Grieving begins in wake of fatal air crash Body of Commerce Secretary identified; flags flying at half-staff

Stop everything and read

Students at Shirley Intermediate School were encouraged to grab a book and dress up like their favorite book characters Wednesday as the school held "Stop Everything and Read Day." Joining the festivities were numerous community representatives who gave an hour of their time in the afternoon to read books to individual classes. Here, Dr. Kent Walker reads to Mary Ann Alexander's fifth-grade class. See related photo, Page 2.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A stunned capital was in mourning today. Flags flew at half-staff and grief hung over the Commerce Department on a sunny spring day that should have held the promise of new life.

The bodies of Commerce Secretary Ron Brown and his entire entourage had been found, recovered from a plane crash in Croatia on Wednesday. A grieving President Clinton, whom Brown helped win the White House in 1992, ordered flags flown at half-staff in the nation's capital. On Wall Street, the New York Stock Exchange was observing a moment of silence.

Clinton called Brown's widow early today to notify her that the secretary's body had been identified, said presidential spokesman Mike McCurry.

The president joined other administration officials at a brief memorial service at nearby St. John's Church. The service was scheduled at the request of the White House, McCurry said, so that Clinton and his aides could "reflect in a private way on the loss of Secretary Brown."

At the Pentagon, Air Force Lt. Gen. Howell Estes III said search crews were trying to determine the number of people on the plane. A passenger list for the flight showed 33 Americans and two Croatians but, as of today, only 33 bodies had been recovered.

Contrary to reports from Croatia, Estes said he did not believe the Air Force passenger plane carried a voice or data recorder. He also defended the relatively old technology used to guide the plane toward the Dubrovnik airport prior to the crash.

"It is a kind of an approach that's been around for a while, there's no question about that, but it's still a very valid approach," Estes said. "Many aircraft have landed at the airport there at Dubrovnik with no difficulty. If we thought it wasn't a safe approach we wouldn't allow our aircraft to use it."

The Air Force and the National Transportation Safety Board dispatched a team to Dubrovnik to investigate Wednesday's crash near the Adriatic coast. And the Army field headquarters in Tuzla, Bosnia, assembled an emergency team to help search for bodies amid high winds and sheets of rain.

"We have found the last victim," Croatian Interior Minister Ivan Jarnjak told the state HINA news agency today, confirming that none of the 33 aboard survived the crash of the U.S. Air Force plane.

The State Department was waiting to release the names of the victims pending notification of their families. Clinton, visiting the Commerce Department's Washington headquarters on Wednesday to deliver the tragic news, praised Brown.

"He was one of the best advisers and ablest people I ever knew. And he was very, very good at everything he ever did," Clinton told about 700 Commerce employees, several huddled together in stunned sorrow.

With first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, Vice President Al Gore and most of the Cabinet on hand, Clinton led Brown's subordinates, many of them weeping, in silent prayer.

Clinton and his wife joined a parade of friends and dignitaries who trekked to Brown's home to comfort his wife, Alma. Longtime political allies of the former Democratic Party chief - Sen. Edward Kennedy, former National Urban League chief Jordan and others - were among the visitors.

Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros described the mood in the Brown household.

"They're proud and they have a lot of reason to be proud of Ron's accomplishments. They are strong people and they're holding up," Cisneros said.

According to Estes, the jetliner carried six crew members and 27 American passengers, including Brown, several aides and more than a dozen senior executives on a mission to stimulate U.S. corporate interest in rebuilding Bosnia. In addition, a Croatian photographer and translator were on board. But government officials were still trying to confirm the total number of passengers.

Among them were Walter Murphy, a senior vice president for AT&T Submarine Systems Inc. of Morristown, N.J.; Robert A. Whittaker, chairman and chief executive officer of Foster Wheeler Energy International, Clinton, N.J.; and John A. Scoville, chairman of Harza Engineering Co., Chicago.

Bomb parts found in search of home Former professor arrested; may have been Unabomber

HELENA, Mont. (AP) - Federal agents found a partially assembled bomb in the mountain shack of a former Berkeley math professor suspected of being the Unabomber, federal officials said. They prepared to charge him today.

Ted John Kaczynski, 53, was to be charged with one count of possession of a bomb, according to three federal law enforcement officials, who requested anonymity. The initial charge would hold Kaczynski but would make no mention of the Unabomber's 18-year string of bombing attacks while agents put together a detailed case. FBI and Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents found a partially assembled explosive device when they X-rayed one of many boxes in his remote wilderness cabin late Wednesday, two officials said. They also said bomb diagrams were found. "It's going very slowly because we're not sure if it's booby-trapped," said one federal agent. "We have an explosives ordinance team X-raying everything before we touch it."

Officials said the search of the cabin and an outbuilding could take several days. "We've got all the time in the world now that he's in custody," said one agent.

Also found were chemicals that could be used in bombs, including aluminum, and two manual typewriters, the officials said. The Unabomber has sent a sheaf of typed missives over the past few years and investigators wanted to compare those with the machines.

The officials denied a CBS News report that alibi evidence for two bombings had been uncovered. "Nothing has been found that precludes him from being the Unabomber," said a senior federal official in Washington. "There are outstanding issues, such as how he could have gotten from Montana to the locations where the bombs were mailed given that he has no car."

Kaczynski was taken into custody by federal agents Wednesday so they could search his cabin 50 miles northwest of here. He was not immediately placed under arrest or charged.

The Unabomber is thought to be responsible for three deaths and 23 injuries since 1978. The FBI gave the case the code name "Unabom" because early targets were universities and airlines.

The bearded, long-haired suspect wore torn black jeans and a black shirt as he was taken in handcuffs to an FBI office in Helena and transferred late Wednesday night to the nearby county jail.

FBI agents had been staking out Kaczynski's hand-built cabin near the Continental Divide for several weeks, ever since relatives in the Chicago area notified authorities that they had stumbled across some of his old writings and found them similar to the Unabomber's anarchist manifestoes.

Official says no fear of BSE being introduced in country

British beef has recently become suspect because of a rare disease that has been suspected of causing a fatal human illness, but one state agency says Americans can rest secure in the knowledge that the disease has not made its way to the United States.

Frank Welch, an animal health inspector for the Texas Animal Health Commission, was in Hereford on Wednesday and said the United States banned English beef in 1989, so there is no fear of bovine spongiform encephalopathy -- or "mad cow disease" -- being introduced into this country.

Welch said the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (USDA-APHIS) has traced 499 head of cattle from Great Britain that were brought into the U.S. between 1981 and 1989, when the ban took effect.

Of those cattle, 106 are known to be alive. All are under permanent quarantine and are monitored and observed for behavioral changes. No signs of BSE have been observed.

"We have received several phone calls concerning the disease," said Welch. "We just do not want the facts to be miscommunicated to the public and cause a big scare."

According to the TAHC, it is an extremely rare, chronic degenerative disease affecting the central nervous system of cattle.

BSE is caused by a protein material -- or a "prion" -- which is smaller than a virus and cannot be spread from one animal to another. The disease is passed when cattle are fed protein that was contaminated with the BSE agent.

The agent is not found in milk or meat. It is found only in the brain tissue, spinal cords and intestines of infected animals.

It was first diagnosed in cattle in Great Britain in 1986, according to TAHC.

Although it is nicknamed "mad cow disease" in the media, it is not related to rabies, and infected cattle are not violent.

BSE is a degenerative central nervous system disease that causes infected cattle to become nervous, lose coordination, lose weight, have difficulty walking and eventually die two weeks to six months after symptoms appear.

Since July 1988, Great Britain has banned the use of ruminant-derived protein for use in feed.

Mock accident extrication

Hereford High School emergency medical technician students got a hand from the professionals on Wednesday as Hereford EMS paramedics Chris Flores, right, and Stewart Jackson and Terry Hazlett, left, helped them learn how to safely remove accident victims from vehicles. The accident practice took place on the parking lot and involved strapping a patient to a back board and removing that person from the vehicle.

Rain -- maybe snow -- possible

Hereford recorded a high temperature of 80 degrees on Wednesday, with an overnight low of 35 degrees this morning. For tonight, the forecast calls for cloudy skies with a 20 percent chance of rain or snow late. The low will be around 30 degrees with northeast winds of 10-20 mph. For Friday, look for cloudy and cooler with a chance of rain, possibly mixed with snow. The high will be in the lower 40s with northeast to east winds at 10-20 mph. Precipitation chance is 40 percent.

World/Nation

WASHINGTON - When a suburban Chicago family began cleaning up to sell their home some two months ago, they stumbled on what federal agents believe is the best clue so far to the identity of the Unabomber they have sought for 17-1/2 years.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. - A banker testified in the Whitewater case that then-Gov. Bill Clinton was at a meeting where one of his partners discussed a $300,000 loan and a land development later completed in an illegal use of the money.

But in this third day on the stand, David Hale did not indicate whether there was any discussion of using the federal loan for the land development - a use that would be illegal.

SAHINICI, Bosnia-Herzegovina - Examining a small, muddy field about the size of a basketball court, investigators tagged a leg bone, a skeleton and a piece of rib cage as possible evidence of war crimes. The field is about 18 miles northwest of Srebrenica, where as many as 7,000 Muslims are believed to have been killed by Serb fighters who overran the town last July.

BETHESDA, Md. - Women who become sexually active in their adolescent years are far more likely to develop cervical cancer, a disease that kills about 5,000 American women annually, a panel of experts concluded at the National Institutes of Health.

BEIJING - China's roads are a bit like a new frontier: rough, rugged and seemingly lawless. More than 71,000 people died in auto accidents and some 160,000 others were injured last year. This week, the government said it planned to impose a little order on the chaos with a campaign to raise public awareness of traffic rules.

State

DRIPPING SPRINGS - Republicans picking a nominee for Texas' 14th Congressional District will choose between two politicians who weren't Republicans the last time either was on a November election ballot.

WASHINGTON - The 20 candidates vying in next week's House runoffs in Texas spent more than $1.5 million over a 28-day period ending last month, with big-money races dominating in South Central and East Texas.

SAN ANTONIO - A debate between Democratic Senate runoff contenders John Bryant and Victor Morales was missing a candidate, but was filled with fiery confrontation. Morales did not attend a debate Wednesday organized by the San Antonio Democratic League, opting instead to campaign in San Angelo. Bryant did show up and faced off with about a dozen shouting Morales supporters.

WASHINGTON - While he remains vague on whether he will run for president, Ross Perot has quietly filed paperwork with the government that keeps the possibility alive.

RUSK - Convicted child molester Larry Don McQuay will be released on Monday, probably to his hometown of San Antonio, the Texas parole commission says. Victor Rodriguez, chairman of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles, said a double-check of McQuay's prison records determined that the avowed pedophile is indeed entitled to mandatory release under state law.

WASHINGTON - By mid-October, the Federal Aviation Administration will implement a long-awaited air traffic control plan designed to relieve congested skies over Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and nationwide.

DALLAS - Word on whether the president of a Dallas-based energy company was aboard a jet that crashed in Croatia was to be released today by the U.S. State Department.

DALLAS - Three boys didn't know what they were getting into when they agreed to go to a "party" at a schoolmate's house, but it didn't take long to realize they were seeing something bad happening.

HOUSTON - Three big oil giants - Mobil Corp., Shell Chemical and Pennzoil Co. - have announced a recent series of layoffs. But the downsizing fever that seems to be catching in the oil industry is no sign of bad times on the horizon, analysts say. It's merely some corporate pruning.

BEAUMONT - A district attorney has admitted he used his authority to obtain a temporary release from an Alabama federal prison camp and other preferential treatment for an inmate who was also his friend.

House candidates spend big bucks

Races in South Central, East Texas lead election parade

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The 20 candidates vying in next week's House runoffs in Texas spent more than $1.5 million over a 28-day period ending last month, with big-money races dominating in South Central and East Texas.

Nowhere was the spending higher than in the hard-fought 14th District battle between Democrat-turned-Republican incumbent Greg Laughlin and Ron Paul, a Republican-turned-Libertarian-turned-Republican.

The pair spent more than $413,000, according to the latest filings with the Federal Election Commission, tracking campaign activity from Feb. 22 through March 20.

Laughlin took in more than any other Texan in a House runoff, raising $197,458 during the period - an average of nearly $9,900 a day.

His latest FEC report offered further proof that the GOP is throwing its full weight behind him. He raised a whopping $45,850 from fellow House Republicans.

The list of his 53 congressional donors reads like a "Who's Who of Congress" - including House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Irving; Commerce Committee Chairman Tom Bliley, R-Va.; and Appropriations Committee Chairman Bob Livingston, R-La.

The four other House members who bolted the Democratic Party for the GOP last year also contributed to their fellow party switcher.

"Establishment politicians will behave like establishment politicians, no matter what," Paul campaign spokesman Michael Sullivan said Wednesday. "Ron, when he is up there, will be voting a lot more in line with those guys than Greg Laughlin will even promise to do, but they are supporting him because he is their water boy right now."

Laughlin's campaign didn't return a call seeking comment.

But National Republican Congressional Committee spokesman Craig Veith said the congressional support for Laughlin is part of the party's strategy to re-elect all GOP incumbents. "Every member very enthusiastically says 'How can I help?' 'How can I do more?'" Veith said. "It's a very unified, very focused effort."

Paul lacked drawing power inside the Capitol. But the former Libertarian presidential candidate made up for that with a network of donors outside the 14th District.

Of Paul's $175,591 in contributions, $47,220 came from out-of-state donors. Sullivan denied that Paul is tapping a network of Libertarian donors. "Number one, most (Libertarians) don't have a lot of money and, two, the Libertarian Party has a candidate running against Ron," he said.

Another big-dollar race is running in East Texas, in the open 1st District race to succeed departing Democrat Jim Chapman of Sulphur Springs.

For the most recent period surveyed, Democrat Jo Ann Howard, a Texarkana attorney, spent $161,077 to Marshall lawyer Max Sandlin's $145,854.

On the Senate side, meanwhile, the picture remained a study in contrasts for the two Democrats rivals.

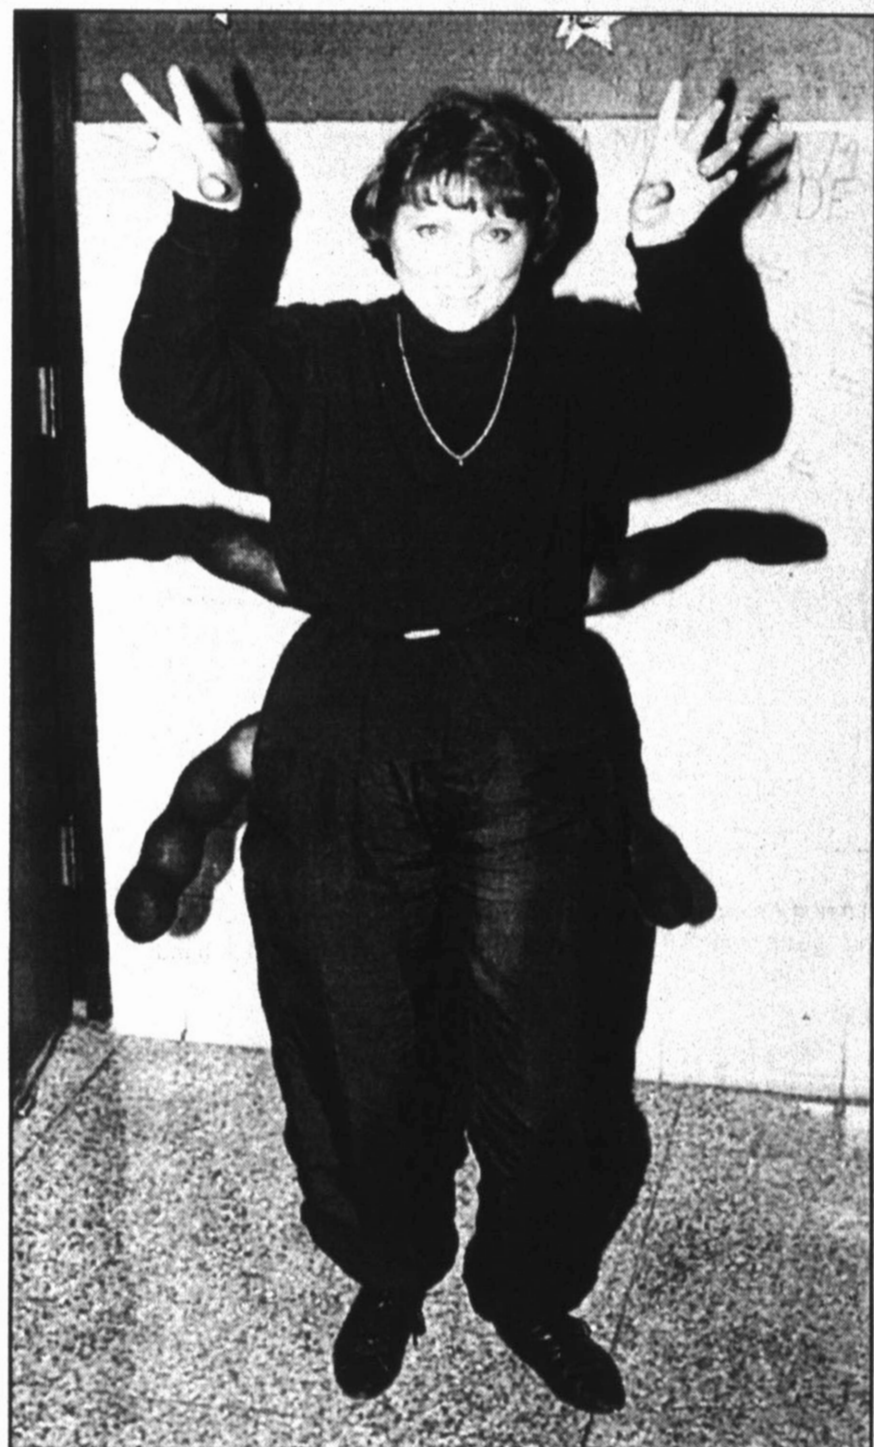

One, Rep. John Bryant of Dallas, boasts money and organization. The other, Crandall teacher Victor Morales, has little of that, but has piqued the media's interest with a shoestring campaign run out of his pickup truck.

Bryant reported raising $226,268 during the period and spending $311,656. He raised another $85,500 after the latest report's March 20 close date.

Morales has yet to file a pre-runoff report - a lapse Bryant hasn't hesitated to criticize. "I know I'm frustrating to you but I'm just overwhelmed," Morales said in a handwritten "Dear Pat" letter to FEC official Pat Sheppard on March 5.

The FEC on several occasions has written Morales' wife, Dani, who is the campaign's treasurer, to notify her of reporting lapses.

Morales' most recent report shows that as of Feb. 21, he had $3,038 in cash on hand after raising $830 and spending $257.

Study shows more spending is one result of higher taxes

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)--There are certain things you should know about raising taxes to lower deficits -- that, for example they often lead to greater spending, less revenue than anticipated and even bigger deficits.

This is not theory. It is the sad experience from which few lessons have been learned, and thus it is repeated again and again.

A 1991 study by the Joint Economic Committee of Congress showed that every dollar of higher taxes would mean $1.59 of new spending. A tax increase in 1993 was expected to raise $15 billion in revenue; at most it raised about half that amount.

With a record like that, anyone can wonder why federal deficits during the past 25 years have persisted, in spite of at least six tax increases between 1982 and 1993. But the effort persists.

Tax the rich! Well, we've tried. The Tax Foundation says 5 percent of filers -- those with adjusted gross incomes above $87,154 -- paid 47.3 percent of all income taxes in 1993, compared to 37.3 percent in 1983.

Tax business! Well, of course, that's been tried, but everyone knows business is only an intermediary between government and individuals and that it merely passes on its costs in higher prices.

In one way or another it's people who pay taxes. They pay them directly, through payroll deductions throughout the year, plus or minus another sum when filing their annual income tax statement. And they pay them indirectly.

They pay merely to comply with federal tax rules and regulations. That bill alone will come to $225 billion this year, according to economist Arthur Hall of the Tax Foundation, which is an independent research organization.

Of that amount, $157 billion will be required just to comply with rules and regulations of the income tax; in effect, it is surcharge on the tax, a transfer of money from more productive and beneficial uses for money.

How much is $157 billion? A sum beyond the comprehension of most people. This is how Hall of the Tax Foundation explained it to the House Ways and Means Committee on March 20:

"One way to comprehend the ... $157 billion federal income tax surcharge is to imagine wantonly destroying every vehicle produced by Ford Motor Company in 1995 and one-third of vehicles produced by the Chrysler Corporation."

If that figure shocks, consider that it is a pittance with the damage done to economic growth. That figure could be measured in the trillions of dollars and the millions of jobs.

Gary and Aldona Robbins, former Treasury economists, estimated that slower than average economic growth between the end of the latest recession and 1994 cost the economy $1.3 trillion and 4 million (revenue producing) jobs.

A large percentage of that slow growth, which continues today and which is responsible for much of the revenue shortfall, is a direct consequence of taxes. Government's take comes at the expense of the revenue-producing sector.

"Lower taxes in the 1920s, 1960s and 1980s helped trigger the economic booms," says Daniel Mitchell, Heritage Foundation senior fellow who has examined the tax and economy issue for years.

And, he points out, chagrined that the obvious must be stressed, "Higher taxes in the 1930s, 1970s and 1990s, by contrast, are associated with very mediocre economic performances."

In short, stop destroying the revenue-producing base. Build it instead.

Beating victim wanted better life for herself, education for children

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Alicia Saltero Vasquez crossed the border from Mexico so her children could have a better life, she said from a hospital bed. After sheriff's deputies clubbed her, she feared for her own.

"I just prayed to God to help me, because I have kids, and my family," she said Wednesday in a tearful interview with TV station KMEX.

Vasquez, 32, and Enrique Funes Flores were beaten Monday by two sheriff's deputies after a high-speed chase in a pickup crammed with other Mexicans suspected of sneaking across the border.

News helicopters videotaped the chase and beating, and the footage was played repeatedly in the United States and Mexico.

Riverside County Sheriff Larry Smith condemned the beatings Wednesday, calling them a shocking use of excessive force.

Vasquez had worked in a now-closed clothing factory in Mexico to support her daughter, 11, and son, 9. She then worked odd jobs but couldn't make enough money, she said.

"I'm really poor, and that's why I decided to come over here, to get my kids an education because I never had one. I only finished second grade," she said.

Tears rolled down her cheeks as she spoke from her bed at an undisclosed hospital where she was treated for dehydration and bruises.

"They hit me worse than an animal," she said. "I just wish they are punished because I didn't do anything bad."

Deputies Tracy Watson and Kurtis Franklin were both suspended with pay. Franklin has been with the department for 20 years, Watson for five.

Vasquez was shoved face-first into the hood of the truck, grabbed by the hair and pulled to the ground, then clubbed repeatedly.

The deputies "used vicious, hateful words," she said in today's Los Angeles Times. "I don't speak English, but I could feel their hate."

Eighteen men in the truck who were detained after the chase, all identified as illegal immigrants from Mexico, were released Wednesday from a federal detention center in Los Angeles. They will be given "voluntary departure" status, which allows them to remain in the country for six months.

Flores, who had been in the back of the truck, is Vasquez's boyfriend. He was jailed briefly, then released Tuesday after officials determined he was not the driver.

Vasquez's lawyer, David Ross, said Wednesday that he has received eight to 10 threats since taking the case.

"I got a couple of really sinister messages, with violence intended," he told The Associated Press. He has increased security at his law office.

The Riverside County sheriff's department, the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, and the FBI are investigating the beatings.

"There will be no cover-up," Smith said. "No one is above the law."

AUSTIN (AP) - No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said.

The jackpot was worth $8 million. The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 2, 32, 35, 44, 46 and 47.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Saturday night's game will be $12 million.

AUSTIN (AP) - Two tickets each won $154,853 in the Cash 5 lottery drawing.

The winning tickets matched all five of the numbers drawn in the Tuesday night drawing.

The winning numbers were 2, 3, 11, 31 and 38.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I come from a big family. My married older brother, "Mitch," had an affair with "Suzy" about two years ago. He eventually broke it off and reconciled with his wife.

Here's the problem. Suzy started seeing my younger brother, "Joey," who lives at home with my mother. Mitch has turned very negative on Suzy, and needless to say, his wife is still bitter about the affair. They refuse to attend any family functions where Joey and Suzy will be present. Mitch won't even go to my mother's as long as Suzy is allowed in her home.

My husband I are often the ones who entertain the family. We are in the awkward position of deciding whether to invite Mitch and his wife or Joey and Suzy. If I tell them they are both invited, neither will show up. My mother is in a worse spot. She wants to see Mitch and the grandchildren, but she doesn't want Joey to move away. Mom is 77 and a widow. She doesn't need this stress.

We feel guilty visiting either Mitch or Joey, and when one of my brothers come to our house, we are always nervous that the other one might show up and create a scene. We're thinking of setting up regular visitation at Mom's so that they'll know who is where and when. Mom has started to worry about who will attend her funeral since she knows Mitch won't show up if Suzy is there.

What is the right thing to do? Please help us out. -- London, Ontario

DEAR LONDON: I would adhere to Landers' Law of Intermecine Family Warfare. It goes like this: Invite whomever you want. If one of the invitees says, "I'm sorry, I won't come if you invite X, or Y, or Z," you should say, "Sorry, we'll miss you."

P.S. It appears to me that Suzy is the proverbial skunk at the family picnic and Mitch is so full of guilt he can't see straight.

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

Recently, you published a letter from "Golden West," a person who had suffered from compulsive hair pulling for 27 years and through your column found help for this condition, which is known as trichotillomania.

For at least 30 years, I have been chewing the inside of my mouth to the point of being sore, and yet, I cannot stop biting and hurting myself.

The help you gave "Golden West" gave me hope that there might be help for us check chews, too. If you are acquainted with this behavior, will you please write about it in your column for the benefit of all of us who so far have not been able to kick this habit? I can't believe I'm the only one, although I have never met another "cheek chewer." -- C.N., Denver, Colo.

DEAR DENVER: You say you never have met another cheek chewer. You may have and didn't know it. People don't generally talk about such things.

My advice to you is the same as the advice I gave to "Golden West." See a psychiatrist, not for counseling but for medication. Or, if you are lucky enough to have an excellent physician, he or she will prescribe the medication. P.S. By now, I'm sure you've guessed the chewing is rooted in what we used to call "nerves."

Gem of the Day (Credit Reader's Digest): When you are young you want to be the master of your fate and the captain of your soul. When you are older you'll settle for being the master of your weight and the captain of your bowling team.

Cowboys didn't know test results

DALLAS (AP) - The NFL and the NFL Players Association say there's no way anyone would have known whether any members of the Dallas Cowboys flunked a drug test that the league administered in late April of last year, because the results were never divulged.

Dr. Lawrence Brown, the league's drug adviser, ordered Cowboys players to submit to tests on April 28 last year, during a three-day minicamp.

The Dallas Morning News, relying on information from Cowboys players and other team sources, reported on Tuesday that a technicality forced the NFL to void the positive drug tests of several players.

"The results of those April 28, 1995, drug tests ... were not examined by anyone ...," NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said Wednesday. "No Cowboys player or anyone else associated with the team was ever informed of any results. No one to this day knows whether there were any positive tests."

The NFL said Brown committed a procedural error when he ordered the Cowboys to submit to the tests in late April, three days before he should have done so. The NFL's substance-abuse policy limits random testing to a period from May 1 through Aug. 20.

Aiello said it was the first year under the testing policy and Brown was under the impression that he could test during minicamps.

Aiello said Brown was unaware at the time of the May 1 date and his understanding was that he could test during training camp or minicamp.

"Most minicamps are in May but, as it turned out, the Cowboys had their minicamp in April," Aiello said.

Bill Bates, the Cowboys' player representative to the union, contacted players association assistant executive director Doug Allen to inform him that the league had collected specimens during what he considered a no-test period.

By union insistence, Allen said, "No use was made of the samples collected before May 1." The players provided new samples later.

"There is no truth to the notion somebody tested positive and we intervened to protect them," Allen said.

"The suggestion anyone associated with the club, player or front office had information those samples were positive is completely erroneous because no one would have had access if that happened. The only one who would know is Larry Brown."

At the request of players, Brown met with Dallas players in June and, in response to a question, said the drug tests performed in April had been discarded.

Despite the insistence of the league and the players association, some Cowboys players said Wednesday they continue to be dubious about the claim.

"I don't believe that, and don't tell me you do," one player said upon arriving at the team's practice facility.

Since the initial report, players have continued to say they were told there were positive tests, the Morning News said in today's editions.

Cowboys re-sign QB Garrett

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys have re-signed backup quarterback Jason Garrett, the team said Wednesday.

Garrett, a three-year veteran, played in one game last season. His claim to fame is his Thanksgiving Day 1995 performance against the Green Bay Packers. The third-stringer threw two touchdown passes in a 42-31 victory.

The team's quarterback plan is the same as last season's. Garrett will play behind starter Troy Aikman and backup Wade Wilson.

Grizzlies halt record losing streak

By The Associated Press
The Vancouver Grizzlies stopped their streak just in time to avoid a record they didn't want.

The Grizzlies halted their 23-game losing skid Wednesday night on a last-second shot by Blue Edwards that beat the Minnesota Timberwolves 105-103. Vancouver fell one loss short of the NBA record for consecutive defeats set by the Cleveland Cavaliers over two seasons in 1982.

"I think we'd forgotten what it feels like to win," said Edwards, who finished with 24 points.

Edwards drove across the key and hit the game-winner with eight-tenths of a second left at Vancouver.

"When I shot the basketball I just looked straight up in the air to make sure it got over (Kevin Garnett's) hand," Edwards said. "To be honest with you, I didn't even see it go in."

The basket capped a dramatic comeback by the Grizzlies, who trailed by 12 points going into the final period. Vancouver scored 16 straight points to tie the game with 6:21 remaining.

"We've been working hard, and if you work hard you're going to see the results, no matter how long it takes," said rookie Bryant Reeves, who scored 12 of his career-high 28 points in the fourth quarter.

Isaiah Rider had 28 points and 11 rebounds for Minnesota, which also lost to Vancouver on Nov. 5 in the Grizzlies' home opener.

"They got pumped up when they started to taste the victory, their first victory in a very long time," Rider said. "They were just a little bit more hungry."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was New Jersey 100, Los Angeles Clippers 94; Indiana 102, Philadelphia 87; Cleveland 105, Los Angeles Lakers 89; Detroit 98, Charlotte 83; Orlando 98, New York 85; San Antonio 117, Sacramento 96; and Seattle 118, Houston 103.

Spurs 117, Kings 96

At San Antonio, the Spurs rebounded from their first loss in more than a month, beating Sacramento behind Vinny Del Negro's 25 points. David Robinson scored 21 points for the Spurs, whose 17-game winning streak was snapped the previous night by Phoenix. San Antonio made 34 of 41 free throws and blocked 13 shots. Olden Polynice had a season-high 27 points for the Kings, who lead Denver by two games for the eighth and final playoff spot in the West.

SuperSonics 118, Rockets 103

At Seattle, Gary Payton scored 30 points and the SuperSonics set a franchise record for shooting accuracy, beating injury-riddled Houston for their eighth straight victory. Shawn Kemp had 24 points and nine rebounds for Seattle, which shot 64.9 percent (48 of 74) from the field. The Rockets, who played without Hakeem Olajuwon, Sam Cassell, Mario Elie and Clyde Drexler, have lost eight of nine games.

Magic 98, Knicks 85

Horace Grant scored a season-high 29 points on 13-of-19 shooting as Orlando overcame the absence of Shaquille O'Neal to win their sixth straight road game. O'Neal left the team to be with his family following the death of his grandmother. Patrick Ewing failed to exploit backup center Jon Koncak, missing 13 of 14 shots and scoring only five points.

Pacers 102, 76ers 87

At Philadelphia, Reggie Miller scored 23 points and Dale Davis had 18 points and nine rebounds as Indiana handed the 76ers their 12th loss in 13 games. Mark Jackson had 16 points and eight assists for the Pacers, who had a 51-25 rebounding advantage. Trevor Ruffin scored 24 points for Philadelphia, hitting 10 of 11 shots from the field.

Cavaliers 105, Lakers 89

Terrell Brandon scored 18 of his 23 points in the second half and Danny Ferry had 22 points as Cleveland beat the road-weary Los Angeles Lakers. The victory pulled the Cavaliers within a half-game of the Knicks in the race for the fourth place in the Eastern Conference. Magic Johnson had 26 points and eight rebounds for the Lakers, who were finishing a six-game road trip.

Nets 100, Clippers 94

At East Rutherford, Armon Gilliam scored seven of his 19 points in the final 3:20, including a go-ahead layup that helped New Jersey snap a three-game losing streak. Chris Childs added 17 points and 13 assists for the Nets. Rodney Rogers had 23 points for the Clippers, whose hot shooting from the field was offset by poor shooting from the line. They shot 52 percent from the field, but made only 13 of 25 free throws.

Pistons 98, Hornets 83

At Auburn Hills, Otis Thorpe made 13 of 15 shots and matched his season high with 27 points as Detroit boosted its playoff chances and dealt a blow to Charlotte's postseason hopes. The loss dropped Charlotte to ninth place in the East, a half-game behind Miami for the eighth and final playoff berth. The Pistons lead Miami by three games and trail sixth-place Atlanta by only one game. Glen Rice led Charlotte with 20 points.

Girls' golf team in position to qualify for regional berth

The Hereford girls' golf team goes into its final two district rounds today and Friday with a good chance to earn a trip to the regional tournament. The girls stand in second place in District 1-4A with a two-round total of 740. They'll play today at Comanche Trails in Amarillo, then wrap up district play Friday in Dumas.

Borger leads the district at 704, while Pampa is third at 769 and Dumas is fourth at 817. The top two teams advance to the regional tournament. The boys' golf teams also play today at Comanche Trails, but their fourth district round will be played April 13 in Dumas. The standings in the boys' race are similar to the girls: Borger leads at 639; Hereford is second at 664; and Pampa is third at 667. Canyon (680) and Caprock (692) are still in the running, too.

Because this weekend is Easter weekend, many of Hereford's sports teams will be in action today and Friday, but they'll be off Saturday. The boys' track team will compete today only in the North Plains Relays in Dumas. The girls' track team will run Friday only in the XIT Relays in Dalhart. The tennis team will compete in the Amarillo Tennis Relays today and Friday.

This is the last competition the tennis team and both track teams have before the district tournament and meet next week.

The varsity baseball team has the weekend off, but the junior varsity team will compete today, Friday and Saturday in a tournament in Dumas. The Hereford Junior High track teams will compete in meets today: the girls at Valleyview and the boys in Borger.

Spurs' Robinson, Hill honored

NEW YORK (AP) - David Robinson and Bob Hill, who led the San Antonio Spurs to a record-tying 16-0 mark in March, were named NBA Player and Coach of the month.

Robinson, 30, averaged 25.3 points, 11.9 rebounds, 3.19 blocks and 1.44 steals in March. He shot .520 (140-for-269) from the field and .804 (123-for-153) despite playing several games with stitches in his right middle finger.

Hill led the Spurs to a franchise best 62-20 record last year during his rookie season. San Antonio leads the Midwest Division with a 53-19 record.

San Antonio joined the 1971-72 Los Angeles Lakers (December, 1971; 16-0) as the only teams in NBA history to go undefeated in more than 15 games in a month. The Spurs are

Georgia Tech's Marbury to enter NBA

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Basketball Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - The news conference Stephon Marbury called to announce his basketball future was supposed to have started 15 minutes earlier.

"Maybe he got cold feet," Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins said to three reporters standing nearby. "I'm the one who's good at that," he said with a laugh, referring to his abrupt change of mind about taking the South Carolina job two years ago.

Finally, Marbury went to the podium Wednesday night, but it was just to announce that he wouldn't start the proceedings until his mother arrived, and she was stuck in traffic.

Things got started 40 minutes late at Juniors, a Brooklyn restaurant famous for its cheesecake, and it wasn't a minute too soon as six of the kind named for Marbury that were on display near the podium were starting to feel the effects of the television lights.

Marbury made the worst-kept secret in sports official when he said he was leaving Georgia Tech after one season to make himself available for the NBA draft.

The 19-year-old guard left no doubt about a possible return to college.

"I don't want to prolong it. I have signed with an agent," said Marbury, identifying him as Eric Fleischer. "I am putting everything behind me and focusing only on the NBA."

Marbury has three older brothers who played college basketball. His younger brother, Zach, just completed his sophomore season at Lincoln, the same high school Stephon led to the New York City Public School championship.

"I've worked hard since I was a baby and then watched my brothers, and that was they way I learned," he said.

Family members and friends were all about as he made his announcement. Many were crying, including Mabel Marbury, who finally negotiated the traffic.

"I've always worked hard for this. I've always watched the NBA growing up. I always watched Michael Jordan and Magic Johnson and I said I could be playing on the court with them. Next year, I will be," Marbury said.

McGriff leads Braves' offensive onslaught

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

If the Atlanta Braves aren't careful, fans soon will be flocking to the ballpark to watch them hit.

Those who saw the first two games - when the Braves' vaunted pitching staff allowed a total of 10 runs - certainly got a surprise.

In fact, Fred McGriff did enough by himself Wednesday night to beat the San Francisco Giants. He had a career-high six RBIs on three of Atlanta's 16 hits in a 15-2 drubbing of the Giants, whose pitching staff allowed 25 runs in the first two games.

"Everything went my way," said McGriff, whose RBIs came on three singles, a sacrifice fly and a groundout. "I've had better days. I've swung the bat better. Every at-bat, it seemed, I was 0-and-2 in the count and just trying to stay alive."

The Braves scored 10 or more runs in only six games last season, but have now done it twice against the Giants. The Braves scored in 11 straight innings - the last four of Monday's game and the first seven Wednesday.

"Everything we touch right now is falling in," manager Bobby Cox said.

Javier Lopez hit a three-run homer and Ryan Klesko homered for the second game in a row, giving the Braves seven homers in two games.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Philadelphia 3, Colorado 1; Montreal 8, Cincinnati 4; Houston 5, Los Angeles 2; St. Louis 5, New York 3; and San Diego 7, Chicago 5.

McGriff, who got hot in the final days of spring training, has remained torrid in the regular season. He hit a two-run homer in the opener and now has driven in eight runs. He had five RBIs in a game seven times previously, most recently against the Giants on April 26, 1995.

Winner Tom Glavine, pitching his first game at Fulton County Stadium since he won the World Series MVP with a clinching 1-0 victory over Cleveland in Game 6, came out after the sixth inning with the Braves comfortably ahead.

"Glavine is going to be overlooked tonight, but he had excellent stuff," Cox said.

"I'll tell you what," Glavine said, "I don't mind being overlooked if we can score 15 runs."

Loser William VanLandingham lasted only 3 2-3 innings, surrendering six earned runs on seven hits and three walks.

"When we don't walk them, we come right down Broadway with something fat to hit," said Giants manager Dusty Baker, whose team also played embarrassing defense. "It was terrible. What irks me are the four errors. We work so hard on that."

Astros 5, Dodgers 2

Mike Hampton outpitched Hideo Nomo, and Houston's Derek Bell drove in two runs as the Houston took two of three from Los Angeles in the season-opening series at the Astrodome.

Hampton pitched six strong innings before Billy Ashley and Greg Gagne hit back-to-back homers in the seventh. Hampton then struck out Roger Cedeno and Delino DeShields to escape further damage. The left-hander allowed nine hits before Todd Jones worked the ninth for the save.

Nomo allowed five walks in the first four innings and left in the fifth after consecutive doubles by Jeff Bagwell and Bell and a single to Sean Berry produced two runs.

Expos 8, Reds 4

Mark Grudzielanek homered in a five-run eighth inning - his career-high fourth hit - as visiting Montreal beat error-prone Cincinnati.

The Expos scored two unearned runs in the seventh and batted around for five unearned runs in the eighth as the Reds' defense let down with a 4-1 lead and the bullpen allowed nine hits in the last three innings.

Rookie left fielder Steve Gibraltar let Moises Alou's fly ball to the wall deflect off his glove for an error to open the eighth. Darrin Fletcher's two-out, two-run double off loser Jeff Shaw put the Expos up 5-4. Dave Silvestri had a run-scoring pinch single off Xavier Hernandez and Grudzielanek followed with a two-run homer and his third RBI.

In the seventh, third baseman Chris Sabo's error set up two unearned runs. Reliever Dave Veres was the winner, and Mel Rojas got the save.

Phillies 3, Rockies 1

Rookie Mike Grace, making only his third appearance in the major leagues, carried a shutout into the ninth inning at Philadelphia.

But the 25-year-old right-hander left after Ellis Burks homered to open the final inning. Ricky Bottalico got the final three outs for the save.

Grace allowed five hits, struck out three while walking one. He also helped himself defensively, snaring two hard grounders.

"To beat this club with fastballs ... evidently he was doing something right," Colorado manager Don Baylor said.

Rockies starter Marvin Freeman took the loss, leaving in the sixth after straining his left groin as he charged off the mound after a foul ball. Freeman gave up only two hits, walked three and struck out two.

Len Dykstra doubled in one run, and the Phillies also got RBI grounders from Todd Zeile and Greg Jefferies.

Cardinals 5, Mets 3

Royce Clayton's single in the seventh inning scored winning pitcher Todd Stottlemyre with the run that broke a 3-3 tie at New York.

Stottlemyre, making his NL debut, allowed five hits in 7 2-3 innings, including a three-run homer by ex-Cardinal Bernard Gilkey that tied the game in the sixth. Ron Gant, who had a two-run homer off Jason Isringhausen to open the scoring in the fourth, drove in three runs for St. Louis.

Dennis Eckersley got his first save in the NL and 324th of his career. He came in with two Mets on base in the eighth, and got Butch Huskey when Ray Lankford jumped against the center field wall to prevent a three-run homer.

"It wasn't pretty, but maybe it's going to set the tone for the rest of the season ... lucky," Eckersley said.

Eckersley also got in trouble in the ninth, allowing two singles after two were out. But he struck out Edgardo Alfonzo to end the game.

Padres 7, Cubs 5

San Diego's Ken Caminiti broke open the game with a three-run homer through a 15-mph wind over the right-field bleachers at Wrigley Field. "Caminiti's strong," Padres manager Bruce Bochy said. "He can turn the wind around."

Caminiti homered in the third inning off Frank Castillo for a 4-0 lead.

Wally Joyner, who had 158 home runs in 10 seasons in the AL, had the first of his NL career, and Tony Gwynn had his 27th career four-hit game.

Joey Hamilton allowed four hits in five innings for his first win since Aug. 19. He gave up Sammy Sosa's two-run homer, in the fifth. Trevor Hoffman, struck out three batters in 1 1-3 innings to get the save.

Yankees send Tribe to 0-2 start

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

All those people packing Jacobs Field are still waiting to see the powerful Cleveland Indians they remember from last year.

The New York Yankees shut down the AL champions for the second straight game, beating former teammate Jack McDowell in his Cleveland debut, 5-1 Wednesday night.

The Indians had the best home record in baseball last season at 54-18, and did not drop two in a row there until mid-August. But this year, with every game already sold out, they're 0-2 and have scored a total of two runs.

"Sure, I'd rather be 2-0, but I'm not concerned about anything negative coming out of this," Indians manager Mike Hargrove said. "We still have 160 to play. I think it was Sparky Anderson who used to say, 'Come talk to me after 40 games and I can give you a better read on the team.' I think that's pretty accurate."

The Indians never lost three straight at home last season. They were trying to avoid that today when Orel Hershiser pitched against Jimmy Key.

Andy Pettitte outpitched McDowell for the win in Cleveland. Yankees rookie shortstop Derek Jeter, who homered in Tuesday's opener, had three hits.

Pettitte allowed one run in 6 2-3 innings and Jeff Nelson finished with scoreless relief for a save in his first game for the Yankees.

McDowell, who left the Yankees in the offseason and signed with Cleveland, gave up four runs in 6 1-3 innings.

"I felt good, but you have to pitch better than the other guy to win, that's what it is all about," McDowell said. "Andy Pettitte pitched a very good game. A lot of people just put him in the mix with all the big-name guys in New York, but let me tell you, he's the real deal."

Two of the runs were unearned because of errors by Gold Glove center fielder Kenny Lofton, second baseman Carlos Baerga and new first baseman Julio Franco.

Orioles 7, Royals 1

Baltimore newcomers Roberto Alomar, David Wells and Tony Tarasco starred as the Orioles won despite hitting into a triple play at Camden Yards.

Bobby Bonilla had two hits and drove in two runs for the Orioles. But in the sixth inning, his apparent double-play grounder turned into Kansas City's first triple play since May 14, 1994, when Alomar was caught trying to score from third.

Wells, acquired in an offseason trade from Cincinnati, pitched seven strong innings.

Alomar, signed from Toronto, and Tarasco, acquired in a trade from Montreal, each had three hits. Alomar and Rafael Palmeiro connected for consecutive home runs off Mark Gubicza in the second for a 6-0 lead.

Angels 3, Brewers 2, 11 innings

Greg Vaughn, who helped set up a tying rally in the ninth inning, dropped a routine fly ball in the 11th that led to California's win at home.

Oilers' McNair arrested

EAST GREENWICH TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) - Todd McNair of the Houston Oilers has been charged with mistreating 22 pit bulls seized at his property where authorities say the animals were being trained for dogfights.

McNair, 30, was arrested Tuesday on cruelty-to-animal charges and released from the Gloucester County Jail in Woodbury after posting $10,000 bail.

On Wednesday, McNair told Houston television station KRIV that he is innocent and that he had no intention of training dogs to fight.

"All of this is blown out of proportion," he said.

Texas crop report

Supplemental feed short, except in Panhandle

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — While producers in the Texas Panhandle have a surplus of hay, cattle ranchers in the southern two-thirds of the state are suffering badly without any supplemental forage for livestock, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Because the feedlots in the Panhandle of Texas use imported alfalfa hay, they have not been adversely affected by the low supplies.

"The feedlots are unaffected because the rations are hot, which means it is 90 percent grain and only 10 percent ground hay," said Dr. Stephen Amosson of Amarillo, Extension economist. "Almost all hay used in feedlots is hay from Colorado and Kansas."

Even though producers in that area are feeding more hay than usual, Amosson said they aren't in danger of running out of supplies because they don't have a lot of cows that aren't in feedlots.

"We aren't going to be running a shortage of hay, but the surpluses are being depleted," Amosson said. "We still have hay stored for a fairly long time."

Another unaffected area of Texas is the Rolling Plains district. According to James Cadenhead of Vernon, Extension range and brush specialist, that area received good rainfall in the last week. He said this moisture should be enough to grow winter pastures.

"The middle eastern Rolling Plains had one to three inches of rain and the wheat pasture is kicking in," Cadenhead said.

Although the northern portion of the state remains undisturbed by the lack of supplemental forage, the southern portion is feeding its final bits of hay.

"There is not any hay left and not enough rain to bring out the winter grass," said Dr. Randall Grooms of Overton, Extension livestock specialist.

Grooms jokingly added that he's convinced that there aren't 5,000 bales of hay left in Texas. He went on to say some individual producers in the East Texas area are beginning to bring in hay from other states, but with the poor market, most of these cattle aren't worth the money and time spent to get the supplemental forage.

Southwest Texas also is in the critical stages of the hay shortage.

"I have seen some truckloads of hay going through the country, but if producers are going to get large trucks of hay, they will have to go to Oklahoma and New Mexico," said Dr. Rick Machen of Uvalde, Extension livestock specialist.

The hay supplies are scarce and the cattle are wasting away, causing more than immediate problems. Not only is the scarcity of hay resulting in thin cattle, but it also is threatening the future of cow/calf operations.

"There is a little bit of hay, but it is limited and what is there is expensive," Machen said. "Without the hay, the livestock are declining in body condition and as a result we are likely to see lower than normal conception rates."

According to Grooms, the lack of feed also will affect those calves born now because they will not have the chance to thrive and will likely end up stunted. This could drive the prices of beef even lower, he said.

Producers in Machen's area are on a two-week cycle. They have cattle "spotted" to sell each two weeks that there is no rainfall.

"The key is that they want to come out of this cattle cycle with as young of a calf crop as possible," Machen said. "Producers are culling the older end of the cows every two weeks and are just waiting for a good rain or some hay from somewhere."

Dr. Ron Gill of Dallas, Extension livestock specialist, said the beef industry is in a liquidation process and the drought is only speeding it up. In today's market the quality of the calves may mean a difference in prices by 200 to 300 dollars per calf.

He went on to say that the conservative manager is the producer that is going to prevail during the drought, even with the lack of supplemental forage.

"Producers need to develop a culling strategy. Not having hay to feed them is a sign that they are overstocked, and you can't afford to feed a cow in today's market," Gill said.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: very short. Range is rated fair to poor. Dryland wheat is very poor; irrigated wheat good to fair. Pre-irrigation heavy in preparation for planting. Livestock fair; supplemental feeding continues. Fires continue to be a problem.

SOUTH PLAINS: very short. Pastures and ranges very dry. Land preparation including pre-irrigation and herbicide application continues. Heavy supplemental feeding still required. Onion planting continues. Wheat still needs moisture.

ROLLING PLAINS: short to adequate. Ranges and pastures in poor to fair condition with some green-up. Heavy supplemental feeding continues. Producers selling cattle. Wheat in poor to fair condition. Moderate freeze damage to early variety fruit trees.

NORTH TEXAS: very short to adequate. Pastures in poor condition; forages extremely short. Wheat very poor. Sweet potato seedbed preparation under way. Late-season frost damaged fruit. Harvesting pine trees. Hay supplies scarce. Scattered rainfall.

EAST TEXAS: short to very short. Pastures very short. Heavy supplemental feeding required; hay supplies scarce. Vegetable planting/replanting underway. Early peaches damaged by late-season frost. Scattered rainfall.

FAR WEST TEXAS: very short to short. Pastures and ranges poor; cattle condition fair. Lambing underway. Wheat very poor. Planting cantaloupe. Fruit trees beginning to bloom. Pecans starting to break buds. Some gardening has begun.

WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: short to very short. Range and pasture conditions very poor; forage quality poor. Livestock in poor condition. Small grains depressed due to lack of moisture. Garden land preparation underway. Peach trees destroyed. Scattered rainfall.

CENTRAL TEXAS: very short. Dairy cattle producing well; beef cattle in poor condition. Oat stands poor, yield prospects poor; most will be grazed out. Recent rains will help corn; some sudan being planted. Hay supplies short.

SOUTHEAST TEXAS: short. Pastures in poor condition; little greening. Planting row crops. Supplemental feeding; hay in short supply. Extremely dry; but some scattered showers.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: short to adequate. Heavy supplemental feeding required; hay supplies scarce. Burning pear. Planting cantaloupes. Cabbage harvest continues. Onions making progress. Small peach crop due to late-season frost. Scattered rainfall.

SOUTH TEXAS: very short. Pasture and range conditions continue to decline. Corn, cotton, sorghum in poor condition. Onions, sugarcane, greens, carrots, cabbage, citrus harvesting underway. Crops off to very poor start due to weather.

Lone gunman left holes in dozens of intertwined lives

By JENNY STRÄSBURG
Corpus Christi Caller-Times
CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas - Brian Gilmore, 16, feels the loss in the morning when he makes himself two peanut butter and jelly sandwiches for breakfast and leaves for school without a kiss from his mother. He was used to her pancakes and eggs.

Terry Carroll, Walter Rossler Co. executive secretary, feels the loss when she walks into her former boss's office and she can swear she catches the scent of his hair oil still within the paneled walls.

Shalane Patterson, 25, feels the loss when she makes the routine grocery runs she once made with her boyfriend - alone, now - and in the way she absorbs herself in her second-grade teaching job in order to survive.

Their losses turned 1 year old on Wednesday. That day, April 3, 1995, forever changed the modest home of a refinery inspection company on Rand Morgan Road. It was the afternoon that James Daniel Simpson, 28, a former Rossler Co. employee, walked through the front door with a 9mm semiautomatic pistol in one hand and a .32-caliber revolver in the other.

Simpson killed five people, all former co-workers who knew him by name, before turning the pistol on himself. He died at a hospital the same day.

Two marble-sized bullet holes remain in the blond paneling of a front office at the Rossler Co. The holes are covered by calendars - one advertising the Rossler Co., the other the Calallen High School Wildcats football team. Employees know the holes are there, covered or not. So are the holes Simpson left in dozens of intertwined lives.

"I had plans not to go to work Wednesday, but I think it's probably the best thing to go to work and surround myself with all the kids at school and make the time pass," Patterson said.

She works at McGee Elementary School. Her heart, though, is still with the memory of a man she agreed to marry one April day and buried four days later. Patterson had thought she would always hear his name next to hers: Richard and Shalane, Shalane and Richard. Instead, she hears it in a list of five, a victims' roll call:

- Richard Lee Tomlinson was 34, the father of two young boys by a previous marriage, vice president of the Walter Rossler Co. and recently engaged to Patterson, his girlfriend of 2-1/2 years.

- Joann and Walter Rossler, 61 and 62, were the company's owners, survived by three daughters. They were tireless contributors of time and money to Annville and Calallen - to football teams and agriculture clubs and junior livestock shows.

- Derek Harrison was 35, a Rossler Co. salesman, survivor of Hodgkin's disease and a man who'd been married four months the day he died.

- Patty J. Brunson Gilmore was 41, a Rossler Co. secretary, wife, mother of a teen-ager and a perpetual Future Farmers of America booster. Everybody knew her as Wendy. Brian Gilmore knew her as Mom.

"It doesn't seem like a year," said the red-haired Tulos-Midway High School sophomore, a football player and award-winning exhibitor of Yorkshire hogs in the Nueces County Junior Livestock Show.

Pictures of Brian from a year and a half ago make him look much younger than a year's difference should make. He was lanky compared to now. These days his neck is linebacker-thick from year-round football workouts, and detectable in his voice is the maturity of a teen-ager who already knows what it is to lose a parent.

Brian may seem distant at times. But he's OK, he said. He's just coping with April 3.

"I'll just say a few prayers," he said, "tell her how much I miss her, that I'm trying to do better, at grades and school and life in general."

June Brunson, Brian's grandmother and Wendy's mother, said she's comforted knowing Brian and Joel Gilmore have each other. Brian was just a small child when Joel married his mother, so Joel Gilmore is the only father Brian has really known, Brunson said.

A year ago, the father and his adopted son stood together outside the Rossler company for nearly an hour before learning that Wendy Gilmore was among the dead. In Wendy Gilmore's absence, Brunson stays with Brian when his father goes out of town on business, every couple of weeks or so. She is also deeply affected by walking into Wendy Gilmore's kitchen; it's where the memories of her seem strongest, Brunson said.

She said her daughter always made the family's pumpkin pies for Thanksgiving and Christmas gatherings. Last Thanksgiving and Christmas, there was no Wendy Gilmore. Last Thanksgiving and Christmas, there was no pumpkin pie.

All the "firsts" of the past year have been the roughest for Derek Harrison's parents, who live on a ranch in Barksdale, about 45 miles north of Uvalde. The first holiday. Derek's first birthday since last April. And this weekend, the first Easter without him.

"I miss him terribly," said Hesta Harrison, his mother. "What I've tried to do this past year is concentrate on the good memories that we shared with Derek, and there were many of them."

Her son is buried on their ranch, she said, near the lake behind their home, in view of hills, amid oak and cedar trees and a few scattered cactus.

Corpus Christi police said Simpson never used the revolver he carried into the Rossler Co. But he spent 19 rounds of the other gun, they said, littering offices and hallways with shell casings. He shot each of his victims either in the chest or head - wounds that showed he clearly intended to kill, the medical examiner said.

According to police and witnesses, Simpson shot, in order, Gilmore at her desk in the right front office, Walter Rossler across the hallway in the left front office, Tomlinson and Harrison inside the same room, and Joann Rossler across the hallway in another office doorway.

Then he headed down a long hallway along the right side of the building toward Walter Rossler's office. Lisa Rossler had been sitting right behind Gilmore when Gilmore was killed. She escaped from the front office into a rear room leading to her father's office. She thought she locked the door behind her.

But Simpson opened the door, and there was Lisa Rossler, holding her 8-month-old son in her arms. At that moment, she already was on the phone with a 911 operator. Simpson turned and left, and according to several employees, Lisa thanked him for sparing her son.

Her 911 call captured on tape the popping sounds of Simpson's gun being shot, the cries of her toddler and her own terror:

"We have an employee who came in and shot three or four of our employees. My father, I don't know," Rossler said at the beginning of the call.

"Someone's been hit?" the operator asked.

"Yes," Rossler said. "They've been hit with bullets?"

"Yes."

"Hold on. Is anyone unconscious at all, ma'am?"

"I don't know. I just ran."

Rhonda Rossler, like her sister Lisa, had been working for the business before the shootings. Lisa now attends school at Texas A&M University-Kingsville, while Rhonda continues to help with the business, now overseen by President Ronnie Knoblauch. Knoblauch had worked at the firm 14 years before leaving to start his own business three years ago.

After the shootings, one of the sisters' first decisions was when to reopen the company. The shootings took place on a Monday. The Walter Rossler Co. reopened a week later. But in the meantime, employees continued doing refinery consultations and inspections.

A year later, no one has quit as a result of the shootings, Rhonda Rossler said.

"Holidays are bad for me," she said, "and it sounds kind of stupid, but every single day, coming to work is hard, when every morning you pull into this parking lot. And it's just out of habit, but every day I look to see if my dad's truck is there."

"I don't look for that to change in the near future."

When Lisa Rossler placed her 911 call during the shooting spree, executive secretary Terry Carroll was in the next room - Walter Rossler's office. She had first heard the commotion taking place up front over the intercom in that office, she said.

"I heard 'pop pop, pop pop pop,'" which was the gun going off, Carroll said. At first she thought the sounds were cap guns, because her boss and his grandchildren would often get rowdy when the children came to visit. But the screams didn't fit an air of playfulness.

"I had a real bad battle in there with myself," Carroll said. "Yes, no, yes, no. It couldn't be, yes it is."

The survivors of the shooting, and even the employees who weren't there that day, are alert - skittish, really - around the office, she said, even though a year has passed and security has been tightened considerably.

"Everybody was so jumpy that first day (back at work)," she said. "It was so sad." Even now, she said, "You don't walk up on anybody around here."

And at least for her, the feeling follows her home. "I can't close my bathroom to take a shower. It stays open. I have to know what's going on in the house. Nobody can shut a door where I am with my feeling comfortable."

Even when she's in her garage at night putting a load of laundry in the washer, she said, she bends down when cars pass so they won't see her silhouette through the garage door windows.

"It's really pathetic. ... I'll either run in the house or duck down so they can't see me."

"I thought of quitting right off the bat," Carroll said. "I'm sure everybody did." She still sits in the same desk outside the office Walter Rossler used to inhabit. She misses him and his wife every day, she said.

"I've walked in there and smelled him, smelled his hair oil, and I think, 'Oh, gosh. Where is he?'"

And she listens like never before to intercom noise from the front of the building. "What's worst of all is sitting back here and hearing people get loud up front and not knowing if it's laughing or crying. I'll have to call and say, 'What's goin' on up there?'"

She said everyone in the office seems to find some solace in the smiling photographs of Lisa Rossler's son, Dylan, who survived the experience of being just feet away from the gunman. He smiles from pictures all over the executive office. He's almost 2 years old.

Carroll isn't the only one who thinks the sight of the mother and child shook Simpson from his violent rage. They speculate it was then that he fully realized his actions.

"I've thought about it a lot," Carroll said. "How can I explain? It just goes over and over in my mind, because there's just so many things that save my life ... so many little things people did that made the difference between life and death."

Names in the News

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Billy Dee Williams pleaded innocent to beating his live-in companion.

Williams, 58, was not at Monday's proceedings but pleaded through his lawyer. If convicted of the misdemeanor spousal battery charge, the actor could get up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

A pretrial hearing was set for Friday, police said.

Williams, who has appeared in such films as "Lady Sings the Blues" and "The Empire Strikes Back," is accused of attacking the 53-year-old woman during a drive home from a restaurant on Jan. 30, and again after parking in the garage of the Hollywood Hills home they share.

It was not immediately clear what they were fighting over.

Tape programs to cut commercials, save time, money

By FRAZIER MOORE
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Here's a deal you'd jump at if you saw it on QVC: Save 25 percent every time you watch television! And as a special bonus, get a full refund on your VCR in less than a month!

No 800 number or coupons needed. No purchase required. Just remember the old saying: A minute saved is a minute earned, especially when it's stolen.

So start stealing! Steal the shows you watch!

Other people may call this proven technique "time-shifting." Once you've tried it, you'll call it long overdue.

Consider that four out of five U.S.

families have at least one VCR in the house. More than 95 percent of all prime-time viewing is right off the air ... with commercials and other non-programming clutter part of the package.

You can see how taking television as it comes is a waste of your time. Have you ever computed the markup on so-called "free TV"?

Consider that roughly 15 minutes of every broadcast hour is something other than what you tuned in to see. It's not "NYPD Blue" or "Family Matters." It's not Dr. Quinn's pieties or Jessica's sleuthing.

No, it's that infinitely smarmy Jonathan Pryce peddling Infinities. Or the softer side of Sears. Or yet another network promo for T.G.I.F.

If you tape the shows you want to see and watch them later, you not only could spare yourself the non-program chaff when you play the tape back. You'd also get to see the shows a lot faster. And see more shows in the same amount of time. Bingo! Big savings!

When you whiz through the commercials, you can see "60 Minutes" in just 45, then get through most of "Cybill" in the same hour, too.

Or put it in dollars-and-cents terms. Say you're worth $10 an hour at your workplace. Save 15 minutes of viewing time, and just by sitting in front of your TV set, you've as good as earned yourself $2.50.

Are you starting to get the picture? Watch just four hours a night, and in less than a month your VCR is paid for. The more you watch, the more you make!

Sure, that's a good deal, you say, but a TV network can't stay in business very long if no one watches the ads its sponsors buy.

Look at it this way: You're just one viewer. You won't be missed out of an audience of millions.

Another thing. The networks are selling you short. When your eyeballs are sold to a TV advertiser, they're absurdly undervalued.

A 30-second commercial spot on ABC's Oscars telecast last week went for a reported $800,000. Pretty hefty price tag. When Coca-Cola sprang for a '30-second ad, all they paid to preach Coke's Always-ness to you was about a penny.

If the networks are going to steal your eyeballs right under your nose, should they insult you by doing it at these bargain-basement rates?

Here's your chance to fight back. Which is your cue to reply, "I don't know how to program my VCR."

Odds are, you figured out how to use your microwave oven. Why?

Because it saves you time. So why would you settle for another one of those lousy microwave dinners, then squander the time you saved by eating it in front of more weird cologne commercials that leave you asking yourself "What just happened?"

Haven't you seen enough detergent ads, antacid ads, running-shoe ads, long-distance ads, ads with cars racing across deserts, ads with good-looking gals having much too much fun with good-looking guys, ads for the next woman-being-wronged-by-her-man TV movie and ads with Kelsey Grammer plugging Must-See TV, to last a lifetime?

This week in entertainment

By The Associated Press
Entertainment highlights during the week of April 4-April 10:

40 years ago: Singer Nat "King" Cole was badly beaten on stage while playing for an all-white audience in Birmingham, Ala.

30 years ago: Saxophonist Mike Vickers left the Manfred Mann group, in which he also played guitar.

20 years ago: "All the President's Men," starring Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman, had its theatrical premiere in New York.

10 years ago: Actor Patrick Duffy, sorely missed by "Dallas" fans since his good-guy Bobby Ewing character apparently died at the end of last season, announced his return to the hit CBS TV show. The Motion Picture Association of America said any film depicting use of illegal drugs would automatically get a rating of at least PG-13. And actor Clint Eastwood was elected mayor of Carmel, Calif.

Actress relates to teens through roles as teen witch 'Sabrina' and on 'Clarissa'

By FRAZIER MOORE
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - When other girls went to Brownies, Melissa Joan Hart went to auditions, filmed TV commercials and landed stage roles alongside William Hurt and Martin Sheen.

A few years later, when she got the title role in "Sabrina the Teenage Witch," Hart found much to identify with: a youngster trying to fit in but feeling somehow ... different.

"I had a lot of frustration when I was a teen-ager," says Hart, who technically is still a teen-ager for three more weeks, but you know what she means.

"Everyone else was so cool and knew what to wear," she says, recalling life as an outsider in the Long Island town of Sayville. "I just had no clue. I didn't know what was wrong with me. I think a lot of that was also true of Sabrina."

Based on the Archie Comics' character, this light-hearted and charming Showtime film finds Sabrina spending a year with her eccentric aunts in the fictional town of Riverdale. There she discovers her teen powers as a witch as she tries to make new friends at a new high school.

"Sabrina" may be back this fall as a weekly series on the ABC schedule.

It won't be Hart's first series. For four years, she played the title character in Nickelodeon's "Clarissa Explains It All."

As for her stage appearances, she was in "The Crucible" on Broadway with Sheen and in a Circle Repertory production of "Beside Herself" with Hurt.

No wonder Hart can play teens that other teens love: Turned out for her interview in a peasant dress and sweater, she is pretty and perky, says "cool" a lot, and has a dusting of freckles across her nose.

All the better, my dear, that she is playing a menace to society on her next project, a TV movie called "Twisted Desire," also starring Daniel Baldwin, that airs on NBC in May.

"It's my first evil role," she says with satisfaction. "I start out as a sweet, innocent teen-ager like I usually play, and then my boyfriend breaks up with me. I get another boyfriend, but my parents don't want us to be together. So we plot to kill them."

Hart seems exhilarated by this new twist in her career. After all, she's spent too many years serving double duty not only as an actress but also as a teen role-model.

"Everyone thinks they know you from TV," she notes, "and then everyone's so shocked to learn that I have a belly ring and eight earrings."

Which, now that she mentions it, she sure does. Yet, make no mistake, even with a bit of discreet body jewelry, Hart is no Courtney Love.

"But people still criticize and judge you," Hart says, a bit bemused. "Someone called me 'Metallica'!"

Maybe it's just another part of growing up, which currently finds her torn between a number of paths.

Her enrollment at New York University has been on-again, off-again the past two years.

Much of that absence has been due to work.

"I was having a tough time at school," she admits. "I was overwhelmed. I couldn't talk in class at all. I was just a mess. I wasn't ready for it."

College is part of her plans.

"I'm still doing a lot of exploring, kind of figuring myself out," she says. "I'm glad I didn't conform then. If I had known how to, I probably would have. But I didn't."

Five questions with: Charlotte Gainsbourg

By The Associated Press
French actress Charlotte Gainsbourg makes her introduction to American audiences this month as Charlotte Bronte's heroine in the film "Jane Eyre," which also stars William Hurt. Gainsbourg, 24 and already well-known in France, is the daughter of British actress Jane Birkin and French singer-composer-filmmaker Serge Gainsbourg. Hers was hardly the struggling existence of Jane Eyre, an orphan who becomes a plain-speaking governess with startling courage and strength.

1. Had you read "Jane Eyre" when you were growing up?

Gainsbourg: I hadn't read the book. I know it sounds really weird. As I'm French, a lot of French people have read it, but it's not a schoolbook that we would study. So I discovered the book when I heard about the project. I read it in French and then in English.

2. How much of you is in Jane Eyre?

Gainsbourg: Things I understood perfectly in the part was maybe the distance that she has towards people. ... I understand the way of protecting yourself toward other people. It's something I can relate to easily.

3. Have you ever been as penniless or as poor?

Gainsbourg: No, never. I was very lucky. My parents were wealthy. So, no, I never had those problems.

4. You became famous in France for recording a hit song with your Dad called "Lemon Incest." What was it about?

Gainsbourg: It was a very simple song, but it shocked quite a lot of people. It was done in a very innocent, truthful way. I can't translate the lyrics. It's just a song about the love between a father and a daughter. It's about feelings - people can be shocked about them. We weren't.

5. If this whole acting thing doesn't work out, would you consider becoming a governess instead?

Gainsbourg: No, I think I'll have my own children!

LAS VEGAS (AP) - The High Plains Drifter has been pinned down. Clint Eastwood and his TV anchorwoman girlfriend, Dina Ruiz, tied the knot Sunday in a small private ceremony.

The on-screen tough guy was all smiles when the couple got their license at the Clark County Court-house.

"He was very relaxed and very pleasant," said Kathy Webb, deputy clerk of the license bureau. "He called me by name. He surprised me. He was a very nice person, very down-to-earth."

The couple stayed at the Mirage

Hotel-Casino. Officials there would not say where the wedding took place.

It was the second marriage for Eastwood, 65, and the first for the 30-year-old Ruiz, an anchorwoman at KSBW in Salinas, Calif.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Garth Brooks just might be cutting back on the Southern cooking.

The country music star says results Monday from a high-tech heart test - which showed some very early signs of coronary artery disease - have prompted him to watch his diet.

High winds, rain hampered search for victims of crash

By TONY SMITH
Associated Press Writer
VELJI DOL, Croatia (AP) - Struggling against high winds and sheets of rain, searchers today recovered the bodies of Commerce Secretary Ron Brown and 32 others killed when their plane crashed during a storm into a hill strewn with land mines.

"We have found the last victim," Croatian Interior Minister Ivan Jarnjak told the state HINA news agency today, confirming that no one survived the crash of the U.S. Air Force plane on Wednesday.

Dubrovnik's chief pathologist Igor Boric said a temporary morgue was set up at the airport and he expected American pathologists to assist him in identifying the bodies.

Pentagon officials in Washington said 27 passengers and six crew members were on board the T-43 plane, the military version of the Boeing 737, when it slammed into a hill known locally at Sveti Ivan, or St. John.

It had been cleared to land at Dubrovnik airport, which lies south of the historic Adriatic city.

Croatia's ambassador to the United States, Miomir Zuzul, said the plane first hit the mountain with its right wing, then its right engine. "The aircraft is not completely destroyed," he told Associated Press Television.

Besides Brown and Commerce Department officials, the passengers included New York Times correspondent Nathaniel Nash and about a dozen top American executives exploring business opportunities in the Balkans. A Croatian news photographer for the daily Slobodna Dalmacija newspaper was also on board.

A woman found alive at the scene died as a NATO helicopter carried her to a Dubrovnik hospital.

In Washington, President Clinton called Brown "a magnificent life force" and urged prayers for those aboard the lost flight.

Croatian newspapers today echoed the feeling of deep shock in a nation just recovering from 4-1/2 years of Balkan war and hopeful that resorts like Dubrovnik would lure tourists en masse this summer to its stunning Adriatic coast.

"We mourn alongside America," the Vjesnik daily said in an editorial under banner headlines: "Brown's plane down - our tragedy too."

U.S. military officials said searchers arrived at the crash site at 5:50 a.m. today. They joined three Americans who had been lowered in by helicopter earlier and more than 100 Croatian police and 100 French seamen.

Reporters were able to get close enough to the crash site Wednesday to see the plane, its middle burned, resting on its belly on the top of a craggy hill. The area is said to be laced with land mines from the 1991 Serb-Croat war.

"Only a crazy man would go there," said Zuzul, the Croatian ambassador.

The plane took off from Tuzla in northern Bosnia, the headquarters for U.S. soldiers with the NATO-led peace mission, after Brown had surprised the troops with McDonald's hamburgers and sports videotapes.

There was no indication that any of the former warring partners in Bosnia or Croatia attacked the plane. Residents in the coastal village of Velji Dol - pronounced VEL-ye Duhl - said it crashed during one of the worst storms in decades.

Croatian President Franjo Tudjman announced a top-level commission of inquiry into the plane crash.

However, investigators will be lacking an essential tool. The Air Force said the 23-year-old plane was not equipped with flight data recorder, unlike commercial planes. The devices record voice transmissions and information about the plane's systems.

Zuzul said four planes, including one he was flying on, landed at Dubrovnik shortly before Brown's plane was due, and the landings went normally.

The head of Croatia's civilian air traffic control, Miljenko Radic, told Croatian state TV that the plane approached Dubrovnik airport "left of the usual route."

"It should not have been there," he said.

The Air Force said because of the bad weather, the plane was making an instrument approach. Air Force Lt. Gen. Howell Estes said the plane veered off course on its final approach but had not reported any problems.

Brown's aircraft disappeared from radar screens at 2:52 p.m. (7:52 a.m. EST) between the tiny island of Kalamota, a few miles northwest of Dubrovnik, and the Cilipi airport, Croatian security sources said. Visibility in the area was no more than 100 yards, they said.

The airport is situated in mountainous terrain about three miles inland from the Adriatic Sea. Planes usually approach it from over the water. Before landing, they encounter hills 300 to 600 feet high before a quick descent to the two-mile-long runway.

Ivo Djuric was on the hill behind his house when he heard the plane overhead. "It was very strange to hear it," he said, "because planes never fly above here."

He climbed up the hill until he saw the plane was "in large pieces, loosely together." Then he ran back, jumped in his car and raced to the village to call police.

The plane was the same one used earlier this week in the Balkans by Defense Secretary William Perry and for the recent trip to Bosnia by First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton and her daughter, Chelsea.

Brown, who had planned to spend three days in Bosnia and Croatia, had said he was "really exhilarated" by his Wednesday visit to Bosnia.

He praised the soldiers in Tuzla, saying that without the NATO-led force, Bosnians wouldn't be returning to their homes, families would not be reunited, and meetings between former enemies would not be taking place.

"So all of the United States says thanks to all of you," he told them.

Cleaning house for sale led family to clues about Unabomber identity

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - When members of a suburban Chicago family began cleaning up to sell their home about two months ago, they stumbled on what federal agents believe is the best clue so far to the identity of the Unabomber they have sought for 17-1/2 years.

Wanda Dombek Kaczynski, a widow, was leaving the blue, one-story home on a tree-lined street in Lombard, Ill., to move east to live near her younger son, David, who was helping with the move.

While searching through old boxes at the home they sold March 15, the Kaczynski family found some writings by David's brother, Theodore Kaczynski, now 53 and living in Montana. The writings made the Kaczynskis think Theodore might be the Unabomber, according to several federal law enforcement officials.

Theodore Kaczynski's brother called an acquaintance in Washington who is a lawyer. Acting as an intermediary, the lawyer turned the materials over to the FBI's Washington field office.

Agents got permission to conduct a further search of the home in suburban Chicago, where Theodore Kaczynski grew up before attending Harvard and the University of Michigan. What they found raised their suspicions.

Agents started following Theodore Kaczynski several weeks ago and took him into custody Wednesday so they could search his home near Lincoln, Mont., without any interference from him.

"In this particular instance, the further we went along the more likely it was that he was a viable suspect. So I think the FBI's fairly certain they have the right man," said Rick Smith, who retired Friday from the FBI in San Francisco, headquarters of the Unabomber task force.

At least one member of the multi-agency Unabomber task force complained Wednesday that Kaczynski's brother gave the FBI Theodore's name "a long time ago" and has been struggling to get their attention since then.

But one FBI official said the lead "was given a high priority and special attention from the beginning." The official said that's partly because it came to the Washington field office, which gets few Unabomber tips, compared with the thousands that roll into the Unabomber task force headquarters San Francisco.

"We like the looks of this guy as the Unabomber, but we don't have make-or-break evidence yet," one federal law enforcement official told The Associated Press. "We have some writings that match up, but we don't have his tools yet. We want the irrefutable mother lode of evidence."

The FBI spent much of the last 18 months publicizing the Unabomber's writings, hand-delivering copies of his writings to scholars familiar with the history of science in hopes someone would recognize his work.

The bureau even persuaded The New York Times and The Washington Post to publish last September in the Post the Unabomber's 35,000-word treatise on the inhumanity of industrial society after he promised to stop planting bombs that kill people if his manifesto was published. There have been no Unabomber bombings since then.

But all that publicity apparently was not central to raising the Kaczynskis' suspicions. "I don't think publicity for the Unabomber's writings drove the brother," one agent said.

UNABOMBER

mathematics at the University of California at Berkeley, Kaczynski graduated from Harvard when he was barely 20, and received a master's degree and doctorate from the University of Michigan several years later. Academic-oriented and obsessed with technology, he fits the FBI profile of the suspect.

The cabin, with no electricity or plumbing, had been Kaczynski's home for about a dozen years. Neighbors said he was a loner and a recluse, going everywhere on foot or on an old bicycle.

The Unabomber's spree began at Northwestern University in suburban Chicago in May 1978. The most recent of 16 attacks came April 24, 1995, when a timber industry executive was killed in Sacramento, Calif.

The FBI has spread copies of the Unabomber's writings throughout the academic community in hopes of finding someone who recognizes the work.

Last September, The New York Times and The Washington Post published, in the Post, his 35,000-word treatise on the inhumanity of industrial society. His manifesto held that industrial society should be abolished and replaced with "small, autonomous units" of no more than 100 people.

He promised to stop planting bombs that kill people if the treatise was published. There have been no bombings since.

Rick Smith, who retired just last week from the FBI in San Francisco - headquarters of the Unabomber task force - said the force had half a dozen good suspects, but none better than the man in Montana.

BROWN

plane, the Riggs National Bank of Washington said, "We have been told that the crash left no survivors."

The T-43 aircraft that crashed 1.8 miles north of the runway at the airport near Dubrovnik was the same plane used earlier this week to shuttle Defense Secretary William Perry and, last week, Mrs. Clinton through Bosnia.

Estes said the plane, an Air Force version of the Boeing 737, was making an instrument landing when it apparently veered off course and into the 2,300-foot hillside.

The Air Force said in a statement that the 23-year-old plane was not equipped with a "black box" flight data recorder, unlike commercial planes and most Air Force planes used to carry VIPs and other passengers.

The devices record voice transmissions and information about the plane's systems and are often used to help investigators determine the cause of crashes.

Estes said the crew manning the Dubrovnik tower reported no signs of emergency before the plane disappeared from their radar.

"There were no calls made indicating any kind of a problem aboard the aircraft," Estes said.

Protect your rights! "Render" your taxable property by April 15th.

A "rendition" is a report to the appraisal district that lists all the taxable property you owned or controlled on January 1st of this year. The rendition form is available at your local appraisal district office... or you may draft a similar form.

Who must file a rendition?

You must file a rendition if you own tangible personal property that is used to produce income—such as the inventory and equipment used by a business.

Are there any advantages to you?

The advantages of filing a rendition are:

- ☛ You give your opinion of your property's value. If the appraisal district believes the value is higher, it must notify you in writing of the higher value and explain how you can protest that value to the appraisal review board.
- ☛ You record your correct mailing address so your tax bills will go to the right address. If your bill is mailed to the wrong address, the law still holds you responsible for paying your taxes on time or paying extra charges for late payments.
- ☛ You can also file a "report of decreased value" to notify the appraisal district of significant depreciation of the value of your property in 1995. The district will look at your property before assigning a value in 1996.

What's the deadline?

The last day for filing 1996 renditions is Monday, April 15. Call your appraisal district for the last date the rendition may be postmarked, if mailing. You can get an extra 15 days if you ask for it in writing by the April 15 deadline.

Where do you file?
