HISD choir director eyes regional, state rankings

'Time to take giant leap,' says Williams

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer

The Hereford Independent School District choir program is really going places.

And if Choir Director Margaret Williams reaches her goal, several choir students will become All-State members.

"My goal is that Hereford, Texas, can be competitive in Region I. Some of the top choirs in Texas come out of Region I.

"Also, we want to be competitive in All Region, which leads to All-State," Williams said.

Williams' goal is not out of reach. Hopefully, the choir students will participate as a varsity choir program and a junior high choir program in Region I University Interscholastic League (UIL) competition, she said.

The choir students would perform in front of three adjudicators, Williams said.

The adjudicators will rate their performance on based UIL standards, which include stage presence, sight-reading, breathing, diction, chorus, pitch, and appropriate style, she said.

The choir students recently participated in an UIL solo and ensemble contest at West Texas A&M University.

Advancing to the state vocal solo contest will be Brian Thomas, Noelle Merrick, Sammy Balderaz, Julie Schlabs, Emily Fry and Wendy Brisendine. Diana Detten will compete in the vocal solo and piano contests. The state contests are set May 26 in Austin.

Other Hereford High School UIL participants were Tina Chavez, Dwayne Dotson, Annie Keenan, Lisa Riley, Shrona Traylor, Jeff Ricenbaw, Cristin Leasure, Myra Sanders, Anita Baribeau, Jenny Artho, Rosemary Andrade, Camila Freire, Erika DeLa Cerda, Denise Amaro, Angelic Garza, Emily Curtis, Angela Wilson, Marci Goldsmith, Kylie Auckerman and Kerris Montgomery.

The Hereford Junior High School UIL participants were Aaron Wade, Essie Thomas, Kathy Garcia, Noemi Gonzales, Jennifer Carillo, Arnulfo Casarez, Brigham Brown, Vynessa Rangel, Isacc Mancha, Rachel Rodriguez, Analisa Enriquez, Yolanda Gallegos, Sharanda Ward, Cynthia Padilla, Coral Perez, Becky Fuller, Brandi Holley, Elisha Huseman, Becca Artho, Jessica Ramirez, Hannah Williams, Monica Brown and Jennifer Giddens.

Some of the choir students take private lessons from Susan Shaw,

Williams said.

"Some of her students are my students. She really helps to encourage voice excellence," she said.

Williams is in her second year as choir director. She has set a strong foundation for the choir program, which had to rebuild last year.

"Administrators, principals, parents and teachers have been so supportive in getting this program off the ground," she said.

More than 200 students participate in the district's choir programs, Williams said.

Students can participate in the sixth-grade honor choir, the two junior high school choirs and the high school choir, she said.

High school students will have an opportunity to participate in another high school choir in the 1997-98 school year.

An audition or director's approval is a course prerequisite for the choir program, Williams said.

The choir students learned to perform as a choir last year. Students learned singing, breathing and diction skills, she said.

This year, Williams and her students have concentrated on the

TWISTER!!

Despite years of calmness, planning still a major priority for area citizens

BY TOMMY WELLS
Managing Editor

With the approach of Spring comes the idea that flowers will begin blooming, and warm weather will be returning to Deaf Smith County and the South Plains area in general.

With that, too, is the realization that this area of the United States is part of an infamous region known as "Tornado Alley", and that at any given moment a twister could fall from the sky and send your roof, granny's best milk cow or Farmer Brown's corn crop flying by.

To be honest, the image of an animal being picked up and swept away by a twister is probably just the stuff Hollywood special effects people do to sell tickets and make Helen Hunt look even more appealing, but tornadoes can and do kill, and they can and do wreak havoc for property owners and businessmen.

For the most part, Hereford has been spared the wrath of Mother Nature throughout much of its history. According to the National Weather Service, there have been only two major destructive tornado strikes in Deaf Smith County since 1903.

That's not a reason to relax, however.

"It (Hereford) is definitely in the 'Tornado Alley' area," said National Weather Service spokesman Todd Lindley. "A tornado, even though it hasn't happened there often, is definitely a threat. Around here severe weather can erupt in a matter of minutes."

"Tornado Alley" is a term given to the mid-section of the United States - ranging from eastern New Mexico to Arkansas - where twisters have most often developed.

Deaf Smith Emergency Operations Control Manager Jay Spain said everyone should be aware of the conditions around them and have a plan of action in place in case a tornado does threaten. He indicates individuals and families should know where they will go in advance. Spain suggested persons should seek shelter in a small interior room such as a bathroom and pull a mattress over themselves.

"The thing people have to remember is that most people aren't killed or injured by the tornado itself. It's the flying debris that is the most deadly, so you want to try and eliminate as much area and debris around as possible."

Lindley concurred.

"I think the No. 1 thing anyone can do is be prepared and have a plan of action in mind. Just having something planned out in case it happens could eliminate a lot of the confusion involved should one touch down."

People, as a general precaution, should keep a transistor radio and a flashlight with strong batteries on hand when violent weather strikes. Persons should also have a small first-aid kit, covered shoes and a supply of fresh water and food in case the tornado causes

U.S. troops head to Eastern Zaire

WASHINGTON (AP) - Several hundred U.S. troops are heading to West Africa to prepare for a possible evacuation of Americans from Zaire, gripped in a civil war, the Pentagon says.

The action was taken Friday even though no formal order has been issued for an evacuation, officials stressed.

"This is continued prudent planning so we can respond rapidly in case a true crisis develops," Pentagon spokesman Col. Richard Bridges said.

About 500 private Americans are in Zaire, 320 of them in Kinshasa, the capital.

The step came as the State Department warned U.S. citizens to defer all travel to Zaire because of the unrest.

Much of eastern Zaire has fallen to rebels who accuse Mobutu Sese Seko, the nation's longtime leader, of robbing the country to enrich himself. The rebels say they will not stop their offensive until they reach the capital or Mobutu agrees to negotiate.

In the U.S. deployment, about 250 military personnel will set up a joint task force and will go to Brazzaville, Congo; and Libreville, Gabon.

Some may enter Zaire "if that becomes necessary as part of the planning process," a Pentagon statement said.

Pentagon sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the troops will be taking communications and transportation equipment with them, including helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft.

The troops primarily are coming from an Army airborne unit based in Italy. Forces from other services are included, as well as members of the Air Force Transportation Command, which is based in the United States, the Pentagon sources said.

"The Department of Defense has directed the U.S. European Command to deploy enabling forces, consisting of several hundred personnel, as part of contingency planning for a possible future evacuation from Zaire," the Pentagon statement said.

"This deployment does not represent a U.S. commitment to any particular

Combest to speak here

Congressman Larry Combest (R-Texas) will be in Hereford Thursday for a 10 a.m. Town Hall meeting at the Community Center.

"I believe these meetings provide folks the opportunity to express concerns and questions, while giving me the change to listen," Combest said.

"This is your Town Hall meeting to hear a brief report from me and share your views with me and your neighbors. I hope everyone who can attend will come spend about an hour to discuss matters important to us all."

The Hereford Town Hall is one of six meetings that Rep. Combest will hold during his work schedule in the area. Other sessions are scheduled in Andrews, Seminole, Levelland, Denver City and Dumas.

songs and music as a competitive choir, Williams said.

"It's time to take a giant leap," she said.

Williams attended a Texas Music Educators Association (TMEA) conference in San Antonio, where the All-State Choir performed for more than 2,000 people.

The All-State Choir was comprised of 280 students. The choir director was Dr. John Rutter of England. He is well-known for his compositions and original works of music, she said.

"It was a such a treat. It was a spine tingling experience," Williams said.

The choir students will perform in the Greater Southwest Music Festival May 1-3 in Amarillo. The students will compete in the varsity choir, solo and ensemble competition, she said.

The sixth-grade choir, junior high choir and high school choir are planning their spring concerts, Williams said.

With her goal in mind, Williams has begun to recruit choir students for the 1997-98 school year, she said.

She will begin auditions for the varsity and junior high UIL choirs in May. The auditions are open to the entire high school and junior high student body, Williams said.

It takes time, money, uniforms and transportation to build a competitive choir program, she said.

"And it takes lots and lots of time," Williams said.

Hereford schools are competitive in various areas -- academics, sports, drama, speech and band. And soon, the choir program will become competitive.

"We go to state with all those teams. I know we can do that too. I know we can," Williams said.

damage to municipal facilities.

Some ad Spain offered for persons caught in a tornado is to avoid mobile homes and automobiles. Those persons caught outdoors should find a ditch or low-lying area to lie in -- offering debris the smallest possible target.

Also people should know the difference between a tornado watch (in which conditions are right for tornadoes to form) and a tornado warning (when an actual tornado has been confirmed and people should seek shelter).

"When the tornado sirens in Hereford go off," Spain said, "seek shelter immediately."

The National Weather Service indicated that only 23 overall torna-does have been confirmed in Deaf Smith County since 1950.

The biggest tornado disaster in the county happened almost 26 years ago when a twister touched down. On April 19, 1971, a storm destroyed 25 homes, 22 trailers and caused lesser damage to some 120 residences on the northeast side of Hereford. Ironically, there were no fatalities involved in the city's only visit from a tornado. Medical facilities treated just 24 persons for minor injuries.

The deadliest tornado in Deaf Smith County happened on May 20, 1903 near Summerfield. A mother and child were killed, and three other family members injured, when a tornado hit their home.

McVeigh's lawyers must raise reasonable doubts, save face

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) - In a delicate dance, Timothy McVeigh's lawyers must raise reasonable doubts, while saving face - and McVeigh's skin.

The Oklahoma City bombing trial will feature a classic defense strategy with a death penalty twist: Aggressively challenge the prosecution's case, but leave enough room, and salvage enough credibility, to beg for mercy if the jury convicts.

"It's very tricky," said Michael Katz, Colorado's federal public defender of nearly two decades.

To accomplish this, expect defense counsel Stephen Jones to portray himself at trial as a voice of reason in a case of emotional chaos, a man who cares for both the victims and the truth.

Responding to what likely will be the prosecution's avalanche of gut-wrenching pictures and testimony, Jones will seek to limit the testimony of survivors and to curb evidence of McVeigh's anti-government views and possible militia/white supremacist ties.

And, with one eye on the penalty phase, he likely will refrain from absolute declarations of McVeigh's innocence, allowing the possibility that his own client could have been somehow involved, but only tangentially.

This will be then followed by a declaration that "could have" doesn't cut it criminal court, that the jury must find guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, that the government fell far short of overcoming that hurdle.

That's because the evidence, the McVeigh defense will argue repeatedly, is deeply flawed - undermined by confused, contradicting and lying witnesses, troubles in the FBI crime lab and holes in the prosecution's case big enough to drive a Ryder truck through.

Weaknesses in the prosecution's case, as the defense sees it, include:

THE PLOT

With the prosecution relying on McVeigh's former Army buddy Michael Fortier to implicate McVeigh in the bombing scheme, look for the defense to show the prosecution's star witness little mercy.

Fortier has admitted to knowing about the bombing plan and has pleaded guilty in exchange for his testimony. He will testify that he and McVeigh drove by the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City so McVeigh could case it out.

During what could be a lengthy cross-examination, Jones is expected to suggest through pointed questioning that Fortier is a liar who is fingering McVeigh to cover up his own wrongdoing.

The defense also will seek to distance McVeigh from Terry Nichols, who will be tried later, by showing that many of the bombing preparations were done by Nichols, not McVeigh.

As far as a motive, look for the defense to continue efforts already begun in the media to soften McVeigh's image - portraying him as nothing more than one of Pat Buchanan's pitchfork patriots, persecuted for his beliefs.

THE BOMB

The defense must attack the physical evidence connecting McVeigh to bomb materials. And this means going after the FBI lab.

In recent months, the FBI has been battered by allegations of contamination in the same lab that conducted tests in the bombing case.

Look for the defense to suggest key pieces of evidence are untrustworthy because of lab troubles. This would include tests showing traces of a chemical found in a detonating cord on McVeigh's belongings.

Meanwhile, the defense will continue to try to build a wall between Nichols and McVeigh by raising doubts about the reliability of a telephone calling card that prosecutors contend show calls from McVeigh to Nichols.

The defense will suggest that the FBI's reconstruction of calls is flawed and note that the card only shows that calls were made, not who made them.

In further distancing McVeigh from Nichols, the defense will point out that it was at Nichols' house that authorities found evidence of the theft of bomb materials from a quarry and evidence of the theft of a gun dealer.

Finally, defense attorneys have suggested that Nichols may have tried to implicate McVeigh by handing him a bombing-materials receipt so that it would pick up McVeigh's fingerprints.

Legislation could keep Indian casinos open

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) - The Legislature sent Gov. Gary Johnson a bill that would keep Indian casinos open and allow slot machines off-reservation.

It was a victory for 11 tribes whose casinos otherwise faced closure - possibly within a couple of months - because courts have ruled them illegal.

The Senate sent the bill to the governor early today on a vote of 27-15. Hours earlier, the House in a dramatic turnaround approved the bill 35-34.

Johnson has said the bill appears to be acceptable.

"It's been a long battle, but I think we as tribal leaders are happy with the outcome of the legislative process," said Wendell Chino, president of the Mescalero Apache tribe.

The legislation enacts nine-year compacts to be signed by the governor and the tribes, authorizing full-scale casinos on Indian lands.

And it allows 300 video or mechanical slot machines at race tracks - four tracks are currently operating - and 15 machines apiece at veterans' and fraternal clubs.

The Senate passed the legislation after two hours of debate. Pro-gambling senators used a parliamentary maneuver to thwart a filibuster by opponents.

The only amendment offered - to allow slot machines at bars - was rejected.

"This is not an endorsement of gaming," said Sen. Rod Adair, R-Roswell, who voted for it. "It is a recognition of the status quo and the unwillingness of the judiciary to do anything about it."

The state Supreme Court and federal courts have ruled that the 1995 compacts signed by Johnson and the tribes are invalid, and the casinos illegal.

The casinos remain open under a court order, but faced closure - possibly by the end of May - unless the U.S. Supreme Court agreed to hear the tribes' appeal, which was considered unlikely.

"I just called a couple of the casinos and the employees were elated," Frank Chavez, co-chairman of the New Mexico Indian Gaming Association, said after the vote.

The casinos employ more than 4,000 people, according to the association.

Race tracks in Sunland Park, Ruidoso Downs, Albuquerque and Santa Fe say they need the machines because of the competition from the casinos and the state lottery. Part of the proceeds would be used to fatten purses, in order to shore up racing.

If tracks at Farmington and Raton reopened, they too could have machines.

Veterans' and fraternal clubs had some video gambling before it was ruled illegal in 1995 and they were forced to unplug the machines.

"I think the people of New Mexico have spoken again in a loud voice," said Ed Thomas of Alamogordo, lobbyist for the nonprofit clubs.

With 88 percent of the machine profits required to be contributed to educational or charitable purposes, communities will benefit, he said.

Israel soldiers fire live bullets, tear gas at Palestine in clash

HEBRON, West Bank (AP) - Israeli soldiers fired live bullets and tear gas today at Palestinian stone throwers in the worst clash in this West Bank city in months. More than 125 Palestinians were injured, three of them critically, a hospital official said.

Elsewhere, Palestinian police arrested a leader of the militant Islamic group that claimed responsibility for a suicide bombing that killed three Israeli women in Tel Aviv on Friday.

Ibrahim Maqadmeh, a leader of the Hamas military wing who was released earlier this month from a Palestinian jail, was rearrested late Friday at his home in the Bureij refugee camp in the Gaza Strip.

Maqadmeh was detained hours after he told several thousand Hamas followers at a rally that suicide bombs, not negotiations, would stop Israel from building Jewish settlements in disputed east Jerusalem.

Maqadmeh, a 47-year-old dentist, spent 10 years in Israeli jails and a year in a Palestinian lockup. Hamas sources speaking on condition of anonymity said five other members of the group also were arrested late Friday and early today.

Friday's blast at the Apropro Cafe happened on the eve of the Purim holiday, which celebrates the deliverance of the Jews of ancient Persia from a plot to slaughter them. The attack, which also wounded more than 40 people, came after several days of warnings by Israeli intelligence officials that Islamic militants were plotting attacks in Israel.

Israeli troops enforced a curfew today in the suicide bomber's home village of Zurif in the West Bank, barring residents from leaving their homes. Israeli radio stations said troops sealed the home of Mussa Abu Deiyah Ghneimat, 28, and witnesses said soldiers were preparing to blow up the house.

In nearby Hebron, Palestinian stone throwers clashed with Israeli troops for a second day.

"We don't want peace, we want Hamas," chanted the crowd of several hundred. Some threw firebombs at soldiers, who hurled tear gas, rubber bullets and stun grenades.

More than 125 Palestinians were taken to hospitals - 27 with live bullet wounds and 80 wounded by tear gas and rubber bullets, a hospital official told The Associated Press. Five Israeli soldiers were also injured from stone throwing.

"Three of the wounded are in critical condition and are undergoing surgery," said Dr. Yousef Sharawi, the director of Hebron's Alya hospital.

One Palestinian policeman was spotted by his superiors joining stone throwers and was ordered to leave the scene. Both Israel's military commander in the area and the top security chief for the Palestinians arrived at the scene to calm the two sides.

'Selena' is final tribute to slain Tejano singer

NEW YORK (AP) - Latin singer Selena's crossover dreams are finally coming true - almost two years after the young artist was killed in a Texas motel.

When the Warner Bros. release "Selena" opened nationwide March 21, the Queen of Tejano Music finally reached American audiences from coast to coast, a goal that eluded her during her life.

Even if she sang some English songs in her concerts, most of her recordings were in Spanish. Only at the very end of her career did she start recording in English, as part of her label's plans to promote her to mainstream audiences.

Her sudden death March 31, 1995, at the age of 23, put an abrupt end to those plans.

Yolanda Saldivar, 36, fatally wounded the Grammy-winning singer during a confrontation at a Corpus Christi motel. The former head of Selena's fan club and manager of her boutique was convicted of murder and is serving a life prison term.

"Dreaming of You," an album that included Selena's English recordings and also several Spanish tracks, was released in 1995 but failed to create a big stir in the American market.

Now comes "Selena," a movie written and directed by Gregory Nava with an almost all-English soundtrack, which could finally give the slain artist what she wanted most: national recognition.

Selena's father, Abraham Quintanilla, was instrumental in getting the movie made. "He approached producer Motesuma Esparza and arrived at an agreement with him, and they thought of me to direct the film," said Nava in a recent interview. "I was, of course, delighted to do it."

Nava, the celebrated director of "El Norte," which was nominated for an Academy Award for its screenplay, and the critically acclaimed multigenerational "My Family," used interviews with members of Selena's family to form the basis of his screenplay.

"I tried to keep the story true to the facts," Nava said. "I even included things that the family didn't want me to show, like the fact that Selena married Chris (Perez) in spite of her father's opposition to her relations with him. I finally convinced them that that was the right thing to do."

Is the movie a real biography or a love letter to Selena?

"It's both, because if you do a true bio of Selena you are at the same time doing a love letter to her because she was so beautiful," said Nava. "Everybody falls in love with Selena and I fell in love with her, too."

After a long search, the role of Selena went to a young actress of Puerto Rican descent, Jennifer Lopez, who had worked with Nava on "My Family." Lopez also appeared in "Money Train" with Wesley Snipes and Woody Harrelson and "Jack" with Robin Williams.

"We went through an open casting call and 22,000 girls showed up for the open call in San Antonio, Miami, Chicago and Los Angeles. We selected three from that group and four actresses from a professional search that went on at the same time. And, finally, we selected Jennifer. I think the movie proves that I was right," said Nava.

Energas announces new plan for payment options, services

LUBBOCK--Energas Company announced this week a 12-month plan to enhance the quality of its customer service and to prepare the company to meet future changes in the utility industry.

Beginning early this summer, the company will create a network of payment centers at grocery stores, convenience stores and other locations in towns where Energas currently has offices. The majority of customers currently pay their gas bills by mail or by automatic bank draft, rather than in person.

Following the opening of the payment centers, local business offices will be refocused on field operations such as service calls and construction and maintenance activities. These field service centers will no longer take payments or handle routine walk-in customer transactions.

In early 1998, Atmos Energy Corp., of which Energas is an operating division, will open a central customer support center. Customers can call toll-free for service 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Location of this center has not been determined.

As part of this plan, Energas also expects to consolidate its field operations among offices that are located in close proximity to each other, although it is not yet known which offices will be affected.

Atmos will close its 108 business offices in six states for routine business traffic. After consolidation, approximately 77 offices will remain as field service centers in the communities. Over time, Atmos expects these changes will mean a reduction of about 240 jobs in the six states.

Energas plans to continue a strong presence in the communities it serves and has added three public affairs managers. Roy Urrutia will be in the Amarillo area to work with local governments, chambers of commerce, economic development boards and other entities.

"We believe this plan will provide our customers with enhanced service. In addition, the actions will increase the company's future efficiency in order to continue to be competitive," said Gene Ehler, president of Energas.

The little boy was leaving church one Sunday and said to the preacher, "When I get big, I'm going to come back and give you a lot of money."

"Why, Johnny, that's nice," the preacher said, "but what made you think of that?"

"Because my daddy says you are the poorest preacher we've ever had!" replied Johnny.

We were not too surprised when the topic of building a new hospital popped up again at the board meeting Tuesday night. There's no doubt we need a new facility; the question is whether taxpayers are willing to support the issue.

There is no doubt that the hospital board has been reluctant to bring up the issue of a new facility - and for good reason. Property owners are sick and tired of tax increases and on the verge of a revolt if the system is not changed.

In the 10-year period from 1984 to 1994, property taxes doubled in Texas, while property values declined. The economy of Texas has changed, so it's time to change the way taxes are collected. Legislators should realize that it is not a question of "if" the property tax system should be reformed, but "when."

It is time that every business in Texas has the opportunity to finance public education. Farmers and ranchers, manufacturing industries and other companies with heavy capital investments simply cannot afford for property taxes to double again over the next decade.

Soil and mud come in different forms and makeups. After heavy rains in the Fort Worth area recently, the water level can be found 24 inches down and water is still standing in some roads and ditches.

After most of the rains in this area, the water soaks into our soil quickly. A strong wind after rain speeds up the process.

But one thing is certain and the same, whether it be in Deaf Smith County, Fort Worth or Wisconsin, asking your wife to come pull out a tractor stuck in the mud can jeopardize marriages.

We threw Wisconsin in the example because a farmer's wife in that state recently wrote an article about the mud. If it rains enough here, local housewives can relate to her plight:

"Hon, got a minute? I'm stuck!

"It was my husband Ron interrupting my shampoo. I've been married to the same man for 24 years, and I think we have a pretty good marriage.

But there is one thing marriage cannot survive - him stuck and me pulling him out of the mud. So, I don't do it anymore.

"Any stuck man has a definite change of personality, a change to a tyrant. The woman changes too, into a devout Christian. All the way to the stuck tractor, she prays: 'Please don't let it be stuck too bad, and let the chain not break, and let it come out the first time.'

"We took the extra tractor to the field. Ron hooked up the chain and said, 'Put the tractor in gear and tighten the chain, and don't jerk or you'll break it!'

"I tightened the chain and looked back for his hand signal. All farmers have hand signals. It is up to the woman to figure out just what they mean. I started to pull. The engine died; didn't have it throttled up enough.

"Now, I can chop weeds, spread manure, rake hay, disk and drag, but when I pull the tractor out of the mud, all that knowledge leaves me; I become a bumbling idiot. I restarted the tractor.

"Somehow the chain came unhooked and it was my fault because I didn't go fast enough. 'What gear you in?'

"Third, I hollered back. 'Okay, give it more gas.' I throttled up all the way; the tractor raced forward and the chain broke.

"He climbed down from this tractor, his temper still under rigid control, but I saw trouble brewing because he took off his cap and ran his fingers through his hair. 'Hon,' he said, 'not so fast!'

"I know, okay? He had another chain and hooked it up. I pulled; the wheels turned. The only problem was that we were not moving. Soon my tractor was stuck, too. And so went the day.

"I've figured out a better system over the years. Now when I hear, 'Hon, will you give me a pull?' I go to the phone and call my brother-in-law. When men help each other out of the mud, it is an entirely different matter. They never break chains - or if they do, 'It had a weak link.'

"When the tractor is out, they stand around and reminisce about how deep the mud was and how they happened to get stuck, and when the other guy was stuck last, and how bad it was.

"The most fun a man can have is pulling a neighbor's bigger tractor out of the mud. They'll talk about it for weeks.

"Of course, if you pull out a neighbor, it is only common courtesy to call him when you get stuck. Otherwise, you might cause hard feelings because his tractor never had to pull yours out.

"It is a whole set of rules that only men understand."

Prime-time television gets low spiritual ratings in national poll

By DAVID BRIGGS
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Adultery is the No. 1 sin on prime-time television, and Montgomery Burns, the amoral tycoon of "The Simpsons," and the evil Dr. Michael Mancini of "Melrose Place" are the most hell-bound characters.

spiritual ratings in a national poll released Thursday, with two-thirds of Americans saying television has become less moral and religious in the past five years.

And that gives hope that religion may become more of a part of prime-time television, said Steven Reddcliffe, editor-in-chief of TV Guide, which commissioned the survey.

to create an energy monopoly on an episode of "The Simpsons," was most likely to go to hell.

Editorials from around the State

The Monitor (McAllen) on no-fault insurance:
Texas drivers must carry liability insurance - it's the law, and has been for 15 years. But it's a law that at least a fifth of the state's drivers ignore.

State legislators seem intent on doing something about this situation; more than a dozen bills have been filed to address it. Most of them, however, simply call for more of what they already don't work: The lawmakers want to stiffen penalties for those caught driving without proof of liability coverage.

If so many people statewide are ignoring the laws that already exist, what makes our lawmakers think more laws will be any more effective? Drivers and insurers have long begged the Legislature to allow no-fault insurance policies in the state. Under the plan, anyone involved in a mishap involving a motor vehicle would simply cover his or her own expenses. Instead of paying ever-increasing premiums to cover any damage they might do to someone else, people would buy policies to protect themselves. A person who suffers physical or financial damage wouldn't face the double blow of having faithfully paid on his own policy, then being stuck with costs of his own damage because the other party wasn't insured.

Many states allow no-fault insurance, and in a majority of states it has meant lower premiums for drivers.

Such insurance seems more reasonable anyway. People shouldn't have to depend on others to insure them against the costs incurred in an accident. And the state shouldn't force people to carry policies against their will. Under no-fault, people would protect themselves, which might give more people an incentive to take out such policies.

Fifteen years of mandated liability coverage hasn't brought the desired result. Isn't it about time for a new approach?

Waco Tribune Herald on welfare reform:
Many thousands of welfare recipients across Texas are being cut off from their welfare checks. Thousands more will lose their benefits as the effects of welfare reform begin to kick in.

Despite the warning that this day was coming, many welfare recipients and most communities are not prepared to cope with the human fallout from the welfare revolution.

President Clinton has quite properly urged private businesses and churches to hire off the welfare rolls. More problematically, Clinton has ordered federal agencies also to move welfare recipients off welfare rolls and onto federal payrolls.

The federal government is by far the nation's largest employer with about 2 million people on the payroll. That's not necessarily a good thing. The government should reduce its workforce when possible and not add to the federal payroll unless necessary.

It's better to have welfare recipients performing make-do work for the government than not working at all. Better yet, qualified welfare recipients would take necessary government jobs. But best of all, communities would combine resources to move welfare recipients into the private sector jobs that fund both government payrolls and welfare rolls.

One such community project that has received national praise and held out as a model by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Ford Foundation is San Antonio's Project Quest. This program encourages private businesses, churches and community-based programs to assume responsibility for public assistance while continuing to work with state and local governments.

The San Antonio program encompasses extensive training to ensure new jobs are not dead ends. It also seeks solutions to problems of day care, transportation, housing and access to private and public services. It's an umbrella approach to a jobs-driven program billed as an economic investment, not a new social service. ...

By early summer, Texas must have an approved plan to meet new entitlement laws. Besides the many food stamp recipients who have already become ineligible, legal immigrants soon will lose benefits. And Supplemental Security Income benefits will be reduced or removed for many elderly and disabled legal immigrants. These people will continue to have needs after their benefits are removed.

Communities must realize that moving people from welfare to work has passed the talking stage. They now need plans to ensure that this opportunity does not fail.

"Nothing succeeds like success, and 'Touched by an Angel' is a success," he said.

The national telephone survey of 804 adults was conducted Feb. 21 and 22 by Peter D. Hart Research Associates Of Washington. The poll has a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percent.

In a nation where nine in 10 Americans believe in God, Americans want television to be more representative of faith in prime time, according to the poll.

Eighty-two percent of respondents said they would like to see more references to moral issues on television, while 68 percent said they were eager to see more prime-time spirituality.

A little more than half of respondents said television treats religion respectfully, but 68 percent said TV has become less religious in the past five years.

Reflecting TV's poor relationship with God is the perceived moral laxity of prime-time characters. Respondents, who gave themselves an average rating of 85 out of 100, rated prime-time characters an average of 46.

Fully 20 percent said Mr. Burns, the tyrannical nuclear plant owner who once tried to block out the sun

ABC's "Family Matters" was the second most spiritual show, behind only "Touched by an Angel," respondents said.

Tess, the angel supervisor played by Della Reese on "Touched by an Angel," is the character half of respondents said they would most like to see as their child's Sunday School teacher. A similar percentage said Tess is the character they would most like to have a conversation with about God.

Comedian Jerry Seinfeld of "Seinfeld" was a remote second in both categories.

L. Brent Bozell III, chairman of the Media Research Center in Alexandria, Va., said the poll results are consistent with his organization's annual studies showing religion is rarely mentioned in prime time.

"Matters of faith are not allowed on television by and large, and 'Touched by an Angel' is an extraordinary exception," he said.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

We would like to express a huge "Thank You" to the staff of The Brand, especially Becky Camp, for assisting the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, Women's Division, in the current membership drive.

The Women's Division is looking for women who would like to assist in helping Hereford move from the wonderful town it is to the successful, exciting and growing town that it is going to be.

The Women's Division board invites all interested women to contact the Chamber office at 364-3333 and let Carolyn or Leticia know that you would like to assist this group.

A warm invitation is extended to all exciting, enthusiastic and creative women. Please contact the chamber office for more information. You could win Hereford Bucks for becoming a new member!

Shannon Redwine,
Membership chairman

Dear Editor:

We were pleased to note that the proceeds from the raffle held by the Merry Mixers Square Dance Club will be used to continue "to do projects to improve our community," but we are concerned about the fact that winners will receive gift certificates for Sam's, Wal-Mart, Sears and a 1997 Dodge pickup.

We were disappointed that none of these businesses is represented in Hereford, and we would like to suggest that their organization, as well as other Hereford groups consider (in the future) that money spent for raffle items be spent in Hereford.

We have many Hereford businesses who would love your business and will also give you the service you deserve. The Hereford businesses have contributed untold thousands of dollars to projects such as the Aquatic Park, the Senior Citizens Center, the various parks around the city, as well as many other places that make Hereford a better place to live.

Please ask yourselves prior to selecting prize items how much the businesses selected for the raffle have contributed to improve Hereford.

Our family feels that one of our primary responsibilities as Hereford business people is to attract Amarillo people to Hereford, not to encourage Hereford people to go to Amarillo, and we encourage you all to do the same.

Another suggestion - Hereford Bucks are always an appreciated gift and can be used in Hereford for everyone's benefit. A quick call to Don Cumpston at the Chamber office will take care of all the Hereford Bucks you can use.

Let's all pull together for Hereford!

Joyce Stevens

Kansas upset by Arizona; Cards erase Texas

By The Associated Press
All the top seeds reached the final eight of the NCAA tournament except Kansas, which was considered the surest shot of all.

The Jayhawks, ranked No. 1 most of the season, were upset 85-82 by Arizona on Friday night in the semifinals of the Southeast Regional.

"Life isn't always fair," Kansas coach Roy Williams said. "We had a fantastic, fantastic year. It was a dream season, but we didn't reach our final dream."

Arizona's dream is still alive. The fourth-seeded Wildcats (22-9), who lost to Kansas in the regional semifinals last year, reversed the defeat against the top-seeded Jayhawks (34-2).

"I'm proud of this team, and we don't want it to end," Arizona coach Lute Olson said. "We're having so much fun."

Freshman Mike Bibby scored 21 points and Michael Dickerson 20 for the Wildcats, who will play 10th-seeded Providence (24-11) on Sunday for a berth in the Final Four.

Providence, which nearly blew an NCAA bid at the end of the regular season, beat 14th-seeded Tennessee-Chattanooga 71-65 in the late game at Birmingham, Ala.

Sunday's East Regional final at Syracuse, N.Y., will match top-seeded North Carolina (27-6) against No. 6 Louisville (26-8).

The Tar Heels overcame a seven-point deficit midway through the second half to defeat fifth-seeded California 63-57, and Louisville overcame the loss of star DeJuan Wheat to beat 10th-seeded Texas 78-63.

The first two regional finals were scheduled today - top-seeded Minnesota (30-3) vs. No. 2 UCLA (24-7) in the Midwest, and top-seeded Kentucky (33-4) vs. No. 2 Utah (29-3) in the West.

Kansas trailed Arizona by 10 points with less than two minutes remaining, but the Jayhawks hit three straight 3-pointers to close to 83-82 with 21 seconds left. After Bibby made two free throws with 18 seconds left, Kansas had a chance to send the game to overtime.

EAST

Louisville 78, Texas 63
Alvin Sims scored a career-high 25 points and Damion Dantzler and Alex Sanders each added 17 as Louisville beat Texas.

Wheat missed seven of eight shots before spraining his left ankle with 15:52 left when he landed on the foot of a Texas player. He was carried off the court and didn't play again.

But Dantzler took over, scoring all of his season-high 17 points in the second half. Sims carried Louisville early in the game, scoring 15 in the first half when Wheat was struggling.

Texas star Reggie Freeman, who scored 34 points earlier this season in an overtime loss to Louisville, was held to a season-low six this time. Gabe Muoneke led Texas (18-12) with 19 points.

North Carolina 63, California 57
The Tar Heels rallied to win their 15th straight game and advance to a regional final for the 18th time.

California (23-9) built a 45-38 lead with 9:48 left, but Antawn Jamison and Vince Carter scored all of North Carolina's points during a 15-3 run that put the Tar Heels up for good. Jamison finished with 21 points, while Carter had 14.

Randy Duck scored 15 points for California, which was trying to reach a regional final for the first time since playing in the national title game in 1960.

SOUTHEAST
Providence 71, Tennessee-Chattanooga 65

Jamel Thomas sparked a late 15-2 run with three 3-pointers as Providence defeated Chattanooga (24-11) in a matchup of underdogs.

The Friars, seeking their first Final Four berth since Rick Pitino's squad made it in 1987, became the first No. 10 seed to make a regional final since Temple in 1991.

Austin Croshere led Providence with 19 points, while God Shammgod had 15 points and seven assists. Johnny Taylor scored 22 for Chattanooga, which shot only 38 percent from the field.

Jones disqualified in bout with Griffin

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - When it was time to fight, Roy Jones Jr. didn't want to. When it was time to quit, he wouldn't.

The result was a ninth-round disqualification for Jones, an unlikely victory for Montell Griffin and the perfect setup for a rematch.

Not that Griffin wanted it this way. "I wanted to win it fair and square," said Griffin (27-0). "If he's the greatest man on the planet, why did he have to hit a man who was down? I don't understand."

Jones, who at 34-0 is touted by some as the best boxer in the world, fought like he was afraid of Griffin. For the first five rounds, Griffin pushed Jones around the ring, backing him into corners and jamming him so he couldn't unleash his customary barrage of counter punches.

Jones refused to pressure Griffin and found himself against the ropes, absorbing solid body shots without resistance or retaliation.

But Jones scored a knockdown in the seventh when Griffin plunged to the canvas. But it appeared he tripped; he complained to referee Tony Perez after getting up.

"He didn't beat me. I was disqualified," said Jones, who lost the WBC light heavyweight crown in the scheduled 12-rounder before 2,400 people at Trump Taj Mahal on Friday.

In the ninth, Jones rocked Griffin with a right and then followed with three more rights and a left. Griffin dropped to his left knee to clear his head, but as he looked up at Perez for the count, Jones hit him with a right and a left.

"I took a shot to the back of the head and I took a knee on purpose to clear my head," the new champion said. "When I went down, I was just dizzy."

After the punch, Griffin's eyes rolled up in his head and he pitched forward onto his face. He was counted out by Perez, who then disqualified Jones at 2:27 of the ninth round as bedlam broke loose.

"I wasn't sure he was down," Jones said. "I thought he might pop up again."

Perez said he had no choice. "He hit Griffin when he was down. He hit him twice - I had to disqualify."

Raiders rap Baylor, 8-5

WACO, Texas (AP) - Baylor pitcher Kris Lambert's no-hit bid ended in the sixth inning on the first of six Texas Tech home runs as the Bears fell to the Red Raiders 8-5 on Friday.

Texas Tech scored all eight of their runs on home runs, as six batters each hit one home run.

The Red Raiders improved to 20-2 on the season, as Baylor fell to 15-9. Lambert held the Red Raiders scoreless through four innings before Brandon Toro led off the fifth with his third home run of the year.

Lambert had ten strikeouts through four innings, and he finished with 12. Texas Tech pitcher Jason Gooding held the Bears scoreless into the ninth, when Baylor scored five.

Right fielder Jeremy Dodson drove in three with his ninth home run of the season and fifth in five games.

Lakers upset by late call, lose to Heat, 98-97

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Basketball Writer
Was the Lakers-Heat game fixed? Los Angeles guard Nick Van Exel thought it was, and he didn't mince words in saying so after the Miami Heat edged the Lakers 98-97 Friday night.

"I think it was more of a betting call," Van Exel said in reference to a loose-ball foul on Elden Campbell with 17 seconds left. Campbell tipped in a miss that would have given the Lakers a 100-97 lead, but the refs waved off the basket and sent Miami's Willie Anderson to the line. He made both free throws for the final points of the game.

"It was a tough call, but bad refs make bad calls, so you expect that from refs like that," Van Exel said of the crew of Tommy Nunez, Ronnie Nunn and Tommie Wood.

"If the FBI wants to investigate Fresno State, they ought to investigate these refs," Van Exel said.

The FBI has recently looked into rumors that point shaving took place in college games involving Fresno State. It is almost unheard of for an NBA player to make allegations like Van Exel did against the referees.

Miami was a 6-point favorite, meaning the call against Campbell had little effect on the betting line. "I know that the call could have gone either way," said Anderson, who scored a season-high 11 points in a season-high 24 minutes. "I was just trying to get a rebound, and he did bump me."

The Lakers were also upset with the lack of a call when Campbell hit the floor with 2:50 to play and received a technical foul for protesting the non-call. Tim Hardaway converted the technical free throw and, on the ensuing possession, hit a 3-pointer to pull Miami within two.

"There was a very bad call on Elden's play," Jerome Kersey said. "One of their guys pushed him on the play. If we go to the line and make the foul shots, we go up eight points. Instead, we get a technical on Elden, they go down and make a 3, and that's four points. It kind of just changed the tide of the game."

In other NBA games, Vancouver defeated Denver 108-101, Chicago drubbed Indiana 117-98, Sacramento edged San Antonio 114-110 in overtime, Detroit defeated Minnesota 112-98, Atlanta downed Dallas 93-72, Charlotte beat Toronto 102-97, Orlando defeated Boston 104-99 and Philadelphia edged New Jersey 112-110.

Voshon Lenard paced Miami with 25 points, while Hardaway and Jamal Mashburn each added 21. Mashburn also had eight rebounds and seven assists before fouling out with 1:51 to play.

Campbell led the Lakers with 24 points and 12 rebounds. Eddie Jones scored 17 and Van Exel had 20 points and 11 assists.

Heat coach Pat Riley defended the key call.

"Willie was inside of him," Riley said. "There was contact made. He went right over the top of him. I've had that call go against me."

Los Angeles coach Del Harris declined to speak with the media after the game.

Grizzlies 108, Nuggets 101
At Vancouver, the Grizzlies broke their 15-game losing streak - the longest in the NBA this season - behind 31 points from Bryant Reeves and 24 points and a season-high 14 rebounds from rookie Shareef Abdur-Rahim.

"It's been a long time since we had a win, and the locker room has always been so down," Reeves said. "This gives everybody a little extra boost even though we don't have anything to play for because we're not in the playoffs."

The 15-game streak was the longest in the NBA this season, but it was shorter than the 19- and 23-game losing streaks the Grizzlies had last season when they finished 15-67.

Bulls 117, Pacers 98
At Indianapolis, Michael Jordan scored 36 points as he topped the 30-point mark for the 38th time this season, including 11 of his last 15 games.

Scottie Pippen scored 18, Luc Longley and Steve Kerr 15 each and Dennis Rodman grabbed 19 rebounds. Rik Smits led Indiana with 20.

Kings 114, Spurs 110
At Sacramento, Eddie Jordan was a victor in his first game as a head coach. Jordan replaced Garry St. Jean on an interim basis Thursday after St. Jean was fired in the midst of a seven-game losing streak.

"It was a tremendous relief," Jordan said. "It was a game that could have went either way. Give the credit to the players, they did it."

Mitch Richmond scored 28 points and Corliss Williamson 17 for the Kings, who moved one-half game ahead of Phoenix for the eighth and final Western Conference playoff spot.

Pistons 112, Timberwolves 98
At Auburn Hills, Grant Hill had 22 points, 11 rebounds and 10 assists for his seventh triple-double of the season as Detroit snapped a two-game losing streak.

Otis Thorpe had 20 points and Joe Dumars added 18 for the Pistons. Don Reid, replacing Theo Ratliff in the starting lineup, had a career-high 14 points and matched his career best with nine rebounds.

Hawks 93, Mavericks 72
At Atlanta, Mookie Blaylock scored

20 points, Christian Laettner had 18 and the Hawks scored the final 12 points of the game to ice its third straight win and hand Dallas its 10th loss in 13 games.

Hornets 102, Raptors 97
At Toronto, Glen Rice scored 27 points and Vlade Divac hit four key free throws in the final four minutes to put the Hornets (44-24) 20 games over .500 for the first time in club history.

Magic 104, Celtics 99
At Boston, Penny Hardaway scored

27 points and Orlando held the Celtics without a field goal in the final 3:54. Rookie Antoine Walker had 19 points and a career-high 21 rebounds for Boston, which lost for the 23rd time in 25 games.

76ers 112, Nets 110
At Philadelphia, Derrick Coleman made a follow-up dunk seconds after Sam Cassell was hit with a technical foul for taunting. Jerry Stackhouse made the technical, then drove to the basket on the ensuing possession and missed, but Coleman was there for the follow.

Chisox's Ventura breaks leg in spring game with Boston

By The Associated Press
The Chicago White Sox, who figure to challenge the Cleveland Indians for the American League Central title, might not have Gold Glove third baseman Robin Ventura for much of the race.

He sustained a broken leg and dislocated his right ankle sliding into home plate on Friday night at Sarasota, Fla. The White Sox say he could miss at least 3-4 months.

"I was walking off and I heard someone say, 'Oh, man,'" said Boston Red Sox pitcher Steve Avery, who was 10 feet away backing up the play. "It looked like he caught his foot on the plate."

Ventura tried to score from second base on Ray Durham's single, but was thrown out to end the fourth inning. After Boston catcher Bill Haselman applied the tag, Ventura did not get up, holding his leg in the air with his ankle gruesomely twisted.

"I saw guys wave to the dugout, but I didn't want to see it," said shortstop Ozzie Guillen, who called Ventura his best friend on the team. "I didn't have the guts to see it."

"I feel more sick right now than I felt with my injury," said Guillen, who missed most of the 1992 season after hyperextending his knee in an outfield collision. "To see his body go that way, that's what got me."

A woman in the stands who did see the injury had to be treated after fainting.

Dr. James Boscardin, the senior team physician, tried to realign Ventura's ankle on the field, but couldn't because of muscle spasms. The ankle was realigned inside the clubhouse, where Ventura was hooked to an intravenous tube.

A four-time Gold Glove winner and 1992 All-Star, Ventura is a career .276 hitter who is fifth in White Sox history with 144 home runs.

Extension Agent's Notes

By DENNIS NEWTON
County Extension Agent-Ag
This week's weather has been great except for the wind and lack of rain, but what else is new in the Texas Panhandle.

These warm conditions have me kind of concerned about our wheat crop. I finally had the opportunity to get out of the house this week, thanks to my wife, Pat, being able to drive me around.

The wheat crop is really growing at a tremendously fast rate for this time of the year. This can be good, but it also can have some devastating results.

Because our wheat crop is growing so rapidly and maturing at such an increased pace due to the warm temperatures, it is vulnerable to a late spring freeze.

Many of you remember last year, and even three years ago, when we got tremendously cold in April. Let us all hope that does not happen this year.

I got some information this week from Dr. Travis Miller, a Texas A&M University Professor and Extension Agronomist and a specialist in small grain production, giving an overview of the states wheat crop.

He said that this year's wheat crop is much better than last year's on a whole, except for our dry conditions here in the Panhandle that is effecting our dryland crop.

He said most of the Rolling Plains, Blacklands, East Texas and Southwest Texas have received good rains at present and have a very good crop.

He also stated that very little insect activity was being reported in any of the wheat areas of the state. In fact, he said that most entomologists and growers have reported the lowest levels of greenbugs and Russian wheat aphids in recent years.

Diseases are flaring up in central Texas. Leaf rust is beginning to hit the area from Waco to Dallas very hard. Reports of rust have come from as far as the Abilene area. His report also stated that he found severe leaf rust on several varieties.

Severe leaf rust infestations were observed in the central and north Texas regions beginning in late January, with many fields having as much as a 50 percent infestation level.

He had an interesting discussion concerning top dressing of wheat with nitrogen fertilizers. In the report, he cited a seven-year study that showed wheat planted for grain has a peak time for nitrogen use at jointing.

At this time, wheat can use up to two pounds of nitrogen per day. Nitrogen that was applied before the spike or wheat head was fully formed gave the response in yield.

He stated that in his experience, nitrogen applied after wheat was at Feek's Scale 7.0, or having the second node visible above the soil surface gave a very minimal and uneconomical response.

He also cautions producers to take care in applying liquid fertilizers that might cause leaf desiccation and burn, especially for wheat that is past Feek's Scale 5.0.

Air temperature can cause an even greater amount of leaf burn. With the warm temperatures that we've been having, morning or late afternoon application would be best.

The higher the temperatures and low humidity that we have been experiencing are also contributors to fertilizer loss due to volatilization.

Maybe we will get that good rain that we need so badly, and it will solve a lot of problems that we've been having.

I was looking at last year's weather data this week. In 1996, from January through May, we only got 0.24 inches of moisture.

Let us hope and pray that we do not have a repeat of that this year. Think rain! See you next week.

Hereford youth place, sell animals at livestock shows

Seventeen-year-old Zack Wall is no stranger to the show ring.

Wall, who has shown steers for four years, won the Grand Champion Steer banner at the 69th annual San Angelo Livestock Show and Rodeo.

He is the son of Johnny and Judy Wall. His brother, Eric, and sister, Amanda also have shown steers.

He is a junior Hereford High School, where he is a member of Hereford FFA.

He won the championship in the European and Crosses division with "Tonka," his 1,230-pound Limousin steer.

The steer then was slapped as the Grand Champion Steer of the show by the steer judge, John Kuykendall, a County Extension Agent-AG from Llano.

Wall sold his champion steer to Donna Moorehead and Pat Kelley of H-E-B Food Stores for $14,000 in the premium sale.

Wall was not the only winner from Deaf Smith County.

Several youth placed and sold their animals at the major junior livestock shows.

Here are the complete results of Deaf Smith County 4-H and Hereford FFA members at the major livestock shows.

Cecil Richardson from Hale Center, Texas, sprayed his wheat with Garlic Barrier, using fish oil as a sticker-spreader, to chase away "green bugs". Five months after planting, his sprayed wheat was 5" taller, the plants were fuller and much healthier and the green bugs were gone! At harvest the sprayed wheat showed higher yield. Spraying cost was much less than with chemicals. Can be sprayed while grazing cattle.

Entomologists warn farmers of cutworms

AMARILLO--Local entomologists are asking area wheat producers to watch for emerging army cutworms. The pests have been identified as infesting wheat in the north central portion of the Texas Panhandle and in southwest Kansas alfalfa fields.

According to Dr. Carl Patrick, entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Amarillo, the army cutworm is a sporadic pest of wheat and alfalfa in the Texas Panhandle. Occasional heavy infestations can cause considerable damage to both of these crops.

"Although there is no reliable way to predict when a major outbreak will occur, they do prefer dry conditions, thin soils and slopes of hills," Patrick said.

Farmers should be aware that cutworms lay eggs and hatch offspring in the fall. This species will feed periodically as temperatures allow during the winter. And, given the type of winter, the worms can be quite large by February and March, and be most damaging.

"Mature larvae can attain lengths of 1-1/2 to 2 inches," Patrick said. The worms are greenish-brown or greenish-gray and have a narrow pale stripe down their backs, the full length of the body.

Although true cutworms, they feed on foliage much like armyworms. During sunny days, they will be under debris or slightly underneath the soil surface. Their presence will be obvious on plants during overcast days and at night when temperatures are above freezing.

"Fortunately, there is only one generation per year," Patrick said. He advises area farmers to look for the pest in dryland fields, or the dry corners of center pivot irrigated wheat where higher infestations have been found.

Insecticide applications are justified when four to five army cutworm per square foot are causing visible damage in well established wheat or alfalfa. In poor, thin stands of wheat or seedling alfalfa -- the economic threshold should be dropped to two per square foot.

"During outbreak years, it is not uncommon to find 10 to 20 army cutworm per square foot," Patrick said.

Effective treatments for wheat are Karate and Lorsban SG, and alfalfa producers can select from Lorsban; Pounce, Ambush, or Baythroid insecticides.

"I have seen army cutworms reduce early stands of sugar beets, but they aren't much of a real problem in corn," Patrick said.

The cutworm moths, also called "Millers," can be a real nuisance in April and early May before flying away from this area.

California company investigates love, puts mates to ultimate test

LAGUNA NIGUEL, Calif. (AP) - Hopeless romantics see love as something to celebrate. Others prefer to investigate. They're the clients - 26 so far - of a new Orange County company called Fidelity Information Recovery, which sounds like a bank but works like a Love Bunco Squad. For a onetime fee of $350, the friendly folks at Fidelity put your mate to the ultimate test, sending an attractive "decoy" to his or her favorite gym or bar.

The decoy approaches seductively, then flirts, teases and vamps with abandon as a hidden microphone and camera capture the encounter. "We provide the opportunity for indiscretion," says Fidelity founder Steve Cox, a 38-year-old Laguna Niguel entrepreneur. "Whether or not they take the opportunity, that's where the truth of the matter lies." A soft-spoken husband and father, Cox tries to lead a quiet life when not trying to trap those who stray. "It's stressful," he says, admitting that his wife sometimes wishes he'd find another line of work, until she sees how lucrative "love investigations" can be. "We try to keep it off of a negative vibe, but it's innate. It's the nature of the business." Cox got the idea for his business one afternoon last year while watching daytime TV. A tabloid talk show was devoting its hour that day to the topic of infidelity, and Cox heard the frantic knock of opportunity, like a jealous lover at the door. Now, he's the Anti-Cupid of Orange County.

As a former investigator for law firms, Cox had confidence in his sleuthing skills. He needs no special license because he does not offer the services of a private investigator. And as a lifelong Orange County resident, he had equal confidence in his Rolodex, certain he'd be able to cull effective decoys from his circle of friends.

Over the eight months he's been in business, Cox has learned a little about love, a lot about deception, and several key lessons about cocktail-hour interrogations, making him a strange combination of Sgt. Joe Friday and Dr. Ruth.

Here's the most important thing to remember, he tells a new decoy: When trying to trip someone up, be fast, be direct. Get the subject to agree to break the Seventh Commandment, then excuse yourself and leave the premises.

Too many things go wrong if you dawdle. Most of Cox's clients are women, though a few Doubting Thomases have hired him to investigate their fiancées or girlfriends. And for everyone who believes sociology can overcome biology, Cox has troubling news: Men almost always take the bait, women never.

College student from Hereford wins top award from TSHA for teaching unit project Manchee develops program to teach Texas Revolution

Editor's Note: Karen Manchee is a sophomore math major at Wayland Baptist University. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mal Manchee and a 1995 graduate of Hereford High School. Manchee is a member of the Pi Sigma Sigma Sorority and has been listed on the University's President's List recognizing academic excellence. PLAINVIEW -- A teaching unit loaded with everything including a shower curtain snared awards for its ability to enhance a students knowledge of Texas history. Wayland Baptist University students Karen Manchee and Jenny Rowan carted the top awards from the recent Texas State Historical Association annual meeting, for three-week teaching unit projects they developed.

Dr. Estelle Owens, chair of Wayland's division of social sciences, led the students through the project of developing the teaching units, which are aimed at developing a students interest and knowledge of the state's history.

"Karen and Jenny developed the history units while taking my Texas history class this past fall semester," she said. "Karen prepared a unit for seventh grade students and Jenny designed a unit to be used in elementary classrooms."

The projects include lecture notes, bulletin board ideas, handouts, student activities and tests.

"Basically their assignments were to prepare a unit that would allow a substitute, who was coming into a classroom for a three-week period, to have the tools to continue the students education process," Dr. Owens said.

And the projects were successful enough to snap all the awards TSHA presented through its statewide Caldwell competition for history students at Texas colleges and universities.

Rowan developed her unit for a substitute teacher facing a predicament of working with fourth grade students.

"I worked into the assignments special emphasis on Texas' historically significant women and the state's multi-cultural aspects," said the senior education major from Booker.

"The unit is a thematic study that involves math, social studies, science and English," Rowan said.

And she's added creative ideas, such as a Jeopardy game made from a shower curtain, to keep the students involved in Texas history throughout the school day.

"Both students created their projects based on providing teaching that spans across disciplines," said Dr. Owens.

Manchee, a Hereford sophomore, grabbed the top Caldwell award for a teaching unit she developed on the Texas Revolution.

Her project is aimed at providing seventh grade students with a working knowledge of the Revolution's history.

The Wayland students brought home both awards from the centennial TSHA meeting, an organization from which the university has claimed numerous past awards.

Teaching unit award winner

Karen Manchee, a sophomore at Wayland Baptist University and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mal Manchee, received a first place award from the Texas State Historical Association for a teaching unit she developed on the Texas Revolution.

Oh, My Aching Back

If you're like a lot of people, you may have occasional or persistent back pain and wonder what caused it. You try to think of some incident in which you may have strained your back, and come up with nothing. But there must be some reason why you have back pains. The truth is that even the simplest of incidents may be the cause, such as reaching high on a shelf to get something. Or stooping suddenly to pick up something that has fallen. Or maybe you need some tips on good posture. Whatever the cause, the problem may be that your spinal column is out of alignment. No pain-killing drug can cure the CAUSE. It can dull the pain for awhile and give you temporary relief. But if your back is out of alignment, the pain will probably not go away unless you get the treatment you need. No symptom can be more depressing than persistent back pain. Don't delay treatment when help is readily available.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"Don't overschedule your child's extracurricular activities." Blue team American history students are near the completion of their intensive study of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. They are each reciting the Preamble to the Constitution as part of this study. Mr. Nall's classes are getting projects ready for area and state contests. The area contest will be April 24 and the state competition will be in Waco May 5 and 6. Mrs. Rudd, school nurse, will be screening all eighth graders for scoliosis beginning March 31. This state required screening will be done during P.E. and athletics classes. Yellow team members have memory work to prepare for recitation after spring break. The selections include "Myself" by Edgar A. Guest, "Texas, Our Texas," the pledge to the Texas flag and Texas symbols. The interviews that "History Day" students are conducting in person, by telephone and letter are proving to be very interesting. These students are having invaluable experiences and we thank those who are helping in this area. They still have much to accomplish before the end of April when all work except for reading, study and practice must be done. The Courthouse committee of Junior Historians have a May 6 deadline to meet. They, too, have much to do before that date. They will be seeking interviews as they continue their research. If you are a survivor of the dust storm days, please let us schedule an interview. Wesley Reinart is preparing a project for History Day on the "dirty thirties" and would appreciate your help. Kali Hall, Michelle Bernhardt, McKenzie Tabor and Kari Sherrod would welcome information on barbed wire and the trio of Trey Lusk, Zac Davis and Ryan McCabe are working on the struggle for civil rights. Call us at 363-7630 and we'll set up an interview! Our Building Leadership Team has met with the high school BLT to work on the transition of our junior high students to high school. They will also be meeting with the intermediate schools to help improve the transition from sixth grade to junior high. This is something that we need in order to be able to serve our students in a better way. Consider this equation: the amount of time you spend with your children while they are growing up equals the amount of time they will spend with you while you are growing old!

Are Contact Lenses For You?

Contact lenses have provided effective vision correction of millions of individuals who have chosen not to wear eyeglasses. Are they right for your eyes? Check with your optometrist. Some of the success factors the eye doctor will consider include the type of vision defect, your age (but both children and oldsters have worn contacts successfully), your occupation or activities, your general health and any medications that you may be taking. Your reaction to air pollution and the amount of tearing may be questioned. Even if you've tried unsuccessfully to wear contacts in the past, today's smaller and softer lenses may offer a second chance. And while eye and lens hygiene are still important, today's throw-away lenses make it easier. After a thorough examination of your eyes and assessment of these issues, the optometrist will determine whether you can wear contacts, and what kind will best meet your needs.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Since cigar smoking seems to be gaining popularity, the public should be aware of the potential consequences.

My father had a cigar in his mouth from my earliest memory. When my mother died in 1965 and Dad came to live with us, we made it clear that no smoking was allowed in our house. His breath was terrible, and his car smelled like a sewer. He often said he "wasn't smoking" because the cigar wasn't always lit.

In 1972, he had surgery to remove part of his lip, which was cancerous due to constant contact with cigars. A few years later, he died from lung cancer. Please continue educating the public, Ann. Maybe if you say it often enough, they will get the message. -- Morton Grove, Ill.

Dear Morton Grove: I intend to keep harping on the dangers of tobacco even though I may be boring people to distraction. I'm interested in saving lives. I would rather lose some readers because they are sick of my yakking about smoking than lose them because they died of lung cancer. So here's more on the subject:

Dear Ann Landers: You recently printed a column about the trend supported by the tobacco industry encouraging people to smoke cigars.

The federal law requiring health warnings on cigarette packs doesn't apply to cigars. When cigar manufacturers, importers and distributors add ingredients to tobacco, they are not required to submit a list of the contents to the federal government. Cigar smokers don't realize what they are getting when they light up and start puffing, and the tobacco industry isn't about to tell anyone that cigars are just as dangerous as cigarettes.

The American Lung Association classifies cigars as a nicotine delivery system -- the same as cigarettes. Cigar smokers get more laryngeal, oral and esophageal cancers than non-smokers, and they have a higher death rate from chronic obstructive pulmonary disease.

Maybe the tobacco industry won't tell us the truth about cigars, but we know we can count on you, Ann... Julie Freestone, Tobacco Prevention Project of the Contra Costa County Health Services Department, Martinez, Calif.

Dear Julie Freestone: Don't stand on one foot waiting for tobacco companies to inform the public about the negative aspects of smoking. They are not interested in killing the goose that is laying all those golden eggs. Here are the facts provided by the American Lung Association:

Cancer death rates for cigar smokers are 34 percent higher than for non-smokers.

Carbon monoxide emissions from one cigar are 30 times higher than for one cigarette.

Cigar smoking can lead to cancer of the voice box (larynx), mouth, esophagus and lungs.

Cigar smokers are three to five times more likely to die of lung cancer than non-smokers.

Cigar smokers are five times more likely to get emphysema than non-smokers.

Nicotine does not have to be inhaled to damage the heart and blood vessels -- it's absorbed into the bloodstream through the mouth.

Ninety-nine percent of cigar smokers have atypical cells in their voice boxes, which is the first step toward malignancy.

Secondhand cigar smoke is more poisonous than secondhand cigarette smoke. The smoke from one cigar equals the smoke of three cigarettes.

And now, this is Ann talking. Ten million Americans smoke cigars. This is 2 million more cigar smokers than three years ago. This means all those photos featuring famous people smoking cigars have had an impact.

Wake up, America! If you want to kill yourself, a bullet in the head is a lot quicker and less expensive than lung cancer.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet "Sex and the Teen-ager." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.55.)

Thank You

After the shock wore off Thursday evening at the Chamber Banquet, I realized what I should have said. I would like to thank The Lions Club for nominating me for the, undeserved prestigious award of "1996 Citizen of the Year". For all the efforts of getting this together, I want to especially thank Nolan Grady as well as those who wrote letters of recommendation. My children did a lot, for which I am grateful. Also I want to thank Almighty God and my sweet wife for giving me the inspiration for the little I have accomplished.

I feel blessed and it is unusual that I have heard the remarks about me that are often not said about a person until they are laid to rest. Hereford, my birthplace has been good to me, I am proud of it and I hope to stay until the finish.

County Extension Agent/FCS
Less Tender Cuts Stretch
Meat Dollars

Good, inexpensive main dishes begin with planning. That means sitting down with food ads, pencil and paper and deciding which cuts of meat are going to be the best buy for the week. Often these cuts will be less tender than those priced higher.

Then it's important to figure the cost per serving. Boneless cuts will be priced higher, but may be a better buy because they have little waste.

Use the accompanying illustration as a simple guide for the number of servings you can expect from some popular, less tender roasts and steaks.

You can tenderize an economical, but less tender cut of meat at home, by marinating in an acid mixture containing vinegar or lemon juice. Pounding the meat with a pounder or scoring it with a knife in a diamond pattern will also increase tenderness.

Meat tenderizers sold in the grocery stores will also improve the tenderness of these cuts. These enzyme meat tenderizers contain papain bromelin.

You'll get best results with chemical tenderizers by piercing the cut with a fork at frequent intervals so it can penetrate the meat. Papain penetrates less than an eighth of an inch into the meat.

For this reason, chemical tenderizers aren't effective on thick meats such as roasts. Over tenderization can also result in a mush, crumbly texture and reduced juiciness.

But you don't have to cook all these cuts as roasts. You can cut and divide them along bone and natural seam lines and then prepare each cut according to tenderness.

For example, you can take a round roast and cut it into three parts. The bottom round could be used for stews and soups or ground for chili meat. The eye of the round might be marinated and used for stir fry, ground for ground beef or chili, cut for soups and stews or braised for Swiss steak.

The top round, which is the most tender part of the cut, could be marinated and broiled then carved in thin slices across the grain.

Less tender cuts of meat can add both economy and variety to your family's meals.

Spring fashion

Designers let fabric, drape, shape do talking

By DIANE SUSTENDAL
For the Associated Press
NEW YORK (AP) — Spring evenings are for making simple, sensational fashion statements. So say the American designers who presented their collections at the semiannual shows under the aegis of Seventh on Sixth at various venues around the city.

Dressed-down does not mean a lack of very dressed-up, elegant clothes for the season. It means there are fewer over-the-top accessories, embroideries and embellishments than in past seasons. For spring, designers are letting the fabric, the drape and the shape do the talking and create the talking.

lace, chiffon, organza, crepe de Chine and charmeuse have come cocktail dresses and full-length gowns that are sleek, modern and effortlessly chic. There's no need for adornment on the simple color block offerings from Calvin Klein; the lace numbers from Oscar de la Renta, batiks from Ralph Lauren, jersey and net from Donna Karan, and, the like. Just step into some party shoes and dance on out the door. The shapes for spring couldn't be more basic. The strapless dress has never been so important or looked so fresh as when finished off with an asymmetrical fishtail hemline — just the right note for those who don't know whether to wear long or short at the next party.

Body-skimming slip and halter dresses, especially those somewhat inspired by the cowl-neck gown chosen by Carolyn Bessette-Kennedy for her wedding to JFK, Jr., were other shapes favored by designers.

Full-length sheaths that emphasize a curvaceous figure are dazzling in solid sequins, stretch chiffon and lace, and jersey; just right for the Oscars or the most glamorous gala occasions.

Designers are equally as restrained when it comes to color. All shades of nude, black, a variety of chocolates, from palest mocha to deepest bittersweet; navy, white and blush dominate. An occasional lipstick red brightens the scene, but on the whole the neutral tones set the pace and prove flattering.

So dominant are the nude tones that designers Michael Kors and the team of Badgley Mischka worked almost exclusively in the color range and the effect in malleable metal mail or tiny crystal beading was stunning.

Even the designers who are known for big night fireworks — Bill Blass and Oscar de la Renta — let the fabrics do the talking.

Blass deftly showed his ability to light up a room with a simple sheath of ombre sequins, or, to go understated with a draped crepe de Chine cocktail dress that required nothing more than some basic pearl earrings.

De la Renta's deft use of lace made enough of a hit that first lady Hillary Clinton chose one of his gold lace numbers as her gown for her husband's inaugural balls. His black lace over nude lining dresses may prove as popular with the ladies who love utterly feminine things.

For spring's evenings, the simpler the better, the simpler the more stunning.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had breast-cancer surgery, chemotherapy and radiation therapy. I now am on tamoxifen, and I have been having hot flashes, about a dozen or so a day. I can't get a night's sleep. I have been avoiding spicy food. Is the tamoxifen causing the flashes? — M.B.

ANSWER: Tamoxifen can cause hot flashes. The drug counteracts body estrogen, artificially creating the same hormone deficiency of natural menopause.

Estrogen decline from whatever source dilates surface blood vessels, opening them to a rush of warm blood.

Here are just a few tips women have suggested:

- When you sense a hot flash coming on, breathe deeply and slowly.
- Overdress, so that you always have an item — a jacket, a sweater — to remove at the onset of a hot flash.
- Where possible, use a personal fan for relief during a hot flash.
- Keep iced water near for sipping when a flash erupts.

- Avoid caffeine in all its forms.
- Wear cotton nightclothes and use cotton sheets.
- Keep iced water at the bedside for those hot-flash sleep arousals.

The prescription drugs Clonidine (a blood-pressure drug) and Bellergal-S (an anti-spasmodic) have helped some women with your complaint.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am an active 75-year-old man. I have been diagnosed as having what my doctor calls "essential high blood pressure." That was 20 years ago. I never smoked, never had a headache or chest pain. A 1982 check showed all clear. My blood pressure averages around 150/88. Any significance in the low diastolic number? — S.T.

ANSWER: You have "systolic only" high-blood pressure. The first number (systole phase) is high, the second (diastole phase) normal.

At one time, that one-faceted high blood pressure was not thought to be as big a deal as when the diastolic number is also up. We now know better. Such a solitary rise can cause as much mischief as a rise in the second number or in both numbers.

Sometimes, a discrepancy in the two pressures indicates specific problems, such as a leaking aortic valve, which would produce a characteristic murmur. Has your doctor mentioned that?

For an in-depth discussion of hypertension, see the report I'm sending you. Others can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 4, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Whenever I get nervous, I feel hot and get embarrassing pink hives all over my neck and chest. What causes this? Is there something I can do to prevent it? — B.G.

ANSWER: Such hives are called "cholinergic urticaria."

Anxiety activates certain nerves — which in turn releases acetylcholine. That chemical then releases histamines — which produces the hives.

An antihistamine such as hydroxyzine or loratadine can stem hives production. If you try them and neither works, write back. I'll try a different tack.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Our two dogs, one big and one small Mutt and Jeff if you will, always play in the field around our house. They sometimes come home filled with burrs.

One day I looked out and the smaller dog was nudging the big dog. The big dog reached down and with his mouth took all the burrs out of the smaller dog.

Now that's what I call buddy grooming. — Tim Price, Austin, Texas

Boy, they are dedicated buddies, aren't they? Thanks for sharing your pet story with us.

I'd love to print more pet pal stories. Drop us a note: Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000, or fax us a line at (210) HELOISE (435-6473) or e-mail at Heloise@ (at) cis.compuserve.com. — Heloise

POPCORN TINS

Dear Heloise: A good way to reuse those large decorated tins that contain popcorn: I use the tins as unusual trash cans, in my son's room, by my desk, etc. The top makes a perfect burner cover on my electric range. — Mrs. Dayle Riley, Hardinsburg, Ky.

OFFICE FOUNTAIN

Dear Heloise: We recently installed a decorative fountain in our new office. We used treated water as the directions called for, and it foamed like it had soap suds in it.

Vinegar to the rescue! One-half cup white vinegar stopped the foaming and kept the water clear. — Brenda Cross, Aurora, Mo.

Vinegar is wonderful, isn't it? And it is one of the most economical cleaners around. For a pamphlet filled with great ways to use vinegar all around your house and save money, please send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Vinegar, PO Box 795001, San Antonio TX 78279-5001. — Heloise

CLOSET SPACE

Dear Heloise: When short of closet space, as I am, hang several blouses or sweaters of similar colors on the same hangers. I double-up on my skirts, too. — A Silver Spring, Md., Reader

PASTRY BAGS

Dear Heloise: My tip is a remedy I've been using for a long time. Pastry bags get a smell to them, regardless of how much you wash them. Now I put them in a container of warm water with a tablespoon of vanilla extract. They smell just like frosting. — Carolle Bender, Montgomery, Pa.

WASHING BLINDS

Dear Heloise: I have used your hint about washing, rinsing and drying Venetian blinds easily by putting them in the driveway on a warm, sunny day. I did and it worked fine.

The reason I'm writing is to add to the above suggestion. Put an old sheet under the blinds you are washing and rinsing. In addition, put down another sheet to dry the blinds on. The result is no scratching of paint on the blinds.

In addition, it is easy, fast and very effective doing it this way. — Mrs. Harley Bechter, San Antonio

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Small Business Problems: Government isn't the solution

Recently, a friend of mine who owns his own business was telling me about some of the problems he was having. He said his business reminded him of the old Everly Brothers' tune titled, "Problems." The lyrics are: "Problems, problems, problems all day long. Will my problems work out right or wrong? Worries, worries pile upon my head. Woe is me, I should have stayed in bed."

Most of us have had a few days like that. It certainly isn't getting any easier to be in business today. Competition is increasing, technology is exploding and good employees are getting harder to find and keep. Throw in a few other obstacles such as finicky customers, government paperwork and skyrocketing costs and you're going to have some stressful days and nights.

My discussion of business problems with my friend was still fresh in my mind when I received a publication from The National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB). The study is titled, "Small Business Problems and Priorities." I read it with a great deal of interest. The purpose of the study was to allow small-business owners to assess the relative importance of potential problems.

The survey said

Based on the responses of more than 3,400 NFIB members and small-business owners the ten most severe challenges for small businesses today are: 1) The cost of health insurance, 2) Federal taxes on business income, 3) Worker's compensation costs, 4) Unreasonable government regulations, 5) FICA (Social Security taxes), 6) Property taxes/rent costs, 7) Federal paperwork, 8) State taxes on business income, 9) Frequent changes in federal tax laws and 10) Cash flow.

You will notice that competition, employees and technology issues didn't make the top ten. Competition from large businesses came in 23rd, keeping skilled employees ranked 29th, training came in at 33rd, and technology issues surfaced in position number 39.

It is obvious from the survey results that small-business owners are more concerned about the effect of government on their business than competition and other elements. You will notice that eight of the top ten problems are directly associated with government intervention and regulation.

Small-business owners see Federal, State or local governments as barriers to survival. Taxes, regulations and paperwork are cutting a heavy chunk out of profitability.

A growing burden

During the November election process, both political parties espoused a lot of rhetoric about the growing deficit. Congress creates the deficit when it spends more than it takes in. The deficit, although the beneficiary of a lot of attention, is only a symptom. The real problem is spending.

Government spending is outstripping the ability of the private sector to pay the bill. In 1991, Federal budget outlays weighed in at a hefty $1.32 trillion. In 1997, federal spending is expected to top $1.7 trillion. This increase in spending of $380 billion equals $1,460 in new taxes collected from every citizen of the U.S. For working Americans, who ultimately get the bill, our free-spending Congress has increased our personal tax burden by $3,000 - 5,000 annually.

Growth in spending creates other problems as well. As regulatory agencies grow, the burden of regulations, paperwork, reporting and compiling costs also grow. Bureaucrats have to produce something, and most of what they produce is an added burden for the private sector.

One thing is certain: The problem of government encroachment won't go away by itself. It is time to get a grip on spending. Most business problems will improve with lower government spending. Write your legislators today. Let them know we want to spend less, not pay more.

In the last week several people have inquired about the beginning sewing classes and crochet classes. Yes, we are still having these classes.

Sewing class takes place every Monday evening from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. If you have a specific project you would like to work on, bring it in and get the help you want.

If you want to learn to sew, but you have no idea where or how to begin, come to class. We will discuss your options and make plans for the next class. We have a great group that is really learning a lot, and they have done a wide variety of projects, from home decorating to personal garments, to nightgowns for grandchildren.

If you would like to join the class, all you have to do is show up or give us a call.

The crochet class has more or less been changed to the "needle working" class. If you want to learn to needle point, knit, cross stitch, smock, or crochet come to the library on Thursday evenings.

If you have a question about the supplies you need, give Sue Cherry a call at the Deaf Smith County Library and she will help you with that list.

We are here for you and this is your chance to take advantage of a great opportunity. Where else can you get these classes for free? Give us a call at 364-1206 for more information or to sign up for class.

Now is your chance, come join us. You know this is a great time to work on those Easter and summer clothes, or home decorations.

If you think your hands are busy enough and you feel like reading a good book, come by the library and see what is new, almost new, old and very old. Even with the on-going weeding there are plenty of goldie oldies to keep you busy for a while.

Tami Hoag, author of Guilty as Sin, has a new book entitled A Thin Dark Line.

Pamela Bichon was violently and brutally murdered but her killer was freed on a technicality. The evidence was never listed on the search warrant and was seized by a detective with a questionable reputation.

It doesn't matter that the evidence proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that Marcus Renard is guilty. Deputy Annie Broussard was the one who discovered the body. She is also the one being plagued with the phantom screams and the passing shadows of the dead woman. To continue her investigation Annie will have to form an alliance with cop Nick Fourcade who has been known to step over the line.

Nick's questionable reputation may tarnish her own, it will certainly result in growing harassment, and still Annie cannot let this brutal killer go free. Pamela deserves more.

Arthur C. Clarke's 3001: The Final Odyssey begins four million years ago with a gleaming black monolith and continues at the dawn of the 21st century when an identical monolith is discovered on the moon.

Dave Bowman is the only one to survive and encounter a third monolith on Jupiter's moon Europa. In 3001, the human race has survived, but lives in fear of the three monoliths.

Then the body of Frank Poole is recovered from the frozen reaches of the galaxy. They are able to retrieve Poole and restored to consciousness Frank resumes the mission that HAL abruptly terminated.

Before he can go any further, however, Frank must get Dave Bowman released from the monolith. The problem comes in not knowing what Dave has become while trapped in the monolith.

Richard Bausch's new book Good Evening Mr. and Mrs. America and

All the Ships at Sea is a moving, nostalgic comedy. The year is 1964 and the young Walter Marshall, 19, is living with his mother and attending radio broadcasting school at night. Walter is deeply concerned with the assassination of JFK and has decided to enter life in politics that should only be complete when he enters the White House.

The story evokes the sense of a distant time and place that turns out to be very recognizable, reminding us of who we have been and who we are.

Bad Land: An American Romance by Jonathan Raban is a historical account of the people who travelled to the stark dry plains of Montana and the Dakota territories. Seduced by promises of the railroad companies and government's offer of 320 free acres, many families packed all of their possessions and travelled to the place where they would begin a new life.

Johnathan recreates the austere terrain which many of us have only to look out the window to get a clear view.

For some, dreams founder and for others, surviving and enduring become a way of life. To prosper in this vast region took generations of hard work. With razor sharp acuity and wit, Raban brings the heartland history to life.

Red Cross Update

The Tri-County Chapter received this letter from president Elizabeth Dole:

Dear Staff,

Heartiest congratulations on the 80th anniversary of the Tri-County Chapter. What a wonderful time to reflect on the past and look to the future of your chapter and the American Red Cross.

Eight years ago, the United States faced the challenge of world war. As Americans rallied behind their country, they looked to the American Red Cross as the means to effectively organize themselves to help. Yours is one of the more than 700 chapters created in 1917 to meet those urgent needs.

The Red Cross Movement and its seven Fundamental Principles served as a firm foundation to the work of assisting the members of the military and their families. During the war, Red Cross chapters helped raise $400 million in money and goods to finance humanitarian work at home and overseas.

They recruited nurses for duty with the military and operated motor corps and canteen stations for the troops.

I'm happy to say the good work we accomplished didn't end on Armistice Day! The history of the Red Cross is woven in the fabric of the nations history.

In times of war and peace, Red Cross chapters continue to meet the needs of their communities. Whether during a natural disaster affecting thousands of people, or a personal crisis striking a single family, thanks to you, the Red Cross is ready to assist.

Your adherence to those same enduring principles that guided the founders of your chapter still stand true today.

As you look back on the history of the Tri-County Chapter, I hope you recognize not only the accomplishments you've achieved, but the many people whose lives have been touched by the long line of dedicated, paid and volunteer members of your chapter.

Communities change and our programs change, but our mission remains the same -- to relieve human suffering wherever it may be found.

Again, congratulations as you celebrate this 80th anniversary.

With my warmest best wishes,
Elizabeth Dole

Included with the letter is a certificate of appreciation, signed by Mrs. Dole and chairman Norman R. Augustine.

The certificate will be presented to the board of directors at a chapter birthday celebration sometime in May.

Other certificates of appreciation and recognition will be awarded to various local persons and organizations as well.

The first part of the Community First Aid and Safety class, called "Adult CPR," will be held on Tuesday, March 25 at 7 p.m. in the Red Cross building. The second part, "Child and Infant CPR," will be held on Thursday, March 27 at 7 p.m. The third part, "First Aid," will be held on Tuesday, April 1 at 7 p.m. Please call the Red Cross office at 364-3761 to have your name included on the roster.

Red Cross is asking for $9.9 million to cover the needs of victims in Albania for an initial period of three months. Activities by the Red Cross in Albania are designed to head off any potential food crisis given the worsening situation.

Following a survey carried out by Red Cross teams, emergency food aid and medical assistance will be delivered as a matter of priority to hospitals and institutions housing some 10,000 people.

Food parcels will be distributed to about 25,000 people (out of a total population of 3.4 million) considered to be at risk.

The Red Cross estimates families affected by recent local and national disasters numbered between 22,000 and 25,000. As of March 17, 370,734 meals have been served to victims and workers in the affected areas.

Red Cross employed 111 emergency response vehicles and sheltered 4,555 people in 115 shelters at a cost of $13.1 million dollars. 6,272 volunteer staff Red Cross workers have been assigned to the relief operation.

All Red Cross disaster assistance is free, made possible by voluntary gifts of time and money from American people. The Red Cross is not a government agency.

To help victims of these and other disasters, call 806-364-3761 or 1-800-Help-Now (800-435-7669), or 800-257-7575 (Spanish).

You may also contribute to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund by sending a check to your local Red Cross chapter or the American Red Cross, P.O. Box 37243, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Names in the News

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) - Arthur C. Clarke formally released his latest novel, "3001: The Final Odyssey" Thursday in a brief ceremony here in the Sri Lankan capital.

Clarke's novel concludes the space epic he began in 1968 with "2001: A Space Odyssey," and his most famous creation, the psychotic computer HAL, a terrifying vision of artificial intelligence run amok in deep space.

Clarke, 79, who has lived in Sri Lanka since 1956 and rarely leaves home, is a leading citizen of cyberspace. On March 14, he commemorated the fictional HAL's birthday with a live Internet "cybercast" from Sri Lanka.

Clark's voice and image, at 4-5 images a second, joined a panel discussion at the University of Illinois' Cyberfest '97 in Urbana, Hal's "birthplace." At the conference, Clarke chose his preference for HAL's first words: "Good morning, doctors. I have taken the liberty of removing Windows 95 from my hard drive."

Clarke, born in 1917 in Somerset, England, predicted communications satellites in a 1945 article and has written more than 60 books, including the classics "Childhood's End" and "Rendezvous with Rama."

Clark, who shared an Oscar nomination with director Stanley Kubrick for the "2001" screenplay, became further known to millions of Americans alongside Walter Cronkite, anchoring CBS' coverage of the first moon landing.

NEW YORK (AP) - Tea Leoni, who stars as a journalist on NBC's "The Naked Truth," says her character's relationship with her boss is JUST like Mary Richards' with Lou Grant in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

With a big difference. "In this generation, frankly, we ought to be in bed together by the end of the season," she told Parade magazine.

Her series, which began on ABC, switched networks, writers and cast for its new incarnation on NBC's "Must See TV" lineup between top-rated "Seinfeld" and "ER."

"It's as if we didn't just slide into our sophomore year, but we're repeating freshman year," she said.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Water Heater Hazards

CHICAGO (AP) - Most fires and explosions involving water heaters can be traced to the presence of flammable substances nearby, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

"In most cases the disasters which were profiled in the media have been the direct result of storing flammable liquids near the water heater," says David L. Weiner, executive director of PHCIB, an industry group. Fumes from the liquid may be ignited by a gas-fired water heater pilot light.

At least one supplier, Rheem Manufacturing Company of Montgomery, Ala., instructs contractors to raise gas-fired water heaters 18 inches from the floor, since heavy flammable vapors tend to hug the ground. The company's spokeswoman, Judith Huntsberry, also recommends that all flammable materials, including paint, paint removers, turpentine, liquid floor wax, oily rags and even old newspapers, be kept far away from the water heater's base.

And don't keep gasoline on your property at all, unless it's stored safely in an outdoor shed, recommends the Gas Appliance Manufacturers' Association. Gasoline stored indoors, even in approved containers, can tempt children, who may spill it and trigger an explosion.

Switch off all equipment and disconnect backup batteries. If possible, disconnect fuses.

Whether water comes from rains, flood or use of fire apparatus, cover electronics equipment with plastic or remove it to a dry area if water is still dripping from the ceiling. Create a dry environment by inducing outside air or using dehumidifiers. Vacuum water from floors and furniture, including any that may be entrapped in under-floor chases or raised-floor systems. Remove wet furnishings or materials. Get a professional to open equipment casings to inspect wet modules and printed circuit boards; these can be dried by airing. Leave the casings and covers off and store in a clean dry place until a decontamination specialist can evaluate it.

When there has been fire, ventilate computer rooms to exhaust smoke--contaminated particulate. Move equipment into dry, clean rooms that haven't been contaminated and the humidity is less than 35 percent.

Books and Documents. Small quantities of wet files and documents can simply be laid out to dry or put in a frost-free freezer until they can be evaluated for value or importance. Large quantities can be re-boxed, blast-frozen and cold-stored for an indefinite time. Some documents can be freeze-dried and copied.

Unless the fire is intensely hot, the information in books and documents usually can be retrieved. Remove smoke soot with a vacuum brush or dry cleaning-type sponge. Don't use water-based agents, because these will drive the soot into the paper.

In all cases, contact a restoration professional for help.

If the heat in your home has been turned off because of the fire, pour antifreeze into all drains. Smoky garments should be bundled into bedsheet rather than plastic, which tends to trap smoky odor, driving it deeply into garments.

Cleaning and Restoration

ANNAPOLIS JUNCTION, Md. (AP) - A flood, a hurricane, or a fire hits, and you've lost everything.

Not necessarily, says the Association of Specialists in Cleaning and Restoration, an industry group. It's possible to restore many of your belongings, sometimes fully, for much less than replacement costs.

Quick response after the disaster lessens loss and minimizes additional damage and expense, the organization says. These are some recommendations:

Electronics. Whether you have damage from water, fire or smoke, do not turn on electrical equipment until you've had a professional evaluation. Be careful in moving any electronic equipment to avoid further damage.

English Patient leads pack in this year's Oscars

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

ABC's Academy Awards™ telecast on Monday, March 24, could christen that date as "Independents Day."

For the first time, most of the nominations went not to major studio releases but to films released by smaller independent companies. The only exception was TriStar, which earned five nominations for Jerry Maguire.

Making this year's race even tougher to call, 14 of the 20 acting nominees (including Lauren Bacall for best supporting actress in The Mirror Has Two Faces) are up on their first nomination. Incredibly, no fewer than three of them — Edward Norton (Primal Fear), Emily Watson (Breaking the Waves) and Marianne Jean-Baptiste (Secrets & Lies) — earned their nominations for their film debuts.

Here are some thoughts on the five major categories, keeping in mind that this is a wide-open race and, for once, all the nominated acting performances really are worthy Oscar™ material.

BEST PICTURE: The English Patient, with 12 nominations, leads the pack not only in quantity but in quality. The delicious black comedy Fargo also has many avid champions, as does Shine, the poignant true story of an Australian pianist's battle with mental illness. Jerry Maguire seems a trifle lightweight in this company, while Secrets & Lies is noteworthy mainly for its performances.

Will win: The English Patient.

Could win: Shine.

BEST ACTOR: Oddly, Ralph Fiennes' muted performance in the title role of The English Patient never generated a lot of Oscar™ buzz. Billy Bob Thornton (Sling Blade) also likely will settle for his nomination, and too many voters found Woody Harrelson's role in The People vs. Larry Flynt very distasteful.

That leaves Geoffrey Rush (Shine) and Tom Cruise (Jerry Maguire). Either could win. But Cruise has to overcome a triple whammy: the "Spielberg Syndrome" (his film is too commercially popular to be taken seriously); it's a comedy; and Hollywood still seems to view his ties to the controversial Church of Scientology with suspicion.

Will win: Rush.

Could win: Cruise.

BEST ACTRESS: If Australian actor Rush does win, that will boost the chances for American actress Frances McDormand, who was so brilliant in Fargo. Her chief competition is Great Britain's Brenda Blethyn, equally good in the more intense Secrets & Lies. Kristin Scott Thomas (English Patient), Diane Keaton (Marvin's Room) and Watson may as well stay home.

Will win: McDormand.

Could win: Blethyn.

BEST SUPPORTING ACTOR: William H. Macy (Fargo), Armin Mueller-Stahl (Shine) and James Woods (Ghosts of Mississippi) will go home empty-handed. Watch for Cuba Gooding Jr. (Jerry Maguire) to shout, "Show me the Oscar™!" His only major competition is newcomer Norton, who was exceptional in no fewer than three movies last year (his debut role in Primal, followed by Larry Flynt and Everyone Says I Love You).

Will win: Gooding.

Could win: Norton.

BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS: Joan Allen (The Crucible), Juliette Binoche (English Patient), Barbara Hershey (The Portrait of a Lady) and Ms. Jean-Baptiste, thank you for playing. Here are your lovely parting gifts. The name on this trophy is Bacall, baby (but the Academy owes the radiant Binoche at the earliest opportunity).

Will win: Bacall, in a walk.

Juliette Binoche is nominated for best supporting actress for her poignant work in The English Patient, which is up for 11 other Oscars™, including best picture. The 69th annual Academy Awards™ ceremony airs Monday on ABC.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ March 23-29 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20

Romance is looking good for the single Aries. New love may be just around the corner. Be on the lookout for a sexy Scorpio. On Tuesday, don't take a bad mood out on family. If you're feeling particularly stressed, you may be better off keeping to yourself for a while.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

Don't ignore new opportunities, no matter how small or insignificant they may seem. There could be a diamond in the rough waiting for you. A friend may confide in you towards the end of the week. Be sure to keep confidential words to yourself. An important letter finally will arrive.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

Although flirting may give a boost to your ego, it may not be too helpful for your reputation - especially in the workplace. Keep up a professional appearance. There's money to be made through an unusual method or source. Stay alert, and listen - really listen - to what people tell you.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

Work hard, and get chores out of the way early in the week. Then, you'll have extra time later on for more pleasurable activities. A new understanding in a romantic relationship changes the way you view your partner. You may realize that you have to pull more of the emotional weight.

LEO - July 23/August 23

Got a case of the blues? All you probably need is a break from routine. Let your spontaneous side take over, and do something out of the ordinary. Control jealousy in a love relationship, especially if you're involved with a Gemini or Aquarius. On Friday, don't jump to conclusions.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Subtlety is your key to success this week. Stay cool, and you'll get what you want. Trust your own judgment when it comes to making important decisions. Domestic responsibilities may be the source of aggravation. Be sure to voice frustrations clearly - but in a sensitive way.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

While good financial news may lighten a heavy burden, it is wise to keep spending to a minimum. Is there a bill you're forgetting? Better check your files. Did you promise yourself you would never date again? You may just meet someone this week who will convince you to change your policy! A Scorpio makes your weekend more interesting.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Too much to do and not enough time to do it in? Give yourself a break, and seek some help. You love control, but what good is it if it makes you nuts? A cash gift or your partner's sudden financial success will give you cause to celebrate. A big trip could be in your immediate future.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Extra effort will be needed to make an important project run smoothly. You'll probably have to give up socializing time, but it will be well worth it in the end. Unless you want to spend your weekend arguing, be patient and diplomatic with temperamental family members.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Traveling this week? If so, double-check all necessary documents, or something could be left out. Show your appreciation to someone who has supported you - especially if you are the boss at work. A family member will bring home good news, and there will be reason to celebrate.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

Your talents will be put to the test, and you'll pass with flying colors! Not only will you impress others, but you'll impress yourself, too. A loved one's bad habits may rub off on you if you're not careful. Keep a close watch on spending. A pleasant surprise comes on Friday.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

Using guilt to get others to do things for you is not the best course of action. Perhaps you should come up with a better approach. An old friend from out of town may pay a visit. Your always-generous hospitality will be very much appreciated. Don't neglect your diet this week.

Q: I could swear John Ratzenberger of Cheers is in The Empire Strikes Back. A colleague says no. Who's right? -R. McClurg via e-mail.

A: You are. Ratzenberger went to England in 1971 for what he thought would be a short visit and wound up staying 10 years as co-founder, writer, performer and director of the improv duo Sal's Meat Market. The British Arts Council awarded them a grant to tour the continent.

Toward the end of his British tenure and shortly before landing the TV role of Cliff Clavin on Cheers, Ratzenberger took a small role in Empire, a film he still lists proudly among his credits. He played Maj. Derlin.

Q: You recently indicated that you weren't sure whether the late Jeremy Brett really sang Freddy in the film My Fair Lady. Actually, the voice of Bill Shirley was used, according to my CD of the original soundtrack. -Mike Martin, Winona, Minn.

A: Thanks, Mike. Yours was the first letter I got that was able to provide the name of the real singer. Several readers gently took me to task for my skepticism that it could have been Brett.

Another reader, Bill Jones, sent an e-mail in which he seemed to remember that the Brett obituary in the London Times indicated that he had sung Freddy, then provided this background: "He had gone to Eton as a boy and sung in the Eton Boys Choir. When he first appeared on stage, the critics were rather sarcastic about his future ... career in that line, but did allow that he had a tolerable singing voice."

Q: An actor named Eddie Albert co-starred in the movie Roman Holiday. Is this the same Eddie Albert who was in Green Acres? -Victoria Wong, Honolulu.

John Ratzenberger

A: Yes, he is the same Albert.

Q: Lois & Clark: The New Adventures of Superman hasn't been on for several weeks. What is going on? -J.H. via e-mail.

A: Lois & Clark received a kryptonite-laced body blow from Touched by an Angel and 3rd Rock From the Sun at the start of the season and never recovered. ABC pulled it during February sweeps so it wouldn't drag down the network's ratings. It has since returned to the Sunday lineup in an earlier time slot.

The show is looking terminal at this point and in all likelihood will be axed at the end of this season.

Q: Dean Cain was on Rosie last month and introduced his mother, saying she was an actress. Is she Patty Weaver, who used to be on Days of Our Lives? -Carla Franchi, Brooklyn, N.Y.

A: No. Cain's mother is a relatively little-known actress named Sarah Thomas.

Polly Matzinger of the National Institutes of Health lends her expertise to Death by Design, an entertaining look at the phenomenon of programmed cell death, airing Tuesday on PBS (check local listings).

PBS' Death by Design stars a cast of billions

For viewers who flee from science films like the citizens of Tokyo running in terror from Godzilla, at last there's a documentary that understands.

Death by Design, airing Tuesday, March 25, on PBS (check local listings), opens with B-movie reaction shots of Eisenhower-era ingenues screaming in twin-set terror. Thrilling words burn across the screen: This will be "the most exciting, the most memorable experience of your life!"

What these words are referring to is the biological phenomenon of programmed cell death.

Producer Peter Friedman put in the campy clips of Busby Berkeley choreography and '50s industrial propaganda to cast a spell over the unwary channel surfer.

"If you say the word 'science' or 'biology,' it's hard to get them to watch," Friedman says.

But Death by Design is plenty of fun, as well as good science that includes the testimony of internationally known scientists, such as Polly Matzinger of the National Institutes of Health.

Essential to every well-ordered organism, the film explains, is the interaction of its cells. They signal one another to live, reproduce or die.

From microscopic worms to human beings, far more cells are produced than are needed. Then other "microsurgeon" cells come along to shape and trim the whole. Because of programmed cell death, we have fingers; without it, we can get cancer.

Previously aired in Europe, Friedman's film itself was trimmed from 70 to 56 minutes for PBS, which irks the Peabody Award-winning filmmaker.

"The film was 70 minutes because it needed to be 70 minutes," he says.

But there still is time for a new character in the last reel. Friedman spends fascinating minutes with Nobel laureate Rita Levi-Montalcini, who made discoveries about cell death in chicken embryos during World War II.

"People don't realize," Friedman surmises, "how astonishing it can be to spend your time at the edge of the unknown."

SOAP WORLD

Bold and the Beautiful marks its 10th birthday

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

The Bold and the Beautiful is celebrating its 10th anniversary, and the flashy soap has come a long way since its humble beginnings.

OK, well, not exactly humble. It's always been a show that focuses on the glitz and glamour of the fashion industry, and the core family is incredibly wealthy and successful.

In the past three years the soap has picked up a loyal audience and risen from the bottom of the ratings to the top.

Dear Candace: I read one of your recent columns in the Colorado Springs Gazette Telegraph.

In response to A Watcher in Pennsylvania, you wrote: "Sex is a part of daytime; if you don't like it, don't watch."

Joan Crawford accepted her Oscar™ for Mildred Pierce from her sickbed, saying, "My tears speak for me; this is the greatest moment of my life."

I think that was a little rude. There are a lot of young mothers who would like to take a break and watch a soap opera once or twice a day and not have to worry about what their children are seeing.

I guess it would be wiser for readers to write to the sponsors about the complaints. -Joyce Funk

Dear Reader: Soaps have never been intended for young children. Most of them are rated TV-14 or TV-PG. Parents make the mistake of thinking that since the shows are on during the daytime they must be OK. That is wrong.

Not to get too preachy, but there is something I'd like you to be aware of: There's a new video out that every parent should see. It's called Taking Charge of Your TV, hosted by Rosie O'Donnell.

In the video, O'Donnell offers parents simple techniques on how to help them talk to their children about television. Topics include how television manipulates viewers, violence and how to use what children see to prompt positive and educational family discussions.

I offer one other solution: Park your young ones in front of a PBS children's program while you watch your shows on another set.

Margie's Notes

By Margie Daniels, HSCA Executive Director

Springtime is fast approaching! We are going on a Wildflower Tour, leaving Friday, April 11 and returning Monday, April 14. We will leave the Center at 7 a.m. and spend two nights in Marble Falls and one in Fredericksburg. We will see the beautiful flowers in the Highland Lake area. Call me immediately if you are interested.

We have two tours booked for Branson. One is June 17-21 and the Christmas tour Dec. 8-12. I am working on the trip to Virginia and Washington, D.C., That is in October.

We have had a lot of expense this month. The building at 1312 Park Ave. which we use for a workshop had to have roof repairs costing $6,305, and a new 100 gallon water heater for the foodservice area cost $3,100. Also our insurance which includes property, general liability, auto, and workers compensation is due now, at the cost of $20,092. We have had several contributions toward these, one $5,000 donation on the roof and three donations for a total of $750 toward the cost of the water heater. If you can make a donation, it would really help the Center financially. We really appreciate any contributions.

There will be an open house at the Center on Saturday, April 26 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. honoring all of our volunteers. The Texas Plains Choral Society will present a program at 3 p.m. The community is invited to attend. We hope you will help us honor our volunteers.

HSCA Activities

By Peggy Maxwell, Activities Director

April showers bring May flowers. We certainly need the showers. Spring has sprung and it is time for garden and lawn work. I enjoy all the busy activity of the birds as they make their spring preparations.

As you make your preparations for spring cleaning remember the Thrift Store. We take all donations and it helps the Center with their many and varied activities.

Check the activity calendar for the activities you would like to take part in. Especially notice the Spring Flowers Tour starting April 11. This is a wonderful opportunity to see the beautiful wildflowers in Central Texas. If you would like to go, please let us know.

President's Corner

By Norma Thurston, HSCA President

This has been an eventful month. We went to Dallas and I had eye surgery. I am hoping I will be able to see better in a short while.

We even got to see it rain -- it still can!

The roof is on the annex building, the garage doors are fixed and we even have a new can opener in the kitchen, so things are looking better. Some of the kitchen help are sick but we had a good stack plate anyway. They always seem to get things done, whatever it takes.

We are glad to have Margie back home. We miss her when she is away. We just feel more comfortable when she is around to take care of all the things that come up.

We have had some beautiful weather, but we must pray for rain or we will have more days like Tuesday.

Don't forget the Thrift Shop

Spring is here and it's time for that spring cleaning. Don't forget the Hereford Senior Citizens Thrift Shop at 1306 E. Park Avenue when you are cleaning out all those unwanted items. The shop is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday and Friday. Call the Senior Center if you have items you would like to donate to the shop.

98-year-old man still considers himself square dance enthusiast

MARSHALL, Texas - Texas' elder statesman of square dancing credits the popular form of entertainment and recreation for his long life.

In just two years, Cliff Hughes of Henderson will reach the one-century mark. Today, the 98-year-old Hughes still considers himself a square dance enthusiast.

"We, my wife and I, travel a lot just to dance," he said. "I guess that there isn't hardly an area in Texas where I am not known for square dancing."

Hughes is an avid follower of the state's square dancing associations. His passion for square dancing has taken him to the north, south, east, west and the central regions of the state. Square dancing has even taken him to Mexico.

Hughes and his wife were two of more than 200 square dancers who descended upon Marshall last weekend for the East Texas Square Dancers Association's annual festival at the Marshall Civic Center.

"I've been dancing most of my life but I really got into square dancing in a very big way in 1946. That's when I found out how much fun it is. Oh you can just have so much fun doing this," said Hughes.

"Some of the nicest people I have ever met are square dancers," his wife added. "You can't find any better friend than square dancing friends."

Hughes said square dancers, in most cases, are husband-wife teams. Occasionally, he said he runs into teams who are not married.

"My wife has always been my partner, but she doesn't dance much anymore," he said. "I find that I am even slowing down some now. But I still love it just because it is so much fun."

During Hughes' square dancing career, he has served as association president twice and once as secretary.

Hughes said although the bulk of the people who participate in square dancing are middle-aged and up, it's entertainment that can be enjoyed by people of all ages.

"The young people don't seem to have time to learn and participate in square dancing," he said. "I think the teenagers would even enjoy it if they would just give it a try."

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q: My father died three years ago and I've been receiving Social Security benefits on his record. If I graduate from high school in May but don't turn age 18 until September, will my benefits stop in May or September.

A: Your benefits will stop in September—the month you turn age 18.

Q: I've recently become self-employed. How and when do I report my earnings and pay Social Security taxes?

A: If you are self-employed, you must report your earnings and pay Social Security tax with your income tax return by April 15, 1997. If you operate a trade, business, or profession, either by yourself or as a partner, and have actual net earnings of $400 or more this year, you must report your earnings on Schedule SE.

Q: How can I get information about Social Security?

A: You can get information about Social Security 24 hours a day by calling Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213. You can also order general or specific publications from this number, including the publication, "Social Security-Understanding The Benefits," which gives an overview of Social Security. If you need to speak to a service representative, call between the hours of 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. on business days. Our lines are busiest early in the week and early in the month, so if your business can wait, it's best to call at other times. Whenever you call, have your Social Security number handy.

Q: What's the earliest age a person can retire under Social Security?

A: No matter what your "full" retirement age is, you may start receiving benefits as early as 62. However, if you start your benefits early, they are reduced five-ninths of one percent for each of the first 36 months and 5/12 for each additional month before your "full" retirement age. For example, if your full retirement age is 65 and you sign up for Social Security when you're 64, you will receive 93-1/3 percent of your full benefit. At 62, you would get 80 percent. (Note: The reduction will be greater in future years as the full retirement age increases.)

Q: What is the full retirement age for someone retiring in 1997?

A: The full retirement age is still 65 for people who attain age 65 from now through the year 2002. Beginning in the year 2003, the age at which full benefits are payable will increase in gradual steps from 65 to 67. This affects people born in 1938 and later.

Nutrition Notes

By CHARLOTTE R. CLARK
RD/LD

Diet plus activity equals a healthful lifestyle. As dietitians, we must teach the whole of this equation.

With springtime around the corner, now is the perfect time to promote increased physical activity. Each of us must encourage consumers to meet the general goal of half hour activity three to four days per week.

Clearly, Americans will not meet the Healthy People 2000 national goals until diet and physical activity are linked into one set of lifestyle behaviors.

Diet alone cannot ensure a healthful lifestyle, but the united effort created by the merger of the two sets of behaviors can.

The combined nutrition and physical activity message has become a focus in many of the alliances made up of The American Dietetic Association, The International Food Information Council and The American Institute of Wine and Food.

All of these organizations have joined in a partnership to improve the American diet by building avenues of communication to distribute information to the public. The emphasis being the link between food and activity.

At a colloquium in Dallas (1995) at the Copper Institute for Aerobics Research [1]* in which participants included leading authorities in nutrition, physical activity, the culinary arts and behavioral science formulated a scientific rationale in which diet and activity was merged into one practical mindset.

Participants acknowledged the good news: diet and physical activity have complementary beneficial effects on virtually all chronic diseases.

The bad news is that the majority of Americans are overweight, underfit, sedentary or crash dieting.

The group agreed on several principles, including the following:

1. Moderate physical activity allows an increase in caloric intake, providing flexibility to expand food choices.

2. A sense of pleasure in food and physical activity is needed to successfully change behavior. Programs must work for all people across economic, ethnic and age segments.

3. Gradual benefit from physical activity, which build on success, are expected to lead to more lasting lifestyle changes.

4. The greatest benefit from physical activity is derived sedentary to moderate levels of physical activity, such as walking, bicycling, gardening and dancing.

Two major themes come from this conference. (1) Diet and activity are interdependent behaviors that should not be treated separately. (2) Greater emphasis must be placed on physical activity.

In matters of taste, one must consider nutrition, and in matters of nutrition, consider taste.

Integrate physical activity with nutrition and taste to promote health and quality of life. IN ALL CASES, CONSIDER INDIVIDUAL NEEDS AND PREFERENCES.

Elderly stay healthy, medical survey says

WASHINGTON (AP) - America's elderly are not only living longer but more of them are staying healthy enough to enjoy it. A study shows a 14.5 percent decline in the rate of older people who are unable to care for themselves.

A national medical survey taken periodically since 1982 shows that the percentage of people over age 65 who are disabled has dropped from 24.9 percent to 21.3 percent, a difference of about 1.2 million people.

"There is total life expectancy and then there is active life expectancy," said Kenneth G. Manton of Duke University. "It looks like both are improving at the same time."

Manton is the lead author of a survey study to be published on Wednesday in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

The National Long Term Care Surveys analyzed by the Manton team look at the rates of chronic disability among more than 20,000 people age 65 and older. Chronic disability is defined as either being in a nursing home or being unable to perform at least one of the activities of daily living, such as bathing or dressing oneself, or as being unable to perform at least one of the instrumental activities of daily living, such as washing clothes.

Manton said that people are living longer and remaining active because medical science is learning more about treating the elderly.

"We can deal with the elderly and the oldest old in new ways," said Manton. "There is better diagnosis and treatment of the specialized problems that you get in a very elderly population."

Also, older people are now better educated in the ways of health and long life, said Manton.

"They are more responsive and they are better medical consumers," said Manton. "They are more likely to preserve life style factors that improve health, such as physical activity and nutrition."

Manton said that the downward trend in chronic disability has been noted at each step of the survey and is apt to continue into the future.

"I think the rates will continue to decline for the next 10 to 15 years," said Manton.

AHA suggests many heart-healthy menus

HARLINGEN, Texas - Few people would minimize the importance of a heart-healthy eating plan. Yet good intentions often get side-tracked in the rush of each day.

"From career women to schools, people call the American Heart Association wanting to know how to eat on the run," said Toni Lopez, registered licensed dietitian and certified diabetes educator at Valley Baptist Medical Center in Harlingen.

"What we do is encourage them and their entire family to eat well all year - for the rest of their lives."

The family might not even know the cook is making modifications with ingredients such as low-fat cottage cheese and lower-fat margarine.

"I use oil in my flour tortillas instead of lard," said Ms. Lopez, who is also chairman of educational programs for the American Heart Association. "When I finally told my husband, he said, 'Oh, yeah, they taste good.' He didn't even know the difference."

What we eat is related to heart disease and stroke, America's number one killers.

A heart-healthy diet is low in saturated fat and cholesterol and includes plenty of high-fiber foods, such as fruits and vegetables, which are also high in vitamins and minerals.

Some research now shows that vitamins C and E, both anti-oxidants, increase and protect the high-density lipoprotein formation, Ms. Lopez said, and exercise also helps increase the HDL or good cholesterol level.

"People who fanatically exercise every day can burn themselves out," she said. "We recommend 30 minutes of exercise three or four times a week."

To get started on a heart-healthy course, Ms. Lopez recommends cutting back on fat in food preparation. Don't fry foods anymore: Serve baked potatoes instead of french fries and baked chicken instead of fried chicken. Also, trim the fat off meats.

The Lone Star Way to the 5-a-Day plan recommends eating every day at least one vitamin A-rich selection, at least one vitamin C-rich selection, and at least one high-fiber selection. Cruciferous vegetables such as broccoli and cabbage should be eaten several times a week. The plan also offers these suggestions:

- Breakfast - Drink a glass of 100 percent juice; add fresh fruit to cereal; try a fresh fruit smoothie.

- Lunch - Have a salad or soup with lots of vegetables; add fresh-cut veggies such as zucchini, carrots or celery sticks to lunch; eat a grapefruit, orange or melon slices; add cucumbers or shredded carrots to your sandwich.

- Snack - Try raw veggies with low-fat dressings or dips; top yogurt with fresh fruit slices; blend juice, fruit and ice for a refreshing drink.

- Dinner - Toss steamed vegetables with pasta; add raw veggies to a green salad; use fruits as garnish with main dishes; try a new fruit or vegetable each week.

- Dessert - Liven up a plain dessert with fresh fruit; add chopped fruit or berries to muffins, cakes or cookies.

"Don't be so hard on yourself if you get off track," Ms. Lopez said. "But if you cheat one day or one meal, don't make it a habit. Don't do it all weekend."

These free booklets, "An Eating Plan for Healthy Americans," "Recipes for Low-Fat, Low-Cholesterol Meals," and "Hispanics and Heart Disease Recipe Book," are available by calling the American Heart Association at (800) 242-8721.

BEEF KING RANCH CASSEROLE

- 2 pounds beef sirloin
- 1 cup onion, chopped
- 1/2 cup red bell pepper, chopped
- 1/2 cup green bell pepper, chopped
- 2 to 4 tablespoons jalapeno, chopped
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon cumin
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 2/3 cup skim milk
- 1 can Rotel (diced tomatoes and green chilies)
- 1 can beef broth
- 8 ounces fat-free Cheddar cheese, shredded
- 12 corn tortillas

Cook beef over low heat covered with water until fork tender, 30-45 minutes. (Longer cooking makes the steak easier to shred.) Place cooked steak on hard surface and shred by pulling apart with two forks. Set aside.

Prepare a large skillet with non-stick cooking spray. Sauté onion and peppers with dry ingredients until translucent.

Add Rotel, beef broth and milk. Simmer. Stir in cheese until melted. Add cooked, shredded beef. Quarter tortillas and add to mixture. Pour into casserole dish prepared with non-stick cooking spray. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Serves 8.

Long-married couples share secrets of success

EDITOR'S NOTE - The number of divorces in America has increased 200 percent over the last 30 years, while the percentage of people marrying is at an all-time low, according to the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

But for some couples, divorce has never been an option. After 50 or 60 years, they can't imagine not being married.

Below, three of those couples - the Browns, the Waterses and the Harsches - share their hope for the future of marriage and their advice on how to make it succeed.

SAN ANGELO, Texas - James and Billie Brown's marriage probably shouldn't have worked. Now that Billie is older and wiser, she can say that.

"We married young, we were broke, we weren't educated, we didn't have any goals at the time," Billie said. "We were all of those things that people say aren't supposed to work."

But they have worked - for 50 years. And they've worked in spite of the fact that initially Billie went out with James just because he was the new boy in school.

"All the girls wanted to date him. And I got my turn. ... James wasn't what I wanted at all," Billie said, laughing. "I wanted someone who was a tall blond and had blue eyes. James had black hair, he was short and he has brown eyes. He wasn't what I pictured as my knight in armor."

Anna Ruth Galloway felt differently when she met Cooper Waters, a young preacher. He was everything she wanted. The only problem with Cooper was that he had a few too many girlfriends, so Anna Ruth had her work cut out for her.

"Yeah, I wanted him if I could get him," Anna Ruth said of her husband of 60 years. "He was just what I wanted. I liked the way he looked. He was a real good dresser, and he went to Baylor University. He was tall enough, but not too tall. And I thought he was handsome - good looking. And he was fun."

"I thought I could get pretty serious about him. We just seemed to hit it off. And I really wanted to marry a preacher. I felt like the Lord had called me to that."

The Browns and Waterses started their lives in different towns and lived different lifestyles, but the two couples have managed to end up in the same place - right in the middle of successful marriages.

Once they married, Billie and James needed a couple of years to get everything in focus. But then he went to Sul Ross State University and became a teacher and coach. A few years later, Billie went to college and also became a teacher. Eventually, they had two children.

"Through the years, the goals came, the education came, we had enough money and we had the children," Billie Brown said. "All of that, to me, is what bonded us together, and the commitment grew because of all that."

They didn't have much in those early days. Both had been young and somewhat unaware during the Depression.

"When I was a kid, I didn't know what the Depression was," Billie said. "I didn't know how hard my father was looking for work or that we didn't have enough to eat or new clothes to wear."

And when they married, it was the same kind of thing. They were doing without, but it wasn't unusual compared to what they were used to - and compared to what everyone else was going through.

"There was a low-key, nobody-had-anything type situation," Billie said. "All the GIs were coming back from the war."

"We worked our way through college, basically," James said.

"And we didn't have a lot of the social pressures I find many young couples have today," Billie said. "Nobody had anything. When James and I married, that was just what people did when they fell in love."

Fifty years later, Billie and James are still in love. And James can list several reasons why their marriage has worked.

"Never criticize or belittle your mate in front of someone else," James said. "She's always known that. It's taken me a little longer to learn it. There need to be a lot of 'I love you's,' and you have to be able to say 'I'm sorry.' And couples need a little cuddlin' time. We always have a little cuddlin' time - it doesn't matter if it's 30 seconds or two minutes or more. You need cuddlin' time."

Billie has a few ideas to add to her husband's.

"Never go to bed mad," she said. "And there was never any mine or yours. It's ours. It was never his money or my money. It was our money. We could never have any fun if it were his or mine. And we don't try to live beyond our means. I think a lot of married couples today have too much stress - their accounts are high, they're both working long hours, and they come home stressed out and that hurts."

The Browns credit God with much of their marital success.

"That has to have made a difference," Billie said of their church life. "I'm sure all those other things would be Biblical - to not go to bed mad or not criticize. But when you live in a small community and you go to church, that reinforces all that."

"God has put us everywhere we ever lived. And in every place, we have grown. We've grown together, and we've grown spiritually, and we've grown mentally. We've grown with a deep appreciation of friends. That's not to say we were happy everywhere we went, but even out of the unhappiness we grew."

Every once in a while, if it doesn't come on too late, Dr. Cooper Waters will sit up and watch a special movie with his wife, Anna Ruth.

It reminds them of when their memories together really began.

"That Fourth of July (in 1936), we spent the whole day together," Waters said. "My daddy gave me a dollar and told me to take my girl to a picture show. Tickets were 25 cents back then, and we took the city bus to the picture show, and we saw 'San Francisco.' It was a good movie. It's the one with the earthquake in it."

"And when the show was over, we went to the confectionary next door and had a Coke. We did all that on a dollar. That was 1936, in the Depression, and a dollar would go a long way."

So does a good movie. And so does a good marriage. In December, the Waterses celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary. The marriage included more than 40 years of service to Baptist church congregations all over Texas. Waters was pastor of the First Baptist Church in Orange for more than 30 years. Anna Ruth never worked outside the home, choosing instead to serve her husband by staying with their three children.

"We lived in a time, primarily, when the husband was the breadwinner and the woman was the homemaker," Waters said. "Pastors' salaries - and teachers - are at the bottom of the totem pole, but I always served at churches where they paid me a living salary. She didn't have to work out (of the home). She was a good homemaker, and the Lord let me be a pretty good breadwinner."

Since they spent most of their life together serving the church, it seems appropriate that they met at church. While Waters was home from Baylor for the Easter holiday, he preached one Sunday night. Then he walked Anna Ruth home, and that was where it all began. Seeing "San Francisco" was their first real date.

"It was a lot simpler lifestyle in those days," Waters said. "People didn't know as much. We didn't have TV. I remember when we first got radio."

Some of their dates consisted of playing games with other young people at church, and that was when Anna Ruth realized what a wonderful husband Waters would make.

SECRETS

"With Cooper, I felt like he could handle a situation if I couldn't," Anna Ruth said. "I saw he was a leader."

"We're a good match," Waters said. "I'm a leader, and she's a good follower. I'm not happy if I'm not in the lead..."

"... And I hold back if I am in the lead," Anna Ruth said, finishing her husband's thought.

Early on, the Waterses realized that church life would keep them busy. Many evenings were spent at prayer meetings, church socials, hospital visits and church services. Anna Ruth served on many committees and civic organizations. So at the beginning of each week, they sat down together and organized their schedules. They figured out when they needed baby-sitters and when Waters would stay with the kids. Even after 60 years, they synchronize their watches and organize their schedules early each week.

"But his job always came first," Anna Ruth said, stressing the importance of being a pastor. "Our children revered him. I think the thing that's been the best is that we get along with our children. Those children loved their daddy and they knew what he stood for."

In the Waters home, what Anna Ruth and her husband said was just the way it was. But the couple recognized the pressures of being preacher's children, so they took the family on annual vacations.

"On vacation, we did what they wanted to do," Anna Ruth said.

As a pastor's family, the Waterses were fortunate to avoid many of the financial pitfalls that plagued other families at the time. They lived in a parsonage, and Waters said he never paid a doctor until he and Anna Ruth recently moved to San Angelo. Farmers would bring fresh vegetables to the home, and ranchers would bring beef. Even some stores would give discounts to pastors then.

Waters married a lot of couples during his 40-plus years as a pastor, and he always advised them never to get mad at the same time. While he and Anna Ruth have followed that advice as well, they say it's their Christ-centered approach to marriage that has brought them to the 60-year mark.

That and the fact that Anna Ruth was able to stay home. When talking about the success of their marriage, her willingness to work at home is what Waters always comes back to.

"It was almost a disgrace to get a divorce then," Waters said. "We married to stay married. And we never thought about breaking that commitment."
