The Hereford area, desperately in need of significant moisture for the first time in seven months, continues to be teased with the possibility of rain, only to wind up with more wind. Wind is something the area has had quite a bit of, but which serves to increase the high fire danger caused by lack of rain.

"We were supposed to get a little rain this weekend, but it look like they've taken it out (of the forecast)," Fire Marshal Jay Spain said on Friday.
Indeed, the forecast for Saturday night calls for cloudy, with south winds of 10-20 mph, but no rain possibilities are mentioned.

Sunday's forecast is for a high in the mid-70s with southwest to west winds of 15-25 mph and gusty. Again, there is no rain mentioned. The extended forecast does mention a "slight chance" of showers and thunderstorms for the Panhandle on Monday and Wednesday.

Because of the high winds -- there have been 32 days with winds recorded above 35 mph, according to Chip Formby at KPAN Radio -- Spain said the fire danger is extremely high. Spain reminded residents that Deaf Smith County is operating under a no-burn policy designed to reduce the possibility of out-of-control fires whipped by high winds.

"We haven't had a large grass fire since we've instigated the fire ban" on Feb. 26, Spain said.

Recently, there were two fires at an area feedyard, one this past week when a number of hay bales were ignited by a cutting torch and one before that when some cotton burrs caught fire. Another fire was reported recently at another yard that was caused by a torch.

Other than that, Spain said, Deaf Smith County has been very fortunate -- a spate of luck he attributes to the ban.

The ban prohibits burning of trash at rural residences, except between 8 a.m. and noon on Saturday and Sunday, provided winds are less than 10 mph.

In addition, any open fires must be approved by Spain prior to burning.

Farmers may burn off fields, but Spain said they must report those controlled burns to his office before starting them.

Currently, he said, firefighters are responding to any reports of smoke in the county, unless it involves a controlled burn that was reported to him beforehand.

"We're running on smoke because there's not supposed to be any controlled burns unless they call us," Spain said.

He defended the need for controlled burns, however, provided the farmers make sure they take all precautions necessary to ensure the fire will not go out of control.

"Some of these farmers have to burn off before they can plant their crops," he said.

Spain continued to urge all residents of the county to use extreme caution when dealing with fire of any kind.

He said farmers, feedlot operators and any others who must use cutting torches or welding equipment should wet down the ground before beginning and should make sure a person is standing by to watch the area during work to make sure no stray sparks ignite a fire.

He also said county residents need to have a fire break plowed around their homes to provide additional protection in case of a range fire.

Motorists traveling are reminded that cigarettes thrown from a car can cause a fire as well and are urged to dispose of butts inside the vehicle.

Additional information about the fire ban or on burning is available by calling Spain at 363-7114.

Windy once again

With more than 30 days recorded with winds over 35 mph this year, the Hereford area is dry and dusty, and flags stretched on their halyards is a common sight around town. These flags were spotted at City Hall this past week.

Status of McWhorter to be discussed Monday

Trustees set back-to-back meets

Hereford Independent School District trustees, looking to wrap up several items of business before the May 4 election, have scheduled two meetings this week, including a special session on Monday that will address the status of District 1 trustee Cherry McWhorter.

Monday's meeting is set for 6 p.m. in the HISD administration building, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue.

Tuesday's session is the regular second board meeting of the month and will include a seven-item action agenda. It also will be at 6 p.m. in the board room.

On Monday, trustees will deal with the status of Mrs. McWhorter, who confirmed recently she has sold her home in District 1. The district has received a new address for her on Fir Street, which is located in District 5. According to state law, a school trustee who moves out of his or her district may no longer serve on the board.

Also on the agenda for Monday are interviews of applicants for school attorney, discussion of the concerns by Trustee Randy Tooley with the 1995-96 budget and discussion of the applicants for business manager.

Trustees must hire a new attorney to replace Paul Lyle of Plainview, who resigned recently.

As of Friday, T. Allen Rhodes of Amarillo was the only applicant.

For Tuesday's meeting, trustees will be facing a 13-item main agenda, which includes the seven-item action agenda.

In addition, they will enter closed session for three items -- a parent appeal, teacher contracts and evaluation of the superintendent.

In the action agenda, trustees will be asked to vote on a number of issues, among them salaries for counselors, nurses, diagnosticians and speech therapists.

The pay issue, which was addressed last fall when trustees opted to put the professionals on the state salary scale for the 1996-97 school year, arose again at the April 8 meeting during a presentation by retired counselor June Owens, who questioned the salaries paid current counselors.

Trustees decided to take action Tuesday on whether or not to give those professionals extra money for the end of this school year. Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt also told trustees at the April 8 meeting that he would check on the legality of changing pay during a contract year.

Other action items facing trustees are:

- Bids on a renovation project at Bluebonnet Intermediate School for this summer, which includes installing new heat pump heating/cooling units on the roof.
- Approval of the 1996-97 school year calendar.

- A resolution regarding the Panhandle Information Network.
- A TexPool resolution.
- A vote on the hiring of a school attorney.
- Votes on Update 50, a comprehensive package of policy changes proposed by the Texas Association of School Boards that addressed law changes from Senate Bill 1 last year.

Trustees on April 8 were presented several work sheets by Greenawalt that address major issues of policy change in the update package.

He told the board that acting on the policy changes would take several meetings, as trustees must review each proposed policy change, then determine if they want to approve the proposal as written, amend it, or leave current policy in place.

Also on the agenda for Tuesday's meeting are general reports, approval of bills and budget amendments, student and professional organization reports and public comments.

Both the Monday and Tuesday meetings are open to the public.

Procession marks bomb anniversary

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - A battalion of mourners, some clutching flowers and children in their arms, moved in a somber procession that brought back painful memories of a day Oklahomans want desperately to put behind them.

The solemn march on Friday marked the one-year anniversary of the explosion that ripped apart the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building and killed 168 people.

Hundreds of onlookers behind a barricade tape spoke of their own grief and eagerness to move beyond the smoke and terror of April 19, 1995.

"Oklahoma City Hurt Families, We Love You," read a sign held up by Johnny Draper of nearby Norman. All of Oklahoma still aches from the tragedy.

"Sometimes you just go about your business ... driving, or at home you just get to thinking about it and you realize it affected you more than you thought, or more than you wanted to admit," Draper said.

Police and the barricade tape kept onlookers at a distance as the survivors and others walked - in their cowboy boots, high heels and sneakers - to a memorial service five blocks from where the Murrah building once stood. Two toddlers rode in a red wagon. Parents pushed children in strollers.

The mass of marchers - people who lost family members in the blast - took about 30 minutes to walk the six blocks, under sunny skies. Most who walked carried stuffed animals, flowers or flags. "In America, terror will not triumph. Let me say it again: Terror will not triumph," Vice President Al Gore said to loud applause at the memorial service.

Earlier, in the grassy field that a year ago was filled with smoke and rubble, terror and wailing sirens, hundreds of mourners gathered at a private service to remember the dead.

"We saw the face of evil, but we have also seen the face of love and compassion," the Rev. Don Alexander of the First Christian Church said.

At 9:02 a.m., mourners paused for 168 seconds of silence, one for each person who died in the worst-ever terrorist attack on U.S. soil.

The silence was broken only by the chirping of birds and the occasional wails of a baby, the clanking of a U.S. flag's metal clasp against its pole.

Motorists on highways nearby pulled over, their headlights on in remembrance. A flyover of four F-16 jets and the tolling of a bell in a bomb-damaged church signaled the end of the silence.

Then each victim's name was read - slowly, in alphabetical order - the speakers' voices at times trembling with emotion. During the litany, family members, some sobbing and embracing, laid wreaths, flowers and teddy bears on the site of the demolished building.

The somber roll call included workers and visitors to the Murrah building, the old and the young.

The anniversary brought memories flooding back.

Early voting continues for municipal elections

Through the first full week of early voting for upcoming municipal elections, nearly 100 people had cast ballots in the city and hospital district elections, while voting was off to a slower start in the school trustee races.

As of Friday afternoon, County Clerk David Ruland's office reported 95 ballots cast in city voting, 98 in hospital district and 52 in school.

Seeking seats on the Hereford City Commission are Wayne Winget, unopposed for Place 4; Eugene Condarco and Joe Soliz, contesting for Place 2; and at-large candidates for two seats, Roger Eades, Carey Black and Frank Maes. Winget, Condarco, Eades and Black are incumbents.

Hereford Independent School District voters will choose trustees for Districts 2, 4, 5 and 7. Running for the District 2 seat are incumbent trustee Raul Valdez and Charlie Arellano. Candidates for District 4 are Angie M. Alonzo, Leroy Lucero and Dave Charest. The District 5 candidates are Lloyd Ames, Glenn Boozer and Tracy Straughan. Jeff Torbert is unopposed for the District 7.

Voters in the Deaf Smith County Hospital District election will choose four directors from a slate of six. Incumbents Larry Watts, Dean Crofford, Boyd M. Foster and Steven Cortez are being challenged by Mark Collier and Henry C. Reid.

Early voting in city, school and hospital district elections will continue through April 30. Voting day is May 4 for all three elections.

Hantavirus suspected in death of Amarillo resident

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - An Amarillo man who died of respiratory failure Wednesday likely had hantavirus pulmonary syndrome, an Amarillo health official said Friday.

Hantavirus antibodies were found in the blood of Mike Becknel, 25, said Dr. J. Rush Pierce, public health authority for the Amarillo Bi-City-County Health District.

"The blood test is a very good test, but it is not 100-percent accurate; it is about 98-percent accurate," Pierce said.

Hantavirus gained widespread attention in 1993 when a deadly outbreak struck New Mexico, Arizona, Utah and Colorado.

Hantavirus is spread to humans from rodents, probably by inhalation of the virus excreted in rodent urine, saliva or feces. The virus is not spread from person to person.

Becknel, a driver for an auto-parts store, stayed home from work Tuesday with flu-like symptoms, his father, Wayne Merchant, said Friday.

"He got up Wednesday still sick and we made a doctor's appointment," Merchant said.

But before they could make it to the doctor, Becknel lost consciousness, Merchant said. Becknel was rushed to the hospital and died four hours later, he said.

Bullock-owned phone firm solicits lobbyists

AUSTIN (AP) -- Lobbyists and others who do business with the state and Legislature say they have been solicited to sign up with a telephone company owned in part by Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, The Dallas Morning News reported.

Bullock, presiding officer of the Texas Senate, is one of the most powerful officials in state government.

Some of the lobbyists who were solicited said they were given sales pitches during which Bullock was mentioned as an investor in the fledgling firm, the newspaper said in a copyright story in Saturday's editions.

Ricky Knox, an Austin lobbyist who is also a shareholder in Lone Star Long Distance Inc., said that he had used Bullock's name in conversations with three potential customers, including two lobbyists.

Lobbyists typically promote the interests of their clients to state lawmakers and regulators. Officeholders aren't prohibited from having outside businesses or investments, but some expressed surprise at hearing Bullock's name used.

Tornadoes rip through parts of Central Illinois

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) -- Tornadoes ripped through central Illinois with a vengeance, damaging more than 100 homes and a dozen businesses in this city alone. At least 30 people were injured, two seriously.

Police blocked off roads leading to nearby Ogden, a town of about 700, where several homes were flattened and there was heavy damage to churches, businesses and the elementary school gymnasium.

Severe weather also was reported in eastern Texas, northern and central Indiana and eastern Missouri.

At least one tornado tore through the heart of downtown Decatur, part of a string of storms that skipped across the region Friday night and sent least 28 people to hospitals. The extent of the injuries wasn't known, but at least two people in Decatur were listed in serious condition, a hospital reported.

Anita Wilcott was working in Decatur when she and colleagues saw a twister.

"We got down in a ditch. There were probably 10 to 12 of us out in that ditch," said Wilcott, who was not injured.

The blustery winds hit hardest in Decatur and counties east, which also took a battering from storms on Thursday night.

As many as 200 homes were damaged, said Dan Sanner, coordinator of Macon County's emergency services and disaster agency.

Storms also damaged houses and knocked down power lines in nearby Urbana, Ogden and St. Joseph.

By late Friday night, a busload of Ogden residents rolled into St. Joseph after police blocked off the roads leading into town.

Terry Tatro and some neighbors saw the storm coming, like something

Closing out the 1995-1996 Hereford Community Concerts season, the London Piano Duo will perform April 28 in the Hereford High School auditorium.

The 3 p.m. concert will feature David Nettle and Richard Markham, whose repertoire is a mix of classics and lighter music.

New members of the association for next year will receive a bonus, admission to the Piano Duo concert. Memberships for the next season also will be available at the concert.

This year's tour in the United States is taking the Piano Duo and their two Steinway Concert Pianos to 26 locations, through the Midwest to the Pacific Northwest and back to New York, a distance of 9,000 miles in seven weeks.

Nettle and Markham formed their partnership in 1979 and experienced wide acceptance. Within four years, they had performed on four continents.

They have traveled to Australia and played in 15 countries of the Far East and Middle East under auspices of the British Council. Nettle and Markham also have participated in major musical events in their own country as well as other countries. Besides their performance expertise, Nettle and Markham are noted for their arrangements and their involvement in television documentaries.

The Piano Duo has played in major concert halls of Europe and with major orchestras, such as the London Philharmonic, the Royal Philharmonic and the English Chamber Orchestra. Their music also has been heard in concert halls of Berlin, Paris, Prague, Amsterdam and New York.

During a concert tour of Australia, they presented an open air performance to an audience of 20,000 persons.

In addition to performing in concert the Piano Duo has recorded a wide variety of music, ranging from Rossini to "The Carrioca."

Nettle and Markham have been praised for their performance in newspapers worldwide. A Berlin critic described their performance as a "well-deserved triumph" and a New York newspaper's critic described their appearance as "rich in dialogue and raw energy."

Their recordings also have drawn accolades from reviewers.

SPS to receive award for water conservation

AMARILLO--Southwestern Public Service Company's successful efforts for more than 35 years to conserve and re-use precious High Plains water will be recognized in Austin Monday with a "best in Texas" award from the Texas Section of the American Water Works Association.

The electric utility will receive one of two Bob Derrington Water Reclamation Awards. The award "recognizes the best water re-use project in the State of Texas," said Cheri Vogel, AWWA Conservation Committee chairwoman.

A Houston-area plant nursery, Turkey Creek Farms, will receive the second award for "highly efficient use of groundwater and for recapturing irrigation runoff," Vogel said. The award, first made last year, honors the late Bob Derrington, who was director of utilities for Odessa.

High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 of Lubbock nominated SPS for the award, which commends the utility for innovating and establishing successful methods of re-treating and then re-using significant volumes of city waste water, or effluent.

The reclaimed water are re-used--in fact, circulated hundreds of times--in cooling and other processes at eight steam-generation units at three SPS electric power stations in the Panhandle and South Plains.

SPS was a pioneer user of reclaimed effluent. The utility began substituting effluent for fresh water for industrial purposes in 1961.

For instance, during 1995 SPS reclaimed, re-treated and re-used more than 5.49 billion gallons of effluent purchased from the cities of Amarillo and Lubbock. The re-used water saves precious, potable water for other uses, said Kenneth Ladd, SPS senior vice president.

"In 1995 alone, we save enough fresh water for the personal needs of about 100,000 people," he said. Since 1980, when SPS began recording the water savings and reporting results to the state, the substitution of effluent has saved more than 75 billion gallons of fresh water, added Ladd.

The AWWA award announcement also noted that SPS and contractor-farmers and ranchers at Lubbock and Amarillo have developed and established successful methods of re-using even the utility's waste, or "blowdown," waters through field and crop irrigation and related stock grazing.

Charges stand against suspected Unabomber

By BOB ANEZ
Associated Press Writer

HELENA, Mont. (AP) -- Theodore Kaczynski is entitled to fair, not perfect, treatment, a federal judge said in refusing to free the Unabomber suspect who has been the subject of Justice Department news leaks.

U.S. District Judge Charles Lovell on Friday denied a defense request to dismiss the lone charge against Kaczynski -- possessing bomb components.

Defense attorney Michael Donahoe argued that the charge should be dropped because a torrent of news leaks had so poisoned public opinion against Kaczynski that it would be impossible to find an impartial grand jury.

Donahoe also requested that Kaczynski be freed and any future prosecution be barred.

Lovell said the news leaks were "entirely regrettable," but said he saw no evidence they were part of an intentional effort to prejudice the public against Kaczynski.

"The defendant is not entitled to perfect treatment," Lovell said. "This is not a perfect world. He is entitled to fair treatment, and I think he has been afforded fair treatment."

Kaczynski, 53, was arrested at his remote mountain cabin near Lincoln on April 3. He has not been charged with any of the Unabomber attacks, which killed three people and injured 23 over the last 18 years.

The government admitted some of its agents have leaked confidential information, but said the leaks were not intentional and did not justify dropping the case.

Lovell agreed and said he was impressed by government efforts to stem the leaks and prosecute and punish agents who revealed confidential information.

His ruling restarts the speedy-trial clock, which is stopped while defense motions are pending. The government now has 19 days left to take the Kaczynski case before a federal grand jury or release him.

Kaczynski sat expressionless during Friday's hearing and said nothing.

His hair, which had been long and scraggly when he was arrested, was cut and styled and his beard was trimmed.

He was wearing clean, apparently new clothes -- brown pants, a green, long-sleeved shirt open at the neck and black tennis shoes.

Lottery

AUSTIN (AP) -- Two tickets matched all the numbers drawn in Friday's Cash 5 lottery game.

State lottery officials said the tickets are each worth $150,335.

There were 834 tickets sold with four matching numbers. Those tickets are each worth $541. Some 28,413 tickets, each worth $27, had three matching numbers.

Cash 5 numbers drawn Friday night, from a total of 39 numbers, were 9-13-20-30-32. The next drawing is Tuesday.

Focus on Your City

By BOB JOSSEKAND
Mayor, City of Hereford
 If you haven't been by the Aquatic Center Park recently, please take the time to drive by and see what is going on and the effect your dollars are having.

You can't see the grass, yet, but it has been planted and is being watered up, the trees are in, the shelter is pretty well complete, some barbecue grills have been installed and a few picnic tables are already in place. In addition, Don Kundert and his crew are hard at work on our restroom facility for the park, as well as the sign for recognition of contributors.

Speaking of contributors, thank you all so very much for making a difference. We have reached our goal of $40,000, but that's not to stop any of you from making additional contributions. In this issue of The Hereford Brand, you will find a list of the contributors to the Aquatic Center project to date.

I am sure we'll have some more folks to thank in the future, but these are the people so far who have made the dream come true. This thank-you ad certainly is not much in the way of a thank you to all of you in Hereford, but I'll assure you that in the future, as you use the Aquatic Center Park and enjoy its beauty, you will be repaid many, many times.

Continuing in this vein, I want to take this opportunity to offer my thanks, especially, to the committee members who solicited funds for the park. Bobby Owen and Jeff Torbert were the co-chairmen and they really went the extra mile to make a difference. And, I particularly want to compliment and say a special thanks to all of our school youth who truly made a difference and certainly showed all of us what can be done with a little effort. Thanks, kids!

Attendance at the Aquatic Center is really beginning to pick up. Just as an example, during the month of February, 3,436 men, women, boys and girls used the center. In March, the number climbed to 4,968. People are realizing what a real opportunity the Aquatic Center provides for recreation, exercise, entertainment and just plain enjoyment.

One of the exciting uses of the Aquatic Center has been birthday parties. It's unbelievable to me that Sandra Kilanowski and her staff can handle all of the birthday parties in such a professional way. They certainly make it a great time for people to use the pool and, really, it's very economical for those sponsoring the party. If you haven't looked into having that special birthday at the Aquatic Center, you might want to do so.

We'll announce soon that the Aquatic Center will be closed for a few days to allow us to remove the dome and make some needed repairs to the pool as well as to add some more exciting features to the facility. We'll do this during a time frame that will inconvenience the fewest number of people.

As many of you have read, your City Commission in its two most recent planning sessions has devoted time and effort to the study of the infrastructure of the city. We will continue to investigate the most cost-effective ways to approach some badly-needed improvements. Prior to taking final action on any long-range plan it is the commission's intent to have a city-wide meeting of citizens to gain input.

We know what we'd like to do in an ideal world, but we also know that financial resources are limited and we'll simply have to make some of the infrastructure improvements as funds are available, rather than do things all at once.

We'll be more than happy to discuss with any interested citizen any of the information we have collected so far on infrastructure improvements. If you see one of our City Commissioners and have a question, please don't hesitate to stop them and ask. I also would welcome calls from any of you.

Before I leave this FOCUS, I'd like to put in my two cents' worth and tell you how important it is that each citizen of Hereford get out and vote in the city, school, hospital and county elections.

Believe me, you can make a difference by voting, and many times elections in small communities are decided by one or two votes. Elections this year in Hereford are crucial to the direction the various entities are headed and your vote is seriously needed. Vote early at the office of County Clerk David Ruland, or cast your ballot in person on May 4.

As always, I encourage your input into the activities of the city. Don't hesitate to contact me.

New power plant to be built by Golden Spread

Golden Spread Electric Cooperative Inc. will build a new 400 megawatt high efficiency gas-fueled generating station near Denver City, the company has announced.

Among the member systems of Golden Spread is Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative of Hereford.

The new plant, to be named Mustang Station, is expected to cost about $175 million. GS Electric Generating Cooperative Inc., a wholly-owned affiliate of Golden Spread, will own and operate the plant and sell power to Golden Spread.

"The new power supply plan is expected to save Golden Spread's members and their consumers 8 percent over projections based on current costs of purchasing wholesale power," said Robert W. Bryant, Golden Spread president.

The plant design calls for installation of three combustion turbine-generators and a steam turbine. Two heat recovery steam generators will capture waste heat from the exhaust of the two combustion turbines to produce steam to operate the steam turbine.

This "combined cycle" arrangement will result in a more than 25 percent reduction in the fuel needed to produce electric energy, compared to either of the turbine types operating alone, Bryant said.

The third combustion turbine will initially serve only peak loads, but can be converted to operate in combined-cycle when loads justify the additional cost.

Golden Spread has an application pending with the Texas Public Utility Commission for approvals needed to purchase power from its affiliate cooperative, and for certification of the wholesale power contract between Golden Spread and GS Elective Generating Cooperative.

Golden Spread currently purchases all of its member systems' capacity and energy requirements under full requirements contracts. The primary supplier is Southwestern Public Service Co.

The new power supply plan will provide Golden Spread with a diversity in low-cost resources to serve member systems loads, and will create opportunities to sell excess power and energy.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says Americans are people with the most time-saving devices but with the least time.

Got a minute? The likely answer is, "No." Everybody is in a hurry. In a national poll, 59 percent of Americans describe their lives as too busy. Some of the people surveyed said managing time is a bigger problem than managing money.

A lot of people go to work early, trying to make up the time they know they're going to waste later in the day. Some of the wasted time has to do with interruptions by others, and some of it lies in our own management.

"Leisure time" seems to be a popular phrase these days. Leisure time requires money. If you're working, you don't have time to spend. If you have time off, there are all kinds of way to spend money you don't have because you're not working enough.

Another survey says many Americans are stressed out and need to learn to relax during their free time. "Free time" is not in the dictionary, but I don't think it's the same as "leisure time." I believe free time means mowing the grass, pulling weeds and watering the lawn.

Everything, including time, is relative. A man scolded a fisherman who had been sitting on a river bank for hours.

"I've been watching you for two hours and you haven't caught a thing. What a waste of time!"

"Shoot," said the fisherman, "Wasting time is watching for two hours when you could've been fishing!"

A friend of ours in the newspaper field has come up with more questions than answers. He throws out these brain-twisters:

--How does the guy who drives the snowplow get to work?
--Why are there flotation devices under the airplane seats instead of parachutes?

--If Allsup's is open 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, why are there locks on the doors?
--Why do you need a driver's license to buy liquor when it's illegal to drive and drink?

--Why is it that when you transport something by car, it's called a shipment, but when you transport something by ship it's called cargo?
--If olive oil comes from olives, where does baby oil come from?

--If con is the opposite of pro, is Congress the opposite of progress?
--Why are the called apartments when they are all stuck together?

--Do vegetarians eat animal crackers?
--Why is it that when you're driving and looking for an address, you turn down the radio?
--Why do we drive on parkways when park on driveways?
--If buttered toast always lands buttered side down and a cat always lands on its feet, what would happen if you tied a piece of buttered toast on the back of a cat and dropped it?

Cockleburrs and Devil's Claws

By Georgia Tyler

In the olden days, before REA and indoor plumbing at very many farm homes, there were household items that later became targets of antique collectors and, even, scavengers, who were better known as thieves.

About this, I know whereof I write. My grandparents' farm home was abandoned, for all practical purposes, in the mid-1940s. For several years before that, the house was rarely used. The exception was during World War II when my parents, sister and I spent summers on the farm.

As I've mentioned before, farm life was not to my liking but two factors dictated our stay -- first, my parents thought we were safe from infantile paralysis if we weren't in the crowds of town or city, and, second, gas rationing precluded much running back and forth (a 32-mile round trip) to town.

When the farmhouse was left standing in the middle of pastures, no one considered that looters, of one kind or another, would drive up and carry off everything.

But they did. The first I knew this had happened was when I asked my parents about old records that had been left in the house, along with the crank-style Victrola. Some of the records probably were valuable, in a manner of speaking.

John Philip Sousa marches, played by the composer's band. Popular music of another day -- I don't remember the tunes or performers -- that would have interested collectors.

Apparently the dark-of-night requisitioners thought they would be money in the bank. A part of my youth vanished with the loss of that Victrola and the records. There was no electricity in the house so during long summer nights, when natural light had faded and comic books were laid aside, my sister and I took turns cranking the phonograph and listening to the old music.

In a backroom of the house, there had been a cream separator which we used when there were cows that gave too much milk for their calves and we used it in the house.

That famous ice cream plant in Central Texas wouldn't be able to hold a candle to my mother's ice cream, made with pure cream derived through the separator.

It's crossed my mind that some thief may have carried it off without knowing, even, what it was. In the many pieces it probably was laying in the house, it would have been a jigsaw puzzle to put together.

And, speaking of jigsaw puzzles, there were some of those in the house. They were easily carried off, lightweight, but it would serve the thief right if the box flew open and pieces scattered to the four winds.

Cared off, also, was the old icebox that held a 50-lb. chunk of ice to keep perishables from spoiling. We took advantage of the ice, too, when the old-fashioned crank ice cream maker was put to work.

Needless to say, old iron bedsteads, probably three or four, were scavenged from the house. About the time my family discovered the looting of the house, iron bedsteads had become fad items for decorators and antique dealers.

There also were a few items of furniture that didn't qualify as antiques and, probably, weren't even very good quality. But, they were toted off with the rest of the furnishings.

All these aforementioned items were easily loaded into a pickup or small truck. One or two men or boys could have carried ill-gotten gain out of the house.

But, here's the question that we've pondered over and over: How did the thieves remove the big iron stove from the house without some major moving equipment? Think about it: the stove was about four and a half feet long, three feet wide and about four feet high. All cast iron. Heavy!

My mother learned to cook on that stove when she was 10 years old. She could make biscuits fit for a king and bake pies and cakes in that oven. I can still conjure up the odor of the meals cooking on that old stove, with its coal fire.

While, as a general rule, I wouldn't wish anything really bad on people, I have to hope that the looters who boosted that old stove got a sore back, and maybe even a hernia.

In my mind, it would be just retribution.

So, where were you last April 19?

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

Tossed on a table in a corner of my office is a newspaper from last year that I pulled from the files the other day.

I originally needed the April 19, 1995, paper to look at the story about the previous night's candidate forum, but now my attention is drawn to the top news headline for that day: "OKC federal building rocked by bomb."

Also on that front page are stories about a case in District Court, a hospital board report, a story about a School Bell award given to The Brand and a story in which President Clinton insists he still has relevance.

I remember much of that time like it was yesterday. I had originally planned to go to Austin that day with the Hereford Junior High chapter of Junior Historians, who were going to display their state Capitol model at the real thing.

For some reason I stayed behind at the last minute, sending a camera instead.

I don't even remember what the top story that day was supposed to have been -- probably the candidate forum.

All I know is that, when I checked the AP wire around mid-morning, it was humming with preliminary reports of a major news story brewing in Oklahoma City.

As our deadline drew near, I took the latest possible story and put it on the page, then sent the paper to press.

In the year that has followed, we have seen the gruesome story of the bombing unfold.

It has become, I believe, a focal point in time for my generation, just like the assassination of John F. Kennedy was more than 30 years ago.

Just as my mother can recall exactly what she was doing on Nov. 22, 1963, (shopping for groceries) when the announcement was made, so will I -- and those like me -- be able to tell where we were and what we were doing shortly after 9 a.m. on April 19, 1995.

Before Richard Nixon, Americans had an innate trust of the presidency. We overlooked dalliances, ignored drinking problem and just assumed that being president more than made up for "human frailties."

But after Watergate, we became cynical about the presidency. We began relying on the national media to keep the president in line and to tell us when he strayed.

It's the same way now. Before April 19, 1995, we lived secure in our own little worlds. Terrorism just didn't happen to us.

Oh, sure, there was that thing at the World Trade Centers, but that was different. Those of us not living in New York City were immune to terrorism.

Now we realize that terrorism and terrorists can strike no matter what.

Worse yet, terrorism is not just some urban-warped Arabs waving AK-47s at us from some desert stronghold after blowing up an airplane or driving a car bomb into a building somewhere in the Middle East.

No, it can be someone who looks and acts just like a neighbor, friend or relative here in Middle America. While in Oklahoma City last August, my wife asked that we take our two girls to see the area.

The buildings immediately around the site of the bombing are still boarded up and abandoned.

At the time, a hastily-erected fence kept rubberneckers off the property. Where the fence intersected public streets, well-wishers had decorated the chain-link with teddy bears, poems, flowers, letters, ribbons and other symbols of love.

Many of them had faded in the hot Oklahoma summer sun.

Behind the church, an open-air chapel had been built with rough-hewn altar, benches and shelter from the sun.

The altar also was decorated with gifts from people who came from near and far to pay their respects to the 168 people who lost their lives that day.

The building had been torn down by then and there really wasn't much to see, but for us, it tied the reality of the situation together with the images on television and in newspapers.

It doesn't feel like a full year has passed since the bomb exploded, but then, I expect we'll never REALLY escape the memory of that day, no matter how many years pass.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank the Brand staff for their excellent coverage of meetings of our tax-supported entities. Although we are encouraged to attend all public meetings, it is not realistic to expect all citizens to be present.

As citizens, we should study the qualifications of all candidates for office, exercise our right to vote and continue to be interested in activities of the government that is closest to us: our city, school, hospital and county.

In 1776 Abigail Adams wrote to her husband John, who was attending the Continental Congress, "I desire you would remember the Ladies." As of today, "the Ladies" have had the right to vote for less than 76 years. I would like to encourage the "Ladies" (and men, too) to demonstrate support of our system of government by voting for their choices of those candidates that have offered to give their time and talent to public office.

On May 4, local voters have the opportunity to exercise their rights. Surely a qualification of patriotism is a dedicated interest in our city, school and hospital. Thanks again to the Brand for covering all meetings and for coverage of the "Meet the Candidates Forum."

Ruth Newsom

Dear Editor:

"All I know is just what I read in the papers!" That is not totally true, and wasn't even when Will Rogers said it back around 1924. Now we have radio (and Rush) and TV (and Pat Buchanan). BUT I believe that things of a thoughtful nature stick with you better if you "read" them than if you "hear" them.

Even a man of great talent may perform poorly if his efforts are viewed of little value or taken for granted! Who among us does not work with vigor when he is the center of attention and applauded for his deeds?

Only recently, as I have forced my mind to "disconnect" from all the national politics -- the Clinton-Dole marathon -- and focus on my life, my interests, my friends, my Hereford, have I realized that "government" (President, Mayor, school board, hospital board, city commission, etc.) is:

A small group of PERSONS holding simultaneously the principal political executive offices of a nation OR other political unit and being RESPONSIBLE for the direction and supervision of PUBLIC affairs!" I did not realize that government was "people" and not a "BRICK" or something! So, no wonder: If we hold their deeds as of little value, and take them for granted, they will perform poorly -- or, at least, below their potential! If we do not serve, if we do not participate in any way, and then do not even VOTE, they know we DO NOT CARE!

"Every individual necessarily labors to render the annual revenue of the society as great as he can. He generally indeed neither intends to promote the public interest, nor knows how much he is promoting it.... He intends only his own gain, and he is in this, as in many other cases, led by an invisible hand to promote an end which was no part of his intention.... By pursuing his own interest he frequently promotes that of the society more effectually than when he really intends to promote it. I have never known much good done by those who AFFECTED to trade for the PUBLIC good." (Adam Smith, 1723-1793)

Thomas Paine, a devout patriot during our War for Independence, said it another way: "These are the times that try men's souls! The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the SERVICE of their country [community]; but he that stands it now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman!" [The American Crisis, No. 1 (Dec. 23, 1776)]

So, finally, I say to all of you: Go cheer the home team; give generously to your church, remind yourself how good you can feel when you make YOURSELF a part of things! GO VOTE -- MAY 4TH. Milton C. Rudder

P.S. "NOW is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country."

Dear Editor:

A questionnaire was distributed recently concerning "Professionalism" among the faculty of Hereford Independent School District. It posed such questions as:

A. "I believe educators should be recognized as professionals."

YES or NO

B. "I perceive educators to be role models for our students."

YES or NO

C. "Would you support district efforts to raise the standards of professionalism by observing the guidelines of an updated dress code?"

YES or NO

After reading these questions, I realized that the intent of the questionnaire was to link "Professionalism" to the way a teacher dresses! Which then can only lead to this conclusion: If teachers dress "Professionally", they will teach "Professionally", and of course if they teach "Professionally" students will learn more.

When I reflect on my school days I think of a teacher who was truly inspirational. He demanded the best from his students. This great teacher influenced us all. He convinced us that nothing less than our best would do. He was a "Professional" indeed. Oh, but how did he dress? He was a cowboy, western shirt, jeans, and boots that sometimes still had manure on them! But teach us he did.

Much time, energy, and materials were wasted in the construction of such a questionnaire--not to mention the time that was spent by each teacher reading it. I can think of more constructive things to do.

We teach our kids that it's the "person" that make them, not how they dress. It's not what is on the outside, but what is on the inside. Most teachers should and do dress appropriately. However, it is the responsibility of the principal to address those who do not. You can't criticize the whole because of a few.

It has been said, "Abraham Lincoln was poor dresser...Adolf Hitler was not." Just remember...all that glitters is not gold!

David Vincent, HISD teacher

Dear Editor:

My name is Jennifer Barclay. I am in 5th grade at O'Malley Elementary in Anchorage, Alaska. Our school address is 11100 Rockridge Rd., Anchorage, AK 99516.

I am doing a report on Texas. I chose your state because my grandparents and my aunt and uncle live there(they read the newspaper every morning!). I think it is neat and I would like to learn more about it. If anyone has any information they would send me, I would be grateful.

For my report I am making a big travel brochure. I need pictures, maps, brochures, postcards and items of interest about Texas. I will be waiting for a response!! Thank you so very much!!

Jennifer Barclay

Dear Editor:

Two weeks ago, we arrived at Hereford late in the evening, bone tired enroute from Rockport, Tx., to Denver, Co. I stopped at the 19th Hole Package Store for gasoline and for directions to the nearest RV park. No one seemed to know for sure, however a girl thought there was one about nine miles in another direction. Bob Hughes overheard my conversation and he could see that I was too tired to drive further that night.

He told me I could park right there on his store property and spend the night at absolutely no charge. Just a few moments later, he knocked on my door and handed me two cups of hot coffee.

Early the next morning, I found his business card on my windshield with a note, "Hope you enjoyed! Come back!"

There are fine people that live in Hereford, Texas. Dick Wood, Rockport

Hereford People Make Dreams Come True!

We thank you for your support!

The Hereford City Commission, Commissioners Roger Eades, Carey Black, Silvana Juarez, Eugene Condarco, Wayne Winget, Scott Hall and Mayor Bob Josserand, extend gratitude to the many individuals and businesses who displayed their community pride by contributing to the "Build On The Dream" project — a project begun in March by civic leaders to finance completion of landscaping in the new Hereford Aquatic Center Park.

Not surprisingly, the $40,000 campaign goal was met. More than half of that goal was generated in the first two weeks of the campaign, and every sector of our community was represented in contributions to the fund.

Your support of this campaign demonstrates once more, the progressive attitude that makes Hereford a leader and the envy of other communities in the Panhandle.

We believe that in the years to come, this immense park improvement project will mirror the spirit of those who have recognized the need for such a facility, those who have taken ownership in it, and those whose families will enjoy its benefits for generations to come - the citizens of Hereford.

Parents live through nightmare of son on Death Row

Teen given death penalty for part in murder of prominent Fort Worth woman

By JACK DOUGLAS JR.
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
FORT WORTH, Texas - It had to be a terrible mistake - a nightmare that would surely end.

Ray and Antonette "Toni" Dillingham could not bring themselves to believe that their son would commit a crime, any crime, especially one so heinous as the March 12, 1992, beating and slashing death of Caren Koslow.

Yet Jeffrey Dillingham, 19, and two other young people had been arrested and charged in the killing of Koslow, a socially prominent Fort Worth woman who was attacked in the bedroom of her home near River Crest Country Club. Her husband, Fort Worth banker Jack Koslow, was also attacked but survived.

Even after hearing of tape-recorded confessions, Ray and Toni Dillingham kept faith in their only child. He was a good kid who knew right from wrong, they assured themselves.

But on June 8, 1992 - two and a half months after their son's arrest - the Dillinghams sat on a hard bench in a Fort Worth courtroom.

Prosecutors rolled the tape. The Dillinghams listened to their son's familiar voice.

Then they bowed their heads. "I hit Mr. Koslow in the back of the head, on the neck, with a pry bar. Then I hit Mrs. Koslow, and I hit Mr. Koslow some more. And Mrs. Koslow started screaming, and then I hit Mrs. Koslow some more ..."

"She just like quit screaming ... She was awake and everything, but she like quit doing, you know, resisting and fighting and stuff. She just kinda laid down and let pass ..."

"It crushed us," Ray Dillingham said in a recent interview. "It was the first we'd heard in his words that he was involved."

Toni Dillingham added: "I think we were just kind of in a fog."

Jeffrey Dillingham is in Huntsville, on Death Row, the only one of the three Fort Worth teenagers convicted in the Koslow murder to receive the death penalty. And Ray and Toni Dillingham are experiencing what a noted criminologist and sociologist calls "secondary punishment," in which parents watch in horror as beloved children turn from the promise of youth to the ruin of crime, imprisonment and, in some cases, execution.

Much has been written about the increasing number of young people convicted of violent crimes. Less attention has been paid, however, to the people they leave behind - their parents, facing middle age and wondering what they did wrong, if anything.

"It is absolutely unfair to automatically believe parents are bad when a kid goes wrong," said Jeff Roth, senior researcher on crime and criminal justice policies for the Urban Institute in Washington. The opposite is true in most cases, Roth said.

The Koslow family buried Caren on March 16, 1992, and Ray and Toni Dillingham, both 47, wonder whether they will also have to make funeral arrangements one day for their son. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has upheld Jeffrey Dillingham's death sentence.

The Dillinghams say they know that their son committed a horrible crime, that the Koslow family has suffered far more than they have, and that Jeffrey should pay dearly.

But they do not believe he should be executed.

"We have to wait; we have to see what the next appeal's going to do," Ray Dillingham said, taking several deep breaths. "And we don't know what's down that road."

The Dillinghams were at first optimistic that their son would win an appeal and that his death sentence would be commuted to life in prison. Their optimism is beginning to wane.

"He may pay supremely, and then we'll have to deal with that," Ray Dillingham says, adding as he begins to cry: "Nobody can take away the wonderful memories. Nobody can take away what we have known and felt ... not even the state of Texas."

At the start of criminal proceedings, Jeffrey Dillingham was offered a deal in which he would have received a life sentence in return for a guilty plea and testimony against his co-defendants. He gambled, turned down the deal, and lost. A jury of eight women and four men found him guilty of capital murder and, on Aug. 11, 1993, sent him to Death Row.

At Dillingham's trial, a psychologist said the youth was caught up in the fantasy of movies and television, and had extremely poor judgment and a desire to fit in and "please people." The defense witness said Dillingham seemed to be led by 19-year-old Brian Salter, his accomplice in the killing. The two met while attending high school in White Settlement.

A month after Dillingham was sent to Death Row, Salter accepted a life sentence in return for cooperation with prosecutors. Salter testified in the capital murder trial of Kristi Koslow, Jack Koslow's 17-year-old daughter, who planned the attack on her father and stepmother.

According to court testimony and police records, the plan was to kill both Jack and Caren Koslow. That, the young trio thought, would bring Kristi Koslow a multimillion-dollar inheritance. She would use the money to reward Salter, her fiancé, and their recruit, Dillingham.

A jury in late June 1994 found Kristi Koslow guilty of capital murder, but she was spared death and sentenced to life in prison.

Salter and Kristi Koslow are eligible for parole after a minimum of 35 years in prison.

Jack Strickland, Dillingham's lawyer during his trial and through his initial appeals, said it was "grossly, grossly unfair" for Dillingham to be facing death while his cohorts in crime may one day be free.

Strickland said he was not allowed to explain fully to the jury that Dillingham, if he received a life sentence, would have to spend 35 years in prison before becoming eligible for parole. In Kristi Koslow's trial, he said, the jury received such instructions.

"I think the law and the court have made a horrible, horrible error in judgment in disposing of Kristi Koslow's case by one set of rules and disposing of Jeffrey Dillingham's case by another set of rules," Strickland said.

But he cited another reason for his former client's predicament: "He very foolishly turned down the state's offer to plead his case for life."

Alan Levy, chief of the criminal division of the Tarrant County district attorney's office and lead prosecutor in the case, says he can understand why Ray and Toni Dillingham are hurting.

And the prosecutor agrees with the Dillinghams that all three defendants should have been treated equally, but with one difference: Levy says Salter and Kristi Koslow should also be on Death Row.

"I think everybody's equally responsible, all three of them," Levy said. "I guess in a perfectly fair world, all three of them would get the maximum punishment."

Levy said he believes, however, that Dillingham did not receive the harshest punishment because of his refusal to plea bargain.

"No, he's on Death Row because he killed Caren Koslow," Levy said. Salter's father, Steven Salter, declined to comment. Kristi Koslow's mother, Paula Koslow, could not be reached for comment.

Herd golfers, tennis players head to regionals

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

A group of Hereford High School golfers and tennis players should be able to draw on experience when they compete at the Region I-4A tournaments Monday and Tuesday in San Angelo. Of the four tennis players - two pairs of doubles players - only sophomore Andrew Carr hasn't played at regionals in the spring. His partner, B.J. Lockmiller, and Paige Robbins and Natalie McWhorter all played not only at regionals last year but at the state tournament, too. Lockmiller, Robbins and McWhorter all are seniors.

The girls' golf team includes three players - Jami Bell, Krista Beville and Stephanie Bixler - who played at regionals last year. Beville and Bixler also played there two years ago.

Hereford hasn't sent a boys' golf team to regionals since 1993, but the team did play the course - Riverside Municipal - earlier this year in the San Angelo Invitational.

Counting this year, the girls' golf program has sent teams to regionals in 10 of the last 11 years. For the last several years, coach Stacey Bixler has scheduled the girls to play in the San Angelo Invitational in February just so they can get experience on the course that may come in handy in April at regionals.

That plan didn't work out this year.

"They didn't play it this year," coach Bixler said. "The tournament they always play in in the spring was canceled because of the weather. I think three of the girls that are going down there have played the course (last year). But all the boys have played it."

The Herd boys played in the San Angelo Invitational for the first time this year (the boys' tournament was scheduled a month later than the girls'). They finished 11th in the tournament, thanks mostly to a bad first day at Bentwood Country Club. The second day, at Riverside - the only course used for the regional tournament - they shot a hot 324.

The same five that played then will play Monday and Tuesday: David Sims (shot 78 at Riverside), Justin Griffith (80), Keith Riley (82), Tom Munoz (84) and Jeremiah Baros (85). Sims, Griffith and Munoz are seniors, and Riley and Baros are juniors. David Farr, another senior, will go along as the alternate.

"It's a typical municipal course," coach Bixler said of Riverside. "It's got a little more trees than we have here (at Pitman Municipal in Hereford). It doesn't have any sandtraps, but it has a few water hazards."

For the girls, sophomores Amy Killingsworth and Jacque Bezner will join the veteran trio of Bell, Beville and Bixler. Bell and Beville are seniors, and Bixler (the coach's daughter) is a junior. Katie Bone, a junior, will go as the alternate.

"Everybody's going to know the course well enough," he said. "It's just a matter of putting together some good scores on it."

The girls, like the boys, finished second to Borger in District 1-4A. That may not matter too much at regionals: in 1992, the Hereford girls were second to Borger in district but finished second to Andrews at regionals - ahead of Borger - and earned a trip to the state tournament.

"It's a brand new season," Bixler said. "Anything can happen."

Once again, Andrews' girls will be the team to beat at regionals. They have a long string of state tournament appearances. They won regionals in 1994 and finished second in 1993 (to Hereford) and last year (to Snyder).

Snyder, the defending champion, will be a team to watch, even though it lost its best player: Brooke Lowrance, who is now playing at Texas Tech.

Borger, Hereford and Fort Stockton are also top contenders, Bixler said.

The Hereford girls were fifth last year at regionals, totalling 726 over two days and finishing 79 strokes behind Snyder. Hereford was eighth two years ago, shooting 779.

No doubt Bixler hopes they can extend that rate of improvement.

"You hope you're playing your best golf this time of year," he said. "If you can just put together a couple of good days - the first day you try to put yourself in contention. That's what we're going to try to do."

Borger's boys went to the state tournament last year, and they'll be the favorites this week, Bixler said. Also in the hunt will be Andrews, Big Spring, Snyder and Hereford.

"We've been competitive everywhere we've gone - both boys and girls," said Bixler, who is looking to coach his first boys' team and fifth girls' team at the state tournament.

"We're happy to be taking both teams (to regionals) again. That's a plus for your program. We hope we

Red Raider Day is May 1

A golf scramble and dinner with Texas Tech coaches will highlight Red Raider Day in Hereford, which has been set for May 1.

James Dickey, coach of the Tech men's basketball team, is one of several coaches who plan to attend, according to Dave Hopper, chairman of the local Red Raider committee.

Dickey is fresh off an NCAA tournament run that saw the Red Raiders stun perennial power North Carolina and reach the Sweet 16. Georgetown finally ended Tech's season with a record of 30-2 - the best ever at Tech.

Football coach Spike Dykes and women's basketball coach Marsha Sharp may attend, Hopper said, but haven't been able to commit yet.

Tech officials who will attend, according to Hopper, include: Athletic Director Bob Bockrath; women's basketball assistant Linden Weese; former basketball coach and current assistant AD Gerald Myers; and senior assistant AD Steve Locke. In addition, numerous assistant football coaches will be there.

The evening at Hereford Country Club will begin with a social hour at 5:30 p.m. Dinner will be served at 6:30. Non-golfers are welcome to go just to the social hour and dinner for a fee of $15.

The golf scramble will begin at 1:30 p.m. that day at Pitman Municipal Golf Course, with sign-in starting at 1 p.m. Tech officials will be split up and placed into groups with local golfers.

The fee of $45 per golfer covers green fee, cart rental, social hour and dinner. The entry deadline for the scramble is April 29. Telephone entries to Dave Kaesheimer at the Pitman Pro Shop at 363-7139, or mail entries to: Dave Hopper; Box 150; Hereford, Texas 79045.

Local organizers of the event include Hopper, John Sherrod, Tom LeGate, Cal Mitts and Speedy Nieman.

Heat, Kings grab last playoff spots

By The Associated Press
Miami and Sacramento are in the NBA playoffs. Charlotte and Golden State are out.

Pat Riley's Heat clinched the final postseason berth in the Eastern Conference Friday night with a 106-100 victory over Milwaukee.

Charlotte, which defeated the New York Knicks 115-108, can tie Miami for eighth place in the East if the Hornets win their last game and the Heat lose theirs. But it really doesn't matter since Miami holds the tiebreaker advantage with a better conference record.

Riley, who never missed the playoffs in 13 previous seasons as an NBA head coach, kept his streak alive in his first season with the Heat.

"It was important for this franchise to take that step forward," he said.

Sacramento didn't play Friday night, but the Kings made the playoffs for the first time in a decade when Golden State lost to Portland 95-87.

Rangers rip O's, 26-7

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - How strange was it? Reserve infielder Manny Alexander pitched for the Baltimore Orioles. And light-hitting Texas Rangers shortstop Kevin Elster blasted one of those fat pitches for his first career grand slam.

The Rangers scored 16 runs in the eighth inning Friday night - one short of the major league record - and pounded six Orioles pitchers in a 26-7 rout.

"It was the strangest game of my life," Elster said.

The Rangers, off to their fastest home start and second-best overall start in club history, followed the booming bats of Juan Gonzalez, Dean Palmer, Will Clark and Elster to their most lopsided victory ever.

In the eighth, the Rangers sent 19 batters to the plate, collecting eight walks, eight hits, Elster's grand slam and a two-run blast from Palmer. The Orioles used three pitchers in the inning, including Alexander. Alexander, the first non-pitcher to take the mound for the Orioles since Jeff Tackett in 1993, issued three walks with the bases loaded, gave up five runs in two-thirds of an inning and has an ERA of 67.50.

The modern major league record for runs in an inning is 17 by the Boston Red Sox against the Detroit Tigers on June 18, 1953.

The last team to score 26 runs in a game was the Chicago Cubs in a 26-7 win at Colorado last Aug. 18. The Chicago White Sox set the modern major league record in a 29-6 victory over the Kansas City A's on April 23, 1955.

In other games, Toronto stopped 9-4, California downed Detroit 4-3, Chicago defeated Oakland 4-3 and Milwaukee beat Kansas City 8-2.

The Warriors' loss allowed the Kings to clinch the eighth spot in the Western Conference and reach the postseason for the first time since their inaugural season in Sacramento in 1985-86.

The Warriors had won five of seven going into the Portland game, but they needed to win their last two to have a chance at the playoffs.

Elsewhere, it was Toronto 107, Washington 103; Boston 112, New Jersey 106; Orlando 112, Philadelphia 92; Vancouver 92, Denver 78; Phoenix 123, Dallas 103; and Seattle 94, Minnesota 86.

Astros rout Reds, 13-5

HOUSTON (AP) - The Cincinnati Reds might have been better off if Greg Swindell hadn't got hurt.

The Reds roughed up Swindell for three runs in the first inning before he strained his left groin in the second inning, and Doug Brocail came on to pitch 5 1-3 strong innings, leading the Houston Astros to a 13-5 victory Friday night.

Sean Berry drove in five runs, and Jeff Bagwell and Derek Bell had three RBIs apiece for the Astros, who equaled a season-high with 18 hits.

But Brocail's response to his sudden call was the turning point in the game.

"It (injury) could have happened for a reason," Swindell said. "We scored 28 points and the Heat tied a club record with their 42nd victory. Tim Hardaway added 17 points for Miami, which beat the Bucks for the 13th straight time. Glenn Robinson led Milwaukee with 28 points.

Suns 123, Mavericks 103
At Phoenix, Kevin Johnson led a balanced effort by the Phoenix starters and the Suns locked up the seventh playoff spot in the West. The Suns got 24 points from Wayman Tisdale, 23 from Michael Finley and 21 each from Wesley Person and Johnson, who also had 19 assists and seven steals. Jason Kidd scored 37 points for Dallas, one shy of his career high.

were down and Doug came in and shut them down. That was the turning point. The hits were important too, but Doug made it happen."

Brocail (1-0) eventually allowed three hits, but he gave up only an infield hit to Hal Morris in the fourth and retired 10 batters in a row until he tired in the seventh. He struck out six and walked one.

The Astros got four more runs and a season-high five hits off reliever Tim Lincecum in the sixth on RBI doubles by Bagwell and Bell, a run-scoring single by Berry and James Mouton's sacrifice fly.

In other National League games, it was: Atlanta 7, San Diego 1; Chicago 10, San Francisco 6; Florida 5, Los Angeles 0; Montreal 2, Pittsburgh 1; St. Louis 1, Philadelphia 0; and Colorado 5, New York 3.

can do good and keep building on it."

The girls' doubles team of Robbins and McWhorter were the runners-up at last year's regional tennis tournament, so they should be seeded high at this year's regionals.

At least, that's the way coach Ed Coplen hopes it works.

"In girls' doubles, we have a real good chance of getting out (to the state tournament), and we should get a seed," Coplen said. "Seeding at regionals is different than seeding at district. Sometimes down there you go by who you've beaten or who you've been beaten by, and sometimes you go on whether you're from the north or the south."

It's not exactly a conspiracy, but most of the coaches from the South Plains and Permian Basins have seen the players from all over their area, and they don't see much of the Panhandle players. Coplen tried to showcase his players at tournaments in Levelland and Fort Stockton, but the Hereford players didn't end up getting to play the key players from the south.

Coplen will go to a meeting of coaches Sunday night, at which the seeds will be determined. The brackets will be drawn up after the seeds are made, so the Hereford players won't know who they'll play until after the meeting.

Matches will be played at the Angelo State University courts next to the football stadium.

Coplen expected two of the top girls' doubles teams to be the Hereford pair and Pitts and Sweet of Levelland. Oops: Coplen learned Thursday that Pitts and Sweet got knocked out of the District 5-4A tournament. Pairs from Sweetwater and Snyder will represent that district, and Robbins and McWhorter beat the Sweetwater girls.

Robbins and McWhorter have been playing together for several years. It paid off last year with a trip to the state tournament, although they lost in the first round.

This year, they won tournaments in Fort Stockton, Plainview, Levelland and Hereford's own Beef Capitol of the World Tournament. The only ones they didn't win were the Amarillo Relays and at Wichita Falls.

All this experience - especially that gained at last year's regionals - should help the Hereford girls.

"It makes you not as nervous," Robbins said. "That's a big part of how you play: whether you're nervous or not. And we're used to big crowds (like there will be in San Angelo), so we'll be able to concentrate on the match."

"What we're really hoping," Coplen said, "is that district will carry over, because they played so well in the finals and semifinals at district."

The girls won the District 1-4A championship, dominating in the last two matches. They won both in straight sets, losing only seven games in the two matches combined.

Lockmill, who went to state last year when paired with Pete Vargas, finished second at district this year with Carr as his partner. Coplen doesn't expect them to be seeded, but he hopes for a good draw.

"They won't be seeded, so what you hope happens when you're not seeded is you get on the same side of the bracket as the No. 3 or No. 4 seeds," Coplen said. "That gives you a better chance to get to the semis. And if good things happen - when you get to regionals, a lot has to do with the luck of the draw."

Spurs' coach not worried about his future

Hill could be gone next season without contract extension

By JERRY BRIGGS

San Antonio Express-News
SAN ANTONIO - Spurs coach Bob Hill cringed at the opera music swirling in an Italian-food restaurant on Broadway one day last week.

It reminded him of his days as a resident of Bologna, Italy, where he grew weary of a neighbor who loved to crank up the classical tunes.
 "He'd play that all night," recalled Hill, who coached Vitrus Knorr in the Italian League for two seasons.

Actually, music from the "Twilight Zone" might have been more appropriate, as the coach dined on a large pizza, reminiscing about his two years with the Spurs and discussed his future with the team.
 In what might come as a surprise to many Spurs fans, circumstances could conspire in the off-season to force the franchise to look for Hill's replacement.

"You never know what's going to happen," said Hill, whose 120-42 record is the best in the NBA during the past two seasons.

Hill will be going into the third and final year of his contract next season. He would welcome the chance to talk about an extension, but has had only brief conversations lately with Gregg Popovich, the team's vice president of basketball operations.

Reports have surfaced that a loss in the first-round of the playoffs could put his job in jeopardy. On the other hand, a strong playoff run could invite other teams to inquire about his availability.

"You always wonder about the future," Hill said. "As I've mentioned, I'd like to stay in San Antonio for a long time. I love it here. I'd like to stay for a long time, if that can be worked out."

Popovich denied a recent report in the Express-News that the team holds an option on the final year of Hill's contract. He also denied that Hill makes an $850,000 annual salary, a figure published originally in a Chicago Sun-Times survey of NBA coaches salaries.

In discussing the terms, Popovich said there were "various provisions" attached to the final year of the coach's contract, but he would not elaborate on them.

"It's not an appropriate time to talk about player or coaches' contracts," Popovich said. "We all have a higher priority right now. All will be dealt with in an appropriate time and in a professional manner."

Praising Hill as having done "a great job with the basketball team," Popovich said he couldn't talk about an extension for the coach until after the playoffs.

"We have much bigger fish to fry than any one individual contract," Popovich said. "Everyone we brought in has done quality work. Now we have to go out and prove it again. If you don't prove it in the playoffs, everything else goes for naught."

Hill, who has guided the team to a 58-22 record so far this season, said he isn't worried about the tone of Popovich's comments.

"That's where our focus is," the coach said. "That's exactly right. What Pop said is the way I feel. Does it worry me? No, not at all."
 Some reports in the NBA indicate that Hill may be dissatisfied with the lack of attention to his desire for an extension. Pressed on the issue, Hill chose his words carefully.

"When the season is over, if they're interested in extending me, I'm sure it'll happen. I don't even think about that right now. I have a contract," he said. "I'm not the kind to go in begging for money."

Popovich said Hill's record speaks for itself. In his only playoff coaching experience in San Antonio, the Spurs reached the Western Conference finals last season before losing 4-2 to the Houston Rockets.

"Bob Hill has done a great job with the basketball team," Popovich said. "His record shows that. In a lot of ways, he's just what the doctor ordered for this franchise."

Popovich said the players have responded to the coach's style.
 "They are well-prepared," said Popovich. "They understand about chemistry and attitude. I'd have to say he's done an excellent job."

Last season, the Spurs posted the best record in the NBA at 62-20. Hill waged a battle with the flamboyant Dennis Rodman, whose rebellion against team rules was an almost constant irritant.

Rodman, the NBA's leading rebounder, was dealt to the Chicago Bulls in the off-season for reserve center Will Perdue. Hill scoffed at talk that the Spurs may have "traded the NBA title" to Chicago to get rid of a player they couldn't tame.

"You've got to be kidding me," Hill said. "Chicago won three titles in a row without Dennis. San Antonio didn't win one with him. If Chicago wins it, it will be because of Michael (Jordan) and Scottie (Pippen), with help from Dennis."

Hill said he regrets failing to connect on a personal level with Rodman, who thumbed his nose at team rules even in the playoffs, showing up late for a practice and creating an off-court furor in the Houston series.

"I'll always feel a void that I couldn't quite get to him," Hill said. "I'll always wonder about it. I'll always feel kind of sorry for him, really, and I'll always like him. He never wanted to let anyone like him. It's sad. He was one of the reasons I came here to coach."

Center David Robinson, the centerpiece of the franchise, served as the primary attraction when the Spurs courted Hill off the staff of the Orlando Magic in August 1994.

Last spring, Houston's Hakeem Olajuwon outplayed Robinson badly and led the Rockets to the world title. Hill took criticism for failing to double-team Olajuwon, who averaged 36.3 points to Robinson's 23.8 in the series. He said if the teams meet again, he will employ the same tactics.

"Why would we change now?" Hill asked. "If we make free throws in the first game (at San Antonio), we win the series. We beat them (playing Olajuwon one-on-one) five of six in the regular season. I never agreed that he killed David Robinson. It was the defensive game plan."
 If Hill has any armchair coaching detractors, he has more than enough allies in his own locker room. Spurs players have said they enjoy his easy-going manner and his communication skills.

Charles Smith compared Hill favorably to the Miami Heat's Pat Riley, the highest-paid coach in the league. Smith worked under Riley in New York with the Knicks.

"They're both very demanding and expect the most out of the team and the players," Smith said. "The difference is the way they relate to players and the people around them. Riley's more of a straight-up, serious type. 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Coach Hill is more personable. He will joke with you and communicate with you."

Smith also played under Larry Brown in Los Angeles with the Clippers and, most recently, Don Nelson with the Knicks. He expressed surprise that Hill picked him up at the airport on the day after the All-Star weekend trade, and drove him around town.

"He took me around and showed me the area, where people lived," Smith said. "He asked me what my thoughts were. The relationship I have with coach Hill, I haven't had with any coach in the league. To me, it's very refreshing."

Smith said he wouldn't begrudge the coach for jumping at an offer from another team this summer.

"You can't be disappointed with anyone for taking a more lucrative offer," Smith said. "This is a business. You have to do what's best for your family."

Forward Sean Elliott dismissed talk that the team might have to make the transition to another coach next season. He agreed that another team might take an interest in Hill.

"Yeah," Elliott said, "but he'll stay here."
 The All-Star forward said it would be a mistake to let Hill go.

"He's the winningest coach in the history of the franchise," Elliott said. "You have to bring him back."

Hill said he doesn't think about the franchise's much-publicized financial dilemma.

He said he can't worry himself about the projected $3 million deficit the team will face at the end of the regular season, how far the team has to advance in the playoffs for the team to break even, or whether the owners will think about moving the franchise this summer.

"You can't worry about it," he said. "You just have to use the experience we have and try to win a championship. As a coach, you try and create a distraction-free environment. It doesn't put any more pressure on me. Nobody can put any more pressure on me than I do on myself. All you can do is your best."

Hill said that he - like any coach - would be interested if another team wanted to hire him for more money than he is making now. The job with the New York Knicks is open, and several others could open up in time.

"I wouldn't leave just for the money," Hill said. "To be honest, some of these coaches' salaries are kind of ridiculous. Some, like Pat Riley, who has won some championships, deserve to be paid what they are getting. Other guys making millions, I don't understand. If someone offered me a million, I'd have to think about it."
 "But the way it is, you're not getting paid for your worth. You're getting paid for your name and what your agent would be able to negotiate for you."

Hill emphasized that he didn't bring up the subject of his contract. He was merely answering reporters' questions. He said he has confidence that he will be treated fairly.

"If your employers feel you deserve a raise, then it's their responsibility," he said. "I never go into Gregg's office complaining about my salary or about my players. You just hope you are treated with a high level of professionalism. I think Pop will do that."

Some Mayan Indians played a game that resembled basketball around A.D. 700 to 900. The object of the game was to hit a rubber ball through a hoop with their elbows or hips. Mayan ball players wore thigh guards and a thick, protective belt when playing.

Alvin Crowder, Washington Senator pitcher, worked 327 innings in 1933 without hitting a batter, setting a record.

Lou Gehrig, the famous "Iron Man" of the Yankees, hit a record 23 grand slams during his career.

Ed Marinaro, now a Hollywood actor, was second in the Heisman Award voting in 1971.

Dissident senator holding up Fed nomination

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan is sometimes referred to as the second-most powerful person in the nation.
The agency he heads sets short-term interest rates and thus influences the price of the goods and services Americans buy and the pace of economic growth and job creation.
The 70-year-old Republican economist, whose mumbled words can send financial markets around the world soaring or plunging, didn't look so powerful on Thursday.
A single Democratic senator - Tom

Harkin of Iowa - is holding up President Clinton's nomination of Greenspan to a third four-year term. GOP leaders had wanted to confirm Greenspan by unanimous consent, without debate, late in March.
Harkin, who thinks the Fed is unnecessarily dampening growth, wants a full debate and a recorded vote. Other Democrats share his view, but Harkin is the one exercising the traditional prerogative of any senator to delay a nomination.
So, Greenspan trekked from the marble-floored halls of the Federal Reserve to Harkin's office for a private meeting known as a "courtesy call."

Harkin wasn't ready for him. So Greenspan sat slumped on a sofa in a small anteroom for more than 10 minutes, like a goldfish in a glass bowl. He watched television, keeping his back to the anteroom's glass doors, as reporters peered in and photographers snapped pictures.
Finally, Harkin's aides ushered him in. After about 80 minutes, Greenspan emerged to thread the gantlet of journalists, who had been told about the meeting by Harkin's aides.
"How'd the meeting go?" reporters asked.
Greenspan paused, looked at Harkin, and said, "The senator's in charge."

Democratic Sens. Byron Dorgan of North Dakota, Harry Reid of Nevada and Paul Wellstone of Minnesota also participated. They said they complained about what they view as the central bank's slow-growth monetary policy and questioned Greenspan about a General Accounting Office report that the Fed is inadequately controlling its own finances.
The four said they weren't satisfied with Greenspan's answers and wanted to meet again.
"Why can't we have more economic growth, which would generate more opportunities for people in this country?" Wellstone asked. "I think he was respectful (but) I don't feel as if those questions were answered today."

The Senate Banking Committee on March 27 unanimously endorsed Greenspan, along with two other nominees to the Fed's seven-member board - White House budget director Alice Rivlin and St. Louis economist Laurence Meyer.
The chairman of the committee, Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., said Thursday he "would be delighted" to ask GOP leaders to set aside time for debate and a recorded vote.

The No. 2 Republican in the Senate, Minority Whip Trent Lott of Mississippi, said it was up to Clinton to lean on the Democratic senators.
"I wouldn't give them anything. If they want to hold up their president's nominee because they don't get a whole afternoon of demagoguery, we're not going to play along," Lott said.
Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said there is no "intention to extend debate for an unnecessarily long period of time" and he expects Greenspan to be confirmed overwhelmingly.

DEATH ROW

wife's death, Jack Koslow has not talked publicly about his ordeal. He maintained that silence when asked for a comment.
By all accounts, the Dillinghams worked hard to raise their son right.
"They were very nice. They took care of Jeff. They loved him. They did what any parent would do for their child," said Alicia Gonzalez, a friend and neighbor when the Dillinghams lived in a white brick home at the corner of Bridle Avenue and Silver Creek Road in White Settlement.
Ray and Toni Dillingham nurtured Jeffrey. They played with him, offered advice and condolences when needed and took him nearly everywhere they went - to Dad's softball games, to Grandma's place in Wisconsin, to Disneyland.
"She was real proud of him," said Mary Flores, another friend and former neighbor of Toni Dillingham. "She was always talking about how well Jeffrey was doing."
The Dillinghams' work as parents appeared to be paying off. Jeffrey Dillingham was becoming a nice young man.
"He was a model student, one of those I could always depend on to do right," said Debra Pemberton, a home economics teacher at White Settlement's C.F. Brewer High School who taught Dillingham. "He was never, ever in trouble for anything."
At Brewer, Dillingham helped a schoolmate who had fallen on bad times. And when a close friend committed suicide in 1991, Pemberton drove a distraught and tearful Dillingham to the funeral home.
On the way, Dillingham asked his teacher: Why would somebody so young, with so much ahead of him, take his life - any life?
A year later, people would ask the same question of Jeffrey Dillingham.
In the early morning of March 12, 1992, Dillingham stood at the back door of the Koslow home, preparing to do what no one thought he could do: kill.
By his side was Salter. Down the road, at her home, was Kristi Koslow, waiting for word on the outcome of their get-rich-quick plan.
Dillingham kicked open the door, went upstairs and kicked open a bedroom door. Caren Koslow shuddered in bed; her husband, Jack, bolted for a closet.

Dillingham beat both victims with the metal tool. Salter slashed their throats. The intruders' gun went off, harming no one, and they fled.
Caren Koslow, 40, died in her bedroom. Jack Koslow, 49, was severely beaten and unconscious. But he came to and called for help.
On that night, 35 miles away, Ray and Toni Dillingham were at their new country home near Aledo. Life, at that moment, seemed good.
But nearly two weeks later, on the morning of March 25, 1992, Ray Dillingham awakened to find that his son had not returned home from his late-night job at a Blockbuster Video in Arlington.
Dillingham thought that his son had simply stayed over at a friend's. Instead, the teen-ager was in police custody.
Dillingham, an engineer at Lockheed Martin Tactical Aircraft Systems, spent his lunch break that day getting a prescription filled for his son, who had a stomach ailment. He learned of the arrest from co-workers, who met him as he returned to work.
"I'm walking in and they tell me, 'Your son's been arrested.' I said, 'What are you talking about?' They said, 'Your son's been arrested in the Koslow thing.' I said, 'What Koslow thing?'" Stunned, Dillingham walked back to his office, fumbled through the phone book for the number of a lawyer - any lawyer - and placed the call. After explaining the situation, Dillingham said, one of the first questions the attorney asked was, "Do you have a lot of money?" Dillingham said he did not, and the attorney rejected the case.
Then he thought of his wife, Toni, a saleswoman for Stanley Home Products, who was supposed to be in Mineral Wells for a sales meeting.
Dillingham said he rushed home to find his wife's schedule for the day and encountered a reporter. "The Star-Telegram is sitting here on my front porch. I'm trying to get in the house and he's asking all of these questions ...

"I finally told him I didn't want to talk to him, that I had to go find my wife."
He found her in Mineral Wells, about to walk into an important meeting, unaware of her son's arrest.
She told her husband that she needed to keep her appointment, but he said: "No, you don't. You need to talk to me."
They went to a McDonald's, drank coffee and talked. Then they drove home, by back roads, to duck the media.
That Saturday, Ray and Toni Dillingham found themselves standing in the lobby of the Tarrant County Jail, waiting for what seemed like hours to see their son. When they reached the front of the line, they were turned away; their visitor's pass had not been completely processed.
The next day, the Dillinghams got in to see their son. "I think we just said, 'Are you OK? We love you.' That kind of stuff," Toni Dillingham recalled.
They did not talk about the Koslow case.
"It was tough," Ray Dillingham said of the meeting.
As the couple were leaving the jail, Ray Dillingham became ill. "I almost passed out ... I started shaking so bad," he said. His doctor later told him that his blood pressure had risen to a dangerously high level.
The Dillinghams say all they can do for the time being is pray and wait for the next appeal. Meanwhile, about every two weeks, they drive to Huntsville to visit for two hours with their son - "prisoner 999071" - through a thick glass window.
"We haven't gotten to touch our son in almost three years. That's hard, real hard," Toni Dillingham said. "It's not exactly the life I had planned."
Ray Dillingham said that in a rather awkward moment, sometime after his son's arrest, a friend boasted about his own children and how certain he was that they would never get into serious trouble.
Dillingham said he remembered the day of his son's arrest and told his friend: "Before March 25, 1992, I was just as sure as you are."

Big Brothers/Big Sisters volunteer to give their time to help children who are in need

During the week beginning Sunday, special tribute will be given nationwide to men and women who give their time in the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program.

Alva Lee Peeler, executive director said the Hereford organization has not planned a special event in observance of the week but attention is being focused on recruiting volunteer men and women. Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America is introducing a new logo this year to help in recruiting volunteers.

BIG BROTHERS BIG SISTERS OF AMERICA

The logo combines elements of the federation: the uplifting friendship between an adult and a child, the letterform "B" which is common to all BB/BS agencies, and the heart, symbolizing the commitment and friendship volunteers give to children.

Forty-five youngsters are served here. Big Brothers and Big Sisters give their time, Peeler said, because "they want to help a child in need."

A recent study showed that BB/BS makes a "positive impact" on the life of a child. Young persons who spend time with their volunteer mentors are less likely to become involved in drugs and alcohol.

"These role models help youth reach their highest potential and often, for the first time, see themselves as having happy, successful futures," Peeler said.

Persons interested in becoming involved in Big Brothers/Big Sisters may call Peeler at 364-6171, for information.

Hereford Chamber Singers present annual spring concert this Sunday

"With Our Voices Praising God," the annual spring concert of the Hereford Chamber Singers, will be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday in St. Thomas Episcopal Church. Admission is by donation.

The program will feature a variety of religious numbers by the choir as a whole and ones by various individuals and ensembles from the group.

Jan Walsler serves as the director, and Linda Gilbert is the piano accompanist. Suzan Schriber is the current president of the board.

The group is composed of adults from various walks of life who love to sing and share their talents. This is the 22nd season for the Chamber Singers to share its musical abilities with the people of the community.

Selections to be performed by the choir include Pergolesi's "Glory to the Father," Mendelssohn's "Fanfare to Emmanuel," Titcomb's "Behold Now, Praise the Lord," Handel's "Praise the Lord," Butler's "With our Voices Praising God," Alexander's "This Day," Fetteke's "It is Well With My Soul," and Sjolund's "Kumbaya."

Among the individuals who will perform are Linda Gilbert and Jan Walsler, two piano duet; Duffy McBrayer and Amy Gilliland, vocal duet; Kay Claypool, vocal solo; Joan Bookout, Trow Mims, Courtney Brooke, and Bobby and Bera Boyd, mixed vocal ensemble; and Scott Shaw, violin solo.

Special guest singers with the group during this concert will be two talented teenagers, Scott Shaw and Craig Ames, senior and sophomore respectively at Hereford High School.

Scott is the son of Chamber Singers' charter member, Susan Shaw and Sid Shaw. Craig is the son of Robbie Hudgens, former Chamber Singer, and Lloyd Ames.

Voices praising God

Special guest singers Scott Shaw, left, and Craig Ames, senior and sophomore respectively at Hereford High School, will perform with the Hereford Chamber Singers during the annual spring concert, "With Our Voices Praising God," at 3 p.m. Sunday in St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

Deaf Smith County selected by Children's Trust Fund for grants

Deaf Smith County has been targeted to receive initial first year grants of up to $50,000 per recipient for the prevention of child abuse and neglect.

"It is our hope that Deaf Smith County will have a number of grant applications, as more than one program can be funded per county," said Janis Robinson, Deaf Smith County Children's Trust Fund Family PRIDE Council chairperson.

"It is an excellent opportunity to get state monies to Deaf Smith County to strengthen family life and prevent child abuse and neglect," said Robinson.

Deaf Smith County has been selected by the Children's Trust Fund of Texas Council (CTF) to continue its funding initiative, family PRIDE.

Only 20 counties in the state were targeted to be eligible for new CTF funding for the fiscal year starting Sept. 1, 1996. The funding is for parenting and child education projects for the prevention of child abuse and neglect.

Requests for proposals were released by CTF on April 1. Any legally constituted entity that has been in existence for at least two years (other than a state agency) may apply for a grant. To request an RFP grant packet, call 512-370-9566.

The CTF Family PRIDE Council of Deaf Smith County will hold a Respondent's Conference on Monday at 7 p.m. in San Jose Community Center in Hereford. The meeting with the community will bring together agencies and organizations interested in submitting proposals. An Austin CTF representative will be available to answer questions.

The deadline for submission of the grant applications is May 31. Grant recipients will be eligible to apply for renewals for an additional two years.

If you have additional questions, please call the Children's Trust Fund at 512-458-1281.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Sorrow looks back. Worry looks around. Faith looks up. Monday is a student holiday and a Staff Development day for faculty members. HJH faculty will meet in the library for this meeting.

Seventh and eighth grade bands will be in contest on Thursday. They have been practicing hard and we expect, as usual, a good performance.

The Industrial Technology contest will be the 24th through the 27th. All participants will not miss all of this time as judging will be at various times. Parents, check with your student about judging times and also plan to take time to go to Amarillo to view these fine projects.

Local track meets will be April 27 and May 4. HJH will provide a concession stand for each of these meets and the money earned will be used towards the Wonderland trip in May.

HJH will be displaying students' work in the vestibule of the HISD Administration Building for the month of May. We invite you to visit during this time to view the students' work. In fact, it would be interesting for you to view the work of students from the various buildings each month.

HJH had the second most cost effective school for the last calendar year with an energy cost of .3585 per square foot, according to David Morris in his energy report to the school board.

Thanks to Johnny and Dee Ann Trotter for sponsoring Eddie's trip to the History Day activities in Austin this weekend. Kevin Hoffman made the trip with Eddie. We will report on this trip next week. Eddie will be presenting his project to the school board in May. I was unable to attend due to a set-back in Don's health situation.

Again, we cherish your prayers and concerns during this latest episode with Don's health. He is back in the hospital, but we expect him to be home within the next week to ten days.

Don't be afraid of pressure. Remember that pressure is what turns a lump of coal into a diamond.

Military Muster

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Christopher E. Wear, son of John R. Wear of Hereford, has successfully completed the established personnel qualification standards and has demonstrated the requisite professional skills and competence while serving on the USS Willamette and has qualified as an Enlisted Surface Warfare Specialist and is authorized to wear the Enlisted Surface Warfare Specialist breast insignia.

Wear has also been officially nominated as a candidate for the next class entering the United States Naval Academy.

Marine Pfc. Genaro Ramirez, son of Maria L. Ramirez of Hereford, recently graduated from the Marine Corps Basic Combat Engineer Course at Marine Corps Base Camp Lejeune, N.C.

During the five-week course, Ramirez learned the fundamentals of engineering support for combat units, including the procedures for building and repairing bridges, roads and field fortifications.

Ramirez will accompany Marine infantry forces to build roads, set up camp and fortify the living areas.

The 1995 graduate of Hereford High School joined the Marine Corps in July 1995.

Son of local residents plans to wed in June

Jobie Lynn Brown of Amarillo and Jason Craig Monroe of Hereford plan to be married June 1 in the Country Bed and Breakfast in Canyon.

Hereford and the late Jim Monroe. Miss Brown graduated from Randall High School in Amarillo in 1993 and attended Sul Ross State University in Alpine. She is currently employed by Champion Feeders.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Spann of Amarillo and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Brown of Dumas.

Brown also graduated from Randall High School in 1993. He attended Sul Ross University and West Texas A&M in Canyon. He is employed by Circle Three Feedyard.

Thank You

I wish to thank all of my friends, neighbors, and family who participated in my big surprise birthday reception. It was a very special occasion and a great surprise for me. Thanks for all of the cards, telephone calls, and the many loving thoughts and good wishes. You really made it a very special day for me.

Amarillo Little Theatre to present story of 'Phantom'

The Amarillo Little Theatre will present Phantom, the sensational version of Gaston Leroux' "The Phantom Of The Opera" beginning May 2.

The Box Office is open to ALT members and will open to the general public on Monday.

Performance dates are May 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 11, 16, 17, 18 at 8 p.m. and Sundays, May 5 and 12 at 2:30 p.m. "Phantom" has been created by Maury Yeston and Arthur Kopit who have previously collaborated on several Broadway successes.

Since the publishing of Gaston Leroux's Gothic novel of terror at the Paris Opera House in 1911, readers and audiences have been irresistibly charmed.

The phantom has intrigued film makers since the days of silent films.

***
To love oneself is the beginning of a lifelong romance.
—Oscar Wilde

***
In nature there is nothing melancholy.
—Samuel Taylor Coleridge and its success on stage continues to draw extraordinary critical and popular acclaim.

The story remains the same: the phantom, born hideously deformed, stalks the Paris Opera House, bringing death to those who cross him and falling in love with the beautiful, young soprano.

The version created by Kopit and Yeston changes the story a little, making the phantom a man who, although horribly misshapen from birth on the outside, has a beautiful inside and possesses a soul with incredible depth and emotion.

Phantom is the romantic beauty-and-the-beast story of this deformed musical genius who haunts the catacombs of the Paris Opera House, and his hopeless, obsessive passion for the innocent, angelic soprano, Christine.

For more information about the production or the Amarillo Little Theatre you may contact Amy Gililland at 364-3717.

Other productions coming to the ALT in the 1996-97 season are "Once On This Island", "Inspecting Carol", "Shadowlands", and "Oliver".

Helm, Phibbs exchange vows

Mary Beth Helm and Michael Andrew Phibbs were united in marriage Saturday in the Holy Family Cathedral in Tulsa, Okla.

The bride is the daughter of Walter Helm of Tulsa. The bridegroom, formerly of Hereford, is the son of Glen and Charlene Phibbs of Tulsa.

Matron of honor was Lisa Collier, sister of the bride. Best man was Patrick Phibbs, brother of the groom. Bridesmaids were Janet Burden, Madeline Smith and Julie Holt.

Serving as groomsmen were John

Phibbs, Glen Kevin Phibbs and Gideon Ellinger.

Jessica Grissom, niece of the bride and daughter of Linda Grissom, served as flower girl.

Ring bearer was Tyler Phibbs, son of Glen Kevin and Dee Dee Phibbs.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a soft, white gown with a beaded bodice and scalloped neck line featuring an organza skirt and train. She wore white cotton gloves with beaded wrists and a beaded head piece with a tulle veil.

She carried a bouquet of pink and white roses, white lilies and English ivy.

Bridal attendants wore black, sleeveless floor length dresses with a white chiffon drape at the neck and carried hand tied roses.

The couple was honored with a reception and dance at Dance Magic following the ceremony.

Following a wedding trip to Cancun the couple will be at home in Tulsa.

The bride will open her own portrait studio on May 1.

The groom, a 1988 graduate of Hereford High School, is soon to be a regional director with Excel Telecommunications.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: That candid letter from the 70-year-old woman who had been a widow for seven years was fascinating. She said she'd had 44 years of a sexually satisfying marriage, and within a year of her husband's death, she'd enjoyed a brief affair with a much older married man. If the man was "much older," he must have been pretty close to 80.

Can you find out what that gentleman ate or drank (or did) that made him such a Romeo? Most men his age can barely remember what a jolly good romp in the sack is like, much less be a participant.

My husband is 50 years old and dead as a doornail -- if you catch my drift. I thought for a while it was my fault that he wasn't interested. I tried a black lace nightie and a candlelit bubble bath. Nothing worked. Finally, I gave up.

I have read that Chinese herbs can do wonders for a sluggish libido. Is this true? If so, I'm going to buy some. -- Woodstock, Ont.

Dear Woodstock: I know of no sure-fire remedy for "a sluggish libido." It takes different strokes for different folks. Bear in mind the principal erogenous zone in the human animal is the brain.

Much to my surprise, many women wrote to express an interest in meeting this Romeo. Others wanted to get rid of the Romeo they already had. Keep reading for more on the subject.

Dear Ann Landers: That 70-year-old widow who was "sex-starved" after ending her affair with a married man is welcome to cavort with my husband until she finds one of her own.

"Ralph" married me knowing I didn't care much for sex. I did have quite a bit of money, however, and that, undoubtedly, is what attracted him to this cold tomato, as he calls me.

We have an understanding. He can do as he pleases, but he is not to fool around with any of my friends, neighbors or family members.

We live in Baton Rouge, La. Ralph is about that widow's age. Any way of putting Ralph in touch with her? Is she by any chance nearby? My husband has money. Will travel. Please don't print my name or initials. Just sign me -- Broad-Minded Wife

Dear Broad-Minded Wife: He'd have to travel quite a distance. The woman lives in Hawaii. But I'm sorry, dear, this isn't that kind of a column. You didn't ask for advice, so I won't offer any, which is just as well. Couples in their 70s are rarely interested in changing their bedroom behavior.

Dear Ann Landers: I realize you aren't running a match-making service, but my psychic says I'm due for a huge romance and the vibes were strong when I read the letter from that widow. Please rush that man's name, address and phone number. -- Tan.my in Temple, Texas

Dear Tammy: Sorry. No can do.

Dear Ann Landers: That 70-year-old widow had an affair with a man who said he loved his wife but was willing to risk everything for a chance to experience what he had not known for several years. She said all he needed was "a little help" to get back that wonderful gift of sex.

How generous of the widow to offer that married man "a little help." It's kind-hearted wenches like her who break up marriages of long standing. Why didn't you tell her off? -- Detroit

Dear D.: You did -- and so did several hundred others who wrote to clobber her. Yours was the most printable.

What's the truth about pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? "The Lowdown on Dope" has up-to-the-minute information on drugs. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.55.)

Deputy will visit Lodge

Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 met Tuesday evening with 13 members present for a salad supper.

The business meeting opened with the presentation of the flag, Pledge of Allegiance and singing of the National Anthem.

Noble grand Anna Conklin presided as reports were made of 10 visits to the sick, 27 cheer cards, 10 dishes of food and one flower delivered.

District Three deputy president June Green from Muleshoe will be welcomed on an official visit May 14.

Others attending were Sadie Shaw, Leona Sowell, Irene Merritt, Ben Conklin, Tony Irlbeck, Dorothy Lundry, Lucille Lindeman, Rosalie Northcutt, Nelma Sowell, Peggy Lemons, Jessie Matthews and Susie Curtisinger.

Red Cross Update

Special thanks to the Senior Citizens, Margie Daniels and the volunteers for their interest in disaster preparedness.

We have many brochures available at the office. Emergency Preparedness checklist is one of the disaster preparedness brochures available free of charge. This checklist reminds you to discuss what to do about power outages and has a list of items needed for a disaster supplies kit.

Those items would make life a lot easier if we have another outage. The Red Cross is ready to open shelters and serve meals if the emergency is severe. Call or come by to pick up materials on disaster preparedness.

Special thanks to Ruth King, Nell Culpepper, Sally Walker and Dale Henson for their help with activities this week.

HRMC will celebrate week for volunteers

The Hereford Regional Medical Center will celebrate National Volunteer Week for its hospital volunteers.

Volunteers perform a variety of functions at the hospital, Jim Robinson, hospital administrator, said.

"They run the gift shop, assist with guest services, and help with special business office activities and community mailings. Their friendly willingness and assistance to our patients and their families, and their upbeat, positive attitudes are their biggest contribution to the hospital," Robinson said.

"Our volunteers also make a significant financial contribution to the Hospital through monies collected from a very progressive fund raising program," Robinson added. "Their Fall project assisted in the re-furnishing of the Obstetrics area of the Hospital, with the acquisition of new furniture, valued at $8,800."

Nine sleeping recliners for each of the OB rooms were purchased along with two new straight back chairs for the Labor and Delivery Rooms.

The HRMC Auxiliary is open to all adults. Men and women of all ages volunteer their time.

Many of the volunteers have retired from business or teaching, and want to find new ways of making a difference.

"Our volunteers are very important members of the health care team at Hereford Regional Medical Center. We are all very appreciative of their generous time and talent," Robinson said.

Granddaughter of Hereford residents weds in Bastrop

MRS. MATTHEW CHRISTOPHER PHILLIPS
...nee Shannon Marie Keil

Shannon Marie Keil and Matthew Christopher Phillips were united in holy matrimony Feb. 17 in an evening ceremony in the First United Methodist Church in Bastrop.

Reverend Robert Herranga officiated during the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth J. Keil of Bastrop and she is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Seed of Hereford and Mrs. Julia Keil of Bastrop.

The groom is the son of Ms. Jane Phillips of Bastrop and Mr. and Mrs. Todd Phillips of Bastrop. He is the grandson of Mrs. Marjean Phillips of Tyler and Mr. Clem Christianson of Austin.

Tamra Deas, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Peggy Keil and Christie Macy were maids of honor. Kristen Horton, Amanda Meginn-nis, Catrina Pribilski and Jamianne Keil were bridesmaids.

Ruston Phillips, brother of the groom, served as best man and groomsmen were Chris Deas, Charles Keil, Chris Bulak, Rick Rudolphi, James Goertz and Justin Love.

Kori Deas, niece of the bride, was flower girls and Jaren Keil, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

A reception followed at the Tahitian Village Inn and Racquet Club.

The bride graduated from Bastrop High School. She is a 1995 graduate of the Art Institute of Houston and is pursuing a career in graphic design.

The groom is also a graduate of Bastrop High and is employed with LSM International of Houston as production supervisor.

Following a honeymoon in Cancun, the couple will reside in Houston.

Volunteer staff at pregnancy center hears 'Aim for Success' program

The Problem Pregnancy Center staff of volunteers met April 15 in St. Anthony's Antonian Room.

Schumacher to Bernice Orel, Denise Knight, Annette Albracht, Michelle Marnell, Charlotte Wilburn, Judy Brisendine, Hendershot and guest Detten, Sherri Hund, Lori Jones, Emily Langford.

The non-profit, educational facility has been operating since 1985 and continues to provide free services to Hereford and the surrounding communities.

"The center continues to be the only organization in Hereford that promotes respect for human life for the born and unborn, provides positive, life affirming alternatives to abortion and presents sexual abstinence before marriage as a means to fulfilling life's dreams and goals," said Marlene Hendershot, co-director.

Karen Langford with the Hereford Healthcare Alliance presented the "Aim for Success" program.

This program is challenging Hereford schools, churches, businesses and organizations to return to the concept of sexual abstinence before marriage.

The program is available upon request. Contact Rick Jackson or Langford for more information.

Refreshments were served by Ida

Donating to the Alliance

Karen Langford, center, with the Hereford Healthcare Alliance, receives a donation from the Problem Pregnancy Center director Ida Schumacher, right, and co-director Marlene Hendershot, left. The Alliance continues to work on reducing Hereford's 13.9 percent teen pregnancy rate by promoting sexual abstinence before marriage.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent -- FCE
The American Homeowners Association is encouraging homeowners to lower their cost of home ownership as much as $200 to $2,000 a year with a few financial management exercises.

Check your property tax appraisal. Property values have declined in many areas over the past few years. The National Taxpayers Union estimates that as many as 60 percent of home owners are over assessed for property taxes.

Ever property owner can appeal to the local assessor, yet fewer than two percent ever do. Making an appeal doesn't have to be a confrontation. What you need are facts about comparable sales in your neighborhood or area of the county.

Local Realtors have market information about homes and property that sold during the past three to twelve months. Even if property values have not declined, it may be worth checking the tax assessor's records about your property. Make sure the number of rooms, total square footage and the size of your lot are accurately recorded. Mistakes can be made unintentionally when entered into tax records.

One sure way to lower housing costs is to accelerate your mortgage every two weeks. You will be making 26 payments, equal to 13 monthly payments rather than 12 monthly payments. If that option is not open to you, divide your monthly mortgage payment by 12. Paying this amount as an extra principal payment each month will be the same as making the bi-weekly payments, and will help you pay off a 30-year mortgage in between 18 and 22 years.

If the extra months principal payment each year is too stiff for your budget, prepay a set amount you can afford. Just $25 a month paid on a 30-year, 8 percent fixed-rate mortgage could save you over $23,000 over the life of the loan. Prepaying $100 a month would save almost $62,500 in interest while making your home debt free 10 years quicker.

Shop for the best homeowners' policy by calling the Texas Department of Insurance (800) 252-3439 for benchmark rates for your area of the state. The State Board of Insurance has divided Texas into 23 rating territories that reflect differences in geographic areas that affect loss rates from weather conditions and other occurrences. Each territory has a benchmark rate and a flexibility band.

The Texas Dept. of Insurance keeps data on the percentage of rates in each region that are above and below the benchmark. This voice-mail service lets you have rate information for your region mailed to you that helps you locate companies that charge rates below the benchmark.

When your equity in your home reaches 20 percent of your mortgage loan, you are eligible to drop the private mortgage insurance that was likely required when you began the mortgage.

To know if your equity is 20 percent of the mortgage, first work with local Realtors to find out the current market value of your home. Subtract the principal you still owe on your mortgage. The answer is your equity. If it is 20 percent or more of your original mortgage, write to your lender and provide the information with your request to drop the private mortgage insurance immediately. Private mortgage insurance may be from $250 to $560 a year. If you can drop it, your escrow payment should be lowered.

This is money you can now pay into an interest-earning savings account each month, and you are on your way to harvesting more money.

Those are actual jobs the two stars endured on their climb to celebrity. Ellen DeGeneres, Brett Butler and Sean Connery also share the worst jobs they ever had in the May issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

Pitt dropped out of college with dreams of becoming a rock star. "Instead, I wound up in a giant chicken costume, making clucking sounds, trying to lure customers" into a fast-food chicken restaurant.

Redford said he was fired from one of his first jobs as a supermarket bagger "because I couldn't stuff groceries into a bag."

DeGeneres once worked as an oyster shucker, and Connery briefly polished coffins for a living. Butler was an insult-hurling waitress.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Do you have trouble with paint building up in the groove at the top of the paint can when you are painting?

Take a piece of aluminum foil about 2 inches wide and long enough to wrap around the top of the can with an inch of the foil above the top, then turn the extra foil toward the inside of the can and crease it down.

When you are finished painting, peel off the foil and the groove is free of paint so the lid fits fine again. — Art Glidden, Brookfield, N.H.

PET PALS

Dear Heloise: I have a crazy, cute, affectionate, 1-year-old cat named Patches. She loves to cozy up to me while I'm watching TV. She actually reaches up with her two front legs and puts them on both sides of my neck while she lies across my chest.

Sometimes it gets a bit much when she keeps nuzzling her head under my chin, so I usually get her off me. She behaves until the phone rings. As soon as I pick it up, sit and start talking, she jumps up again, just like a child wanting attention.

She really is adorable but can be a real pain each time the phone rings. — Sally Bradley, Portland, Ore.

Cats seem to do this, don't they? I wonder how many others behave like this. We'd love to hear from readers with their funny cat (or dog) stories.

SOAP BOTTLE

Dear Heloise: Instead of discarding your empty dish-soap bottle, use it to water your small potted plants. It is quick and easy and keeps your plants from drying out or getting overwatered.

And for those empty coffee cans, decorate them with leftover wallpaper or fabric and pot them with beautiful flowers. — Peggy Pace, Elizabeth, Colo.

SILVERWARE TRAY

Dear Heloise: When we moved to a new home, the squares in the silverware basket of the dishwasher were larger than in my previous dishwasher. The handles of my flatware were always slipping through.

I cut squares of plastic canvas craft material to fit the inside surfaces and sewed them in with dental floss. You would be surprised at how many things can be mended or sewed with dental floss. It is stronger than any ordinary thread you can buy in the store. The unwaxed kind is best to work with. — Elsie Edaburn, Hiawatha, Iowa

By REBECCA WALLS

This week in the week of the Texas Library Associations annual conference Librarians from all over the state and from all kinds of libraries will be meeting in Houston to discover the latest in technology for libraries, talk with book vendors, search for employees and employers, rekindle old friendships and discuss the latest news. It will also be an opportunity to meet some favorite authors and hear them speak and get their autograph.

I enjoy going to this conference because it is a chance for me to rediscover the joy and excitement I have found in library work. For those of you that think all librarians do is check books in and out and read, I invite you to become a library volunteer. Be ready to do anything.

Last week I and three volunteers from the Friends of the Library Board, developed four different programs and presented them to Walcott, St. Anthony's School, community School and Nazarene Christian Academy. We had a great time, and I think the students and teachers even learned something from the presentations.

We did have some exciting times. One happened when the electricity went off right after I put the video in the VCR during my program on the development of the auto at the NCA.

We were able to share our knowledge and interest in quilting, autos, the moon, books and different cultures. St. Anthony students were so excited to learn about the different designs that could be made using only triangles and squares, that before we left the 4th grade had designed their own quilt top using triangles and squares.

I would like to express my appreciation to those three ladies for helping make National Library Week a special time for some of the students and teachers in our community. They are truly a great group to work with, thanks for taking your time and sharing your talents.

The new book list this week begins with Fire Storm by Nevada Barr. Anna Pigeo is a member of the firefighter force battling the "Jack-knife" fire in northern California's Lassen Volcanic National Park. As camp medic and security officer Anna tends the injured and exhausted firefighters. The weather forecast from the National Weather Service predicts a cold front bringing snow that promises to extinguish the fire.

The camp is demobilized and begins to move out of the area when Anna gets word of a firefighter with a broken leg. Anna and the San Juan crew make the rescue but the fire rages out of control and they know they will be caught by the fire storm. Out running the storm is hopeless so the crew prepares to take refuge in their individual silver fire shelters they wryly refer to as shake 'n' bakes. After the fire passes Anna emerges and begins to look for the rest of the crew. Each emerging figure is cause for celebration until a firefighter is found in his shelter with a knife in his back.

As the night closes and the snow begins making evacuation impossible. Anna must care for the wounded as best she can with the few supplies she has and strive to discover the identity of the murderer.

Moonlight Becomes You is another heart thumping suspense by Mary Higgins Clark. Maggie Holloway, an independent young woman, has succeeded in putting personal tragedy behind her and become one of the best fashion photographers in the world. Maggie is invited, as a date, to the reunion of the Moore clan of Newport, Rhode Island. There she is reunited with Nuala Moore the woman who had once been her stepmother.

They quickly reestablish their friendship and Maggie is invited to visit Nuala in Newport. Nuala begins to plan a dinner celebration. When Maggie arrives Nuala is in Newport. Nuala begins to plan a dinner celebration. When Maggie arrives Nuala is dead, an apparent victim of a break-in robbery.

Heartbroke, Maggie is further surprised to learn that only days earlier, Nuala had changed her will leaving the lovely Victorian house to Maggie. The only stipulation is that Maggie occasionally visit an old friend Greta Shipley living in Latham Manor, and elegant retirement home in Newport.

When Maggie comes Mrs. Shipley to the cemetery to visit the grave of Nuala as well as other friends recently lost, Maggie discovers something is wrong. Using her photographs of the grave sites, Maggie realizes Nuala's death was not an accident, but the act of a twisted mind. The killer must have been someone Nuala knew and trusted. Each clue Maggie uncovers brings her closer to the killer and an unimaginable fate.

Diane Chamberlain's new book Reflections is about the small tranquil town of Reflection, Pennsylvania. 20 years ago the tranquility of the small Dutch town was shattered and Rachel Huber was held responsible for that incident. Rachel had left town and only returns now because she has received word that her estranged grandmother is ill and needs help. Rachel is stunned to find the open hostility from those that never forget or forgive.

Rachel will need every friend she can find to protect herself from the gossip and anger her presence excites. A young woman, Lily Jackson, was personally touched by the tragedy and knows the truth of what happened 20 years ago. Lily confuses everyone in town by treating Rachel with kindness and compassion. The minister of the Mennonite church, Michael Stolsz and Rachel were childhood friends and had even served in the Peace Corps together. Michael and Rachel had lost touch but Michael was pleased and excited to renew that friendship. But Rachel's grandmother Helen becomes her strongest advocate, supplying wise counsel and rare strength. Changes begin to take place in the small town as mercy and forgiveness begins to take root in other hearts.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My son, 26, has just been diagnosed with Epstein-Barr. Could you please give me some information on this virus? Does it stay in your system for life? — Mrs. S.

ANSWER: By age 40 the vast majority of us show evidence of exposure to the prevalent and easily contracted Epstein-Barr virus, which causes mononucleosis.

One in five youngsters gets the virus through proximity to infected siblings, friends and classmates. So a good many parents have confronted the familiar mono symptoms: sore throat, swollen lymph nodes and deep fatigue.

With appropriate rest, those mono symptoms last three to four weeks.

An accompanying spleen enlargement and potential liver involvement engender respect for the usually benign illness. Continued spleen enlargement might prompt longer rest and avoidance of contact sports.

Some exposed to the EB virus have slight symptoms or none at all. But a laboratory can find evidence of any exposure, even decades after the fact.

Late youth is another favored age for mono, with outbreaks reported in college dormitory settings.

Persisting uncertainty about the EB virus feeds continued debate about its later activities. Not too long ago, researchers suggested EB as the organism behind chronic fatigue syndrome. Evidence of such a connection was lacking. I still get mail on the subject from concerned readers.

I'm sure we have not written the last chapter in the remarkable EB story.

Despite the virus's relatively benign past, it can be a disaster in someone whose immune system is flagging. For example, some AIDS patients infected with EB develop a particularly rare cancer.

For most of us, an intact immune system easily wards off the EB virus in any of its various incarnations.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My sister recently said to me, "You can't take too many vitamins." I said you can. Who is right? — Mrs. R.H.

ANSWER: You are.

Too much vitamin A can cause headaches, vomiting, loss of hair, bone abnormalities and liver damage. Too much vitamin D can cause a rise in blood calcium and kidney damage. Excessive vitamin B-6 can cause nerve damage and cause you to walk with a stagger.

Unless the person is under a doctor's supervision, the best advice is common sense and adherence to the known safe and healthful dosages of vitamins.

For a report called "Vital Facts About Vitamins," send $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope to: Dr. Donohue — SR143, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have suffered from sight disturbance for years now, so I am interested in the subject of keratoconus addressed in the past. Please let me know more about it, especially its symptoms, causes and treatments. — P.B.M.

ANSWER: Keratoconus has to do with the cornea of the eye, that crystal-clear structure in front of the pupil. Think of the cornea as the eye's counterpart of a watch crystal. The difference is that the cornea is vulnerable to biological changes, one of which is a thinning and a central outward bulge — keratoconus.

Without its normal symmetry, the cornea now causes vision distortion, with light rays striking it at different angles. The sight distortion includes that for near and far objects.

The bulging might start imperceptibly in youth and not really prompt concern for many years.

If vision becomes seriously impaired, contact lenses can help restore the corneal shape. If that is not possible or does not work, then corneal transplant is an option.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

— YOUR EYES —

Contacts & Cosmetics

It's not surprising that the same people who want to wear contact lenses to look more attractive will also want to wear eye makeup to show off the eyes no longer hidden behind glasses. One can wear eye makeup with contacts as long as special precautions are taken. Note: the cleaner the lenses, the more comfortable they will be.

- Choose a water-base, hypo-allergenic liquid makeup. Cream makeup may cause a film to form on lenses, and powder may scratch them. Eye liners and shadow should be water-base, too.
- Avoid lash-lengthening mascaras. They contain fibers that are often irritating to the eyes and damaging to contact lenses.
- Remove lenses before using makeup remover. The best choice of remover is one with a mineral oil base.
- Use hair spray or nail polish remover before inserting lenses. Wash hands thoroughly before inserting the lenses; these chemicals can damage the contacts.

Area beef producers to hold Ranch to Rail conference in May

AMARILLO -- The 1996 Ranch to Rail North beef producer conference is scheduled for May 7 in the Civic Center in Amarillo.

The full-day event will begin at 7:30 a.m. with registration, breakfast and a trade show. The morning segment will begin at 8:30 a.m. Breakfast will be compliments of Roche Animal Health and Nutrition.

McCollum, co-chairs the annual event with John McNeill, extension beef cattle program leader from College Station. He will open the conference by introducing selected case studies to the audience beginning at 8:40 a.m.

Randall County Feedyard manager, Richard Winter of Canyon will review how the feedyard manages cattle enrolled in the program. A midmorning break will highlight the industry trade show.

Beef quality issues will be discussed by Dan Hale, extension meat specialist in Texas A&M's animal science department. The importance of management to improve calf value and maintain cow productivity will be addressed by L.R. Sprott, area extension beef cattle specialist from Bryan.

A complimentary noon luncheon, sponsored by Texas Cattle Feeders

Association, requires an RSVP in order to provide an accurate count for the caterer. Contact McCollum at (806) 359-5401 for the noon meal registration.

A experts panel will be convened in the afternoon. Richard Machen, extension livestock specialist from Uvalde, will moderate a discussion designed to provide and in depth review of the case studies introduced earlier in the day. This interactive session for producers will feature Ron Gill, extension livestock specialist from Dallas, who will address cow/calf management issues. Feedlot performance is the topic for W.L. "Bill" Mies, A&M animal scientist who specializes in feedlot management and marketing issues. Cattle carcass information will be addressed by Ted Montgomery, professor of animal science at West Texas A&M University, Canyon.

An optional tour of Randall County Feedyards will conclude the event. Producers may use their own vehicles for the drive to Canyon.

For more information and to register for the noon luncheon, call Ted McCollum, extension beef cattle specialist at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center in Amarillo, (806) 359-5401.

Long dry spell

Area farmers continue to experience very dry conditions for spring planting. College Station rates the dryland wheat in very poor condition and irrigated in fair to good. Corn and sugarbeet planting continues despite the arid situation. A slight chance of precipitation is in the forecast for today.

Deadline extended for risk coverage

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farmers have been given until May 2 to obtain catastrophic-risk protection coverage for their spring-planted crops.

The extended period was authorized by Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman under the newly enacted farm law.

The reopened sales period is available only for such spring-planted crops as corn, soybeans, cotton, sorghum, oats, rice and many fruits and vegetables with sales closing dates of January 1996 or later and spring-planted grains with earlier closing dates.

Starting with 1996 crops, producers are no longer required to obtain crop insurance if they waive the right to emergency crop loss aid on an insurable crop. An uninsured farmer who fails to sign a waiver will be denied benefits from the commodity program, the conservation reserve and certain farm credit programs. Glickman urged farmers to be cautious in waiving loss assistance.

"Crop disaster assistance is no longer available for insurable crops," he said. "I urge producers to keep their crop insurance protection since droughts, floods and other natural disasters are a constant threat."

Coverage may be obtained from a Farm Service Agency office or private insurance agent. Waiver forms are available at the FSA offices.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) - Cold weather has destroyed almost 80 percent of South Carolina's $35 million peach crop and more than half the apple crop.

"Ninety or 95 percent of trees haven't got a single peach on them," said Johnston grower Chip Satcher.

Wednesday morning's 20-degree temperatures probably did not do much additional damage, said Dale Linvill, an agriculture meteorologist for the Clemson University extension service.

Rio Grande Valley grows Texas' only sugarcane

By MARY LEE GRANT
The Monitor (McAllen)

SANTA ROSA - The thick stalks of tall green sugarcane plants are a familiar sight in the Rio Grande Valley, and with good reason.

The only place sugarcane is grown in Texas is in Hidalgo, Cameron and Willacy counties. And the state's sole sugarcane mill stands in the small town of Santa Rosa, where steam plumes from the smokestacks and heaps of unrefined sugar crystals glint under the lights.

Sugarcane is big business here in South Texas. The crop produces about $50 million in direct economic impact and $300 million in spinoff. The crop takes up less than 2 percent of the Valley's total agricultural land, yet contributes about 10 percent to the area's total agricultural income.

But, that prosperity could come to a screeching and costly halt. Now in the midst of a four-year drought, the Valley's agricultural interests stand to take a serious hit, especially sugarcane.

"If we don't get rain, we've had it," Pharr sugarcane grower M.G. "Newt" Dyer said.

Agriculture overall uses 89 percent of the Valley's water allotment; municipal and industrial usage is only about 11 percent, according to Bob Wiedenfeld, associate of soil sciences at the Texas A&M Agricultural Experiment Station in Weslaco.

A serious water consumer, the cane crop needs 40 to 50 inches of rain per year to survive. In the absence of rain, the water must come from irrigation water. As water levels in Falcon Dam steadily sink, leaving less for farmers, the sugar cane industry flirts with disaster.

"The farmers are extremely concerned," said Humberto Vela, spokesman for the Rio Grande Valley Sugar Growers Association in Santa Rosa. "I believe we can last through another season, but if the drought lasts two years, it would be devastating."

Still, he believes sugarcane farmers will endure - at least for now.

"We may not make money, but we'll survive," he said. "I think we'll be allowed at least partial water, which will allow us to grow some crops. But in two more years, if we don't get enough rain, it will be a disaster."

Dyer, who admits he is "scared to death," said many farmers have old, unused wells they might use for several waterings, as a last resort. But he said the wells are too old. If tapped, they could easily bring up a column of mud, destroy the cement walls of the well and cause the well to cave in.

"Then we'd have to start all over again," he said. It would mean building new wells.

Each irrigation district decides the amount of water its growers will receive.

Water is pumped from the Rio Grande into irrigation canals that feed into the fields. The river - via local irrigation districts - is the primary source of water for crops in the Valley.

Dyer predicts the drought could close the sugarcane industry here in a year and a half.

"I have seen the Rio Grande so dry you could walk across it in dry socks and not get them wet," he said.

Each irrigation district decides the amount of water its growers will receive.

"If the cities run low on their allotment, they can give us a negative allotment," Dyer said. "They would take our water and use it for the cities. The cities can take our water. But there's nothing in the Bible that said anything was fair."

He said the Pharr irrigation district, which he deals with, is allowing farmers a few more irrigation allotments before they shut off the water supply.

"But in La Feria, they are getting only one more irrigation allotment," he said. "They are past scared."

Already, this year's sugarcane crop has been damaged by the drought, according to Vela.

"When there is less water in the dam, there is a higher concentration of salt (in the water)," he said. "There is a higher concentration of salt pollutants, too, like human feces. So the quality of the water is not there. Right now, we can see some fields where the soil is white from the salt rising to the top."

Because salt damages the soil, he said, a prolonged concentration of it could make fields completely infertile.

"There are many areas in the Valley that are referred to as salt spots, where nothing can be grown," he said. "It used to take 30 years for them to get that way, but with the concentration of salt we are seeing, it could take more like five years."

Farmers already are looking at alternative measures for irrigation, Vela said, but most of them are not yet economically feasible.

The method sugarcane growers use now - open canal irrigation - is probably the least effective for water conservation but the most practical economically, Vela said.

Another option is to place vinyl tubes, resembling a 20-inch hose, through fields with "gates" that periodically release water, Vela said. It is more expensive than simple canal irrigation, he said.

The most effective - and most costly

- method is drip irrigation, Vela said. Eighteen-inch pipes perforated with pinholes are buried two feet underground to allow water to seep into the soil. Apart from being too expensive to be a practical solution, the pipes could be destroyed easily if farmers accidentally work too deep into the ground, Vela said.

Vela said a long-term solution may be to use cleaned-up waste water to irrigate fields. But this would require the construction of expensive holding ponds in nearby cities, he said.

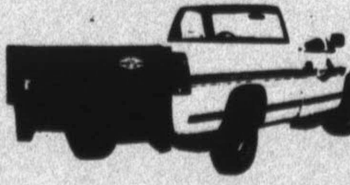

Despite damage done by the water shortage, Vela feels the current state of the Rio Grande Valley Sugar Cane industry is relatively healthy:

- This growing season, the co-op produced about 1.4 million gross tons of cane, 125,000 tons of sugar and 49,000 tons of molasses.

- On average, the Valley yields about 44,500 acres of sugarcane. This year, about 39,100 acres of cane were harvested.

Sugarcane is one of the Valley's oldest crops. It was first grown here in the 1850s, and was grown throughout the Civil War in the

Farmers given until July to participate in farm program

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farmers will have from May 20 to July 12 to sign up for the farm program created by the new farm bill. The Agriculture Department announced the dates Thursday, a week after President Clinton signed the law. The bill replaces price-based subsidies with fixed-but-declining payments guaranteed by seven-year "Production Flexibility Contracts." Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman stressed this year's sign-up will be the only opportunity. "This is a now or never proposition," he said. Payments are based on past subsidies, and growers should begin getting notices in early May with information enabling them to calculate payments under the new farm bill. Advance payments will be made 30 days after contracts are approved. The department also announced other activities and deadlines related to the farm bill:

-Initial peanut program quotas will be mailed in late April.
-Marketing assessments for dairy producers end May 1.
-Final 1996 payments under the farm bill will be made Sept. 30.
-Advance payments for the 1997 crop will be made Dec. 15, 1996, or Jan. 15, 1997.

of growers in the 1970s. crop besides citrus and cotton," Vela said. "They saw a need for a new crop besides citrus and cotton," Vela said. "Farmers pitched in money and borrowed the rest and put their names on it. They formed the Rio Grande Valley Sugar Co-op, and we harvested our first crop beginning in November of 1973."

Dyer, one of the growers who helped revive the crop here in the '70s, said sugarcane proved crucial to the area back then as well. "We needed something else," he said. "The vegetables weren't making money, cotton wasn't making money. There were experiments done at the agricultural experiment station in Weslaco that showed sugarcane would be a good crop for the area."

So a group of about 300 farmers met at Rio Farms, north of Monte Alto, and discussed their prospects for raising cane.

"Most said, 'No way,' and a lot of those regretted it later," Dyer said. "Sugarcane has been very good to me. I haven't gotten wealthy off of it," he said, "but I've had a good lifestyle."

IFCA to hold first meeting

An organizational meeting of International Feedlot Cowboys Association will be held at 6:30 p.m. Monday in B Bar S Arena.

Feedlot owners, feedlot cowboys and other feedlot employees and their spouses are eligible for membership in the association.

Among items to be discussed will be the possibility of holding a roping to qualify local ropers for the finals in Garden City, Kan.

Roping events may include team roping, mixed roping, century roping and a barrel race. There are both junior and senior age groups.

For additional information, call Dan Law at 578-4499.

Sugarcane statistics

By The Monitor (McAllen)

McALLEN, Texas - Sugarcane crop and sugar production in the Rio Grande Valley:

- The Rio Grande Valley Sugar Growers Co-op in Santa Rosa this season produced about 1.4 million gross tons of cane, 125,000 tons of sugar and 49,000 tons of molasses.

- On average, about 44,500 acres of sugarcane are harvested here annually: 24,900 in Hidalgo County, 15,500 in Cameron and 4,100 in Willacy.

- About 39,100 acres of cane were harvested here this year.

- The co-op includes 135 cane farmers.

- Valley sugarcane farmers employ 300 people.

- The co-op employs about 600 seasonal and full-time workers.

- The co-op spends $10 million in annual salaries and benefits for employees.

- The Valley cane crop produces $50 million in direct economic impact and $300 million in spin-off.

- Co-op spends about $7 million buying from more than 300 Valley businesses.

Worldwide, about 20 million tons of peanuts are harvested a year.

THE BUCK STARTS HERE.

Newspaper is usually the first place people go when considering a purchase. It's their primary source of advertising information. Newspaper helps spark the local economy by putting dollars into circulation. And that's good for everyone, not just the retailer.

Because a strong local economy means lower property taxes, more jobs, tax support for community services and a better place to live. Newspaper is more than just a smart place to advertise. It's an integral part of our lives.

Newspaper. It delivers.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

An Extra Value Deal

If we could make our world a better place in which to live and save money at the same time we'd do it, Right? Of course, we would. We would be foolish not to take advantage of an extra value deal like that.

Most days we have opportunities to protect our environment, our quality of life and reduce expenses at the same time. This week we celebrate Earth Day and promote the general awareness of environmentally friendly programs. I'd like to suggest that many of these programs are not only beneficial for the environment but are good business builders as well.

I am aware that not all environmental issues are reality based. Some are asinine and completely unachievable. I do not support these programs, nor would I encourage anyone else to support them. However, we should not let the far-out minority detract from the validity of the message.

Common Sense Programs

There are many environmental programs based on good, common sense. Conservation programs are excellent examples. The dictionary defines conservation as "careful preservation" or "planned management."

In business, energy conservation is an extra value deal. Not only do you save money when you lower utility and fuel bills, but you also benefit the environment. Many utility companies offer free energy audits to help business owners identify areas of waste or inefficiency.

For example, replacing an older heating or cooling unit with a high-efficiency model can cut utility bills by as much as 30 percent. A good move for the environment and a bottom-line bonus for you.

For those of you who use vehicles in your business, careful selection of models and engine types can also offer double-barreled savings. According to Blaine Roberts, President of Roberts Truck Center in Amarillo, electronically controlled truck engines can reduce fuel consumption by as much as 15 percent that equates to 15 cents of every fuel dollar in your pocket plus the advantage of 15 percent less carbon monoxide, reactive carbons and nitrogen oxides.

Other areas where conservation pays big dividends include soil, water, paper, all types of packaging and the use of many toxic chemicals. Remember that conservation means careful preservation and planned use or management of scarce resources.

Take A Personal Approach

While no person can make a huge impact individually, together we can make great progress. For example, we can be more environmentally responsible by installing water-conserving shower heads, taking shorter showers, lowering water levels in toilets and fixing dripping faucets. In addition, we can become conscientious in turning off unused lights, televisions and appliances.

In our office we recycle paper, plastic and aluminum. We try to conserve paper by making fewer copies, using both sides of paper and returning out-of-date phone books. Little things to be sure, but they do add up. We also reuse cardboard boxes and plastic bags.

My experience indicates that buying premium quality products is environmentally friendly. Buying top quality tires, shoes, tools, clothes and equipment is also good business practice. A good set of tires, for example, may out-wear a cheaper set by a factor of 2 to 1. However, they require only a little more rubber and energy to produce.

I'm also a believer in the philosophy of "Use it up, wear it out, make do, do without." I think often throw away useful items just because we're tired of them or we want a new look. Weigh the costs of the "throw-away mentality" carefully. Remember, this kind of thinking carries a double-whammy price tag.

We all have a role to play in taking care of our resources. Let's work a little harder to make the world a better place in which to live. You might find that it's not only fun, but profitable, as well.

FEATURE HOMES

© BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

An inviting roof design and wide porch give this home curb appeal. The activity room is vaulted and directly open to the kitchen and dining area. This spacious area encourages relaxed gatherings. A bay window drenches the rooms in sunshine, while the creative angular design of the counters make the rooms flow together.

A laundry room is indicated in this area.

The bonus room allows plenty of optional living space. This room can be finished as the home is constructed or at a later date, and is accessible from a stair behind the garage.

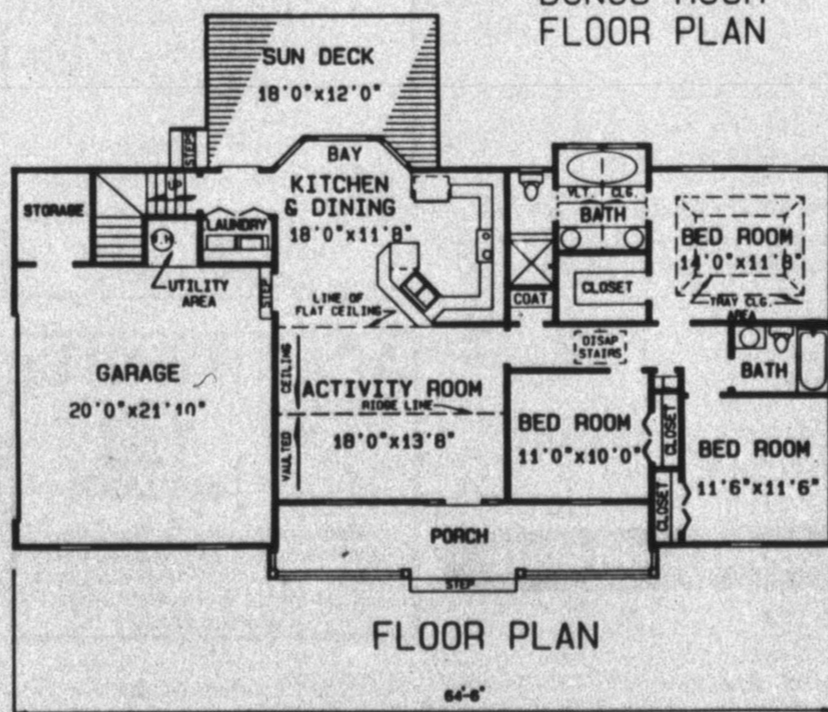

The sleeping wing is secluded for privacy. Two family bed rooms are shown on the front of the house and a master suite on the rear. A central hall bath services the family bed rooms.

The master suite is shown with tray ceiling in the bed room and a vaulted ceiling the garden bath, which has a dual vanity. A luxurious walk-in closet is adjacent.

Plan number 298 includes 1,294 square feet of heated living space and the bonus room will add an additional 374 square feet when it is finished. For further information, write W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 31145.

It takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home.

Sure, you could go stumbling through the housing market. Running into dead ends and getting cornered with too little information.
Or you could nail down that new home the easy way. By consulting an experienced real estate agent.
An agent can point out options you may have missed. Get you inside interesting homes that you may never have seen otherwise. Even do a lot of the groundwork, so you don't have to.
Like researching financing packages. Checking through the multiple-listing service for homes that fit your needs -- and your pocketbook. Negotiating with the seller. And arranging for inspections. He or she will even be there at closing.
So instead of forging ahead without knowing what's out there, get some help from an expert. A real estate agent.
Inside The Hereford Brand, you'll find both qualified agents and valuable information about home buying. Everyday, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And The Brand's Sunday housing section examine the latest market trends and housing opportunities.
With the right guide, hitting your mark can be child's play.

Help child to make bedtime glowworm

Young children are notorious for putting off bedtime. It's the final ritual of the day, after a story, chit-chat, prayers, hugs and a kiss. Then, as if on cue, with the click of the "off" switch of the lamp, the drama kicks in. "I need a glass of water. I can't find my teddy bear. I have to go potty. I'm hungry. My blankets are too hot. My blankets are too cold. Will you leave the light on, Mom, pleaseee?"

Whether it's anxiety about a new day at preschool, monsters in the closet, robbers lurking by the window or any other fear, sometimes children need extra comfort to navigate the long night hours.

To help your child put closure on the day, enjoy making this bedtime glowworm together. Because the body of this whimsical bedtime buddy is a flashlight, your child can switch it on anytime to add a soft glow to the room.

With the open end down, stuff a paper lunch bag or a colorful cellophane gift bag with newspaper. Decorate the bag using odds and ends from your craft box or junk drawer. Make it look like a glowworm, firefly or any fanciful creature you wish. Glue on buttons for eyes and pipe cleaners twisted into the shape of a smile or antennae. Cut out craft paper in wing shapes and glue to the side folds of the bag. Draw extra features with markers or crayons. Remove the newspaper from the bag.

Place a lightweight flashlight on your worktable with the head of the flashlight up. As your child holds the flashlight, slip the bag over the top half of the flashlight. Be sure the on/off switch is exposed. Wrap a rubber band or ribbon around the bag to hold it in place. Turn the flashlight on to light up the glowworm.

Shrine Band returns to Senior Center

The Khiva Shrine Band, made up of musicians from throughout the Amarillo area -- including Hereford resident Charlie Bell -- will perform their big band music on Tuesday in the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

The dance will be from 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. Cost to attend is $5 and proceeds will benefit Shrine causes.

The group plays Big Band music and has been judged the best Shrine band in Texas. Among the members are 11 band directors or professional musicians.

Los Ciboleros will observe Arbor Day

Los Ciboleros Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution will plant a red bud tree in commemoration of Texas Arbor Day on April 26 at 4:30 p.m. in Dameron Park.

The planting site is near the Dameron Park sign on Main Street across from the Federal Land Bank office.

A ceremony of dedication will follow the presentation of the flag by members of Troop 50 Boy Scouts.

All interested persons are welcome to attend.

Help Your Heart Recipes

This recipe is intended to be part of an overall healthful eating plan. Total fat intake should be less than 30 percent of your total calories for a day -- not for each food or recipe.

Open-Face Vegetable Sandwiches

2 to 4 teaspoons Dijon mustard	1/2 cup chopped red, yellow or green bell pepper
2 whole-grain English muffins, split and toasted	1/2 cup shredded carrot
1/2 cup small broccoli florets	1/2 cup shredded low-fat Monterey Jack cheese

Preheat broiler.

Spread mustard over the cut side of each English muffin half. Arrange broccoli, bell pepper and carrot over mustard. Sprinkle with cheese.

Place English muffin halves on the unheated rack of a broiler pan. Broil about 4 inches from the heat for 2 to 3 minutes or until cheese melts.

Serves 2; 2 muffin halves per serving. Preparation time: 10 minutes. Cooking time: 2 to 3 minutes.

Tips for preserving dress, bouquet

By The Associated Press
Preserving the wedding dress and bouquet can give the bride nostalgic pleasure in future years, especially if they are cared for right after the nuptials.

Tips about preserving them are offered by Bride's magazine:

- The Wedding Dress. Get the gown to the dry cleaner as soon as possible -- no longer than a month after wearing -- so stains can be removed before they become permanent. Stains should be hand-treated, and those from sugar need special treatment, since regular dry-cleaning fluid cannot dissolve them.

Be sure to ask the dry cleaner to clean the gown individually and to turn it inside out to protect beading and embroidery.

If the dry cleaner packs it, choose an acid-free storage box with acid-free tissue paper. The window of the box should be acetate, not plastic. And because the glue, rubber and metal parts in a headpiece can brown the dress, have it stored separately. Ask to see the dress before it's packed and inspect it.

If you're packing it yourself, remove padding in the bust or shoulders after dry cleaning, and wrap the dress in a clean white sheet or muslin. The dress should be laid flat, not hung, in a dry area with an even temperature. Avoid attics or basements, which can be too hot or damp.

- The Bouquet. Begin the drying process right away, before you leave for the honeymoon. Turn the bouquet upside down and hang it in a dark, dry place. In two weeks it should be completely dry and ready to decorate a wall or shelf. If you prefer, cut fresh flowers close to the base and place inside a large book for pressing; these can be used to decorate pages.

Duke sampled Amish way of life in Harvest of Fire

During an arson investigation, an FBI agent (Lolita Davidovich, right) befriends an Amish woman (Patty Duke) whose barn was burned down in Harvest of Fire. The Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation - the 188th film in the series - premieres Sunday on CBS.

By Suzanne Gill
eTVData Features Syndicate

"Finally! I broke the wall!" Patty Duke proclaims.

The Emmy- and Oscar-winning actress is thrilled to be starring in her first Hallmark Hall of Fame production - the 188th in the distinguished series. The drama, Harvest of Fire, debuts Sunday, April 21, on CBS.

"I had decided years ago that I was probably never going to do a Hallmark," Duke recalls. "They never asked me. I used to sort of sit and watch Hallmarks and wonder, 'I could have done that. How come I couldn't be in that?'"

"So ... (director) Arthur (Seideman) presented me to them, and ... it was finally offered to me. I was thrilled."

Duke plays Annie Beiler, an Amish widow raising four children in an Iowa farm community. On the day of her elder daughter's wedding, the family's barn is burned. Across the fields, wedding guests see two more barns go up in flames.

Local authorities suspect arson, but the motive is unclear. FBI agent Sally Russell (Lolita Davidovich) is sent to the scene.

She has trouble launching her investigation because the Amish have "already forgiven" the culprit and would rather not talk about the crime.

Duke knows something of farm life; she and her husband are raising their family - and an assortment of animals - on a piece of land in Idaho. What she didn't know much about when she started the film was the Amish.

"My superficial notion of the Amish was so romanticized and so alien and so much of a greeting card," she says with a laugh.

"I had the benefit of the Mennonite women who worked in the wardrobe department, who were the seamstresses, the local people. Many of them had been Amish or had grown up in the Amish community and then left. So I got lots of information from them, but more importantly I got a feeling that these are people.

"(They do not) go around with a sour face all the time. They're human. They have a sense of humor. They have a sense of struggle. So I felt released to go ahead and add that to my mix."

It was when she stepped into her costume, Duke says, that "it all came together for me." The clothes, she adds, were authentic, right down to the straight pins used to hold them on.

"You stand differently, you move differently. I wasn't walking around in sweats and jeans and throwing my leg over a chair.

"Also I felt a reverence, and I had to work against that, because I wanted to move as if I were comfortable in these clothes. So I had to get past the thrill and the reverence."

Harvest of Fire continued to touch Duke's life even after filming was over.

Less than two months later, her husband called her in Los Angeles to say their just-remodeled farmhouse had burned to the ground.

"My response was, 'Were you in it? Was anybody in it? Any animals?'"

No, he said. "Then so what?" she asked. She admits the remark was "rather cavalier," but the experience took her back to something she had observed in the Amish.

"I kept looking at these people as if they were deprived of something," she says. "But another part of me kept looking at them with envy."

"What I would notice was a certain kind of strength."

our only home

Earth Day '96 is all about raising awareness about the environmental problems we're facing today. But being aware of the situation is only the first step.

Its up to you to take action. (Increase the quality of our community by planting trees, shrubs and flowers, and recycling cans, glass and paper.)

Celebrate Earth Day
April 22, 1996...

with a new outlook on life that is reflected in everything you do.

Every thing you do now to recycle, reduce and re-use leads to tangible benefits now and in the future. As our landfills start to overflow, our water supply dwindles, and the population increases daily, its time to take responsibility for our actions and take advantage of recycling programs and respect all living things! Take care of our planet -- its the only one we've got!

HOROSCOPES

ARIES - March 21/April 20

Pay attention to directions when learning a new skill. A new aspect of a friend's personality will surprise you. You'll realize that nobody is really predictable. Health-related concerns should be addressed. Make the best of an uncomfortable situation, even if things don't go exactly your way.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

If you're a parent, this will be an especially satisfying week, especially if you have very young children. A transition in the workplace will not go as smoothly as you would have liked. Perhaps you should slow things down instead of forcing the issue. A friend reaches an important change.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

Take an aggressive approach to a seemingly endless project. You'll be surprised at what you can accomplish when you put your nose to the grindstone. If work is getting the better of you, this may be the time to plan a vacation. Consider a jaunt to the Caribbean if your budget allows.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

To realize all your lofty ambitions this week, discipline will have to be your guide. But be sure to reward yourself when all is said and done. A loved one in a creative field will reach a new level of success. Be sure to show your enthusiasm and support. Be cautious with your finances.

LEO - July 23/August 23

The road to happiness may be a little bumpy this week. You may have to clear away some stones and take some detours before you get where you want to be. Arguments with a loved one may be unavoidable, so be conscious of what you say - before you say something you'll regret.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

As the Zodiac's most cynical member, you should know that life isn't always fair. This week, you'll prove this theory. A new friendship with a Libra will start to blossom. You'll wonder why it took so long. If you want to keep your sanity, avoid discussing finances with family.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

A difference of opinion could change the way you look at a friend. But before you decide to write him/her off for good, consider the other side of the story. You'll see there's more to it than meets the eye. In the workplace, there will be some very promising news. Something you've wanted will finally be yours!

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Think towards the long-term when making important decisions this week. Consider where you want to be rather than where you are right now. A call from an old flame could throw you off kilter midweek. Try not to let emotions get the better of you. A mystery will finally be solved.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Sagittarius parents should be firm when disciplining young children. Any weakness in your voice will undermine your credibility. At work, be sure to choose your battles carefully if you want to win the war. In matters of love, before you get burned, take a lesson from past mistakes.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

A dream can be realized if you put your mind to it. Start planning now, and you'll be there sooner than you think. Feel free to be yourself around a close friend, but avoid taking this person for granted (especially if (s)he is a Leo). A introspective mood leads you to a strange place.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

Time spent worrying will be wasted time. Instead, focus on what you can control. Some time off from the daily grind will help put things into perspective. Choose your words carefully when dealing with sensitive loved ones. Remember, not everyone is as open-minded as you are.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

What seems like the deal of a lifetime could turn out to be more than you bargained for. Be sure to read the fine print before committing to any financial endeavors. A new activity will provide a pleasant diversion for the restless fish. In the workplace, be confident in your abilities.

Q: Please tell us there is no truth to the rumors American Gothic has been canceled! --Lisa Sheahan, Danville, Ill.

A: "It definitely has not been officially canceled," says Gothic publicist Bernice Green. "Beyond that, I can't tell you anything definite; it could come back at any time."

Still, I have to tell you, Lisa, this terrific show's chances for renewal range from slim to none.

Anna, I went directly to Christy executive producer Ken Wales to find out what is going on with the show.

Wales says he hopes to persuade CBS to air two to four Christy two-hour movies each season and tells me Kellie Martin and Tylene Daly are eager to do them. He urges the show's fans to keep writing letters.

To write in support of either Christy or American Gothic, send your letters to: Leslie Moonves, CBS Inc., 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90036.

Q: Is the house portrayed as the Walshes' on Beverly Hills, 90210 actually in Beverly Hills? It sure looks like where I spent many a summer at my aunt's house in Glendale, Calif. --Barbara Padfield, Manchester, N.H.

A: No on both counts, according to Carolyn Prousky, the show's publicist, who says the house actually is located in Altadena, Calif.

Q: What happened to Branford Marsalis on The Tonight Show? My husband said he was fired, but I don't think so. --M.J.U., Caseville, Mich.

Kellie Martin

Kevin Eubanks, who had subbed during the jazzman's previous absences, was bumped up to the permanent job.

That jibes with conversations I've had with Marsalis, in which the outspoken musician expressed unswerving loyalty to host Jay Leno but told me he was feeling the strain of a five-nights-a-week network gig.

"The decision to leave was definitely his own," says Tonight Show publicist Jennifer Barnett.

"Otherwise, he probably still would be here."

Q: In a TV Pipeline several weeks ago you told a reader videos of the TV series Let's Pretend weren't available. Actually, they are available from the Wireless catalog. --K. McGranahan, Manchester, N.H.

A: Wireless offers audiotapes, not videos, of Let's Pretend radio shows. Interested parties may write to Wireless, Minnesota Public Radio, P.O. Box 64422, St. Paul, Minn. 55164-0422.

Send questions of general interest to TVData Features Syndicate, Northway Plaza, Queensbury, N.Y. 12804, or e-mail to tvpipeline@tvdata.com. Only questions selected for this column will be answered. Personal replies cannot be sent.

HIGHLIGHTS

Emmy Award-winning composer and lyricist Quincy Jones is the 1996 NAACP Image Award entertainer of the year. The ceremony will have its first prime-time broadcast on Fox Tuesday.

NAACP Image Awards set for prime time on Fox

By Roberta C. Nelson
eTVData Features Syndicate

More than 100 talented performers will be on hand for the 27th annual NAACP Image Awards. Fox will air the ceremony's first-ever prime-time broadcast Tuesday, April 23.

"Initially, the Image Awards were created to honor white individuals who were creating positive images of people of color in television," says Hamilton Cloud, executive producer of the Image Awards show.

That was in the 1960s, when there weren't any African-Americans creating, producing or directing. Cloud says. Instead, white producers were creating roles and casting blacks in shows like Mannix, Love Boat, Star Trek, Julia and The Mod Squad.

Today, while there are more African-Americans in films and on TV, they are largely absent from the networks' and studios' executive suites, he says.

"Finally, we're starting to get black directors and writers, but in the decision-making positions, there are so few African-Americans who can say, 'Let's do this project. It's a go.'"

Nominees are selected by 550 entertainment industry insiders and the NAACP's leaders.

This year, Quincy Jones will receive the entertainer of the year award. Ray Charles and blues singer Ernestine Anderson will perform a tribute to him. The three performers attended high school together in Seattle.

Among other nominees, "Who Is Agent X?" earned NBC's Dateline a nomination in the news, talk or information series category. The segment examined Mississippi law enforcement officials' infiltration of the civil rights movement, which led to the murder of three activists.

Performers at the ceremony include Kirk Franklin & The Family, whose gospel music album was the first of its kind to go platinum.

"In the Oscars and Emmys we have historically been overlooked," Cloud concludes. "We've always said we hope one day there will be no need for an Image Award, but here we are in 1996 and the need is even more glaring."

CHITTER CHATTER

NEW YORK (AP) - Take a star from "Melrose Place" - Heather Locklear, for example - add an ordinary TV movie script portraying the comeback of a victimized woman, and there's a deal to be made.

With little to distinguish one movie from the next, TV producers say the only winning ticket is to feature a hot female star from one of television's hottest shows.

"You can attach any of the gals from "Beverly Hills 90210" or "Melrose Place" to a blank piece of paper, and you'll wind up with a network deal," a producer who asked to remain anonymous says in the April 20 "TV Guide."

Thus, viewers have already witnessed such made-for-TV classics as Tori Spelling's "Co-ed Call Girl" and Tiffani-Amber Thiessen's "She Fought Alone."

Locklear is commanding $500,000 per TV movie. Spelling of "90210," and her former castmate Shannen Doherty are right behind, in the $400,000 range. Other actresses on the two hot shows earn about $250,000 for a starring role.

NEW YORK (AP) - Judith Krantz sees nothing wrong with living for social approval.

"I feel a compulsion to live up to other people's standards - which, by now, I should have outgrown," Krantz says in Entertainment Weekly. "But it doesn't matter. I've accepted the fact I'm like that."

The author of such books as "Scruples" and "Lovers" is promoting her ninth novel in 18 years, "Spring Collection," a tale of five female players in the fashion industry.

Ever image-conscious, the 68-year-old grandmother concedes that time has taught her less can be more when it comes to writing steamy bedroom scenes.

"I'm much less graphic in how I write about sex," Krantz said. "I discovered - when I was doing the book tour for 'Scruples' and I was being beaten over the head regularly on every television show - that there are certain four-letter words that really offend people."

The oldest footage in the NFL Films archive records a gridiron matchup between Princeton and Yale in 1903. It was shot by Thomas Edison.

Rubber can be made so elastic that it will stretch more than nine times its normal length.

SOAP TALK

CBS' Johnson talks about daytime soaps

By Candace Havens
eTVData Features Syndicate

Anyone who says soap operas are on their way out hasn't run into CBS executive Lucy Johnson.

As the network's vice president of daytime programming, Johnson has seen soaps go through many changes. But through highs and lows, CBS has remained the No. 1 daytime network for years.

"I would really like to know what all these rumors about soaps being on the way out are based on," Johnson says. "I don't even pay attention to it all. All I pay attention to is the performance these shows bring in each week."

Johnson oversees all four of the CBS soaps: As the World Turns, The Bold and the Beautiful, Guiding Light and The Young and the Restless.

"It doesn't take a magician to look at the numbers and say that soap operas are the most enduring form there is on a consistent, week-after-week basis."

Johnson admits the soaps have had some ratings problems lately.

"There is more competition out there. The audience has more to choose from. In years past the audience had three choices of what to watch during the day.

"Those people who choose to tune in and watch the soaps are so loyal. They have a regular appointment with those characters."

One of the keys to CBS' success in daytime is the creative genius of Bill Bell, executive producer and head writer for Y&R and B&B, she says.

"Let's face facts here," Johnson says. "Bill Bell has the No. 1 show (Y&R) in daytime TV, and his ratings are almost double those of any other show in the soap world.

"We've had trouble with GL and ATWT for the last few years. We've seen an audience decline, and there have been a lot of changes in the creative team. We are working on those shows and giving them the time to get it back together.

"Bill and his team have been working together since the beginning of Y&R. He delivers, and the audience appreciates it."

Citrus fruits are grown in greater quantity than any other fruit in the United States.

The Rebel (1959-62), a TV Western series, had one regular character, Johnny Yuma (Nick Adams). Johnny Cash sang the theme song.

Ava Gardner did her own singing on the movie cast album for Show Boat, but the studio had her voice dubbed in the film.
