Firefighters to join fight against MD

Hereford firefighters will join their colleagues across the nation in participating Saturday in the 1999 "Fill the Boot" program.

Proceeds from the "Fill the Boot" program benefit the fight against muscular dystrophy. Firefighters will use their own "boots" as collection containers at various locations around town.

Officials with the Muscular Dystrophy Association have said many people don't realize how loose change from peoples' pockets adds up. In 1998, more than $40,000 was raised in the Panhandle to benefit the 200 local patient families affected by the 40 neuromuscular diseases that MDA covers.

All money raised in the Panhandle stays in the region to provide patients with wheelchairs, medical clinics, support groups, a weeklong camp at Ceta Canyon in Happy, and the hope for a cure resulting from ongoing and extensive research.

For more information about the Hereford "Fill the Boot" project, contact David Spain363-7114.

Lawmakers revisiting gun control

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate lawmakers are re-opening gun control talks months after the chambers took starkly different approaches to juvenile violence in response to a spate of school shootings this year.

A committee of 34 House members and senators took two hours to give opening statements on the disagreement — then adjourned, assigning aides to hammer out the differences while Congress goes on summer vacation this month.

President Clinton challenged the panel to stay in session through the month-long recess.

"Let's show our children that when it comes to their safety, Washington will not take a break," Clinton said in a statement.

Republicans on the conference committee quashed several Democratic efforts to keep the panel in session, and said that passions are running so high in the wake of school and other shootings this year that the talks will take more time.

"The substantive and political differences are very great here," conference chairman Orrin Hatch

Drug abuse, especially of marijuana, among teens is once again on the rise, according to local officials.

Marijuana use, which became widespread during the late 1960s and '70s, seemed to decrease for a time, but area probation officers and judges contend more juveniles are using it.

"We've definitely seen an increase in the number of probationers who test positive for marijuana," said Lou Serrano, Deaf Smith County chief juvenile probation officer.

"Out of 56 court-ordered probationers, we've probably got 75 percent that test positive for marijuana," he said.

County Judge Tom Simons said the increased use of marijuana is not limited to just the teens, but there is also increased use among adults.

Simons and Serrano said the increase is not because of improved or more frequent drug tests, usage actually has risen.

The use of cocaine has risen only slightly in the last few years, Serrano said. However, he said officials have seen a major jump in the use of inhalants.

Anonymous surveys conducted each year at Hereford High and Hereford Junior High schools indicate a huge jump in the number of students who have tried various drugs and those who use them regularly, Serrano said.

Officials say junior high school students increasingly use marijuana because it is more accessible and easier to get than either cigarettes or alcohol.

"It's a lot easier for that age student to get a baggie of marijuana than it is for them to get a pack of cigarettes," Serrano said. "Stores check for identification on alcohol and tobacco purchases, so the kids have to know someone who'll buy it for them or they have to steal it. Marijuana is cheap and all the kids know who to buy it from."

Serrano said many of the young probationers coming into his office say acquaintances will give them a joint or charge only $1 for the illegal cigarette.

"A hard fact is many of the juveniles in my substance abuse programs tell me they get it from their parents," substance abuse counselor Tillie Boozer said.

"Parents of juvenile substance abusers need to be tested as often and as frequently as do the juveniles."

Other than parental drug involvement, Boozer says the student's peers will have the biggest influence.

"Parents need to know who their children associate with and what they are doing," she said.

All juveniles placed on probation are subject to random and frequent drug tests.

The tests administered by the Deaf Smith County Juvenile Probation Department require only a sample of urine, collected in the office, and a prepared kit which tests for marijuana or cocaine.

The tests take only a few minutes to complete and are more than 99 percent accurate, Serrano said.

Drug tests can determine if the participant has used marijuana within the last six weeks or cocaine use in the last 48 hours.

"What these kids don't know is there is no way of fooling the tests. They try drinking bleach, bleach water or putting bleach in their sample. It doesn't work," Serrano said.

Probationers testing positive for drugs will be confined until they no longer test positive, he said.

"We used to be able to motivate them into not using it by telling them they were going to be sent somewhere else. That doesn't seem to affect them anymore."

Simons is quick to let juveniles know "if they use it and I know about it, they're going to get locked up somewhere. That may be in the Youth Home ... or somewhere else."

County officials have used drug abuse facilities in Fort Stockton and San Angelo, with the Texas Youth Center as a last resort.

"If we have to, we'll put the kids in a long term lockup," Simons said.

Juveniles who are charged with the first offense of possession or use of marijuana can expect to draw a sentence of at least one year probation, community service, fines and frequent drug tests.

Reasons for increased drug use vary from theories of hopelessness

Senate OK's ag sales to Cuba

■ Legislation would bar presidents from including food in future embargoes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuba would be allowed to buy U.S. food and medical supplies if the House goes along with a provision the Senate put in an Agriculture Department spending bill.

The Clinton administration recently decided to allow sales of food and medicine to three other countries listed as terrorist states, Iran, Libya and Sudan, but was barred from including Cuba by federal law.

The Senate provision allows the government to issue licenses for up to one year for food and medicine sales to public institutions in Cuba but bars the sales from being subsidized. The legislation also prohibits a president from including food and medicine in future embargoes without congressional approval.

"We think markets like Cuba show large potential, especially for wheat and rice. We don't see any reason why we shouldn't be allowed to sell to them," Wayne Hammon of the National Association of Wheat Growers said Thursday.

"This is a triumph for the American farmer, the people of Cuba and common sense, and restores U.S. policy to the moral high ground,"

FIDEL CASTRO
Cuban president

said Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn.

Similar measures have been rejected in House committees, and the House has no such provision in its version of the agriculture bill. A House-Senate conference committee will work out the differences.

Cuba is buying about $90 million worth of wheat this year, mostly from Australia.

President Clinton has said he has no intention of lifting the trade embargo, which has been in place since shortly after Fidel Castro's communist government took over Cuba in 1959. Congress strengthened the embargo in 1996 with the Helms-Burton law.

In other agriculture-related action, the Senate wants to include tobacco growers in a $7.4 billion package to

News in brief

College growth lags in Texas

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Texas will lag behind other states in college and university growth, according to a state agency's projections that are causing concern about economic harm.

The Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board is projecting enrollment at colleges and universities in Texas will increase about 1 percent annually through 2005 — significantly more slowly than those of other fast-growing states.

Projections have prompted concerns among educators and economists that there will not be enough college graduates to satisfy the state's job demands.

"We are not educating as many in the college-age population as many of the other states," Richard Nicholas, president of student life at Texas Woman's University in Denton, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in today's editions. "If we are going to have an educated work force in the future, education is increasingly critical. Texas is going to have to address that or risk losing businesses."

David Gardner, the coordinating board's deputy assistant commissioner for planning, said a healthy economy is encouraging more people to pursue jobs instead of college.

Although colleges and universities have mounted aggressive recruitment campaigns, officials say enrollment is stagnating, in part since the percentage of minorities pursuing higher education is not keeping pace with their overall population growth in the state.

Gardner said that only half the students who enroll in Texas colleges have graduated after 10 years.

"When you compound that with not having as many students to participate to begin with, you have fewer people than you would like to graduate," he said.

Based on population and campus enrollment patterns, the coordinating board's projections place Texas in contrast to states such as Nevada, where enrollment is expected to increase by 152,000, or 85 percent, by 2010, and California, which expects an increase of 455,000 students, or 24 percent, by 2005.

Dallas janitor executed

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A prosecutor who helped send convicted murderer Charles Boyd to death row says he gets no satisfaction from the execution of Boyd for what became known as the North Dallas "bathroom slayings."

"There's no winners in something like this," Dan Hagood, a former Dallas County assistant district attorney, said Thursday as Boyd, 39, went to the death chamber Thursday night. "It's sad that it all happened."

Skin protects itself from cancer

Study reports special proteins destroy damaged cells

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sun-damaged skin cells that could become cancerous are killed by a special protein produced in sunburned tissue, according to a new study.

Researchers at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center report in the journal Science that sunburned skin cells make a cell-killing protein called Fas that guards the body against skin cancer by killing genetically flawed skin cells.

"Our finding is the first to identify a protein that is a natural defense against skin cancer development," said Lauri Owen-Schaub, an associate professor at M.D. Anderson in Houston. She said the discovery could lead to new therapies to treat skin cancer.

Skin cancer is the most common form of cancer. About 1 million cases of basal cell or squamous cell cancer are diagnosed annually in the United States. The most serious form of skin cancer, melanoma, is diagnosed in about 44,200 Americans annually. Skin cancer can be easily treated if detected early, but the disease kills about 9,200

Americans a year. About 7,300 of these deaths are from melanoma.

Exposure to ultraviolet radiation from the sun is thought to be the most common cause of the genetic changes that lead to skin cancer. Studies have shown that UV radiation can disable certain genes, such as P53, that normally keep cancer in check.

In the M.D. Anderson study, researchers exposed mice to UV radiation and found that sunburned skin cells created the Fas protein. The job of this protein is to inventory the genes in a cell and initiate a process of cell suicide if the cell's genes are mutated.

Two types of mice were used. One mouse strain had the normal Fas protein while the other mouse type lacked the protein.

When both groups of mice were exposed to UV radiation for up to two weeks, the researchers found, only one in 20 of the mice with the Fas protein had skin cells that had been genetically altered by the simulated sunlight. This showed, said Owen-Schaub, that the Fas protein had detected genetically flawed cells and caused them to die.

Among the mice without the Fas protein, however, 70 percent, or 14 out of 20, had skin cells with UV-damaged genes. Such cells are the precursors to skin cancer.

among users to lack of parental or societal concerns.

"Society in general has a lot to do with it," Serrano said. "There will always be people who have no scruples, willing to sell it to anyone. And, of course, there are a lot of parents who still say pot doesn't hurt anyone."

Simons looks at the problem a little differently.

"I wish parents were a little more concerned with what their kids are doing and who they are associating with. A lot of parents are pretty naive and accepting, thinking it's only a phase and that the kid will grow out of it," Simons said.

In a joint effort among the courts, probation office and substance abuse counselors, parents of juveniles ordered to attend substance abuse counseling will be required to attend sessions with their children. The new policy goes into effect Sept. 1.

Regardless of the reasons for increased use, local officials agree this is a widespread problem which is not unique to Hereford.

Local officials encourage parents or guardians to take immediate action if they believe a child is involved with drugs. They all believe a parent has the right to check a child's belongings and even take the child in for drug tests if there is any question. As a last resort, they should call the police and have the child face legal consequences.

The juvenile probation office will conduct a drug test, for a nominal charge of $5.75, on juveniles, who are accompanied by their parents whether the child is on probation or not.

Media violence no longer up for debate

Committee finds exceedingly violent images lead to violent real life experience

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is finalizing juvenile justice legislation to address the problem of media violence, but a new Senate report says parents also must share the burden of shielding children from such images.

"The effect of media violence on our children is no longer open to debate," said Thursday's report from the Senate Judiciary Committee's Republican staff.

The 30-page document concluded that the media dominate children's lives, are "exceedingly violent" and that such images lead to real world violence.

"I hope that this report ... will further the discussion about the flood of media violence in this country and what should be done about it," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, the panel's chairman. Hatch requested the report after the fatal shooting at Colorado's Columbine High School that left 15 people dead in April.

He said more than 1,000 studies over the past 40 years that examined the effects of violence on children have not changed the predominant finding.

Mother remains on life support

HOUSTON (AP) — A comatose woman's 16-week-old fetus is a baby boy who appears to be developing normally, according to a lawyer for the man who claims to be the unborn child's father.

Scott Law, Tammy Martin's boyfriend of 10 months, has gone to court to keep her — and her baby — alive.

Law's attorney, Jared Woodfill, said Thursday that Ms. Martin and her fetus were examined this week at Memorial Hospital Northwest.

"A sonogram was done and they found out it was going to be a little boy," Woodfill said. "Based on the medical evidence we've seen so far, the child's healthy. The child's developing as a child should at this particular stage."

Ms. Martin's family say they've been told by doctors the fetus stands little chance for normal development because the mother abused alcohol and cocaine.

"I hope that this report ... will further the discussion about the flood of media violence in this country and what should be done about it,"

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, Senate Judiciary Committee chairman

als of violence increases aggressive behavior in children," he said. "As one expert put it, arguing against the link between media violence and the violent actions of our youth is 'like arguing against gravity.'"

The report highlights provisions in a Senate-passed juvenile justice that address the issue, and makes additional recommendations to Congress. It also includes suggestions for parents and the entertainment industry.

The 30-page report recommends that:

—Congress begin a national media campaign to educate parents and create a national clearinghouse on children and entertainment violence.

—The television, motion picture, music and video game industries be encouraged to rate their products using a universal system; they now use separate systems.

—The Federal Trade Commission report twice a year on media violence and the entertainment industry's efforts to reduce it.

—Federal property, when used in programming for children, be offered at reduced rates.

—Congress ban advertising for adult programming broadcast at times when children are most likely to be watching television or listening to the radio. The ban also would apply to publications designed for children.

The Senate juvenile justice bill would toughen penalties for juvenile offenders while providing states with $1 billion a year to fight juvenile crime and prevent delinquency. A House-Senate committee began Thursday to iron out differences between that bill and a different version passed by the House.

The Senate bill also has provisions aimed at limiting youth exposure to violence, including a proposal to grant a limited antitrust exemption to the entertainment industries so they can develop voluntary guidelines.

The legislation also calls for a national media campaign against youth violence, would ban use of federal property in violent movies or TV shows and require Internet service providers to offer filtering technology to block access to explicit material.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am newly hearing-impaired due to chemotherapy and have developed a great deal of empathy for those who, like myself, are trying to discern the sounds around them. I hope you will tell your readers who have normal hearing to observe the following when they are around people like me. It would be deeply appreciated.

1. Speak TO ME. Don't talk with your back to me. For all I know, you could be talking to yourself.

2. Remember, it is more difficult for me to hear in a crowd. At restaurants and in cars, the background noise makes it even harder.

3. In a group, make an effort to include me in the conversation. Perhaps I have something to offer if I know what you are talking about.

4. Finally, and most importantly, don't make me feel sorry I asked you to repeat something you said by shouting at me in exasperation. You take away my dignity and make it harder for me to ask the next time I can't understand you.

I'm trying to live with my hearing loss the best way I know how, and there are millions of others just like me. — J.F. in Racine, Wis.

Dear J.F.: You have written a letter for which millions of readers would like to thank you. Helen Keller, who was both blind and deaf, was asked which of those senses she would rather have restored if it were possible to do so. She replied without a moment's hesitation, "Hearing, because it truly connects you to the world."

Dear Ann Landers: Here's my "how we met" letter for those who enjoy reading them. The others can skip it: In the fall of 1942, my Army outfit, in training at Ft. Jackson, S.C., was sent to Tennessee for tactical maneuvers. One evening, my friend Murphy and I stopped at a restaurant for a bite to eat. There were three girls sitting at the counter, laughing and having a good time. Murphy and I joined in their conversation, bantering back and forth as we ate. A short while later, the girls left.

About 20 minutes later, the telephone rang. The proprietor said the call was for me. I told him, "This is weird. No one knows I'm here." It turned out to be one of the girls. Apparently, she had expressed an interest in me, and her friends dared her to make the call. We made a date for the next night. I picked her up at her home and met her mother, who I suspect was "sizing me up." We saw each other several times after that, and then, I returned to South Carolina.

We corresponded, and I invited her to come for a visit. The next time I saw her, she announced, "We are going to get married. Buy a wedding ring and I'll book the church." I followed her instructions, and we were married 10 days later. After two years of combat duty overseas, I returned to see our daughter for the first time. She was 2 years old. We now have five children, 14 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. My dear wife died after 51 years of a beautiful marriage, and even though I have an enormous family and they are wonderful, I will forever miss her. — Tom in Baltimore, Md.

Dear Tom: I still find the "how we met" letters heartwarming. Thanks for yours. I hope my readers will keep sending them in.

1999 Property Tax Rates in Deaf Smith County

This notice concerns 1999 property tax rates for Deaf Smith County. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$2,929,628
Last year's debt taxes	$0
Last year's total taxes	$2,929,628
Last year's tax base	$554,223,988
Last year's total tax rate	0.5286 /$100
This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$2,926,496
This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$548,331,758
This year's effective tax rate	0.5337 /$100
This year's rollback tax rate:
Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and including taxes for state criminal justice mandate)	$3,284,426
This year's adjusted tax base	$548,331,758
This year's effective operating rate	0.5990 /$100
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	0.6469 /$100
+ This year's debt rate	0.0000 /$100
= This year's rollback rate	0.6469 /$100
- Sales tax adjustment rate	0.0644 /$100
= Rollback tax rate	0.5825 /$100

Schedule A Unencumbered Fund Balances
The following estimated balances will be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.
Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
Schedule B 1999 Debt Service
The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).
Total required for 1999 debt service	$0
- Amount (if any) paid from funds listed in Schedule A	$0
- Amount (if any) paid from other resources	$0
- Excess collections last year	$0
= Total to be paid from taxes in 1999	$0
+ Amount added in anticipation that the unit will collect only 97.00% of its taxes in 1999	$0
= Total debt levy	$0
Schedule C: Expected Revenue from Additional Sales Tax
In calculating its effective and rollback tax rates, the unit estimated that it will receive $357,930 in additional sales and use tax revenues. The county has excluded any amount that is or will be distributed for economic development grants from this amount of expected sales tax revenue.
This notice contains a summary of actual effective and rollback tax rates' calculations. You can inspect a copy of the full calculations at 140 E. 3rd, Hereford, TX.

FELLOWSHIP OF BELIEVERS

The lectionary for this, the 11th Sunday after Pentecost, gives Matthew 14:22-33 as the gospel text du jour. The story is about Jesus and one of those sudden storms. With all the recent "sudden storms" popping up in the area this makes for a timely text. "What to Do in Case of a Sudden Storm?" ought to serve as an appropriate sermon title.

Pastor Stone will lead the morning worship that begins at 10:30 and concludes no later than 11:25. Saint Thomas Episcopal's Linda Gilbert will accompany our singing.

A portion of FOB's morning worship will re-visit the tragic F-5 tornadoes that hit Oklahoma in May. FOB sent a sizable gift to a small town in Oklahoma through a Mennonite relief agency. Doug and Barbara Manning were significant in augmenting and directing the FOB gift. Administrator Margaret Formby will present the report.

In "Forum" (9:30-10:15) the group will dialogue around the question, "Is Hollywood Overdoing Sex and Violence?" That question is based on the "Hashing It Out" video series featuring Tony Compolo and Steve Brown. Among other things the group will wonder out loud, "Does the portrayal of sex and violence in film and on television mirror or reflect the values of society? Or does it promote these values?"

While "Forum" is happening, an appropriate and unique Sunday school experience is provided for the children. A supervised nursery is available at all services.

FOB is an independent, multidominational, ecumenical, progressive and inclusive church. As we follow the Jesus way we continue to seek ways to be generous with our love and our resources.

The church building is located at 245 N. Kingwood (at Moreman), next door to the Hereford Care Center. For transportation to the services phone 364-0359.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

First Church extends a warm welcome and invitation to attend worship services at 8:30 and 10:45 Sunday morning in the church sanctuary. Dr. Tom Fuller will bring the sermon, "Love Always Wins," drawn from I Corinthians 13. The Sanctuary Choir will sing the anthem, "Be Strong in the Lord." Sunday school classes begin at 9:30 a.m. for all ages.

Weigh Down workshop meets at 5 p.m. Sunday. The snack supper and youth program on Sunday will be combined at 6:30 p.m.

The used organ's solid-wood console and 21 polished brass chimes will be sold to the highest bidders with proceeds going to the Organ Fund. These pieces have significant historical and sentimental meaning for FUMC and the community. Bids can be placed until 5 p.m. August 13 by calling the church office.

Three millennium studies will be addressed at Roundup '99, the annual leadership development program slated August 21 at First United Methodist Church in Lubbock. Scholarships are available to those who register before August 17, reducing the fee to $10 per person. To sign up, contact the church office.

Hereford Ministerial Alliance is sponsoring a golf tournament for local pastors, staff, deacons and elders on August 12 at the local golf course. Cost will be $25, including green fees, cart and a hot dog lunch. Players can purchase one mulligan for each nine holes for $2.50. Mulligans may only be used on the tee. Call the church office by August 10 to enter.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Did you ever notice how much effort we put into our kids? When those little guys come home from the hospital the world seems to start revolving around them. We feed, clothe, change, doctor, and lavish love and attention on them. That's only right.

We don't see them, take them to see grandparents, take them on trips, get them in every sport we can and do everything we can to see that they are well-rounded and prepared to "make it" in this world.

Frankly, one area we tend to miss is their spiritual formation. Dropping them off at Sunday school isn't bad but it isn't the best either. We want to help and encourage families to give each of their members what is needed in this life and the next.

This Sunday, First Baptist is sponsoring "A Day of Hope for the Home" with Rodney Gage. With all the problems and temptations facing teens and parents, come and receive some good, positive help for your families.

The teens will meet Rodney during the Bible study hour at 9:45. He will preach from God's word at 10:50 on "Why Your Kids Do What They Do." At 5 p.m., he will share with parents, grandparents and guardians about "Nine Ways to Listen to Your Kids." At 6:30, Rodney will share "Four Keys to Starting a Relationship Revolution."

Use this Sunday as an investment for your family. You will see dividends sooner than you think.

By the way, if you're into golf or fellowship, FBC's Fifth Annual (or When We Remember It) Golf Tournament is August 21. The cost is $25, which includes cart and lunch. Call 364-0696 to register.

'Big Mac' blasts 501st career home run

San Diego's Tony Gwynn gets 2,999 hit, a two-run RBI double as Padres run away from Cardinals, 10-3

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mark McGwire needed one homer and got two to finish the night with 501 homers. Tony Gwynn needed two hits and got one, leaving him with 2,999 hits.

McGwire reached the 500 plateau with fewer at-bats than anyone in baseball history, then hit No. 501 off the left-field scoreboard Thursday night in a 10-3 loss to the San Diego Padres on Thursday night.

"He's incredible," Padres manager Bruce Bochy said. "It's like he's allergic to a base hit, too. I mean, the ball's leaving the park every time he hits it."

McGwire made it to 500 in 5,487 at-bats, obliterating Babe Ruth's record of 5,801. The others in the top five are Harmon Killebrew (6,671), Jimmie Foxx (7,074) and Mickey Mantle (7,300).

"I'm well aware of the names," McGwire said. "It's sort of odd to have your name with that group because I feel like I have a few years to play. I'm not done playing."

While McGwire became the 16th member of the 500-homer club, Gwynn fell just short of becoming the 22nd player to reach 3,000 hits. Gwynn got No. 2,999 — a two-run double in the ninth inning — and went 1-for-4 with a walk as a sellout crowd just missed a double dose of history.

"I gave it a good run," Gwynn said. "I'll move on to the next stop, and hopefully I can get it there tomorrow."

The Padres begin a four-game series at Montreal tonight. Never before have two players had a chance to reach such lofty milestones in the same game.

"The people of all America got to see what they wanted to see and plus one," said Padres right-hander Andy Ashby, who gave up both homers. "It would have been nice if Tony would have gotten his 3,000th, but we'll have to wait another day for that, or whenever it comes."

A crowd of 45,106, some of whom paid $150 to scalpers for a $7 standing room ticket, came away happy. After just missing in his first at-bat with a drive to the center-field wall, McGwire hit a hanging breaking ball an estimated 451 feet to straightaway center in the third, then blasted a 479-foot shot off the scoreboard in left-center in the eighth.

"I've exceeded everything I expected of myself," McGwire said after the game. "Growing up as a kid, you don't think

Injuries plague Cowboys in intrasquad scrimmage

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys' Blue-White scrimmage should've been called the black-and-blue game.

Dallas' lengthy injury list got even longer during Thursday night's intrasquad workout, with receiver James McKnight going down the hardest.

An MRI was scheduled to determine how badly McKnight hurt his left knee, but it appeared to be serious. "It probably doesn't look real good," coach Chan Gailey said.

McKnight, acquired from Seattle in June, was hurt during one of the first plays of a goal-line drill early in the first full-contract action of training camp. He slumped onto the artificial turf of Memorial Stadium without being hit and immediately clutched the knee.

The injuries kept coming for the receiving corps.

Michael Irvin missed a few plays after getting smacked in the face, Jeff Ogden landed hard on his tailbone, Jason Tucker got poked in the eye and Wane McGarity needed stitches to close a gash on his chin.

The unit already was down a man because Raghib Ismail has a slightly separated left shoulder.

Ogden, who appeared to be shaken up pretty badly, was listed as day-to-day. McGarity was to be X-rayed to see whether he may have cracked his jaw.

"It was a tough night for receivers, a tough night for a couple of places really," Gailey said.

The secondary, already reeling because of Deion Sanders' toe injury, had cornerback Kevin Mathis leave with a bruised back, and safety George Teague was knocked woozy. Cornerback Kevin Smith was held out with a nagging back problem.

Gailey said Mathis was benched as a precaution.

"It doesn't sound really bad," he said.

The offensive line, the most injury-rattled group thus far in camp, had some more tense moments as starting left tackle Flozell Adams went out with a strained muscle and Jeremy Akers hurt his back.

Mike Kiselak (lost for the season with severe knee damage).

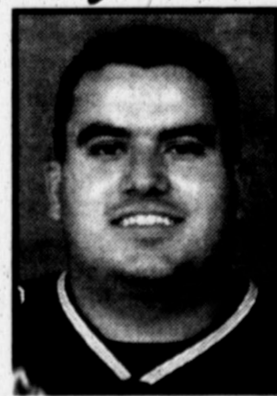

The Cowboys will have to figure out who's healthy soon because they open their exhibition season Monday night with the Hall of Fame game against the Cleveland Browns in Canton, Ohio.

Gailey said the only silver lining is that other players will get a chance to show what they can do.

"Injuries create opportunities," Gailey said.

Reynolds, Astros shut down L.A.

Houston pitcher gives up five hits and records seventh career shutout

HOUSTON (AP) — Pitching in his 200th career game, Shane Reynolds could not remember a better outing. "I think it was my best," the Houston right-hander said after shutting out Los Angeles 7-0 Thursday. "I made a few mistakes early but after that I got into a rhythm."

Reynolds gave up five hits in his seventh career shutout.

Rookie Russ Johnson had three hits, including a home run that broke a scoreless tie and started a six-run seventh inning. The Astros won for the 10th time in 13 games.

Reynolds (14-7) struck out six and walked none in his second shutout of the season. He retired 16 of the final 17 batters to win his third consecutive start.

Reynolds fell behind in the count on only four batters and only one after the fourth inning. He has not issued a walk in his last 16 innings.

"I think a lot of the credit should go to the defense and the offense," Reynolds said. "I knew going against an outstanding pitcher like (Ismael) Valdes it was going to be a low-scoring game if I could hold them down, and he was tough."

Valdes matched Reynolds with six shutout innings before the Astros broke through.

Reynolds, on the other hand, appeared to get stronger as the game progressed.

"He was throwing all four of his pitches for strikes," Houston catcher Paul Bako said.

"He got away with a couple mistakes early, but after that he was hitting the mitt no matter what I put down."

The Dodgers put runners at first and third in the fourth inning, but failed to capitalize. Raul Mondesi hit a fly ball and center fielder Richard Hidalgo threw out Gary Sheffield at the plate.

It was Hidalgo's 13th assist, tying him with Florida's Mark Kotsay for most among NL outfielders.

Johnson homered, doubled and singled. With one out in the seventh, he connected for a solo homer off Ismael Valdes (8-10). Valdes then walked Jeff Bagwell for the third time, and reliever Alan Mills walked Derek Bell. Rookie Lance Berkman followed with an RBI double, and a walk to Hidalgo loaded the bases.

Pedro Borbon relieved and pinch-hitter Matt Mieske had a two-run double for a 4-0 lead. Tim Bogar followed with an RBI single that brought Mike Maddux from the bullpen, and Reynolds bunted home a run.

"(Pitching coach) Vern (Ruhle) was concerned about how many pitches Shane had thrown and when I asked how many he said '93,' so I said when he gets to 100 lets start counting down," Houston manager Larry Dierker said. "He had a shutout going and was looking good and I didn't want him out of there."

Reynolds threw 123, including 82 strikes. Glen Barker singled home a run in the eighth.

"I know I'm facing some of the best hitters in the world, but I am one of the best pitchers in the world," Valdes said. "But I'm doing the best I can and I think I'm doing pretty well."

Spurs get Porter

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The NBA champion San Antonio Spurs bolstered their backcourt with the signing of free agent Terry Porter, a guard with 14 years of experience in the league.

The two-time All-Star agreed to a three-year, $6.6 million contract that will cost the Spurs their $2 million salary-cap exception, according to published reports. The deal frees up the $2.7 million medical exception the team received for forward Sean Elliott, who needs a kidney transplant.

The Spurs announced Porter's signing Thursday.

"When the defending champions ask you to help them repeat, that's something you cannot pass up," Porter told the San Antonio Express-News.

Porter, 36, spent last season with the Heat and decided to leave them after at least two discussions with coach Pat Riley.

"The finances really didn't play a part. The numbers were going to work out the same," Porter told the Sun-Sentinel of Fort Lauderdale. "I just did not know who the players would be in Miami. I didn't know how the scenario would play out."

Porter averaged 10.5 points, 2.9 assists and 2.8 rebounds for the Heat, who were eliminated in the first round of the playoffs. His .411 mark from three-point land ranked 12th in the NBA.

"We are very disappointed with the loss of Terry Porter," Riley said in a statement. "He meant a great deal to our team last year, but we've been down this road before. We did everything we could do to re-sign him, but unfortunately it wasn't enough."

The 6-foot-3, 195-pound Porter can play either guard position. The Spurs could use him as a backup for point guard Avery Johnson, but also is considered a strong-enough defender to play behind guard Mario Elie.

The Spurs was one of several teams to court Porter since the free-agency period began in July.

Porter has seen post-season action in 13 of his 14 NBA seasons. He advanced to the finals in both 1990 and 1992 while with the Portland Trail Blazers, who selected Porter in the first round of the 1985 NBA draft with the 24th overall pick.

McGwire

about things like that. At least I didn't. You just think about playing ball in your yard."

McGwire's fifth-multihomer game of the season and the 58th of his career came in the same ballpark where he broke Roger Maris' 37-year-old homer record last Sept. 8 when he hit No. 62. McGwire went on to finish with 70, ahead of Sosa's 66 in a duel that captivated the nation.

McGwire remains a bit off last year's pace, even after hitting 17 homers in 21 games, but he's catching up in a hurry. Now he's on pace for 65.

After rounding the bases on No. 500, McGwire jumped on home plate with both feet before being greeted by teammates, who exchanged his signature gut punches along with high fives.

McGwire, who hit his 499th homer Wednesday night, then took his second curtain call in as many nights as Ashby stood off the mound, looking out towards center field.

Gwynn took off his glove in right field and applauded as McGwire rounded the bases.

"I'm wondering, 'Should I clap like everybody else or be a professional?'" Gwynn said. "Really, this is his stage, his ballpark. Once again, he delivered."

McGwire's eighth-inning blast was the longest this season at Busch, banging off the scoreboard near his No. 25 in a lineup list before dropping into the seats right above the Padres bullpen.

McGwire leads the majors with 44 home runs, two more than Sammy Sosa, and tops the NL with 101 RBIs.

Experts believe the 500th homer ball could be worth $1 million, and fans scrambled to come up with the prize after it deflected off the base of an advertisement and landed in an area of shrubbery beyond the center-field wall. Jim Shearer, a 28-year-old architect from St. Louis, wound up with the souvenir and was whisked away by authorities.

Shearer said he'd think about what he might do with the ball for a few days.

"I've been hearing that it's worth a lot of money," Shearer said. "But I have to remember it's a piece of baseball history for Mark McGwire and St. Louis."

The fan who caught McGwire's 70th homer ball, Phil Ozersky of St. Louis, sold it to Spawn comic book creator Todd McFarlane for $3.2 million.

McGwire, who hit his 400th home run last season, couldn't have had a much better foil for his 500th. He's 8-for-16 with four homers and four doubles against Ashby, who congratulated him after the game.

"Well, I gave up 500, so I may as well give up 501, too," Ashby said. "It's one of them things. Just thank God it wasn't enough to beat us."

McGwire has reached his last four big milestones, starting with Nos. 61, 62 and 70 last year, in front of the home fans. He wanted to hit No. 500 in St. Louis, too, and did it just in time — the Cardinals begin a trip Friday with a doubleheader at Pittsburgh.

McGwire also homered in his first home game after joining the Cardinals after the 1997 trade deadline, and in the first game after signing a three-year, $28.5-million deal later that year. That's not to mention the five homers he hit in the last three days of last season to pull away from Sosa.

"You figure out how great he is to be able to do it," manager Tony La Russa said.

The last player to reach 500 homers was Eddie Murray on Sept. 6, 1996, at Baltimore against Detroit's Felipe Lira. Murray is 15th on the career list with 504.

McGwire has already passed five players on the list this season — Lou Gehrig (493), Stan Musial and Willie Stargell (475) and Dave Winfield (465).

Musial was at Busch Stadium for the big night and sat next to fellow Cardinals Hall of Famer Lou Brock, the last NL player to reach 3,000 hits.

At 35, McGwire is a year older than Ruth was when he reached 500. He's had to make up for lost time after totaling 18 home runs in injury-plagued 1993 and '94 seasons for Oakland, and the homer put him on pace to hit 64 this season.

Ashby (10-5) allowed three runs on five hits in 7-2-3 innings, and Trevor Hoffman finished for his 27th save. Chris Gomez and Hoffman drove in two runs apiece for the Padres, who won for only the second time in 14 games and avoided a four-game sweep.

Cardinals starter Larry Luebbers (1-2) lasted five innings and gave up four runs on five hits.

Diana Krall: true to roots

By Charles J. Gans
The Associated Press

As a headliner at major jazz festivals, Diana Krall is cool, composed and in command. But the pianist-singer admits to a brief bout of stage fright just before performing at last summer's Lilith Fair tour in her native British Columbia.

"There were thousands of people, and I went to my manager and said, 'What am I going to do? They're not going to like us. We're going to get killed out here,'" she recalled.

"And he looked at me and said, 'Diana, the most important thing is your music. ... Just play the music the way you do.' ... So we went up and just did our set like we would do at any jazz club, and it was great. I think it opened people up."

Krall has remained true to her jazz roots while appealing to a wider mainstream audience. Her two latest albums, "All for You" and "Love Scenes" (GRP-IMPulse!), each received Grammy nominations. Both remained on Billboard's top traditional jazz chart for two years.

Her new album, "When I Look in Your Eyes," builds on her recent success.

"If what you're doing has integrity, then it doesn't matter what the venue is. ... as long as the music is treated with respect," the 34-year-old Krall said. "I won't do anything that compromises that."

Krall has been popping up in other unlikely places: performing at the nightclub on television's "Melrose Place"; playing piano behind Celine Dion on the pop singer's Christmas album; and appearing on the Chieftains' latest record of traditional Irish tunes.

She had a cameo in the Val Kilmer-Mira Sorvino film "At First Sight"; delivered the closing title tune, "Why Should I Care," for Clint Eastwood's "True Crime."

Krall, who is warm and considerate in conversation, can seem detached and on-stage, absorbed in her piano. But it's more a case of shyness than aloofness.

"I'm very shy. ... and have never been comfortable standing up front holding a microphone. I tend to oversing when I'm not playing the piano," she said.

"I don't find playing the piano distracting. I think I sing better when I'm accompanying myself."

Her photogenic cool blond beauty has led some writers to compare her to past and present Hollywood stars — from Grace Kelly to Sharon Stone. But given her admitted shyness, an acting career is out for now.

Instead, Krall finds herself resisting the siren call of pop music stardom.

"I went into music because I love music and I was hoping I would get a gig," she said. "Now I'm kind of popular, so I'm getting asked questions whether or not I'm going to become pop. ... I'm so busy touring and working, that right now I'm just worried about playing."

While growing up in Nanaimo, British Columbia, Krall was exposed to jazz by her accountant father, who played piano and had a big collection of vintage records.

Her first musical inspiration was pianist-vocalist Fats Waller, whose artistry was sometimes overlooked, Krall said, because of the humor in his music. In the Waller tradition, Krall's repertoire features some naughty novelty songs to lighten the mood, including "Popsicle Toes," a ditty about being in the nude.

She has absorbed some unlikely non-musical influences into her style. She kept a poster of comedian Jack Benny in her room, admiring him for "his use of silence."

At 15, Krall was hired to play piano on weekends at a Nanaimo lounge. A scholarship from the Vancouver Jazz Festival allowed her to study music in Boston. When she returned to British Columbia, bassist Ray Brown heard her at a club and became a mentor, encouraging her to go to Los Angeles in the 1980s, where she used a Canadian government grant to study with pianist-vocalist Jimmy Rowles.

Rowles, best known as an accompanist to Peggy Lee, Billie Holiday, Sarah Vaughan and Ella Fitzgerald, encouraged her to sing in public and broadened her repertoire.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
 For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
 • Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 • Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 • Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 • Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Ex-Beatle to try hand as deejay

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS People

LONDON — Paul McCartney will take to the airwaves — as a disk jockey. The ex-Beatle will play songs from his upcoming album, "Run Devil Run," on the British Broadcasting Corp.'s World Service and also spin some of the rock tunes that inspired him.

PAUL MCCARTNEY

The album includes three original songs and 12 covers, including the Ricky Nelson hit "Lonesome Town," Elvis Presley's "I Got Stung" and "All Shook Up," and Gene Vincent's "Blue Jean Bop." "This album is something I've wanted to do for years," he said. "Some people may think I've gone all classical now — maybe this will tell them that's not the case. I still love my rock 'n roll."

McCartney's radio program, called "Paul McCartney's Routes of Rock," will air in four half-hour shows beginning Oct. 20.

Geena Davis
LOS ANGELES — Geena Davis is one of the nation's best with a bow and arrow, but she doesn't like to talk about it much.

The actress is a finalist to make the U.S. Olympic archery team after competing in the semifinals against 299 women last month in Ohio. "Yes, Geena Davis is one of the top 32," National Archery Association spokeswoman Kathleen Frazier said Thursday. "She just wants to keep a low profile."

The Aug. 22-24 finals in Bloomfield, N.J., will determine three slots, plus an alternate.

Paul Bloch, Miss Davis' publicist, wouldn't comment on her archery skills.

Hugh Grant
NEW YORK — Hugh Grant learned or thing or two on the set of "Mickey Blue Eyes."

"I learned interesting things from James Caan, like how to blow my nose without using a handkerchief," Grant said in the September issue of Ladies' Home Journal.

"It's a Brooklyn technique. I'm pretty good now. It very rarely happens on British film sets. You almost never see Emma Thompson do it," he joked.

Paula Jones
BENTON, Ark. — Paula Jones' lawsuit against President Clinton may be over, but her legal woes are not.

Ms. Jones has an October court date to fight a ticket charging her with driving with a suspended license. She pleaded innocent via fax to the Saline County Municipal Court on Wednesday.

If convicted, she would have to pay a $275 fine, plus court costs.

A state trooper stopped Ms. Jones in late June after noticing that her 1993 Mercedes Benz had a busted tail light. She was cited after a check showed that her California driver's license had been suspended for failure to appear on a misdemeanor charge involving unpaid fines.

The fines in the California case were paid this week.

Chad Brock
NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country singer Chad Brock is returning to the professional wrestling, but he won't be body slamming anyone in the ring.

"I enjoy wrestling, but nothing is going to take me away from my music," Brock said.

Brock, 36, wrestled for two years in cowboy regalia in the World Champion Wrestling organization before hitting it big this year with the hit "Ordinary Life."

FDA issues warning about at-home tests

News digest

WASHINGTON — If you recently bought an at-home AIDS test called EZ Med over the Internet, expect a letter from the government urging you not to use it. That AIDS test is illegal and, worse, studies show it can't detect the deadly AIDS virus as it claims.

Another cautionary tale: the 53-year-old Chicago man who died after taking the impotence pill Viagra he ordered over the Internet. There's no way to know, but the government wonders if asking his doctor instead for the little blue sex pill would have protected the man, who apparently had heart disease risks that make Viagra dangerous.

And if you bought another unapproved HIV test called Ana-Sal from the HIVCybermail Web site, the Food and Drug Administration is trying to contact you, too, seeking evidence in an investigation of that test's sale.

The Internet has opened a whole new world for Americans seeking better health. You can search top-notch medical journals for the latest advice, or e-mail your doctor. Your physician can fax a prescription to a legitimate online drugstore that ships your monthly medicine — and a few computer mouse clicks lets you add some shampoo or toothpaste to the order without ever leaving home.

But the Internet also is a hot spot for virtual back-alley drug sales and snake oil, a Wild West where legitimate online drugstores face stiff competition from Web sites that don't require genuine prescriptions for legal U.S. drugs or that even sell illegal ones.

GOP gives final OK to big tax cut bill

WASHINGTON — Now that Republicans have pushed their $792 billion tax cut through Congress, GOP leaders intend to fan out around the country during this month's legislative break to whip up public support for the package.

But with President Clinton sure to veto the bill in September, many moderate Democrats and Republicans say it would be better to figure out how to devise a smaller compromise tax cut with a chance at becoming law.

"Hopefully, we can come back and do it one more time in a better fashion," said Sen. John Breaux, D-La. Even with the veto threat, Republicans won an important victory for a bedrock political issue with what would be the largest tax cut since President Reagan's in 1981. The Senate approved the bill Thursday narrowly, 50-49, after it cleared the House 221-206. Both the House and Senate adjourned until Sept. 8.

New approach is taken to charity

BALTIMORE — For decades, private foundations have focused on solving specific problems in the nation's poorest communities — funding a job-training program here, an after-school program there — but hundreds of urban communities remain poor.

In the 1980s, researchers reconsidered the narrow approach. The best way to eliminate poverty, according to the growing consensus, is by simultaneously tackling all the problems confronting poor neighborhoods — crime, bad schools, the lack of jobs.

Experiments were under way in cities such as Seattle and Chicago. But no foundation launched a comprehensive community building program nationally. Until now.

The Annie E. Casey Foundation, the nation's 20th largest charity with assets of nearly $1.6 billion, is gearing up to launch its "Making Connections" program in 22 cities. Foundation officials are prepared to spend up to $500 million over the next 10 years.

483 Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the Book of Exodus intending to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times.

MOSES AND PLAGUES OF EGYPT
WHEN MOSES RETURNED TO EGYPT AND ASKED PHARAOH TO LET THE ISRAELITES GO INTO THE WILDERNESS, PHARAOH ONLY MADE THE TASKS OF THE ISRAELITES HARDER...

HOW CAN WE MAKE BRICKS WITHOUT ANY STRAW? IT IS THE DECREE OF PHARAOH!

YE WISH TO SPEND TIME IN IDLENESS, THEREFORE WORK HARDER!

AND THE ISRAELITES PUT ALL THE BLAME ON MOSES...

HAST THOU COME AMONG US TO CAUSE PHARAOH TO KILL US ALL??

AND MOSES SPEAKS TO THE LORD, WITH A HEAVY HEART...

SINCE I CAME, PHARAOH HATH DONE EVIL UNTO THY PEOPLE... NEITHER HAST THOU SAVED THY PEOPLE AT ALL!

HAST THOU, THEN, COME TO PLAGUE ME ONCE AGAIN - I WILL NOT LET THE PEOPLE GO!

RISE NOW, AND SEE THE SALVATION OF THE LORD! GO UNTO PHARAOH, THOU AND THY BROTHER AARON, AND SPEAK, AND DO ALL I HAVE COMMANDED OF THEE, AND I WILL YET DELIVER THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL OUT OF THE LAND OF EGYPT!
