New communications center

Cindy Madrigal, a dispatcher with the Hereford Police Department, does her work within the confines of the department's new communications center, which was recently remodeled from a counter to a secure facility. The department closed off an open wall and replaced a sliding window that was open to the public with bullet-resistant glass seen in the background. A window for dispatchers to communicate with officers is at right, while the public can speak with dispatchers via an intercom system. Dispatchers man the communication system 24 hours a day, handling emergency traffic for police and firefighters.

Clinton addresses world U.S. willing to act alone on world scene

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) President Clinton says the United States cannot solve the world's problems, but "we will not hesitate to act alone" when vital interests are at stake. He defended his foreign policy against suggestions that he has been indecisive, particularly on Bosnia. But he conceded in a 90-minute internationally televised appearance that "the problems are more difficult than I thought."

Clinton issued tough new warnings to Haiti's military rulers and North Korea's Communist government. He said wielding U.S. military force to restore democracy in Haiti remains an option and "we cannot rule it out anymore." But he seemed less assertive on how to resolve the bloodshed in Bosnia, saying on CNN's "Global Forum" Tuesday night that he had underestimated how long it would take to get NATO to adopt a common policy.

Clinton ranged the global waterfront during the forum, answering questions from international journalists at the Carter Center auditorium in Atlanta and in four other cities.

"This is a pivotal moment in the affairs of our world," Clinton said. He said leadership of United States was "indispensable" in resolving major conflicts and threats to security - and that he planned to exercise this leadership.

While saying the United States wanted to be "a partner, not a dictator" in the internal events of countries and would act in conjunction with the United Nations when possible, Clinton declared: "When our most important interests are at stake, we will not hesitate to act alone if necessary." Still, he said, "America cannot solve every problem and must not become the world's policeman."

"Not every issue is one that you can put the entire wealth, the entire military might, the entire prestige of the United States on the line for," he said. "But many issues are things that are worthy of our best efforts within the limits of our ability to proceed."

Clinton advisers hope the president's performance will bolster his image in the foreign policy arena - not usually identified as one of his strongest suits.

He borrowed a technique that served him well in town-hall meetings on domestic issues, walking about the stage with a microphone taking questions from the audience.

Clinton also took questions via satellite from reporters in Jerusalem; Johannesburg, South Africa; Sarajevo; Bosnia; and Seoul, South Korea.

CNN said the show had a potential audience of 140 million households in more than 200 countries and territories around the world.

"We are front-row history witnesses," the president said, commenting on the age of instant global live television.

From Sarajevo, CNN correspondent Christiane Amanpour asked him a question that implied his policy on Bosnia was one of "constant flip-flops."

Clearly irritated, Clinton snapped: "There have been no constant flip-flops, madam." He said a negotiated settlement remains the only way to end the strife in the former Yugoslavia.

As the U.N. Security Council prepares to tighten its economic embargo on Haiti, Clinton said the United States "cannot afford to discount the prospect of a military option" to restore democracy.

"We have not decided to use force," Clinton said. "All I've said is that we cannot rule it out anymore."

Clinton also warned North Korean leaders that they risked being further isolated from the global community and risked "having more difficult things happen" if they continue to try to shield their nuclear program from international inspections.

Clinton hinted that he wanted to renew most-favored-trade status to China on the June 3 deadline, although he signaled it would not be without some misgivings.

The president also pledged to double U.S. aid to South Africa to roughly $600 million over three years.

Volunteers honored for helping with district HOSTS curriculum

The Hereford Independent School District honored a group of volunteers on Tuesday, praising them for making the first year of the HOSTS program a success.

More than 200 community mentors were invited to the reception hosted by the Helping One Student To Succeed teachers and administrators, which was held in the school administration building.

Scott Turner, HISD Director of Federal Programs, said his goal when he first introduced the language arts assistance program to the district, was to have 60 students served with 120 mentors at Northwest Elementary

***
School and West Central Intermediate School.

Instead, the district started with 120 students served by 350 mentors.

Turner praised building principals Alice Lockmiller and George Ochs for going "far beyond what I told them they would have to go," while the HOSTS teachers were praised for their efforts to organize the program so materials were ready each day when mentors arrived to work with students. Within HOSTS, community volunteers work one-on-one with students needing work on language arts. Individualize programs are developed to meet their needs from a variety of materials. Those materials are then gathered into notebooks by the teachers and their assistants.

At Northwest, Doris Cagle is HOSTS teacher and Aurora Jackson her assistant. Carlynn DeLozier is HOSTS teacher at West Central, assisted by Amelia Pesina.

During the reception, the two teachers presented plaques of appreciation to two individuals as Mentor of the Year and to two groups for their help.

Mrs. DeLozier gave her Mentor of the Year award to Hereford High School student Tammy Boggs and her Company of the Year award to West Texas Rural Telephone, which gave 13 employees paid time to volunteer in HOSTS.

The Northwest Mentor of the Year was Janice Holmes, while Mrs. Cagle gave her group award to HHS principal Terry Russell on behalf of Northwest HOSTS classroom.

Also attending was Jim Roth, a representative of HOSTS Corporation of Vancouver, Wash., who presented the two teachers with official HOSTS flags to fly on their campuses.

Assassination papers have report from Kennedy agent

By RICHARD KEIL
Associated Press Writer
COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) - In matter-of-fact language, a Secret Service agent's report captures the horror of that awful day in Dallas more than 30 years ago.

Spread-eagled across the trunk of a racing limousine, Agent Clint Hill could see that John F. Kennedy was "bleeding profusely" with "part of his brain missing." A piece of the president's skull, "with hair on it," lay on the leather seat beneath him. "They've blown his head off," Jacqueline Kennedy screamed, according to Hill, as the limousine sped toward Parkland Memorial Hospital, the fatally wounded president slumped in the back seat.

Hill's report - among thousands of yellowed, faded government documents released Tuesday by the National Archives - concludes with a description of how Kennedy was rushed into the hospital's emergency room and Secret Service efforts to contact the White House and protect Vice President Lyndon Johnson, his wife and Mrs. Kennedy.

The report doesn't note what historian William Manchester recorded in his book "The Death of a President" - that Hill repeatedly slammed his palm in frustration on the car's trunk en route to the hospital.

"What we are trying to do here is fill out, with as much detail as possible, the story of those days," said Steve Tilley, the JFK liaison at the Archives. "There isn't anything awfully new here, but our mission is to make the story as complete as possible."

The Archives released 224 boxes containing more than 50,000 documents from FBI headquarters in Washington, FBI field offices in Dallas, New Orleans and Mexico City, along with additional documents made available to the Senate panel that investigated U.S. intelligence operations in the mid-1970s.

The documents have been released as part of a 1992 law that requires federal agencies to disclose all records related to Kennedy's death on Nov. 22, 1963. The CIA is still processing more than 100,000 documents and the FBI has 100 boxes of additional material still to provide. About 1 million documents have been released, Tilley said.

Other material released included photos of the interior of the limousine that bear mute testimony to the horrors that Hill and others near the motorcade witnessed.

Bloodstains are smeared on the Lincoln's leather seats, and blood has soaked the carpeted footwells and the upholstery below the seat. A crushed, bloodstained bouquet of chrysanthemums, given to Mrs. Kennedy at Love Field, sits on the seat near where Kennedy slumped; rose petals from another bouquet are scattered on the floor.

Eight spent cartridges, test-fired from the Manlicher-Carcano rifle with which Lee Harvey Oswald allegedly killed Kennedy, also were released. Accompanying documents make clear that the ballistics tests show the bullets match those used in JFK's assassination.

Documents that have been released since 1992 have shown an extraordinary lack of communication among the CIA, FBI and Secret Service regarding Oswald's activities in the months before the killing.

There was more of that Tuesday. A routine file update from the FBI's Dallas field office, dated Nov. 19, 1963, notes that Oswald had been located and was working at the Texas School Book Depository.

Bush assails Richards fundraiser Presidential politics taking center stage in state race

AUSTIN (AP) - Presidential politics have moved into the Texas governor's race.

Nearly 2-1/2 years after the George Bush-Bill Clinton election was decided, both names popped up on the eve of a fund-raising trip Gov. Ann Richards is making to Washington, D.C., today.

A spokeswoman for George W. Bush, the former president's eldest son, scoffed Tuesday at reports that President Clinton planned to attend a Wednesday night Richards event, which costs $500 per person and $1,000 per political action committee.

"The governor is eager to have President Clinton appear at her Washington, D.C., fund-raiser, but how eager is she to have him appear with her in Texas?," asked Bush spokeswoman Deborah Burston-Wade.

"Ann Richards may be Bill Clinton's favorite governor, but let's see if they have the political courage to campaign together in Texas so the governor can explain how much she supports Clinton's policies."

Responding, Richards spokeswoman Cindy Rugeley poked fun at the Republican candidate's rather famous family name.

"Unlike George W. Bush, Gov. Ann Richards is able to campaign on her own right and her own name. She doesn't need the coattails of any president, former or current," Ms. Rugeley said.

Richards' organizers estimated that some 200 people would attend the Washington affair, which was to be followed by two more lower-priced receptions. The three events were expected to raise about $100,000 for the governor's re-election, said spokesman Chuck McDonald.

The younger Bush, whose father carried Texas in his unsuccessful campaign against Clinton in 1992, has enjoyed a presidential tone in some of his fund-raising efforts, too.

Early voting ends with DSCHD flurry

A last-minute flurry of early voting pushed the total in the Deaf Smith County Hospital District director election to 441 ballots.

Early voting in hospital district, City of Hereford and Hereford Independent School District elections ended at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

During the two final days of the early voting period, 290 persons marked ballots in the DSCHD election. Last Friday, the total stood at 151 votes.

City of Hereford voters had no contests to decide in the City Commission election. A total of 312 persons voted during the entire early voting period. Only 92 persons cast ballots for HISD trustee. Residents of two HISD voting districts are electing trustees.

Polls will be open in the Hereford Community Center Saturday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. for all three elections.

HISD voters in District 1 will choose between incumbend Ron Weishaar and Angie Villarreal. Incumbent Raymond Schlabs is opposed by Randy Tooley for the District 3 seat.

Four directors from a field of seven candidates will be chosen in the hospital district election. Incumbents seeking re-election are John Perrin, Boyd Foster and Merle Clark. Challengers are Steve Cortez, Dean Crofford and Larry Watts.

City Commission candidates are Nancy Griego, Place 2; Wayne Winget, Place 4, and Roger Eades and Carey Black, at-large places. Griego is running for her first full term after being appointed to the commission last year.

Thursday may be dry day

By The Associated Press
It's possible that Thursday could be a rain-free day across Texas.

There's no mention of rain in state forecasts for the period through Thursday except for a slight chance of thunderstorms in southwestern portions of North Texas through this evening.

It will be mostly clear over West Texas, partly cloudy across North Texas and mostly cloudy skies across South Texas tonight and Thursday.

Lows tonight will be in the 40s and 50s in West Texas, the 50s and 60s in North Texas and in the 60s and 70s in South Texas. Highs Thursday will be in the 80s over West Texas except in the Big Bend area where readings will be in the 90s and in the 80s over the rest of the state.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms dampened portions of the Panhandle and South Plains early today. The rest of the state had partly cloudy skies but no precipitation.

Early morning temperatures were in the 50s and 60s except in South Texas where readings were in the 60s and 70s. Extremes ranged from 46 at Marfa to 75 at Brownsville.

--Hereford Firemen responded to an smoke alarm at St. Anthony's Church School at 12:15 p.m. when a hot water line came off a washing machine and set off steam that looked like a fire.

Israel, PLO sign historic accord

Palestinians given autonomy in Gaza Strip, Jericho

By KHALED DAWOUD
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of Israel and PLO leader Yasser Arafat signed a historic accord today that will give Palestinians autonomy in the Gaza Strip and Jericho, at a ceremony disrupted by a last-minute dispute over a map.

Arafat walked out of the hall, but returned a few minutes later and signed some papers, writing notes on disputed sections. Rabin then signed a document after an aide translated Arafat's Arabic writing.

The dispute produced an extraordinary scene as President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt, Secretary of State Warren Christopher and other dignitaries appeared to be negotiating with Arafat on stage as speeches continued.

The PLO chief negotiator, Nabil Shaath, said Arafat refused to sign maps of Jericho and Gaza because he wanted to make clear these were still disputed. He agreed to sign when Rabin offered a letter saying arguments over the areas were not yet settled, Shaath said.

After the quarrel, Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres told the audience that some last-minute negotiation took place during the ceremony. "Nowadays you can watch how birth is being given on television," he joked.

In Israel, another hitch arose. The Israeli government began releasing prisoners under the accord, but then froze the process for more than an hour because of a dispute over the numbers to be freed.

Nevertheless, the agreement, originally signed Sept. 13 in Washington, was finally on track. Once signed, Israel has pledged to withdraw its army from the two areas in three weeks and to release hundreds of prisoners.

The first of 9,000 Palestinian police named by the Palestine Liberation Organization are also to move into Jericho and Gaza.

Arafat, dressed in military uniform and black-and-white checked headress, called the accord a "true beginning to complete the march of peace and guarantee the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people," but he did not mention a Palestinian state.

Rabin also spoke of a beginning, setting off on a "daring road" that he envisioned could end in peace despite the obstacles.

"We have hope but much trepidation that the two peoples could live on the tiny patch of land, each under their own fig tree as the prophets said," Rabin declared.

Mubarak, Christopher and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev signed as witnesses, with the American and Kozyrev representing their nations as sponsors of the Middle East peace process.

Agreement on signing the accord came earlier this morning after a more than six-hour meeting between Arafat and Rabin.

Shaath announced an agreement was reached, but later in the morning made clear this was achieved by putting off three of the main issues until after the signing.

These were the number of Palestinian prisoners to be freed, the exact size of Jericho and whether a uniformed Palestinian guard would stand on the bridge crossing from Jordan to the West Bank.

He said those issues would be negotiated after the agreement was signed.

An earlier impasse was apparently broken when Israel raised to 25 square miles the amount of land it would withdraw from around Jericho, increasing its offer of 21.5 square miles.

HOSTS volunteers honored

The HISD language arts program HOSTS -- for Helping One Student To Succeed -- on Tuesday honored community volunteers who donated some 4,641 hours of service in working with students at Northwest Elementary School and West Central Intermediate School. ## Court ruling may cause law change

AUSTIN (AP) - A longstanding state constitutional ban against home equity loans may become a thing of the past under a recent federal appeals court ruling.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that savings associations and consumer finance companies can lend money secured by the borrower's home equity.

The Texas Constitution effectively prevents loans secured by home equity by denying lenders the right to secure the loan with a lien against the home. The only exceptions are loans to buy the home, pay taxes and make home improvements.

But the ruling handed down in New Orleans by a three-member panel of the court says federal regulations allowing such liens for savings associations override the state constitution.

The federal regulations were approved by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and its successor, the Office of Thrift Supervision. A federal law enacted in 1992, the Parity Act, extended the reach of those regulations to finance companies and state savings associations, the court ruled.

Under the ruling, homeowners would be able to draw on their equity to get loans to pay other debts, such as a college education, medical bills or business investments.

"This decision by the court creates potential havoc in the system of consumer and debtor protection that we have had in Texas for more than 100 years," said Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Texas Attorney General Dan Morales.

The state will appeal the decision, he said.

But state Sen. Jerry Patterson, R-Houston, who supports home equity lending, welcomed the ruling.

"I think it's good news. I resent being told by the state constitution that I'm too stupid to handle my own personal business affairs," he said.

Banks and business development groups generally support home equity lending, while farmers, builders, labor and consumer advocates line up against it.

The battle over home equity lending is a legislative perennial. An interim Senate committee is holding hearings statewide on the issue.

State Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, chairman of the committee, said the court's ruling will focus the panel on possible consumer safeguards.

"If we are going to be pre-empted by a federal ruling, it might be advantageous to put our consumer protections on a state plan. The state should lay down the ground rules," he said.

The ruling apparently would not allow banks to make such loans.

But Steve Scurlock, senior vice president of the Texas Bankers Association, said that if the decision stands, federal and state regulatory agencies have authority to allow banks to make such loans.

HHS students attend leadership seminar

Two students from Hereford recently attended the seventh Texas Panhandle Leadership Seminar, held in Amarillo.

Brian Betzen, a sophomore at Hereford High School, attended the session as an ambassador to the conference, which is an affiliate of the Hugh O' Brian Youth Foundation.

Clara Jackson, a senior at HHS, attended the seminar as a sophomore and was asked back this year to serve as a counselor.

The Amarillo seminar is one of five held in Texas. There are 92 seminar sites throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico. Each one provides a setting of education and motivation for high school sophomores who have exhibited leadership qualities.

Betzen was nominated to attend by school principal Terry Russell.

The theme of this year's seminar was "America's Incentive System," referring to the free enterprise system which motivates productive activity in our society. The emphasis was on motivating participants to make a positive contribution to school and community and to be aware, active and responsible citizens.

Campbell to compete at state

Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers recently participated in the Panhandle District I 4-H Consumer Decision Contest held at the Pampa Mall.

The youths gave oral reasons for choices on their knowledge of consumer shopping for products that included alarm clocks, sunscreen, infant care seats, fishing rods and reels, light bulbs, health care products, mutual funds and telephone answering machines.

Kinann Campbell placed second high individual and will compete on state level at Texas A&M University in early June.

Other 4-H members competing on teams included Cady Auckerman, Cindy Harder, Jami Parker, Lee Harder, Amanda Sims and Shelia Teel.

Brumley is honored at McMurry

Angela Brumley, a McMurry University senior from Hereford, has been selected to participate in the Presidential Classroom Collegiate Internships in Washington, D.C. this summer.

Brumley, who served as secretary general of the West Texas Model United Nations sponsored by McMurry University, was selected from a pool of more than 1,200 applicants.

Presidential Classroom selects approximately 30 outstanding men and women from colleges and universities across the nation to come to Washington, D.C. for the internship experience. Interns from the fields of education, the social sciences, business, history, journalism, communication and hotel-restaurnant management work with outstanding high school juniors and seniors from the United States and abroad during the Classroom's Senior High School program.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you can find room in your column for one more letter about "mama's boys" because I'm dying to tell the world about mine.

Tomorrow is our 47th wedding anniversary, and I wouldn't trade my "mama's boy" for a million dollars. He's one of five sons. My mother-in-law always bragged that she didn't regret having five boys because she was sure they would bring her five wonderful girls--and they did.

Because my husband was close to his mother, I knew he would be considerate, kind and a wonderful father. His own father set a fine example. He and the boys helped their mother with chores, such as doing the dishes, washing floors and windows, running errands and buying groceries. They all knew how to cook. Even after marriage, the boys enjoyed meeting at their parents' house every Saturday for breakfast. I say, if you want a good husband, look for a good son.--Happy in Florida

DEAR HAPPY: What a testimonial! I hope your mother-in-law is still around to read it.

I remember that when Faye Emerson divorced Elliott Roosevelt, she said her biggest regret was losing her mother-in-law, Eleanor. Here's another letter on the same subject:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a woman married to a man who is devoted to his mother, and I am glad of it.

My husband eats breakfast at his mother's home every day. (Me, too). He often eats dinner at his mother's home. (Me, too). We rarely go out anywhere without asking his mother to join us. She sits in the front seat next to her son. Do I approve of this? I INSIST on it! My mother-in-law is a generous, caring woman, and my husband is a beautiful, sensitive man.

His devotion to his mother and to my parents is just one of the millions of reasons I love him. Sign me--Lucky in Lawrence, Kan.

DEAR LUCKY: He sounds lucky, too. Read on for more:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is in response to all those negative letters about "mama's boys." Shame on those women who would attempt to take a son away from his mother. A man should never be put in the position of having to choose between his mother and his wife.

My fiance, "Ellis," and I have been together for quite a while, and we plan to marry in the summer. He, too, is a "mama's boy." In the beginning, I felt threatened and jealous of his relationship with his mother. Finally, I tried a different approach--getting to know her.

Guess what? I discovered a woman who is funny, intelligent and a great listener. I also now know that many of the qualities that make me love Ellis so much are qualities he got from her. She has made him the wonderful man he is today, and thanks to her, he will also be a terrific husband.--Jamestown, N.C.

Hereford Toastmasters are recognized at conference

Hereford was well represented at the District 44 Conference of Toastmasters International held April 22-23 in Odessa.

Rick Jackson was recognized as Outstanding Club President and Jigger Rowland was elected district governor succeeding former Hereford resident Lynn Cook. It was noted that

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Gene Kelly is temporarily out of the rain.

The 81-year-old dancer, star of "Singin' in the Rain" and "Anchors Aweigh," was hospitalized with the flu.

He was admitted Sunday after complaining of a headache and pain, said St. Mary's Hospital spokesman Wade Rose. He was in stable condition and could be released today, Rose said.

40 years ago in 1954, Hereford Toastmaster Dr. M.C. Adams was elected first governor of District 44.

Ed Gilbert placed third in the Tall Tales competition and Joe Weaver took first place in Interpretive Reading. Jackson and Weaver imitated Julio Iglesias and Willie Nelson with "To All the Girls I've Loved Before" to win first place in the lip-sync contest.

"The Many Hats of Toastmasters" was the conference theme and Charles Minchew was recognized for wearing the "Most Handsome Hat." The Hereford Toastmasters Club was honored with a ribbon for achieving district educational goals.

Others from Hereford attending the conference were Jean Jackson, Janice Gilbert and Brian Gilbert. District 44 is comprised of 50 clubs throughout West Texas.

DEAR JAMESTOWN: and all others who wrote to extol the virtues of mothers-in-law: I am convinced that the stereotype of the overpowering, insufferable, domineering mother-in-law is more of a myth than a reality. The thousands of letters I received from women who adore their husband's mothers was heartwarming. It also brought back some warm memories. We were four girls in our family, and everyone of us had a husband who loved our mother.

Borger's bats break out in regular season finale

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Tuesday's game was not the way the Hereford baseball team wanted to warm up for the playoffs.

Borger's bats exploded for nine extra-base hits on the way to a 16-5 beating of Hereford Tuesday at Whiteface Field. The game ended after six innings on the 10-run rule.

The game meant nothing in the standings because both teams had already clinched playoff berths, and Borger had clinched the District 1-4A championship. But the loss sends Hereford into its first playoff series in five years with a two-game losing streak, and both of those losses were nothing like the near-flawless ball the Herd played for six straight games to get in the playoffs.

"What got us in this situation (in the playoffs) was making the plays, and the last couple of games we haven't made the plays," coach J.J. Villarreal said. "We've just got to get ready to play whoever we've going to play."

As Villarreal spoke, the Herd's bi-district opponent was being decided in Wolforth and in Lubbock. Frenship beat Levelland 2-1, while Estacado lost to Snyder 5-4, giving Frenship the District 2-4A crown. Hereford will start the best-of-3 series at Frenship, at 4:30 on Friday, May 13. The second and, if necessary, third games will be played Saturday, May 14 in Hereford.

Hereford has a week and a half to work out the kinks. A practice game may be scheduled, Villarreal said.

Villarreal added that he didn't think the Herd would carry its current bad roll into the playoffs.

"That's up to the team," he said. "I don't think it'll hurt us that much, because I don't think our team will let it."

Borger got to Hereford starter Andrew Tijerina quickly, scoring three runs in the first inning on a single, double, triple and two Herd errors. Hereford got two runs back in the bottom of the inning on RBI singles by Tijerina and Scott Ahola.

Tijerina and the Hereford defense settled down for a while. The first out of the second inning came when third baseman Michael Marquez lunged to field a hard grounder down the line, then threw out the runner from foul territory. Tijerina retired the Bulldogs in order in the second and third.

Hereford tied the score briefly in the third when Chris Vallejo, on third base, and Russ Watts, on first, perfectly executed a delayed double steal, and Vallejo scored.

Then came the fourth. Borger loaded the bases on a walk, a double and a bunt that Tijerina fielded but couldn't make a play with. Deep sacrifice flies scored two runs, then the next four batters had RBI hits, including a double and back-to-back triples, chasing Tijerina. Borger led 9-3.

Three relievers followed Tijerina. Louis Hernandez got out of the fourth inning but gave up three runs in the fifth, largely due to four errors. Gregg Kalka started the sixth inning and gave up two doubles and a three-run, inside-the-park home run to Shane Langen, which boosted the Borger lead to 16-3. J.J. Rico relieved and got the final two outs of the inning.

Hereford need four runs in the bottom of the sixth to avoid the ignominious 10-run rule. The Herd got two--on walks by Marquez and Armando Zambrano, an RBI single by Stacey Sanders and an RBI groundout by Vallejo--but that was it.

Langen, an all-state outfielder for Borger last year, pitched for the Bulldogs and struck out 11 Whitefaces in six innings.

The Hereford junior varsity baseball team finished the season with a 13-5 record. Its final game, set for last Saturday at Randall, was cancelled because of bad field conditions.

Sims, Burkhalter make all-district

Two Hereford High School golfers, David Sims and Scott Burkhalter, were named second-team All-District 1-4A.

Coaches selected two most valuable players, Borger's Jeff Johnston and Josh McKinney, and five additional players for the first team: Les Phillips, Michael Phelps and Jarrett Johnston, all of Borger, and Fred Barnabe and Phil Everson of Pampa.

Five more players were put on the second team: Sims, Burkhalter, James Loyall of Randall and Chris Duncan of Pampa and Kyle Sparkman of Pampa.

The girls' all-district team will be released after the state tournament, in which Dumas' Jamie McInturff will play.

District 1-4A Baseball standings

	District	Overall
Borger*	9 1	17 8
Hereford*	6-3-1	12-11-1

Jazz defense suffocates Spurs in 105-72 rout

By The Associated Press
The San Antonio Spurs, who had a miserable shooting day in losing Game 2, got worse in Game 3. The Spurs shot 35 percent from the field and scored just 25 points in the middle two periods, including an NBA record-low nine in the second quarter, against Utah on Saturday. They figured to rebound Tuesday night at Salt Lake City, even without three-time rebounding champion Dennis Rodman.

The Jazz, however, held San Antonio to 31.8 percent shooting and routed the Spurs 105-72 to take a 2-1 in the best-of-5 first-round series.

"We just got a good old-fashioned whipping for the second night in a row," San Antonio coach John Lucas said. "What you're seeing is a frustrated team. They expected to play well."

The Spurs lost for the 20th time in 21 games in Salt Lake City, including four straight this season. Rodman was absent after he was suspended for one game and fined $10,000 for flagrant and technical fouls in Utah's 96-84 win in Game 2 on Saturday at San Antonio.

The Jazz shot 53 percent from the field, with Karl Malone finishing with 24 points and 13 rebounds. Jeff Hornacek scored 15 points and John Stockton had 12 assists for Utah, the host for Game 4 on Thursday.

"I can say that these were our best back-to-back games of the season, but they are behind us now," Malone said. "The biggest game of the season is Thursday night."

In other playoff games Tuesday night, Chicago completed a sweep of Cleveland with a 95-92 overtime victory, Miami opened a 2-1 lead on favored Atlanta with a 90-86 decision and Portland stayed alive against Houston with a 118-115 win.

In tonight's games, New York is at New Jersey and Phoenix at Golden State in series in which the visitors have 2-0 leads.

David Robinson and Antoine Carr scored 16 points each for the Spurs. Terry Cummings, who started in place of Rodman, finished with six points and 11 rebounds.

Trail Blazers 118, Rockets 115
Rod Strickland scored 25 points, 10 in the fourth quarter, and tied a team playoff record with 15 assists as Portland avoided playoff elimination at home against Houston.

Vernon Maxwell sank two 3-pointers in the final 27 seconds, one from 40 feet, pulling the Rockets within one point.

But Clyde Drexler deflected Maxwell's forced 3-pointer with three seconds left and Houston trailing 117-115. Maxwell admitted after the game that he thought the Rockets were behind by three.

The Blazers withstood a 36-point performance by Hakeem Olajuwon to prevent a first-round sweep.

Buck Williams had 22 points and 10 rebounds on 9-for-10 shooting for Portland. Drexler also scored 22 for the Blazers, who beat Houston for the first time in seven tries this season.

Bulls 95, Cavaliers 92, OT
Chicago did again what it has done on the way to three straight NBA championships - sweep a first-round playoff series.

Scottie Pippen sank the go-ahead basket on a driving left-handed layup with 1:25 left in overtime as the Bulls eliminated the Cavs for the fifth time in seven years.

Pippen committed eight turnovers against the smothering defense of Cleveland rookie Chris Mills, but still led the Bulls with 23 points and 11 rebounds. Toni Kukoc scored 18 points for the Bulls, who meet the winner of the New Jersey-New York series in the next round.

Mills had a career-high 25 points and 10 rebounds, Mark Price scored 22 points and Tyrone Hill had 15 points and 13 rebounds before fouling out with two minutes left in overtime.

Heat 90, Hawks 86
Steve Smith, averaging 23.7 in the playoffs, led Miami in scoring for the third straight game with 25 points, pulling the Heat within one victory of winning their first-ever series.

The first game between the teams since a brawl during Atlanta's 104-86 victory Saturday was cleanly played. Three players, including Heat starting forward Grant Long, missed the game while serving suspensions resulting from the fight.

In the final 76 seconds, Mookie Blaylock hit three 3-pointers, his only points of the game, cutting Miami's 85-77 lead to 87-86 with 19 seconds left.

Smith then hit two free throws with 18 seconds to go for an 89-86 lead. Blaylock missed a 3-point try, Miami got the rebound and Smith clinched the win by hitting the second of two free throws with 6.7 seconds remaining.

Holy Bull favored in Kentucky Derby

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - Randy Winick might call him Mr. Bull, but don't mistake respect for fear.

"Mr. Bull is a nice horse, but if anybody thinks we're going to let him have his own way, they're wrong," Winick said.

When the bell rings to open the gate Saturday for the 120th Kentucky Derby, the Winick-trained Brocco probably will be second favorite to Blue Grass winner Holy Bull.

Is Holy Bull the freak some say he is? Bred to be a sprinter or a grass horse, can he dominate the 1-1/4-mile Derby on dirt the way he has dominated other, shorter races this year?

"I don't think there are any freaks in this race, period," Winick said.

Holy Bull and Brocco are expected to be among a strong field of 15 entered on Thursday for the Derby.

Both have impressive credentials.

They were the only two horses to beat 2-year-old champion Dehere last year before the latter was injured. Holy Bull comes into the Derby with stakes victories this year in the Hutcheson, Florida Derby and Blue Grass. Brocco won the Breeders' Cup Juvenile last Nov. 6 at Santa Anita and comes into the Kentucky Derby off an impressive victory in the Santa Anita Derby.

In the 10 years since the Breeders' Cup began, no Juvenile winner has won the Kentucky Derby. Before the Santa Anita Derby, Winick was supremely confident and predicted the jinx would be broken this year.

"I'm still very confident. Each day is a new day," Winick said. "We're very confident and very hopeful."

Brocco had one of the best workouts of the week on Monday, covering five-eighths of a mile in 1:00 3-5, and Winick said that was "even more of an affirmation" of how well his colt is doing.

Holy Bull, a big gray horse, has won five of his seven races wire to wire and is expected to go for the lead on Saturday, as well. Among those expected to press the pace are Ulises, Smilin Singin Sam, Tabasco Cat and Valiant Nature.

"We're assuming he'll be on the front end," Winick said. "I hope our horse settles in the first half or first third of the field. I'd like us to be third or fourth, not more than five or six lengths back - about the way we ran the Breeders' Cup."

"If it's a legitimate pace, we'll bide our time, but if Holy Bull starts to get away, we'll move earlier. We're not going to let him loaf on the lead like he did in the Blue Grass, and I'm sure other people are not going to let that happen, either."

Three of the probable Derby starters went out for their final workouts Tuesday, and all were quick. Louisiana Derby winner Kandaly covered five furlongs in 1:01; Powis Castle, second in the Jim Beam and San Rafael, went in 1:00 2-5, and Smilin Singin Sam, the Remington Park Derby winner, had a 1:00 4-5 work.

After winning the Breeders' Cup race, Brocco finished second twice, to Valiant Nature in the Hollywood Futurity last December and to Soul Of The Matter in the San Felipe in March. That set him up for the Santa Anita Derby, which he won after a stretch duel with Tabasco Cat by three-quarters of a length, never feeling the sting of the whip.

Brocco, who will be ridden by Gary Stevens, is owned by 85-year-old Albert Broccoli, creator of the James Bond movie series, and his wife, Dana. He has won four of six lifetime starts and $968,550.

Motta appears to be next for Mavs job

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Dick Motta apparently can name himself the next coach of the Dallas Mavericks if he so chooses.

Dallas owner Donald Carter put Motta in charge of making a coaching prospect's list after Quinn Buckner was fired on Tuesday.

"I'll do whatever Keith Grant (director of basketball operations) and Dick ask," Carter said.

"Dick did a lot for my career and I'd enjoy working with him," Grant said.

"This time," Carter said, "I want an old whippersnapper."

Motta, 61, spent the last three months as a consultant to Carter and Buckner.

"Remember Dick is the one making out the list," Carter said. "If he says he's a candidate, he's a candidate."

Buckner, who played on championship teams in college, the NBA and the Olympics, was fired with four years left on his contract, reportedly because he couldn't lead or teach.

Motta, who coached the Mavericks from 1980 to 1987, was the top candidate to replace Buckner, whose team had a 13-69 record, worst in the NBA.

Rookie Jamal Mashburn, Jim Jackson and Derek Harper, later traded to the New York Knicks, led a chorus of complaints against Buckner.

Carter said Buckner "burned bridges."

"I think it was his advice more than his dealings," Carter said. "It wasn't just the young players. Let's face it, it was young and old. The bridges that were burned weren't just over young players."

Carter said Buckner tried to change but couldn't.

"I think I saw changes in his personality but there weren't enough timbers there that we could get the bridges built," Carter said.

"It was a great experience," Buckner said. "I learned a lot about me and I learned a lot about people. It was fun and I'm sorry it didn't work out."

Buckner, 39, played on a national championship team at Indiana and spent 10 years in the NBA, getting a championship ring as a member of the 1984 Boston Celtics. He also got a gold medal as a member of the 1976 Olympic team.

When he left NBC-TV as an analyst to sign a five-year contract with the Mavericks on March 4, 1993, Buckner said, "The Mavericks will play hard, play smart, and have fun." It didn't happen.

Rick Sund, the Mavericks vice president of basketball operations, had said of Buckner: "I recommended Quinn for the job because I feel his ability to lead is one of his outstanding qualities."

Sund was fired over a month ago. Carter said the remainder of Buckner's contract will be honored. Asked if Buckner would take another job in the organization, Carter said, "He has not applied for any."

Carter said he made the decision to fire the coach after four days of meetings.

"When I started this process, I knew we had a bunch of bridges that got burned early and I was looking to see if we had enough timber to repair it," Carter said.

Reds send Cubs to 12th straight home defeat

By TOM WITHERS
AP Sports Writer

Wrigley Field was built in 1914 on the site where a seminary once stood. Eighty years later, the Cubs could use some prayers.

Chicago broke a 92-year-old record Tuesday by losing its 12th straight game in the Friendly Confines as Tony Fernandez and Hal Morris drove in two runs each to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-2 victory.

The Cubs have tried almost everything - new uniforms, a street forum with fans, changing the batting order - in hopes of snapping the skid. It may be time for some divine intervention.

"We are trying hard but nothing helps," pitcher Jose Bautista said. "When we pitch good, we don't hit. When we hit, we don't get the pitching."

The Cubs are two wins away from matching the 1911 Boston Braves' record of 14 straight home losses. Rick Trachsel will take the mound Wednesday to try to become the Cubs' first home winner of the season. If the Cubs lose No. 13, they'll hit the road for seven games before returning home to meet the Florida Marlins - on, of all days, Friday, May 13.

"You have to think about the (NL) record," Cubs manager Tom Trebelhorn said. "It's getting urgent for all of us."

Seems even dedicated Cubs fans, who have faithfully packed Wrigley Field through the years, are fed up. Only about 9,000 fans showed up on a chilly day, although paid attendance was 25,430.

Trebelhorn, who tried new uniforms on Monday, juggled his lineup Tuesday.

Sammy Sosa moved from fifth to leadoff, Karl Rhodes dropped to second and Ryne Sandberg went from second to fifth in the batting order.

"I wanted to get more speed at the top and some more power in the middle," Trebelhorn said.

Mike Morgan (0-4), who gave up four runs and seven hits in four innings, has been through something like this before.

Elsewhere in the NL, Los Angeles ripped Montreal 10-4, San Diego topped Philadelphia 8-3, Houston downed Pittsburgh 7-4, San Francisco shaded New York 6-5, Florida defeated Atlanta 6-3 and Colorado blasted St. Louis 10-1.

Dodgers 10, Expos 4
At Montreal, Orel Hershiser scattered seven hits in 7 1-3 innings and drove in two runs.

Jose Offerman drove in a career-high four runs and Mike Piazza hit a two-run homer and two doubles in Los Angeles' 17-hit attack.

Hershiser (2-0) carried a four-hitter into the eighth before allowing a two-run homer to Mike Lansing.

Los Angeles scored four runs in the fourth to break the game open against Rodney Henderson (0-1).

Padres 8, Phillies 3
At Philadelphia, A.J. Sager (1-2) earned his first major-league win and Tony Gwynn homered.

For the third straight game between the teams, there were problems with close pitches. Andy Carter made his debut in the majors in the seventh for Philadelphia and was ejected after hitting two batters. Phillies manager Jim Fregosi was also ejected for arguing.

Astros 7, Pirates 4
At Pittsburgh, Doug Drabek survived a bullpen scare to win in Pittsburgh for the first time since leaving the Pirates and Andujar Cedeño hit a two-run homer.

Drabek (3-1) left with a 6-2 lead after scattering eight hits over seven innings. The Pirates scored twice in the eighth against Mike Hampton. Tom Edens worked out of bases-loaded, one-out jam with the go-ahead run on base by retiring Carlos Garcia and Jay Bell.

Brewers get to Twins early

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

It took only one batter for both Scott Erickson and Pat Hentgen to know what to expect.

Erickson, who pitched a no-hitter against Milwaukee in his previous start, was in trouble as soon as Darryl Hamilton of the Brewers led off with a single Tuesday night. Erickson and the Minnesota Twins wound up losing 7-6.

"It was apparent that things were going to be back to usual," Erickson said. "You can't start a new game like it's the 10th inning of the last one."

Hentgen, meanwhile, struck out Kansas City's Vince Coleman to open the game at the SkyDome. He went on to set a team record with 14 strikeouts and pitch a two-hitter as Toronto won 1-0.

"I knew I had good stuff when I was warming up in the bullpen," Hentgen said. "When I got to the mound to start the game I was concentrating on keeping it going."

In other games, Boston beat

Seattle 7-6, New York defeated California 6-5, Baltimore defeated Oakland 9-1, Chicago routed Cleveland 12-1 and Texas downed Detroit 7-2.

Hentgen (4-2) needed his best effort to beat Kevin Appier (2-3), who lost despite pitching a three-hitter and striking out 10.

"It's just one of those games when there isn't much you can do," Appier said. "I had great stuff tonight, but the other guy was just a little bit better."

Hentgen pitched his first career shutout in 41 starts. He broke the club record of 12 strikeouts shared by Pete Vukovich, Jim Clancy and Tom Candiotti.

Hentgen walked two in his third complete game of the season. His 14 strikeouts were the most in the majors this year.

Toronto scored the only run in the fourth inning. Devon White led off with a single, stole second, advanced on Roberto Alomar's groundout and came home on Joe Carter's infield single.

Rangers 7, Tigers 2
Juan Gonzalez had four hits and drove in three runs as Texas won at Tiger Stadium.

Kevin Brown (2-4) pitched the first complete game of the season for the Rangers. He allowed eight hits, struck out eight and walked one.

Tim Lincecum (0-5) was tagged for six runs on nine hits in 4 2-3 innings.

White Sox 12, Indians 1
Alex Fernandez pitched eight strong innings, Frank Thomas homered and Chicago beat visiting Cleveland.

Fernandez (3-3) extended his scoreless streak to 19 innings before Jim Thome homered in the eighth. He gave up six hits, walked none and struck out five.

Jack Morris (1-3) lasted only 4 1-3 innings.

Brewers 7, Twins 6
Greg Vaughn, who flied out as the final batter in Erickson's no-hitter, connected for a three-run homer in the first inning at Milwaukee. Vaughn finished with five RBIs.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: Janet Huey sent me a copy of her contract with a television cable company and a note saying, "People would be surprised at what is on the back of the form." She highlighted a couple of sentences that read:

"DISCLOSURE OF NAME: I understand that applicable federal law allows _____ Cable to disclose the names and addresses of its subscribers to selected firms for mailing lists or for other purposes unrelated to cable service.

"However, my name may not be disclosed if I instruct _____ Cable in writing not to do so."

One of my secretaries, Joyce, was very surprised when she read it and said she didn't know companies could do this!

A while ago I realized some unwanted mail had my name misspelled and it was the same way a certain company I do business with misspells it. Apparently my name and address was put on a mailing list that came from that company.

So, the hint today is, whenever you sign a contract, open an account or subscribe to a magazine, make sure you read all the print. If you don't want your name disclosed, instruct them in writing. — Heloise

I.D. CARD

Dear Heloise: While I was out of state on vacation, my daughter tried to contact her brother in another town.

Unable to reach him for several days, she drove the 80 miles to his apartment. His motorcycle was parked at the apartment, but he was not to be found. Since he lives alone, she knew something was wrong. She called his home constantly and was simply beside herself with worry when he called her from a hospital.

I decided to prevent this from happening again and typed all names and addresses of the family members, insisting each of us carry one in our billfold.

Now I can rest better knowing that if someone is in an accident or ill, some of the family can be notified. — Helen Fazel, Seal Beach, Calif.

PILL REMINDER

Dear Heloise: Some older people forget whether or not they have taken their medication.

My remedy: In the evening after taking the medication, lay the container on its side. In the morning after taking the pills, stand the container upright.

This really does help. — A reader, Colorado Springs, Colo.

FABRIC-SOFTENER SHEETS

Dear Heloise: Did you know you can use fabric-softener sheets more than once?

I've found that two used softener sheets work as well as one fresh one. I have even used a handful of twice-used sheets and have gotten good results.

With five kids, I do a lot of laundry and every little bit helps. — Linda Haag, Marshall, Minn.

Recycle, reuse and save money! I like your hint. — Heloise

Dear Heloise: My elbows look like they are dirty and the skin is hard. I have tried creams and baby oil, but nothing seems to make them clean and soft. Any suggestions? — P.C., Newark, N.J.

We checked with a local dermatologist and he said that your elbows could appear dirty because the outer layer of the skin has built up on them and the carotene, found in skin, causes them to look brown or dirty even though they're not.

There are several home-style remedies that may help. Try scrubbing the dead cells away by using salt and water or baking soda and water, or gently scrub with pumice.

You could try bleaching the skin with lemon juice by cutting a lemon in half and putting each elbow in it for about 15 minutes.

Abrasive cleaning pads or a loofah sponge should help to gently scrub the dead cells away. Then apply a nice hand cream.

If this doesn't help, you may want to see a dermatologist in case it's something else. — Heloise

FAST FACTS

Here are five time- and money-saving hints when grocery shopping:

- List items according to the supermarket aisles.
- Stick to your list; don't buy unnecessary things.
- Often-used items can be bought in bulk.
- Make your list on a recycled envelope that contains coupons for that trip to the store.

Dear Heloise: I use the pictures on cards that have been sent to me. I cut them out to fit the tops of pretty little jars that jams and jellies come in and glue them to the tops with those little glue sticks. Then I spray them with hair spray or paint with clear nail polish to protect them.

They make lovely little decorative jars and they remind me of the dear friend or relative who sent me the card. I have had many compliments about them and I thought perhaps you might consider passing the idea on. — Elizabeth DeFranco, Scottsdale, Ariz.

Dear Heloise: I guess I'm writing this more out of frustration than anything else, but instead of making greeting cards larger and more expensive, why don't manufacturers go back to smaller cards, charge less and use less wood pulp to make paper, thereby saving our forests! — Phyllis Beekman, Miami Lakes, Fla.

Your point is well taken. Also, you can recycle them as Elizabeth did, which does help a little. — Heloise

Couple's shower held

Waldrop, Brown honored at couple's shower, supper

Luanne Waldrop and Gary Brown, who plan to wed May 14, were honored with a couple's shower and supper Friday evening, April 22, in the banquet room of the Hereford Community Center.

Special guests at the event were the parents of the prospective groom, Gale and Charlotte Brown of Sudan.

The menu consisted of barbecue brisket, beans, potato salad, raw vegetables and dip and a variety of homemade cakes.

Teal and pearl balloon bouquets were arranged on individual tables and the head table was centered with an ivy plant adorned with small teal silk flowers and a large white bow.

The honorees were presented with a bread making machine by the hostesses: Liz Agan, Karen Contreras, Margie Ford, Dolores Foster, Marline Hendershot, Sharon Jordan, Judy Minchew, Linda Minchew, Cathy Novak, Brenda Pagett, Kim Sanders, Pauline Smith, Elena Trevizo, Rachel Walser and Kay Williams.

Sandwiches get 'facelifts'

Peanut butter and jelly, move over. Some new and exciting sandwich combos are hitting the lunch line, with a dazzling display of breads, meats, cheeses and vegetables.

Splasy garnishes such as tangy salsas, mango chutney and roasted red pepper strips add color and flavor, too. Here are a few combinations for you to try, along with some simple condiment ideas:

Roast Beef Round-Up: Spread horseradish sauce onto thick slices of crusty French bread or sesame hard rolls. Top with thinly sliced roast beef, Muenster cheese, cucumber and tomato.

Turkey in the Rye: Spread Russian salad dressing onto rye bread. Top with thinly sliced cooked turkey or chicken, Swiss cheese and coleslaw.

Country Chicken: Lightly drizzle crusty French bread with vinaigrette or French salad dressing. Top with sliced grilled chicken breast, tomato and sweet onion.

Tuscany Teaser: Drizzle Italian salad dressing onto toasted Italian bread. Top with thinly sliced mozzarella cheese, roasted red sweet peppers and sliced pitted ripe olives.

Ham It Up: Spoon softened dried tomatoes onto a French roll. Add thinly sliced fully cooked ham. Top with arugula, watercress or spinach leaves.

Apple of Your Rye: Add chopped apple to deli-style chicken salad; spoon onto rye bread. Top with sliced Swiss cheese.

Viva la France: Spread honey, mustard onto toasted French bread. Add thinly sliced softened brie, tomato and watercress leaves. (To soften brie, place on a microwave-safe plate and cook, uncovered, on defrost or 30 percent power until barely softened.)

Name that Tuna: Spoon deli-style tuna salad onto toasted whole-wheat bread. Cover with sliced mozzarella cheese; broil just until cheese is melted. Top with grated Parmesan cheese and roasted red sweet pepper strips.

In a Pickle: Spread Russian salad dressing onto toasted sourdough bread. Add sliced meatloaf and Gouda cheese; broil just until cheese is melted. Top with sweet pickle slices.

Ye Olde Pub Special: Spoon snipped chutney onto toasted pumpernickel bread. Add thinly sliced roast beef and Cheddar cheese; broil just until cheese is melted.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Could you tell me what autoimmune hemolytic anemia is and what causes it? A family member has been diagnosed with this. All I know is that an antibody is destroying the red blood cells.

The hematologist has tried prednisone, which was unsuccessful, then blood transfusions and gamma globulin. At first she seemed better after this, but now they have scheduled surgery to remove her spleen.

DEAR READER: One of the ways a person can develop an anemia is from excessive destruction of red blood cells. The normal red blood cell lives from about 110 to 120 days. There is a rather long list of disorders that can lead to the destruction of the red blood cells in a much shorter period of time. This includes toxins and some inherited defects such as sickle cell anemia.

You have stated correctly that autoimmune hemolytic anemia means the body is producing antibodies against a person's red blood cells. In a sense the body is allergic to its own red blood cells. The antibody attacks the red blood cell membrane. In most instances it is not clear why this happens. The hemolytic anemias may cause mild jaundice, and because of the excessive turnover of hemoglobin from the red blood cells, an excess amount of bile pigment may be formed, leading to pigmented gallstones.

The first approach is to treat the patient with prednisone. About one-fifth may respond and recover, requiring no further treatment. Others require continuous prednisone treatment to counteract the antibodies. Gamma globulin, a blood protein, is also used.

The spleen is overly active in destroying the red blood cells and that is often the site where most of the destruction occurs. That is why it is removed in those cases that do not respond to medical management. In many cases, that is sufficient to alter the course of the anemia.

For a better understanding of the many different forms of anemia, read my new Special Report 152, Understanding the Anemias, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/152, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537.

DEAR DR. LAMB: We just received a letter from Japan where our son resides with his wife and child. He has a brain tumor called a meningioma, which is benign. The tumor is large and is spreading into his sinus areas. How serious is this tumor, and will it cause permanent damage to other parts of the body due to the operation?

DEAR READER: Meningiomas arise from the fibrous covering of the brain or spinal cord called the meninges. They are benign, but as they enlarge they cause pressure on the brain or spinal cord. They account for 15 percent of all brain tumors. They are commonly on the floor of the brain and as they expand may cause bone erosion or affect brain functions. Your letter suggests bone erosion in the sinus area just in front of the tumor's location must have occurred.

The treatment is surgical. By removing the tumor, the pressure and symptoms are relieved. Often there is no permanent damage if the operation is done soon enough. Success depends on whether it is possible to remove all the tumor. If not, and it grows again, repeat surgery can again help to relieve pressure and prevent changes.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I was very interested in your column about diverticulosis, pockets of the colon. I was surprised that you said it was so common. My mother suffered with diverticulosis and often had complained of abdominal pain and cramps. That was 20 years ago. She had to follow a very strict diet to rest her colon. She was not allowed to eat bulky foods, because her doctor said that made matters worse. She also had a great deal of constipation.

From your column I thought you said you should use bulk and that you only used the type of diet my mother followed if you had an acute attack. Was my mother's treatment wrong?

DEAR READER: Probably. Knowledge in medicine is no different than in other disciplines. There are two processes: unlearning what you thought was true, but proves not to be so, and learning new facts. The enormous gains in medical knowledge in recent years has been a real knowledge explosion.

It used to be thought that patients with pockets of the colon should follow a low-residue diet. In fact, the decrease in bulk in the diet of developed countries may have had a great deal to do with developing diverticulosis. In 1900, the disease was almost unknown, and today as many as half of all Americans over age 60 have pockets.

Then a British surgeon, Dr. Denis Burkitt, reported a worldwide study of bowel problems and diet. He found that in countries where large amounts of bulk were consumed, diverticulosis hardly ever existed. But in societies that used refined flour and rich foods that provided little bulk, it was common. The small stools resulting from inadequate bulk in the diet led to abdominal cramping and abnormal colon function. The people who consumed large amounts of bulk had much larger stools. That was the beginning of realizing that low-residue diets did not rest the colon at all, but actually made matters worse.

I have discussed this interesting history in more detail along with current dietary recommendations in Special Report 94, About Diverticu- losis: Pockets of the Colon, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/94, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537.

Low-residue diets and even liquid diets are reserved for acute complications such as inflammation, perforation or bleeding.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My daughter turned 11 this summer and is very concerned about being "fat." She is 4 feet 7 inches and about 93 pounds. I keep telling her that she is going through a stage before adolescence and it happens to everyone. She is feeling very unhappy about herself and her appearance. She is afraid she will be like this for the rest of her life. She wants to get more exercise, but thinks it won't help. She has stopped eating junk food.

DEAR READER: Considering her height and age I would suspect that she has not undergone all the changes associated with puberty. When her hormone balance changes, she probably will have a growth spurt and may well slim down. Time will tell.

Do encourage her to exercise. It is the one best healthy way to lose weight. A healthy diet is a must, and do caution her that she needs adequate quality protein and calcium to support good bone development. This is important during the years of bone growth to prevent early bone loss later in life.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband, 69 years old, is 6 feet 5 inches and weighs 185 pounds. His blood pressure is 116/68. I believe this is low. He seems to think this is perfect. He is in good health otherwise. There is a history of heart failure in the men in his family. He father was 58 when he died, and his father's brother was also in his late 50s when he died of a heart attack. There are other instances of men, uncles and grandfathers, who died relatively young. Is my husband at risk because of his low blood pressure?

DEAR READER: His blood pressure is great. The lower a person's blood pressure, as long as it doesn't cause symptoms, the less likely that person is to have a heart attack or a stroke.

His family history is another matter, probably unrelated to his blood pressure. With such a history it is important to look for the other risk factors. He could have great blood pressure and have less than desirable cholesterol levels. And, of course, smoking would increase his risk.

Porcelain is perfect for home

The ancient Egyptians had the right material all along for your appliances, bath fixtures, even the outside of your home: porcelain.

Once used by ancient craftsmen to adorn artifacts, porcelain hasn't lost its luster with today's manufacturers. It's a standard material for many modern applications, from tubs to tunnel walls.

Durable and practical, genuine porcelain on steel combines the flexibility and firmness of metal with the hardness and chemical resistance of glass in a material that's attractive, cleans easily and comes in many colors. It won't burn like plastic or oxidize like paint. Plus, it's wonderfully resistant to cuts and scratches, acids, rust, weather, even fire and shock - all at a price that is very competitive with less resilient materials, say experts at the Porcelain Enamel Institute (PEI).

Lovely to look at, porcelain is even lovelier when you consider how it protects your health. Porcelain dinnerware, appliance tops, sinks and porcelain-lined water heaters resist just about everything, including disease-carrying bacteria. Since they're so easy to clean, there's also less chance that germs will spread.

If you care about the environment, here's another plus: Non-toxic porcelain is environmentally-friendly because it's made with inorganic materials. In fact, it's virtually pollution-free; there are no solvents or solid waste requiring special disposal as there are with paints and plastics. Porcelain materials can even be recycled in many cases.

Day of Prayer to be marked by breakfast

The Hereford Ministerial Alliance will sponsor a prayer breakfast in honor of the 1994 National Day of Prayer at 6:30 a.m. Thursday in the Hereford Community Center.

Breakfast will be catered by Panchita's and cost to attend is $3.50 per person. Tickets are available from local churches or by calling 364-8303.

Guest speaker will be Susie Merrick of the Church of the Nazarene. Special music will be presented by Pat Holcombe.

Prayer will be led by several individuals, representing different segments of the community.

Among those scheduled to appear are Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine, school Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt, alliance President Johnny Cloud, local school students who are members of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and local business people.

The meeting is scheduled to dismiss in time for people to be at work by 8 a.m.

National theme for the Day of Prayer is "Heal Our Land." National chairman is Shirley Dobson.

Author and dog

A guest at Tierra Blanca School last Friday, Richard Stack, left, brought along his dog, Josh, the hero of Stack's books, for students to meet. Stack, a lawyer-turned-author, spoke to students about his work. "Focus on reading" is the emphasis at Tierra Blanca for the school year. Stack spoke to students and teachers and autographed books during his visit to the school.

Mrs. Schindler takes break from past with visit to rural Texas town

By ART CHAPMAN

Fort Worth Star-Telegram
ACTON, Texas - Walking among the bright bluebonnets and Indian paintbrushes of rural Hood County, 86-year-old Emilie Schindler looked at ease.

For weeks she had been asked to conjure up cold, bleak memories of Polish and Czechoslovakian prison camps where she and her husband, Oskar, fought to help thousands of Jews escape death by the German SS during World War II.

In the warm spring winds of Texas, that all seemed very far behind.

Schindler had traveled to Texas with longtime friends Bernard and Eva Scheuer, whose son and daughter-in-law provided brief but welcome hospitality at their home near Acton.

As they gathered around the dining room table, it was clear that each knows the story of the Schindlers. But they know, too, that much of Emilie Schindler's story was left out of Steven Spielberg's film, "Schindler's List."

They discussed her story in their native languages: German, Polish and Czech. There was even a little Spanish and a smattering of English.

Based on a book by Thomas Keneally, "Schindler's List" focuses almost entirely on the efforts of Oskar Schindler to save the lives of nearly 1,200 Jewish prisoners who formed the work force for his factories.

Emilie Schindler's contributions are largely overlooked.

In 1939, on the heels of the Nazi invasion of Poland, her husband made his way to Krakow to find an investment, leaving her behind. Oskar Schindler joined the Nazi party and ingratiated himself with German officers.

In time, he bought an enamel-works factory, previously owned by Jews, and staffed it with hundreds of residents of the Jewish ghetto that the Nazi SS had established.

He profited handsomely. Labor was cheap, and his enamelware proved to be a welcome commodity on the black market.

Even after the bloody 1943 liquidation of the Krakow ghetto, Schindler's factory turned a profit and his workers were saved from the darkest depths of the new Plaszow labor camp.

But in 1944, Plaszow was closed, and Schindler's workers were sent to a new factory at Brinnlitz in Czechoslovakia. The enamelware was gone; the black market was gone. Eventually, the money was gone. At Brinnlitz, the Schindlers had to spend everything they had earned to keep the 1,200 workers alive.

"It was very difficult," said Bernard Scheuer, who was at Plaszow. "In Poland, they could get food through the black market, but in Czechoslovakia it was difficult to feed the 1,200 people. You must realize that the ration from the SS there for each prisoner was equivalent to 2-1/2 ounces of bread a day. There was a cup of some black liquid that was called coffee, and a soup where the most challenging thing was to find a piece of turnip.

"People couldn't survive on it. It was up to her (Emilie) to be the main supplier of food. She supplied all the food and medication. The burden of feeding these 1,200 fell on her."

And she took in other prisoners, besides those who came to work for her husband.

She recalled one day when Oskar Schindler was away, and a German train pulled up outside the factory at Brinnlitz.

The train commandant told her that he was supposed to deliver 200 Jews to one of the factories, but that no one wanted them. "I have no choice but to kill them," he said.

"I'll take them," Emilie Schindler said. "We have a factory, and I (will) take these people."

After the war, the Schindlers eventually made their way to Switzerland. They could not return to Germany because they were considered traitors. The only country that would take them was Argentina, Scheuer said.

A Jewish relocation committee gave the Schindlers $15,000 and tickets to Buenos Aires. There, they bought a small farm of about 10 acres.

They tried to raise chickens at first, Emilie Schindler said, then nutrias and eventually pigs and cows. Nothing seemed to work.

In 1957, Oskar Schindler returned to Germany, where the government paid him about $50,000 in restitution for the factories and profits he lost during the war.

But the Schindler name was still not forgiven in Germany, Scheuer said. "He started a cement block factory, but he couldn't keep laborers. He could get contracts, but he couldn't get the work done."

Schindler's life fell apart. He wanted to return to Argentina to rejoin his wife, Scheuer said, but there was no more money.

"Then he went to pot. He started drinking; he was not anymore the same man. He started living in the past; he was not anymore realistic. He got sick. He could not fit anymore into the new conditions," Scheuer said. Oskar Schindler never returned to his wife; he died in 1974.

From 1957 to 1963, Emilie Schindler kept herself going by raising one type of animal or another. She was never successful, and she soon found herself without any means of support. She sold the farm to pay creditors.

When a reporter wrote about her

Federal judge strikes down assisted-suicide state law

SEATTLE (AP) - In the first ruling of its kind, a federal judge struck down a state law against doctor-assisted suicide, declaring that terminally ill people have the right to hasten death.

U.S. District Judge Barbara Rothstein said that right is the same as the right to choose an abortion or refuse life support.

Her decision Tuesday opens the way for an unidentified 69-year-old victim of emphysema to take his own life with help from a doctor.

The ruling came one day after a Detroit jury acquitted Dr. Jack Kevorkian of violating Michigan's ban on assisted suicide in the death of a man with Lou Gehrig's disease. The man took his own life by inhaling carbon monoxide.

There had been no arrests under the Washington law, which had been on the books since 1854 and carried up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

About 30 states ban assisted suicide. In 1991, Washington voters defeated an initiative to legalize doctor-assisted suicide and euthanasia of terminally ill patients.

The state had argued that the law against assisted suicide was necessary to protect vulnerable people from the influence of those who might not have their best interests in mind, and contended there was a significant difference between hastening death and opting not to prolong life artificially.

First Financial stock dividend announced

First Financial Bankshares, Inc., declared a 25 percent stock dividend, effective for shareholders of record May 14, 1994, it was announced during the company's annual meeting April 26.

The company will pay cash to shareholders in consideration of any fractional shares resulting from the dividend. The board also declared a 28-cent per share cash dividend for the second quarter which will be paid to shareholders of record on June 17, 1994, with payment set for July 1.

Announcement of the board's action was made by Kenneth T. Murphy, chairman and CEO. "Since the stock dividend will be effective prior to the quarterly cash dividend, the combined effect will increase the quarterly cash payment to shareholders by 9.4 percent," said Murphy.

At the annual meeting in Abilene, the shareholders elected a 15-member board, approved the auditors, and approved an increase in the number of authorized shares of company stock.

First Financial Bankshares is the parent company of seven affiliated banks, including Hereford State Bank. Other banks include First National of Abilene, First National of Sweetwater, Eastland National, First National of Cleburne, Stephenville Bank & Trust, and Southwest Bank of San Angelo.

DOE refitting idle nuclear reactors for medical use

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Energy Department is turning idle nuclear reactors into medical devices in the hope they'll fight a usually fatal brain tumor.

In an unusual but promising treatment, touted in Japan, neutron beams are used to pulverize inoperable brain tumors. U.S. officials acknowledged Tuesday that they largely ignored the method for years, but now are actively investigating whether it will save lives.
"We got off to a slow start," Martha Krebs, research director for the Energy Department, told a Senate hearing. "We are definitely trying to change that."

In a new $8 million program, the department is:
-Renovating an idle reactor at Long Island's Brookhaven National Laboratory for government-sponsored trials of the treatment, called Boron-Neutron Capture Therapy or BNCT.
-Arranging to lease the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory's reactor to private brain-tumor researchers pursuing the same goal.

-Discussing refitting about 25 reactors for medicine instead of energy and paying for trials to test the tumor treatment's safety and effectiveness.

But the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee said Tuesday that the department still isn't doing enough, and should immediately start clinical trials that treat patients.

"You're talking about levels of safety and toxicity. If you're already dead, what difference does that make?" asked Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo.

About 7,000 Americans die each year from a virulent brain tumor called glioblastoma multiforme. Only about 3 percent survive, if large portions of the brain are cut out to get all the tumor. Drugs and radiation typically don't work.

U.S. doctors developed BNCT, but abandoned it when clinical trials in the 1950s failed. A Japanese doctor trained here took the idea to Tokyo, where doctors improved the method and now report a 50 percent survival rate.

But Japanese data don't meet U.S. standards for medical research so doctors don't know if it really works, said Dr. Hywel Madoc-Jones of Tufts University.

Still, Americans who can afford the $60,000 up-front fee go to Japan for treatment.

"Why did I go to Japan? Because it was the only show in town," Dr. Michael Werner of Rock Springs, Wyo., testified. Six months after he was told he was dying, brain scans show no sign of cancer. "I am here, I think, because of BNCT."

The Energy Department should have pursued the treatment as Japan's success mounted and nuclear medicine improved, but instead ignored congressional directives to do so and even turned away private researchers willing to fund the work, senators asserted. Krebs agreed the department had hampered the effort.

Now, however, several U.S. doctors have reported success with BNCT in animals, and clinical trials are beginning in people.

The first trials study safety and which boron compound best invades diseased tissue.

blasted a proposed 5 percent pay raise for teachers.

The Legislative Budget Board endorsed the transfer of funds for prisons after several members blasted Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno for recommending the teacher pay increase.

Meno said his earlier proposal to raise the salaries of 7,100 of the state's 230,000 teachers who earn less than the state-set minimum would cost the state about $4 million.

But lawmakers said Meno's proposal would cost taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars by creating pressure to raise the pay of all teachers.

"I'm afraid your statements have led teachers in Texas to believe they are going to get a 5 percent state pay raise," Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said. "It's not fair to mislead them."

Bullock said members of the Legislature would like to increase teacher salaries, but money is scarce because of fiscal demands for prisons and health and human services.

"You've created a myth out there that there's a 5 percent pay increase. What you're doing is going to go out and show this back down the throats of the local school districts," Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, told Meno.

Meno said the raise would attract more certified teachers at a time when Texas is experiencing a shortage of qualified teachers. He said he would not back off his pay raise recommendation.

Gov. Ann Richards said she would present a budget to the Legislature in January that provides probably a 5 percent increase for all teachers.

The board — headed by Bullock and House Speaker Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, unanimously approved transferring $102.75 million to fund temporary facilities for 7,500 inmates, and the construction of permanent prisons for 15,000 inmates.

Bush Blasts "Contribution"
Meanwhile, Gov. Richards last week proposed contributing $1 million out of her office's travel and personnel budget to help fund construction of 15,000 prison beds to reduce the backlog of 33,000 prisoners in county jails across Texas.

But Deborah Burstien-Wade, a spokeswoman for the gubernatorial campaign of Republican George W. Bush, said that for the governor to take $1 million out of her $116.3 million fiscal year budget "sounds great, but that is all it does. When you pull the curtain back, there is almost nothing there."

Burstien-Wade said costs for start-up, construction and operation of the 15,000 beds is $311 million.

The Bush camp stuck with its earlier suggestion to build tents to house state prisoners at TDC facilities and in so doing cut back on the backlog in county jails.

Insurance Help for Seniors

The Texas Department of Insurance has launched a campaign to educate older Texans on ways to save money on insurance and how to avoid becoming victims of insurance fraud.

Insurance Commissioner J. Robert Hunter announced the formation of a Seniors Action Team headed by Audrey Selden, associate commissioner of consumer protection.

Using newspaper columns, brochures, public service announcements and counseling, the agency will advise senior citizens how to make certain they are paying fair prices for insurance, options to consider before buying supplemental health insurance and how to decide whether they need life insurance and burial policies.

Business Highlights

■ Texas led the nation in the number of jobs created in February, according to the Blue Chip Job Growth Update, published by Arizona State University's Economic Outlook Center. The state saw 242,100 new jobs created, followed by Florida, 206,200 and Georgia, 151,000.

■ The Texas Railroad Commission has lowered natural gas production limits for May to levels less than last year and this month. The commission will limit May production to 141.62 billion cubic feet, 3.1 percent less than May 1993's actual production.

Immunization presentation

Anna Solomon, right, president of the Pilot Club, presents $10 in Hereford Bucks to Diana Martinez, center, as results of a promotion held last week to encourage immunization of children. Watching on is Shirley Wilson of the WIC office here. The Pilot Club gave the Hereford Bucks to WIC, the South Plains Health Provider Organization and the Texas Department of Health for immunization promotions. Martinez accepted the WIC award on behalf of her son, Stephan Villarreal. Not shown are Julia Nunez, 16, who won the Health Department award, and Marisa Bernhardt, 6-year-old daughter of Connie and Beverly Martin, who won the SPHPO prize.

Lawsuit against Houston man started with botched sale, move to wrong house

HOUSTON (AP) - A lawsuit has been filed against a Houston man who moved into the wrong house as the result of a series of errors in a botched house sale.

In a lawsuit filed in federal court Tuesday, the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs is seeking $11,893 from Keith I. Brown.

In the lawsuit, the government says that the errors began Feb. 21, 1989 when Brown bought the house at 13206 Pebblewalk Circle South.

Brown thought he had purchased the residence at 13206 Pebblewalk Circle North and moved into that home. The VA had ownership interests in the Pebblewalk Circle South residence, not the Pebblewalk Circle North home.

"I'm a victim," Brown told the Houston Chronicle Tuesday. "The federal government is trying to hurt a poor of working guy out here."

Representatives of the U.S. attorney's office, which filed the lawsuit in federal court, declined comment, the newspaper reported.

Brown said he got access to the wrong home because of errors made by a real estate agent and the VA.

After living in the wrong house for approximately six months, Brown said a real estate agent told him about the mistake.

After the discovery Brown informed the VA he did not want the Pebblewalk Circle South home. Brown said he preferred the Pebble Circle North home because it has a two-car garage, which he originally told the agent he wanted.

Brown, 37, said a savings and loan company that owned the home on Pebblewalk Circle North tried to evict him, but a judge halted the eviction until the dispute was resolved.

He eventually purchased the home on Pebblewalk Circle North for $32,500.

The VA agreed to settle with Brown and buy the home on Pebblewalk South from Brown. The government issued Brown a check for $11,893 in December 1989. Because of a clerical error at the VA, a duplicate payment of $11,893 was made to Brown in January 1990.

Brown, an electrician who is single, continues to refuse to return the full amount of money to the VA.

"I think it's damn wrong," Brown said.

Member of Orphan Train recalls experiences of life

By SARAH WESTBROOK
The Odessa American

ODESSA - An old rag doll with eyes sewn on but no mouth is more than a keepsake for Odessan George Meason - it's a part of his heritage.

The doll symbolizes a faceless generation of former Orphan Train riders.

Meason was one of 150,000 children who were orphans during the immigration boom which began during the late 1800s in New York City. Through the Children's Aid Society of New York, the children were sent on trains to live with farming families in the country's West and Midwest. The society was created by Charles Loring Brace.

In 1916, Meason was less than 2 years old when he and his siblings were taken from their parents in Brooklyn, N.Y. He said he doesn't know why they were taken or much about his real parents.

After living in several foster homes, Meason was taken into the custody of the society at age 5. He and his siblings were sent to the Brace Farm School in New York for training in farming. Then Meason, his brother, Julius, and his three sisters rode a train to Whitewright, Texas.

Many children lost their identities through the process, Meason said. "When they put you on that train, they put Jewish boys in Catholic churches, they put Catholic kids in Protestant churches and mixed it up," he said.

"I didn't know for years I was German. People told me I was French," Meason said.

He was taken in by a preacher and his wife in Whitewright. One of his sisters also was raised in Whitewright. Another sister grew up in Bailey, Texas, and he said he's not sure where the other sister was raised. Julius was sent to live with a family near Sulfur Springs.

"When we got off the train there in Whitewright and they started to put my brother, Julius, back on the train, we were clutching each other and wouldn't let go," Meason said. "They finally yanked him away from me and we were both crying, and I was saying, 'Don't take him, don't take him.'"

After living in several towns, Meason's foster family moved to the Oak Cliff section of Dallas when he was a teen-ager. It was then that Meason found some information about his brother.

"There was a family that lived in the house right next door to us. I was out mowing the yard," Meason said. "The lady just kept staring and looking at me. About a day or two later, she asked me if I had a brother, and my mother said yes. And she said, 'Does he live outside of Sulphur Springs on a farm?' and my mother said yes. And she said, 'Is his name Julius?' and (my mother) said yes," Meason recalls. "And she said she had lived right across from him."

Fifteen years after they were separated, Meason went to visit his brother.

Meason and his family later moved to rural Arkansas. After Meason completed high school, he was informed by his parents that he would join the Civilian Conservation Corps. The corps was a work camp established in 1933 as a part of the New Deal to help unemployed citizens.

"They said, 'Well, you're gonna go to the three 'C' camp in the morning, bright and early. You're going to Fayetteville and you're gonna be shipped out.'"

"I said, 'Didn't I have a choice to say anything?' And they said, 'No.'"

While in the CCC, Meason worked in forestry and farming programs.

Life at home became difficult for Meason. "I hardly ever went home because every time it was 'You got any money?' 'I don't know where they thought I was gonna get a lot of money. After 18 months, Meason was discharged from the corps.

Meason and his wife, Audie, came to Odessa in the late 1930s from Bailey, Texas, looking for work.

He said he was asked once if he liked his foster parents. "I said, 'They gave me a home when I was just a kid. But when you're a kid and you're growing out from under people who don't have any children ... you get to be a burden and an expense to them, and they realize that they made a mistake,'" Meason said.

Although Meason had an unsteady relationship with the parents who raised him, he and his wife took care of them in their later years until they died.

"The hardest part of it was the way that they were using me. It got back to the same old grind," he said.

Four years ago, Meason saw his brother for the last time and relived the time they were separated as children. "The last time I saw Julius alive, we had been to a meeting up in Arkansas. When I left there, it was in reverse," Meason said.

"Julius was holding onto me, trying to keep me from coming home. We had our crying sessions that time just as we did the last time when we were pulled apart. And I never got to see my brother alive after that."

Meason's sisters - Elizabeth, Carolyn and Anna - are still alive.

He said about 300 to 500 Orphan Train riders are still alive. They attend annual meetings for the Orphan Train Heritage Society of America in eight states. Meason and his wife will attend a meeting this weekend in Waxahachie.

"We were never in the history books," he said. "They took (the orphans) out to the farming areas so that the farmer could put them to work just like the white man did with the slave. Some of them were taken because (they were loved), but there was more of them that were white slaves more than they were being loved by the people that took them."

Several years passed before Meason told his wife about his upbringing, in part because the orphans were never encouraged to share their experiences. "We were told to keep our mouths shut and not ever tell anyone, he said.

Meason added that his experiences have caused him to distrust people. "I have to be able to see what people really are, he said. "And it's that way with every Orphan Train rider."
