's prison population. Please inform them that seven out of 10 prisoners are incarcerated for non-violent crimes. Is it really "just fine" to throw these non-violent offenders into cells with hardened criminals who think nothing of raping other males?

Almost two-thirds of those non-violent prisoners failed to complete high school. One-third were unemployed before their arrest.

Unfortunately, we are not even attempting to rehabilitate them. Our prisons have become graduate schools for criminal activity.

No wonder our crime rate is going up. We're taking money from education and social programs to build more prisons where non-violent offenders turn to violence in order to protect themselves. Please be fair and let me have my say. The public needs to know.--Lyn in Athens, Ga.

DEAR LYN: I wish I could say you are exaggerating your claims but I cannot. I have received far too many letters that echo the sentiments you expressed. Here's another one:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As someone involved in jail ministry, I continue to be amazed at the recent discussions in your column on prison rape. They provide additional evidence of just how violent this country has become.

In the first place, no one deserves to be raped. Rape is a vicious, violent and dehumanizing crime. Our criminal justice system determines what convicted criminals deserve, and that punishment is meted out. To be raped as well is a hideous injustice.

In the second place, I can tell you that rape in prison is not always reported to law enforcement authorities. For victims who are incarcerated, reporting a rape can be extremely dangerous.

It saddens me when I think of what goes on behind prison walls. Talk of rehabilitation, I'm afraid, is nothing more than wishful thinking. Too often, our correctional facilities are merely warehouses for people who become angrier behind bars and are then let loose on society.--Escanaba, Mich.

DEAR ESCANABA: It is comforting to know that someone as compassionate as you is involved in jail ministry. Too bad you can't be cloned.

I hope that your comments will be noted by the powers-that-be in the corrections system and that the authorities will move to correct this injustice.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You wrote, "Individuals should be allowed to pray silently wherever and whenever they want." Sorry, I don't agree.

My wife and I were invited to dinner at the home of friends. The hostess asked all the guests to join hands around the table for a prayer. I respect religious freedom, but I don't pray. I felt it was in bad taste for her to have subtly forced us to participate in her prayer.--San Marino, Calif.

DEAR S.M.: Since you do not pray, you could have joined hands and thought about baseball, bridge, your candidate for the presidency or winning the lottery.

Pleasure is nature's test, her sign of approval.

7th grade A boys' team claims district tourney

The Hereford seventh grade boys' A basketball team kept its record perfect (15-0) by ripping off three straight wins to capture the district tournament, held Friday and Saturday in Dumas.

The seventh grade B team just missed winning its division, losing by two points in the finals.

No one came within 20 points of the Hereford A team. They started with a 72-14 blowout of Canyon, then blitzed Pampa, 55-30 before whipping Dumas 59-39 in the finals.

Cody Hodges led the way in the finals, scoring 16 points. He also had 18 against Pampa and 15 against Canyon.

Slade Hodges led the team with 21 against Canyon and scored 15 against both Pampa and Dumas. Chayse Rives scored 11 points against Canyon then duplicated that against Dumas. Michael Barba chipped in eight points against Dumas, and Joe Mendoza had eight against Canyon.

The B team rolled over Canyon 67-12 and Pampa 48-22, but then fell short against Borger, 44-42. In that game,

J.P. Holman led with 15 points, Eddie Lacey added 10 and Eddie Ruiz had nine.

Holman scored 17 against Canyon, while both Ruiz and Lacey scored 13. Trey Bezner led the way against Pampa with 11 points, Jeremy Williams contributed nine, and Lacey had eight.

The seventh-graders went back to Dumas Monday along with the Hereford eighth grade teams, and they swept four games from the Imps.

The eighth grade A team won 78-57, getting 18 from Nick Whatley, 15 from L.J. Vallejo, 14 from Greg Ewing and eight from Matt Lusk.

The eighth B team won 42-37. Morris Penalber led the team with 12, Daniel Carnahan had 11 and Bryan Cagle scored nine.

The seventh A team won 69-21. Slade Hodges poured in 25 points, Cody Hodges added 14 and Tim Dudley helped with eight points.

The seventh B won 49-28, with Hagen Henderson scoring 14 points for Hereford.

8th grade girls take 3rd

Hereford eighth grade girls' A team took third place in the district basketball tournament, which was completed Saturday in Borger.

Hereford knocked off Valleyview, 24-18, in the third-place game. Tori Walker led Hereford in that game.

Hereford fell to Canyon, 20-9, in the semifinals, with Toni Eicke scoring four of Hereford's points. Hereford beat Pampa 35-33 in the first round Thursday.

The eighth B team finished sixth, losing all three of its games. No scores were reported.

All four HJH girls hosted Dumas teams Monday, but Hereford won only two of those games.

The Hereford seventh grade B team rolled to a 41-11 victory. Bethany Williams led the team with 18 points, and Renee Hernandez chipped in with 11 points.

The seventh grade A team was edged, 18-15, and Pam Klein scored 10 for Hereford. The eighth grade A team lost 32-28, despite Tori Walker's 13 points. The eighth B team fell 24-13; Emily Hafziger led Hereford with six points.

Freshmen girls finish 3rd

The Hereford freshman girls' basketball team claimed third place in its district tournament, which was played at Randall High School and completed Saturday.

Hereford pounded Canyon, 54-33, in the third-place game. Amy Perrin scored 16 points to lead a balanced scoring attack: Lyndi Carlile had 11 points; Rachel Chavez had nine; and Kristin Cole and Crystal Bailey had eight each. Dumas knocked off Hereford in the semis, 46-35. Perrin led the team with 11 points.

In a first round game played Thursday, Hereford beat Caprock 57-49, as Carlile piled up 27 points.

The team hosted Borger Monday, and Borger came from 12 points down to win 45-41. Perrin led Hereford Monday with 14 points.

Herd sophomores pound Plainview

The Hereford sophomore boys' basketball team beat up on the Plainview sophomores, 51-28, Saturday morning in Hereford.

Hereford was led by J.J. Gaytan, who scored 13 points. Tony Garcia added 10 points.

The team improved to 9-7 overall, but they're 6-0 since the Christmas break, coach Rodney Allen said.

It's official: Cowboys are great

By BARRY WILNER
AP Football Writer

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) - Besides toting the Vince Lombardi Trophy off the field after winning the Super Bowl, the Dallas Cowboys carried an attitude that not even a third championship in four years could shake.

The Cowboys certainly affirmed their greatness with their 27-17 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers. No team has won three Super Bowls in such a short span, and there's no reason to doubt the Cowboys will add to their booty before the decade runs out.

Dallas didn't even play that well against the Pittsburgh Steelers; in fact, it was outplayed for much of the game. Yet it was resilient enough to make the key plays and extend the NFC's dominance to an even dozen years.

So why not drop the attitude? For one, that's not the Cowboys' way. For another, maybe they are entitled to be ticked off.

"It's like slamming a whole lot of people in their faces," said Emmitt

Smith, the classy running back whose honesty and articulate manner is as impressive as his running style and stats. "It was sweet. People were calling us cocky and arrogant. Everyone says we're glamorous. Hey, we don't say that about ourselves. The media says that."

"We did this for ourselves and our fans. We did it for Barry Switzer and Ernie Zampese and the coaches. To see the way Barry and Ernie's faces were lit up ... it's nice to see their faces glow."

Being marketed as America's Team has worked well for the Cowboys in malls and department stores from coast to coast. It also has made them a target, they claim. And not even winning Super Bowls eases that burden.

"If you all want to criticize, you ain't got the right," Michael Irvin said. "You say all this stuff about Barry and about how we're dead and not going back and then we prove y'all wrong."

"If I want to say something about somebody on the team, I got the right. If Nate Newton wants to say, or Emmitt or Troy, they got the right. Y'all don't got the right."

Even when people call the Cowboys the team of the decade, which they clearly are so far, it is a sore point for some players.

"There's a long way to go in the '90s," Smith said. "We've got something great going and hopefully we can keep it up. Then, when the decade is over, you can decide if we're the team of the decade."

It will be tough to stop them from earning that title. So many key players - Smith, Irvin, Troy Aikman, Deion Sanders, Newton, Erik Williams, Darren Woodson, Leon Lett - are in or near the primes of their careers. While Woodson and Super Bowl MVP Larry Brown are among seven defensive starters who are free agents (if you count cornerback Kevin Smith, who missed all but the first game with a torn Achilles tendon), owner Jerry Jones should be able to keep much of the team intact.

Of course, Jones might carry the biggest chip of all, having been criticized for a tiff with Jimmy Johnson that caused Johnson to leave as Dallas coach after the 1993 title. Then Jones was blasted again for hiring Switzer.

Among his NFL brethren, he is Public Enemy No. 1 as he pursues a lawsuit over marketing rights.

But he also is running the most successful franchise in the league, perhaps in all sports. Regardless of how people feel about his techniques and his image, he has to be considered - like his team - a winner.

"Jerry Jones put together a great team, a championship team," Sanders said. "He's done it three times."

"All week long, they talked about how we were in limos. Sure we're in limos. We're stars. We're Hollywood."

"You know what? I'm thinking about telling Jerry to move the team to Hollywood."

Cowboys try to recover after Jones' celebration

By KEVIN O'HANLON
Associated Press Writer

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) - Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones found a way to circumvent Arizona's 1 a.m. cutoff time for serving alcohol.

Jones, who complained publicly last week that the alcohol curfew would cut into his team's postgame party, kept the celebration going well into Monday morning following the Cowboys' 27-17 Super Bowl win over the Pittsburgh Steelers in Tempe, Ariz.

"I'm tired. I haven't slept," Cowboys coach Barry Switzer said as he stepped off the team's chartered jet at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport late Monday afternoon. "We stayed up late last night. Jerry threw a great party."

Many of the players were bleary-eyed and partied out.

"I'm tired, man," said cornerback Deion Sanders as he trudged across the tarmac holding one of his sleeping children. "Where's that limo?"

Cornerback Larry Brown, whose two interceptions earned him MVP honors for the game, was tired - but beaming.

"It's a great feeling, but I'm gonna go home and get some rest," he said.

Brown, who labored all season as the Cowboys "other" cornerback opposite superstar Sanders, said he was surprised by being named MVP.

"I saw my name on the scoreboard," he said. "Everybody on the team started chanting 'Larry! Larry!' I was excited and happy. It's something I'll cherish for the rest of my life."

138 million people watched SB XXX

NEW YORK (AP) - Maybe all NBC needed to make ratings history was a little help from some "Friends."

NBC's telecast of the Super Bowl on Sunday night played to an estimated total viewership of 138,488,000, the most people ever to watch a single TV show, the network said.

The previous record was the 1994 Super Bowl between Dallas and Buffalo on NBC, watched by an estimated 134,800,000.

Knicks beat Riley-led Heat for 3rd straight time

By The Associated Press
No matter what side he's on, Pat Riley seems to spur the New York Knicks.

The Knicks, who came within a basket of winning the NBA title under Riley in 1994, beat him and the Miami Heat for the third time this season, 94-85 Monday night.

"We play very well against them. Maybe when he is there it brings out the demon in us. If it keeps going like this, we should play them every game," said Hubert Davis, who scored 19 points.

Patrick Ewing scored 35 points as the Knicks improved to 7-0 against Miami in the last two seasons. New York is 17-1 overall against the Heat at Madison Square Garden.

Riley was loudly booed when he returned to the Garden on Dec. 19. In his second trip back, he was only razzed for three seconds when Miami's lineup was introduced.

"There wasn't 36 stories before the game, there wasn't a countdown, there weren't any banners and the people were rather subdued tonight. I have nothing but respect for Knicks fans, and one day it might be normal again, I hope," Riley said.

Davis hit three 3-pointers and Charles Oakley made five foul shots in a span of five minutes late in the fourth quarter as the Knicks opened an eight-point lead.

Then the first physical confrontation of the game - Derek Harper of the Knicks tangling with Rex Chapman - seemed to ignite Miami. The Heat closed to 75-74 before New York pulled away.

"Maybe we need to get in a fight more often, go back to what we are, do it the dirty way. Get in someone's face and everyone responds," Davis said.

Chapman scored 23 points, Alonzo Mourning 21 and Billy Owens 19 for Miami.

Hornets 88, Cavaliers 86

Kenny Anderson made a running bank shot with six-tenths of a second left, lifting Charlotte over Cleveland. At 21-21, the Hornets reached the .500 mark for the first time since Nov. 11.

Anderson dribbled at top of the key before driving left and shooting over Michael Cage for the winning shot. Larry Johnson blocked Danny Ferry's 3-point try at the buzzer.

Anderson finished with 16 points and Johnson had 20 points and 17 rebounds. Terrell Brandon scored 22 points for the visiting Cavaliers.

SuperSonics 92, Trail Blazers 88

Gary Payton hit 10 of 12 shots, including a 19-footer with 13.5 seconds left, and scored 21 points as Seattle won at Portland for its fifth straight victory.

Clifford Robinson scored 25 for Portland despite shooting only 8-for-24. The Blazers, on pace to become the worst foul shooting team in NBA history, were 19-for-31 from the line.

Seattle star Shawn Kemp was held out of the starting lineup by coach George Karl because he arrived late. Some of the Sonics went to Portland after taking the team plane to Arizona for the Super Bowl.

Portland's Rod Strickland sat out the entire third quarter because of back spasms.

Jazz 106, Pistons 97

Karl Malone scored 40 points and Utah coasted after building a 26-point lead late in the first half.

The host Jazz were ahead 69-45 with eight minutes left in the third quarter, but Detroit closed within nine points in the final period. Malone scored 13 points in the fourth quarter to help preserve Utah's lead.

John Stockton had 19 points and 14 assists for Utah. Grant Hill scored 34 for the Pistons.

76ers 103, Grizzlies 92
Jerry Stackhouse had 29 points as short-handed Philadelphia stopped a nine-game losing streak. The 76ers won their eighth game, fewest in the league and two fewer than expansion Vancouver.

The Sixers had only nine players. Derrick Coleman and Sharone Wright are injured and Vernon Maxwell, sentenced earlier in the day in Houston to 90 days in jail on a marijuana possession charge, did not show up.

Sean Higgins had 27 points and 11 rebounds for the 76ers and Clarence Weatherspoon had 23 points and 10 rebounds. Greg Anthony had 18 points for the visiting Grizzlies.

Magic returns to NBA tonight

By ROB GLOSTER
AP Sports Writer

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - Tim Hardaway has visited AIDS patients in children's hospitals. He has read about the virus and its transmission. He has attended NBA Players Association discussions about AIDS.

The result, Hardaway says, is that he knows a lot more about the virus than he did a few years ago. And the Golden State Warriors guard says that explains why most players no longer fear Magic Johnson's return to the NBA.

Hardaway and his teammates will be the opposition tonight when Johnson, who retired in 1991 after testing positive for the virus that causes AIDS, plays his first game back with the Los Angeles Lakers.

"I'm not going to back off him," Hardaway said. "I'm going to slap the ball out of his hands. He's just like a regular person."

In 1992, when Johnson planned a return, several NBA players expressed concern about the risk of catching the AIDS virus from him - leading Johnson to decide against a comeback.

But doctors have since largely discounted the possibility that the virus could be spread through the rough and tumble of pro sports, and players have become better educated about the virus and its transmission.

"Back in college, you really didn't think about it. Then Magic came along with the virus," Hardaway said. "Now, when you go to all these hospitals and stuff, they educate you on the virus."

Warriors forward Jerome Kersey said Johnson's open discussion of his health has been a big factor in his peers' education about the virus.

"I think you've got to look back and say it was a great thing that he did by coming out and standing up to it," Kersey said. "When you first heard of Magic having it, you thought you could get it if Magic breathed on you. It's not one of these things that's taboo now."

As Johnson was announcing his return to pro basketball Monday, the Warriors were becoming the first team to designate an NBA game as a benefit for AIDS care, research and education.

The timing of the two announcements was coincidental - the Warriors had been planning the AIDS benefit for several months and had scheduled Monday's news conference days before.

Kersey joined Warriors officials in announcing the Feb. 7 contest against the Chicago Bulls will be designated as the league's first "Until There's a Cure" game - with proceeds of premium ticket sales, a pregame reception and an auction going to local AIDS organizations.

The Warriors hope to raise $100,000 at the game, which will feature pregame ceremonies and a taped message from Johnson. A percentage of the funds will be donated to the Magic Johnson Foundation.

"This is a disease that a few years ago, we didn't have the information," Warriors assistant general manager Al Attles said. "Now we have the education."

Attles and Kersey now wear bracelets sold by the "Until There's a Cure" Foundation. Kersey, who helped make an AIDS videotape with the NBA Players Association two years ago while with Portland, has a college friend involved in AIDS research.

The San Francisco Giants have held similar benefits the past two seasons, raising about $100,000 each time, and the San Francisco 49ers raised about $50,000 with their "Until There's a Cure" day this past season.

The money is used to support AIDS education programs and development of a vaccine. Dana Cappiello, co-founder of the "Until There's a Cure" Foundation, said the benefits do more than just raise money.

"Young people are really at risk, more than any group right now, and their heroes are athletes, they idolize these guys," Cappiello said. "Games like this that the Warriors are doing are going to do a lot toward having people with HIV being accepted."

Warriors coach Rick Adelman said he expects some players will still be leery of getting physical with Johnson, though he thinks that will disappear in the heat of competition.

Eberz picks up slack for Kittles in Villanova win over Syracuse

By WILLIAM KATES
AP Sports Writer

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) - Syracuse did a great job taking Kerry Kittles out of his normal game with its shifting zone defenses. It didn't count on Eric Eberz stepping up in Kittles' place, even if it was for just one shot.

Eberz, enduring a poor shooting night, hit a 3-pointer 51 seconds into overtime Monday night, giving No. 6 Villanova the lead for good in a 72-69 victory the 18th-ranked Orangemen.

Kittles led the Wildcats (17-3, 8-2 Big East) with 26 points, but he did not score over the final 7:55 of regulation and the overtime.

"We concentrated on him in our zone. We tried to play him as hard as we could and make somebody else hurt the whole last 10 or 15 minutes of the game," Syracuse coach Jim Boheim said. "They didn't really make anything from the other positions until the overtime when Eberz got that one."

Eberz, who finished with 14 points, was just 1-of-7 from 3-point range before the decisive shot.

"They say good shooters just keep shooting. I was getting open shots. I just wasn't making them," he said. "The 3 that I made was pretty much an open shot. I just shot it and the ball went in the net.

"That zone was giving us trouble the whole night. It was something we didn't expect. I don't think we've seen a team this year play zone for that long a period of time."

In the only other game involving a ranked team on Monday, No. 13 Virginia Tech beat St. Joseph's 85-76.

Syracuse (14-6, 5-5), which lost its first home game of the season, made up a nine-point deficit over the final 7:55 of regulation. The Orangemen, however, failed to score a field goal in the extra period and missed four of eight foul shots in overtime.

The Orangemen had one last chance to tie when Todd Burgan grabbed a missed free throw by John Wallace with 29 seconds to play and Syracuse trailing 72-69. Syracuse called two timeouts while running the clock down, but Wallace bounced a 25-footer off the backboard with less than a second left.

Wallace, who finished with 31 points, blamed himself for the loss after missing three of four from the foul line in overtime.

"Every time I shoot a free throw I think I'm going to make it," said Wallace.

"I think there's more education in society itself. It's four years down the line, and people are more aware. There's a lot of (HIV-infected) people who are living effective lives," Adelman said.

Adelman just wishes Johnson had waited a few more days to make his return. The Warriors are 18-24 this season, and have lost five of their last seven.

Murals are exhibited

An open house was held recently at Stanton Learning Center by the Hereford High School art class.

The open house was held to exhibit murals that the art students, under the direction of Gayla Kimball, had painted for use by Rene Heil, clinician, Families First Program, Child and Adolescent Services of Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority.

The art students spent several weeks during the fall semester painting the murals which depict nursery rhyme characters, Disney characters and Barney the dinosaur.

The Hereford Key Club assisted by providing and serving refreshments for the open house.

Members of Kimball's class who painted the murals are Ronnie Rodriguez, Christal Ainslee, Michael Ruiz, Felix Beltran, Amber Vasek, George Bravo, Brandon Brown, Ruben Cantu, Anthony Cervantez, Trevor Criner, Michael Estrada, John Marty Galan, David Garcia, Elice Guerrero, Jonathon Hernandez, Vicky Hernandez, John Paul Liscano, Carlos Martinez, Lucan Mendoza, Priscillo Moreno and Efrain Ramos.

Clint Formby presented a characterization of the life experiences, personalities and incidents that left an imprint on him and helped shape his life.

In the absence of president Suzanne Smith, vice-president Kitty Gault presided over the business meeting.

Among items discussed was a final report on the results of Project Christmas Card which was very generously supported by the community. Proceeds from the fundraiser will be presented to HRMC for the purchase of a colposcope, an instrument utilized in the evaluation of rape and sexual assault cases.

Help palate wake up with original health food

By JOY AULT

Valley Morning Star

HARLINGEN, Texas - Take a sip of Texas - and sleepy palates will wake up with Texas grapefruit breakfast drinks.

Sweet and juicy, red and delicious, Texas grapefruit has the impressive taste that only Texas can brag about. Its flavor is serious competition for bacon and eggs, biscuits and gravy on busy mornings.

An original health food abounding in nutrients, half a Texas red grapefruit has more fiber than a banana, less calories than an apple, and more vitamin C than a banana, peach, pear and apple combined.

Red grapefruit can be baked, broiled, stir-fried or added to marinades and salads. And nibble this ... Texas red grapefruit is a sweet treat in school lunch boxes.

"Eat it like an orange," said Mary McKeever, marketing manager of TexaSweat Citrus Marketing Inc., the promotional arm of the Texas Citrus Industry. Break out of the traditional ways of eating grapefruit. Peel them like an orange and eat as a snack, or throw into a salad.

Although many people think they are still eating Ruby Red, most grapefruit now on the market are Rio Stars, which are the deepest red. The industry did a turn-around after the '89 freeze, when more Rio Stars began producing and more of them were replanted.

At consumer shows around the country, people who previously didn't like grapefruit tell TexaSweat representatives they "love the Rio Stars." Twenty thousand visitors at the '95 St. Louis show sampled the Texas red grapefruit. And TexaSweat will share the popular Texas taste at shows in Phoenix, Denver, Seattle and Houston this year.

"Give it a try," McKeever said. "Fresh-squeezed grapefruit juice is fabulous."

And don't limit yourself to the following recipes. Experiment.

 Thin slice of grapefruit, quartered for garnish

LEGAL NOTICES

LEGAL NOTICE
TEXAS CORN PRODUCERS BOARD
 VOTING REGION TWO

The Texas Corn Producers Board (TCPB) will conduct elections in five of its eight voting regions for the purpose of electing five new TCPB board members whose current members' seats have expired. There are a total of fifteen TCPB voting board members. These elections, to be conducted in 112 Texas counties, are being held pursuant to the Texas Commodity Referendum Law, Texas Agriculture Code, Title 3, Chapter 41, Subchapter A, Section 41.032. Voting Region Two consists of the counties of Hartley, Oldham, Deaf Smith, Farmer, and Bailey, and there is One Seat open for election of TCPB board members in Voting Region Two.

In 1990, Texas Corn Producers voted to expand the research and promotion program for corn, funded by a uniform corn check-off, to every county in the State of Texas. This election is the biennial election required by the Texas Commodity Referendum Law.

A person is eligible to vote in the board election if he or she is, or for at least one production period during the three years preceding the date of the board election has been, a producer of, or caused to be produced, corn for commercial purposes. This includes owners of farms and their tenants or sharecroppers, if the person would be required to pay the assessment. For a producer to vote in this voting region and for this TCPB seat, such producer must reside within the counties stated above. Only voters residing within the above counties may vote for candidate(s) representing this voting region.

Any eligible voter-producer as defined above may place his or her name in nomination to serve as a director on the TCPB. Nomination applications must be submitted to the TCPB signed by the applicant and ten other eligible voters. Nomination forms will be available in all 112 counties where elections are to be held this year, including the specific counties within this voting region, as listed above. Nomination forms can also be obtained by writing the TCPB, 218 E. Bedford, Dimmitt, Texas, 79027. Please state your county of residence if you request nomination forms in writing from the TCPB office. All nominations must be filed with the TCPB not later than 30 days before the date set for the elections, and the date for the deadline for receipt of valid nomination forms by TCPB is, therefore, a postmark date of March 15, 1996. Nomination forms will be available after February 15, 1996.

The election in each of the five voting regions where elections are called for will be held by mail ballot. Ballots containing by nominations of all persons who have validly filed petitions under Section 41.025 of the above stated code will be available after March 25, 1996, at either elevators or other points of check-off collection in each of the appropriate voting regions, at county agent offices in each of the 112 counties where elections are to occur, or by writing the TCPB at the address stated above. For a ballot to be counted, such ballot must be postmarked no later than April 22, 1996. There are five voting regions conducting elections in 1996. A voter must reside within a county contained within the voting region that the voter is casting his or her vote, and a voter must meet the definition set forth above as to a qualified voter. Voters may also vote for board members by "writing in" the name of any eligible persons.

Pursuant to Section 41.023 of the Texas Commodity Referendum Law, this notice for a TCPB election within this voting region is being published in all appropriate newspapers with the voting region, such notice being published at least once a week for three consecutive weeks beginning at least 60 days before the date of the election.

The Texas Corn Producers Board is certified under Section 41.011 and Section 41.012 of the Texas Commodity Referendum Law to conduct this election, and has obtained all approvals and determinations required by law from the Commissioner of Agriculture, Texas Department of Agriculture.

By EDUARDO MONTES
Associated Press Writer
EL PASO, Texas (AP) - Bootheels crunching on stone-littered dirt paths break the silence engulfing Concordia Cemetery on an unseasonably warm January morning.

The hush is otherwise all pervasive - except for those who know how to hear the countless stories being told here.

The tumbled headstones and half-buried markers peering from scattered tufts of desert grass are the narrators.

Those willing to delve beyond the names and dates etched in concrete and marble become the beneficiaries of the secrets they hold. Gloria Jett, one of two visitors on this sunny day, is just such a person, and she has been entranced by what she has learned.

"I just got bit by the history," Jett says, completely banishing the silence in the process. "It kind of grabs you."

To most people familiar with Concordia, which is almost literally in the shadow of a freeway overpass in central El Paso, it is probably best known as the final resting place of John Wesley Hardin.

The notorious Old West gunslinger, who is rumored to have collected 30 notches on his gun during his lifetime, was buried here in 1895 after being shot in the head at El Paso's Acme Saloon.

But to Jett and other members of the Concordia Heritage Association, a historical society dedicated to preserving the cemetery, this dusty patch of parched desert and its 60,000-plus graves represents so much more.

"What this encompasses is all the history of El Paso," Jett said. "Anyone that created El Paso, did a little bit of what it took, is here."

The list is lengthy, running from Juana Ascarate de Stephenson, co-owner of the Concordia Ranch, which included the original cemetery plots, to a former Mexican president, Victoriano Huerta - who has since been removed - to the paupers buried in unmarked graves.

Constable John Selman, who gunned down Hardin after an argument, is also reputedly buried here, though no one is sure where.

Because of these people and others, the Concordia Association's members consider the cemetery a priceless repository of historical knowledge, and now they're struggling on several fronts to ensure that it will remain unspoiled for future generations.

The most widely known campaign involves an ongoing dispute with Hardin's descendants over his remains.

The family wants to relocate Hardin to Nixon, Texas, a small town east of San Antonio where he lived briefly and where his first wife, Jane, is buried.

Hardin's great-grandson, John Billings, has said he wants to return Hardin to "where the memory of him is better served by people who knew what he was."

Late last year, family representatives came to town armed with a court order and tried to remove the body, setting up an early morning confrontation at the gunfighter's grave.

Association members and others stopped them with a restraining order, however, and are suing for a permanent injunction that would ensure Hardin's body will remain.

They argue that removing him would be detrimental.

"A big drawing card would have left," said historian Leon Metz, who has written a book on Hardin. "We would be poorer for it. We wouldn't be impoverished, but the town would be much poorer if we lost Hardin."

The case goes to trial Jan. 29.

The other matter is not similarly contentious, but is also vital to the cemetery's future, Jett said.

The association is seeking to acquire legal guardianship of the cemetery, which would finally give a single entity authority to fix the damage done by years of neglect and by vandals who frequently target Concordia.

"Right now everything is so fragmented, it's difficult," said association attorney Christopher Johnston.

Grave makers poke out of bare earth, which in some places does manage to sustain some sickly pale grass.

Many headstones have been tipped over and never righted and at least one mausoleum has been cracked open by vagrants seeking a place to sleep.

Hardin's tombstone was even stolen last year, though it was later recovered.

Acquiring guardianship isn't particularly easy because it requires the association to get approvals from the cemetery's various owners, as well as notify the plot owners, some of whom can't even be found.

The matter is further complicated by the fact that some areas are still being used for new graves, including a section set aside for the Chinese who came to El Paso with the railroad and the Jewish section.

Should the guardianship bid succeed, Jett envisions a day when visitors led here by a much-desired listing on the national historical register will move along shaded paths skirting well-kept graves with all their headstones restored.

A visitors' center will also have been constructed in the paupers' area - serving as a headstone for those who have none. There the curious would be able to learn more about the cemetery, and hear the stories it preserves.

Without something like that, Metz said, Concordia's meaning will be lost. "It becomes just an old cemetery with no significance," he said.
