S.J. Sisemore of the Freeman Decorating Co. in Dublin, Texas, puts up a bunting above the Witherspoon-Aikin-Langley law firm this morning six days before the start of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame All-Girl Rodeo. Decorations for the rodeo have been put up at numerous Hereford locations, including the Hereford Federal Credit Union. Credit Union manager Jimmy Rowton and loan officer Lupe Alvarado admire the front of their building after Sisemore put up the red, white and blue buntings. Advance tickets for the rodeo, set for Aug. 16-18, are available at the cowgirl hall on the lower floor of the library, both Hereford banks and Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Hereford Jaycees also are selling tickets, which cost $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children. Tickets for next weekend's rodeo dances, featuring Kenny Dale and Red Steagall, also are on sale at the four locations. [Brand photo by Paul Sims]

WASHINGTON (AP) - Soviet warplanes, including the new Backfire bomber. staged more than 30 mock missile attacks on two U.S. destroyers in the Black Sea within the last week, Pentagon sources say.

Building Permits Still Down

A building permit issued for a single-family residence last month failed to offset a continued construction slump in Hereford.

There were 17 permits issued for a total value of $178,300 in July, bringing the yearly total to $1,236,495. That represents nearly one-third of last year's total for the same seven-month period when construction starts totaled $3,491,680.

Building starts in July were down from the previous month. In June, there were 10 permits issued for $288,100 in value. although one of the bulding starts was a $273,000 San Jose Catholic Church being constructed on Brevard St.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) -Scientist say tests indicate the world's largest oil spill, weathered, diluted and broken down by its two-month advance on the Texas shores, is less deadly than first feared for the lush, delicate ecology of the Gulf Coast.

"The results are pretty encouraging. We did not find that the oil was significantly toxic. This oil has changed drastically. What we tested is much less toxic," said Dr. Patrick Parker, director of the University of Texas Aransas Pass Marine Laboratory.

Meanwhile, the leading edges of the oil from a runaway Mexican offshore well 500 miles south of Texas continued its unpredictable drift several miles off the white resort beaches of southern Texas.

Those tourist-laden beaches have only had light spotting by small globs of tar carried in by the surf.

"I would have expected a little more impact by now," said Dr. John Robinson of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. "The impact has been very light - unexpectedly light."

"It's not as bad as I expected, " said task force commander Capt. Roger Madson, who added he is optmistic the beaches will not become much more

"The bad news is that it was somewhat toxic to the fish eggs and newly hatched fish." said Parker, who added it was to early to determine the long range impact on the fishing and shrimp industries.

Carl Posey, a NOAA spokesman, said Thursday that a 40-mile long tongue of oil jutting out from the main spill still drifted parallel to Padre Island. But he said the sheen was not as well defined.

Government Plans Loans to Chrysler

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration's likely support of loan guarantees to Chrysler Corp. falls far short of the automaker's bail-out request. but the company's chairman says he's "extremely encouraged."

Less encouraging was union rejection on Thursday of a two-year wage freeze Chrysler proposed as one way to battle the deteriorating auto sales, costly federal regulations and waning investor confidence that threaten the No. 3 automaker's survival.

The union rejection came as Chrysler continued to roll back 1980 production schedules and lay off more workers. The nation's 10th largest industrial corporation placed 4,600 hourly employees on indefinite leave Thursday, bringing the total number on such layoffs to 23,-800, according to company spokesmen.

At full employment, Chrysler has sightly more than 130,000 workers. The company, which suffered a $207.1

Chrysler project said the company will need a at least $500 million in loan guarantees to see it through the next nine months to 12 months. Miller, at a press conference, said,

"The administration will explore conditions under which it might recommend, subject to congressional approval, financial assistance to Chrysler in the form of, or equivalent to, loan guarantees."

He said the Treasury Department will work with Chrysler to develop a proposal Congress could consider after it returns from its summer recess on Sept. 5.

The federal aid, said Miller, would be "limited in time, amount and risk to American taxpayers." It likely would resemble the loan guarantee package to Lockheed in the early 1970s.

Chrysler Chairman John Riccardo called Miller's stand a "strong expression of support.

"While a great deal of work remains to be done, this ... is good news for the employees of Chrysler, our dealers and the hundreds of thousands of workers who depend for their employment on Chrysler Corp.," he said in a statement.

Riccardo also is seeking a two-year delay in meeting federal air-pollution standards, but Miller said federal aid would not be related to "expenditures for compliance with generally applicable environmental, fuel efficiency or safety standards."

Miller added, however, that government agencies would consider various Chrysler applications for relief "in the context of its present situation."

That situation was called a "nearcrisis" in a Transportation Department report completed last November, but never released.

The Branding Iron Eades, for Second Time, Heads Up City's Toughest Endeavor

By PAUL SIMS Managing Editor

There haven't been many repeaters as United Way president in Hereford, with most of those who have taken on the tough, time-consuming duties of the position settling for a single term without any thought of a second. After all, it's one of the most difficult civic jobs. Bud Eades knows that, having been United Way head man in 1973. Eades followed that year by accepting the United Way campaign chairmanship-- maybe the toughest civic job of all. So, why would a guy who-had gone through it once want to do it again? "You asked me to serve on the nominating committee." Eades told this writer, the man he replaced as United Way president. "When I got on the

"I feel if I have any ability at all, it is in organizing and getting things done from the standpoint of organization," Eades

"My goal is to have a reconsible United Way that meets the needs that were intended to be met in the beginning. Needs such as funding the agencies in our community that make Hereford a better place to live. My immediate goal is to help set up an organization that is handled in a very businesslike way."

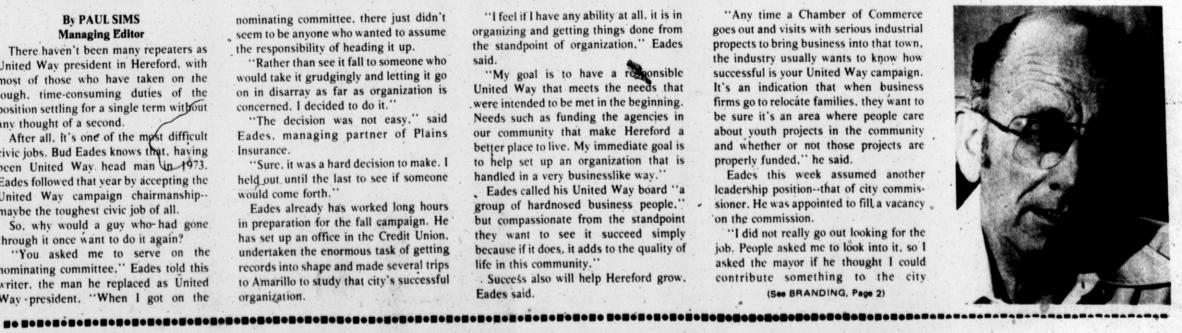

. Eades called his United Way board "a group of hardnosed business people." but compassionate from the standpoint they want to see it succeed simply because if it does, it adds to the quality of life in this community."

· Success also will help Hereford grow. Eades said.

"Any time a Chamber of Commerce goes out and visits with serious industrial propects to bring business into that town, the industry usually wants to know how successful is your United Way campaign. It's an indication that when business firms go to relocate families, they want to be sure it's an area where people care about youth projects in the community and whether or not those projects are properly funded," he said.

Eades this week assumed another leadership position-that of city commissioner. He was appointed to fill, a vacancy on the commission.

"I did not really go out looking for the job. People asked me to look into it, so I asked the mayor if he thought I could contribute something to the city (See BRANDING, Page 2)

"I don't believe the lawyers for the government, the lawyers for the school district or the judge will understand what they are getting at." said Charles Cobb, an attorney for the Lubbock Independent School District. "It looks to me like they left it up in the air."

The ruling dealt with Lubbock's 1977 application to federal court for permission to build new schools - a requirement under the district's earlier desegregation order handed down in 1970.

The Justice Department opposed the school building plan and sought a more encompassing desegregation order because the 1970 order failed to schools.

Woodward subsequently told LISD officials that it could build the new schools if a plan to desegregate nine of its 22 minority schools won court ap-

The Justice Department appealed, contending the desegregation plan approved by Woodward did not go far enough and that it "unfairly burdens minority students."

The appeals court addressed the question of why Woodward failed to order the desegregation of the 13 other minority schools. It told the district judge to determine more conclusively whether the school board's attendance zones deliberately caused shifting housing patterns that affected the schools' racial composition.

The appeals court said that the school board must more conclusively prove that "its intentional segregative acts did not contribute to the current segregation of those schools."

It quotes FBI officials as saying Orlando Letelier, an official of the short lived Marxist regime in Chile, may have been a Phase Three target when he died in the explosion that destroyed his car on a Washington street three years ago.

Kennedy Going Strong

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. really thought that Carter was Edward M. Kennedy's noncampaign for the presidency has been gaining so much momentum in recent days that friends and supporters say it would take a flat denial from him to stop it.

Draft-Kennedy movements are springing up around the country. And while the Massachusetts Democrat says he's done nothing to encourage these efforts, neither is there any evidence that he's trying to

His very silence, Kennedy watchers say, is helping to nurture the formation of dump-Carter committees and organizations.

Kennedy did make a do-notchoose-to-run statement in 1974, removing himself from contention for 1976. But this year, he's offered no similar declaration. Nor are many politicians in Washington straining their ears listening for

And while he remains publicly noncommittal to the draft-Kennedy activity, some of his associates believe the senator's already decided to make a go for

In the past few days, these developments:

-Kennedy backers won a skirmish with Carter lovalists in a battle over the date of the Massachusetts March 4 primary. Carter forces had hoped to delay it until April.

-Rep. Edward Beard, D-R.I. announced ne would enter his state's June Democratic primary as a "favorite son' candidate and deliver any votes he may receive to Kennedy. Sens. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., and John Durkin, D-N.H., earlier said they were considering doing the same thing in their

-In Pennsylvania and Iowa. groups suppporting Kennedy began raising funds for statewide draft-Kennedy campaigns.

-In Florida, Kennedy supporters launched a major campaign to win a straw ballot to be held in November at a state Democratic convention. It may be the nation's first direct Carter-Kennedy showdown vote.

-Sen. George S. McGovern, D.-S.D., the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee, appealed in a speech for Kennedy to challenge Carter for the nomination. McGovern's speech came just two days after Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., predicted Kennedy would be the Democratic nominee.

-At least one Republican presidential hopeful said he's going to campaign against Kennedy instead of Carter. Democrats around the country are "panting for" a Kennedy candidacy and will repudiate Carter, said Sen. Bob Dole of Kan-

-An ABC News-Harris poll released Thursday indicated half of all voters surveyed believe Carter should not seek reelection next year, including 52 percent of respondents calling themselves Democrats.

How does Kennedy respond to all this? By sticking to his oft-repeat-

"The signs are all there," he said, citing as examples Kennedy's refusal to discourage organizing on his behalf and his granting of interviews on the 10th anniversary of the Chappaquiddick incident.

"He didn't have to go public on Chappaquiddick, I think it was an attempt by Kennedy to

However, the senator said Kennedy would gain nothing from publicly expressing interest in the nomination now. By staving silent, he's left open an escape hatch in case Carter's political fortunes improve, the senator said. When Tsongas, Massachusetts' junior senator, recently announced he might run as a stand-in for Kennedy in the Massachusetts primary, hissenior colleague's response was predictable. Said Tsongas aide Helen Thompson: "We haven't heard anything from Kennedy. He could have told us not to do it. But he didn't."

For the record, Kennedy says Kennedy "has no association" with the draft-Kennedy movements "and has no information on them or on what they are doing." Yet in Kennedy's home state. his supporters this week won a significant battle with Carter loyalists over whether to delay the state's March 4 primary. Carter backers, fearful of a poor early showing on Kennedy's home turf, wanted it postponed

Western Art Show Only One Week Away

The Third Annual Hall of Fame Western Heritage Art Show and Sale is only one week away and is expected to attract some of the nation's foremost women Western artists. Among those planning to exhibit her works is Marilyn Castleberry, an area artist.

The Hall of Fame show, to be held in conjunction with the Professional All-Girl Rodeo, will begin Aug. 16 with an invitational preview showing. The public exhibit will be open Friday and Saturday, Aug. 17-18, from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. in the Hall of Fame.

In addition to the art show and rodeo, the Hall of Fame weekend will include a parade. barbecue, old fiddler's contest, open calf roping, dances and the induction of seven Hall of Fame

Marilyn Castleberry and her husband, Ed; raised their family on a ranch in the Panhandle. She has inherited an authentic western lifestyle. First hand knowledge of a working ranch is realistically depicted in her works of art, portraying a flexibility that blends spontaneously with the surroundings.

She has been a private pilot since 1956. Through extensive fravels in the United States and four different countries she has become associated with various people and places. She attempts to capture each individual situation on canvas. A vacation home in Arizona contributed more artistic challenges for the artist; therefore her paintings personally reflect her impressions of the American west.

Marilyn has achieved numerous awards and recognitions in medias of oil, watercolor, pastel, pencil and charcoal, including grand champion in oils at the Inter State Fair in Dalhart, Texas in 1977. She has participated in regional and national exhibitions and shows. including; by invitation, the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame at Hereford, the Jubilee of Arts at Amarillo, in 1979. Her art has been displayed annually in the Spring Citation and Best of Southwest shows in Amarillo, since 1976.

She has donated paintings to civic and national organizations. Public and private collections are held by individuals in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Virginia, Indiana, Georgia, Florida, Colorado, Massachusetts and North Caro-

Dear Mom's Voice

DEAR ANN: Regarding your advice to women to avoid 'mother-hung' men when looking for a husband: Why don't you give similar advice to Infantile emotional dependency is not a characteristic that is exclusively male. Many married women who appear to be quite mature are hopelessly attached to "Mom." They often run to her with intimate-type problems that should be discussed with their husbands.

Not long ago I listened to an acquaintance gloating over the fact that her daughters still tell her "everything" despite their husbands' protestations. She was very pleased with herself. I thought it was revolting. Soon after, I was not surprised to hear that one of her daughters was being divorced.

In our sexist society men are still expected to prove their manhood by putting 5,000 miles (if possible) between themselves and their mothers--or better yet, pretending she's dead. Yet no one looks askance on a woman who can't get through the day without talking to her mother.

Either extreme seems pretty sick to me. What do you say,

Alta Hudson, E.A. Kelly, Jim

Francisca Ruiz, Kellie Proffitt,

Ann Landers?-- A Reader-Writer DEAR READER-WRITER: You make a valid point--but it depends on where Mother lives, how long they talk, and what they talk about.

> A woman who must talk every day, and at length, with a mother who lives in another city has a problem. But a daily "Hello, Mom, how are you?" does not seem sick to me when Mom lives across town. In fact, I would give anything if I could pick up the phone and hear my own dear mother's voice again.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My physician has told me I must have a hysterectomy very soon. I am a new patient, having moved to this city only a few months ago. He said I should have had the operation quite a while ago because the fibroid tumors have grown so large they are very nearly blocking my bladder passage.

When I told my sister-in-law I was having this operation, she said she hoped I understood that tinez, Randy Ray, Katherine it meant that the end of a Rimel, Shelly Romero, (Boy) satisfactory sex life for me. "I am speaking from experience." she said.

I phoned my doctor at once and told him what my sister-in-law had said. He assured me that she was mistaken. I then called her back and repeated my doctor's reassuring words. Her reply was, "All male doctors tell you that. What do THEY know? They aren't women!

Please ann, check with your authorities and give me the correct information .-- Afriad To

DEAR AFRAID: The authorities in the field of gynecology with whom I consult tell me sexual pleasure experienced by a woman after a hysterectomy need not be diminished--unless. of course, she believes old wives' (or sister-in-law) tales that have no basis in fact. Some women find their sex lives better after this type of surgery because it frees them from the fear of pregnancy, which can be strongly inhibiting.

The only thing that may be "different" in some cases is the need for a lubricating agent. which can be purchased in any drugstore. Ask your doctor

Water Conservation Stressed To check for a leak, put a Water conservation begins at home, says Nancy Cranovsky, a family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System.

Water becomes a precious commodity when it is scarce. However, when water supplies are abundant, less thought is given to water-use habits, the specialist points out. The American Water Works Association estimates over-all residential water use at 60 gallons per person per day, so even a 10 percent per capita reduction would result in a daily savings of a billion gallons.

A water-use study-conservation project revealed that water use was significantly reduced by 25.6 percent in households

Local Student To Attend OBU

Laura J. Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Thompson of 507 Ave. J. attended a Summer Monday Enrollment session at Oklahoma Baptist University.

These special sessions for incoming students include campus tours, orientation meetings, parent conferences and enrollment periods.

A 1975 graduate of Hereford High School, she plans to major in elementary education/early childhood at OBU.

The Irish Saint Columba landed on Iona in 563 and established the first religious community on the island. Columba and his monks settled in huts, built a tiny chapel, and later expanded their settlement to include a monastery.

COLLEGE STATION - sampled, Mrs. Granovsky

The reduction was attributed to the installation of toilet tank mechanisms designed to conserve water and to simple water-use changes adopted by households.

Eighty percent of the households reported making changes in their water-use habits. They mentioned the following changes: .. -- reduced amount of running water in sinks -- reduced lawn and garden -used dishwasher only when

-- washed only full loads in clothes washer

-- took shorter showers -repaired leaks and drips -- flushed toilets less often --turned off faucet when brushing teeth -used less water in bathtub -- washed car less often A conscious effort is required to change water-use habits, but repairing leaks and drips saves water without changing habits, the specialist continues. Consider the toilet. Each toilet flush uses from five to seven gallons of water. Check the toilet to see if water leaks after flushing. Two hundred gallons a day can seep from tank to bowl if there is a small amount of food coloring into the tank. If the color trickles into the bowl, there is a leak that needs repairing. In buying a new toilet, look for a "low volume" model, she recommends. Reduce the amount of water 4:20-4:40 used in an older toilet by placing a plastic milk or detergent bottle filled with water and extra weight like sand or gravel into the toilet tank. The amount of water saved will be the same as the volume displaced by the plastic container. Bricks do not displace as much water, and brick particles can seriously damage valves.

Or, save water by adjusting the float level of the toilet so the tank fills with less water, or place two-ounce lead weight on the lift rod and just above the tank ball.

This last procedure forces the tank ball to seat more quickly than it normally would, thus allowing less water to leave the tank, Mrs. Granovsky adds.

HEW Funds To Keep Bishop College Open

Attorney Asks For Acquittal

DALLAS (AP) - Bishop College apparently will open its doors for the 98th time this fall, but its financial and legal entanglements are far from over.

The school's first order of business will be to meet three conditions set forth by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare before the government will hand over $600,000 in funds.

The conditions require the HEW hopes that by placing the college's finances under federal supervision, the college can remain open and the government can get the $2.8 million it says Bishop owes.

The predominantly black college was allowed to open last vear under a similar rehabilitation plan that failed to solve the school's multitude of problems. Funds were cut off in March after Bishop failed to account to 1962. for federal funds and loans.

This year, however, the school also must operate without its top three administrators, who face trial Nov. 5 on their first of two sets of indictments.

President Milton K. Curry and vice presidents Reginald Leffall and Walter Johnson were placed on administrative leave in May after they were charged with embezzling funds earmarked for the college pension fund and making false statements to receive loans from federally insured banks. The charges, the result of a Justice Department probe, dated back

The three administrators have denied any wrongdoing.

School administrators and observers variously have pointed to poor record keeping, poor management and poor administration as the cause of the ongoing financial dilemmas that have plagued the college over the years.

Monthly cash requests, obtained by the Dallas Morning News under the Freedom of Information Act, show several arithmetic and accounting errors. The requests were signed "under penalties of perjury" by Curry and former business manager Ronald Coker.

In August, the college requested $969,500, but in November, zero. A notation said the inconsistency was the result of "lack of clarification on expenditures."

One trustee called the rollercoaster figures an example of 'bad management." The trustee also said up to twice as many support personnel worked at Bishop as teachers - even before the number of teachers was cut in February.

'We (the trustees) probably should not have approved the budget with so many support personnel," the trustee told the

While Bishop College may have an abundance of support personnel, the number of students is dwindling.

About 1.100 are expected this fall, a 300-student cut from last year. The school can accommodate more than 2,000.

And as the students go, so does public support. Contributions from Dallas' business community are dwindling as supporters begin to consider Bishop a bad investment.

Alex Bickley, vice president of the Dallas Citizens' Council, said support from his group made up of the city's most powerful businessmen - may come only in the form of leniency on overdue bills.

Many former supporters say - publicly - that their contributions will have to wait for a "reorganization." But privately, they say the school's enigmatic president, Curry, must

They admit, however, that Curry is the single driving force behind Bishop College, and that replacing him would not be easy. Curry has seen the school through many hard times, he has brought Bishop into prominence in the South, and he has gained a following of potentially powerful alumni and

In May, about 600 ministers who gathered at the college launched a drive to collect $1.-000 for Bishop in "every black church in America." The drive's effectiveness, however, remains to be seen.

Despite crumbling support from elsewhere, the ministers - along with a core of devoted students, alumnae and friends - say they will find a way to keep Bishop open. After all, they say, the college has survived other hard times in these Defense attorney Oscar Goodman of Las Vegas said the government had not proved Chagra earned a "substantial income" from drug ventures about which his alleged accomplices had testified under grants of immunity.

The final government witness, Las Vegas real estate woman Mary Broder, said Chagra made a $75,000 cash down payment on a $245,000 house last September - six months after the last drug transaction alleged by the gov-

Goodman said this was the government's only shot at proving Chagra earned substantial income from the drug traffic. but "the monies could not be traced to any other transaction but came from a cash box at a gambling casino.'

He said the government had not proved its case but he feared a conviction because the jury might not be able to sort through the prosecution's "shotgun barrage of evidence" on the complex "continuing enterprise" charge.

Just having $75,000 in cash "in and of itself is prejudicial to Mr. Chagra," Goodman said

Pierce replied there was indicating Chagra had made a "substantial income" from dope smuggling.

'We are not relying on the purchase of the house. ... We still have substantial gross amounts of cash going through Mr. Chagra's hands, coming from Mr. Chagra," Pierce said.

had held that "substantial income" was written into the law not as a measure of profit but "as a guide to the magnitude of the enterprise."

Runkles said he feared newspaper reports of his testimony might damage his chances for a new trial in state court in Connecticut.

"I don't intend to have my name drug through the mud in front of my four children," he told sessions.

Runkles' six-month sentence for contempt will start when his Connecticut prison term ends.

Strong Year For Tech, SWC Predicted

By MARC HERRING Brand Sports Editor

The transition from high school to college football is quite a step, especially for a freshman playing against individuals that have more experience, but Ron Reeves of Texas Tech made the switch and is prepared to lead the Red Raiders for the second year as quarterback.

Reeves, who was in town yesterday to speak at the pre-season Fellowship of Christian Athlete meeting, felt he was capable of handling the duties of quarterback, although some changes in tactics have been made since his high school days at Monterey High School.

"When I was in high school, I was big enough that I could run over a lot of the other team, but here in the college games, I'm just average size, Reeves said.

Average size for Reeves is 6-2 and about 210 pounds, although he would like to play at 205. Whereas in high school he was noted for his running, in college he has become more and more known for his passing.

"I still love to run with the ball, but because of my arm strength, people are labeling me as more of a passer," Reeves said. "With our offense, I get the chance to do both, which is good and it keeps our attack diverse."

The Tech offense is a split-veer attack, which uses the running of two backs plus the running and passing of the quarterback.

in the Red Raider arsenal is the running of All-American fullback James Hadnot, and tailback Mark Olbert. "Hadnot is quite a runner,"

Other forms of attack that are

Reeves noted. "He's not the fastest guy on the field, but he doesn't try to run around the other team,' he runs over them.

"As for Olbert, most of the media question his talents, and on paper, it might seem questionable to have a guy at 5-10 and 190 out there, but let me tell you, Mark is tough, and I have the feeling that he will surprise a lot of folks this year."

Ideally Tech would like to have the services of a speed merchant that could get outside and make the long gain, but the coaches are happy with what

Reeves went on to say that the loss of both starters last year in the receiving corp is tough to take, but this year's crew is quite capable of handling the out for the top two spots," Reeves said. "And I have confidence in all of them to be able to do the job.

Defensively Reeves said that the strength there is the secondary, which he says is the toughest in the nation. "All I can say about them is that I'm glad I don't have to throw against them in a game."

As a part of the Southwest Conference, Tech will have tough game after tough game, including two that will be against pre-season Top 10 picks, Texas and Houston. And as an opener, a game against defending national champion

"I'm glad we have a schedule like we do," Reeves said. "Personally I like to play the tough teams, because it makes you play better and if you beat them, then you have accomplished something."

"I tell you, we can go undefeated this year if we can have the same kind of team spirit that we had last year. And it appears that the guys on the team feel that they can get it

"We have had about 30 guys a day working out this summer. and this is all voluntary. I think that the game against USC is a big factor, and we will be ready for them," Reeves said.

The death of Walter O'Malley ends an era in baseball and the rest of the world of sports should pause for a moment and consider the impact this man had on their industry. It was O'Malley, remember, who pulled baseball - kicking and screaming - out of its geographic straightjacket and taught the game that our country doesn't terminate at Chicago or St. Louis or Kansas City.

This quiet, professorial-looking man in wire-rimmed glasses changed the sports map of America, not only for baseball, but for football, hockey and basketball as well.

Baseball has always billed itself as the national pasttime, but until O'Malley moved the Dodgers to Los Angeles, it really wasn't very national. There were eight teams in each league and a western trip meant a swing through the middle of the

In those days, O'Malley was ensconced in Brooklyn, N.Y., with his Dodgers playing in a charming, cozy little ball park called Ebbets Field. The stadium held about 30,000 people but it - and the neighborhood - were crumbling. So the boss, an enterprising lawyer-engi-

If the city would construct a fancy new stadium, say in the suburbs, he could see the Dodgers' financial position improving in a hurry. But the city wasn't impressed with that idea at all and, in effect, told O'Malley to take a hike. So that's exactly what he did - a 3,000-mile hike to California.

The West Coast was virgin major league sports territory in those days. Teams traveled by trains and schedules didn't permit the four or five days it would take to make the journey. But the advent of jet travel made California accessible and O'Malley was the first owner to seize the opportunity.

He couldn't go alone, though. One team would never get permission to stretch the league boundaries into California. So he convinced his New York neighbor, Horace Stoneham, to come along for the ride and move the Giants to San Fran-

That stroke of genius helped O'Malley win approval of his plan to move and, at the same time, left New York with no National League franchise for the first time since the league started doing business during the 19th century. The city had learned the hard way that Walter O'Malley was not a man with whom you could trifle.

In his division of California, O'Malley picked Los Angeles and left San Francisco for Stoneham. It turned out to be a stroke of genius. The Giants did well for a while, then struggled for many years when Charley Finley turned the Bay Area into a two-team zone. O'Malley, meanwhile, thrived in Southern

In the team's second year there, playing in the Los Angeles Coliseum, the Dodgers became the first team in major league history to draw more than two million fans.

Dodgers Cut Astros Lead

It was a memorable victory for another reason, however. On the day Walter O'Malley, the Dodgers' 75-year-old chair-

After three hits, two of them homers, and four runs batted in against the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday, all Dillard could say was: "I don't know what it is. I'm just hitting the ball well."

When the smoke had cleared, and the Cubs had routed the Pirates 11-3, Dillard found himself batting .323 (a mere 72 points above his lifetime average) with three home runs this season one more than he totalled for the first 233 games of his major league career.

In the other NL games Thursday, the San Diego Padres blanked the San Francisco Giants 4-0, the Philadelphia Phillies trimmed the Montreal Expos 6-4, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the Houston Astros 4-3, the St. Louis Cardinals downed the New York Mets 4-0 and the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Atlanta Braves 5-2.

Sutcliffe, 10-8, pitched into the sixth inning before Dave Patterson and Joe Beckwith finished up.

Dusty Baker drove home the decisive runs with a two-run double in the fifth inning that broke a 2-2 tie.

Afterward, Baker praised the Astros, who have led the division 100 days this season, the last 73 in a row.

"I don't think their inexperience is going to hurt them," said the Dodgers' outfielder. "They are a self-motivated team. They keep coming up with the big hit."

Such was the case again

After Steve Garvey provided

Sutcliffe a 2-0 lead in the third inning with his 18th homer, a two-run shot to center, the Astros came back with two in the fifth inning on Jeff Leonard's two-out, two-run triple. The Dodgers broke the tie in the bottom of the fifth when Baker doubled home Lopes and Sutcliffe, with 10 victories, is tied with Burt Hooton for the most wins on the staff. Asked if he was surprised with that many wins, Sutcliffe said. "I thought I'd have about 15 or 20 by this time, but in Albuquerque (the Dodgers' Pacific Coast League team). "The club has scored a lot of runs for me, I've pitched well at times but walks have hurt me. I've also learned that you can't challenge batters up here (in the majors) like you can in the minor leagues.' Joaquin Andujar, 11-8, took the loss

Afterwards, it was disclosed that Los Angeles relief pitcher Terry Forster will undergo surgery on his pitching arm for the second time in less than a year. Forster, who had an elbow operation last November, has been slow in recovering and another bone spur has developed in his arm.

Houston outfielder Cesar Cedeno, who did not play in the series, returned home rather then accompany the club to Atlanta. He has been troubled with a stomach virus for several

Injury Not Affecting Play Says McMichaels

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) -The wrists and hands of Steve McMichael look like they've been in a briar patch but the All-America defensive lineman from the University of Texas says he is 90 per cent recovered from an accident suffered this May at home.

McMichael was pulling out of the driveway of his Lake Jackson. Texas home when he heard a knock in the motor. While he was inspecting the problem, he caught his hands in the fan belt.

"They took 75 stiches on the surface and I don't know how many underneath," said McMichael, who is on an ABC-TV tour promoting collegiate football. "I still can't bend my hands back without it hurting. But I can go with pain. Pain is nothing new for a football play-

McMichael led Texas tacklers last fall with 142 stops, including 15 behind the line of scrimmage. He had eight quarterback sacks and was credited with three fumble recoveries.

"I'm stronger than I was." said McMichael, whose strength is something of a legend on the University of Texas

"My grip is still lacking but I've got one and one-half months to work on it before our first game," said McMichael. "I've been crinkling up newspapers, rolling dumb-bells and working on hand grippers. I stay in the weight room about four hours a day. I've been working hard."

Asked what his first thoughts were when he had the accident. McMichael grinned "redshirt. I thought I was going to have to sit out a year.'

McMichael has the nickname 'Bam-Bam'' because of his facial resemblance to a character on the caveman comedy show. "The Flintstones."

The 6-foot-2, 250-pound

McMichael has tremendous quickness for a big man but has never been timed in the 40-yard dash, a measurement used by most professional teams. "I think I could do a 4.8 or a
