Burglary.....

it is quickly and easily traceable because most states have a computer system which will tell them within a few seconds the name and address of the operator's driving license.

Marking deters the burglar because people are wary about purchasing marking equipment and that includes the "fence" used by the professional burglar.

The next step in discouraging the intruder is to "lock up and lock out."

Rule number one is to keep the doors and windows locked—even when you're home. Some burglars specialize in small items such as purses or money they can pick up while residents are working in the yard, hanging up laundry, or visiting with friends.

Most people are unaware that most locks on their apartments and homes, no matter how new or expensive the home it, are what the burglar refers to as "10-second" locks. That is approximately how long it takes him to open the door and gain entrance.

The crime prevention unit suggests these precautions:

--Ideally, doors should be of solid, heavy wood without a window. If your home is not constructed in this manner, there are still steps you can take to protect your home.

--The stronger and more sophisticated the lock, the better your protection. A burglar cannot risk the noise required to force or break down a solid door with a good lock.

--Instead of replacing the principal lock on outside doors if they do not already have a deadbolt, install a secondary security device with a minimum one-inch throw deadbolt.

--All deadbolt locks should have hardened cylinder guards. The crime prevention unit has a booklet showing how locks should be installed and what to do for special situation, such as doors with glass panels, sliding glass doors or windows, louvered doors and windows, and garage doors.

--Install a wide-angle peephole in your front door so you can identify callers before unlocking. A peephole or a door knocker with a peephole and grill you can talk through can be purchased very inexpensively and is simple to install yourself.

--Chain locks on the side of doors do not offer any protection. They can be easily forced, unlatched, or cut.

--Garage doors are just as important as other outside doors. Once a burglar gets in the garage, he has complete privacy to break into your home. A single lock or padlock on the outside of your garage is not sufficient to protect your home.

--Windows should be secured with locking devices or with a pin placed through special holes drilled in the frame. The crime prevention unit booklet also illustrates how this is done.

--The finest locks in the world will not keep out an intruder if a burglar gets possession of your keys. When you change residences, have a locksmith re-key your outside locks. It is not necessary to have the entire lock replaced. Former residents, apartment complex employees or employees of building contractors may still have keys in their possession.

--Be careful about giving or lending duplicate keys. Always separate your home keys from your ignition key when you leave your car in a parking lot or garage. Avoid identification tags on keys, including license plate numbers. They tell burglars what locks they fit.

--Make sure no one in your family tries to "hide" a door key outside. Burglars know more about where to look for hidden keys than anyone. If you are worried about locking yourself out, leave a house key with a trusted neighbor or friend.

Since citizen compliance with these suggestions is the way to prevent burglary, the crime prevention officers say they can't emphasize enough the fact that no lock is a lock unless it's locked.

In his proclamation, Mayor Williams points out that the schools represent the best efforts of the community, the state, and the nation to improve the quality of life. The proclamation further states, "Defining the schools' goals and evaluating their results are the responsibilities of an informed and involved citizenry."

The Mayor commented, "There is a widespread need for better communication and more cooperative relationships between professional educators and the community."

Producers desiring to prove their 1976 wheat yield will be required to submit production data for the 1970-1974 base period. "You must submit acceptable production evidence for each year of the base period by not later than December 1," noted Fuston.

He pointed out that acceptable production evidence is limited to a record of disposition such as bin measurements, sales, or warehouse receipts or warehouse ledger sheets. Adjustments may be necessary for dockage and high moisture content.

The farm must have a final effective allotment other than zero for all years of the base period and must have had wheat acreage in each year of the base period, to be eligible to prove a yield. Producers having an interest in more than one farm, will be required to furnish production records for all farms in the county and adjoining counties in which he had an interest in any of the years for which the yields are to be proven.

Fuston also pointed out that the 1975 wool marketing year ends December 31, 1975. Applications for wool incentive payments on wool sold in 1975 must be filed by not later than January 31, 1976.

Producers who were issued peanut marketing cards should return the card to the office as soon as they sell the peanuts. The cards must be returned to the county office by January 29, 1976.

Fuston also announced that during the last half of November and in December some 75,000 farmers and ranchers will receive either a coop or livestock questionnaire from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. Accurate estimates have always been of great importance to producers, according to Fuston. He pointed out that each farmer receiving a questionnaire is urged to fill it out carefully and return it promptly to the Agricultural Statistician

Farm Loan Demand Off

Opinions expressed here do not necessarily represent the view of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas or the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.

With higher prices bolstering farm sales, cash flows to farmers and ranchers in the Southwest have increased this fall. And with harvests better than last year, prospects are for further improvements.

As a result, demand for agricultural loans in the five states served by the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas has eased in recent weeks. Requests for extensions on loans at banks in the Eleventh Federal Reserve District have slowed, and farm loans are being repaid faster than a year ago.

Although price increases have improved growers' incomes in the district--which includes Texas, northern Louisiana, southeastern Oklahoma, and the southern halves of New Mexico and Arizona--costs of production have also increased, offsetting some of the gains in income and enlarging the risks of farm operations.

As their costs rise, growers have more to lose from a setback in yields or drop in prices. Crop farmers did not have the yields they expected last year. And stockmen, whether dealing in stocker or feeder cattle, are caught in a severe cost-price squeeze for the second straight year, as are dairymen.

Market uncertainties, along with unusual weather in some areas and lingering effects of low farm income in most areas, have made many banks more selective in their farm lending.

A survey of more than 200 banks in the district indicates, for example, that more than a third of the banks may be requiring more collateral that usual for farm loans.

Bankers clearly believe that as crops are harvested this fall, existing loans will be paid down. And as cattle herds are culled more severely this year, demand for farm credit will be further reduced.

Where more than a third of the bankers surveyed this summer reported greater demand that usual for farm loans, only a little over a fifth of them now report above-average demand.

Demand for crop loans has remained strong over most of the district. Bankers attribute this strength to higher operating costs and the larger acreages planted this year.

But demand for livestock loans has been much weaker, and the outlook for livestock loans is far less certain.

With cattle on feed in the five states increasing, demand for loans to feed them out could gain momentum in some areas. But in others, where dry weather has lowered prospects for winter pastures and wheat grazing, demand for both feeder and stocker cattle loans has been dampened.

Demand for crop storage loans has eased since summer. And while demand for these loans is expected to be heavier than last fall, bankers believe it will remain fairly light.

With prices favorable, farmers are expected to sell their crops to pay off debts built up last year. And with the proximity of crops to Gulf Coast ports, most of the grain sold for shipment overseas is expected to move quickly out of the district.

As farm incomes improve, purchases of farm machinery are apt to increase. And with the increase, bankers expect some increases in demand for credit to help finance the purchases.

While loan repayments have increased since summer, the increase has not been as much as would ordinarily be expected.

Favorable crop prices and generally good yields have boosted repayment of crop loans over most of the district. But low cattle prices and mounting feed costs have held back the repayment of cattle loans.

Of the banks surveyed, 85 percent reported an at least average number of renewals and extensions of farm loans. That was compared with 95 percent this summer.

The availability of funds to support agricultural loans has increased slightly since summer.

Well over 85 percent of the banks reported the supply of loanable funds in their areas at least average for this time of year. Of those, more than half said they were actively seeking new farm loan accounts.

Considerable amounts of funds are clearly available for loan. As a proportion of deposits, loans at reporting banks recently totaled 55 percent.

Although more than a third of the banks had loan-to-deposit ratios of over 60 percent, two out of five banks had ratios of 50 percent or less.

The upshot was that more than half the banks responding to the survey were satisfied with the volume of their loans outstanding relative to the deposits they held. And close to 30 percent of the banks would like to make more farm loans.

Nine out of ten banks reported they were charging 9 to 10 percent on farm loans. Interest rates averaged 9.6 percent for feeder cattle loans and 9.41 percent for other short-term operating loans. Banks charged an average of 9.44 percent for intermediate-term loans and 9.32 percent for long-term farm real estate loans.

Thursday, November 13, was an eventful night for members of the local TOPS Club. It was on this night that the TOPS honored the KOPS, those members who have retained their desired weight and kept the pounds off.

Your mirror shows you the size you wanted to be, so give us this sensation and take from us all temptation, for you are the wise girls - pretty size girls, forever, KOPS Girls."

KOPS members are Mrs. J.V. Peeler, Mrs. Tom Berry, Mrs. Harold DeLoach, Mrs. Louis Shafer, Mrs. J.V. Spurgeon and Mae Province.

AUSTIN — Most observers agree constitutional revision is a dead issue in Texas after last week's crushing defeat of all eight proposed changes in the state's basic law.

The eight propositions went down by a statewide margin of nearly three-to-one, leaving proponents little ground for optimism of reviving any of them.

They failed by resounding counts in the cities, the middle-sized towns and in the rural areas. Only Duval and Webb counties approved all eight proposals, and El Paso County endorsed seven. Kenedy County accepted the first three and rejected five others.

Lawmakers seemed to agree that, in view of the lopsided turnout, there is no point in trying to call a citizens constitutional convention.

Some said the only chance for revision now is a long, drawn-out process in which a single article or parts of articles are submitted to voters one-at-a-time after careful efforts to iron out differences.

Only the League of Women Voters of Texas remained committed to seeking establishment of a citizens convention to draft a new document.

Some legislators who pushed hard for revision admitted they will be keeping a low profile for awhile—hoping the voters don't hold their activities against them.

Jails Studied

Only half a dozen county jails met all Health Department standards during the last six years, the new Texas Commission on Jail Standards was told last week.

The Commission met here to discuss how it can go about getting public support for upgrading jails.

A Health Department officer said only counties whose jails had a perfect score were Childress, Gillespie, Howard, Lynn, Milam, and Oldham. Eight others had a single violation out of a list of 30 items checked.

The Commission has enforcement power, can order sub-standard jails closed and transfer prisoners to other facilities.

No Tax Bill

The chairman of the Texas House of Representatives tax panel questioned whether a new tax bill will be required in the legislature of 1977.

The state has escaped new taxes for two legislative sessions, but most projections have indicated a record revenue measure will be required at the next session.

"My personal belief is that a tax increase is not going to be required at the next session of the legislature," Rep. Joe Wyatt of Bloomington told a seminar on the state tax structure. Wyatt is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Patient Load Drops

Patient population at Texas mental hospitals has dropped 18.1 per cent in the last year, to 6,944.

The admission rate, meanwhile, increased to 19,797 from 18,413. Community-based facilities close to patients' homes and improved treatment programs were credited with reducing the number of long-term residents.

Courts Speak

The State Supreme Court held businesses have a right to jury trial when the state sues them for deceptive trade practices.

In another case, the High Court called for a new trial of a Galveston area woman's suit arising from burn injuries when natural gas came out of her kitchen sink water faucet.

By a divided verdict, the Court affirmed a $303,126 ruling against the widow of the owner of a rental and supply firm which rented scaffolding from which workmen fell during construction of a Galveston school a decade ago.

In still another ruling, the High Court held a disbarment suit against the U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands should be tried in Lubbock. The lawyer moved from Lubbock in 1972.

Federal courts delayed mailing of notices to voters that they must obtain new voting certificates by January 31.

AG Opinions

Atty. Gen. John Hill said ownership interests of Austin and San Antonio in a proposed $1 billion nuclear power plant in Matagorda County are exempt from property taxes.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

• A claim for reimbursement to a state hospital for support and maintenance of a patient is not barred by the two-year statute of limitations.

• A sheriff should re-arrest an out-of-county man previously released after original arrest only on appropriate judicial order.

Appointments

Mrs. Marvin Selig of Seguin and Doug DeCluitt of Waco are Texas deputy campaign directors for President Ford.

Ed Palm of Fort Worth, Mrs. George Gray of Dallas, Don Jansen of Houston, Arthur Troilo of San Antonio, Mrs. Leon Richardson of Beaumont and Mrs. Jeanne Root of El Paso are Ford's regional coordinators, designated by Campaign Director Beryl Buckley Milburn of Austin.

Short Snorts

Harry Burleigh resigned as executive director of Texas Water Development Board.

Texas business activity increased 12 per from August to September, according to The University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

The State Insurance Board sees no danger of insurance firm insolvencies due to investment in New York City bonds, according to Chairman Joe Christie.

AFL-CIO leaders are pushing for a corporate income tax next time big money is needed to run state government.

Secretary of State Mark White Jr. reported no instances of voter discrimination, intimidation or coercion in the November 4 constitutional revision election.

A total of $13.7 million in federal Economic Development Administration funds have been approved to help create jobs for 2,500 Texans.

Cigarette tax revenues increased more than $1 million last month over October 1974.
