Ailing Ali lights flame to open Atlanta Olympics Appearance of former boxing great poignant moment at start of Centennial Games

By MITCHELL LANDSBERG
AP National Writer

ATLANTA (AP) - In a moment of grandeur and gentle poignancy, the 26th Summer Olympic Games opened today with the lighting of the Olympic flame by a shaky and ailing Muhammad Ali.

Ali, who suffers from Parkinson's syndrome, was the sentimental surprise of a four-hour opening ceremony at the new Olympic Stadium that displayed a majesty of spirit and casual disregard for the clock.

Competition was to begin today in more than a dozen sports, with the first medals to be awarded in fencing, shooting, judo, swimming and weightlifting.

The opening ceremony, which began shortly after 8:30 p.m. Friday and ended shortly before 1 a.m.

today, featured perhaps the last of a stirring and increasingly unwieldy rite: the parade of athletes from every nation. There has been speculation that the tradition will be dropped from the 2000 games in Sydney, Australia.

This time, with a record 11,000 athletes from 197 countries participating, the procession took two hours and seemed to exhaust even those taking part. But it also offered some indelible images of a world in flux - and, for one moment, in one place, at peace.

Iraq marched in right behind its bitter enemy and alphabetical neighbor, Iran, the athletes from both teams seeming uncomfortable and avoiding each others' gaze. The Russian team, once assured of being the dowdiest on the field, this time turned out in brilliant white outfits splashed with the five colors of the Olympic rings.

The first-ever Olympic team of Palestine stepped along the track in olive green jackets, its athletes smiling, waving and flashing the "V" sign for victory - or was it for peace? An integrated South African team marched behind the nation's new flag.

Following tradition, the parade began with Greece, the first Olympic nation, and ended with the United States, the host nation. The U.S. team, predictably, was greeted by a deafening roar that only seemed to get louder as wave after wave of red-, white- and blue-clad athletes marched over the hump of a ramp that led down into the stadium.

They were led by the popular wrestler Bruce Baumgartner, a 6-foot-2-inch, 280-pound giant who held the U.S. flag in one meaty hand and maintained a dignified, almost somber, demeanor and pace as he circled the stadium track.

The parade of nations was the centerpiece of an ambitious program that began with massive production numbers that married Hollywood entertainment values to the traditions of the Old - and New - South.

These included:
- a stirring and percussive "Call to the Nations" composed by Grateful Dead drummer Mickey Hart and featuring U.S. Army Rangers rappelling more than 140 feet from the stadium roof to the field.

- a tribute to America, with U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds thundering over the stadium.

- a Southern-styled welcome in which dancers and cheerleaders were corralled by a fleet of pickup trucks.

- the singer Gladys Knight arising from a hole in the field to sing "Georgia on My Mind."

- a surrealistic pastiche of Southern history set to Gershwin's "Summertime."

- a dramatic tribute to the ancient Greek origins of the Olympic games.

Then, shortly after midnight, President Clinton uttered the words that all of the athletes and much of the population of this Olympics-crazed city had hungered to hear for so long: "I declare open the Games of Atlanta, celebrating the 26th Olympiad of the modern era."

With that, the stage was set for Ali, who was Cassius Clay when he won a gold medal in boxing at the 1960 Olympics in Rome and who went on to become the most famous, and ultimately beloved, athlete of his generation.

The identity of the flame-lighter had been a tightly held secret, and there were several false alarms. Another boxing great, Evander Holyfield, carried the torch into the stadium, and was soon joined by a Greek medalist, Paraskevi "Voula" Patoulidou, for a jog around the track.

They passed the torch off to American swimmer Janet Evans, a four-time gold medalist, who beamed with excitement as she ran up a long ramp to the top of the stadium.

As she reached the top, Ali appeared, to gasps and cheers from the crowd of 83,000. Ali, his face puffy and his movements stiff, reached down to touch the torch to a fuse.

A spark then quickly climbed a nine-story tower looming over the new Olympic Stadium, igniting a cauldron at the top with a whoosh.

A sign outside the stadium said the rest: "Let the Games Begin!"

Theories abound regarding crash

By PAT MILTON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The theories about TWA Flight 800 are becoming more intriguing - a missile fired from the shore, a World Trade Center connection, a terrorist who didn't make the plane at Athens.

But without solid evidence, the FBI stopped short of saying the jumbo jet was bombed out of the sky.

"We're not prepared to say that until we know it's true," FBI investigator James Kallstrom stressed Friday night.

Rough seas kept divers from retrieving more pieces of the 747 that should reveal the cause of the second-worst aviation disaster in U.S. history. Most of the pieces, including part of the fuselage, still lie at the bottom of the Atlantic.

Less than 1 percent of the wreckage has been found, National Transportation Safety Board Vice chairman Robert Francis said. A Navy ship carrying sonar devices was to be in the waters off Long Island today to look for the flight's black boxes with crucial recorded information.

The Coast Guard was searching for debris this morning with three planes, a helicopter and seven cutters. Visibility was good, but the seas were too choppy for smaller vessels, said Petty Officer Don Wagner.

Kallstrom noted that it took 2-1/2 days before investigators could confirm the World Trade Center was bombed, six days to determine a bomb blew Pan Am Flight 103 out of the sky over Lockerbie, Scotland.

"We have a lot of things that look like accident, a lot of things that look like terrorism," Kallstrom said. The FBI must wait to make a determination until it has "evidence beyond a

Preparing agendas

Harlan Resch, print shop manager at Hereford High School, places a copy of the HISD school board packet into a box after printing it on the district's DocuTech system -- which collates, organizes and prints most HISD documents -- and punching holes in it on the drill in the background. Resch printed 20 board packets for Tuesday's meeting, with copies to go to board members, administrators and the media.

School budget work to continue Monday Regular board meet set Tuesday

The Hereford ISD 1996-97 budget will be the focus of discussion on Monday as trustees meet in special session to continue trying to get spending in line with proposed funding for the school district.

The special meeting is one of two sessions facing trustees.

They also will meet in regular session at 6 p.m. Tuesday in the school board room in a session that includes discussion of appointment of a District 1 trustee.

Monday's meeting also will begin at 6 p.m. in the board room, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue.

During the special session, there will be a report from the Deaf Smith County Appraisal District, followed by a workshop on the budget.

On Tuesday, trustees will tackle a seven-item action agenda in addition to considering regular business such as approval of minutes, bills and budget amendments; reports from professional organizations; general reports and personnel report.

Trustees must act to replace former trustee Cherry McWhorter, who resigned last week after moving out of the school district.

Under the new seven single-member trustee district format, the empty seat is from District 1, which covers portions of Hereford south of Park Avenue and west of U.S. 385, as well as corresponding portions of the rural county.

In addition to the work on appointing a new trustee, the action

Officers enforce DARE message at camp

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer

The message can be seen on car bumper stickers, on signs and on T-shirts -- "DARE to keep kids off drugs."

Working to make that slogan a reality and not just a random bunch of words is Officer Carol Keyes of the Hereford Police Department, who uses a classroom and chalkboard to challenge local children to be -- and stay -- drug free.

Keyes is the DARE -- Drug Abuse Resistance Education -- instructor for Hereford Independent School District.

She presents a 17-week drug awareness program to each sixth grade class in the district, as well as to students at Walcott and in the city's private schools.

Keyes said the program teaches students how to make choices, the consequences of those choices, how to reduce violence and life skills.

To reinforce that message, HISD and HPD sponsored a summer DARE camp this past week.

Keyes said 35 students participated in the camp, the purpose of which was to show the students several alternatives to drugs.

She said young people face great going into junior high and high school. The camp will prepare students for the school drug awareness program.

Teachers Kelly Goodin, Johnette Gilbert and Richard Saucedo teamed with Keyes, Cpl. Terry Brown and Lt. Esrael Silva to instruct the summer camp.

Students were divided into three teams, with one teacher and one officer assigned to each team, Keyes said. On Tuesday, students toured the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum in Canyon. Afterwards, students played softball at the VF park.

Students participated in EMS and drug dog demonstrations at the Hereford Community Center on Wednesday. The students also enjoyed an afternoon of swimming.

On Thursday, they visited Palo Duro Canyon, hiked, played games of Frisbee and had water balloon fights.

Each day, lessons on how to avoid drugs, alcohol and violence were presented to the students.

A DARE supper and graduation ceremony was held on Friday night, where students received certificates for their camp attendance.

The camp was funded by donations from the Hereford Elk's Lodge, Garrison & Townsend, Inc., C Bar S, Inc., Hereford Custom Cleaners, Dr.

DARE camp leaders

Students who attended DARE camp this past week were led by, from left, Hereford Police Officer Carol Keyes, Cpl. Terry Brown and Lt. Esrael Silva. The trio, aided by teachers Kelly Goodin, Johnette Gilbert and Richard Saucedo, used the week-long affair to reinforce the DARE message of abstinence from drugs and alcohol to young people preparing to enter junior high school and high school.

Correction

A story in Friday's Hereford Brand incorrectly identified Christopher Lamm's grandparents in Hereford. He is the grandson of Thelma Lamm and the late W.A. Lamm. The Brand regrets the error.

City gets more rain

Hereford recorded 0.48 of an inch of rain from a thunderstorm that passed through the area Friday night, according to KPAN Radio. The city also had a high temperature Friday of 95 degrees, with an overnight low Saturday of 66 degrees. The forecast for Saturday night calls for partly cloudy skies early, then becoming mostly clear with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. Low will be 65-70 degrees with south wind at 10-15 mph. Sunday, look for mostly sunny skies, a high in the mid-90s and south to southwest wind 10-20 mph.

Aerial spraying scheduled

The City of Hereford has announced that aerial spraying of insecticide for mosquito and fly control will be done on Tuesday, July 23, weather permitting. In case of inclement weather, the spraying will be done on the first day thereafter that it is possible.

Emergency Services

Emergency services reports for the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. Saturday contained the following information.

Without these donations, Keyes said the camp would not have been possible.

Keyes said the camp was "fantastic."

"All 35 of the students said that they would come back next year," she said, "and that's great."

Nena Veazey, assistant superintendent for professional services with HISD, said the DARE program is a pro-active move towards drug abuse resistance.

"It teaches children to say no and take pride in it," she said.

Veazey said the program teaches the children self-esteem. The children can feel good about themselves when they say no to drugs.

Whether it is drugs, alcohol or anything else, children can make the choice to say no, she said.

Veazey said the district is always working on ways to improve the drug and alcohol abuse situation.

"We've been pleased with the program's success," she said.

Welcoming a new business

More than 60 people joined the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Hustlers on Friday as the group hosted a ribbon-cutting ceremony to commemorate the grand opening of Stagner-Carr Motors, located at 142 N. Miles. The Buick, Pontiac, GMC dealership is now under the new ownership of John Stagner,

Elderly woman survives over a week lost in corner of ranch near Quanah

QUANAH, Texas (AP) - The West Texas woman who survived 10 days with no food and little water says she might not have made it through another day.

Authorities found Barbara Everage, 65, wandering across the spacious Triangle Ranch near Quanah on Thursday, suffering from exhaustion and dehydration and the loss of her 88-year-old husband, the Rev. Allie B. Everage.

"I felt like that was my last day," Mrs. Everage told the weekly Quanah Tribune-Chief. "I couldn't even stand up."

Mrs. Everage had been driving the Quanah couple's van on July 8 as they returned from a family visit to Clovis, N.M. Just 44 miles from home, she made a fateful wrong turn.

They had driven into the heart of a virtually abandoned part of the ranch in the sparsely populated cattle country of the Texas Rolling Plains, about 120 miles west of Wichita Falls.

"My husband woke up and said, 'You're on the wrong road,'" she said. He advised her to turn left on another lonely dirt road to eventually make it back to the highway.

Instead, the road led to a soft patch of sand where the van became trapped.

of the state fixed their vehicle in mire.

Constant horn-blowing and headlight-flashing eventually drained the battery, leaving them with no food and only stagnant, stinking water from a nearby creek, she said.

Her husband, who founded Zion Star Baptist Church in Altadena, Calif., survived six days until last Sunday morning. The next day, Mrs. Everage abandoned a log she had been keeping of their travails and began hiking in a desperate attempt to find civilization.

"I slept out there on the stream, in the caves and on the rocks," she told the newspaper.

Meanwhile, Oregon State ranching intern Kent Clark happened across an empty wheelchair on a dirt road in a corner of the Triangle Ranch even manager Matt Swan considered remote.

Clark, who was looking for some stray bulls in a closed portion of the range, soon discovered the minister's badly decomposed body lying face-down in the road next to his walker. Mrs. Everage's diary was in the wheelchair.

"When we found the diary, we were kind of convinced she wasn't alive still, either," Clark said.

Clark alerted Swan to the scene he found near the intersection of Foard, Hardeman and Cottle counties line. Swan called authorities, who immediately began searching for the woman.

Clark and another rescuer began tracking Mrs. Everage. A Texas Department of Public Safety helicopter found her waving a white cloth just two hours before her 10th sunset on the hot Texas plains.

"I felt like kissing the ground," Mrs. Everage said of her medical helicopter trip to Quanah's town square, where she was transferred to a local hospital. She returned home Friday morning.

Mrs. Everage had worked at the Tribune-Chief until she resigned in May to travel more with her ailing husband, a diabetic who once preached at Macedonia Baptist Church in Quanah.

Her diary, which was in the custody of a justice of the peace in the small Foard County city of Crowell, will tell the whole story of the events that unfolded over the 1-1/2-week ordeal.

"(His six children) still have questions about what happened," she told the Tribune-Chief.

The Dallas County medical examiner's office is to perform an autopsy. In the meantime, funeral services are pending for the Rev. Everage.

agenda includes discussion and votes on students accident insurance; a substance abuse policy for athletes; the high school health curriculum; guidelines for the district gifted/talented program; the student code of conduct; and a state policy update and employment policy change.

Comments from the public will be heard immediately before the action agenda.

Both board meetings are open to the public, except the personnel session, which may be closed by trustees.

Ready to talk football

So are you gonna tell Don Cumpton it's too early to talk football? Won't work, especially since Cumpton -- who in January will take over as executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce -- was back on his old stomping grounds to begin promoting a free drawing for a trip to a Dallas Cowboys football game. The trip will be given away by the chamber and participating Hereford merchants during the Town and Country Jubilee, which begins Aug. 3 and runs through Aug. 11. The trip will include tickets and airfare for two to the Cowboys game Oct. 13 against the Arizona Cardinals.

Texans want refunds from insurance cos.

AUSTIN (AP) - Texans want policyholders who might have been overcharged for auto insurance to be refunded, no matter how little those refunds might be, according to a new poll commissioned by an attorney suing two insurance companies. A spokesman for one of the companies said Texans should have been asked how they feel about frivolous and costly lawsuits.

Dallas attorney John Cracken paid $18,000 for the two-day, random telephone survey of 604 adults, released Friday. He's suing Allstate and Farmers Insurance companies for allegedly calculating premiums incorrectly.

The class-action lawsuit, initiated by Cracken and a group of South Texans, claims the insurers overcharged policyholders by about $100 million over 10 years by "double rounding" premiums.

For example, the companies round a $400.51 policy to $401, as allowed under state rules. The policy then is divided into two, $200.50 payments and rounded again to $201 each. That second rounding is not allowed, according to the Texas Department of Insurance.

reasonable doubt," he said.

The Paris-bound 747 exploded shortly after takeoff Wednesday evening, and all 230 people aboard are presumed dead. More than 100 bodies were recovered by Friday.

As authorities investigated terrorist theories, they began to rule out mechanical failures.

Francis said there had been no distress call sent before the explosion and that a piece of equipment that automatically sends information back to controllers one minute into a flight reported no anomalies.

"The possibility of a criminal act is a distinct one," he said.

Meanwhile, agents began contacting informants in the terrorist underworld, according to a federal investigator who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity.

"It would be foolish not to be out there seeking every bit of information we can, from any corner," the source said.

Investigators are seeking tips from an Internet site and a toll-free number. Kallstrom told The AP: "We're getting tons of information, but there is no big golden nugget - This is the reason they did this and this is who did it."

Highway Department eyes byways program

AUSTIN -- Texas motorists may one day have an opportunity to drive along scenic byways throughout the state, thanks to a grass-roots program being studied by the Texas Department of Transportation.

The Texas Scenic Byways Program, if adopted, would consist of a system of byways that reflect some of the best of the state's roadways, both culturally and geographically.

"We still have a lot of work to do, but we're interested in what impact a scenic byways program could have in protecting and capitalizing on the state's natural and cultural resources," said Al Lueddecke, TxDOT director of transportation planning and programming.

Proposed byways would need to be existing routes and have substantial local support committed to its continued operation. Local groups and communities could plan, develop and sponsor byways and apply to TxDOT for official designation.

The department will hold a series of public meetings about the proposed program.

In this area, a meeting will be held at 7 p.m. on July 29 in the Amarillo Public Library, 413 E. Fourth.

Other meetings will be held through Aug. 8 in Alpine, Kerrville, Edinburg, Houston, Lufkin, Arlington and Austin.

source as saying, "They're all willing to bet it was a bomb. Now they have to figure out who placed it."

Residents who said they saw flashes of light or flares at the time of the explosion apparently started a theory that a surface-to-air missile brought the plane down. The Pentagon said the plane would have been out of the missile's range.

CBS reported that a Lebanese man on a list of people with connections to terrorist organizations was supposed to be on board the doomed plane when it left Athens for New York, but missed the flight.

In a similar report, The Times of London quoted an unnamed State Department official as saying a "known Arab terrorist" was allowed to board TWA flight 800 at Athens, although he was escorted off the plane before it took off.

State Department spokeswoman Elaine McDevitt said it was "the first we've heard" of any of the reports, and couldn't confirm them.

Another report suggested a link to Ramzi Yousef, who is on trial in New York federal court, accused of plotting to blow up 12 West Coast-bound airliners in a single day in 1995. Unidentified sources quoted Friday by ABC News said a group tied to Yousef contacted a federal agency and claimed responsibility. The FBI, the State Department and the Justice Department could not confirm that report. Yousef, 29, who claims innocence and is representing himself at trial, is accused of being the mastermind of the February 1993 World Trade Center blast as well.

A more macabre theory suggested during ABC's "Nightline" program is that an explosive could have been planted in a cooler in which an organ for transplant was carried. Flight 800 was said to have carrying a cooler that arrived at the ticket counter at the last minute. Coolers with such organs are not traditionally run through X-ray machines and usually are put in the cockpit, ABC said.

While investigators searched for the cause of the explosion, victims' relatives gathered at a hotel at Kennedy International Airport for the heartbreaking process of identifying loved ones and collecting their remains.

Joe Lychner of Houston, who lost his wife and two daughters, was unconcerned with the question that occupied the rest of the nation.

"Whether it was an act of terrorism or mechanical failure," Lychner said, "doesn't make any difference."

Panel: Benefits of RU-486 outweigh risks

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press Writer
GAITHERSBURG, Md. (AP) - Scientific advisers recommended Friday, with some conditions, that the controversial drug RU-486 become the first approved alternative to surgery for American women who have abortions.

The decision puts the French drug, which has been taken by 200,000 European women since 1988, a step closer to U.S. doctors' offices - but it came with certain caveats.

The scientists warned that women must understand RU-486 can be painful, cause bleeding and must be used carefully - requiring three separate doctor exams.

"The term 'safe' should not be misinterpreted as free of adverse events, and serious adverse events," said Dr. Diana Petitti of Kaiser Permanente Medical Care Program in Pasadena, Calif.

Still, as abortion foes protested, the advisers voted 6-0 with two abstentions that RU-486's benefits outweigh its risks, a recommendation that the Food and Drug Administration approve the drug.

If final analysis of a study on 2,100 American women, not yet complete, turns out different from the French data on which the panelists based the decision, they get a chance to review the research again.

Abortion foes had urged the FDA's advisers to reject the drug, saying it endangered not just fetuses but mothers. But research on thousands of French women showed RU-486 causes an abortion 95.5 percent of the time, with rare complications.

The FDA is not bound by advisory panel decisions but usually follows them. FDA commissioner David Kessler said he hoped to make a decision on RU-486 within two months, but would not say which way he is leaning. "It's fair to say there were certain strong and intense feelings" expressed on RU-486, but "the scientific portions of this meeting were no different today than at any other advisory committee."

One panelist, who abstained from the vote, agreed with anti-abortion groups. The drug may benefit women "but it's certainly no benefit to her baby whatsoever," argued Dr. Mary Jo O'Sullivan of the University of Miami.

"RU-486 is a human pesticide," said Rebecca Lindstedt of the American Life League. Outside the hearing, blocked by a line of police cars, a handful of protesters picketed with signs reading "Stop Abortion Now."

Countered Dr. Elizabeth Newhall, who tested RU-486 on 176 Oregon women as part of trials by the nonprofit Population Council: "Abortion is not on trial here. A drug that offers a safe and effective alternative is."

RU-486, known chemically as mifepristone, is 95.5 percent effective when used in the earliest weeks of pregnancy - 49 days from conception, according to studies of 2,480 French women.

A woman must take three tablets of RU-486, which blocks the development of a natural hormone essential for maintaining pregnancy.

Two days later, she takes two more pills, this time a hormone called misoprostol. Misoprostol causes uterine contractions to expel the embryo. Women experience contractions and bleeding strong enough they must stay in the clinic for four hours to ensure they're OK. The vast majority will expel the embryo within 24 hours; for 8 percent of women, that could take a few more days.

Then women require a third doctor visit to ensure the abortion worked.

Former hostage Jenco dies at 61

CHICAGO (AP) - The Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, the Roman Catholic priest held hostage in Lebanon by Islamic radicals for 18 months in the mid-1980s, died Friday of cancer. He was 61.

Jenco had been undergoing chemotherapy for pancreatic and lung cancer. He died at St. Domitilla Church in suburban Hillside, where he was an associate pastor.

"He was my great friend and mentor and probably the nicest, sweetest and most holy man I've ever met," said Terry Anderson, the former chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, who was held captive with Jenco. "I think if anybody is prepared to meet God in complete confidence, it should have been Marty Jenco."

Jenco was head of Catholic Relief Services in Beirut when members of the radical Islamic Jihad snatched him from a city street in January 1985. He was freed in July 1986 after months of negotiations involving the Reagan administration, Shiite radicals and Anglian envoy Terry Waite.

In 1995, Jenco wrote a book on his ordeal, "Bound to Forgive - the Pilgrimage to Reconciliation of a Beirut Hostage."

Jenco described his months of captivity as boring, though for most of his time in captivity he shared a 12-by-15-foot room with three others: Anderson; David Jacobsen, administrator of Beirut's American University Hospital and Thomas Sutherland, the university's acting dean of agriculture.

The Rev. Benjamin Weir, a Presbyterian minister, was released two months after Jenco's kidnapping.

In his book, Jenco wrote he held no animosity toward those who held him captive for 594 days. Instead, he said he wanted to return to Lebanon to visit the men who guarded him - sometimes brutally, sometimes gently.

"I don't believe that forgetting is one of the signs of forgiveness. I forgive, but I remember," Jenco wrote. "I do not forget the pain, the loneliness, the ache, the terrible injustice. But I do not remember to inflict some future retribution."

Jenco also described how he spent six months in solitary confinement. Three times he was told that he was about to be released - only to learn hours later it was a joke.

He kept track of time by marking days with saliva in the dust of his prison walls, marking months with knots in a potato sack.

The priest recounted the day his captors laced his body with explosives. Another time he saw a chain suspended from a ceiling and thought he was about to die.

While his faith never wavered, he admitted he told God, "I'm not Job, I want to go home now."

The Rev. Michael Guimon at St. Domitilla's said Jenco "is finally home."

"He's been suffering now for many weeks and wasn't able to communicate that well in the last couple of days," Guimon said. "We just said 'Goodbye' and that we love him."

Jenco was born in Joliet, Ill., on November 27, 1934. He studied at Mount Carmel College in Canada and the St. Joseph Seminary in St. Charles, Ill., and in Rome when he was ordained to the priesthood in 1959.

A Real Community RESOURCE

That's Still Flowing Strong!

With the all the mergers and acquisitions taking place in the banking world today, it's sometimes difficult to determine just which bank or banker your doing business with anymore.

At Hereford State Bank, we've been affected by some of these changes too, but our one-on-one relationship with our customers and the community we serve has never wavered since our charter almost 50 years ago.

Banking decisions at Hereford State Bank are still made by local bank officers who are guided by local directors.

Those hometown qualities give our bank a unique personal perspective that big bank groups can only try to imitate, and they have helped us provide your family, your business and your community with the banking philosophy, resources and services you need and want.

Join us as we celebrate Community Banking Month and find out first-hand about all the many ways your Real Community BankSM can help you!

Hereford State Bank was born in Hereford, Texas. We're proud of that. And that's why Hereford comes first in our banking name, and in everything we do.

Pair of Smokey Bear figures pilfered from Lincoln Forest

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) - First New Mexico forests suffer through a devastating spring fire season, and now this.

Smokey Bear is missing.

Lincoln National Forest officials said someone took two Smokey Bear figures from a fire information sign on the south-central New Mexico forest.

The figures were removed from a sign on U.S. 82 near the small mountain community of High Rolls sometime late July 8 or early July 9, U.S. Forest Service law enforcement officer Bobby Gomez said.

Lincoln officials said they hadn't been found as of Friday.

Smokey Bear, mascot for forest fire prevention nationwide, has special meaning in the Lincoln. The bear cub that became the living embodiment of Smokey was found in 1950 near Capitan, in the Lincoln, after a forest fire.

And Lincoln foresters say the sign has special meaning for them. It was installed and dedicated in May through a partnership between the High Rolls Fire Department and the forest to keep the public informed about the severity of fire conditions.

"We have had a series of thefts and vandalism to signs on this stretch of highway," said forest Supervisor Jose Martinez. "It is a shame that budget dollars that could be used for a constructive purpose must be spent to replace and repair signs."

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says education is what's left over after you've forgotten the facts.

After umpteen years of experience in writing news and feature stories, it's difficult to admit that I'm illiterate.

Computer illiterate, that is! I was doing fine with my manual typewriter for a number of years. It was quite a task switching to an electric typewriter back in the '60s. And, while it was really a leap in technology, I had fun learning to use a computer keyboard.

Actually, I can get by with our present computer system pretty well, even though I don't know all the terms. I found a computer programmer who explained it in layman's language.

It's like a file cabinet. If you know how to get to the "drawer" you want, then you can find the file you need and go to work. Now and then I still get "lost" and have to ask someone how to get from one program to another.

But in a world exploding in computer technology, I'm beginning to get a sense of what folks face who can't read or write.

Now, what's all this stuff about e-mail, the web, and linking up to the internet? I get mail with e-mail addresses and computer addresses are being highlighted in newspaper and TV ads. If I want to get in touch with them quick, I can find them on their home page at dot-com-slash-dot-guess-what-slash-dot. Huh?

I guess it's too much to hope for that it's just a passing fad like the hula hoop?

It is impossible to hurt your eyesight by looking on the bright side of things.

Looking on the bright side can be a challenge these days with so many negative stories aimed our way from one source or another.

From complaints we hear around the community, more and more folks are expressing their opinions about property taxes going up almost every year. It's no consolation but we receive a number of community newspapers, and the same mood is being expressed in most towns.

It's time to re-think the tax system. Gov. George Bush has given a task force the unenviable job of coming up with solutions to this problem.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock has come up with a good way to provide tax relief to the property owners in the school districts of Texas. He proposes using these excess funds generated by the Texas Lottery to increase the state portion of public school expenses.

He says the state lottery can be turned into a jackpot for Texas taxpayers. Bullock says there will be over $500 million available for education over the next two years. The funds will come from three sources.

The Texas Lottery has been more successful than anyone predicted and less costly to administer. The Legislature allowed 10 percent of sales for overhead last year, and the actual expenses are running about 7 percent of sales. That is a savings for the two-year period of $176.5 million.

This year the State of Texas renegotiated the contract to administer the lottery. The contractor agreed to a 7 percent of gross sales for the 1998-99 biennium. This is an additional savings of $247.5 million.

And, finally, the Texas Lottery has surpassed all expectations, growing to be the largest in the nation. If sales continue on an upward trend, an additional $103 million will flow into the state coffers over the budgeted revenues for 1996-97.

Texans need help with their local school property taxes. In the past few years, the local share of school expenses has risen from 40 percent to 60 percent, while the state's share went the other way--from 60 to 40.

Using the excess lottery funds for public education is a great proposal!

wasn't the tone when Lott and Sen. Tom Daschle, the minority leader, argued on NBC's "Meet the Press" on Sunday. Democrat Daschle said Republicans were "intent on passing extreme legislation and we're going to stop that." Lott said "the loony left in Congress" always falls back on charges like that.

Neither Lott nor Dole nor the Democrats who controlled the Senate before them could prod the operation into House-style, on-time legislating. They do not have the tools or the rules. In the Senate, neither talking time nor amendment attempts are limited, and a member can block almost any action just by objecting to it. In some cases, that can be done anonymously, with what is called a hold.

That makes majority management difficult at best.

Lott said he didn't know that anyone was ever really in charge of the "hundred independent contractors" who make up the Senate. Twice during his record tenure as Republican leader, Dole threatened to quit the job, saying at one point that everybody in the place wanted to be in control.

After Lott's gridlock rebuke last Thursday, Daschle recalled that he'd heard former Sen. George Mitchell make almost the same speech as leader of the Democratic majority in the previous Congress.

In those days, Republicans used filibusters and stalls against Democratic measures. But Lott said the "rolling filibuster" is so frequent now that there have been 73 petitions to end debates, which takes 60 votes, so far in this Congress. There were 51 in the prior Congress.

When Democrats complained that GOP leaders often file motions to limit debate when a bill is called up for action, anticipating filibusters before they start, Lott said he learned that tactic from Democrat Mitchell. "He did it all the time," the GOP leader said.

Lott now says he may seek a quick study of the Senate rules, "just go down the list and say is this something that's become antiquated, is this something that's become counterproductive, is this something that could be done better."

Could be. But better depends on who is judging.

Taking a look through the years

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

Just while I was thinking about what to write this week (I finally decided to address something that had a lesser chance of getting me in trouble), the following came in the mail.

It was from The Germania Company, a Texas-owned insurance group, which is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year.

What they mailed out was a monthly column called "August in Texas: A Century to Remember."

This summarizes highlights in Texas history since the company was founded in 1896.

Some examples:
1909 -- Ten years before they won the right to vote, Texas women formed the Texas Congress of Mothers and successfully lobbied the legislature to pass laws protecting children, creating a juvenile court system, establishing public kindergartens, requiring compulsory school attendance and developing a child welfare system.

1936 -- Site of a fierce and long-running range war between corn farmers and cattle ranchers during the late 1800s, the Panhandle town of Seymour earned a lasting place in Texas history on Aug. 21, when the state's hottest temperature -- 120 degrees -- was recorded there.

1942 -- A hurricane lashed Matagorda Bay with wind gusts of 115 mph, killing eight people and causing $26 million in property damage.

1945 -- A hurricane moved ashore near San Antonio Bay with winds of 105 mph. It killed three, injured 25 and caused $20 million in property damages.

1949 -- Herman Barnett became the first black medical student at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston.

1966 -- One of the state's greatest tragedies took place on Aug. 1 when Charles Whitman shot and killed 17 people from the observation deck of the University of Texas Tower in Austin. Whitman's rampage was stopped when he was killed by Texas Rangers.

1970 -- Hurricane Celia blasted Corpus Christi with sustained winds of 130 mph and gusts up to 161 mph, the strongest winds ever recorded in Texas. Wind gusts of up to 180 mph were estimated after the wind-measuring equipment blew away. Celia claimed 11 lives, 466 injuries and $454 million in crop and property damage.

1979 -- A widespread hailstorm, one of the worst of the century, swept across West Texas and destroyed more than $200 million in crops, mostly cotton.

This last entry really caught my eye (and I am reprinting it exactly as it was on their news release!)

1996 -- Rodeo lovers have plenty to choose from during the month of August, but none can compare with Hereford's All-Girl Rodeo, which includes current and future female rodeo stars competing in a full range of events. In addition to hosting one of the largest all-girl rodeos in the nation, Hereford is also home of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center, which pays tribute to women who have contributed significantly to our Western heritage.

Now I've only been here a few years and I don't know everything, so I turned to an expert to check this out.

Mike Carr, late of the Chamber, said Hereford hasn't hosted an All-Girl Rodeo since around 1990, and everyone knows the Cowgirl Hall of Fame closed earlier this year and moved to Fort Worth!

You know, it kind of makes me wonder about some of the other historic "facts" in the news release.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I thought some of your readers would be interested in a letter I sent to Rep. Larry Combest and Senators Hutchinson and Gramm. Following is the letter:

I am a retired lifelong Republican who is on Medicare and carrying a $215-a-month supplement for my wife and myself.

Since it has been stated that Medicare will run out of funds and go bankrupt by the year 2001, I wish my party (you and others) would expound on the fact that the Clinton administration reduced Medicare premiums, effective January 1996, from $46.10 per month to $42.50 a month.

This is a $3.20 per year reduction, or $43.20 per year times millions of Medicare recipients. This savings probably made a lot of seniors happy, but it sure as hell has contributed to the Medicare fund going broke soon than anticipated.

Why haven't the Republicans made an issue of this fact? I am disturbed that Republicans have been too quiet about stating the wrongs of the Clinton administration.

Thanks,
Kenneth J. Klechak

Dear Editor:

There is a small revolution going on within the ranks of the AFL-CIO as members express their concern about the way union officials are using their union dues for political purposes.

The present furor is the result of the AFL-CIO's announced plans to spend $35 million in dues dollars to defeat Republican members of Congress. About $26 million of this amount is being financed by an additional 15 cents per member per month assessment. Many union members are upset because a substantial minority--about 40 percent--voted for Republicans in 1994.

Several local union officials have complained that national union leaders have prohibited them from endorsing or supporting Republican candidates. Under the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in the Beck case, union members have the right to refuse to pay for union political activity.

Unfortunately, according to a recent public opinion survey, very few union members know about their right to refuse to finance their union officials' political agenda. Teachers need to know they do not have to pay the NEA "election dues."

There is an organization dedicated to assisting workers in this way. The National Right to Work Legal Defense Foundation has been doing an excellent job in this area for almost 30 years. Any union member who wants to get more information about his or her rights can reach the Foundation by calling 1-800-336-3600.

Houston Chronicle on national wagering commission proposal: The Senate is to take up legislation next week that would establish a national commission to study the effects - both good and bad - of gambling on our nation and its people.

You can bet the gambling industry doesn't like it. Gambling interests, which now operate in 48 of the 50 states, are strongly lobbying against creation of the commission, which would attempt the most comprehensive and objective study ever of gambling and all of its effects. Why the opposition? Could it be that the gambling industry anticipates the commission will find a few downsides to gambling?

Gambling has hit the country like a storm. And in the case of lotteries, it is state sponsored. None of that is necessarily bad, but an objective, unbiased study such as the commission could deliver is desperately needed.

Twenty years ago only two states had some form of legalized gambling. Now, all but two do. Gambling, in all its forms, has become a multibillion-dollar business. The Washington Post reported recently that Americans wagered more on gambling in 1994 than the combined total of all they spent going to spectator sporting events, at movie box offices and theme parks, for cruises and buying recorded music.

During the same time, the gambling industry has become more and more influential on the political scene, making heavy financial contributions to further its interests.

Local and state governments have become almost dependent on gambling revenue, whether from lotteries or taxes from horse and dog races and casinos - often making financial concessions to the industry as was done in Texas for horse racing.

The commission legislation would not allow it to tax or regulate or impose any mandates on gambling.

The commission would be limited to studying the economic effects of gambling, positive and negative, on businesses, state budgets and economically depressed regions. It would look into areas such as crime and corruption, etc.

The House has passed its bill to establish the commission. The Senate should now act to do the same and pass the bill without gutting it.

Otherwise, the communities will be left to getting their gambling information from the gambling industry - information sure to favor the house.

Kaczynski tied to 17th bombing

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - Unabomber suspect Theodore Kaczynski has been linked to a bombing that occurred near his remote Montana cabin four days after his arrest.

No one was injured in the April 7 blast, but at the time, agents were searching Kaczynski's cabin for evidence.

Although Kaczynski had been arrested four days earlier, he was linked to the bombing in court documents filed Friday.

It was not clear whether the device was triggered deliberately or accidentally, or might have been on a timer.

The bombing marked the 17th explosion attributed to the Unabomber, according to court documents. The previous 16 killed three people and injured 23 during the shadowy bomber's 18-year campaign against the evils of a technological society.

Officials at the U.S. attorney's offices in Sacramento - where Kaczynski awaits trial - and in San Francisco declined to comment on the matter Friday. FBI officials in Sacramento could not be reached.

Details of the 17th explosion were not included in the court documents, which were filed in connection with the postponement of a scheduled hearing for Kaczynski from Friday to Sept. 20.

Kaczynski's defense team sought the delay to examine a huge quantity of evidence that includes 22,000 documents and hundreds of photographs.

U.S. Attorney Charles Stevens said in a separate filing that additional evidence, including "numerous laboratory reports," are expected to be made available to the defense within the next few days.

Stevens also said that he hopes to obtain a computer system to store and retrieve the large amount of evidence and use it during the trial, including a CD-ROM, television monitors and a sophisticated imaging system.

Kaczynski, 54, was accused last month in a 10-count indictment of four bombings that killed a computer store owner in 1985, a timber industry lobbyist in 1995 and maimed a University of California geneticist and a Yale University computer expert in 1993.

Senate denies amendment

By CASSANDRA BURRELL, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., is asking the Senate to spare some legal immigrants from budget cuts. Republicans are planning as part of an overhaul of the welfare system.

She faces opposition from Republicans who say it's time to get runaway costs under control.

Feinstein offered an amendment Friday that would allow immigrants who receive Supplemental Security Income cash payments to continue getting them. Under the Senate bill, non-citizens would be ineligible for SSI except in limited circumstances.

Fifty-two percent of all immigrants on SSI - many of them blind, elderly or disabled - live in California. It's not fair to suddenly change the rules on them, Feinstein said.

"Do you throw people off into the streets with no source of support?" she said during debate on the Senate floor.

But Sen. Rick Santorum, R-Pa., argued against the amendment, saying most immigrants entered the country under sponsorship of U.S. residents who promised to back them financially. Those agreements are not legally binding, but "a lot of people who sponsored people into this country are going to have to start footing the bill," he said.

The Senate is scheduled to begin voting Tuesday on Feinstein's proposal and other changes proposed by Democrats who say Republican welfare plans are too harsh.

On Friday, the Senate rejected an amendment that would have allowed children to continue receiving some federal help after their parents are cut off. Fifty-one of the 100 senators voted for the provision, offered by Sen. John Breaux, D-La. - nine short of the 60 needed to pass an amendment that exceeds preset spending limits.

The House voted 256-170 on Thursday to approve its welfare overhaul plan.

Republicans want to end the federal guarantee of aid to the poor that has been in place for six decades. Under the House and Senate plans, welfare recipients would be required to find jobs within two years of joining the program, and most participants would be cut off after time limits are reached.

States could deny federal money to mothers who have more children while on welfare.

Republicans said their plans would free the needy from a cycle of dependence, restore their dignity and save taxpayers nearly $60 billion over six years.

Earlier Friday, the Senate rejected a bipartisan overhaul plan offered by Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., and Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., as a substitute to the bill.

Escapee from Pampa nabbed in New Mexico

PAMPA, Texas (AP) - An inmate who escaped earlier this week from a work detail, just three weeks before he was to be paroled, was recaptured Friday in New Mexico.

Michael Copeland, 39, was taken into custody without incident at a truck stop near Albuquerque by a joint task force of federal and state authorities, said Larry Fitzgerald, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice in Huntsville.

A school administrative car that Copeland had used to escape was recovered, Fitzgerald said. Copeland had been part of a maintenance crew working at a Pampa school that was closed for the summer.

Authorities will begin extradition proceedings. He will be charged with escape and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, Fitzgerald said.

Copeland, considered a low-risk inmate, had been assigned since May 9 to an intermediate sanction facility - a lockup for parole violators - near Pampa.

Copeland originally was sentenced to a five-year term for burglary in Dallas County and was to be paroled again on Aug. 7.

Extension Agent's Notes

By DENNIS NEWTON
County Extension Agent--AG

Last week I started this column discussing how we needed to continue to "think" rain. I never dreamed that all of you would think so hard that we would have a flood in some areas of the county. I'm sure that some of you are saying, "Let's just stop thinking of rain for a few days so that we can at least get into the field to stop the weeds."

Speaking of weeds, the Great American Pigweed (Careless weeds to some of you) Race is on here in Deaf Smith County. Wait, before some of you think that we have landed a NASCAR event, let me explain.

The pigweed or careless weed is perhaps the most prolific weed that we have. Following rains like we have had the last two weeks, these monsters can take a field or noncropped areas (such as yards or bar ditches) almost overnight. Pigweeds can grow up to two inches a day when adequate moisture and temperature are present.

It is a shame that agricultural researchers can't get the same vigor that the old pigweed has into other crops. As they grow, they use tremendous amounts of soil moisture, so it is important to stop them as soon as possible. They can be especially destructive in fields that are going to be planted into fall wheat.

Pigweeds are easily controlled by plowing or by using herbicides in areas where no-till or minimum tillage is being used. Which ever method is used, act as soon as possible to prevent soil moisture depletion. As hard as it was to get the moisture we have now, we sure don't want these weeds to rob us blind. Producers wanting a list of recommended herbicides can call the county extension office.

Producers are reminded that Deaf Smith County is a herbicide regulated county and permits are required for applications of phenoxy type herbicides such as 2,4-D, Land Master, Weedmaster, Banvel and others. Please be careful in your use of these herbicides. We have an excellent cotton and sugar beet crop. I sure would hate to see it damaged by misuse of one of the phenoxy herbicides.

The rain combined with cooler temperatures and higher humidity has continued to slow water usage in our crops. Our PET (potential evapotranspiration network) weather station located just west of Easter in Castro County was showing water usage in corn to be down about .25 to .30 inches per day. Water usage in early planted sorghum would be approximately .20 inches per day. Cotton planted around May 15-June 1 would be using about .20 inches per day.

As I stated last week, producers can get water usage information faxed to their business or home each day. Interested producers can contact Leon New, area extension irrigation specialist, at 359-5401 and get on the network.

Mark your calendars for Aug. 7 for a Texas Country Cleanup Day in Hereford. The event is sponsored by the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, the Texas Department of Agriculture and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

We will be taking empty, rinsed plastic pesticide containers, used motor oil, oil filters and lead, acid batteries. The event will be held at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. For more information, please call the Deaf Smith County office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at 364-3573. Wait a few days and then, think more rain! See you next week.

Fatal fire extinguished

DIME BOX, Texas (AP) - Firefighters extinguished a 40-foot fireball on Friday that had burned for nearly a week following a natural gas well explosion that killed two men. "They flooded it with lots of water," said Lee County Sheriff Joe Goodson. "It took awhile, but they got it out."

Goodson said the fire was snuffed around noon.

"They just submerged the whole well with water," Goodson said. "They had three big water jet canons. They put so much water on it that they just smothered the fire."

Members of Joe Bowden's Wild Well Control, Inc., of Spring, expected to repair the well so it could begin pumping gas by Saturday, Goodson said.

J.E. Traweck Jr., 39, of Caldwell, Texas, and Steve Patridge of Lafayette, La., were killed when the rig, owned by WCS Oil & Gas Inc. of Dallas, erupted in a series of three explosions on July 13, creating a massive fireball.

WCS and state officials say they still don't know what caused the blast. Texas Railroad Commissioner Carole Keeton Rylander said she would visit the well site Saturday to observe the commission's investigation into the blast. The Railroad Commission regulates the state's oil and gas industry.

"We need to know what went wrong and why in order to help prevent this type of accident from reoccurring," Mrs. Rylander said.

Nearly a dozen workers were near the rig at the time of the explosion, but they escaped injury. The two victims were the only ones outside on the rig's platform when the blast occurred, WCS officials said.

The fire was in southeast Lee County, just west of Lake Somerville, eight miles southeast of Dime Box. Dime Box is 65 miles east of Austin.

Wedding information must be submitted by 5 p.m. Monday to be included in the next Sunday Brand. Wedding information forms, as well as those for engagements and showers, are available at the news office, 313 N. Lee.

Donation to Big Brothers-Big Sisters

The Hereford Masonic Lodge recently presented a check for $300 to Alva Lee Peeler, director of Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Hereford. Lodge master, Robert Rhoton, left, and fellow Mason Harvey Milton made the presentation. The contribution was made from proceeds raised earlier this month during the Lodge's first Horse Show held at Circle A Arena.

MANY THANKS

The Hereford Masonic Lodge expresses its appreciation to the following sponsors who generously contributed to our very first attempt to host a Horse Show. We judged the event a GREAT SUCCESS, and a project worth continuing each year.

Recruiting New Industry Has Its Personal Rewards

UP TO $15,000 Of Them

Introducing The Ambassadors Program

The Ambassadors Program has been implemented to broaden the business recruiting efforts of the HEDC, encourage volunteerism and promote the aggressive business perception of Hereford and Deaf Smith County.

Their program is designed to encourage local citizens who travel outside Deaf Smith County to assist the HEDC in recruiting businesses from outside the area.

The HEDC will pay a fee to any local citizen responsible for recruiting any basic business that locates in Deaf Smith County. A basic business is one that derives at least 75% of its revenues or sales from outside Deaf Smith County.

If you are interested in this program, or would like to obtain more information about it, contact the Hereford Economic Development Corp., Mike Hatley at 364-0613

Craftsman's coffins double as furniture during life of owners

EDITOR'S NOTE - If you can't take it with you to the grave, let it take you. That's the notion of a craftsman in New Hampshire who makes furniture that serves as coffins, or vice versa. For example, a handsome pine coffin makes a dandy coffee table.

By NANCY ROBERTS TROTT
Associated Press Writer
WEBSTER, N.H. (AP) - Bill Hale is one of the few furniture makers who will guarantee his product for more than a lifetime.

Hale's coffee tables, bookcases, liquor cabinets and blanket chests all are designed to go with their owners to their graves.

"Everybody laughs at me at first, but once I explain it, everybody goes, 'Hmmm, good idea,'" says Hale, owner of the Down to Earth Coffin Company in Webster.

Hale makes coffins. But because most people don't plan far enough ahead to buy their own coffins, he has found uses for his products before they reach their final resting places.

"It makes a great liquor cabinet," Hale says.

He also will install temporary shelves inside for books or put hinges on a specially made door so a coffin can double as a gun cabinet.

Virginia O'Connor of Plymouth keeps her coffin, a plain pine casket with rope handles, in her living room.

"We use it for a coffee table," says O'Connor, 70. "I call it my coffin table. The kids kneel down and do coloring books and puzzles on it. It's very, very handy."

O'Connor bought her coffin table two years ago from a Newport, R.I., artisan because she wanted to make sure she was buried in a simple pine box. When she got it home, it quickly became a conversation piece.

"It seemed practical. You know, be prepared," she says. "It brought a lot of conversation I didn't realize it would bring when I bought it."

O'Connor says she wanted her coffin to convey the message that people should not be afraid of dying, but that isn't always the effect. She says her family was entertaining some people from Wales at her coffin table when her daughter suggested she tell everyone what it was.

"One man got all upset. He got up and moved to the other side of the room," she says. Eventually, everyone had a laugh over it, however.

Hale chuckles at the jokes, but says his products could be seen more as a necessity than a novelty.

His handcrafted coffins range in price from about $700 for a simple pine coffin to about $2,200 for a black walnut coffin with moulded stiles and rails. The average price for a casket sold through a funeral home is about $2,000 and hand-carved caskets can cost as much as $8,000.

"People do plan their funerals," says Hale, 46. "Why not buy your box and save yourself some money? The only trick is you have to buy it before you need it."

Saving money isn't the only advantage for buyers.

"There are some people who want some input in what they're planted in," he says.

A reserved man who prefers to let his work speak for itself, Hale builds his coffins in a workshop at home. He paints or stains the coffins, which are then hand-stenciled. Fitted quilts for the inside are optional, but every coffin comes with a small wooden box for treasured possessions.

Ade Bethune, 82, of Newport, R.I., made her own coffin more than 50 years ago when she decided she would not be buried in a funeral home casket.

"I didn't want to be caught dead in a plush-lined coffin," she says. "Once you're dead, you're not there anymore to get what you want, so you have to prepare ahead of time. I attended a few funerals and I realized, 'Hey, that's not what I want.' Then I better do something about it."

She uses her coffin, a plain wooden box with rope handles, as a hope chest. She keeps it in her front hall.

Hale dismisses the suggestion that to be in such a business is macabre.

"It's not something we can get away from, and why not approach it from this angle?" he says. "It's not that big a deal, really."

Support for Demos, GOP in Congress divided

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Fifteen weeks before the November election, voters are evenly divided over whether to support Democrats or Republicans for Congress and over which party they trust more to lead the country, according to an Associated Press poll.

The results illustrate remarkable overall stability in President Clinton's political standing over the past seven months. But they also suggest modest improvement in the Republican party's image and congressional hopes.

The biggest single factor in the improved GOP standing was the attitude among older voters, who moved away from Republicans during the 1995 budget debate as Clinton and congressional Democrats accused the Republicans of trying to slash Medicare spending. In the new survey, Republicans break even among voters over age 65.

Asked how they would vote if elections for Congress were today, 41 percent of registered voters in the survey said Democratic and 40 percent said Republican. Fourteen percent said they were undecided and the rest said they would not vote or refused to answer.

The AP survey results represented the best Republican showing on this question in months; two other recent national surveys showed Democrats with a three-point edge on the congressional ballot question.

Taken together, the data suggest "control of Congress remains up for grabs," said Democratic pollster Peter Hart. "The next 100 days will count a lot more than the previous 100 days."

In a December AP poll, Democrats enjoyed a 48 percent to 37 percent lead over Republicans when registered voters were asked their congressional preference. The survey was taken during a contentious period in which Republicans had forced temporary government shutdowns as part of their budget showdown with Clinton.

In that winter poll, 44 percent picked Democrats and 35 percent Republicans when asked which party they trusted most to lead the country for the next four years. In the new survey, voters were evenly split on the question, with each party getting 39 percent support. Eleven percent said they trusted neither party.

"The polarization that was hurting Republicans at the beginning of the year has leveled off somewhat," said Hart. "Some of the sharp edges have worn away."

The biggest shift on this question was among voters over the age of 65. In December, Democrats had a 15-point edge when older voters were asked which party they trusted more to lead the country. In the new survey, Democrats had just a two-point advantage among these voters.

The improved GOP standing against Democrats on the question of congressional preference was driven by older voters: voters over age 65 were evenly divided in the new poll when asked which party they would support for Congress; in December, Democrats had a 20-point advantage.

The AP survey of 822 registered voters was conducted July 12-16 by ICR Research Group of Media, Pa.

Letters found that highlight Jefferson love interest

EDITOR'S NOTE - Thomas Jefferson's romantic relationships with other women after his wife's death, including the slave Sally Hemings, continue to enthrall historians. Now a batch of letters of his surfaced indicating his infatuation with a beautiful New York woman, who, alas, was already married.

By BILL BASKERVILL
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) - She was beautiful and independent with a razor-sharp intellect. Her patrician upbringing was tempered by sensitivity and tenderness.

Add exquisite good taste and a fashionably understated style of dress, and she became a thief of hearts, a woman simply irresistible to a lonely widower in a foreign land, a man destined to become the third president of the United States.

"The morning you left us, all was wrong, even the sunshine was provoking, with which I never quarrelled before," he wrote her. "I took it into my head he shone only to throw light on our loss: to present a cheerfulness not at all in unison with my mind. I mounted my horse earlier than common. I took by instinct the road you had taken."

It was Paris, the winter of 1788, and Thomas Jefferson, the author of the Declaration of Independence and now America's ambassador to France, was smitten with the formidable Angelica Schuyler Church, the already married daughter of a Revolutionary War hero.

"I think I have discovered a method of preventing this dejection of mind on any future parting," he wrote her on Feb. 17, the same day she left Paris to return to London.

"It is this," he explained. "When you come again I will employ myself solely in finding or fancying that you have some faults. & I will draw a veil over all your good qualities, if I can find one large enough."

Angelica Church likely came closest to meeting Jefferson's feminine ideal after his beloved wife, Martha Wayles Jefferson, died in 1782, when he was only 39, said Jefferson scholar William Howard Adams.

"They were quite simpatico," Adams said in an interview.

Adams devotes a chapter to Jefferson's female friends in "The Paris Years of Thomas Jefferson" to be published in the spring of 1997 by Yale University Press. He gave The Associated Press an advance look at the chapter titled, "The Women in His Life."

New insights into Jefferson's relationship with Angelica come from Jefferson letters recently purchased by the University of Virginia, the school he founded.

Angelica, sister-in-law of Jefferson's bitter personal enemy, Alexander Hamilton, corresponded with many of the young country's most prominent figures, among them Hamilton, George Washington and the Marquis de Lafayette. Her family kept the letters she received, but in February contacted a book dealer in Hadley, Mass., about selling them.

The dealer offered them first to the University of Virginia, which paid $275,000 for a total of 13 letters from Jefferson and 64 more from Hamilton, Washington, Lafayette and some lesser lights.

Angelica, 13 years younger than the tall red-haired Virginian, filled a real emotional need for Jefferson, says Adams, a fellow at the International Center for Jefferson Studies in Charlottesville.

A New Yorker, she replaced the beautiful and temperamental English artist Maria Cosway as the object of Jefferson's affections while he was American ambassador to France, Adams says.

Ironically, Angelica and Maria were friends and had conversations about Jefferson, he says.

At one point, Angelica gave Jefferson a handsome silver tea urn, "a perfect beauty," according to the recipient. Angelica said she hoped the urn "will sometime at Monticello remind you of your friend."

A small portrait of Jefferson by painter John Trumbull enthralled both women, and each obtained copies from the artist.

Angelica's note accompanying the tea urn said that while Maria's copy was better, she held a better likeness of Jefferson in her heart.

Was Jefferson in love with either of the women, both of whom were married?

"There is something going on, some sort of attraction" between Jefferson and Angelica, says Jan Lewis, professor of history at Rutgers University and author of "The Pursuit of Happiness: Family and Values in Jefferson's Virginia."

Ms. Lewis, however, believes

Jefferson was "head over heels in love" with Maria, not Angelica.

"He was deeply depressed" for years after his wife's death. "Once he got to France he pulled out of it," she says, primarily because of Maria.

Still, Jefferson's ardor for Angelica remained undiminished for many years after their first meeting in Paris in the winter of 1787. At the time, his infatuation with the flashier but more demanding and complex Maria was waning, and they eventually lost touch.

Six months after they met, Jefferson begs Angelica to return to Paris and in August 1788 he seductively proposes that she accompany him on a vacation to America.

"Think of it, my friend, and let us begin a negotiation on the subject. You shall find in me all the spirit of accommodation with which Yoric began his with the fair Piedmontese."

The characters Jefferson mentioned are in a sexually charged scene in "Sentimental Journey," a best-selling novel of the day by English writer Laurence Sterne. Yoric is forced to share a room at a crowded Italian country inn with the lovely stranger Piedmontese, and the two eventually have sex.

"The unexpected allusion in Jefferson's letter remains ambiguous, his intentions disguised but hinting at other possibilities," Adams says in his book.

In an earlier letter, Jefferson also urged Angelica to return with him to America: "Let's go back together then. you intend it a visit; so do I. While you are indulging with your friends on the Hudson, I will go to see if Monticello remains in the same place, or I will attend you to the falls of Niagara, if you will go with me to the passage of the Potowmac, the Natural Bridge, etc.," he wrote.

Said Ms. Lewis: "If you were a guy trying to make an impression on a woman (in the late 18th century) you would take her to Niagara Falls or Natural Bridge."

A decade later, Jefferson was still trying. Writing from Philadelphia after Angelica arrived in New York, the vice president of the United States pines: "Tho you have taken so great a step, there is still a wide space between us. I shall entertain the hope that we may meet at this place, as on a middle ground, perhaps you may find it not unpleasant in winter to get this much nearer the sun, but whether we meet or not, I shall for ever claim an esteem which continues to be very precious to me, and hope to be, at times, indulged with the mutual expression of it."

Adams says it is impossible to know for certain if Jefferson ever had a love affair with Angelica, Maria Cosway, or other women, including Sally Hemings, a slave at Monticello rumored to have had a long-term sexual relationship with her master.

According to a story told by slaves, Jefferson swore to his dying wife that he would never marry again, and he didn't.

But Ms. Lewis said, "It seems implausible that a man who enjoyed marriage so much would have become a celibate widower."

Names in the News

DALLAS (AP) - Ha-ha, yes. "Hee Haw," no.

That's Mike Judge's decision. The creator of "Beavis and Butt-head" on MTV says you can laugh all you want at his latest animated series - just don't think he's mocking the country setting.

His upcoming Fox series "King of the Hill" focuses on life in the Texas suburbs, revolving around the Hill family and their mostly slow-on-the-draw friends.

"We're not doing a 'Hee Haw' thing here," Judge told The Dallas Morning News on Thursday. "It's very much like one of those towns on the outskirts ... where you go to work at someplace where there's a chain-link fence around a stockpile of pipes and stuff."

"I grew up in neighborhoods like that, so it's not looking down on it or anything," Judge said.

The series reflects Judge's experiences in Dallas, where he lived from 1988 to 1993 before moving to New York and later to Austin.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Salma Hayek can't decide which buss to take.

The actress, whose new movie "Fled" opened Friday, has played opposite many of Hollywood's leading romantic men. Asked on Friday night's syndicated television show "Extra" who kisses best, Hayek says it's a toss between Antonio Banderas ("Desperado") and Laurence Fishburne ("Fled").

"It's very different," she says. "Laurence is very professional and he's a gentleman. ... He's got the greatest lips. ... And Antonio, because of the type of relationship our characters had, it was a lot more passionate."

Hayek's other credits include "From Dusk Till Dawn" with George Clooney, "Fair Game" with William Baldwin and "Breaking Up" with Russell Crowe.

Says the 29-year-old actress: "I've been very, very lucky with men in film."

CAVE JUNCTION, Ore. (AP) - "Baywatch" lifeguard Alexandra Paul was on forest watch.

The 32-year-old actress joined environmental activists in their two-week-old blockade meant to keep loggers from reaching a stand of old-growth trees. Environmentalists say logging will harm salmon and steelhead spawning beds.

Paul learned about the blockade on the Internet. Her mother joined her Thursday in the southern Oregon woods, sharing a bottle of Evian water.

"Any act of defiance against the timber industry is important," Paul said. "There's not much untouched land left. Why can't we let it be?"

What impression will you leave on our environment?

The first step in learning how to protect our environment is to learn to appreciate what we have.

Take a close look at the environment around you. It's very special and it takes special attention and care to keep it that way. That's why, since 1961, we've utilized recycled effluent, or waste water, rather than fresh drinking water in our cooling towers.

You, too, can help preserve our environment and natural resources by cleaning up litter, recycling, and by making Smart Energy Choices. Consider energy efficiency when purchasing a new electric appliance. Weatherize your home. Conserve energy where you can.

And never forget where you live. The impression you leave will be a lasting one.

Olympics open with 4-hour gala 1960 gold medalist Ali lights Olympic flame

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) - The big buildup is over, and so is the longest opening ceremony in Olympic history. Finally, the games have begun.

After six years of planning and a four-hour opening extravaganza stretching into the wee hours today, competition at the Atlanta Olympics started Saturday morning with 10 gold medals at stake.

The first sports action came in field hockey, where the U.S. women's team faced the Netherlands and the men's teams from Spain and Germany met.

Crowds were up early, especially at the Georgia Dome, where thousands waited in line to enter a single entrance to compulsories for men's gymnastics. The queue snaked around the huge arena and past the Georgia World Congress Center a block away.

Swimming medals were to be awarded today in the men's 100-meter breaststroke and 200-meter freestyle, plus the women's 100 freestyle and 400 individual medley.

Medals also were to be handed out in fencing, judo and shooting. The U.S. baseball team was set to open against Nicaragua in the morning, and the Dream Team plays Argentina in basketball at night. Other U.S. teams in action included soccer, water polo, women's volleyball and men's field hockey.

With President Clinton, former President Carter and other dignitaries among the crowd of 83,000 at Olympic stadium, ex-heavyweight boxing champion and 1960 gold medalist Muhammad Ali lit the flame to open the Centennial Games.

The identity of the flame-lighter was a closely guarded secret revealed only when swimmer Janet Evans handed the torch to Ali at the top of a ramp leading into the stadium.

With his left hand shaking uncontrollably from Parkinson's syndrome, Ali used his steady right hand to grasp the torch and light a wick that was lifted by a wire to the towering Olympic cauldron.

Afterward, Clinton and Ali hugged and clasped hands.

"He was great, wasn't he?" the president said.

Ali, the most famous athlete in the world, was a fitting choice to kick off the most international sporting event on the planet - one that includes about 10,000 athletes from 197 countries.

The games also have a record 30,000-member security force on alert for a possible terrorist threat.

With safety concerns heightened by the crash of a TWA jet Wednesday night just after takeoff from New York, security was extremely tight at the stadium, Atlanta's airport and the streets of the Olympic city.

"We still live in a world where human tragedies persist," said Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee.

Despite concerns about the sweltering weather - temperatures hovered in the mid-80s during the opening gala after an earlier high of 96 - the crowd was in a festive mood for the opening ceremony.

Atlanta served up a Southern-style welcome that featured perky cheerleaders, down-home dancers, flashy fireworks and a musical smorgasbord that included a show-stopping rendition of "Georgia On My Mind" by Atlanta's Gladys Knight.

Clinton got into the spirit when he joined in a "wave" around the stadium.

However, nothing kept away 97-year-old Leon Stukelj, the oldest living Olympic champion.

Stukelj tipped his cap to the crowd and walked spryly down a runway during a ceremony honoring past Olympic greats, including Nadia Comaneci, Carl Lewis, Bob Beamon, Teofilo Stevenson and Greg Louganis. Stukelj, from Slovenia, won a total of five Olympic medals in gymnastics at the 1924, 1928 and 1936 games.

Booster Scramble is Tuesday

The Whiteface Booster Club is providing a chance for anyone to meet the Hereford school coaches at a nine-hole golf scramble Tuesday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

The scramble starts at 5:30 p.m. and hot dogs and refreshments will be served afterwards.

Cost is $17.50 per golfer, with proceeds going to the booster club.

There are prizes: the winning team gets $20 per golfer (based on four-player teams); second place gets $12.50 each and third gets $10 each. Booster club memberships will be given out as longest drive and closest-to-the-pin awards.

To enter or to get more information, call the Pitman pro shop at 363-7139.

Y Tennis Open set this week

The Hereford YMCA Tennis Open will be played Thursday-Saturday at Whiteface Courts, just north of Hereford High School. The tournament includes 23 divisions for adults and children, male and female, in singles and doubles. The age groups go as young as 12-under.

Sign up for Co-Ed softball leagues

The Hereford YMCA will be starting a Co-Ed Church Softball League starting July 29.

Games will be played Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, starting at 6:20 p.m. each day.

The entry fee is $180 per team, and all entries are due Thursday.

Entry fees are $7 for YMCA members and $10 for non-members. These fees are for each player per division. The deadlines are Tuesday for the junior divisions, which begin play Thursday, and Wednesday for the adult divisions, which will be played on Saturday.

Matches will be best two-out-of-three sets, with 12-point tiebreakers.

Young athletes need physicals

Incoming seventh- and ninth-graders who plan to play sports at Hereford schools must get physical examinations before they can participate.

Ed 'Doc' Morrow, head trainer for the Herd, suggests that boys and girls who are entering those grades call their family doctors and schedule appointments as soon as possible.

Burba powers Reds past Bucs

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

If Dave Burba is going to be traded, and there have been rumors, he might want to stay in the National League. That way, at least he can still swing the bat.

The Cincinnati pitcher showed off some more surprising power Friday night, hitting a home run for the second straight game as the Reds beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 11-3.

Burba had never homered before connecting last week against Pittsburgh in his 85th career at-bat. The lifetime .103 hitter did it again in his start at Three Rivers Stadium.

"I like to hit," he said. "It's a part of baseball. If you get a hit, you really help yourself, and if you don't, it doesn't matter because nobody expects you to. I've always enjoyed hitting but I wouldn't say I'm a good hitter."

Neither would Reds manager Ray Knight, who could lose Burba if a contending team makes a nice offer before the July 31 trading deadline.

"When he came out of the game I asked him if he was more proud of the pitching or the home run," Knight said. "He said the pitching. I told him that was good because he isn't going to make a lot of money swinging the bat."

In other games, San Diego defeated Colorado 4-3, San Francisco stopped Los Angeles 5-4, Houston downed Atlanta 7-6, St. Louis beat Chicago 9-1, Montreal defeated New York 5-4 and Florida topped Philadelphia 11-2.

Burba (5-9) has won five of his last six starts, continuing his comeback from an 0-8 start. Early in the season, he was giving up home runs - now, he's hitting them.

Burba hit a solo home run in the fifth off reliever Chris Peters, making his major league debut.

"I went into my trot and this time I did without a big grin on my face," Burba said. "I kept that until I got back to the dugout."

Barry Larkin went 4-for-4 with a walk and scored four runs.

Astros 7, Braves 6

A crowd of 39,390, the largest at the Astrodome since August 1994, watched Houston beat Atlanta and stop a five-game losing streak.

Darryl Kile (9-5) gave up a home run to Marquis Grissom on the first pitch of the game.

Billy Wagner, sharing the closer's role with Xavier Hernandez while Todd Jones is on the disabled list, struck out Grissom with the bases empty to end the game.

Padres 4, Rockies 3

John Flaherty homered and stretched his hitting streak to 21 games as San Diego beat visiting Colorado.

Flaherty tied teammate Steve Finley and Florida's Greg Colbrunn for the longest hitting streak in the NL this season. He has hit six home runs since being traded from Detroit on June 18.

Fernando Valenzuela (6-7) was the winner and Trevor Hoffman got his 20th save.

Cardinals 9, Cubs 1

Rookie Alan Benes overcame the bad weather and the Chicago batters at Busch Stadium.

The game was delayed more than three hours by rain. Benes (10-5) returned after a 90-minute break after the second inning and lasted long enough to win his third straight decision.

Brian Jordan drove in two runs, giving him 18 RBIs in eight games. St. Louis won for the 20th time in the last 24 tries against NL Central opponents.

Giants 5, Dodgers 4

Barry Bonds hit a two-run double in the fifth inning after a pair of errors by Los Angeles shortstop Greg Gagne as San Francisco won at home. The Giants stopped a four-game losing streak and won for just the fifth time in 26 games.

The Dodgers put a runner on third with two outs in the ninth, but Rod Beck retired Mike Piazza on a fly ball. Beck got his 18th save, but only his second since June 18.

Marlins 11, Phillies 2

Chris Hammond earned his first victory since May 7 as host Florida won its fifth in a row. Philadelphia lost its sixth straight, matching its longest skid of the season.

Devon White hit his fifth career grand slam in a six-run eighth.

Expos 5, Mets 4

Mike Lansing's solo home run in the seventh inning capped Montreal's comeback from an early 4-0 deficit at Shea Stadium.

Mel Rojas, the Expos' fifth pitcher, struck out the side in the ninth for his 14th save.

Bernard Gilkey hit his career-high 18th home run for New York.

McGwire's two homers down Texas

By MIKE FLAM
Associated Press Writer

Brady Anderson may have lost the American League home run lead for good. Consequently, Mark McGwire may be on the way to his first homer title since 1987.

While Anderson, who was tied for the major league lead in home runs, was hospitalized Friday night for what doctors believe is appendicitis, McGwire hit his 32nd and 33rd home runs to move two ahead of Anderson and Albert Belle.

Anderson went to the hospital before the Baltimore Orioles' 13-2 loss to Boston when the pain made it difficult for him to bend over.

"If I have the surgery, I could be out for one month to six weeks," he said. "Hopefully, it won't be that and I will only be out for a few days. But it doesn't look good."

McGwire took advantage of Anderson's absence in the home run race, belting two as the Oakland Athletics beat the Texas Rangers 9-6.

Jason Giambi also homered for Oakland, which leads the majors with 154 home runs and is on pace to break the big league record of 240 by the New York Yankees in 1961. The Athletics also homered in their 15th straight game, extending the team record.

"There's a long way to go," said McGwire, who hit 49 home runs in 1987. "We're swinging the bats well right now. But there are so many guys having good power years."

Juan Gonzalez homered for the third straight game for Texas. He has 26 home runs and a 21-game hitting streak.

Reliever Carlos Reyes (6-10) won for the second straight night.

Red Sox 13, Orioles 2

At Fenway Park, Mo Vaughn was the slugger of note in Anderson's absence. Vaughn hit a three-run homer, his 29th, and had two run-scoring singles.

Jeff Frye scored five runs for the Red Sox, three after Vaughn hits.

"Any time you get on base in front of Mo, Jose (Canseco) and Timmy (Nachring), that's what happens," Frye said.

Angels 9, Mariners 4

Jason Grimsley won for the first time in six starts, receiving support from Tim Salmon's two-run homer that capped a four-run third inning.

Salmon, Randy Velarde and Pat Borders had three hits as host California tied a season high with 18 off five Seattle pitchers.

Grimsley's drought included five no-decisions and an 8-0 loss last Sunday at Seattle, where he allowed eight runs in 3 1-3 innings. Friday night, Grimsley (5-6) gave up four runs in six-plus innings.

Bob Wells (10-3) gave up four runs and seven hits in 2-3 innings, one start after recording the first shutout of his career over the Angels and Grimsley last Sunday.

Twins 3, Indians 2

Minnesota reliever Eddie Guardado retired pinch-hitter Eddie Murray on a grounder with the bases loaded to end the seventh, preserving the 3-2 lead. Murray won Thursday night's game with a pinch-hit homer in the ninth off Guardado.

Cleveland third baseman Jim Thome's error keyed a three-run rally in the seventh inning and the host Twins won despite getting just three hits.

Charles Nagy (11-3), the AL starter in the All-Star game, has not won since June 15. He is 0-2 with four no-decisions in that stretch.

Royals 7, White Sox 4, 10 innings

Kansas City scored three runs in the top of the 10th inning off Chicago closer Roberto Hernandez (1-1).

Bob Hamelin hit his sixth home run of the season leading off the 10th. The other two runs scored on an error and a wild pitch.

Brewers 7, Yankees 5

Host Milwaukee took a 6-0 lead after two innings against Andy Pettitte (14-5), the AL's winning pitcher.

Cal Eldred made his second start since undergoing major surgery to repair his right elbow on June 23, 1995. Eldred (1-0) won for the first time since April 27, 1995.

Tigers 8, Blue Jays 6

Gregg Olson, the fifth reliever for visiting Detroit, loaded the bases with two outs in the ninth, but got Charlie O'Brien to pop out to preserve the victory.

Cecil Fielder and Chad Curtis hit home runs, and the Tigers rallied from an early three-run deficit.

Fielder, who played for Toronto from 1985-88, hit his fourth homer of the season at SkyDome. His 15 home runs for Detroit at the park are the most by a Blue Jays opponent.

Irvin should be more like Sanders

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Watching the fan reception for Deion Sanders on the first day of Dallas Cowboys training camp, it makes one wonder why Michael Irvin couldn't do things Deion's way.
Or Emmitt Smith's way.
Or Troy Aikman's way.
Or Darryl Johnston's way.
Irvin had a chance to be the most popular Cowboy in the club's history. With his flamboyant personality and ability to back up his talk with wondrous plays afield, he had the key to Dallas.

Now, because he didn't watch who he kept company with and because of the illegal substances he couldn't leave alone, Irvin stands to be remembered as a loser.
It would be difficult to put a figure on the endorsements Irvin has cost himself. It's certainly well over a million bucks and counting. What company could take a chance on him now? Would they risk future embarrassment? It's not a gamble the public relations department of any company is willing to take.

And what about the Professional Football Hall of Fame? Voters into that facility don't have much of a sense of humor when it comes to voting in players with stained reputations.

If Bob Hayes can't get there, what makes Irvin think he has a chance? Hayes was the reason pro football coaches invented zone defenses. Yet, Hayes might not ever make it because of his drug conviction.

It could have been so different for Irvin, who had 111 catches last year. He's got Super Bowl rings and club records for the Cowboys.

If only he had followed the lead of Sanders and Smith, both astute businessmen who refused to be surrounded by questionable characters. They don't drink anything stronger than coffee or Powerade.

If Irvin could have only been there for the opening of training camp when the crowd at St. Edward's University shouted "Deion, Deion, Deion" after the first practice.

Sanders is the unquestionable fan star of the Cowboys now. He had the good sense to wade into the fans and give them autograph after autograph. Then he drove off with Smith as a passenger in his sleek black Mercedes golf cart with stereo.

Of course, Irvin isn't the only Cowboy who found himself on the wrong side of the public relations tracks.

Duane Thomas, Hollywood Henderson, Lance Rentzel and John Niland have been big name Cowboys to stumble in the past.

But none has as much going for them as the flashy Irvin, who could have absorbed something by osmosis being in the same lockerroom with Sanders and Smith.

Smith has always made himself available for interviews and therefore the media seldom misunderstands where he is coming from.

Irvin has always been a little bit on the mysterious side. He could be friendly. Then he could launch into garbage can throwing rages. Or shouting expletives on national television after playoff victories.

There was always something not quite right with Irvin.

Now we know what it was. Everyone pulls for him to find himself and eventually be like Deion or be like Emmitt or be like Troy.

Unfortunately, there has been damage done to his image and reputation that can never be fixed.

Dallas CB recovering from Achilles tear

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - He walks well again. He runs fine. He backpedals OK. So why isn't Kevin Smith on the field at the Dallas Cowboys training camp?

"Don't worry," Smith said. "If I had to play a game tomorrow, I could. I'll be there when it counts on Sept. 2."

Smith is recovering from one of the most devastating injuries a cornerback could suffer. He tore his right Achilles' tendon in the Cowboys' 1995 season-opener and earned his Super Bowl ring during rehabilitation.

It happened 24 hours after he signed a long-term contract that will make him a Cowboy for life.

"It was frustrating not being on the field," Smith said. "But I'll take Super Bowl ring No. 3. This year I want to be out there when we win another one."

Smith, a first-round draft pick from Texas A&M in 1992, had a reputation as one of the best cover corners in the NFL. He thwarted San Francisco's Jerry Rice on several occasions and was on the verge of being a Pro Bowl regular.

Now, Smith tries to overcome what some had called a career-ending injury.

"I'm not as fast as I used to be, but I have football speed and that's all you need," Smith said. "There will be a question whether I can cover until I go out and do it. I think I can do it. My torn tendon has healed to the point where it is stronger than the other one. I'm not worried about blowing it again."

Smith is one of the keys to the Dallas defense that lost five starters to free agency and will lose cornerback Deion Sanders part of the time to offense. Aside from last season, Smith has averaged 80 tackles, 15 passes defensed and 4 interceptions per year.

"There's no doubt that one of the keys to our season is getting Kevin back on the field playing like he did when he was one of our best defensive players," said coach Barry Switzer.

Smith is trying to pace himself so he'll peak for the Sept. 2 opener in Chicago. So far he has attended practice in street clothes.

"Mentally I'm ready but I have to build my stamina," said Smith. "I should be ready to hit the field in about a week and a half. That should be about right. I want my body to feel strong before I go out there again."

Smith said he hopes the defense doesn't lose Deion Sanders entirely. Sanders is working on his receiving skills and might even play both ways this year.

"I would have to do a lot of flip-flopping around if we lost Deion to offense," Smith said. "I would do it but it would be tough. We have to have Deion back there some."

Can the Cowboys pull off back-to-back Super Bowl wins?

"Everybody will be ready for us to mess up," Smith said. "I guess we have more visibility than any other team except maybe the Chicago Bulls. I think we can do it."

Particularly if Smith can return to form.

Heir born to O'Neal

ATLANTA (AP) - Shaquille O'Neal skipped Dream Team practice on the eve of the team's first game. He was tending to more important things.

No, he wasn't out finding new ways to spend his $120 million. No, he wasn't filming a movie or recording a rap album or signing an endorsement deal.

He was becoming a father, for the first time. His fiancée gave birth to a girl, named Tahceara, early Friday in Orlando, Fla.

Coach Lenny Wilkens said O'Neal would be back later Friday, in time for the U.S. team's game against Argentina tonight.

By missing practice, O'Neal also missed out on a visit from a member of the original Dream Team. Magic Johnson stood behind the baseline working for NBC, and every so often he'd yell to a player and flash his trademark smile.

Johnson was quoted in Friday's USA Today as saying the signing of O'Neal "definitely gets me to thinking that I can come back."

"It gets the juices going. I couldn't sleep last night with the thought of Shaquille signing with the Lakers. He always said he wanted to play with me."

Head injury patients practice skills in virtual world

By MICHELLE KOIDIN
Associated Press Writer
GALVESTON, Texas (AP) - Trevor Shockley was a Texas A&M senior on a bicycle ride when a shuttle bus struck and rolled over him, smashing his helmet into 25 pieces.

When he awoke from a coma 10 weeks later, Shockley couldn't remember how to feed himself, put on a shirt or tie his shoes.

"He's had to relearn to do everything," says his father, Joe Shockley. "He finally got to the point of putting a sock on his right foot."

A year and a half after his accident, the 27-year-old Shockley is entering a computer-generated world to practice basic tasks he has forgotten. He is among 30 patients at a Galveston rehabilitation center setting foot in a "virtual reality" kitchen developed to test whether such technology can help teach fundamental skills to brain injury victims.

In one of the first studies involving virtual reality and brain injuries, patients are learning how to make a can of soup in a simulated environment.

The program originated after a professor at the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston visited NASA 20 miles up the highway and discovered the space agency's virtual reality software - used to train astronauts to repair the Hubble Space Telescope.

The hospital joined with The Transitional Learning Community at Galveston and LinCom Corp., a NASA contractor, to create the virtual kitchen.

"We're very fortunate to be just down the road from one of the leaders in these virtual environments," said Charles Christiansen, dean of UTMB's School of Allied Health Sciences.

For UTMB, the $40,000 venture is a research opportunity. For LinCom, it's a chance to expand into fields other than aerospace and compose programs to market to clinics around the country.

For TLC, it's a safe way for patients to relearn potentially hazardous chores like cooking.

In a real kitchen, brain injury sufferers risk burning their fingers or spilling hot soup on themselves because they tend to lack judgment. Dr. Brent Masel, TLC's president, says.

But in the virtual world, patients can walk through the nine-step process over and over again as they prepare for independent living. The idea is to drill the routine into their heads so that it comes naturally when they have to do it on their own, Masel said.

The computer tallies how long it takes them to complete the task and how many mistakes they make, providing researchers with possibly more accurate data than that collected by therapists, who can become distracted or fatigued.

And, like the astronauts, patients can go over the steps time and again in the high-tech environment, which would be costly or wasteful in the real world.

"You couldn't practice opening a can of soup 100 times in a real kitchen because you'd go through a lot of soup that way," Masel said.

From the outside, TLC's equipment looks similar to the virtual reality games that have sprung up in arcades across the country. Users strap on goggles to immerse themselves in the alternate environment.

While arcade players and astronauts wear wired gloves to manipulate objects in the simulated world, TLC patients use a computer mouse to interact with the system.

LinCom plans to introduce gloves in a month or two, said Ken Huffman, the engineer who wrote the program.

The main distinction between the rehab program and the arcade game is the emphasis, Huffman said.

"It has requirements to be the functional equivalent of some real world task," he said. "It's a tool rather than a game."

Huffman said he is working on adding some distractions into the soup-making program, such as having the patient do laundry at the same time.

He hopes to have programs on four to six different tasks operating within two years.

Other researchers are combining virtual reality and rehabilitation, but the Galveston partners are leading the way, said Walter Greenleaf, who has organized three conferences on virtual reality and disabilities in San Francisco.

"What they have is pretty unique. It's one of the first implementations of what we've been talking about for a while now," said Greenleaf, owner of Greenleaf Medical Systems, a Palo Alto, Calif. company that has produced virtual reality environments for seven years.

A problem could crop up with the goggles, he said, since some users of such gear have complained of nausea. Greenleaf speculated that rehab clinics using the technology will switch to some type of large screen projection system when the approach becomes more common.

"In the meantime, I think they've probably chosen the best approach," he said. "The head-mounted displays aren't that expensive and they're available and pretty portable. This is a good start."

In Eugene, Ore., researchers have developed a virtual reality program aimed at teaching children with cerebral palsy or deformed limbs to drive motorized wheelchairs.

The children, who range in age from 2 to 14, sit in real wheelchairs and wear goggles. They are put in simulated worlds where they learn how to avoid obstacles, and eventually, to cross a street, said Dean Inman, a research scientist at the Oregon Research Institute.

"We evaluate the effects of what we do in virtual reality by testing what they can do in actual reality," Inman said. "We only care about what they do in the real world."

Both the Oregon institute and the Galveston clinic alternate between placing clients in virtual and real situations.

Masel says it's too early to tell whether patients can apply what they've learned in the virtual environment to the real world.

He noted, however, that the first time Trevor Shockley tried to make soup in the real kitchen, he had to be prompted by a therapist 11 times. After three runs through the virtual kitchen, he went back to the real one, and needed only a single cue.

While he clearly improved, Masel said, "we're scratching the surface here."

Reservoir, once considered crazy, keeps region watered

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer
BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) - The main water supplier in this region has faced challenges ranging from state politics to the endangered Concho River snake to the current drought.

And through it all, the taps keep on flowing. While residents in nearly 300 other Texas communities have faced shortages or rationing this year, tap water is plentiful in this historically dry region.

"People out here live in a perpetual drought," said John Grant, manager of the Big Spring-based district that never has forced rationing upon its customers in 43 years of pumping water.

Cities in the midwestern part of Texas contended for water individually until businessman J.B. Thomas made a simple proposal to five cities in 1946: Band together and spend a historic amount of money on a reservoir.

He told the Fort Worth engineering firm of Freese and Nichols Inc. to "go crazy," according to a brief chronicle written by district historian Joe Pickle.

Midland and Colorado City deemed the $10 million proposal a little too crazy and opted out. Big Spring, Odessa and Snyder carried the torch.

The eventual $12 million tab funded a new remote lake bisected by the Borden and Scurry county line southwest of Snyder. The reservoir began serving all three cities in 1953 and eventually was named for Thomas, longtime president of Texas Electric Service.

"It was absolutely essential to the survival of the municipalities the district serves," said O.H. Ivie, a former Freese & Nichols engineer who joined the district that first year of service. "Since 1953, none of the three has ever curtailed services."

Lake Thomas was followed by Lake E.V. Spence, about 40 miles southeast of Big Spring. The Lower Colorado River Authority, which has jurisdiction along the river from San Saba County to the coast, tried and failed to its construction.

The drought of the early 1970s quickly dried up Spence and nearly emptied Thomas as well. The recognized the need for a third reservoir, sparking a battle royal with the LCRA.

"It was more political than anything else," said Ivie, who ended his 31-year term as CRMWD general manager on Jan. 1. "I think when you look back at history and see the problems that existed, you understand why those folks were in opposition. They were doing what they thought was in their best interest."

"Of course, we didn't agree with them."

The addition of Abilene, Midland and San Angelo to the third lake effort bolstered the district's political clout. West Texas legislators promised Gov. Mark White in 1985 that the only way his statewide water legislation would see the light of day was with the Ballinger reservoir.

The pressure forced a deal. The lake won approval with the proviso that the LCRA, which supplies water to 750,000 people in Austin and surrounding areas, had rights to all of the new lake's water over 1,543 feet under dry conditions.

One such release occurred this year to bolster the LCRA's Lakes Travis and Buchanan.

"The relationship has improved considerably," said LCRA spokesman Bill McCann. "We're starting to work together more, and I think both sides are learning the real value of cooperation."

There were other bouts to fight. The district has spent about $3.7 million to protect the endangered Concho River snake, which makes a home in the reservoir and area rivers.

"We're still trapping it, identifying it and making sure the little hummer lives," said former San Angelo city manager Stephen Brown, who associated his city with the district.

A freak 1986 flood caused salt-laden Natural Dam Lake near Big Spring to overflow downstream into Spence, producing a salinity problem that exists today and accelerating the need for a third water depository.

Lake O.H. Ivie went into service in 1995. A complex pipeline system pumps water uphill for about 180 miles to a collection station near Midland's airport. From there, it's on to the taps.

There's no more room for another lake on the upper Colorado, meaning current manager Grant and others must keep searching for future sources.

"We're looking for what to do in the next drought," said Grant, who estimates that the status quo will be adequate until about 2030. "We're looking to 2060 and beyond."

Demeralization of the region's vast saltwater resources is among the most promising possibilities for finding potable water in the next century, Ivie said, particularly for small towns.

Other ideas might take some getting used to.

"Another thing we're looking at is wastewater reuse," Grant added, admitting that public perception might make it a tough sell. "At least we can start with indirect reuse, such as industrial and manufacturing uses."

Ivie said he's most proud of the district's self-sufficient nature - it's never used any state or federal funding - and a board of directors appointed by the three cities that consistently has put civic rivalries aside.

"We just accept the fact that it doesn't rain much in West Texas," said Ivie, now retired in Granbury, southwest of Fort Worth. "So we just do the best we can with what we have. West Texans will always be in a fight for water, and we'll always win."

My love for Heathcliff resembles the eternal rocks beneath:—a source of little visible delight, but necessary.

Hereford woman has faith that drawings by children can help bring faith to others

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

To quit a good job, borrow money from the bank and start a business -- all in two weeks -- can only take a strong faith and belief in your purpose.

Kerry Glidewell's faith is strong. So is her determination to share that faith with others.

The Hereford woman is doing just that with her unique new business, "Hallowed Be Thy Name," a calendar publishing company. While publishing calendars is not new, her approach certainly is unique.

The idea started from a single drawing by 7-year-old Jori Porter, of the three crosses on Calvary.

"The picture was speaking to me," said Glidewell. "I looked at it for a few days and knew the Lord was telling me I could reach others this way, through the eyes and heart of a child."

This was April 21. Once Glidewell felt she knew the message, she quickly began to take the steps necessary to follow what was in her heart.

"I had a great job. I loved my job," she said. "And, financially, I really didn't need to give it up."

But she knew her idea would not work if she did not devote herself to it fully.

"So I quit my job on the first of May. And with a lot of faith, and the support of my banker, I started to convert my garage into an office and buy the equipment I would need."

With only a couple of weeks left before school was out for the summer, Glidewell took her idea to Nazarene Christian Academy.

The basic idea is simple -- a calendar with drawings by the children that they can sell as a fundraiser for their school, church or organization.

"When I got approval to ask the children at Nazarene for their drawings, I just asked them to draw what was on their heart," said Glidewell. "It was so close to the end of school, I didn't expect many of the children would have time to do a drawing."

Glidewell asked for the drawings on Monday and got a few that afternoon, on Tuesday there was "a stack and another again on Wednesday."

It was a positive sign that her idea had some really great potential.

"I want people to know what these children are being taught. When I ask them to draw what is on their hearts you can see from the pictures how strong their faith is."

"I hope this will help keep the kids grounded in faith so they won't make the wrong choices," Glidewell said.

What really makes Glidewell's idea unique is that the calendars which each child sells will feature a drawing by that child on the first month of the calendar.

It will be no small task to accomplish this. But Glidewell has purchased what she felt was the best color laser printer and most up-to-date computer equipment available.

"Every time I do something the Lord just makes it prettier and prettier," she said.

The first calendar she had made by a professional photocopying company. While it looked good, she felt it could be better.

When she started to reproduce the drawings on her own color laser printer, they were a much better quality.

Glidewell has since learned how to coordinate the colors for the months with colors from the drawing.

The first fasteners were wire and did not crimp satisfactorily. She now has the equipment to fasten the calendar pages with a plastic fastener that looks neater and more professional.

Each step has renewed Glidewell's faith that she has taken the right path by listening to God.

"I want this to be a testimony to others to listen when God speaks and not just blow it off," she said.

Glidewell's plan is to stay directly associated with a Christian background.

"I don't want to get too commercialized. I want to make these calendars affordable so that people will feel they can afford them, like for Christmas gifts -- even if there are several names on their Christmas list," said Glidewell.

The organizations, schools or churches that decide to sell the calendars will keep $4 of the $15 selling price from each calendar they sell.

Glidewell also plans to place some of the calendars in hospitals, just as a way to help strengthen the faith of the patients while they are there.

The front of each calendar produced by "Hallowed Be Thy Name" features a picture of Jesus drawn for Glidewell by Daria Stengal.

The strength in the face of Jesus in that drawing is a symbol of the strong faith that has brought this message from God to reality.

And when Glidewell looks you in the eyes and says, "My purpose is not to get rich but to honor God," you know she is speaking from the depths of her faith.

She sums it up best herself. "I took this life that God gave me and chose to do something for Him."

The publisher

Kerry Glidewell has listened to God speaking to her through a child's drawing and started a calendar publishing company featuring drawings by children.

The beginning

This drawing by Jori Porter was the start of it all. Kerry Glidewell prays that her calendars featuring such drawings will help all to seek God through the eyes and heart of a child.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Last year, I married the woman of my dreams. She is funny, intelligent, loving, caring, exciting and gentle. Ours is a full and rewarding life together. We have traveled to several states for both business and pleasure. We go to church, get together with friends and relatives, and share the household chores. We have known both good times and bad, and our commitment to one another is stronger now than ever.

So why am I writing to you? Because I hope you will help educate a few million people today. Our marriage, blessed by a minister and approved by many friends and family members, is not legal in the United States. And if Congress has anything to say about it, we may never have a chance to make it legal. You see, Ann, I am also a woman.

My wife and I are hard-working professionals who pay our taxes and vote regularly. We pay our bills on time and are law-abiding citizens. However, we are not accorded all the civil rights that most Americans assume to be their privilege. Because we are not legally married, we have none of the legal rights married couples enjoy, such as gaining immediate access to a loved one in case of an emergency, sharing insurance policies at reduced rates, holding property together, filing joint tax returns and so on.

We are not seeking "special rights." We simply want the same rights every other American couple has: the right to be free from discrimination in housing and employment, the right to legal protection from harassment and, most importantly, the right to marry whomever we choose and to enjoy the benefits of marriage. A supportive word from you would give us broader acceptance and might possibly help us with a few legislators. How about it, Ann? -- A Loving Wife

Dear Loving Wife: I believe same-sex couples should be entitled to the legal rights that married couples enjoy, including the ones you stated: gaining immediate access to a loved one in case of an emergency, sharing insurance policies at reduced rates, owning property together and filing joint income tax returns. I also believe that same-sex couples should be free from discrimination in housing and employment and should have the right to legal protection against harassment. But, my friend, that is as far as I want to go. I define marriage as a union between a man and a woman.

Before you gay-rights folks land on me with both feet, I would like to remind you that I have been supportive of your movement for many years, have withstood a great deal of criticism in the process and have risked the wrath of some editors and publishers. I cannot support same-sex marriage, however, because it flies in the face of cultural and traditional family life as we have known it for centuries. And that's where I must draw the line. Sorry.

Dear Ann: Here's a question for the 17-year-old boy who didn't think low-rise jeans with high-rise underwear was sexy. I wonder how low HIS pants hang.

Every day, I see more boxer shorts showing than women's panties. Yesterday, I saw a guy whose jeans were so big, the crotch was down to his knees. No belt, of course. So, before he starts to diss anyone, maybe he should make sure his boxers are tucked in all nice and pretty. And, hon, check your fly while you're at it. -- A Minneapolis Reader

Dear Mpls.: You told him off very nicely. Thank you.

Urbanczyk, Broman exchange vows

MRS. RANDY BRORMAN
...nee Kathy Urbanczyk

Kathy Urbanczyk came the bride of Randy Broman in a Saturday afternoon ceremony in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronny Pagett of Hereford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Broman of Adrian.

Monignor Orville Blum of the church officiated at the ceremony.

The church was decorated with arches of greenery and ivory tulle. Bouquets of large ivory colored magnolias and burgundy eucalyptus accented with navy and gold adorned the altars.

Trina Eastwood of Fentress served as matron of honor. Best man was Gregg Broman, brother of the groom.

Bridesmaids were Mary Ann O'Rear, Wendy Schmucker of Canyon, sister of the bride and Jennifer Broman of Adrian, sister of the groom.

Groomsmen were Chad Strafuss of Vega, Mike Meiwes and Rodney Strafuss.

Guests were seated by Coby Kriegshauser and Chad Kriegshauser, cousins of the bride and Mike Broman of Little Rock, Ark. and Mark Artho of Dallas, cousins of the groom.

Serving as flower girls were Lenzi Schmucker, daughter of Alex and Wendy Schmucker of Canyon, and Lauren Blankenship, daughter of David and Julie Blankenship of McKinney.

Tyler Schmucker and Zachary Blankenship, brothers of the flower girls, served as ring bearers.

Music was provided by Diana Detten at the organ and Denise Wieck of Amarillo at the piano, while vocal selections were performed by Julie Detten.

The bride wore a floor length ivory sheath gown of Italian satin with schiffli lace and pearl trim with a basque waist bodice. The portrait neckline and off-the-shoulder pointed sleeves were also trimmed in schiffli lace and encrusted with pearls.

Her gown was complimented by a fingertip veil of illusion attached to an ivory pearl and crystal accented crown.

She carried a bouquet of bridal pink roses.

The navy crepe, full length dresses worn by the bridal attendants featured a shirred portrait collar neckline ending at the waist, completed with pearl buttons at the side. The front of the gown was enhanced with a tulip hemline.

The couple was honored with a reception in St. Anthony's School Auditorium following the ceremony.

Cake and punch were served by Kim Meiwes, Karen Ward of Amarillo, Terry Batenhorst of Canyon and Karen Batenhorst of Amarillo.

Angela Strafuss presided at the guest registry.

Others assisting were Miss Kristen O'Rear of Hereford and Miss Jordan Eastwood of Fentress.

The bride's Italian creme cake was staggered on individual glass towers and decorated with fresh bridal pink roses.

The groom's cake depicted a farm scene complete with miniature livestock, combine and tractor.

The tables were accented with ivory tulle and lights on a navy background.

The couple is taking a wedding trip to Jamaica.

The bride is the office manager at Mc 6 Cattle Feeders, Inc.

Out of town guests represented New Braunfels, Bellville, Fentress, Dallas, Irving and Little Rock, Ark.

A good marriage is that in which each appoints the other guardian of his solitude.

Christ's Church Fellowship site of wedding

Christ's Church Fellowship was the site of the Saturday afternoon wedding of Lorie Lee Romo and Freddie G. Valdez.

The bride is the daughter of Eva Romo of Hereford and the late Frank Romo Jr. The bridegroom is the son of Victor and Eva Villegas, also of Hereford.

Raul Valdez, elder of Christ's Church Fellowship and uncle of the groom, officiated at the ceremony.

The church was decorated with bouquets of assorted fresh flowers, accented with ribbons in the bride's chosen colors of teal and peach.

Maid of honor was Raylene Villegas of Hereford, sister of the bridegroom. Best man was Louis Hernandez of Hereford.

Bridesmaids were Chasity Trevino, Yvette Villegas, cousin of the groom, Marisol Trevizo and Amanda Bustamante.

Groomsmen were Mark Valdez of Dallas, brother of the groom, and Benito Ortiz Jr.

Serving as ushers were Eric Valdez and Christopher Valdez, cousins of the groom.

Flower girl was Celeste Nichole Claudio, daughter of the bride.

Ring bearers were Trey Valdez, nephew of the groom and son of Rodney and Lisa Valdez of Colorado, and Austin Romo, cousin of the bride and son of Johnny and Melissa Romo of Amarillo.

Mike Madrigal and Mary Madrigal served as candle lighters.

Train bearers were Sadi and Gabi Bustamante.

Music was provided by Yolanda

Gonzales on the organ and Jane Wilks on the oboe. Vocalists were Abby Wilks and Melissa Young.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Frank Romo III of San Antonio, wore an ivory silk gown with a chapel length train, accented with lace and accented with pearls.

The ivory waist-length veil of illusion was attached to silk roses accented with pearls.

She carried a cascading bouquet of ivory silk roses, ivory ribbon and pearls.

Bridal attendants wore floor-length dresses of teal lace and carried two roses, one in teal and one in peach.

The couple was honored with a reception in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

Yvette Romo of Charlotte presided at the guest registry. Becky Valdez served cake and Antonia Diaz served punch.

The three-tiered ivory wedding cake was decorated with peach roses and a teal water fall.

Following a wedding trip to Dallas, the couple will be at home in Hereford.

Military Muster

Marine Pfc. Christy D. Shedeed, daughter of Pam Oakley of Hereford, recently received the Marine Corps Good Conduct Medal.

The medal recognized the service member's honest and faithful service during a three-year period. To ear it, Shedeed achieved and maintained a satisfactory level of performance and an unblemished conduct record for the entire period.

Shedeed is currently assigned with 1st Marine Aviation Logistics Squadron 36, 1st Marine Aircraft Wing, Okinawa, Japan.

The 1992 graduate of Hereford High School joined the Marine Corps in Dec. 1992.

If you think about what you ought to do for other people, your character will take care of itself.

—Woodrow Wilson

MRS. FREDDIE G. VALDEZ
...nee Lorie Lee Romo

The bride is a 1995 graduate of Hereford High School and is attending Amarillo College, studying to be a medical secretary. She is employed as a substitute teacher for HISD.

The groom, also a 1995 HHS graduate, plans to attend Amarillo College to study social work. He is employed by Suits Auto Supply.

Out of town guests represented San Antonio, Dallas, Lubbock, Charlotte, Houston, Amarillo, Austin Dumas, Poteet, El Paso, Ft. Collins, Colo., Olustee, Okla., and Monterrey, Mexico.

Couple is wed in Saturday ceremony

MRS. JOSHUA ANTHONY SHAWN FOGO
...nee Angela Jill Dutton

Angela Jill Dutton and Joshua Anthony Shawn Fogo were united in marriage Saturday evening in the First United Methodist Church of Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Bill and Teresa Dutton of Hereford. The bridegroom is the son of Terry and Pam Fogo, also of Hereford.

Jerry Stewart, uncle of the bride and pastor of the First Baptist Church in Stratford, officiated at the ceremony.

Ivory willow wreaths with ivory tulle, grapevine ivy, wisteria, peonies, ribbons and pearls were hung on the church doors. Pews were marked with ivory tulle pom-pom bows. Candelabra decorated with grapevine ivy, ivory wisteria and tulle lit the podium and crystal rose bowls filled with candles were placed throughout the sanctuary.

The bride's honor attendants were Melissa Cloud, Stacy Culpepper and J.J. Middleton of Lubbock.

Best man was Andy Fogo, brother of the groom. Serving as groomsmen were Andy Montana, Chad Sandoval, Petey Colvin and Michael Ramirez. Ushers were Rusty Dutton, brother of the bride, and Vince Castillo.

Ramie Stewart, cousin of the bride and daughter of Jerry and Cindy Stewart, was flower girl.

Serving as ring bearer was Brodie

Boren, cousin of the bride and son of Wayne and Elsie Boren.

Evelyn Hacker was pianist, while vocal selections were provided by J.J. Stewart, cousin of the bride, and Jay Boren of Stephenville, uncle of the bride.

The bride wore a princess style gown of candlelight regal satin. It featured a scalloped V-neckline, Edwardian sleeves and an elongated waistline. The bodice was encrusted with pearls and jewels.

The high back was centered with a designer bow and showed a runner of pearl buttons. The full skirt fell into a chapel length train which was studded with pearls and jewels, decorated at the hemline and double edged with borders of European lace.

Her two-tiered veil of illusion was fingertip length with pearls and sequins and adorned a Venetian lace crown headpiece.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of ivory wisteria and miniature peonies, burgundy tea roses, with navy and ivory accents on a bed of grapevine, and navy and ivory satin ribbon, pearls, tulle and baby's breath.

Her jewelry included her cousin's pearl necklace and her grandmother's engagement ring.

Bridal attendants wore evening length, close-fitting, sleeveless dresses of navy satin brocade with a sweetheart neckline. They carried bouquets of ivory peony stems surrounded by burgundy and navy gyp and baby's breath, tied with navy and ivory satin ribbon and pearls.

All floral arrangements were by Pam Fogo, mother of the groom.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church fellowship hall.

The bride's cake was a seven-layer ivory on white cake topped with the bride's flowers of wisteria, miniature peonies and burgundy tea roses. Each layer was decorated with patterned icing resembling lace. A cloud of tulle and pears surrounded the cake, flanked by navy candles.

The table was covered with a navy cloth and ivory lace overlay. Guests were served punch and cake from crystal appointments by Aron Clawson of San Angelo and Heather Stewart of Stratford, cousin of the bride.

The groom's table featured a large chocolate cake with chocolate basket-weave frosting, topped with chocolate covered strawberries. Sara Zinck served guests Irish creme coffee from a silver coffee service.

Following a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, the couple will be at home in Lubbock.

The bride is a 1992 graduate of Hereford High School and a 1996 graduate of Angelo State University with a BS in interdisciplinary special education. She will be a special education teacher in Lubbock this fall.

The groom graduated from Hereford High School in 1993. He will attend Texas Tech University in the fall to complete a degree in education.

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) - Borrowing a little from his tough Crocodile Dundee persona, Paul Hogan displayed some ruggedness on the European promotion trail for his new movie.

The 55-year-old actor completed a series of interviews, television appearances and photo shoots Friday in spite of a stomach ache that required a doctor's care.

He was in town for the German premiere of "Flipper," in which he plays Uncle Porter, whose nephew Sandy befriends the famous dolphin.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is there a way to avoid carpal tunnel syndrome? Two members of my immediate family have had it. They each work with their hands intensely on a daily basis. — Mrs. J.S.

ANSWER: Carpal tunnel syndrome involves painful compression of the main wrist nerve from pressure on its passage tunnel to the fingers. It can cause pain and tingling in the thumb, index and middle fingers.

Activity calling for repetitious use of the hands and fingers — from air hammering to typing — brings on risk of carpal tunnel syndrome.

Dr. Housheng Seradge, a physician who apparently sees a lot of carpal tunnel syndrome, has developed a set of five simple preventive hand exercises.

Do each of the following five exercises, in order; hold each position five seconds:

- Hold both arms stretched in front of you, and bend the wrists upward with the palms facing away from the body.

- In the same position, bend the wrists downward so that the palms are facing toward the body.

- With hands again extended to the front, make tight fists.

- Assume the same tight-fist position and bend the wrists downward.

- Dangle the arms loosely at your sides and shake the wrists gently. Repeat the cycle 10 times.

Wrist splints often help a carpal tunnel syndrome patient over the pain period. Patients with splints should remove them when doing the exercises.

I have seen no feedback on the exercises, so I am anxious to learn of results.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My problem is embarrassing. I cannot have an erection. I am in good health. I am 50. I do not want one of those devices they implant. What's left? — G.K.

ANSWER: First you need to determine if your impotence is hormonal, psychological, circulatory or nerve-related.

You claim good health, but such conditions as impotency can warn of more general problems. For example, if groin vessels are clogged, chances are other vessels are as well.

Treatments go beyond the penile-implant devices. Caverject — alprostadil — is a medicine injected at the base of the penis to increase blood flow. It produces an erection in five to 20 minutes in 80 percent of cases. The patient injects the medicine himself.

For more on impotence causes, see the Health Letter report on the subject. Readers can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — SR125, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: The talk about ticks and disease makes me leery of camping out this year. How many illnesses do ticks cause? — N.S.

ANSWER: Ticks have always been out there, and they've always had a knack for harboring infection. We probably are hearing more about ticks these days because of better information provided to campers, hikers and others who enjoy the outdoors.

A few precautions end most risks. Use a tick repellent, such as Deet or permethrin. Wear long sleeves, and keep pants tucked into socks.

Employ self-detection. If you see a tick, grasp it near its head with tweezers and gently pull it off the skin.

Lyme disease is an infection wherein the tick produces a bull's-eye rash, usually in the bite area. Later, there might be joint pain, nerve damage, even heart involvement.

A similar illness, ehrlichiosis, is a newly described tick disease. Headache, fever and muscle aches predominate.

Antibiotics successfully treat lime disease or ehrlichiosis. I wouldn't let fear of tick-borne disease ruin vacation plans.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

After all, it is those who have a deep and real inner life who are best able to deal with the irritating details of outer life. -- Evelyn Underhill
The driver training course that a dozen of us participated in from July 8-12 was very interesting and informative. David Morris does an excellent job of presenting the material and we even had fun while we learned. This course will be taught several more times this summer and is a requirement for all who plan to transport students in school vehicles.

The race is on, or perhaps, and hopefully, it is almost over to secure teachers for each vacancy in HISD. Several teachers have changed campuses and that causes more BLT meetings, phone calls, etc. HISD wants the best, so patience is paying off!

Custodians and maintenance crews are working hard to have buildings ready for Aug. 12 when teachers will return to school. Student and teacher schedules will be reported soon.

A recent report revealed that the United States Marine Corps will begin training sessions on morals and values. It seems they've found that too many of their recruits and other marines are lacking in those areas. Could it be a message to parents and teachers that we must require more, or at least the expected, of our children? After all, these are qualities that should be taught from infancy!

Next week, for those of you who may have forgotten and also for those of you who may not know, we will report a brief history of the Hereford and Deaf Smith County schools. This area has had a very interesting history in education and we have enjoyed researching this history.

There are some things you learn best in calm, and some in storm. -- Willa Cather

MRS. JOE BARROW
...nee Melissa Rae Caraway

Caraway, Barrow wed in Amarillo ceremony

Melissa Rae Caraway of Hereford and Joe Barrow of Abilene were united in marriage Saturday afternoon in the San Jacinto Baptist Church in Amarillo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Caraway of Hereford. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Barrow of Abilene.

David Lough, minister of the University Church of Christ in Canyon, performed the ceremony.

The church was decorated with two large fan, two spiral and two small fan candelabra; along with two large pink and white sprays of gladiolus, gerber daisies, stargazer lilies, baby's breath and ivy.

Maids of honor were Cathy Taylor of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Michelle Emerson of Hereford. Best man was Mike Barrow, brother of the groom.

Serving as bridesmaids were Leah Show of Canyon, Chrystal Purcell and Jeri Freeman of Roscoe, and Jennifer Early of Snyder.

Groomsmen were Nathan and Marty Barrow, cousins of the groom, Brian Carrey of Denton, David Young of Houston, and Chris Carroll of Odessa.

Flower girls were Candace Caraway, sister of the bride, and Lori Jones, cousin of the bride.

Brad Barrow, cousin of the groom, served as ring bearer.

Kelli Barrow, cousin of the groom, and Malissa Dela Garza of Amarillo attended the register table.

Candle lighters were Cameron Caraway, brother of the bride and Scott Jones, cousin of the bride.

Music was provided by a brass quintet. Playing trumpet were Ricky Blair of Austin and Joe Hooten of Abilene. Playing French horn was Lori Hooten of Abilene. Eric Cates of Odessa played trombone and Marc Kondrup of Abilene played tuba.

The vocal selection, performed during the lighting of the unity candle, was "I Will Be Here," sung by Cathy Taylor.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin with a semi-cathedral train, accented with beaded venise lace.

She wore an elbow-length white illusion tulle veil with a juliet cap head piece accented with satin flowers and beads fashioned in the venise lace pattern.

The bridal bouquet was of fresh casa blanca lilies and peace roses with ivy, baby's breath, and white and blush ribbon accents.

Bridal attendants wore blush princess lined dresses with flutter sleeves and a draping collar accented with silk flowers. They carried a single peace rose accented with stephanotis, baby's breath, blush ribbon and lace.

The couple was honored with a reception following the ceremony in the church fellowship hall.

Serving cake, punch and coffee were Mabelle Dela Garza of Amarillo, Christi Stewart of Canyon, and Carol Hund of Canyon.

The bride's cake was a four-tiered white cake with white basket weave icing and strawberry filling. The cake was accented with ivy, blush and white geranium blossoms, and doves graced the top.

The groom's cake was an octagon shaped devil's food cake with cream cheese basket weave icing accented on top by a grand staff of music and ivy and white geranium blossoms.

The bride is a 1994 graduate of Hereford High School, and has attended Abilene Christian University for the past two years, pursuing a degree in music education. She will continue at the University of Texas at Arlington.

The groom is a 1991 graduate of Abilene Cooper High School and a 1996 graduate of Abilene Christian University with a degree in music education.

Following a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple will be at home in Hurst, where the groom is employed as an assistant band director at Hurst Junior High School.

Out of town guests represented Lubbock, Abilene, Midland, Andrews, San Antonio, Oklahoma City, Okla., Yukon, Okla., Virginia Beach, Va., and Niceville, Fla.

NEW YORK (AP) - Ben Vereen, recovering from surgery on both knees, should be back on stage in about three weeks to make his smooth dance moves.

Vereen had surgery Monday to correct problems with his knees caused by a car wreck several years ago, his spokesman Paul Baker said.

"He got most of his moves back," Baker said Wednesday, but craved that "extra little spring" he had before the accident.

Vereen is scheduled to dance again on Aug. 10-11 with the Utah Symphony Orchestra and should be ready, Baker said.

A dancer, singer and Tony-winning actor, Vereen is perhaps best known for his portrayal of Chicken George in the miniseries "Roots."

Karen Ward, bride-elect of Coby Kriegshauser, was honored with a bridal shower in the home of Judy Detten. Guests were greeted by, from left, Brandi Kriegshauser, daughter of the prospective bridegroom; Emilene Kriegshauser, grandmother of the prospective bridegroom; Nora Summers, mother of the bride; the honoree; Kambrie Ward, daughter of the bride-elect; Betty Kriegshauser, mother of the prospective bridegroom and Tillie Scott, grandmother of the prospective bridegroom.

Bridal shower for future bride of Kriegshauser held in Detten home

Karen Ward, bride-elect of Coby Kriegshauser, was honored with a bridal shower July 13 in the home of Judy Detten.

The couple is planning a July 27 wedding.

Greeting guests with the honoree were Nora Summers, her mother; Kambrie Ward, her daughter; Betty Kriegshauser, her grandmother; Brandi Kriegshauser, daughter of the prospective bridegroom; and Emilene Kriegshauser and Tillie Scott, his grandmothers.

Refreshments of fresh fruit, cheese blitz, tea ring, bacon crisps, ham and egg casserole and a bread assortment were served by Brandi Kriegshauser.

The refreshment table featured a centerpiece, created by Jan Furr, of giant red hibiscus with assorted white flowers and greenery, which circled the punch bowl.

An eight-piece set of hunter green Versailles cookware was the gift from hostesses Theresa Artho, Donna Albracht, Eileen Alley, Cheryl Betzen, Judy Detten, Shelly Diller, Carmen Flood, Christine Marnell, Nancy Paetzold, Sylvia Paetzold, Angela Straffuss, Lindy Yosten, Marion Yosten and Mary Zinser.

Mason will wed Brown in Gatlinburg

Mr. and Mrs. Dickey B. Mason of Hereford are proud to announce the engagement of their daughter, Amber Michelle, to Michael Shayne Brown of LuVerne, Ala.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy G. Brown of San Angelo.

The couple will be married July 27 in Gatlinburg, Tenn.

The bride-elect is a 1996 graduate of Angelo State University with a degree in education, concentrating in early childhood.

Brown graduated from ASU in 1995 with a degree in marketing. He is currently the marketing director for Wiswall Ski School in LuVerne.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, July 21; the 203rd day of 1996. There are 163 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On July 21, 1925, the so-called Monkey Trial ended in Dayton, Tenn., with John T. Scopes convicted of violating state law for teaching Darwin's Theory of Evolution. (The conviction was later overturned.)

On this date:

In 1816, Paul Julius Reuter, founder of the British news agency bearing his name, was born in Hesse, Germany.

In 1831, Belgium became independent as Leopold I was proclaimed King of the Belgians.

In 1861, the first Battle of Bull Run was fought at Manassas, Va.,

resulting in a Confederate victory.

In 1899, author Ernest Hemingway was born in Oak Park, Ill.

In 1944, American forces landed on Guam during World War II.

In 1944, the Democratic national convention in Chicago nominated Sen. Harry S. Truman to be vice president.

In 1949, the U.S. Senate ratified the North Atlantic Treaty.

In 1954, France surrendered North Vietnam to the Communists.

In 1955, during the Geneva summit, President Eisenhower presented his "open skies" proposal under which the United States and the Soviet Union would trade information on each other's military facilities.

In 1961, Capt. Virgil "Gus" Grissom became the second American to rocket into a suborbital pattern around the Earth, flying aboard the Liberty Bell 7.

In 1969, Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin blasted off from the moon aboard the lunar module.

Ten years ago: South African Bishop Desmond Tutu met with President P.W. Botha in Pretoria. Robert J. Brown withdrew from consideration as U.S. ambassador to South Africa. Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres arrived in Morocco for talks with King Hassan II.

Five years ago: Jordan became the fourth Arab country to sign on to a U.S.-backed Middle East peace conference. Secretary of State James A. Baker III met with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, trying to persuade the Israelis to agree to the talks.

One year ago: At a 16-nation conference in London, the United States and NATO allies warned Bosnian Serbs that further attacks on U.N. safe havens would draw a "substantial and decisive response."

Today's Birthdays: Violinist Isaac Stern is 76. Actor-comedian Don Knotts is 72. Movie director Norman Jewison is 70. Attorney General Janet Reno is 58. Actor Edward Herrmann is 53. Yusuf Islam (formerly singer Cat Stevens) is 48. Comedian-actor Robin Williams is 44. Comedian Jon Lovitz is 39.

Thought for Today: "A good scare is worth more to a man than good advice." — Edgar Watson Howe, American editor and author (1853-1937).

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Help! Through many years of housekeeping, I have been able to use much of your advice in my home-management problems. There is, however, one problem for which I have not been able to come up with a solution.

I have always had a canister-type vacuum cleaner, which no matter how hard I try to keep it from doing so, manages to bump against my wood furniture legs while I vacuum.

My problem is, how do I get these white marks off the furniture without removing the finish from the wood? I would appreciate any advice you can offer. — Kathy Duncan, Batavia, Ill.

We took your question to a wood specialist and here is what was suggested.

Mix equal parts nongel toothpaste and baking soda. Put the mixture on a slightly damp cloth and rub over the marks with the cloth, using moderate pressure.

It may take up to 15 minutes to completely remove them. Wipe the residue off with a dry cloth and buff with a soft cotton cloth. — Heloise

NEWSPAPER READING

Dear Heloise: When my aging mother had difficulty handling large sections of the newspaper, she would split the section down the fold and pick up one page at a time.

This way, she could keep up with the news without struggling. — Anne Warner, Arnold, Md.

BAKING SODA

Dear Heloise: Hi! I am a first-time writer, long-time reader. I've come across another use for baking soda and I don't think I have seen it in your column.

One morning when I was emptying my kitchen trash can, I realized it had been a while since I had washed it. Of course it was a day when I was in a rush, so when I put in a new bag I sprinkled in some baking soda and, voila, sweet as new.

Now I do this regularly (and wash it also) and it keeps the can and the general vicinity fresh. — Debbie Allies, San Antonio Aren't you a smarty! Baking soda is one of my favorite inexpensive deodorizers.

EXTRA COOLING RACK

Dear Heloise: Needing an extra cooling rack for cakes, I used the burner grate on my gas range. — Norma Harriman, Port Arthur, Texas

— YOUR EYES —

Peripheral Vision

Staring straight ahead, we can see only a small part of the world around us. Fortunately, our eyes reach further and, without quite noticing it, we are able to remain aware of what's going on around us. Say, if you will, that we "see out of the corners of our eyes"—achieving side vision without turning our heads from side to side, while still focusing ahead.

It's side vision—even unconsciously—that speeds our response time, that enables us to cross streets safely, ride a bicycle, drive a car or participate in sports.

Vision problems in one eye may limit the peripheral vision on that side. Retinal damage and the onset of progression of glaucoma can also affect side vision. Your regular optometric examination includes a test of your peripheral vision, noting how well you can see to the left and right without turning your head or eyes. Of course, any change of vision suggests an eye exam, too.

Outreach program trains lay people to give support in crisis

By CONNIE FARROW
Associated Press Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) -- Nancy Toole has always been one of those people friends go to when they have a problem or just want someone to listen.

So when the pastor of Webster Groves Presbyterian Church announced plans to start a ministry where people would work one-on-one with others to help ease the difficulties of daily life, Toole stepped forward.

"Often times I felt frustrated and helpless because I knew people were hurting, and I didn't know what I could do to help them," said Toole, who lives in the St. Louis suburb of Webster Groves.

She found the answer in Stephen Ministries, an international outreach program based in St. Louis that trains lay people to give support to those in personal crisis.

"What we do is listen," Toole said. "We are not counselors. We do not offer advice or move them toward certain decisions, and that's key."

The program has two parts. First, a church sends a small group of representatives to a seven-day leadership training seminar. They learn how to set up, administer and maintain the ministry.

Those people then select and train people from their respective churches to become the Stephen Ministers, the people who provide the one-to-one care. They get 50 hours of training, learning everything from listening skills to what to expect when visiting someone in the hospital.

"An important part of it is learning to accept someone else's feelings," said Joel Bretscher, a spokesman for Stephen Ministries headquarters. "They don't fix problems. They learn how to help the person reach a solution to their problem on their own."

Stephen Ministers are then linked with those in need, called "care receivers." The two meet every week, or as needed. Care receivers are never identified, and everything said to a Stephen Minister is confidential.

Kenneth Haugk, a Lutheran pastor in St. Louis who also is a clinical psychologist, developed the program. It is named after Saint Stephen, one of seven people commissioned by the Apostles to provide comfort and care in the Christian community.

Haugk said he realized early on that there was no way he could provide one-to-one, ongoing support to all those in need.

"I grew up in the 1960s, during the community mental health movement," Haugk said. "The idea was not only to do therapy, but to train others to give therapy."

That notion and his belief in Christian theology's dictate to comfort those in need, were the building blocks for Stephen Ministries, he said.

In January 1975, Haugk gathered volunteers from his congregation at St. Stephens Evangelical Lutheran Church in St. Louis. They were a varied group -- a teacher, a secretary, a homemaker, a student, a public relations director, a small-business owner, an insurance agent and a retired beautician.

By the time they were trained, Haugk had lined up people in need of ministry. They included a man whose wife had recently died. Someone who was blind. A young woman with cancer. A shut-in. A truck driver who had to retire early because of two heart attacks.

"Everything just clicked," Haugk said. "They were making a difference."

The program is not meant to replace the role of a pastor or priest, Haugk said.

"The pastor has the satisfaction of equipping people for the work of ministry and the joy of seeing more people receive care than the pastor alone could reach," he said.

Word of the program spread, and in the fall of 1975 Haugk began showing other churches how to train their own lay ministers.

"This is huge," Haugk said. "It's pretty amazing considering there are no mailings and no marketing programs. It's spread simply by word of mouth."

Haugk estimates more than 150,000 Stephen Ministers are active in more than 5,000 congregations representing more than 75 denominations in the United States, Canada and 17 other countries. More than 450 new congregations were enrolled last year alone, he said.

"The more we involve other people, the more we can accomplish," said the Rev. Don Cochran, associate pastor at Webster Groves Presbyterian Church, where three ordained pastors serve about 1,600 members.

"We've found that one-third of the people who join our church are in some sort of crisis," Cochran said. "Pastors sometimes don't always know their needs."

That's where Stephen Ministers come in. About 85 people have been trained as lay ministers since the church implemented the program in 1987, Cochran said. Toole served four years, although most are only required to make a two-year commitment.

The program has changed over the years to meet members' needs. For instance, the church has started a program that trains youths to minister to others their age.

Cochran is most proud of a Stephen Ministry program at a Presbyterian church in Nairobi, Kenya. The effort is part of the church's mission work, Cochran said.

"At about age 40, men in Nairobi are forced to retire," he said. "There's a tremendous amount of depression and some become suicidal. But with Stephen Ministries, people are beginning to look to the church as a place of hope."

The work of Stephen Ministers often isn't limited to their congregations. They also respond in times of community crisis.

When flood water ripped through Clark County in Washington in March, lay ministers from area churches went door to door, helping people complete the sometimes confusing paperwork associated with relief funds. They also were active last year after the Oklahoma City bombing.

"You name the crisis and Stephen Ministers were there," Haugk said.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Merlyn Mantle is taking on the fight against alcoholism, the disease that contributed to the death of her husband and one of their children.

Mickey Mantle's widow, who acknowledges her own 36-year battle with alcoholism, touched briefly on the pain she felt as she watched her surviving children cope with the disease that plagued their father.

She said Wednesday that she and her husband were at their lowest ebb when their son, Billy, died from an alcohol-related heart attack at age 36.

The Baseball Hall of Famer underwent a transplant in June 1995 to replace his liver, ravaged by cancer, hepatitis and years of hard drinking. He died in August from liver cancer at age 63.

PRAGUE, Czech Republic (AP) - Gregory Peck left the hospital where he underwent an emergency appendectomy and flew to Paris.

The 80-year-old actor was flown by private plane Thursday and accompanied by his French-born wife Veronique, daughter Cecilia, and a surgeon from the Karlovy Vary hospital, the CTK news agency reported.

Hereford Health Care Alliance will meet at Community Center

The Hereford Health Care Alliance will hold its general meeting at noon Tuesday in the Hereford Community Center game room.

The public is invited to attend and bring a sack lunch. Items on the agenda will include finalizing plans for the upcoming garage sale on Aug. 3.

The Alliance is planning the garage sale to raise funds for educational materials and two computerized baby models that will allow teens to experience first-hand the tough job of caring for a child. Funds will also be used for educational programs that address teen pregnancy by encouraging abstinence and building character in youth.

Anyone having items they wish to donate for the garage sale, please call Rick Jackson at 364-6348 or 363-7004 or Marlene Hendershot at 364-3444.

HBA raffles tree

The Hereford Beautification Alliance is selling chances on this 10' Texas Red Oak tree. The drawing will be held Aug. 10, during the Town and Country Jubilee. For the third year, this benefit raffle will provide funds for projects of HBA. McLain Lawn and Garden Center, represented by Jeff Eades, left, is providing the tree and will plant it. Also pictured is Pat Riley, executive coordinator of HBA.

Even though Summer Reading Club activities are over for this year, the Program is not over. There is still time to claim prizes for the kiddos who have earned them by putting time and effort into reading.

Regularly scheduled activities will continue through July, but no activities will be scheduled for August. This will give staff a chance to take vacation time, get refreshed, and come back to work full of new ideas.

This is your county library, so we need your input. Do you see a need in the community that is not being filled? Is there something that you would like to see the library do that is not being done by someone else? Is there something that we have done well that you would like to see continued or repeated? There are endless possibilities as we look for ways that the library can serve the community.

Our purpose is to provide a variety of information, educational, recreational and cultural opportunities for all county residents. If there is something we can do for you or your organization, we'd like to know about it.

We may not have an abundance of new fiction books, but we do have a new staff member. Our newest addition to the library staff is Sue Cherry. We are pleased to have her take on the responsibilities of the library services coordinator. Sue will be in charge of the children's story times, planning and scheduling adult programming, artwork, and other various and sundry duties. Her background includes a broad knowledge of arts and crafts, and she hopes to incorporate her talents and training into the programming of the library.

One of Sue's duties will be to enlist displayers of artwork, collections, etc. If you have something to share, please call her and let her know.

In The Anniversary by Rachel Cannon, the first anniversary of the assassination of United States President Melanice Lombard finds Melanice's best friend, Nora Whitney, at the center of a political and personal turmoil. Unexplained "accidents" keep occurring and the new President is putting pressure on her to mobilize Melanice Lombard's political network for his programs.

In the process Nora discovers that the woman she thought she knew so well may have had a secret life. As Nora struggles to find out the truth and avoid scandal, she is confronted with someone who tries to love her and someone else who tries to stop her -- permanently.

T. Jefferson Parker has written another of his crime/suspense fiction, The Triggerman's Dance. Rebecca Harris, murdered in front of the Orange County Journal offices, leaves not only shocked friends and colleagues, but also the two men in her life. One, Joshua Weinstein, is a tough, dark, passionate, Jewish FBI agent; and the other, John Menden, is a blond, WASP newsman.

The men, who each silently knew of the other's existence, now team up to find her murderer. Menden's role is to go undercover into the secret domain of a right-wing private security organization that was behind the filling--and get proof. Weinstein is the behind-the-scenes point man who uses the resources of the FBI to run the operation.

When things start to go wrong and Menden finds himself on his own, he starts to wonder: Is he here because he's expendable? Is this Weinstein's final revenge for Rebecca's infidelity? And whom, finally, should he trust?

Avid soccer fans will be interested in Goal! by Andres Cantor. The book gets its name from the trademark scream of the author, made famous throughout the soccer world by his enthusiastic commentary on the World Cup Soccer games of 1994, broadcast on the Spanish-language Univision network.

A history of the World Cup, this book covers it all; team histories and participants, statistics and individual names, the evolution of soccer from a technical and tactical point of view, and also from the perspective of its organizational and political context.

John Thorndike's Another Way Home is the personal account of the world of a single father. When Thorndike's Salvadoran wife, Clarisa, drifted into schizophrenia, endangering their son's life, Thorndike made the heart-wrenching decision to return to the United States and raise his son alone.

He records their life together including their tender moments, their passionate battles, and their heartbreaking reunions with Clarisa. As Thorndike relates how all-consuming it is to raise a child, he presents the child as a real kid, whining, giggling, wildly exhilarated, or inconsolably sad.

Our new program year will begin soon, and we are committed to making it the best year yet in service to Deaf Smith County. Let us hear from you.

Work at the library

Dean Hacker, left, head of maintenance for Deaf Smith County, and assistant Pete Madrigal are remodeling the genealogy room at the Deaf Smith County Library. Renovations will provide additional shelving to accommodate the library's growing collection of genealogy materials.

Magic of bonsai forest changed 'Bernie's' life

By GEORGE BRIA

POUND RIDGE, N.Y. (AP) -- Like someone in a fairy tale, Bernard "Bernie" Gastrich chanced upon an enchanted forest. This forest was only 4 feet long, a foot and a half wide and 30 inches tall. But its magic changed Bernie's life.

It happened 27 years ago in the environs of Kyoto, Japan's cultural, artistic and religious center. Gastrich, a New York optometrist on vacation with his wife, was touring the bonsai exhibition in a public park when the little forest of some 30 trees, rooted in a container an inch and a half deep, captured his imagination.

Now one of America's recognized bonsai artists, with exhibits of his work at the New York Botanical Garden and elsewhere, Gastrich, 64, says it all started on that day when he suddenly felt that the soul-stirring creation he was gazing at was also something he could do.

The word may sound like "banzai," the Japanese battle cry, but "bonsai," the ancient art of dwarfing live trees and shrubs and preserving them for as long as centuries, conveys just the opposite -- peace and tranquillity.

The term comes from two Chinese words meaning "tray" and "grow." The Chinese are regarded as the originators of the craft, but the Japanese perfected it into a high art form. They see in it an intensification of the beauty, grace and mystery of life.

In America, Japanese-Americans on the West Coast did bonsai, of course, but the craft really took hold when servicemen returning from Japan after World War II brought with them their enthusiasm for the little trees. Now, thousands of Americans fashion them. There are local, regional and national clubs and organizations. A thriving infrastructure has sprung up to service their needs.

Gastrich talked about that first encounter in Kyoto in an interview at his woodland home in Pound Ridge overlooking the Mianus Gorge, a national scenic preserve on the New York-Connecticut border. Magnificent trees towered overhead amid stands of rhododendron and laurel, their images intriguingly mirrored in tiny bonsai creations of his own that Gastrich had placed here and there.

A college oarsman and devotee of the humanities, Gastrich said he had felt an unfulfilled hankering to do something artistically creative. "Now here was something that was truly beautiful where some horticultural knowledge I already possessed would help me. I felt I had a good spatial sense, and that's very important in sculpture of any kind, and I consider bonsai a form of sculpture."

Back home, starting with a little pine he still nurtures, Gastrich went on to create not just two or three bonsai but about 50 of show quality. And he is working on 50 others in various stages of development.

In a basement workroom, rich in tools, soils, pots and chemicals, Gastrich discussed the intricacies of root pruning and shows you how the malleability of copper wire makes it an ideal medium for training branches. Nearby is another room where bonsai are stored in their dormant state in winter at a temperature between 25 and 40 degrees.

Newly retired from his optometry practice in nearby Bedford, Gastrich has more time now to devote to his little trees.

Gastrich's bonsai collection and beautiful grounds have been featured in garden club tours. He gives lectures and classes and also has private pupils.

EDITOR'S NOTE: George Bria retired from the AP in 1981 after 40 years that included coverage of World War II from Italy.

By SIBBY CHRISTENSEN

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) -- Here's a message you probably couldn't understand if it weren't in writing (that roar overhead is a plane circling to land), and you might not be able to concentrate on, anyway (the thumping is your neighbors' boom box): Noise is bad for your health.

Too loud and too long, noise can wreck your hearing because it will damage the inner ear's hair cells that carry sound to your brain. It also can cause stress, because you can't do anything about it.

"And if stress continues, it breaks down the cardiovascular system and the digestive tract," points out Dr. Arline Bronzaft, a noise expert who's been on the front lines of the urban noise wars for about 25 years.

Research repeatedly has shown co-relations between noise and hypertension, says Bronzaft, noise committee chairman of the New York City Council on the Environment. A typical study showed that children living near airports had higher blood pressure.

Another study of pregnant women living near airports showed a higher rate of low-birth weight babies and defects such as cleft palate, suggesting that loud sounds may have a negative impact on the fetus or the expectant mother's physiology. And noise that disrupts sleep night after night, causing the sufferer to shift back and forth from deep to lighter sleep, can cause ongoing fatigue.

More study is needed, says Bronzaft. "The fight for quiet is about where the tobacco wars were 20 years ago. We know noise has an effect on health, but we don't yet know how much."

What is noise, anyway? "Noise is an unwanted sound, and not simply a loud sound. It could be a neighbor's dog, a dripping faucet, or a television set. It's intrusive, uncontrollable, and unpredictable," she says.

And when it's uncontrollable and unpredictable, psychological and social factors kick in. "Noise causes anger, aggression, poor performance in school. And people are less helpful in this negative environment."

For a long time, people -- especially city dwellers -- accepted noise as a fact of life, she observes. If they wanted quiet, they moved out of town. But now noise has invaded the suburbs and the countryside; jet airplanes, leaf blowers, power lawn mowers, and amplified music so loud it can't be contained inside the house are everywhere.

"It used to be that loud sounds -- those causing physiological and hearing damage -- concerned only men in factories. But now all of us are exposed to loud sounds -- stereos, children's toys, airplanes."

To a great degree, noise pollution is our own fault, she says. "We're a nation of people who don't respect other people's rights."

Also responsible is the music industry, which she says promotes the idea of very loud music. "People don't realize they're hurting their hearing. Pete Townshend of the Who -- who lost his hearing and now campaigns against loud music -- told me his hearing loss was 'the price I paid for fame.'"

The irony is that much of the noise isn't necessary. Manufacturers know how to make quieter machines. Architects know how to construct houses with better insulation and sound muffling materials. Quieter cars can be made. Flight patterns can be altered. "There are plenty of things that are do-able," she says. "We have the know-how. But we just don't care."

Anyone looking for relief had better not rely on the government, she says. "The American government is out of the noise business. We just don't do anything. The American government doesn't want to touch it."

Anti-noise groups are forming all over the country, but there's no coordination and no leadership, Bronzaft says. Legal action by individuals isn't the answer, either, due to the enormous cost involved.

Education is the key, she thinks, along with more money for research, so intelligent policy and laws can be written. Existing regulatory standards of agencies like the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) aren't based on realistic, current studies and need to be reevaluated, Bronzaft says.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

THE HIGH COST OF TURNOVER

The problem of employee turnover is a serious and costly situation in many industries today. Some companies experience turnover rates of 300 percent and more. A company that normally employs 10 people would have 30 employees come and go in one year to experience a 300 percent turnover rate.

The problem consumers huge amounts of management time better spent on other activities. In addition, the costs of recruiting, hiring and training may be the largest hidden cost in many companies. Some business owners report that the cost of training entry level workers now exceeds $1,200.

According to many human resource experts there are several causes of employee turnover. The first is the practice of hiring employees whose skills or personality traits are not compatible with the critical factors and functions of the job. Hiring an introverted, detail-oriented engineer for an outside sales position is an example of such a mismatch.

Another cause is the way other members of the company treat newer employees. Unfriendly co-workers, supervisors who lack real leadership skills and managers with unrealistic expectations contribute to high employee turnover rates.

An additional turnover element is inadequate or unclear communication. All member of the business team must be able to understand what the others are saying. High-turnover companies always have deficiencies in the communication process.

Another reason for "revolving-door personnel" is inadequate training. If any employee doesn't understand what to do and how to do it, the frustration level will increase and the employee will often leave at the earliest opportunity.

Adverse working conditions can also cause turnover. An unsafe environment, difficult hours, unsanitary working conditions or uncomfortable work spaces are all potential causes of dissatisfied employees.

Another common cause is a pay scale below the prevailing wage rate. If you are the lowest paying company in an area, you become the employer of last report.

Turning the tide

The best ways to lower turnover rates actually begin before you hire anyone. You should carefully analyze every job to determine the critical factors related to it. For example, a retail sales clerk needs strong communication skills, knowledge of selling and the ability to initiate contact with strangers. On the other hand, key factors for success in a machinist's job might include the ability to work in one place and persistence to perform steadily at repetitive work.

After you identify key success factors, you should create a job description that clearly defines them. The more clearly you detail the job requirements the more likely you are to find candidates that match.

Several companies sell test instruments that you can use to evaluate potential employees personality traits and behavioral characteristics. Contact the nearest Human Resources Association to learn which tests might be most appropriate for you. You will find these profiling tools useful in evaluating current employees, too.

The next step in reducing turnover is using good interviewing techniques. Many good articles and several books are available with advice on interviewing and selecting good potential employees. Check with the reference desk at your local library.

Once you've found the right candidate, training should begin as soon as possible. Most small-business owners who are reducing their turnover rates tell me their training process never stops.

Another important factor is to reward those employees who perform their jobs well and motivate those who need a little encouragement. Remember, people require different motivation. A pat on the back may help one, a kick in pants another. (Figuratively speaking of course.)

A final thought on turnover. To improve anything you must be able to measure it. Once you begin to measure turnover you can begin to develop your plan to improve it.

Deluxe Master Suite Is Special Retreat

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
AP Newsfeatures
With 2,256 square feet of sprawling living space, Plan G-11, by HomeStyles Designers Network, provides an elegant home for those who favor one-story living.

In the front, decorative corner quoins, arched windows and a sleek hip roofline give this home the look of a stylish European cottage. It will blend nicely into any neighborhood.

Inside, the foyer shares a 12-ft. ceiling with the formal living and dining rooms. High half- and quarter-round windows brighten the living room, while the formal dining room features elegant columns and plant shelves. This attractive space will provide a fitting backdrop for special events.

The family cook will love the kitchen, which features a good-sized pantry and a sunny breakfast bay. An island cooktop provides room for many busy hands during meal preparation. There is a convenient pass-through between the kitchen and the casual family room.

Featuring a 17-ft. vaulted ceiling and a glass-flanked fireplace, the family room offers access to the backyard.

Across the home, the deluxe master suite includes a sitting room. Both the bedroom and the sitting room are capped by an 11-ft., 4-in. tray ceiling, while a two-sided fireplace lends further appeal to the area. The master bath has a 15 1/2-ft. vaulted ceiling, a garden tub, a three-sided mirror and a dual-sink vanity.

The two remaining bedrooms share a semi-private split bath.

Unless otherwise noted, all rooms have 9-ft. ceilings.

(For a more detailed, scaled plan of this house, including guides to estimating costs and financing, send $4 to House of the Week, P.O. Box 1562, New York, N.Y. 10116-1562. Be sure to include the plan number.)

THE FOYER leads directly into the living room, which merges with the adjacent dining room, creating the perfect setup for formal gatherings. On the left, highlights of the kitchen include an island cooktop, a pantry, and a serving bar. There is a fireplace in the family room, while across the home, a two-sided fireplace adds a charming touch to the master suite. The private bath showcases a garden tub. Two more bedrooms share a semi-private split bath.

STYLISH TRAY CEILINGS crown the bedroom in the master suite and the adjacent sitting area.

G-11 STATISTICS family room, breakfast nook, kitchen, three bedrooms, two full baths, one half-bath and a utility room, totaling 2,256 square feet of living space.

Architect can help with small jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Perhaps the kitchen or bath needs to be rehabbed, or a room reconfigured. Really too modest a job for an architect?

Not necessarily so, says Vyt Gureckas, assistant professor of architecture at the Catholic University of America.

"Builders know how to build," he says. "They aren't trained in the art of designing good spaces. But an architect can solve technical as well as design problems and help you achieve the beauty you want in a home."

A well-designed remodeling project will add value to the property, but there are intangibles as well, he says. "There's another value which can only be measured in terms of the contribution made to the quality of your daily life. This can be on a humble level or on a quite profound level, depending on what you challenge your architect to achieve."

Gureckas offers some guidelines in choosing an architect:

- Interview several architects. "Your architect should be technically competent and artistically gifted. Make sure he or she is registered."

- Ask for a fee proposal. It should cover five phases - schematic design, design development, construction documents, bidding and negotiation, and construction observation. The architect should explain what's involved in each phase.

- Choose a firm that handles the type of work you want, and look for an architect who is a good problem solver.

Hereford youth capture titles at prospect shows

Hereford 4-H and FFA youth livestock exhibitors competed at several prospect shows this summer and came out big winners.

Zack Wall captured the Grand Champion Prospect Steer title at Belt Buckle Bonanza Prospect Steer Show at the Austin-Travis County Heritage Center in Austin.

His AOB steer, "Rodman", beat out over 500 steers to become grand champion.

Amanda Wall won fifth place overall in the competition. Her steer, Red Dog, was also Champion Limousin.

Dr. Nevil Speer of Kentucky judged the steer show.

Her Charolais steer, "Rescue," captured the top prize.

Complete results of the Belt Buckle Bonanza steer show follow:

Hold fast the time! Guard it, watch over it, every hour, every minute! Unregarded it slips away like a lizard, smooth, slippery, faithless, a pixy wife. Hold every moment sacred. Give each clarity and meaning, each the weight of thine awareness, each its true and due fulfillment.

Agriculture Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Higher corn prices are slowing production of ethanol for motor fuel.

Production in May totaled 46,000 barrels a day, barely half the 91,000 barrels of a year ago, the Agriculture Department reports. Output in the nine months ended May 31 was down 19 percent.

Another 102 million bushels of corn is projected to be used this marketing year to make beverage and manufacturing alcohol. Last year's total was 101 million bushels.

A different arena, another show

Six-time champion bronc rider Jan Youren of Idaho gets ready to come out of the gate at a competition in Fort Worth, Texas. The tape around her chest and arms is to protect the 51-year-old's two dislocated shoulders. Youren is featured in Just for the Ride, airing Tuesday on PBS' P.O.V. (check local listings).

What is America's oldest organization of professional female athletes?

Hint: Though one of the events is a relay, you won't find this sport at the Olympics.

The organization is the Women's Professional Rodeo Association. Its members train for years and risk bodily harm or even death every time they enter the ring. They ride broncs and bulls, rope calves, barrel race and, yes, have relays. For all that, the top bronc-riding cowgirl in the country takes home just about $3,700 a year.

Just for the Ride, airing Tuesday, July 23, on PBS' P.O.V. documentary showcase, takes viewers inside the rodeo cowgirl's world. (Check local listings for air date and time.) It is the first film by Amanda Micheli, a fourth-generation horsewoman raised on top-hat-and-breeches English riding competition in Massachusetts.

"I always imagined out West it would be different," Micheli says in the film's narrative. In a separate interview, she explains what she found.

"I felt very claustrophobic in Boston. I always felt like I wanted to escape something there. But when I went to Albuquerque, it was like a weight had been lifted off of me. There was space and light and air."

And there are anachronisms, like 76-year-old Fern Sawyer, a working rancher with a closet the size of a living room, stuffed with evening clothes and spandex riding outfits. Micheli met her at the Fort Worth Stock Show.

"That was the first rodeo I'd ever been to," Micheli recalls. "And Fern was there in her gold leather suit and her box seats."

Sawyer had had two heart attacks and two hip replacements, but she still

"cut out" all her calves for branding at her Nogal, N.M., ranch. Micheli followed her there after the Stock Show.

"I was just really smitten with her. I knew when I met her that I wanted to spend more time with her."

Micheli took time out of college, returning to film Sawyer for an entire year, but her friend died a month later.

"I thought I had sort of found a beacon of light, and then it was shut out."

But the themes of aging and role modeling are sustained as Just for the Ride shifts to a profile of Jan Youren.

At 51, Youren is the mother of eight and grandmother of 38. She once competed for six months with a broken back, but she forgets about the pain and always goes back to what she loves.

Micheli eventually attended a rodeo school at Youren's ranch and discovered for herself the "rush of adrenaline, speed and power" of bronc riding.

Just for the Ride captures the spirit of humor, determination and self-sufficiency cowgirls developed when they were forced out of the Rodeo Cowboys Association six decades ago.

"I think it's been very important to them (to have) a women's organization that is run by women, who have their own needs," Micheli says, adding that her film has likewise touched a chord in girls and older women.

"My mother's friends love this film because a lot of it is about embracing age and not slowing down."

For girls, P.O.V. has developed a web site where users can talk about their aspirations in the "Corral of Dreams" and dress paper dolls out of "Fern's Closet."

Micheli intends to move on to other films, but she admits she still has one boot in the rodeo ring.

"Definitely, if I had a free weekend and there was a rodeo around, I would give it another try."

ARIES - March 21/April 20
A heart-to-heart conversation may be what's needed if a strained relationship is to survive. Getting everything out in the open is the first step. Keep alert at work. Mistakes could creep in if you're not careful. Impulsive shopping could lead you to financial woes. Only buy what you need.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
A little white lie you once told could come back to haunt you. You may have to do some fancy talking in order to get out of it. You're probably better off "fessing up" right away. A grueling task won't go away unless you do it. Get it over with so you can move on to more interesting endeavors.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
Someone you had a low opinion of will show you a different side and change your mind. Could it be that you were a bit shortsighted? Remember, everyone deserves a fair chance. An upcoming event gives you a lot to look forward to -- especially if you're doing the planning.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
Don't let a "friend" take advantage of your good nature. Remember, not everyone is as nice as you are. If you're feeling disillusioned with your career, it may be time to start thinking of other options. Try to figure out what it is you really want to do. It may be time to make a change.

LEO - July 23/August 23
If you're having a hard time focusing on simple tasks, it may just be a minor case of burnout. Instead of fighting it, give in. Take some time off and do something fun. You'll be back to your old self in no time. A second chance on something you thought was lost will give you a reason to smile.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Think twice before relying on someone who's let you down before -- especially if it's happened more than once. You're only setting yourself up for disappointment. A tip-off on an investment should be taken with a grain of salt. Don't be too eager to part with your savings on a risk.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
You'll have the satisfaction of winning an argument with someone who's "always right." The accomplishment of a loved one will lead to some type of change in the near future. You may want to start thinking about making some changes. A major hurdle at work will give you a strong sense of accomplishment.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
A misunderstanding in the workplace needs to be cleared up before things get out of hand and tempers start raging. On the social scene, things will be busier than usual. In fact, you may have to cancel plans in order to keep your life on an even keel. Wednesday is a lucky day for single Scorpios.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Looking for some excitement, Sagittarius? If so, you should have several opportunities to do something daring this week. News of a friend from your past will surprise you. You'll realize that time has a strange effect on people. In matters of love, you may find a change in your partner.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Overlooking an important fact could get you into a sticky situation at work this week -- especially if you're in financial management. Be sure to check your work. Looking for love? This could be your lucky week. Be sure to dress your best on Friday. A Sagittarius plays a strong role.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
An argument with a loved one could turn into a blow-out fight if you're not careful. Watch what you say -- especially if you're dealing with Libra. Any social contacts made this week are likely to become valuable in the future. A Scorpio will play a very strange role later in the week.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
Don't count all your chickens before they're hatched, Pisces. Keep your optimistic side on the back burner this week. A happy home environment will be a comforting escape from your everyday stresses. Young children play a significant role later in the week. Aries brings shocking news.

A Mafia don (Al Pacino) tries to distance his family from a world of crime, but ends up becoming involved in a bloody mob war in The Godfather, Part III Sunday on CBS.

IN FOCUS

As Al Borland on Home Improvement, Richard Karn witnesses some unusual segments on the handyman show Tool Time, but none compare to the strange acts he presides over as host for Wow! The Most Awesome Acts on Earth.

The special airs Monday, July 22, on ABC.

Performers include a man able to swallow seven swords at the same time.

Also, a man will balance on a teeterboard as he juggles chain saws.

The life and work of wildlife artist John A. Ruthven are profiled in John Ruthven: The Art of Life, premiering Wednesday, July 24, on PBS (check local listings). Nick Clooney narrates.

The artist's environmental paintings are found both in private collections and public displays, from the White House to art galleries in London and Moscow.

The special also highlights Ruthven's efforts to not only paint endangered species, but to help preserve them.

Q: Please settle a disagreement. I clearly remember June Lockhart on Petticoat Junction, but my older brother and sister say no. —Carol Phillips, Pembroke, N.H.

A: Original Petticoat star Bea Benaderet, who played Kate Bradley, died shortly after work began on the 1968-69 season. To fill a "maternal" role on the show, Lockhart joined the cast as Dr. Janet Craig, who became the town physician.

Q: My friend, who says she is very sure of her source, insists that Beatrice Arthur (The Golden Girls) used to be a man. Is this true? —Wants to Know in San Bernardino, Calif.

A: Absolutely not, but you've given a lot of readers a good laugh.

Q: What was the name of a really interesting suspense movie Sam Neill and Nicole Kidman once made together? —Paula Ling, Long Beach, Calif.

A: You are thinking of Dead Calm (1989), in which the stars played a seagoing couple who came to regret picking up a young stranger played by Billy Zane (The Phantom).

Q: I had never seen Avery Brooks of Star Trek: Deep Space Nine on any other show until I caught him playing a character named Hawk on an old episode of Spenser: For Hire. How long did he have that role? —Zachary Polsky via the Internet.

A: Brooks played Hawk through the show's entire 1985-88 run on ABC. He reprised the role in A Man Called Hawk, which ran on ABC from January through August of 1989.

Q: Just how many acting Baldwin brothers are there? I know that William and Alec Baldwin are brothers, but I recently saw The Usual Suspects, which had a Baldwin actor who bore a resemblance to

June Lockhart

Alec and William. —Donna Renee, Elwood, Ind.

A: Stephen, who is Alec and William's brother, starred in Suspects. A fourth brother, Daniel, used to play Detective Beau Felton on Homicide: Life on the Street.

Yet another acting Baldwin, Adam, is not related.

Q: In May Picket Fences showed its final three episodes, then later began advertising "all new episodes." What's going on? Will the show be back in the fall? —Rick Swisher, Mansfield, Ohio.

A: No. In fact, young Adam Wylie, who played Zachary Brock, already has joined the cast of a new Fox sitcom called Come Fly With Me.

Networks commonly use summertime to "dump" episodes of canceled shows that were made but not used during the regular season. This does nothing but further confuse viewers already bewildered by the chaotic TV landscape.

SOAP TALK

Fickett leaving AMC; fans dislike response

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

Dear Candace: What happened to Ruth on All My Children? She has just disappeared. —A fan in Vermont.

Dear Reader: Mary Fickett, who plays Ruth, has decided to retire. At this time the executives at AMC are in search of a new love interest for Joe (Ray MacDonnell).

Dear Candace: Sarah on As the World Turns is a phony actress. She doesn't come through as a genuine person and her constant whining about family is so irritating. The show has gone downhill. —Rita of Iverness, Fla.

Dear Reader: Sarah (Lisa Lawrence) is irritating at times, but it is the writers' fault, not the actress's. She is only acting out what's in the script.

ATWT is plagued by constant cast and crew changes. It will take time for the show to get on its feet.

Dear Candace: A group of us at work record The Young and the Restless and The Bold and the Beautiful. We just read your column regarding Brooke (Katherine Kelly Lang), Sheila (Kimberlin Brown) and Stephanie (Susan Flannery).

We agree with the person who said Brooke is a good mother, etc. We didn't like you saying it was a bad day when fans were hoping Sheila got the best of someone. Why aren't you addressing the problem, which is what Stephanie is doing to Brooke? You shouldn't make fun of your readers.

We all agree with the person who wrote in about the new Ashley. She does not look like Ashley. Her character is totally opposite and she is so sarcastic. She is not Ashley. Do you think we are stupid? It upsets us you do not think we know the characters. —Loyal Fans in Fort Washington, Pa.

Dear Readers: It is never my intention to make fun of fans. My point was it is sad when fans want Sheila, one of the meanest women on daytime, to focus her evil ways on anyone.

As for the situation with Stephanie and Brooke, they were both doing what they thought was best for the children. Brooke has forgiven Stephanie. Maybe you should.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS

Now newly revised and better than ever!

Shearer Publishing is pleased to announce its new edition of THE ROADS OF TEXAS. We have added dozens of country roads, lanes, cowtrails, and put new names or numbers on hundreds of others, names like Good Luck Road (Guadalupe County), Seven Sisters Drive (Kendall County), and Lone Star Alley (Menard County). Altogether, the new edition identifies more than 25,000 state and county highways and byways, and the bright new cover features current scenic photographs from around the state. THE ROADS OF TEXAS is different from any other road atlas, with more detail, more historical travel information, more heart. It has proven especially popular with the curious traveler inclined toward a little adventure, who doesn't mind getting to Aunt Martha's house just a bit late.
